Navigation marks along Chindwin River to be installed

NAVIGATION marks are being installed monthly at designated spots along the Chindwin River according to the Directorate of Water Resources and Improvement of River Systems in Sagaing Region.

"The navigation marks were built in November when the water level declined. When the marks were rebuilt, waterways were examined for free from farms on islands when the water level was very low. However, some farmers destroyed the navigation marks and some fishermen also took the marks out of the water. So, those who break the navigation marks will have legal action taken against them, violators may face a three year prison term if convicted. Therefore, fishermen and farmers need to cooperate for maintaining the navigation marks" said assistant director U Tin Aung Soe from the Regional Directorate of Water Resources and Improvement of River Systems.

As a safeguard for water transportation, 1170 navigation marks in the river and 1040 navigation marks at ports have been rebuilt from November to February of the 2017-2018 fiscal year.—Myanmar Digital News ■

The Mandalay Government spent Ks 177.68 million for healthcare in 2016-2017 fiscal year and Ks 230 million in the 2017-2018 fiscal year. "We purchased 113 types of medical products in 2016-2017 and Ks 230 million worth of medicine in 2017-2018," said the regional chief minister. He added that there are three vaccination programs. "In 2016-2017 we administered 93 per cent of ringworm vaccination and we managed the same number the next year. In 2017-2018 we administered 90 per cent of vaccinations for Japanese Encephalitis. Our region still has cases of elephantiasis but we've managed to perform 96.28 per cent of vaccinations in our two year term."

Concerning public education, the regional government built new schools, expanded existing ones and established new examination centers.

"In our two years we've spent Ks 15.698 billion of the union budget to construct 573 new schools," said the regional chief minister. "Donors contributed Ks 3.54 billion for the construction of 74 new school wards. We have upgraded 70 existing schools and have established 21 new examination centers throughout 28 townships in the region." The regional government also provided extracurricular education for working children in seven townships. In the first year, sixty volunteer teachers provided education for over 600 children and in the second year they reached out to 400 children. "We allotted turned 3,000 acres of confiscated lands to their original owners in the two year period. The chief minister said the scene of farmers protesting for their confiscated lands is disheartening. "We do everything we can for them," he said. "There are about 140,000 plots of confiscated land that we are scrutinizing for returning. We want to return it the rightful owner."

"We recently came into possession of 4,000 acres of land confiscated for building an airport and 290 acres in Pyin Oo Lwin. We want to give back as much as possible within five years but we have other concerns too," he added.

The chief minister said that Mandalay Region receives harsh criticism for drug abuse. "Our region is a hub point so there are many people coming in and out all the time," said the chief minister. "We have apprehended a lot of drug dealers and users. But the rate of smuggling is higher than the rate of apprehending them so it only seems drug abuse is rampant but we manage to seize them at gates and through informed contacts," added the chief minister. Every June the confiscated drugs are destroyed but more keep pouring into the region.

Another thing the region is criticized for is vehicle accidents involving motorbikes. The chief minister said cooperation from the public is key here as even after much awareness raising there are still frequent reports of vehicle accidents.

The chief minister said he is not very satisfied with the status of security in the region. "We have a force of 400 officers patrolling around the region constantly. It is not a lawless region but the rate of crime, especially by young people, is persistent. It may be due to influence of drugs or gambling but young people will steal or commit robberies in all forms," said the chief minister.

Dr. Zaw Soe, from the International Relations and Political Science Department, Mandalay University, that active participation from the public is paramount in a democratic state. He said that many citizens do not follow traffic rules even though there are traffic lights and officers in place.

The chief minister said there are still bountiful opportunities for improvement and development in Mandalay Region. "There's the New Yatanarpon City Project and another project in Pyin Oo Lwin. We are building and improving ports with help from Singapore. We have a lot of merchandise and commodities to transport along the Ayeyawady River but not very developed ports yet."

The chief minister said the Mandalay government will do its best to continue providing for the people for the remaining three years of office.

Work together to make it easier to do business

REFORMING the private sector plays an important role not only in the country's economy, but also in promoting the socio-economic welfare of the people. More than 90 per cent of the country's economy relies on the private sector.

Reforms related to private sector growth play an important role in creating an environment in which everyone can make investments in Myanmar.

Another area that needs to be addressed is with respect to basic services delivery, where infrastructural building, a bigger electrical grid and constructing roads are needed. There is no question about this. There are a lot of policy reforms that need to happen to improve health, education and electricity supply.

The other two decisions of increasing the Ease of Doing Business Ranking and Single Registration System of businesses in a single Ministry instead of registering in many ministries were still being implemented.

One of the important decisions is to establish a Credit Bureau that collects information on loans.

The other two decisions of increasing the Ease of Doing Business Ranking and Single Registration System of businesses in a single Ministry instead of registering in many ministries were still being implemented. These two are representative of the types of work that need time to be implemented.

Meanwhile, to raise the ranking in the World Bank Report on Doing Business, a 14-member committee led by the Deputy Minister for Commerce was formed in January.

In the 2018 World Bank report on Doing Business, Myanmar was ranked 171.

To improve this ranking, Ministries concerned need to cooperate with each other in implementing a One Stop Service for registration of businesses and make it easier to do business in the country.

The Ministries concerned and the private sector should join hands to cooperate in its efforts to ease rules, promote small and medium enterprises, develop the trade sector, provide vocational training and build infrastructure. ■

We must join together with the private sector, an important partner and the most reliable engine for growth, if the country is to make meaningful progress towards the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Since its formation on 24 October 2016, the Private Sector Development Committee led by Vice President U Myint Swe has significantly developed the private sector.

Since the committee was formed, five duties were assigned to it and five work committees were formed to implement these duties. So far, 42 out of 45 decisions were implemented and three were still being implemented.

One of the important decisions is to establish a Credit Bureau that collects information on loans.

The other two decisions of increasing the Ease of Doing Business Ranking and Single Registration System of businesses in a single Ministry instead of registering in many ministries were still being implemented. These two are representative of the types of work that need time to be implemented.

Full Moon Day of Kasone (May)

Lord Buddha's First Victory

By Maha Saddhamma Jotika dhaja
Sithu Dr. Khin Maung Nyunt

THERE are eight victories which Lord Gotama Buddha achieved over his eight opponents not by means of force but by means of peace in the form of metta (loving kindness). These eight victories of Lord Gotama Buddha are well known as "Aung Chin Shitpar" literally အောင်ခြင်းရှစ်ပါး.

The first victory of Lord Buddha achieved was the one over his opponent Satan the evil deva who tried to dislodge Lord Buddha from his seat under the shade of a Bodhi Tree (Banyan Tree where Lord Gotama Buddha was being enlightened).

The following is the brief of this event;

"In the Kawza Sakarit of 103 (Buddhist Era) on the full moon of Kasone, Lord Gotama Buddha was in deep meditation, with a determination not to rise and go away till he achieved Buddhahood.

At that moment Satan the evil deva from Vasavadi kingdom, riding young Mingala Elephant came down, challenging Lord Gotama Buddha to move from his seat for him. First Satan the evil deva used his beautiful daughters to entice Lord Buddha. On failure, he turned to force by attempting to attack with all his warriors.

Lord Buddha remained unshaken. He said that to become a Buddha he had aeons of years of practicing perfections ten virtues (parami). In the different forms of lives, good he had been through he had done only good deeds and never bad deeds. To prove that what he said was true, he called upon Earth, saying Earth has restored in its womb all good deeds of all my lives in this whirl pool of Samsara (Endless cycle of births and rebirths).

Lord Buddha raised his right hand and with his fore finger pointed to the Earth, calling upon the Earth to stand witness to what he said.

Whereupon, the entire Earth quaked. Heavy showers came down, causing billows of waves.

Wathonedarey, the god of Earth appeared from the earth saying what Lord Gotama Buddha said was true. Every time he did good deed, libation ceremony was made. I had collected water of libation ceremony in my hair. Look at it". So saying the Earth god squeezed his hair and out came constant libation water from his hair carrying army of Satan's warriors.

Then, Lord Buddha says "Satan the evil deva, I give metta (loving kindness) and one day you will come to listen to my Dhamma and you also will escape from Samsara to reach Nivana, the end of all cravings and sufferings – eternal peace.

Of many mudras (hand gestures) of Buddha images or pictures, Bhumisatha mudra (earth touching or pointing gesture) is most revered and sacred. You will find the statue of Earth god wathonedarey squeezing his long hair producing water. After libation ceremony performed at the end of any religious deed, Myanmar Buddhists pour libation water on the head of Wathondarey Statue and calling upon it to stand witness to their good deeds. They then strike nearby gongs or bells to send out the shares of religious deeds to all humans and spirits of being in all directions.

Because Lord Gotama Buddha became enlightened under the shade of Banyan Tree (Bodhi Tree) it became the Bodhi Tree. Buddhists of the past and Buddhas of the future had and would have their own Bodhi Tree. The 28 Buddhas became enlightened under different kinds of trees including bamboo. You can see them at the shrines of 28 Buddhas (နှစ်သိင်္ဂါရုံရှစ်ဆူဘုရား).

Seeds of saplings of Bodhi Tree (Banyan Tree) were brought either from Boolgaya in India or from Sri Lanka by monks, Myanmar kings' delegations, or private pilgrims throughout Myanmar history till today. Therefore sacred Bodhi Trees are found not only in the precincts or platforms of famous pagodas but also in most areas across Myanmar.

In Kasone on full moon day, Myanmar traditional monthly festival is held without fail. In Yangon, a big water-pouring ceremonies are held at Shwedagon Pagoda, Sule Pagoda, Botahtaung pagoda, Ngahtatkyi, Chaukhtatkyi and Ko-htat Kyi pagoda etc. Kasone is very warm and dry. Water diminishes in the earth. So we need to pour water at Bodhi Tree. In Mandalay, a grand Kasone water-pouring takes place at Bodhigone, Kuthodaw, Kyauk Taw Kyi, Sandamuni, Maha Muni, Shwe Kyet Yet Pagodas on a grand scale usually rain clouds gather on such occasions and sometime thunderous heavy down pour take place.

It is so pleasant and religiously inspired to watch the train of pretty Myanmar ladies bearing pots of water on their heads, each more than one pots (in rural areas, there used to be some girls who can bear up to 10 pots) coming to the Bodhi Tree to pour. At the end of the line are groups of armature male performers, playing percussion and wind instruments, singing songs and dancing joyously. They joined in pouring water. Cold drinks and Myanmar traditional snacks are served.

Kasone water pouring ceremony is also a good occasion for young boys and girls to meet.

Kasone full moon day ceremonies and events are depicted in Myanmar visual arts and re-enacted in Myanmar performing arts.

The famous song named Aung Chin Shitpar sung by nationally famed film actress and singer May Shin. မေရှင် revealed by A1. Film is still popular with the current generation.

The entire song described how Lord Gotama Buddha won his eight opponents by means of metta (loving kindness) sending out the messages of his Dhamma to the world to avoid conflict and to restore permanent peace by metta (loving kindness). ■

Asia-Pacific countries identify financial technology needs to meet global goals

NEW YORK — Asia-Pacific countries met on the sidelines of the United Nations Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) Forum on Financing for Development in New York this week to explore opportunities for scaling up the Financial Technology Industry (Fintech), such as mobile money and micro-lending companies, to meet the ambitious targets set out in the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

The high-level participants recognised the need to increase access to financial services for small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) and the region's poorest people, if the aim of mobilizing 2.5 trillion annually in Asia and the Pacific is to be attained. They noted, however, that regulators would need to strike the right balance between facilitating innovation, maintaining financial stability and ensuring consumer protection.

Organized by the United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) and the Permanent Missions of Bangladesh, Indonesia and Kazakhstan, the side event provided a platform for countries to review their experience in pursuing FinTech initiatives, and identify policy and regulatory challenges in harnessing, their potential in the region.

In her opening remarks, UN Under-Secretary-General and Executive Secretary of ESCAP Dr. Shamshad Akhtar underscored that access to financial services is an integral component of the global financing for the development agenda.

"Frontier technologies are offering new solutions for providing an impetus to financial inclusion," she said.

"FinTech solutions include cell phone apps that allow users to execute online transactions, such as bill payments, store credit scoring of consumers and small businesses owners based on big data analytics, along with online alternative financing platforms such as peer-to-peer lending and equity crowdfunding."

Dr. Akhtar emphasized that, "Asia-Pacific is leading globally the Fintech emergence and they are transforming the way people pay, send money, borrow, lend, and invest."

Mr. Abul Maal Abdul Muhith, Minister of Finance, Bangladesh added, "We need to create a regional platform for sharing experiences and best practices to enhance MSMEs access to finance in the Asia-Pacific region."

Mr. Bambang P.S. Brodjonegoro, Minister of National Development Planning, Indonesia further underscored that governments need to "highlight the importance of proper regulatory framework to take advantage of FinTech to support the attainment of SDGs particularly in tackling inequality."—(ESCAP NEWS) ■

Effective and speedy dousing of Htein Bin Garbage Dump fire with assistances and suggestions of foreign experts

IT is learnt that assistances and suggestions of foreign experts will be obtained for effective and speedy dousing of Htein Bin Garbage Dump fire.

Yangon Mayor U Maung Maung Soe said, "Since yesterday (27 April) the fire is being doused with 2,000 gallons of Bio Foam that were brought from Thailand. Initial requirement is 5,000 gallons. The remaining amount will be brought in later in the evening (28 April). Experts from Thailand had also arrived and their assistances and suggestions will be obtained to douse the fire."

"The fire is not an ordinary fire on the surface. It is an underground fire caused by methane gas from the garbage. Smokes were coming out from the fire underneath. Bio Foam needs to be injected deep into the garbage dumb like an injection is being injected. The (underground) fire in Thailand back in 2014 was doused in this way. The fire at that time was similar in area to the fire here. It took more than seven days to douse the fire at that time. Experts that arrive here were involved in dousing that fire and they had experience about it. They will study the present fire with other experts who are also arriving and will suggest a solution(s)" added the Yangon mayor. Mr. Natthun Lanogthong, a high ranking fire department expert from Thailand who was involved in fighting the 2014 garbage dump fire in Bangkok, Thailand said, "I'm here because Myanmar asked for assistance. Myanmar and Thailand are good neighbors and this is why we are here too. At the moment we are still studying the ground situation. At this initial stage, there is a requirement for personal equipment." Although 90 per cent of the fire has been put out, fire underneath the garbage dump is still emitting smokes and efforts toward putting it out completely is being continued and the suggestions of the foreign experts will be used, it is learnt. As part of this work, a meeting was held at the command post near the fire yesterday afternoon for a speedy and effective elimination of the fire. # Mamma Mia! ABBA make new music after 35 years

STOCKHOLM — “Mamma Mia! Here we go again”: Sweden’s legendary disco group ABBA announced on Friday that they have reunited to record two new songs, 35 years after their last single, sparking joy and surprise among fans.

“We all four felt that, after some 35 years, it could be fun to join forces again and go into the recording studio. So we did,” the group said in a statement after repeatedly vowing they would never reunite.

The new songs “I Still Have Faith In You” and “Don’t Shut Me Down” were recorded last summer, the band’s manager Gorel Hanser told TT news agency.

The quartet split up in 1982 after dominating the disco scene for more than a decade with hits like “Waterloo”, “Dancing Queen”, “Mamma Mia” and “Super Trouper”.

“It was like time had stood still and that we only had been away on a short holiday. An extremely joyful experience!” members Agnetha Faltskog, Bjorn Ulvaeus, Anni-Frid Lyngstad and Benny Andersson added.

The group, which sold more than 400 million albums, have not sung together publicly since 1986.

“I think it’s going to sound pretty much like their last songs from 1982, with quite a mild tempo, not like ‘Voulez-Vous’ or ‘Gimme Gimme Gimme’,” Carl Magnus Palm, who has written several books about the group, told AFP.

“Frida’s and Agnetha’s voices are the same, so it won’t be a huge difference,” he said.

Palm said he was stunned by Friday’s announcement.

“I’m as surprised as everyone else.... They’ve always been so adamant that they weren’t going to make new music.”

The news came as Sweden mourned the death of another of its music sensations, Avicii, one of the world’s most successful DJs whose real name was Tim Bergling. He was found dead a week ago in Oman where he had been on holiday with friends.

‘Come of age’

Computerised avatars are to perform “I Still Have Faith In You” in a TV special produced by NBC and the BBC to be broadcast in December, the group said.

“We have come of age, but the song is new. And it feels good.”

Bjorn, 73, was married to Agnetha, 68, and Benny, 71, was married to Anni-Frid, 72.

The group dominated the 1970s disco scene with their glitzy costumes, kitsch dance routines and catchy melodies.

They first found global fame after winning the Eurovision Song Contest in 1974 with “Waterloo”. While they have appeared in public together on rare occasions, they have never reunited to perform as a group, and have vowed that won’t ever happen.

“There is simply no motivation to regroup. Money is not a factor and we would like people to remember us as we were,” Ulvaeus said in a 2008 interview.

Friday’s announcement elicited as much joy as shock among observers. Richard Skold, a 46-year-old ABBA fan who works at a Stockholm book store, jumped up with surprise after hearing the news.

“This is the craziest thing I’ve heard! I never thought this would happen. And the fact that they’re all still alive is fantastic!” he told AFP.

‘The same wonderful chemistry’

The group’s manager Gorel Hanser told TT that hearing the four record the two new songs was “just like in the ABBA days”.

“It was the same wonderful chemistry. It was as if time had stood still,” Hanser said.

“Everyone got into their role and sang, and sang and sang,” she said, adding the band was not planning to tour together in real life.

Their popularity has continued to grow over the years, with the 1999 hit musical “Mamma Mia” and the 2008 film of the same name starring Meryl Streep bringing their music to a whole new generation of fans.

ABBA’s music also featured prominently in two cult Australian films, “The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert” and “Muriel’s Wedding”, both released in 1994.

In 2013, the world’s first museum dedicated to ABBA opened in Stockholm, offering visitors a chance to get up close and personal with the foursome with a little help from modern technology.—AFP ■

China’s Wanda opens its answer to Hollywood

QINGDAO (Shandong Province) — The “movie metropolis” in eastern China is the size of 500 football fields, and was initiated by the conglomerate Wanda

A massive “movie metropolis” billed as China’s answer to Hollywood opened on Saturday, aiming to boost the domestic film industry and attract foreign producers.

Fifty billion yuan ($7.9 billion) has been invested in building the studio complex in the eastern port city of Qingdao, according to the project’s initiator, Chinese conglomerate Dalian Wanda, which is owned by one of China’s richest men Wang Jianlin.

But the opening lacked the high-wattage star power that turned out for the project’s inauguration in 2013, when Hollywood A-listers Leonardo DiCaprio, John Travolta and Nicole Kidman showed up for a lavish event.

The waning celebrity interest comes as debt-laden Wanda has been forced to carry out a fire sale of its real estate holdings following an overseas spending spree over the last several years.

The size of 500 football fields, the 376-hectare “Qingdao Movie Metropolis” features 30 studios with “the highest international standards”, according to Wanda. The company plans to build ten more studios.

The vast complex includes a school, a hospital, luxury hotels and a yacht club inspired by one in Monaco.

The mini-city also features a giant shopping mall with restaurants, an ice skating rink, an amusement park and the biggest movie theatre in Asia.

“This is the largest investment the global film and television industry has ever seen,” the company said.

Wanda, whose interests range from real estate to entertainment, snatched up Legendary Entertainment — maker of “Jurassic World” and Christopher Nolan’s “Batman” trilogy — for $3.5 billion in 2016, as well as US-based cinema chain AMC Theatres. In a bid to ease its debt problems, Wanda last year sold dozens of hotels and other projects to Sunac and real estate firm R&F Properties for around $10 billion.—AFP ■

Charles, saxophonist of Neville Brothers, dead at 79

NEW ORLEANS — Charles Neville, whose calm and joyfully assured saxophone pulled together the sound of R&B favourites The Neville Brothers, has died at age 79, the family said.

The New Orleans native, who had overcome drug addiction to lead a rigorously healthy life in his final years, died on Thursday at his home in the woods of western Massachusetts, a family statement said.

Singer Aaron Neville, the group’s frontman who has pursued a successful solo career, said that if he had to choose brothers, “I would definitely choose you.”

“You helped to mold me into who I am today and I’ll always be thankful. I’ll always see your special infectious smile on the stage next to me. It would always give me a smile,” he said in the statement.

The Neville Brothers — whose best-known songs included “Sister Rosa,” a tribute to civil rights icon Rosa Parks — brought together the rich heritages of New Orleans including R&B, funk, blues and Native American music.

The brothers, who were partially of Choctaw Indian ancestry, also helped put together The Wild Tchoupitoulas, which brought a wider audience to the Native American-influenced music heard at New Orleans’ Mardi Gras carnivals.

Known for his horseshoe moustache and upbeat demeanor, Charles Neville had his start in the house band of the Dew Drop Inn, a legendary R&B joint in the city, and recalled always being around music.—AFP ■

Picasso painting with 25,000 owners on show in Geneva

GENEVA — It won't hang on the wall in their living rooms, but they own it nonetheless: 25,000 Internet users banded together to buy a Picasso painting, which went on display in Geneva on Friday.

Visitors to Swiss bargain site Qoqa usually end up buying a new drill, a set of luggage or a cheap trip to Marrakesh.

But last December, the website that was created in 2005 with the motto: "We do anything, but it's all for you", proposed a painting by none other than artist superstar Pablo Picasso.

The 1968 painting titled "Buste de mousquetaire" (Musketeer Bust) was offered up at the bargain price of two million Swiss francs ($2.0 million, 1.7 million euros).

Over the course of three days, 25,000 people purchased 40,000 shares, at a price of 50 Swiss francs each, to become the proud owners of the artwork.

Qoqa's main objective with selling a work by arguably the most famous artist of the 20th century was obviously "to go viral" and get people talking about the website, company chief and founder Pascal Meyer told AFP.

But standing in the middle of the site's open workspace, with its young, hip staff bent over laptops, the 37-year-old stressed the move had also been inspired by a desire to democratise the art world, which he said was often viewed as "closed and obscure".

'Doubly impossible'

"When we launched this idea, people told us to forget it, that it was just impossible," said Meyer, who like the rest of Qoqa's workforce adheres to a no-tie policy.

"And then when we started talking about Picasso, people said, 'now that is doubly impossible'. So the challenge was irresistible," he enthused.

"We said: Let's do this thing. Let's try ... to democratise this area, which seems so inaccessible to regular people."

The company gathered a team of specialists to certify the authenticity of the painting, but also to ensure that the price was fair. Meyer refused to divulge how much Qoqa paid for the 58 x 28.5-centimetre painting, which portrays what looks like a man with a pointy beard and moustache, and a lacy collar.

He said only that the company bought it from a European seller who did not wish to be identified.

In the "musketeer" spirit of the painting, the owners have basically made a vow of "all for one, one for all" by pool decisions on where it will go on display.

Geneva's modern art museum MAMCO was on Friday the first to receive that honour.

Director Lionel Bovier said he had been smitten by the project.

'More sexy, less boring'

For the reputedly high-brow museum, associating with the crowd sourcing scheme could serve to help broaden its appeal beyond the elitist crowd it usually attracts.

"The main interest for us is to foster a broader group of visitors..., to reach out and address this group of people who have become owners of the painting," Bovier told AFP.

"We hope to draw the biggest crowd possible from this group of 25,000 people," he said, adding that most of the buyers were from the French-speaking part of Switzerland.

Each owner has been issued his or her own card, bearing individual numbers and a picture of the painting, allowing them to come and admire it at will, for free. Bovier said he had drawn on Qoqa's technological know-how to display the painting in an original manner, using among other things a webcam and an interactive platform, "PiQasso", which will be available through the Qoqa site.

A 3D scan of the piece has also been made, allowing visitors to stroll through it.

"There are lots of little things that will make this a bit more sexy and bit less boring," Meyer said with a laugh. The museum meanwhile will offer a range of meetings, conferences and other activities around the painting, Picasso and also the conservation work museums usually do behind the scenes, Bovier said. The "Buste de mousquetaire" is set to remain in Geneva until October. It will be up to its owners to determine where it will go next—AFP ■

Complete de-noodlisation: Kim's dish sells out in Seoul

SEOUL — At Seoul's Nampo Myeonok noodle bar, the owner was rushed off her feet, shouting at a long queue of hungry punters that she was clean out of "Pyongyang naengmyeon".

"You'll have to wait around 40 minutes" for the broth to boil, she told the line snaking out of her door on Saturday.

Demand for North Korea's signature dish peaked all over the South's capital after it was featured on the menu at Friday's historic inter-Korean summit and became a surprise talking point.

A cold noodle dish served in a cool mild broth, "Pyongyang naengmyeon" is usually garnished with pieces of meat and vegetables.

The long buckwheat noodle strands are usually cut with a pair of scissors to simplify the eating process.

The dish is already popular in the South but many saw the summit as a good excuse to indulge.

Thousands posted photos of the noodles they slurped down for lunch on Instagram with hashtags including #summit and #peacenae-naengmyeon.

North Korea's leader Kim Jong Un provoked laughter at the summit and among South Korean journalists at a press centre when he cracked jokes about the dish, hoping that the South's President Moon Jae-in "will be able to enjoy the Pyongyang naengmyeon that has travelled far".

He laughed before adding: "I shouldn't say far."

The noodles — a special request by Moon — had been crafted by a leading chef from Okryu-gwan, a famed restaurant in Pyongyang.

According to the North's state news agency KCNA, the dish "deeply impressed the participants".

At Nampo Myeonok, the verdict was unanimous — at least on the food.

"I came to this restaurant especially to eat Pyongyang naengmyeon. This place has been around for a long time and it's good," said diner Park Jae-chun.

Bass guitar player Kim Tae-hun said the dish made him feel "closer" to those on the other side of the border "because we also eat a lot of it".

But while the leaders made several references to unification of the two Koreas in their statement Friday, the culinary connections only went so far for some.

Park told AFP: "Personally I think it's okay for both South and North Korea to co-exist rather than unify as long as it's peaceful and we acknowledge each other."—AFP ■

Sagaing, Yadanabon play to 2-2 draw in MNL

SAGAING United played Yadanabon FC to a draw yesterday by a score of 2-2 at the home of Sagaing United, Monywa Stadium, in a hard-fought Week 11 Myanmar National League match.

Sagaing United lined up with its main players including Thiha Thu, Wai Phyo Thu, Friday and Thiha Zaw, while its competitor Yadanabon FC lined up with Captain Thein Than Win, standout player Si Thu Aung, Myo Ko Htun and youth star Win Naing Soe.

Both teams executed well in the first half with speedy play and spirited counter-attacking.

Yadanabon, the visiting team, notched the opening goal at 15 minutes with a score by Win Naing Soe.

After giving up the opening goal, Sagaing attacked frequently and was rewarded at the 38-minute mark with a penalty shot.

The penalty shot was kicked into the net with authority by Akanmidu Friday, Sagaing's reliable expatriate midfielder from Nigeria.

The remaining minutes of the first half expired after cautious play by both teams.

Both teams made substitutions and changed tactics in the second half, resulting in more action on the field and an increase in scoring chances.

Sagaing United got the go-ahead goal at 60 minutes with a score by Kaung Zaw Htwe, set up by the support of Kyaw Swa Min.

But the happiness of the home team lasted less than a minute.

Yadanabon FC responded with a goal at 61 minutes with a very strong kick from substitute player Myo Zaw Oo.

With both teams motivated to score and emerge as the victor, the latter part of the match was a thriller, with Sagaing and Yadanabon both creating scoring opportunities. But neither team could convert. When the final whistle was sounded, players from both teams were exhausted due to full-on effort and the middle region's summer heat.—Lynn Thit (Tgi) ■

Neymar recovery on track, will be back for World Cup: doctor

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL —Neymar is working hard to recover from the foot injury that sidelined him in February and will be back in action by this summer's World Cup, the Brazil team doctor who operated on him promised on Friday.

"Neymar is recovering the best way possible," Rodrigo Lasmar told GloboEsporte.

"He is working hard and the expectation is that he will arrive well-prepared so he can take part in excellent World Cup training," Lasmar said.

Neymar who is recuperating in a Rio de Janeiro coastal mansion, said last week he would not return to the pitch until at least 17 May — the date of his final medical exam following his surgery in Belo Horizonte on 3 March.

That pretty much puts a lid on his season with Paris Saint-Germain — whose last fixture is scheduled against Caen on 19 May — but he remains on track to play in the World Cup in Russia from 14 June to 15 July.

Brazil's players will attend a training camp from 21 to 27 May in Teresopolis, but Lasmar acknowledged that Neymar's time off the pitch means he'll at first need a tailored fitness programme in the run-up to the World Cup.

"We need to improve his physical fitness because it has probably decreased.

Players recovering from injury deserve individual evaluation to design the best strategy for them," Lasmar said.

The 26-year-old forward — the most expensive player in history — broke a bone in his right foot on 26 February during his team's 3-0 rinsing of Marseille.

But optimistic, he said last week he hoped to bounce back to being even better than before in a bid to earn another star as a world champion with the Brazilian men's national team.—AFP ■

Youths and Leadership

Daniel
Technological University (Hmawbi)

AS parents are becoming interested in raising their children to be a skillful person since childhood, they get interested in how to take care of them to be highly independent with strong confident people. Recently, many training centers are giving the training to youths how to be a good leader to make the world better place, improve our society ourselves and improve our life styles with some important skills like giving presentation in public ect. They give and share some informations and knowledges to us. And they want youths to become interested in leading the world systemically by themself.

It is really important to youths to take part in leading roles in our country because we are definitely the ones who can change our Land, Myanmar, to be a better place, to improve with international standards more than now, to get rich and so many things. It is because we are youths at the present time and if we involve in leading roles in some society groups, we will get to know what a good leader does and how to avoid to be a bad leader as we have seen the worst situations of our land by letting the bad leader to lead us.

Just think about our country's situation in many fields like education, health and living standard basically, you can actually see that we do not have enough provided staffs in such kind of fields and what's more is that childern are being forced to learn like a parrot (they have to read and learn all subjects in schools whatever they need it or not).

Why Conservation is vital to existence of wild animals

Hein Thet Zaw
Frist Year (YTU)

RECENTLY, according to the news related to wild-life, it is obvious that population of wild animals has declined to a terrible trend. Thankfully, as some conservationists as well as experts on the field of wildlife had worked together in order to find out the problems. So, there may be a certain reasons why wild animals has been hunted. In this article, from my point of view, I am going to describe a few points below.

Firstly, despite some wild animals, most of the wild animals are enormously valuable to get a huge amount of money especially ivory which is persuading treasure hunters to killing. In this socio-economic era, it is sure that many people make an approach to easier way of finding wages. So these shortcuts would cause the wild animals to death without doubt, in fact. Secondly, due to the lack of knowledge upon the wild animal conservation as well as eagerness for the solution to hunger, it may seem obvious that many lives are being killed for no reason. Thirdly, circumstances currently occurring in Myanmar have a huge impact on the environment. What is the circumstance? Probably, the industrial development which is beneficial for the workers and labours who is lack of wages and who is eager to make a living for their families but quite a bad thing for the conservation as well as safety. Ironically, about a decades ago, the laws for the safety and prevention of the forests, a national property, are reinforced but from the military government age, companies which is unrestrictedly extracting a supreme amount of trees from the forest have not been punished yet still wood-logging occurs in many parts of Myanmar. To ensure that, there are many references in the daily newspaper that state about the non-existence of trees. As a result, drought, storms, and an ultimate Nargis cyclone happened and destroyed many areas in Myanmar within a blink and many houses are vanished.

How do we conserve forests and wild animals? A simple answer, by conserving in a literally sustainable way, and in a practical and scientific way. In general, people think that everyone cannot perform such conservation and a positive act but by contrast, as we can lecture them on how to prevent from wood-logging and airborne hunting and many other controversial issues. To perform that we need assistance of many refugees as well as volunteers around all parts of Myanmar. Additionally, I would like to recommend every Burmese to make a habit of planting small plants or perhaps flowers in order to fulfil one's duty.

Most importantly, government officials along with the residences from the Upper Myanmar to the Lower one should make a commitment to stay apart from the ritual process and to establish a healthier lifestyle.

But sadly, schools do not teach the important skills like critical thinking, how to cooperate with friends or strangers properly or so.

Those kind of learning system can not help to improve our country, may be they will graduate with many good recommendations, certificates and many diplomas in certain fields by learning this way but those are really just the words writing down on beautifully decorated papers. May be those can make them to earn good salaries but they can not be a good leader for our country with those qualifications.

So what if we have learned what leadership means in our youth? What if we took part in leading role in some groups like book clubs, student council, or the groups comprising with youths themselves? If we did it since our childhoods, there is no wonder, we can be a good leader when we grow up. We can even change the wrong systems that had been used by the some elders for the children, next generations. We can improve our education system with teaching and training them how to think critically on the problems or something like that.

Furthermore, we, most of the youths in our country, are almost forgetting that we can change and improve our country and most of the parents also did not courage their children to get interested in it. Parents are to raise their children to be good people themselves and they oblige to teach children to contribute our country in different ways as much as they can.

To put it in a nut shell, we have already seen the history of best leader, General Aung San, the great leader of so far. We know how important of leading country. Besides, there are now so much opportunities for youths to participate in leading roles in country and all we have to do is to have a wish to take part and to take the challenges by ourselves. So do not be panic and let us change the world together starting with our country, Myanmar.

Kayah State's cultural diversity, charm drawing visitors

KAYAH State is a state of Myanmar. Situated in eastern Myanmar, it is bounded on the north by Shan State, on the east by Thailand's Mae Hong Son Province, and on the south and west by Kayah State. It lies approximately between 18° 30' and 19° 55' north latitude and between 94° 40' and 97° 93' east longitude. The area is 11,670 km<sup>2</sup> (4,530 sq miles).

It is inhabited primarily by the Karenni ethnic group, also known as Karreni or Kayah.

Ethnographers classify anywhere from seven to ten ethnic groups as native to Kayah State. In addition, Shan, Inthar, and Bamar live in the north and Pa-O in surrounding hills. Each group is also known by more than one name.

Kayah in eastern Myanmar is a region of mirror lakes and emerald fields, studded with soaring, craggy mountains. Nestled between Shan and Kayah, Kayah is Myanmar's smallest state by (sometimes called by the Shan term Padaung, though most prefer Kayah).

With their towering brass neck coils, Kayan women are some of Myanmar's most recognisable people. Traditionally the rings are stacked higher as a girl goes through adolescence and are never taken off. The heavy loops give the appearance of lengthening the Kayan women's necks, but in fact compress their shoulders. There are many stories to explain the practice, including to protect against tiger attacks and to ward off unwanted suitors from other ethnic groups.

The rings are still regarded as a proud symbol of Kayan heritage, although fewer and fewer women opt to wear them. They have also generated controversy. The striking appearance of the Kayan women among this diaspora led to the creation of special tourist villages, likened to human zoos, where the women are put on display to be photographed by foreign visitors.

Three quarters of Kayah's population live in rural areas and agriculture is the economic backbone of the state. Kayah's major crops are rice, maize, sesame and groundnuts. Two of these can be combined to make arguably the state's favourite product: rice wine.

Nevertheless, Kayah's natural beauty, great cultural diversity and laid back charm is likely to be a significant draw for visitors as Myanmar's tourism industry expands its reach.

'The Rakhine situation is an internal affair of Myanmar. Russia does not involve itself in the internal affairs of other countries': Russian Ambassador to Myanmar Dr. Nikolay Listopadov

DURING the recent Thingyan Festival, the entire country celebrated the arrival of Myanmar New Year 1380. The Global New Light of Myanmar and Myanma Radio and Television interviewed Russian Ambassador to Myanmar Dr. Nikolay Listopadov for his New Year wishes and thoughts on the two-year performance of the incumbent government.

Q: Mingalabar Your Excellency. It hasn't been that long since the Myanmar New Year shifted from ME 1379 to ME 1380. Could you tell our readers your New Year wishes?

A: I am very happy for Myanmar and I know Thingyan passed with joyous celebrations. I wish for all Myanmar citizens to have peace of mind and prosperity in the New Year.

Thingyan is a happy occasion and there are many songs written for it. I don't have much of a talent for singing, but I have read Thingyan poems and I'd like to ring in the New Year with a Myanmar Thingyan poem. "The month of Tagu, exceptional beauty resides within. The golden motif on every maiden's head, no other flower can boast a grace so fair."

Q: Thank you for your New Year wishes and the lovely poem. Now could you tell us your impressions on the current government's two year performance and also how they have handled the Rakhine situation?

A: The current government has only been in power for two years, but I have seen a lot of accomplishments by them, especially in socio-economic development. They have also held the 21st Century Panglong conference twice and are readying for a third one. This is important, because a country cannot develop without peace.

The Rakhine situation is complex and sensitive. It's not something that can be solved quickly. In my view, I think the current government headed by Daw Aung San Suu Kyi will solve the situation as quickly as they can. They are taking a comprehensive approach to it, so I think they will find a solution soon.

Q: What plans does Your Excellency have to strengthen relations between Russia and Myanmar in the coming years?

A: This year is a momentous year as it marks the 70th anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between Russia and Myanmar. Our two countries established diplomatic relations on 18 February 1948, and our relation has always been a friendly one. Based on this, we will further cooperation in all sectors.

“What I want to say is that the Rakhine situation is an internal affair of Myanmar. Russia, for instance, does not involve itself in the internal affairs of other countries because we believe no good consequences will arise from interference.

During the Soviet Union era, our two countries cooperated on a lot of projects in Myanmar. In Yangon, we helped to build the Inya Lake Hotel and the Government Technical Institute (GTI) in Insein, while in Taunggyi we built Sao San Htun Hospital and Kyat Mauk Taung Dam in Mandalay Region. We are currently looking to help upgrade Sao San Htun Hospital.

Q: Are there any challenges for potential Russian investors in Myanmar?

A: The Russian Embassy is working to invite Russian businesspersons and companies to come to Myanmar and we facilitate trade and businesses via the Russia-Myanmar Intergovernmental Commission on Trade and Economic Cooperation (RMIC). We held the second meeting in Moscow last year and we will hold the third one in Myanmar. Bilateral trade between our two countries is increasing. There are some challenges, but I think there are more opportunities for investment as well.

Q: What are your impressions on the international community and the UN's reactions to Myanmar handling the Rakhine situation?

A: What I want to say is that the Rakhine situation is an internal affair of Myanmar. Russia, for instance, does not involve itself in the internal affairs of other countries because we believe no good consequences will arise from interference. I think the Myanmar government and her people know better on how to solve its own problems. The international community can help Myanmar, but it should not directly involve itself in another country's affairs. I view the blaming and pressuring done by others as negative approaches. This is something that Myanmar and Bangladesh need to work together on.

Q: There have been threats to impose economic sanctions placed on Myanmar after the Rakhine incident occurred. What effects do you think this will have on Myanmar during its democratic transition?

A: I don't agree with sanctions or penalties. I think especially if the UN Security Council does not agree to the decision to impose sanctions on another country, then other countries should not be allowed to impose sanctions. It's not constructive and it could negatively affect the public. These problems can be solved peacefully with a diplomatic solution. Russia is also a multicultural country like Myanmar, so we know how complex these problems can be.

Q: What would you like to advise the government moving forward?

A: I don't want to give advice because as I've said before, Myanmar's government and her people know their situation better than me. All I want to say is that peace is very important and the government led by Daw Aung San Suu Kyi is trying its best to achieve lasting peace. I'm optimistic about Myanmar's development. It is Russia's wish as well that Myanmar will develop into a peaceful, prosperous country with whom we will maintain close, friendly relations.
