Working together to bring positive change for future generations

“WORKING on early life development of children helps nurture and develop valuable and important human resources of our Union. In other words, it is not wasteful spending; it is, in fact, a strategic investment for the future.” This was the opening statement of State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi at the High-Level Forum on ‘Realizing Myanmar’s Development Vision for Every Child’ held in Nay Pyi Taw on 28 January.

The future of a country depends on the emphasis placed on the next generation’s overall development. There are national strategies in place in Myanmar for working towards the development of the children of our country, as an investment in our nation’s future. While authorities concerned acknowledge that children’s affairs are important to the future of a nation, there has been a lack of strategic investment in the area.

Just like we can shift a large rock if we work together as a group rather than individually, we can bring about great changes for the benefit of our future generations if we all work together.

be drawn not only to meet the requirements, but must also be implementable. It is very important for ministries and state and region governments to plan and conduct works that seek to include all people in annual projects and to ensure that there are connections and linkages.

Studies and discussions for securing the future of each child in Myanmar should be conducted across sectors to reduce childhood deaths, ensure registration of children at birth, ensure they have a healthy, warm, and safe life, enjoy equal opportunity in education, increase their time in school, and prevent human trafficking and recruitment of children into the military.

Everyone from the government and private sector must participate and work together to resolve the weaknesses and consolidate the strengths of each sector. Just like we can shift a large rock if we work together as a group rather than individually, we can bring about great changes for the benefit of our future generations if we all work together. And in doing so, we will ensure well-balanced physical and mental development of all the children in the country. ■■■

A compilation of interviews with investors, business tycoons and magnates are presented for the esteemed readers.

Dr. Maung Maung Lay (Vice President of UMFCCI)

It is not the usual prototype of the past like one way lectures. See eye to eye is going on among the sellers and the buyers. Some foreign and local business people are holding on “wait and see” attitude on the shift and swing of the investment and the peace progress of the country. As state economy shifted from socialist system to a new market economic era, a lot of people just stand by and see what is actually going on. Political stability is a prerequisite and that the government is doing the best. They stepped ahead only after assessing the stability.

Unlike the previous gatherings, this Summit 2019 offers an exclusive and unique platform for the buyers and the sellers. On the part of the sellers, they showcased about (200) projects including from the regions and the states.

On the part of the buyers, the experts and the skilled persons assessed the projects and advised to their respective investors and then contemplate for further talks direct with the regions and states chief ministers, if they are desirous to do business. The officials from customs and the land records are all there, waiting for the pragmatic business deals in a single venue.

The newest way of dealing brings confidence and trust and that 2019 foreign investment indicates the upswing with the paradigm of transparency.

Dr. Aung Tun Thet, (Economist)

In doing business it is vital to ensure profit, to take care of the people, and to conserve environment. Above all, the dignity, ethic and prestige are also necessary to incorporate. When we are welcoming investments from other countries, it is essential to have fine basic structure on economic, political, and social matters. For the economic development of our own country, the political situation must be fair enough with the rule of law in good balance and equilibrium. Politics and social matters are to be taken into consideration for inviting foreign investors.

It is very much fundamental that the incoming investments must be in the interest and advantage of the people. Moreover, they should be in the health and education sectors. Another vital aspect is to achieve corruption free environment, which is impediment to the investors. All the government departments must move fast in their office functioning so as to garner investments.

In this new style of summit, foreign and local business people would surely come forward with open hearts and talk candidly, and therefore, I would like to urge to all stakeholders to get the best and most out of the summit.

U Ye Aung Moe (Director, Rakhine State, Directorate of Hotel and Tourism)

In Rakhine State, we have most popular resorts and destinations namely Ngapali Beach and Mrauk-U Cultural Heritage Site. We have many beautiful beaches similar to Ngapali Beach, adding more beauties at Gwa Township, Myanaung Island and Ramree Island.

For the development of tourism industry, the Ministry of Hotel and Tourism and the Rakhine State Government are trying the best in their cooperation. Investments are also welcomed at the agriculture, animal breeding, fisheries, and industrial sectors. In the upcoming February 2019, we have arranged the Rakhine State Investment Fair at Ngapali Beach Resort, where we would offer business opportunity and investment prospects.

U Sithu Moe Myint, Executive Director and Country Manager MPRL E & P Group of Companies

At this summit 2019, we have presented the services regarding Block A-6 that of MPRL E&P which played a key role in the successful exploration and production of hydrocarbon resources in Myanmar.

The efforts to improve oil production in Mann field have supplied the nation with a more cost effective means for domestic oil consumption. The offshore exploration success in block A-6 has brought the nation one step closer towards accessing a long term sustainable energy supply for future electrical power generation needs.

We also presented offshore logistic station to support block A-6. We are now in the initial process for the production of natural gas as we have accomplished the project in the Ayeyawaddy Region. We have planned to produce natural gas in the next five years.

The project being categorized at the offshore Block A - 6 is sophisticated, superior and hard scheme as it stands out at 21st project and the previous projects are listed as 20 projects on this planet. As the project has been earmarked for five years timeframe, it could be referred as very fast scheme.

For the successful implementation, we need to establish offshore logistic station as we have had to rely on the stations owned by Singaporean companies which incurred unnecessary expenses. Therefore, we have build offshore logistic station within two years which would surely aids and assists the Block A - 6 mission.

As the geographical feature and situation of Myanmar is very much strategic in the connectivity of the region, we intend to acquire multi-purpose offshore deep sea port with a broader vision.

U Maung Weik, Chairman, Sae Paing Development Limited

The speech delivered by the State Counselor is excellent as she invited the investors, and that the entire circumstances and conditions in Myanmar are fine. It is very much heartening that investors must also come forward. We need to elevate the local investors. Such forums should be organized once every six months or every year so that the intimacy and closeness could be created among the leaders and the business people. I would like to urge to conduct more summits.

Daw Khin Aye Win, Managing Director, STI Myanmar University

At this summit, we have introduced and presented educational services that we have already registered at the MIC. STI Myanmar University, formerly known as STI Education, was founded in Myanmar in early 2006 with the commitment of providing academic programs at the undergraduate and postgraduate levels.

It comprises of four major Faculties such as the Faculty of Business, Faculty of Health Science, Faculty of Education & Linguistics and Faculty of Engineering.

It is one of the top private education providers in Myanmar conducting courses in business and finance, engineering, human resource management, education and English proficiency programs, in collaboration with international universities and the National Management University under the Ministry of Education, Myanmar. Mainly, we are providing education in collaboration with the UK.

I am of the view that many investors are coming in. The year 2019 is much better than the previous years, however, we may have difficulties before us, and we must address to overcome the challenges. The investment is in the upsurge and that we need to organize more forums similar to this summit 2019.

At a time when the Basic Education Law is being enacted along with the by-laws, rules and regulations, then we have planned to establish a top notch quality private university on a par with the universities in the neighboring countries. We intend to accept the international students at our university while we are striving the nation building so that all the students could acquire the culture of Myanmar and its tradition at the university. This vision is in line with the educational guidelines being spelled out by the State Counsellor.

The people from the regions and the states gathered here and presented many investment opportunities including the plans of foreign and local investors. As we can see all the investment opportunities at the same venue, it is very much beneficial.

The assumptions and opinions viewed by some people are not correct that the local companies would have disadvantage and drawback when the foreign investors come and invest in the country. We are the hosts and we know our country much more than the foreigners. We could work out for the greater good of the country and further development. We have our own advantages and they have their own benefits. We could combine these potentials. We have now invited the foreign investors, and that our local in-

U Kyaw Thet Hlaing, (Vice President, Myanmar Developer Association)

The forum is an excellent discussion as the international investors could have the entire spectrum of presentation of Myanmar by themselves at the single show. It disseminated the job opportunities in addition to the stability of the sectors in political, economy, and economic principles which is being truly encouraged by the government.

They could feel the sentiments of the public in welcoming the investors, and therefore, such forum should be organized as much as possible. Myanmar Investment Law, Rules and Myanmar Companies Law being enacted and prescribed have been spread out across the globe which needs some space and time to be convinced by the international investors.

They are sure to understand and convinced that it is worth trying to invest in Myanmar and sure to rush in on time. For the time being, we need to go on with this type of summit and presentation from time to time as much as we could.

Thailand sends 83 illegal migrant workers back to Myanmar

THE Thai authorities sent 83 illegal migrant workers back to Myanmar via Kawthoung on 29 January. The workers' border passes were found to have expired and they were not holding any other official documents.

The 83 workers were warmly welcomed by personnel from the district and the township levels of General Administration Department, the Labor, Immigration, and Population Department, the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Division and the township Labor Department. The Public Health Department provided health checkups to the workers. Currently, the authorities are making arrangements to send them back to their homes.

MOST tourists visiting the Bagan-NyaungU area have been browsing through shops selling the Pathein Htee, or Myanmar traditional umbrella, in NyaungU Township of Mandalay Region.

There are 220 villages in the 91 village-tracts of NyaungU Township. Most of the villagers living in the area subsist on agriculture and farming. Some of the villagers make farming implements, paintings, and sculpture to earn a livelihood.

"Most of the tourists are visiting the Bagan NyaungU, which is an ancient city of tourist interest with several temples and pagodas. Whenever they visit NyaungU, travellers buy locally produced souvenirs. Often, tourists visit shops where they can see and purchase Pathein umbrellas. Pathein umbrellas are manufactured in Pathein Township and sold in NyaungU, where there is a good market for them," said Ko Naing Lin, who owns a Pathein umbrella shop in NyaungU.

"My brother in Pathein sends the umbrellas to me and I sell them in NyaungU Township," said Ko Naing Lin.

These days, Pathein umbrellas are selling well in the town of NyaungU because of an increase in tourist arrivals in Ba-gan region. Pathein umbrellas are also being ordered by hotels. Most of the hotels and restaurants in the NyaungU Township use Pathein umbrellas as decor. Some tourists also like to get photos taken with the Pathein umbrellas.

One Pathein umbrella is currently selling for K3,000 to K70,000 per unit, depending on the design and size. Pathein umbrellas mostly sell well between March and October.

Compared with last year, the number of tourists visiting the Bagan Archaeological Zone has increased this year. Tourists visiting the Bagan Archaeological Zone have to shell out an entry fee of K25,000 per person.—Kyaw Kyaw (Mahlaing) ■ (Translated by Hay Mar)

Volume of rice, broken rice exports tops 1.9 mln metric tons in Apr-Jan

THE volume of rice and broken rice exports between 1 April, 2018 and 18 January, 2019 is estimated to have crossed 1.9 million metric tons, worth about US$642.7 million, according to an announcement from the Myanmar Rice Federation (MRF).

In the nine months since April 2018, Myanmar has shipped over 1.6 million metric tons of rice worth $547 million to 46 countries. Meanwhile, the country has exported over 323,190 metric tons of broken rice to 21 countries, earning $95.58 million.

Border trade remains relatively high compared with sea trade when it comes to rice exports, accounting for 51.6 per cent of the total exports. The export of rice through the border checkpoints has fetched an estimated $335 million. Meanwhile, maritime trade has generated an income of $307.59 million.

The value of rice and broken rice exports in the April-January period has dropped compared to the corresponding period of the 2017-2018 fiscal year.

The decline in trade through the border channel has been attributed to China's tight confiscation of some agro products, including rice, since the second week of October 2018.

The trade capacity through the maritime channel is limited owing to shipping problems, port logistics, financial constraints, and currency fluctuation.

In the 2017-2018 fiscal year, Myanmar exported 3.6 million tons of rice and broken rice worth $1.13 billion.—Htet Myat

Exports of finished goods by private sector up nearly $780 mln; public sector sees decline

EXPORTS of finished industrial goods by the private sector increased by US$779 million, while shipments from the public sector registered a decline of $303 million between 1 October and 18 January in the 2018-2019 financial year compared with the corresponding period of the previous fiscal, according to data released by the Ministry of Commerce.

Exports of finished industrial goods reached $2.3 billion in the three months from October, recording a significant increase of over $476 million from $1.85 billion recorded in the corresponding period of the previous FY, according to data from the Commerce Ministry.

Myanmar's manufacturing sector is largely concentrated in garments and textiles on the Cutting-Making-Packaging (CMP) basis which contribute to the country's GDP to some extent.

The CMP industry has emerged as a promising one in the export sector. The export value of CMP was only $850 million in the 2015-2016 fiscal year, but the income from exports tripled within two years to reach $2.5 billion in the 2017-2018 FY, according to the Myanmar Global Investment Forum 2018 held on 12 September.

In the last mini-budget period (April-September), exports of clothes made under the CMP system were valued at $2.27 billion, double the figure recorded in the previous year.

Japan is the largest market for Myanmar's apparel, followed by the European Union. Local entrepreneurs have expressed concerns over the possibility of the EU revoking the Generalized Scheme of Preference, as it can also hurt the manufacturing industry.

There are currently over 400 garment factories in Myanmar, which employ more than 300,000 workers. Investors prefer to invest in cheap-labour countries such as Myanmar.

The manufacturing sector is likely to retain its top ranking in terms of FDI inflows in the current financial year.—GNLM

Low-cost affordable apartments to be sold in Ayeyawady Region

LOW-COST affordable apartments built in Ward 14, Patheingyi Township, Ayeyawady region, by Ohnmar Danti Real Estate and Pyi Taw Thar Real Property will be put on sale beginning of 4 February, according to the apartment selling committee.

The housing projects were implemented by the Urban and Housing Development Department under the Ministry of Construction.

Prospective buyers can make an outright purchase, or open an account with the Construction and Housing Development Bank (CHDB) and make a 30-per cent down payment for the apartments.

"The low-cost and affordable apartments, which were constructed in Patheingyi Township, will be sold to those who can make an outright purchase or those who opt to pay in instalments. Those who choose to pay in instalments need to open an account with the CHDB. Application forms for the apartments will be sold from 4 February. Apartments can be purchased outright from 4 February on a first come, first served basis. Buyers making an outright purchase will have to deposit the money with the bank. If they produce a bank statement, they will be allowed to stay in the apartments temporarily and they will get the title once they make the full payment," said U Sithu San, the deputy director of the apartment selling committee.

A total of 24 apartment buildings have been constructed by Pyi Taw Thar Real Estate. Meanwhile, seven buildings of six floors with eight apartment units on each level and nine buildings of five floors with six apartment units on each level have been constructed by Ohnmar Danti Housing Estate in Patheingyi Township.

"Now, we don't have any limitations. Earlier, only those who had bank accounts could buy apartments. Now, buyers don't need to open an account. If they pay cash, they can buy an apartment outright. But, if they wish to buy with credit, they need to open a bank account," he said.

The committee will sell the apartments to buyers who wish to make an outright purchase from 4 to 28 February. Buyers who opt for the instalment plan need to register with the Urban and Housing Development Department during the same period.

The housing units will be sold through a lottery system to buyers who opt for the instalment plan.—Aye Yamone

Sugar mill, power plant planned in Katha Tsp by 2021; to create over 70,000 jobs

A project is under way to construct a sugar mill and a biomass power plant in Katha Township over the next two years which will help create around 70,000 jobs for locals, said U Than Zaw Oo, the secretary of the Sagaing Region Investment Committee.

"Myanmar's Greatwall Foodstuff Industrial Co. Ltd and Yunnan Province-based Hong Kong International Sugar Engineering Company Limited will jointly set up the sugar mill and biomass power plant in Pyindaunglay village of Katha Township, Sagaing Region. The construction is slated to be completed in two years," he said.

The two entities will invest a capital of US$120 million in the sugar mill, which will have a daily crushing capacity of 10,000 tons of sugarcane. The biomass plant, which will produce 60 megawatts of power, will pull in a capital of $80 million.

As Phase I, the Sagaing Region government signed an agreement with investors for projects worth $200 million at the Invest Myanmar Summit 2019 held at MICC II in Nay Pyi Taw, said U Than Zaw Oo.

"The sugar mill construction project is scheduled from 2019 to 2020, and the mill is slated to run in 2021. Once the mill starts operation, a total of 55,000 jobs will be offered to locals, including sugarcane workers, general workers, wage workers, and factory staff. In addition to sugar, organic fertilizer will also be produced," he said.

"Similarly, the power plant will be constructed within two years. It will be located beside the sugar mill and employ 18,600 workers," said U Than Zaw Oo.—Myo Win Tun

Huawei exec makes court appearance after US extradition request

VANCOUVER (Canada) — Meng Wanzhou, a top executive of China's Huawei Technologies Co, made her first appearance in a Vancouver court on Tuesday, a day after the United States Department of Justice formally requested her extradition over US sanctions violations.

Meng, 46, chief financial officer of Huawei and the daughter of the company's founder Ren Zhengfei, and her legal team requested to formally change one of the parties that is financially responsible for her bail during the hearing Tuesday morning, according to Canadian media.

The judge allowed Meng to restore realtor Robert Cheng and his wife as sureties.

Though a 6 February hearing was previously scheduled to determine future court dates, the judge on Tuesday rescheduled it to 6 March, as Canada's minister of justice will decide whether to approve the US extradition request by 1 March.

Canadian authorities arrested Meng on 1 December during a flight transfer at the request of US authorities and she has been under house arrest in her suburban Vancouver home since a judge granted her a C$10 million ($7.5 million) bail on 11 December.

Meng's bail terms include wearing an ankle monitor, remaining inside her home between 11 pm and 6 am and around-the-clock surveillance.

On Monday, the Justice Department unsealed criminal charges against the Chinese telecommunications giant as well as Meng and two affiliates in connection with bank fraud in breach of US sanctions on Iran. In a separate case, the US department has also charged Huawei with stealing trade secrets from T-Mobile USA Inc. —Kyodo News ■

Japan gov't urged by lawmakers to take action against S Korea

TOKYO — Lawmakers from Prime Minister Shinzo Abe's ruling party on Wednesday intensified calls on Japan's government to act against South Korea, as the two countries have been locked in fierce historical and military disputes in recent months.

At a meeting of Liberal Democratic Party lawmakers well versed in diplomacy, Japan's ambassador to South Korea, Yasumasa Nagamine, explained the current status of bilateral ties, while noting it is important for Tokyo to keep communicating with Seoul and to manage differences.

Still, a chorus of hawkish requests came from lawmakers of the ruling party, with one attendee saying, "What the Japanese public wants are swift countermeasures. The government needs to show its resolute stance by recalling Mr Nagamine."

from Japanese firms for forced labor during Japan's rule of the Korean Peninsula between 1910 and 1945. Japan promptly criticized the rulings, handed down in October and November, as breaching "international law," based on the view that the nations settled the issue of compensation in 1965. Nagamine told the lawmakers that Tokyo has been calling on Seoul to engage in bilateral talks based on the 1965 accord to resolve their dispute.

"We plan to manage issues of (bilateral) concern in a future-oriented way and keep communication with the South Korean side," the envoy said.

On the South Korean navy's alleged targeting of its fire-control radar on a Japanese patrol plane, Nagamine said Seoul's responses have "lacked composure." But he said the incident should not harm relations between Japanese and South Korean defense authorities.

Japan and South Korea have traded barbs over the 20 December radar lock-on incident, with both sides presenting visual evidence to support their claims.

South Korea has denied Japan's claim that a fire-control radar—intended to measure the direction and distance of an object before launching an attack—was used. The South Korean military has also accused Japan's Self-Defence Forces of making multiple low-altitude flights near South Korean navy ships, a claim denied by Japan. —Kyodo News ■

Hundreds of schools to shut as toxic smog cloaks Bangkok

BANGKOK (Thailand) — Toxic smog forced Bangkok authorities to issue an unprecedented order to shut nearly 450 schools on Wednesday, as authorities struggle to manage a pollution crisis that has stirred widespread concern.

The Thai capital has been shrouded in murky haze for weeks, forcing residents to don masks and sparking social media criticism of the uneven response by the government.

Reasons given for the lingering pall include exhaust from traffic, unfettered construction, the burning of crop stubble, and pollution from factories getting trapped in the city.

rain, sprayed overpasses with water to catch micro-pollutants and even asked people not to burn incense sticks and paper during Chinese New Year celebrations. The measures so far have provoked derision from many Bangkok residents, while stocks of pollution masks have run out in many shops.

But on Wednesday, the Bangkok Metropolitan Administration stepped up its health warnings, ordering all 437 city-controlled public schools to close from lunchtime through Friday, while designating 1,500 square kilometres (580 square miles) of the city a “control area”.

“The situation will be bad until February 3 to 4, so I decided to close schools,” said Bangkok governor Aswin Kwanmuang, adding he hoped the move would also empty the road of cars on the school run.

Three to four of the city’s districts are “severely hit with smog”, he added.

Fleets of drones are set to be deployed to disperse sugary liquid solution to help clear the air of microscopic particles.

It is not clear how effective that will be given the scale of the smog cloaking the city.

Aswin also said City Hall may soon issue a warning against exercising in parks.

Air Visual, an independent online air quality index (AQI) monitor, on Thursday pegged Bangkok at the “unhealthy” level of 171, up from 156 mid-month.

The measurements are higher than some cities in China but well below the Indian capital New Delhi.

Greenpeace Thailand country director Tara Buakamsri said the levels in Bangkok were the worst in “at least a year”.—AFP ■

Dangerous arctic chill sweeps over US Midwest

CHICAGO (United States) — Tens of millions of people in the United States are bracing for a potentially life-threatening deep arctic chill forecast to hit swaths of the country on Wednesday.

Companies have told their workers to stay home, schools are closed and hundreds of flights have been canceled. The US Postal Service — known for its commitment to bringing the mail whatever the weather — has even reportedly suspended deliveries in Iowa due to the severe cold.

Temperatures in almost a dozen states stretching more than 1,200 miles (1,930 kilometres) from the Dakotas to Ohio were forecast to be the coldest in a generation, if not on record. “One of the coldest arctic air mass intrusions in recent memory is surging south into the Upper Midwest before spreading across much of the eastern two-thirds of the country,” the National Weather Service said. “Expect frigid temperatures, bitterly cold and life-threatening wind chills, likely leading to widespread record lows and low maximum temperatures from the Upper Midwest to the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley.” The cause is a swirl of arctic air that broke away from the polar vortex that usually encircles the North Pole. —AFP ■

'French Spiderman' arrested after scaling Manila skyscraper

MANILA (Philippines)—French urban freeclimber Alain Robert was arrested on Tuesday, police said, after he scaled one of Manila's tallest towers in his latest high-risk ascent. The 56-year old adventurer dubbed the "French spiderman" climbed the 47-storey GT Tower without safety equipment, leaving watchers on the ground staring in amazement.

"This is my path, this is my way of living. It is as important to me as eating, sleeping. I need that. It keeps me alive," he told reporters after completing the climb. Police were less enthusiastic about the stunt and took him into custody as soon as he reached the ground after the roughly two-hour climb up and down the building. He is being held on a charge of public disturbance but will post bail on Wednesday, his lawyer Howard Calleja told AFP on Tuesday night. Robert has scaled more than 100 structures without ropes or other safety equipment, setting a record for "most buildings climbed unassisted" according to Guinness World Records.

His successes include many of the world's tallest skyscrapers and iconic buildings, such as the Eiffel Tower, the Sydney Opera House, the Petronas Twin Towers in Kuala Lumpur and the Burj Khalifa in Dubai—where he used suction devices and a safety rope as it has no hand or footholds. However, in June he was foiled when he attempted to ascend a Seoul skyscraper, getting more than halfway up the 123-storey Lotte World Tower before security forced him to abort. Robert said he first intended to scale the GT Tower on Saturday but changed his mind when he saw building security men armed with guns, normal in the Philippines but not in most of the 70 countries where he said he had climbed. —AFP ■

Axes, armour, torches: Vikings feast on Scottish island

LERWICK (United Kingdom)—Vikings partied in Scotland's Shetland Islands on Tuesday in the annual "Up Helly Aa" festival, featuring a parade of men in suits of armour torching a wooden ship.

The event—which means "long winter's end" in Old Norse—has taken place in the port of Lerwick, around 125 miles (200 kilometres) northwest of mainland Scotland, on the last Tuesday in January every year since the early 1890s to celebrate the region's Viking heritage.

"It means a lot to Shetlanders and people in Lerwick that we can do this festival," John Nicolson, one of the organisers, told AFP.

"It's really steeped in Viking history here."

The 48-year-old is the figurehead for this year's festival—known as the "Guizer Jarl"—leading a "Jarl Squad" of dozens of Vikings for the day and hundreds of other dressed up "guizers".

"I've been looking forward to it for 13 years," said Nicolson, a self-employed decorator who has been on the 17-strong organizing committee all that time.

"There's only been a few guys that have been (Guizer Jarl), so it's a great privilege."

The Jarl dons the same suit of armour—comprising helmet, breastplate, shield, axe, dagger and belt—each year. But in a closely guarded secret, he chooses the design for his and his squad's other garments, representing a different character from the Norse Sagas stories each time. The formidable looking crew spent on Tuesday parading through the town, before a torchlit procession of hundreds led the burning down of the replica longship—and celebratory parties were expected to last until dawn.

The festivities take place regardless of conditions on the far-flung islands—which sit in the North Atlantic Ocean on the same latitude as southern Greenland. "There's no postponement for weather," said Nicolson. "It'll be what it'll be, and we'll just carry on." —AFP ■

Berlin filmfest unveils starry lineup

This year's edition of the Berlin Film Festival will be the last led by Dieter Kosslick, who is handing over the reins after 18 years. PHOTO: AFP

BERLIN (Germany)—New movies starring Diane Kruger, Martin Freeman and Catherine Deneuve and features directed by Hollywood actors Jonah Hill and Casey Affleck will take the spotlight at next month's Berlin film festival. The 11-day Berlinale, now in its 69th year, figures along with Cannes and Venice among Europe's A-list festivals. It will present some 400 movies from around the world before wrapping up on 17 February. This year's edition will be the last led by Dieter Kosslick, who is handing over the reins after 18 years. "The audio-visual world is in major, major turmoil and we'll have to see where the journey takes us," Kosslick, 70, told reporters, referring to competition from streaming giants such as Netflix.

"But I think in future, film festivals will be more important than ever because you will see movies that you can't see anywhere else (on a big screen). I think they (streaming and festivals) will co-exist."

Seventeen films will vie for the Berlinale's Golden and Silver Bear prizes, including a record seven by female directors such as Polish veteran Agnieszka Holland and Denmark's Lone Scherfig ("An Education"). Scherfig will open the festival on 7 February with the bittersweet drama "The Kindness of Strangers" set in New York and starring Zoe Kazan, Andreas Riseborough and Bill Nighy. French star Juliette Binoche will lead a jury including fellow Oscar winner Sebastian Lelio of Chile ("A Fantastic Woman"), British actress/director/producer Trudie Styler, Museum of Modern Art curator Rajendra Roy, German actress Sandra Hueller ("Toni Erdmann") and US critic Justin Chang. Kruger and Freeman are expected on Berlin's red carpet for the premiere of Israeli spy thriller "The Operative" by Yuval Adler.

Society without women

Outside the main showcase, Affleck will premiere "Light of My Life", a dystopian drama starring Elisabeth Moss ("The Handmaid's Tale") and set in a society without women. Hill's directorial debut "Mid90s" will also screen in the Panorama sidebar section alongside "Skin", starring Jamie Bell, about the US neo-Nazi scene and "The Souvenir" featuring Tilda Swinton and her real-life daughter Honor Swinton Byrne. Deneuve leads the cast of "Farewell to the Night" directed by Andre Techine and screening out of competition.

Turkish-German director Fatih Akin, who won a Golden Globe last year for his terrorism drama "In the Fade" starring Kruger, will premiere "The Golden Glove" about a killer in his hometown Hamburg. China will be represented in competition with two features, "One Second" by Zhang Yimou and "So Long, My Son" by festival favourite Wang Xiaoshuai.

After winning the Golden Lion top prize at the Venice film festival in September with "Roma", Netflix will enter the fray in Berlin for the first time with "Elisa and Marcela" by Spain's Isabel Coixet. Last year's Golden Bear winner was the sex docudrama "Touch Me Not" by Romania's Adina Pintilie. —AFP ■

Lowering blood pressure cuts risk of cognitive impairment: study

TAMPA (United States)—Aggressive treatment to lower blood pressure in older people has been shown to cut the risk of developing mild cognitive impairment, a risk factor for dementia, US researchers said on Monday.

While the findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) did not find any significant impact on the likelihood of developing dementia, experts said the trial offers a glimmer of hope as the world's population ages and dementia becomes a growing concern.

Dementia, including its most common form, Alzheimer's disease, is expected to affect 115 million people worldwide by 2050. So far, the world's best scientific minds have not found a way to reliably prevent, cure or treat dementia. But some research has suggested that high blood pressure—which affects three-quarters of people over 75—might be a modifiable risk factor. For the the Systolic Blood Pressure Intervention Trial (SPRINT), more than 9,300 people aged 50 and older with high blood pressure (systolic blood pressure of between 130 and 180 mm Hg) were randomized to receive different interventions.

Some received intensive blood pressure control, with medications that targeted 120 mm Hg. Others aimed for a more standard treatment goal of less than 140 mm Hg. Patients were followed for about five years and given a battery of cognitive tests. In the intensive treatment group, 149 participants were deemed to have probable dementia, compared with 176 participants in the standard treatment group. In other words, the intensive blood pressure control “did not significantly reduce the incidence of probable dementia,” said the study.

However, researchers were cautiously optimistic about a secondary finding, that mild cognitive impairment occurred in far fewer participants in the intensive treatment group—287 compared to 353 participants in the standard treatment group. “This is the first trial, to our knowledge, to demonstrate an intervention that significantly reduces the occurrence of MCI, a well-established risk factor for dementia,” said the study.

An accompanying editorial in JAMA by Kristine Yaffe of the University of California, San Francisco, also emphasized the possibility that more research could confirm the technique as an effective prevention strategy. “For older adults, almost all of whom have concern about being diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease and related dementia, SPRINT MIND offers great hope,” she wrote. “The study demonstrates that among those with hypertension, intensive SBP control can reduce the development of cognitive impairment.” She called for studying the approach along with other vascular health efforts, such as physical activity, and prevention. Maria Carrillo, chief science officer of the Alzheimer's Association, which is funding a two-year extension of the study to further probe any effects on dementia, called the findings “the strongest evidence to date about reducing risk of mild cognitive impairment through the treatment of high blood pressure. —AFP ■

Russian cosmonauts conducting 300 scientific experiments on orbital outpost

MOSCOW—Russian cosmonauts working on the International Space Station (ISS) are conducting 295 scientific experiments, Chief Designer for Crewed Space Systems, Academician of the Russian Academy of Sciences Yevgeny Mikrin said on Tuesday. “Currently, the program includes 295 experiments,” the chief designer said at the 43rd readings on cosmonautics devoted to Soviet Rocket Designer Sergei Korolyov. The cosmonauts are conducting the research in six areas: physical-chemical studies, the exploration of the Earth and outer space, the study of humans, space biology and bio-technology, the technology of exploring outer space, and also the work to popularize space research, Mikrin said. In particular, it was proven during the biological experiments that the plants grown in the conditions of a space flight do not lose their reproductive functions. The cosmonauts also tested promising materials aboard the ISS for the creation of space hardware. They also studied various systems of the human's body up to the cellular level. The 43rd Korolyov readings opened at the Bauman Moscow State Technical University on January 29 in memory of Academician Sergei Korolyov and other outstanding domestic scientists who helped Russia make a breakthrough in outer space exploration. The readings will run through 1 February. —Tass ■

China to launch 10 BeiDou satellites in 2019

BEIJING—China will send 10 satellites to join the BeiDou Navigation Satellite System (BDS) through seven separate launches this year, the China Aerospace Science and Technology Corporation (CASC) announced on Tuesday.

The launches will help complete the BDS global network by 2020, said Shang Zhi, director of the Space Department of the CASC, at a press conference, where the Blue Book of China Aerospace Science and Technology Activities was released.

According to the blue book, a total of 18 BeiDou satellites were launched in 2018, marking the completion of the BDS-3 primary system. The navigation system has started to provide global service. As an important achievement during the past 40 years of reform and opening-up, the BDS has also been widely used to serve China's economic development.

More than 6,000 fishing boats in the eastern province of Zhejiang have been installed with the BDS ship movement monitoring system, which helps them improve positioning accuracy and promptness, according to the blue book. About 6.17 million vehicles, 35,000 postal and express delivery vehicles and 80,000 buses in 36 major cities have been installed or are compatible with the BDS. The system is also used in homemade civilian aircraft, it says.

China Post has equipped its postal vehicles with 30,000 BDS terminals and connected them with the BDS-based information management platform. E-commerce giant JD.com also arms 1,500 logistics vehicles and 2,000 couriers with smart BDS terminals, according to the blue book.

The BDS is also widely used to serve the country's agricultural production. An automatic driving system for agricultural vehicles has been put into large-scale application across the country, while the farming supervision platform based on the navigation system has served more than 50,000 farm machines and facilities.

China began to construct its navigation system, named after the Chinese term for the Big Dipper constellation, in the 1990s and started serving the Asia-Pacific region in 2012.

By the end of 2018, there were a total of 33 BDS satellites operating in orbit, including 15 BDS-2 satellites and 18 BDS-3 satellites. Compared with the BDS-2 system, the technologies of the BDS-3 system have been greatly improved. The communications, data transmission, and ranging among satellites can be achieved through inter-satellite links. —Xinhua ■

Scientists develop artificial skin that can feel body movement

WASHINGTON—Researchers from the United States and Canada have developed a kind of sensor that could make artificial skin feel body movement, according to a study published on Monday. The study in the journal Advanced Materials said the sensor can mimic the sensing properties of skin. It can detect pressure and vibration and may help burn victims “feel” the surrounding world one day, according to researchers from University of Connecticut and University of Toronto.

The sensor is equipped with a silicone tube wrapped in a copper wire and filled with a special fluid made of tiny particles of iron oxide just one billionth of a meter long. The tiny particles rub around the inside of the silicone tube and create an electric current and the copper wire surrounding the silicone tube picks up the current as a signal, according to the study. When this tube is bumped by something experiencing pressure, the nano particles move and the electric signal changes. —Xinhua ■

Myanmar teams to play friendlies against Albirex Niigata FC

THE Myanmar national U-22 and U-19 football teams will play friendly matches against the Albirex Niigata Singapore F.C., the Singapore Premier League champions, at the Thuwunna Indoor Stadium in Yangon, according to the Myanmar Football Federation.

The friendly matches will help Myanmar teams hone their skills ahead of the upcoming international football tournaments.

Albirex Niigata Singapore F.C. mainly comprises talented Japanese players and has just four Singaporean players.

The main team, the Albirex Niigata F.C., is based in Japan, with the satellite team playing in the Singapore Premier League. The Singapore team has claimed three consecutive championship titles in the league in 2016, 2017, and 2018.

The team has garnered four titles in the knock up cup and another four in a local league cup.

The Singaporean football club will leave for Myanmar on 6 March and arrive in Yangon on 7 March, said a source with the MFF.

Qatar smash UAE 4-0 to reach AFC Asian Cup final for first time

ABU DHABI—Qatar will take on Japan on their first ever AFC Asian Cup final after stunning the hosts United Arab Emirates 4-0 here on Tuesday. The victory put Qatar to be the first team without conceding a single goal from their first six games at a single Asian Cup tournament. "We didn't concede a goal in six games, it's one of the main keys why we qualified for the final," said Qatar coach Felix Sanchez. "Our defence gave us many good opportunities in the counterattack. I am very satisfied with the result and congratulations to the players for their big effort." Almoez Ali scored his eighth goal of the tournament in the first half, going level with Iranian legend Ali Daei's record of 8 goals in a single Asian Cup. "Of course Almoez had a great performance tonight, he made an individual achievement but we know that he couldn't make it without all the other players in our team. We are playing as a team," Sanchez said. ## Man City give Liverpool title boost with shock Newcastle loss

NEWCASTLE (United Kingdom)—Manchester City handed the advantage firmly to Liverpool in the Premier League title race as they surrendered the lead in a stunning 2-1 loss away to Newcastle United on Tuesday. Pep Guardiola's second-placed side looked likely to keep the pressure on Jurgen Klopp's leaders as Sergio Agueero got them off to an ideal start in the Spaniard's 100th league game in charge by scoring the fastest goal of the season just seconds into the action at St James' Park.

But Newcastle staged an unlikely comeback to ease their relegation fears thanks to Salomon Rondon's 66th-minute equaliser, the first goal City had conceded for more than 10 hours, before Matt Ritchie struck the winner from the penalty spot with 10 minutes remaining after Fernandinho's foul on youngster Sean Longstaff. It means Liverpool, who could have been only a point ahead of their main rivals on their return to action, can extend their lead at the top to an imposing seven points with victory over Leicester at Anfield on Wednesday. Such a scenario looked unlikely when Aguero continued his amazing scoring record against the Tyneside club with his 15th goal in 13 games against the Magpies, more than any player has scored against an opponent for a single club in the Premier League.—AFP ■
