THE Pyithu Hluttaw approved a motion, submitted by MP Dr. U Sein Mya Aye of Dala constituency, to encourage the sports sector by adopting plans and making budget allocations, after the MPs of the Hluttaw debated the issue yesterday.

In his motion, Dr. U Sein Mya Aye urged the Union Government to promote the country's sports sector through plans and funds as sports can help bring up the youth as a healthy and fit generation, ensure the physical and mental development of working people, help senior citizens enjoy a healthy life, and prevent use of narcotic drugs among people.

During the discussion on the motion, Lt-Col Sai Aik Hla, a Representative of the Tatmadaw, stressed the need for adopting plans and policies which can help produce diet experts as athletes need to follow a proper diet.

He suggested an incentive program for athletes at the university level, which takes sports into account for priority programs at the universities.

"Only when people are healthy can the productivity of the country be improved, and the costs for medication for illnesses caused by lack of physical exercise be reduced. Therefore, the Union Government must lay down a policy for the development of sports in the country and must enact the Myanmar National Sports Law," said Lt-Col Sai Aik Hla.

Daw Khin Sandi of Launglon constituency and Dr. Daw Khin

Soe Moe Kyi of Pyay constituency supported the motion, advising the ministries concerned to lay down effective plans and urging the Ministry of Planning and Finance, the Finance Commission, and the Pyithu Hluttaw to provide a suitable budget, when the ministries seek funds from them.

Afterwards, 12 MPs took part in the debate.

In response to the discussion, Dr. Mya Lay Sein, the Deputy Minister for Health and Sports, stressed the need for Human Capacity Building as part of efforts for producing quality trainers, as it is difficult to get professional trainers at present.

She also supported the motion and urged the Hluttaw to approve it, expressing the hope that the country would see healthy youth and citizens, when they can take physical exercises conveniently in community areas.

The Hluttaw approved the motion after seeking remarks from the MP who submitted the motion. (Translated by GNLM)

State Counsellor meets residents of Myeik District

THE Chairperson of the Central Committee for Development of Border Areas and National Races, State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi left for Myeik in Taninthayi Region from Nay Pyi Taw by special flight yesterday.

She was accompanied by Union ministers Lt-Gen Kyaw Swe, Lt-Gen Ye Aung, U Min Thu, and U Ohn Win, Deputy Minister U Hla Maw Oo, and other officials.

The State Counsellor and her entourage were welcomed at the Myeik Airport by Peace Commission Chair Dr. Tin Myo Win, Taninthayi Region Chief Minister Dr. Lei Lei Maw, regional Hluttaw Speaker U Khin Maung Aye, regional ministers and Hluttaw MPs, departmental officials, and ethnic cultural troupes.

The State Counsellor was also warmly welcomed by local residents holding up posters of her images along the roads of Myeik.

The State Counsellor arrived at B.E.H.S. 7 Myeik and delivered a speech at the ceremony to award winners of the district-level competitions commemorating the 104th birth anniversary of Bogyoke Aung San, the architect of Myanmar's independence.

Importance of right conduct

The State Counsellor first thanked the local residents of Taninthayi Region for issuing her a warm welcome. She acknowledged the Children's Day competitions held regularly on her father, Bogyoke Aung San's birth date, and highlighted the fact that awards are only gained through one's own hard work, and only awards worth gaining are worth taking pride in. She said the reward of helping other people is the next best thing, and said her father was a victor who didn't need a reward, as he had received loving-kindness from the entire country.

One of the awards at the ceremony was for the best impersonation of Bogyoke Aung San, and the child who received that award has artistic talents, said the State Counsellor. She added it was more important to replicate her father's goodwill for the country, than his physical characteristics.

The State Counsellor said

the modern age has seen fewer acts of selflessness as a growing number of people teach the young that working for self-interest is the only logical path. She said it is important for adults to have the right mindset so children can be steered on the right path to education and good values.

The State Counsellor said if the majority of students do not wish to attend a school, then that school can be said to be not doing so well. Conversely, if a child is happy to attend a school, even if it is lacking in proper facilities, then that school can be termed as successful, she said. Children learn things taught to them by heart when they enjoy learning, she added.

The State Counsellor said the government will help with whatever budget it can afford for schools, but it is equally important for teachers to ensure students have an enjoyable and engaging learning environment.

"The main resource of a country is its people. Our children are like our bank savings, when it comes to our future. They will become the strength we can call upon when needed. That's why I would like to implore teachers and parents to strive so children become an endless treasure that will benefit the entire nation," said the State Counsellor.

She pointed out that Taninthayi Region is not one of the wealthiest regions in Myanmar and, thus, requires everyone's cooperation to achieve regional development and prosperity, with the central government assisting in every capacity it can manage. However, as Myanmar is not a prosperous country, we cannot provide as much aid as we want to one area alone, while there are six other regions and seven states that require attention as well, said the State Counsellor.

She said the state or regional government is mainly responsible for using the support provided to undertake effective implementation. Those who shirk their duty cannot take responsibility for others, so it is important for everyone to carry out their respective responsibilities to the fullest for the benefit of the entire country, said the State Counsellor.

She said her ruling party has never broken a promise made to the people, and never will. She said they will take effective action, within the legal framework, on any incident that might harm the people. All who have assumed the responsibility of working for the benefit of the entire country and its people need to be straightforward in their duties and perform them with dignity, said the State Counsellor. She concluded her speech by requesting parents and teachers to guide children to become honest and accountable adults in the future.

State Counsellor, officials confer awards

The State Counsellor then watched primary school and high school students, who won first prizes at district-level competitions, perform an impression of Bogyoke Aung San delivering a speech.

Next, the State Counsellor conferred awards to the primary school students who stood first, second, and third place at the competitions.

Following this, Union Ministers Lt-Gen Kyaw Swe, Lt-Gen Ye Aung, U Min Thu, and U Ohn Win, PC Chairman Dr. Tin Myo Win, the regional chief minister, and Deputy Minister U Hla Maw Oo conferred awards to primary school and high school students who won first, second and third places at the district-level competitions for performing Bogy-oke Aung San's speeches, ad-lib competitions, painting and composition.

Meeting with Myeik residents

Afterwards, the State Counsellor met residents of townships in Myeik District at Pale Yadanar Hall in Myeik.

In her address to the assembled residents, the State Counsellor explained that the government's visits to the states and regions are for getting an on-the-ground perspective of the people's actual situation, the extent of their development, and how best to address their challenges. She added that they also inspect whether the state or regional government is fulfilling their assumed duties.

The State Counsellor said she last visited Taninthayi Region before the 2015 general elections and she intends to see how much the region has developed in the three years since. She said some areas in Myanmar have developed quickly while other are still lagging behind and said there must be an explanation to this difference in the rate of development. She said whatever disadvantage might be delaying development, it is the duty of the government to identify it and provide a remedy as best as it can.

The State Counsellor shared her experience of watching the students of B.E.H.S. 7, earlier in the day, perform impressions of her father's speeches in commemoration of his 104th birth anniversary. She said the children were so talented that had she known beforehand, she would not have prepared to give a speech as her father's words, portrayed by the students, remain true even now. She highlighted the need for critical reflection as the words her father spoke are still relevant over 70 years after gaining independence as it could mean the country has not progressed much since that time.

The State Counsellor said she is delighted at seeing the changes in the mentality of the children of country within two to three years. She said this could be contributed to the improving education system or the genuine shift in mentality of the people. She said everyone must continue to maintain the mindset that have taken the right path.

The State Counsellor said the main prerequisites for success are discipline and diligence. She said it is important to have the right intention as the performance of your actions decide the outcome you will receive.

In accordance with the democratic rights, the people would vote for a party which can serve in their interests, she said, adding that health and education the basic needs of the people.

The State Counsellor continued to say that wherever she met with the people, they voiced their needs mainly water supply, drinking water, transportation, electrification, education and health, and returning confiscated land.

Efforts to overcome challenges to resolving land grabbing issues

The Union Government is making efforts for resolving the nationwide land confiscation issues that happened after 1988.

The efforts have been fruitful, with land returned to the rightful owners.

"During the last nearly three-year period of our term, we've felt that we've had to pay off decades-old debts," said the State Counsellor.

"We cannot complete this job overnight. But, we are trying hard to complete the task as soon as possible. We will never forget the promises that we made to the people. The first promise is national reconciliation and peace. After that, rule of law and internal peace."

She continued to say that peace and stability in the country, socio economy development can not come without the rule of law.

"We promised the people that we will amend the constitution as part of efforts for building a genuine democratic federal Union. As all of you know, today the steps are being taken at the Hluttaw. We do not easily make promises that we cannot keep. We decisively make promises that we can keep."

"We promised the people that we will amend the constitution as part of efforts for building a genuine democratic federal Union."

"There needs to be close relations between the local governments and the local people," said Daw Aung San Suu Kyi.

Afterwards, the State Counsellor listened the voices of the local people and explained the tasks be carried out by the government and the situation to be cooperated by the people.

At the meeting, the local people voiced to prevent floods, to enact the Universal Healthcare Law, to enforce land lease tax, to build rest rooms for local and foreign travellers on the islands in the region, to reopen fish auction market, to open Mawtaung border gate, to implement the hydropower plant in the Taninthayi Region, to conduct vocational trainings, to conduct ethnic language teaching programs, to coordinate for formation of a township-level cooperation committee between Myanmar and Thailand, to conserve the mangrove forests, to solve land issue of Myeik Technological University, to relax some restrictions on sea cruising, to appoint more teachers in the region and to solve some issues in which people are facing charges.

Union ministers and Taninthayi Region Chief Minister explained about the measures to be taken by the ministries concerned and the regional government to solve the issues presented by the people.

The State Counsellor also promised to solve the issues that can be solved as soon as possible and urged the authorities to put the some issues that can not be solved yet on the record. —MNA (Translated by Zaw Htet Oo) on this policy, we work with the people. We never ever trick the people. We never do activities that can cause grievances to the people. We can take responsibility for our work. But, people must do their duty."

"It is important for the people to be dutiful citizens to retain the rights given by the democratic system. Therefore, I remind the people frequently that if you want rights, you must be dutiful. If you don't know even your duty, demanding rights is not appropriate. If you are not dutiful, you cannot enjoy your rights,"

She also urged the regional and state governments to work closely with the people, pointing out that questions raised by the people during her recent trips to regions and states can be solved by the governments concerned.

Developing our agricultural sector will remedy long-term issues

AN important requirement of the current times is the need for an increase in well-paid jobs. If the authorities can fulfil that requirement, then, the people of the country will be satisfied, and the future of the nation will be secured.

At present, Myanmar's economy is not equipped to create enough jobs to support the nation's growing population. While employment prospects are good in urban districts, jobs are getting scarcer in rural areas. Youths in rural areas are mainly affected, as they have to either take up whatever work can be found or, leave their hometown to look for work in the cities or, abroad. While this is a good opportunity for them to find better work, it will severely drain our country's human resources in the long-run, if left unattended.

This MSDP pillar will create much needed job opportunities, fulfil the nation's food demands, and contribute to global food resources, if we all work together to ensure its success.

Myanmar is an agricultural country with 70 per cent of its land used for farming. Farming needs to be sustainable and effective in the rural areas so that local residents can lead fulfilling lives. It will also elevate the agricultural sector's contribution to the nation's economic development. Currently, there is a shortage of workers in agriculture due to few opportunities for development.

To remedy this, the Union Government drew up the Myanmar Sustainable Development Programme and began systematically implementing it in all sectors of the country last year, hoping to accomplish its intended purpose in 12 years, to meet the 2018-2030 deadline. The MSDP's third pillar — People and Planet — is concerned with food production, including rice and agriculture products.

This MSDP pillar will create much needed job opportunities, fulfil the nation's food demands, and contribute to global food resources, if we all work together to ensure its success. This will also solve the shortage of agricultural workers affecting the country.

We must be serious in executing the third pillar because our population will continue to grow and that means there will be increasing demands on our food supply along with an increasing search for employment. We must strive to ensure our youths, especially those from rural areas, are included in building and developing our nation. We must open the way for our youths to incorporate modern ideas and innovation in their vocational and formal education.

We urge everyone to participate in implementing the MSDP as it is a solution to the present issues concerning our nation, and to prevent foreseeable future issues from arising. Our agricultural sector is the pride and backbone of our nation, and we must all contribute towards its development and sustainability.

Continuous oil well tests will contribute to economic growth

By Kyaw Kyaw Hlaing (SMART)

DURING the monthly press conference held by the Ministry of Energy and Electricity's (MOEE) on 17 January 2019, U Nyan Tun, deputy managing director for Myanmar Oil and Gas Enterprise (MOGE), said that a well test will be done in Myaing Township, Magway Region to examine the hydrocarbon properties therein.

It will be the first time a well test is carried out in the area. "Drilling will start on January 26," U Nyan Tun said.

The Myaing deep hole well No.1 is located at the south of the Myaing Anticline in the Chindwin sedimentary basin. Exploration will be conducted to determine the presence of oil or gas at the middle of the anticline.

"According to expert analysis, there is a high possibility that either oil or gas can be found. If oil or gas is found, we will proceed to production," MOEE deputy permanent secretary U Htay Aung explained.

It is estimated that the oil well may produce about 3 million cubic feet of natural gas per day. "According to the geology contours we have received, it is estimated that the well could contain around 82 billion cubic feet of recoverable reserves," the MOEE said in a statement.

If the well test is successful, plans to drill another 11 oil wells will be carried out. Locals will be compensated for any farmlands affected as a result of the drilling, said U Nyan Tun.

No decision has been made on where and how the natural gas, if discovered and produced, will be utilized. "We will decide depending on the amount and type of gas. It is too early to say where this gas will be used," U Nyan Tun said.

In generating electricity for consumption in the country, we need more natural gas.

In 2017-2018, the country generated a total of (19,193) Gigawatt hours and that (42) per cent came from the utilization of gas turbines. A total of only (39) per cent of households in the country is getting electricity from the national grid. The Union of Myanmar holds (11) millions households across the country, and that (6 point 7) millions households are not looped in the national grid of the country.

The Ministry of Energy and Electricity has laid down the project in providing electricity to the country by 2030, which eventually needs (16,600) Megawatt (MW) to operate with heavy machineries and modern devices to generate the required electricity.

In the year 2030, the gas turbines with the capacity of (8,919) Megawatt would be functioning in the country. As of today, Myanmar is utilizing gas turbines in generating electricity with the daily consumption of (440) million cubic feet gas is available from onshore resources, and that (400) million cubic feet gas has been acquired from the offshore sources. The cost of onshore gas is much lesser than the cost of offshore gas.

Looking back into the pages of Myanmar oil and gas factsheets, the Revolutionary Council government had nationalized the BOC, IBP and BBPC owned by the foreign firms in 1962, and that it had purchased (49) per cent owned by the BOC and the IBP at the value of (62.5) million Kyats.

On 1 January 1963, the government had established the state owned oil industry. Beginning for that time, the exploration of oil and gas has been initiated by national experts and professionals, and eventually the following explorations have been successfully created and utilized.

Oil and natural gas land resources stand as per following

In the past, natural gas extracted from Myanaung and Shwepyithar were being utilized in the functioning of the turbines in the electricity generation in Myanaung.

Now, the turbines in Myanaung are generating electricity with the use of gas extracted from Yadana Offshore gas fields. Similarly, in the past, the natural gas extracted from onshore Aphyauk areas were used at Ahlon and Hlawga natural gas fired power plants. Now, gas is being acquired from Yadanamyay Offshore oil and gas fields in the use of generators. While using the gas being purchased from the onshore areas, the cost was moderate and low.

When we look at the list (one) for (16) year's time, total of (8) natural oil and gas fields have been explored and identified from 1964 to 1980. The Mann oil field that was explored in 1970 has been producing (25,000) oil barrels a day in 1979-80, and stands out as the most profuse oil field of the country.

Until now, the Mann Oil Field is still producing (1,188) oil barrels per day. In (38) years, only (8) natural oil and gas fields had been found such as from 1980 to 2018. From 1964 to 1980 in (16) years time, total of (8) natural gas and oil fields had been explored. However, during (38) years period from 1980 to 2018, it was only (8) natural oil and gas fields being explored, and that was the case study to be reviewed over the list (Two).

The list under referral showed the oil drilling machineries being purchased by Myanmar Old and Gas Enterprise. In 2007, that is the year after 1983, only four oil drilling machines were being purchased. The capacity and strength of the drilling machines being acquired in 2007 were not functioning in top gear compared to the previous machines being bought in 1971 and 1983.

After 2007, there was no newly found oil and gas field in the country. Only when we could dig more new areas, then there are possibilities in finding oil and gas fields. According to the data and information across the world, it has the chance to find three oil fields out of ten exploration fields, indicating the fact that we need to dig more and much more.

During 1983 to 2003, the Myanna Oil and Gas Enterprise had deployed over (30) drilling machines and explored nearly (50) fields each year; however, currently with (16) drilling machines, the country is concentrating only on (20) fields each year.

When we could explore the onshore oil and gas exploration, it would be more advantages and beneficial to the national economy.

Dig fast, dig hard for more resources for the country. Each year, we have been incurring loss for about (400) billion Kyats in electricity generation and distribution. Each year for the exploration of oil stands out at (60) billion Kyats, and therefore, we could find out what are the things to be changed and altered as fast as possible.

If we could produce more oil and gas from the onshore areas, then the gas being sought from the offshore area and the LNG purchased from abroad could be reduced. When we could reduce the purchase of such oil and gas into the country, we could save foreign currency of the nation.

With the intent to produce the oil and gas from the onshore areas, the following suggestions are being submitted for consideration in pragmatic approach in the fastest possible time.

1. Myanna Oil and Gas Enterprise should be reorganized as a corporate. [Note: It is not to be handed over to the private ownership. It is only the administrative paradigm to transform similar to the PETRONAS and the PTT.]
2. The potential areas such as that of the Pyalo, the Htantabin, and the Ayeyawaddy Delta area are to be deployed in the approach with 3D Seismic in exploring the old and gas. The news plans must be modified and seek more budget for better implementation.
3. The most potential and possible areas must be given priority for exploration and drilling. The news plans must be modified and seek more budget for better implementation.
4. More new drilling machines are to be purchased.
5. The companies that are interested to explore in the onshore oil and gas areas must be given more special concession, and sign for sharing in the exploration business.

The writer of this article holds the view that we are at an opportune time to drill continuous well tests so that we can unearth rich resources that will contribute to our economic growth.

Myanmar merchants to buy pulses at reasonable rate if prices drop during harvest

THE Myanmar Pulses, Beans, and Sesame Seeds Merchants' Association is preparing to purchase pulses at a reasonable rate, if the price drops drastically during harvest time.

Mung beans, pigeon peas, and green grams are harvested in the months of March and April. Their harvest time is approaching, and India has not yet responded to a plan for purchase of pulses under a government-to-government agreement, prompting the related authorities and merchants to prepare for necessary measures to protect growers' interests.

"Pulses depots, the Commerce Ministry, and the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock, and Irrigation are working out plans to tackle with possible problems. In addition to a quota system, the government will try to provide loans to SMEs, and merchants, in turn, are preparing to purchase pulses at a reasonable rate, if the prices of beans plunge to a great extent," said U Min Ko Oo, the secretary of the Myanmar Pulses, Beans, and Sesame Seeds Merchants' Association.

"At present, only a small volume of mung beans and pigeon peas are stockpiled in the pulses market. Additionally, the number of pigeon peas growers has decreased this year. This being so, we do not have concerns over pigeon peas, even if India does not purchase them. But, most growers have cultivated mung beans. Therefore, the Myanmar pulses association is preparing to purchase them at a fair price, in case the price plummets," said U Min Ko Oo.

"Only small stocks of pigeon peas are left in the domestic market, and only 400,000-500,000 tons of pigeon peas are likely to be produced in the coming season. India's ban on pulses importation will not affect the pigeon peas market, as we can export them to other foreign markets. The prevailing price of pigeon peas is K830,000 per ton. Mung beans are priced just above K600,000 per ton. As 80 per cent of mung bean growers have cultivated mung beans, so, over 400,000 tons is likely to be produced. During the upcoming harvest time, we need to prepare only for mung beans," he said.

Moreover, Myanmar will demand India increase the quota limit for imports, and will work towards creating a G-to-G agreement for the pulses industry, according to the association.

"The Commerce Ministry sent a draft G-to-G agreement to India through the Indian embassy in Myanmar two months ago, but there has been no response yet. If they allow their merchants to resume pulses importation under the quota limit, we need to request them to set a separate quota limit. Concerning this matter, the Union Minister for Commerce will visit India and meet with the related department officials. He will try to strengthen economic ties between the two countries," said U Min Ko Oo. India's move to restrict importation of pulses in August 2017 has severely affected growers in Myanmar. Following the Indian provincial court's notice halting the importation of pulses and beans on 30 January, the prices of mung beans and pigeon peas dropped.

There is demand from Nepal and Pakistan in the market, and mung beans are fetching K620,000 per ton for old stock and K632,000 per ton for fresh stock, while pigeon peas are priced at K710,000 for old stock, and K830,000 for new stock, according to traders in the pulses market.

In 2017, local merchants united to purchase mung beans and pigeon peas after India restricted pulses importation, said U Min Ko Oo.

Myanmar ships over 1 million tons of different varieties of pulses to other countries annually, and mung beans, green grams, and pigeon peas make up a majority of the exports. — Maung Sae Aung/ Ko Htet

Mexican drug lord convicted by NY jury

NEW YORK (United States)—Mexican mobster Joaquin "El Chapo" Guzman was convicted on Tuesday of crimes spanning a quarter-century in a trial that laid bare his lavish lifestyle and penchant for extreme violence as the head of one of the world's most powerful gangs. The 61-year-old former boss of the notorious Sinaloa cartel—famed for his brazen escapes from Mexican prisons—faces life in prison for smuggling tons of cocaine, heroin, methamphetamine and marijuana into the United States.

He was also found guilty on money laundering and weapons possession charges during a three-month trial in which witnesses described the mob boss beating, shooting and even burying alive those who got in his way. "The verdict was a tremendous victory for the rule of law, for Mexico, the United States and other countries that have been victims of the Sinaloa cartel," Mike Vigil, former head of international operations for the US Drug Enforcement Administration, told AFP—AFP ■

Turn down the volume: WHO takes aim at harmful smartphone use

GENEVA (Switzerland) — More than one billion young people risk damaging their hearing through excessive use of smartphones and other audio devices, the UN warned on Tuesday, proposing new safety standards for safe volume levels.

In a bid to safeguard hearing, the World Health Organization and International Telecommunications Union issued a non-binding international standard for the manufacture and use of audio devices.

Young people are particularly prone to risky listening habits.

Around half of those between the ages of 12 and 35, or 1.1 billion people, are at risk due to “prolonged and excessive exposure to loud sounds, including music they listen to through personal audio devices,” the UN health agency said.

WHO chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus pointed out that the world already has “the technological know-how to prevent hearing loss”.

“It should not be the case that so many young people continue to damage their hearing while listening to music,” he said in the statement. Young people, he said, “must understand that once they lose their hearing, it won’t come back.”

Currently, about five percent of the global population, or some 466 million people, including 34 million children, suffer from disabling hearing loss.

WHO said it remained unclear how many of them had damaged their hearing through dangerous use of audio devices.

It insisted though that the new standard developed with ITU would go a long way to “safeguard these young consumers as they go about doing something they enjoy.”

WHO considers a volume above 85 decibels for eight hours or 100 decibels for 15 minutes as unsafe.

The Safe listening devices and systems standard calls for a “sound allowance” software to be included in all audio devices, to track the volume level and duration of a user’s exposure to sound, and to evaluate the risk posed to their hearing.

This system could alert a user if they have dangerous listening habits. WHO is also calling for parental as well as automatic volume controls on audio devices to prevent dangerous use.

While some smartphones and other audio devices already offer some of these features, the UN would like to see a uniform standard used to help protect against disabling hearing loss.

“Think of it like driving on a highway, but without a speedometer in your car or a speed limit,” Shelly Chadha of the WHO told reporters in Geneva.

“What we’ve proposed is that your smartphones come fitted with a speedometer, with a measurement system which tells you how much sound you’re getting and tells you if you are going over the limit”. — AFP ■

NASA to make final attempt to contact Mars Opportunity Rover

WASHINGTON (United States) — US space agency NASA will make one final attempt to contact its Opportunity Rover on Mars late Tuesday, eight months after it last made contact.

The agency also said it would hold a briefing Wednesday, during which it will likely officially declare the end of the mission.

Opportunity landed on Mars in 2004 and covered 28 miles (45 kilometres) on the planet, securing its place in history after lasting well beyond its expected 90-day mission.

But a giant dust storm last year blocked sunlight from Mars, stopping Opportunity’s solar-powered batteries from being able to recharge.

Despite NASA engineers’ best efforts to get a response via radio channels, its last communication was on 10 June, 2018.

In August, NASA caused an outcry after setting a 45-day deadline before it would declare “Oppy” dead.

In October, it extended the deadline to January to reevaluate the situation. — AFP ■

Robot probes radioactive fuel at Japan’s Fukushima plant

TOKYO (Japan) — A robot will attempt to examine radioactive fuel at Japan’s Fukushima nuclear plant on Wednesday in a complex operation seen as key to clean-up efforts after the 2011 meltdown.

The operation is intended to better assess the status of the melted fuel, including whether it is stable enough to be picked up for removal, or may crumble upon contact.

“The operation began at 7:00am local time and will last around five hours. So far no problems have been reported,” a spokeswoman for the plant’s operator TEPCO told AFP.

The operation is being carried out at the plant’s reactor 2, one of three that melted down after a massive earthquake and tsunami in March 2011.

Robots have already peered inside the reactor to allow experts to assess the melted fuel visually, but Wednesday’s test will be the first attempt to work out how fragile the highly radioactive material is. Removing the melted fuel is considered the most difficult part of the massive clean-up operation in the wake of the worst nuclear disaster since Chernobyl.

It is not expected to begin until 2021, and TEPCO has other issues to resolve including how to dispose of large quantities of contaminated water stored in containers at the plant site.

The March 2011 tsunami that caused the meltdown was triggered by a massive undersea quake and killed around 18,000 people. — AFP ■

UN eyes rule for automatic emergency braking systems in new cars

GENEVA (Switzerland) — Dozens of countries have come out in favour of fresh international regulation requiring all new cars and lighter motor vehicles to be equipped with automatic emergency braking systems, the UN said on Tuesday.

The United Nations Economic Commission for Europe said around 40 countries had so far agreed to a draft UN regulation for Advanced Emergency Braking Systems (AEBS) in cars.

“This will significantly improve road safety, especially in cities, where in the European Union alone, over 9,500 fatalities were recorded in 2016, accounting for 38 per cent of all road deaths,” UNECE said in a statement.

Using sensors, such systems monitor the proximity of a vehicle or pedestrian in front of the AEBS-equipped car.

In situations where the sensors indicate a collision is imminent, and the driver does not react to the system’s warning alert, emergency braking is automatically applied to avoid a crash.

Such systems have been in use for a number of years in trucks and buses.

The new UN regulation would impose strict and internationally harmonised requirements for the use of AEBS at low speeds (up to 60 kilometres per hour), even in unpredictable traffic situations in urban areas.

The regulation would apply to all new cars, but also to vans and minibuses carrying fewer than nine passengers.

“With this regulation in force, most of existing systems will have to be updated to meet stricter requirements,” UNECE said.

“AEBS are already available for some cars in some countries, but there were no standard technical requirements guaranteeing the effective performance of such systems so far,” it added.

The draft regulation has been approved by a working group under UNECE’s World Forum for Harmonisation of Vehicle Regulations, and will be submitted to the World Forum for formal adoption next June, it said.

Once adopted, the regulation should enter into force in early 2020. — AFP ■

Myanmar U-22 beat Ayeyawady United 1-0 in friendly match

IN a friendly match yesterday, the Myanmar U-22 national football team narrowly beat MNL stars Ayeyawady United F.C. by a single goal.

Both teams played well, and did their best, showcasing their dribbling skills from the start.

The score at the end of the first half was 0-0, with both teams needing better finishing.

Both teams made substitutions and changed tactics in the second half, resulting in more action on the field and an increase in scoring chances.

Overall, the Myanmar youth team dominated the second half, with strong counterattacks and a good defense.

With Myanmar switching to power play and making accurate passes, Ayeyawady was forced to change to a defensive style of play in the later minutes.

The Myanmar youth team got on the scoreboard with a beautiful goal by star player Win Naing Tun, who made the only goal in the match, which was also the winning goal, with a penalty shot at 72 minutes.

The remaining minutes of the second half expired after cautious play by both teams, and the match ended with a 1-0 win for the Myanmar team.—Lynn Thit (Tgi) ■

Nishikori rallies into 2nd round at Rotterdam

ROTTERDAM (Netherlands)—Japan's Kei Nishikori rallied from a one-set deficit to beat Pierre-Hugues Herbert on Tuesday and advance to the second round of the ABN AMRO World Tennis Tournament.

Nishikori defeated the Frenchman 3-6, 6-1, 6-4 in his debut at Rotterdam Ahoy. The world No 7 is coming off a thigh injury that saw him withdraw from his Australian Open quarterfinal match three weeks ago against Serbian Novak Djokovic, who went on to claim a record seventh title in Melbourne.

"I'm not used to this surface, so I still need to make adjustments," Nishikori said of the indoor court. "I'm not able to play as I usually can, but I think I'll gradually get back into it."

"I'm not 100 percent yet, but it's the first match so it can't be helped." Herbert took a one-set lead after saving five break points in a 13-minute game at 3-3 and capitalizing on a string of errors by his opponent as Nishikori struggled on the unfamiliar court.

But Nishikori bounced back in the second set, winning five straight games from 1-1 and prevailing in a decider to close out the 2 hour, 11 minute match.

"It wasn't easy, as he was playing good tennis and serving well," Nishikori said, according to the ATP. "I had a little bit of trouble with my return game and couldn't convert the important points. I just tried to play steady, as I wasn't playing bad, and I tried to stay aggressive." The 29-year-old will meet Ernests Gulbis for a place in the quarterfinals. Nishikori has won both previous matchups with the Latvian, most recently at last year's Wimbledon.

"(Gulbis) is not easy, especially indoors where he uses his great serve and aggressive play really well," Nishikori said. "I just need to stay focused and get used to the conditions a little bit more."—Kyodo News ■

Pele 'glad' Gordon Banks made legendary save

PARIS (France)—Pele said on Tuesday he was "glad" England goalkeeper Gordon Banks saved his header at the 1970 World Cup because it was the start of a lasting friendship between the two men.

Paying tribute to Banks who died on Monday at the age of 81, the Brazilian legend said that even now he cannot believe Banks managed to scoop away the header in Guadalajara's Estadio Jalisco. "The save was one of the best I have ever seen—in real life and in all the thousands of games I have watched since," Pele, 78, said in a Facebook post. "He came from nowhere and he did something I didn't feel was possible. He pushed my header, somehow, up and over." "And I couldn't believe what I saw. Even now when I watch it,

I can't believe it. I can't believe how he moved so far, so fast." Although Banks had played a key role when England win the World Cup in 1966, the save from Pele four years later came to define his career and the Brazilian said it created an unbreakable bond between the two men.

"So I am glad he saved my header—because that act was the start of a friendship between us that I will always treasure. Whenever we met, it was always like we had never been apart. "I have great sadness in my heart today and I send condolences to the family he was so proud of. "Rest in peace, my friend. Yes, you were a goalkeeper with magic. But you were also so much more. You were a fine human being."—AFP ■
