Shwebo's glazed earthen ware makers turning to other businesses

THE number of glazed earthenware makers in Kyaukmyaung Town, Shwebo District, Sagaing Region has declined significantly with many taking up other businesses, said locals.

Glazed earthen ware businesses are mostly operating out of Nwe Nyein, Shwe Khon, Shwe Taik, and Ma Lar villages in Shwebo (Kyaukmyaung) Township. Earlier, about 3,500 households from the four villages were engaged in the pottery business. Now, only 28 people are practicing the craft. Others have already turned to other businesses. "There is no market for glazed earthen ware these days. So, some daily wage workers are facing difficulties, including technical challenges, and have taken up other jobs. The number of glazed earthen ware makers has markedly decreased after the earthquake in Thabeikkyin," said U Aung Zaw Oo, a pottery shop owner from Nwe Nyein Village. Many people in Myanmar prefer to use earthen pots to store drinking water.—Win Oo (Zayyadine) ■

Sagaing seeks funds from Union Gov't to resume excavation of WWII-era Japanese hospital

THE Sagaing Region Government is seeking technical and financial support to continue excavation work at the WWII-era underground hospital used by Japanese troops in Indaw, said the region's Chief Minister, Dr. Myint Naing.

"Our budget is not enough to carry out the whole project. We will seek the Union Government's advise on continuing the excavation," said Dr. Myint Naing.

"We have excavated some sections of the hospital, but work on the remaining portions needs to be conducted systematically, so a request will be submitted to the government," he said.

The hospital was discovered near Kyar Inn Village, Indaw Township, Sagaing Region, in November, following which local authorities and residents began excavation work. The Chief Minister inspected the site on 26 December. Work is currently suspended at the site due to lack of funds and technical problems.

As the underground hospital is very old, there are difficulties in excavating the building just as it was.

Initial excavations have unearthed utensils belonging to Japanese soldiers, swords, guns, helmets, bullets, and hospital equipment at the site.

Like the ruins of the hospital in Indaw, there is an airfield dating to the Japanese era in Katha.—Ko Min (Indaw) ■

Shooter of 4 border guard caught dead in Myawady

SAW Pay Pay, the man who fatally shot a corporal and three other privates of the Border Guard Force (BGF) and injured a civilian on 1 January in Myawady Township, Kayin State, was captured dead near Mae Ka Nae Village yesterday, according to Colonel Maung Maung Latt of the South-East Command.

“Saw Pay Pay and BGF officers got into a disagreement and fired shots around 8 pm on 1 January,” said Col Maung Maung Latt. “A corporal and three privates were killed around 8:50 pm. Saw Pay Pay ran away and he shot a civilian riding a motorbike, who I think was a carry driver. The driver is alive and currently at Myawady General Hospital. We pursued Saw Pay Pay and captured him dead at 11 am yesterday.”

The colonel said Saw Pay Pay is not part of the border guard force stationed in Myawady Tsp. They are still investigating the cause behind the shooting.

“Saw Pay Pay is not from BGF. He used to serve in the DKBA (Democratic Karen Buddhist Army). We don't know how or where he came from on the night of the incident. Since both the shooter and the victims are dead, we will have to rely on eyewitness accounts,” said Colonel Maung Maung Latt.

The colonel said they will follow the Tatmadaw procedures to investigate the incident and will follow military protocol in prosecuting the culprit. With all four victims dead, we are working with the tactical operations commander in Thingun Nyi Naung, said the colonel.—Ye Khaung Nyunt ■

Sovereignty and independence

ANATION is said to be sovereign if it upholds the three pillars of democracy — the executive, the legislature, and the judiciary. In addition, its people must enjoy authentic freedom.

We can say there is freedom and sovereignty in a country if its citizens can access the three pillars of democracy in line with the established laws of the land, and the executive, the legislature, and the judiciary, are in turn, accountable to the people.

But even a free sovereign state can be called authoritarian if its people do not have freedom of thought, expression, belief, vocation, association, or action. A truly free sovereign state must ensure justice, liberty, and equality to strengthen peace and stability.

These considerations were reflected in the preamble to the 1947 constitution of the Union of Burma and in our resolution for independence. Before our country achieved independence, our forefathers swore to make Myanmar an independent sovereign state built on liberty, justice, and equality, the birthright of every citizen.

One cannot enjoy these rights and opportunities under the administration of foreign entities. And though there may be more mobility under a kingship or an authoritarian administration, there cannot be fair and equal opportunity. Discrimination is not acceptable to our people anymore.

There are still countries which have a king or a queen, but they do not have a monarchy. Their real power lies in their parliament, elected by the people, and comes to life in the three pillars of democracy, without which they cannot claim to be truly independent and sovereign.

Myanmar is now an independent, sovereign nation with a democratic system and representatives elected by the people. After independence, Myanmar held its first general election to establish the resolutions for independence, and continues to do so.

As citizens of a free and sovereign nation, we must unite to protect and uphold the Republic of the Union of Myanmar for as long as the free and peaceful world exists.

The Architect of Sovereignty, and Myanmar's First Independence Day

An Interview with veteran journalist Hanthawaddy U Ohn Kyaing

Hanthawaddy U Ohn Kyaing.

Question: Please explain on the experience of first Independence Day of Myanmar.

Answer: It is my pleasure and honor to talk about the episode on the first Independence Day of Myanmar. Now, I am ninety years old, and that if I die, no one could be there to talk about the memories of the first Independence Day event.

Despite my desire in submitting all the documentary photos to the public, they were damaged due to many reasons. You may use the available photos, and that I will explain the events in detailed.

At the time that we regained independence, the condition and status of our country was fine as we achieved full sovereignty and independence. Our neighbor India sought dominium status for one year under the British influence, but our Bogoyoke sought for total independence. Time flew away for (71) years, and that we have been celebrating Independence Day each and every year. However, only a few persons talk about the detailed event that had taken place on the first Independence Day.

Allow me to talk about the first celebration of Independence of Myanmar. We regained independence on the dot of 4:20 am in the early morning of 4 January 1948. All the citizens of the country in every nook and cranny, rural and urban, were fully awake for the whole night waiting for the prime time of liberty under the cool winter breeze.

The first Independence Day was celebrated in magnificence and grandeur under three separate agendas. The first event was the flag raising ceremony in reflecting the achievement of Independence and sovereignty. The second episode was the departure of British Governor from Myanmar. The third experience was the formation of Myanmar government at the constituent assembly.

On 4 January 1948 at 4:20 am, the nation became an independent republic, named the Union of Burma, with Sao Shwe Thaik as its first President and Thakin Nu as its first Prime Minister and Hluttaw Speaker Pyawbwai U Mya. Unlike most other former British colonies and overseas territories, it did not become a member of the Commonwealth.

All the journalists gathered at the center of the Secretariat, and all the elected lawmakers were there. A military band composed of Kayin Rifles (Kayin National Troop) alongside the Burma Defense Army, the Navy, the Air Force and the Police Force was present there.

A team of traditional Royal Drum was there and the song of blew the conch shell.

President Sao Shwe Thaik adorned in neat Shan attire with pink color silk head gear, and that Prime Minister Thakin Nu was also in elegant Myanmar attire were seen among the gathering. Furthermore, Pyawbwai U Mya was in smart Myanmar attire. Government officers and secretaries were also there.

Exactly at 4:20 am, British flag Union Jack was lowered down by a British officer, and then Myanmar hands of Prime Minister Thakin Nu, and the ceremony adjourned on the first part.

Second part of the ceremony

The second part of the event was the departure of British last Governor Sir Hubert Rance from Yangon, which was started on the green lawn of the Governor House on Windsor Road at 6:45 am, the same day.

The President and the Governor came out together from the House, and took position on the dais. The British flag Union Jack was lowered and the State flag of Myanmar was raised, while the HMS Birmingham warship anchored in the Yangon River fired (17) cannon shots as gesture of honor.

Next, the Governor stepped down from the rostrum and shook hands to all officers individually and then climbed on the waiting vehicle that drove away to Pansodan Jetty at Yangon River where HMS Birmingham was waiting. The episode was the end of British rule over Myanmar for (120) long years.

The Third part of the event

The Hluttaw of the sovereign nation convened for its first meeting at the Secretariat's Assembly Hall at 10.15 a.m. the same day, and the Speaker and the lawmakers were sworn in. The President arrived at 10.30 a.m and delivered the Independence Day speech.

Next, the attending persons remained in two minutes silence in tribute and memory of Bogoyoke Aung San, the fallen leaders, soldiers and patriots. Later, the President entrusted the state seal in the the Royal Drum was orchestrated. At 4:45 am the President and the Prime Minister stepped in the main venue along with the ceremonial team. When the red light was flickered as signal, everybody remained silent, and at 4:20 am, Burma's last governor Sir Hubert Rance departed from the port on HMS Birmingham warship.

When the warship saluted the ceremony with (17) cannon shots, loud sirens were wailing at all establishments such as mills, factories, churches, and schools. The Buddhist monasteries in Yangon drummed up the large wooden bell, stroke the brass gong, and ized society and community of the country in conjunction with the abolition of beggars in the nation. After approving the documents, the Hluttaw adjourned.

Members of Government constituted on Independence Day

The portfolios of the ministerial posts were allocated to Thakin Nu as Prime Minister; Bo Letya as Deputy Prime Minister and Defence Minister; ICS U Tin Htut as Foreign Minister; Myanma Alin journalist U Tin as Minister of Finance and Revenue; Saw San Pho Thin as Minister of Kayin Affairs; U Tun Myint (Lin Kyay) as Minister of Shan State; Samar Duwar Sinwan Naung as Minister of Kachin State; Saw Wunna as Minister of Kayinni State (Now Kayah State); U Wann Thu Maung as Minister of Chin State; U Ba Gyan as Minister of Justice; U Ko Ko Gyi as Minister of Commerce, Civil Supply and Transport; Thakin Tin as Minister of Forestry and Agriculture; U Kyaw Nyein as Minister of Home Affairs; Mann Win Maung as Minister of Road Communication, Construction and Labor Affairs (Later served as President); Bo Pho Kun (Major Pho Kun) as Minister of Rehabilitation; Hinthada U Mya as Minister of National Planning and Industry; U Nyo Tun as Minister of Information; Bo Sein Hman as Minister without portfolio. The names of the Cabinet Ministers were announced, and the event came to a close.

Should upkeep and maintain valuable items

I would like to point out that we are generally weak in preserving valuable items that belongs to our history. The British Union Jack flag that we had lowered down and the first Myanmar flag that we had raised on the flag pole on 4 January 1948 were kept by one of the Myanmar officers it was learned.

Up till now, we have no idea in which record office, museum or archive that the flags have been kept and maintained. We heard that the items are there. Suppose we could find out and preserve properly for the public eyes, then we would be proud of for such possession of historically valuable items in our hands.

Hong Kong leads Asia markets down as 2019 starts on sour note

HONG KONG (China)—Asian markets sank on Wednesday, starting the new year by extending a slide that made 2018 the worst in a decade, with investors jolted by data reinforcing weakness in China's economy.

With a number of potential banana skins dotting the next 12 months — including the China-US trade row and Brexit — dealers are keeping to the sidelines as they look for signs of stability.

Hong Kong led the losses, tumbling more than two per cent, while Shanghai shed one per cent after two indicators showed Chinese manufacturing activity shrank in December. The readings, from the government and another a private survey, are the latest to highlight problems in the world's number two economy following a slew of downbeat figures including on trade, factory output and inflation.

"The disappointment that came through in December has transferred into January as well," Jingyi Pan, a market strategist at IG Asia, told Bloomberg News. She added that the reading was a reminder of the US-China trade tensions and "brings back to the surface worries on growth". There were also market losses in Sydney, which dropped 0.7 per cent, while Seoul shed one per cent and Singapore slipped 0.9

per cent. Taipei and Jakarta also fell. Tokyo and Wellington were closed for public holidays.

Trump deal call

Investors were also spooked by the ongoing US government shutdown, which is now in its second week. Donald Trump on Tuesday invited leaders from both parties to talks to end the standoff but with Democrats refusing to pass any budget that would fund the president's Mexican border wall there is little optimism a deal can be made. For their part, Democrats, who take over the House of Representatives on Thursday, have lined up spending bills without addressing the wall. Trump appeared to strike a more conciliatory tone on Twitter by reaching out to Nancy Pelosi, who is set to become House Speaker again. "Border Security and the Wall 'thing' and Shutdown is not where Nancy Pelosi wanted to start her tenure as Speaker! Let's make a deal?" he tweeted.

Also on the radar are trade talks between China and the US, which are set to begin this month, with Trump hailing "big progress" on the issue at the weekend. The president and his Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping agreed last month to a 90-day halt in their painful tariffs spat so they could resolve their differences. Immediate attention is now on the release Friday of US jobs data, which could provide fresh evidence of the state of the world's top economy.

A strong reading would put pressure on the Federal Reserve to continue to lift interest rates, a negative for stock markets, which were battered last year partly by concerns about the rising cost of borrowing. — AFP ■

S Korea's trade value hits record high in 2018 as export tops 600 bln USD

SEOUL—South Korea's trade value hit a new record high last year as export topped 600 billion US dollars for the first time in the country's history, a government report showed on Tuesday. Export, which accounts for about half of the export-driven economy, reached a record high of 605.5 billion dollars in 2018, according to the Ministry of Trade, Industry and Energy. It was up 5.5 per cent from the previous year, marking the biggest since the country began the outbound shipment in 1948. The country's export surpassed 500 billion dollars for the first time in 2011. Import advanced 11.8 per cent over the year to 535 billion dollars last year, the largest ever recorded by the economy.

Helped by the biggest export and import, the trade value posted a fresh yearly high of 1.14 trillion dollars in 2018, exceeding 1 trillion dollars for the second consecutive year. Trade surplus amounted to 70.5 billion dollars, staying in the black for 10 straight years. The continued surplus came amid strong global demand for locally-made semiconductors, of which export jumped 29.4 per cent over the year to 126.7 billion dollars in 2018. Semiconductor was the country's sole export item that topped 100 billion dollars in outbound shipment last year. General machinery export surpassed 50 billion dollars for the first time in the country's history, while shipment for petrochemicals and oil products also exceeded 50 billion dollars for the first time last year.

Computer export kept an upward trend for four straight years thanks to robust demand for solid state drive, and textile shipment marked the first turnaround in four years on solid demand from emerging markets.

Automobile export fell 1.9 per cent last year on weak demand in the US market, and display panel shipment reduced on supply glut that led to lower product price. Steel export inched down 0.6 per cent on the US protectionist moves, and auto parts shipment dipped 0.1 per cent on soft demand from China and the Latin American countries. Export for telecommunication devices, such as smartphone, tumbled 22.6 per cent, and consumer electronics export retreated 18.3 per cent amid a stiffer competition and the local manufacturers that increased production in overseas factories.

Cosmetics export kept a double-digit growth for the seventh consecutive year amid the popularity of K-pop culture, and pharmaceuticals shipment gained 17.2 per cent as sales of some of locally-developed bio-similar were approved in the United States and the European Union (EU).

By region, export to China, South Korea's biggest trading partner, reached a fresh high of 162.24 billion dollars last year, up 14.2 per cent from the previous year. Shipments to the United States, the EU and Japan also gained ground on demand for chips, general machinery and petrochemicals. Export to the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) added 5.3 per cent to hit a new high of 100.28 billion dollars in 2018, topping 100 billion dollars for the first time. In December alone, export fell 1.2 per cent from a year earlier to 48.5 billion dollars. Import rose 0.9 per cent to 43.9 billion dollars, sending the trade surplus to 4.6 billion dollars. The trade balance stayed in the black for 83 months through December. — Xinhua ■

Viet Nam imports fewer automobiles in 2018

HANOI—Viet Nam imported completely-built automobiles and components for assembly totaling nearly 5.4 billion US dollars in 2018, seeing a year-on-year drop of 2.6 per cent.

Specifically, the country imported roughly 81,800 completely-built automobiles worth nearly 1.8 billion US dollars, posting respective declines of 16 per cent and 19.9 per cent, according to its Ministry of Industry and Trade on Wednesday.

In December 2018, Viet Nam spent 307 million US dollars importing 14,500 automobiles and 270 million US dollars importing components for assembly. Early last year, few automobiles, especially cars, were imported to Viet Nam because traders were not well-prepared to comply with a new governmental decree which requires traders to provide more relevant certificates and to undergo more tests than before, according to local experts. In 2017, the Southeast Asian nation spent over 5.3 billion US dollars importing 94,000 completely-built automobiles and components for assembly. Meanwhile, its total automobile sales were 272,750 units, according to the Viet Nam Automobile Manufacturers Association. — Xinhua ■

North American trade deal needs to be more inclusive, says Mexico

MEXICO CITY—A free trade agreement for the North American region needs to include more productive sectors and more of Mexico's regions, Mexico's Economy Ministry said on Tuesday. As 1 January marked the 25th anniversary of the 1994 North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), which was recently updated and renamed the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA), Mexican officials reflected on the economic impact of the accord. "While NAFTA has been a success for companies and consumers, the challenge remains to include more productive sectors and more of the country's regions," the ministry said in a statement. — Xinhua ■

Tear gas fired as dozens of migrants try illegal crossing to US

TIJUANA (Mexico)—US Border Patrol agents used tear gas and pepper spray to counter rock-throwing migrants when a group of about 150 tried to illegally cross the border from Mexico, leading to 25 arrests, the agency said on Tuesday. It is the second time since November that border officers have used tear gas during an attempted mass migrant crossing in the San Diego area.

The migrants in the latest case New Year's Eve were among 1,500 who have remained in Tijuana, Mexico, just south of San Diego, California, after a once-5,000-strong caravan of travelers—which raised the ire of President Donald Trump—largely gave up and dispersed. An AFP journalist reported the crowd size at about 100 and observed the group of Central Americans gathering around 8:00 pm Monday night (0400 GMT Tuesday) in an area called Playas de Tijuana on the Pacific coast, often used by migrants as a departure point for attempts to sneak across the border. There, the border is marked with fencing and a large vertical plate that juts out into the water. On the other side of it, US border agents were seen mobilizing.

As night fell and people on both sides of the frontier prepared to celebrate New Year's Eve, the migrants tried to cross over but at least two smoke bombs were fired and they were ultimately held back. Those who tried to cross included adult men, women with small children and adolescents. After that attempt, part of the group stayed near the border and other Central Americans arrived to join them. Shortly after the New Year began, dozens of migrants stood on a hill from which they could see US border agents, who watched them closely. When people in this group rushed the border in a second incident, US authorities fired tear gas to disperse them, an AFP photographer observed.

In a statement, US Customs and Border Protection (CBP) said an initial group of 45 migrants turned back towards Mexico, due to the increased presence of Border Patrol agents. Shortly after, migrants began throwing rocks over the fence at CBP officers. "Several teenagers, wrapped in heavy jackets, blankets and rubber mats were put over the concertina wire.

Border Patrol agents witnessed members of the group attempt to lift toddler-sized children up and over the concertina wire and having difficulty accomplishing the task in a safe manner," CBP said. It added that agents could not assist the children "due to the large number of rocks being thrown at them."

Agents used smoke, pepper spray and tear gas "to address the rock throwers assaulting agents and risking the safety of migrants attempting to cross who were already on the US side," CBP said.

"The rock throwers were located south of the fence, in an elevated position both above the border fence area and the incursion attempt." — AFP ■

Trump 'looks forward' to new meeting with N Korea's Kim

WASHINGTON (United States)—President Donald Trump is looking forward to another summit with Kim Jong Un, he said on Tuesday, after the North Korean leader warned Pyongyang could change its approach to nuclear talks if Washington persists with sanctions.

"I also look forward to meeting with Chairman Kim who realizes so well that North Korea possesses great economic potential!" Trump said in a brief tweet. The two leaders made global headlines with an unprecedented summit in Singapore in June, where they signed a vaguely-worded pledge on denuclearization of the Korean peninsula.

But progress has since stalled with the two sides disagreeing over what the declaration means, and the pace of US-North Korean negotiations has slowed, with meetings and visits cancelled at short notice.

The North is demanding relief from the multiple sanctions imposed on it over its banned nuclear weapons and ballistic missile programmes, and has condemned US insistence on its nuclear disarmament as "gangster-like."

Speculation of a second Trump-Kim summit has ebbed and flowed, with the US president saying that he hoped it would take place early this year.

But a proposed visit by Kim to Seoul before the end of December did not materialize. Culminating in late 2017, the North has carried out six atomic blasts and launched rockets capable of reaching the entire US mainland, but has now carried out no such tests for more than a year.

In his New Year speech Kim called for the sanctions to be eased, saying that the North had declared "we would neither make and test nuclear weapons any longer nor use and proliferate them," and urged the US to take

"corresponding practical actions."

If Washington instead continues with the measures, he added, "we may be compelled to find a new way for defending the sovereignty of the country and the supreme interests of the state."

He was willing to meet Trump at any time, he said.

Kim's remarks were "apparently designed to revive the momentum of the negotiations," South Korea's centrist Hankook

Ilbo newspaper said in an editorial on Wednesday.

But he was also "signalling that he would never be pushed around", it added. Joshua Pollack of the Middlebury Institute of International Studies tweeted that Kim was insisting "the onus is now on the US to deliver".

"The bottom line: Kim remains dug into the same positions on nuclear diplomacy he has occupied over the last six months," he added.— AFP ■

Bangladesh arrests journalist over election reporting

DHAKA (Bangladesh) — A Bangladeshi journalist was arrested and another was on the run on Wednesday for publishing “false information” about voting irregularities in an election won by Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina, police said.

Hedayet Hossain Mollah, who works for the Dhaka Tribune newspaper, was detained late Tuesday under a controversial digital security law which rights groups say gives authorities broad powers to stifle dissent. Mollah was arrested in the southern Khulna region after he reported that in one constituency 22,419 more ballots than the number of registered voters were cast, local police chief Mahbubur Rahman said.

“The actual votes cast were only 80 per cent of the total votes,” Rahman told AFP, adding that Mollah was accused of “providing false information in an effort to make the election look questionable”.

If convicted Mollah could face up to 14 years in jail under a draconian anti-press law that was toughened by Hasina last year.

The police chief said another journalist was wanted for questioning after a local government administrator filed a case against the two under the controversial law.

Hasina, 71, is accused of creeping authoritarianism, including muzzling the media and jailing prominent journalists such as Shahidul Alam, an award winning photographer, who spent four months in prison recently.—AFP ■

Xi, also general secretary of the Communist Party of China Central Committee and chairman of the Central Military Commission, made the remarks on Wednesday in Beijing at a gathering marking the 40th anniversary of issuing Message to Compatriots in Taiwan.

While noting that “Chinese don’t fight Chinese,” Xi said peaceful reunification is in the best interests of compatriots across the Strait as well as the Chinese nation. “We make no promise to renounce the use of force and reserve the option of taking all necessary means,” he added.—Xinhua ■

Disasters rock Indonesia's '10 New Balis' tourism push

TANJUNG LESUNG (Indonesia) — Picture-postcard Tanjung Lesung was a cornerstone of Indonesia's bid to supercharge its tourism industry, boasting palm-fringed beaches, a towering volcano in the middle of turquoise waters and a rainforest sanctuary for endangered Javan rhinos.

But the beachside town now lies in ruins, pummeled by a deadly tsunami that has raised fresh questions about disaster preparedness and the future of a multi-billion-dollar push to replicate Bali's success across the Southeast Asian archipelago.

The shattered community was hosting a pop concert when the waves crashed ashore last month, at night and without warning.

Several members of the Indonesian band Seventeen and more than 100 others at the Tanjung Lesung Beach Hotel were killed — about a quarter of those who died in the volcano-triggered tsunami.

A clutch of other area hotels was also devastated, with beachside cottages flattened and debris — chairs, tables and the band's audio equipment — scattered everywhere.

Tourism minister Arief Yahya, who ordered that the town be rebuilt in six months, brushed aside concerns sparked by the tsunami — which was triggered by a sudden eruption of the Anak Krakatoa volcano.

"Disasters can happen anywhere in Indonesia," he told AFP during a recent visit there.

"We need to have (tsunami) early warning systems, especially in tourist destinations. We're going to make that happen."

But some are less convinced, especially since disaster monitors became aware of the killer waves after they had already smashed into the coastline along western Java and southern Sumatra.

Blockbuster Bali

"It's going to be even more difficult to promote (the area), especially now that buildings are destroyed and the volcano is more active," said Tedjo Iskandar, a Jakarta-based travel analyst.

About 42 per cent of Indonesia's 14 million foreign tourists headed to the popular resort island of Bali last year, giving a $17 billion boost to Southeast Asia's biggest economy.

The government picked Tanjung Lesung and nine other locations as part of its "10 New Balis" strategy, a plan unveiled in 2016 with an eye to courting Chinese, Singaporean and other investors as its push to hit 20 million tourists annually.

The list includes ancient Buddhist and Hindu temples, tropical islands near Jakarta, the Mount Bromo volcano in eastern Java, and a national park that is home to Komodo dragons — the world's biggest lizard.

But the killer tsunami has dealt a blow to plans to pump some $4 billion into Tanjung Lesung.

And it is not the only spot in the government's tourism plan to suffer a disaster — natural or man-made — that could scare away tourists.

Lombok, next to Bali, was rocked by earthquakes in the summer that killed more than 500 and sparked a mass exodus of foreigners from the tropical paradise.

That was weeks after Lake Toba on Sumatra island — also on the "New Bali" list — was the scene of a ferry accident that left almost 200 people missing or dead.

Caught off guard

In May, Indonesia's second-biggest city Surabaya was hit by suicide bombings carried about by Islamist extremists, while Bali was rocked as the Mount Agung blew its top at the end of 2017.

The volcano is 75 kilometres (45 miles) away from tourist areas and the eruption posed little danger to visitors, but it still left hundreds of thousands stranded as flights were cancelled.

Indonesia's upbeat tourism numbers plunged in the second half of 2018 after the Lombok quakes, a quake-tsunami disaster on Sulawesi island that killed thousands, and a Lion Air plane crash in October which killed all 189 people on board.

Florence museum demands Germany return artwork stolen by Nazis

ROME (Italy)—The Uffizi Gallery in Florence on Tuesday appealed to Berlin for help in retrieving a stolen 18th century Dutch painting from a German family.

"An appeal to Germany for 2019: We wish that the famous 'Vase of Flowers' by Dutch painter Jan van Huysum that was stolen by Nazi soldiers be returned to the Uffizi Gallery," the museum's German director Eike Schmidt said.

According to Schmidt, the oil painting is "currently held by a German family who, after all this time, has still not returned it to the museum despite many requests by the Italian state."

Before it was stolen during World War II, the still-life, which measures 47x35 cm (18x14 inches), was part of a collection owned by another well-known Florence museum, the Palazzo Pitti.

After being shipped to Germany the work's whereabouts remained unknown until 1991, after Germany was reunified, Schmidt said.

Van Huysum was a well-known specialist of still-life paintings, and until this one is returned, "the wounds of the Second World War and Nazi terror will not be healed," the museum director claimed.

Schmidt, who is also an art historian, urged Germany "to abolish the statute of limitations for works stolen during the conflict and ensure they can be returned to their rightful owners."

In the meantime, a black and white copy of "Flower Vase" was hung on Tuesday at the Uffizi Gallery, with the word "stolen" in English, German and Italian on it.

Ancient Jerusalem attracts growing Chinese tourists

JERUSALEM—Jerusalem, an old city in the Middle East considered holy by Jews, Muslims and Christians, has seen a growing tourism sector in recent years, particularly an increase of Chinese tourists to the city.

According to the annual tourism report of Britain-based Euro-monitor International, there was an increase of almost 40 per cent in the number of tourists to Jerusalem in 2018, making it one of the fastest growing destinations in the world. Doron Spielman, vice president of the City of David foundation in the center of Jerusalem's Old City, said there have been common grounds between the Chinese and Jewish people.

The Chinese people love coming here and seeing a wall which was built by Jews at the same time as the Great Wall of China, Spielman noted.

As part of its attempt to lure more Chinese tourists, the City of David park announced earlier last month that it had translated its popular night-time sound and light show into Mandarin, the official language of China, so that biblical characters now speak Chinese to tell the ancient story on the walls of Jerusalem's Old City.—Xinhua ■

Emperor Akihito greets well-wishers in final New Year's address

TOKYO—Emperor Akihito spoke of his hopes for world peace on Wednesday in his final New Year's address from the throne, with a record number of well-wishers expected to visit the Imperial Palace during the course of the day.

"I hope this year will be a good year for as many people as possible," said the emperor, who waved to the crowd from behind the windows of a balcony at the palace together with his wife Empress Michiko and other members of the imperial family. "At the beginning of the year, I pray for the peace and happiness of the people of our country and the world."

On 30 April, the 85-year-old emperor will become the first Japanese monarch to abdicate in about two centuries after indicating in 2016 his wish to retire, citing his concern that he might not be able to fulfill his official duties due to his advancing age.

His eldest son Crown Prince Naruhito will ascend the Chrysanthemum Throne on 1 May.

A total of five greeting sessions were scheduled to take place on Wednesday, three in the morning and two in the afternoon.

One year ago, he offered greetings to 126,720 well-wishers, the largest number of visitors to the palace for his New Year address since he ascended to the throne in 1989.

With that record expected to be broken for this year's New Year's greetings, the Imperial Household Agency set up two huge screens, as it did for the first time on the emperor's birthday on 23 December, so that well-wishers could get a good view.—Kyodo News ■

‘We have a healthy spacecraft’: NASA succeeds in historic flyby of faraway world

TAMPA (United States) — NASA rang in the New Year on Tuesday with a historic flyby of the farthest, and quite possibly the oldest, cosmic body ever explored by humankind — a tiny, distant world called Ultima Thule — in the hopes of learning more about how planets took shape.

A series of anxiously awaited “phone home” signals arrived after 10:30 am (1530 GMT), indicating that the spacecraft had made it, intact, through the risky, high-speed encounter.

“We have a healthy spacecraft,” said mission operations manager Alice Bowman, as cheers erupted in the control rooms at Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory in Maryland.

About 10 hours earlier, NASA celebrated the New Year’s flyby, as mission managers — alongside kids dressed in space costumes — blew party horns to mark the moment at 12:33 am (0533 GMT) when the New Horizons spacecraft aimed its cameras at the space rock four billion miles (6.4 billion kilometres) away in a dark and frigid region of space known as the Kuiper Belt.

More images and data will start arriving later Tuesday, offering scientists the first up-close look at an ancient building block of planets, Bowman said.

The flyby took place about a billion miles beyond Pluto, which was until now the most faraway world ever visited up close by a spacecraft. Hurling through space at a speed of 32,000 miles per hour, the spacecraft made its closest approach within 2,200 miles of the surface of Ultima Thule. “This is a night none of us are going to forget,” said Queen guitarist Brian May — who also holds an advanced degree in astrophysics — and who recorded a solo track to honour the spacecraft and its spirit of exploration.

Lead planetary scientist for New Horizons, Alan Stern, said Ultima Thule is unique because it is a relic from the early days of the solar system and could provide answers about the origins of other planets. “The object is in such a deep freeze that it is perfectly preserved from its original formation,” he said. “Everything we are going to learn about Ultima — from its composition to its geology to how it was originally assembled, whether it has satellites and an atmosphere and those kinds of things — are going to teach us about the original formation conditions of objects in the solar system.”

Coming into focus

Scientists are not sure exactly what Ultima Thule (pronounced TOO-lee) looks like — whether it is cratered or smooth, or even if it is a single object or a cluster. But a new, though still blurry image released on Tuesday showed its oblong shape resembles something like a bowling pin or a peanut, and its dimensions are about 22 miles long and nine miles wide (35 by 15 kilometres).

Stern said his bet is that the object is a single body, not two pieces orbiting each other, but he would wait until more, clearer images arrive Wednesday to say for sure. The highest resolution images are expected in February, Stern said. Ultima Thule was discovered in 2014 with the help of the Hubble Space Telescope.

Scientists decided to study Ultima Thule with New Horizons after the spaceship, which launched in 2006, completed its main mission of flying by Pluto in 2015, returning the most detailed images ever taken of the dwarf planet. Stern said the goal was to take images of Ultima that are three times the resolution the team had for Pluto.

Frontier of planetary science

Ultima Thule is named for a mythical, far-northern island in medieval literature and cartography, according to NASA.

Project scientist Hal Weaver of the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory said humans didn't even know the Kuiper Belt — a vast ring of relics from the formation days of the solar system — existed until the 1990s.

“This is the frontier of planetary science,” said Weaver.

Another NASA spacecraft, OSIRIS-REx, also set a new record on Monday by entering orbit around the asteroid Bennu, the smallest cosmic object — about 1,600 feet (500 metres) in diameter — ever circled by a spacecraft.

NASA said the orbit some 70 million miles (110 million kilometres) away marks “a leap for humankind” because no spacecraft has ever “circled so close to such a small space object — one with barely enough gravity to keep a vehicle in a stable orbit.” — AFP ■

Global tech show to celebrate innovation amid mounting concerns

WASHINGTON (United States) — Amid trade wars, geopolitical tensions and a decline in public trust, the technology sector is seeking to put its problems aside with the Consumer Electronics Show, the annual extravaganza showcasing futuristic innovations.

The 8-11 January Las Vegas trade event offers a glimpse into new products and services designed to make people's lives easier, fun and more productive, reaching across diverse sectors such as entertainment, health, transportation, agriculture and sports. “Smart” devices using various forms of artificial intelligence will again be a major focus at CES.

Visitors are likely to see more dazzling TV screens, intuitive robots, a range of voice-activated devices, and folding or roll-up smartphone displays.

Also on display will be refinements to autonomous transportation and gadgets taking advantage of 5G, or fifth-generation wireless networks.

But the celebration of innovation will be mixed with concerns about public trust in new technology and other factors that could cool the growth of a sizzling economic sector.

“I think 2019 will be a year of trust-related challenges for the tech industry,” said Bob O'Donnell of Technalysis Research.

CES features 4,500 exhibitors across 2.75 million square feet (250,000 square metres) of exhibit space showcasing artificial intelligence, augmented and virtual reality, smart homes, smart cities, sports gadgets and other cutting-edge devices. Some 182,000 trade professionals are expected. — AFP ■

Older patients of heart attack may benefit from moderate daily drinking: study

SAN FRANCISCO — Patients aged 65 or older who are newly diagnosed with heart failure may have a longer survival rate than those who never drink at all if they live on a habit of drinking one or two serving of wine every day, the School of Medicine of Washington University (WU) on the western US coast said in the latest study.

WU researchers examined data from a past study conducted from 1989 to 1993, which included 5,888 adults on Medicare, and discovered a link between consuming seven or fewer drinks per week and an extended survival rate of over one year, in comparison with the long-term abstainers.

Their study, which was published in the latest edition of JAMA Network Open, suggested that new older patients of heart failure can safely go on with their habit of drinking in moderate amounts, about one serving of alcohol per day for women and two for men.

Among those patients surveyed in the study, they had an average of 383 days in extended survival rate, and they were 79 years old on average, with slightly more of them being women and 86 per cent being white.

“Our study suggests people who have had a daily drink or two before their diagnosis of heart failure can continue to do so without concern that it's causing harm,” said the study's senior author and cardiologist David L Brown, who is a professor of medicine at Washington University.

However, he said people who develop heart failure at an older age but have never been alcohol consumers shouldn't start drinking because the study has not yet established cause and effect between moderate drinking and longer survival rate. — Xinhua ■

Wozniacki cruises in Auckland ahead of Melbourne title defence

AUCKLAND (New Zealand)—Caroline Wozniacki began her warm-up for her Australian Open title defence with a comprehensive 6-3, 6-2 win over Laura Siegemund in the first round of the WTA Auckland Classic on Wednesday. The 28-year-old Dane, runner-up in Auckland last year on her way to winning in Melbourne, gave herself a pass mark against German qualifier Siegemund and said the signs were good. “I was a bit rusty out there. Playing my first match it definitely wasn’t my prettiest match but I just tried to hang in there, and tried to serve well and hit a lot of balls back and tomorrow’s going to be better,” she said.

“I’m just so happy I’m back here and warming up in the same way and hopefully that will lead me to also having good luck in Australia this year. After a testing first few games, the world number three broke Siegemund in the fourth game and comfortably controlled the match from there.

Wozniacki will play Canadian qualifier Bianca Andreescu in the second round. In October, Wozniacki revealed she had been diagnosed with rheumatoid arthritis, an autoimmune disease which causes swelling of the joints and fatigue.—AFP ■

Japan’s Nishikori starts 2019 with win in Brisbane

BRISBANE (Australia)—Japanese tennis ace Kei Nishikori kicked off his 2019 campaign on a winning note on Wednesday, beating American Denis Kudla 7-5, 6-2 at the Brisbane International.

Nishikori, the world No 9 and second seed, fired seven aces and won 84 per cent of his first-serve points to book a spot in the quarterfinals against 2017 champion Grigor Dimitrov. The 29-year-old Japanese did not face a single break point and wrapped up the match against the world No 63 Bulgarian in 1 hour, 19 minutes.

“It was tough but I was able to play a good match,” Nishikori said. “The level of my opponent dropped a little after going 5-5 in the first set, and I was able to pick up my level and play aggressively.” “It was a good way to start this season’s singles matches.” said Nishikori, who reached November’s ATP Finals after coming back from a wrist injury sustained in 2017. Nishikori has a 4-1 record against Dimitrov, who recorded his only win against the Japanese star in the 2017 Brisbane International final. In other matches, Japanese qualifier Yasutaka Uchiyama delivered the biggest upset of the day when he beat third seed Kyle Edmund of Britain 7-6(6), 6-4 and reached his first quarterfinal on the ATP Tour.

The 185th-ranked Uchiyama knocked out the No 14 Briton by hitting 15 aces against Edmund’s seven and saving all three of the break points he faced.

“I’m much more happy that I beat my opponent today than reached the quarterfinals,” Uchiyama said. “Playing a good match is different from forcing a win. Winning means a lot to me.” The 26-year-old Uchiyama will face France’s Jeremy Chardy for a semifinal spot.—Kyodo News ■

I’ll be back on the national team, says defender Kyaw Zin Lwin

FORMER defender of the Myanmar National Football Team, Kyaw Zin Lwin, has expressed his intention of playing for the national team again, said a source with the Myanmar National League (MNL). Kyaw Zin Lwin recently shifted to Ayeyawady United from the Magway FC, and is serving as a defender on the new club.

“Although I did get a chance to be on the national football team last year, there were some weak points in my play. But, I believe, I will be back in top form. I will give my best to my new team, Ayeyawady United, so I get a chance to play for the national team,” he said.

Speaking about his new club, the 25-year-old said: “I’m ok in my new club, Ayeyawady. The coaches, trainers, and players are all friendly. I will do my best to achieve wins for my team.”

Arsenal bounce back to rout feeble Fulham

LONDON (United Kingdom)—Arsenal responded to their thrashing by Liverpool in the best possible manner reeling off a routine 4-1 humbling of struggling Fulham in their Premier League clash on Tuesday.

Swiss midfielder Granit Khaka had set Arsenal on their way with his fourth goal of the season. Alexandre Lacazette added the second after 55 minutes with their momentum temporarily halted as Aboubakar Kamara pulled one back after 69 minutes. However, Welshman Aaron Ramsey came off the bench to make it 3-1 eleven minutes from time and Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang added a fourth. Arsenal have yet to keep a clean sheet since beating Huddersfield Town on 8 December, but a second win in six matches saw them move on to 41 points two points off the Champions League places.

Fulham have shown little sign of a recovery under Claudio Ranieri since he took over from the sacked Slavisa Jokanovic and are second from bottom.

The visitors did have their chances early on to break the deadlock.
