Prices of mung beans, pigeon peas rebound after India announces quota

THE prices of mung beans and pigeon peas (red gram) have bounced back in the Yangon pulses market after India announced its quota for pulses importation on 29 March.

On 29 March, the market price of beans stood at K688,000 per ton for mung bean RC, K838,000 per ton for mung bean SQ (special quality), and K761,000 per ton for pigeon peas (red gram). On 1 April, the prices increased to K740,000 for mung bean RC, K885,000 for mung bean SQ, and K843,000 for red gram, according to the Yangon beans and pulses depot.

On 2 April, the FOB price of mung beans stood at US$500-520 for fair quality and $610-630 for SQ.

India, the main buyer of Myanmar beans and pulses, had halted importation for two months. On 29 March, India announced an import quota of 150,000 tons each for mung bean and green grams, and 200,000 tons for pigeon peas for its financial year starting 1 April, according to the pulses market.

Following India's announcement of the import quota, the prices of mung beans and pigeon peas soared dramatically.

Myanmar produces about 400,000 tons of mung beans and 300,000 tons of pigeon peas. India accounts for 70 per cent of Myanmar's mung bean exports and 95 per cent of pigeon peas exports.

Between 1 October, 2018 and 1 February 2019, Myanmar exported over 338,630 tons of mung beans, worth $163.8 million, and over 52,690 tons of pigeon peas, valued at $24 million.

On 17 October, 2015, mung bean RC prices had reached a record high of K2,456,000 per ton.

India's move to restrict importation of pulses in August, 2017 severely affected growers in Myanmar. The price of mung bean plummeted sharply to K382,000 per ton on May 4, 2018. Thereafter, the price rose to K988,000 per ton on 6 November, 2018 and fell to K570,000 on 1 February, 2019.

Before India put restrictions in place, the price of pigeon peas stood at K1.8 million. The price dropped to K306,000 per ton on 25 October, 2017. Thereafter, the price rebounded to K834,000 on 6 November and touched K843,000, 2018 on 1 April, 2019.

The uncertainty in the pulses market led to a significant drop in cultivation and yield of pigeon peas. Mung bean production also decreased slightly.

In late 2017, the related departments suggested that growers switch to other crops.

"Earlier, Myanmar produced 150,000-200,000 tons of pigeon peas. This year, the output is likely to total only 50,000 tons. Mung bean production is estimated to be around 400,000 tons this year," according to the pulses market.

"India's quota limit of 500,000 tons is effective for all exporter countries. Myanmar is the sole foreign market to satisfy India's market demand for mung beans, whereas India's quota limit on pigeon peas exceeds Myanmar's pigeon peas production. Therefore, Myanmar has better chances of exporting mung beans and pigeon peas to India. Traders cannot predict the price at this juncture," said a merchant.—Maung Sae Aung

In 2018, there were a total of 474 accidents on the Yangon-Mandalay highway, which left 103 dead and 884 injured

The highway police force is urging people to comply with

MRTA to buy early maturing long grain rice at floor price

By Nyein Nyein

THE Myanmar Rice Traders Association (MRTA) said it will purchase long-grain rice that matures in 90 days, for which there is currently no demand in the market, at the basic price of K19,500 per bag.

“Starting 8 April, the MRTA will purchase 90-day rice, which has 14-per cent moisture content, at the basic price, using MRTA’s fund and contributions from members as of June,” said U Aung Than Oo, the chair of the MRTA.

“The 90-day rice will be bought at the basic rate of K19,500 per bag. Most of the merchants are waiting for prices to drop. Therefore, we would like to send across the message that the price will not decrease anymore. We will purchase some rice when there is no demand in the market, instead of buying all the stocks to govern the market. The rice will be traded depending on the market price and its quality. As the floor price has been set at K19,500, the price will not fall below the set rate. Hopefully, the demand will also go up. Warehouse owners may choose to continue storing rice, but the price will not keep falling,”

said U Aung Than Oo.

At present, 90-day rice is being cultivated in the Ayeyawady and Bago regions. Rice from the Ayeyawady Region has started entering the Wadan rice depot, according to officials at the depot.

Long-grain rice (Indica rice) is exported to China and the European Union via the maritime route. Rice trade with China through the Sino-Myanmar border has halted as China has been cracking down on illegal entry of goods. Additionally, in a protectionist move, the EU has imposed a three-year tariff on Indica rice from Myanmar and Cambodia, starting 18 January. The EU is levying a tariff of 175 euros per ton in the first year, 150 euros in the second year, and 125 euros in the third year on rice imports from Myanmar and Cambodia.

“The MRTA scaled down rice prices in order to reduce the EU tax rate. As a result of this, traders will earn a lower profit, which will lead to low demand in the market. That rice variety (Indica) was highly demanded by China in the previous year. This year, it cannot be exported to the Chinese market, resulting in pretty bad sales,”

said U Aung Than Oo.

“The MRTA has forwarded a request to the government to provide loans to rice businesses, and purchase rice at the basic rate when the price falls,” he said.

“The MRTA has asked the government to offer long-term and short-term loans to rice traders, when the price plunges. However, it will take some time for the government to take action. At present, newly harvested rice is flooding the domestic market. The price will remain lower than the actual market price, and that should be. Some foreign trade partners manipulate the price and offer a rate lower than the actual export price against other exporter countries, causing chaos in the rice market. The MRTA has made a move to tackle with the current situation. The federation is also exploring more foreign markets,” he added. “The floor rate of 90-day rice does not cause loss to growers as they only receive a lower profit compared with the previous year. The MRTA has set the floor price for 90-day rice to allow growers to continue cultivating that variety next year,” said U Zaw Khaing, the joint-secretary of the Wadan rice depot.

“We provided technical assistance for 90-day paddy cultivation. The MRTA will also purchase rice with 90-day yield to maintain the market for the following year. If the market deteriorates, growers will surely reconsider which variety to plant in the coming years,” said U Zaw Khaing.

Last year, 90-day rice fetched about K26,000 per bag. With demand low in both the domestic and foreign markets, the price has plummeted to K19,000 per bag, according to the rice market.

The 90-day rice is included in the Aemahta rice group, which is shipped to foreign markets.

Myanmar trade deficit narrows to $728 mln in March

MYANMAR’S external trade over five past months is recorded roughly triple shortfall compared with the corresponding period of last fiscal year, according to data of the Ministry of Commerce.

Surge in export and lower import between 1 October, 2018 and 22 March, 2019 cut trade deficit to US$728 million, which narrows from $2 billion of same time of last fiscal year 2017-2018.

External trade between 1 October 2018 and 22 March 2019 amounted to $16.15 billion, which increases from $16.2 billion of last FY. This includes an estimated $7.7 billion in exports and $8.4 billion in imports, registering higher export value of $628 million and lower import value of $681 million compared to corresponding period of period of last FY.

Myanmar exports agricultural products, animal products, minerals, forest products, finished industrial goods whereas it imports capital goods, raw industrial materials and consumer goods.

The country’s export sector is more depending on the agriculture and manufacturing sectors. Export earnings from the CMP (cutting, making and packaging) garment businesses are rising while lessening its reliance on natural resources such as natural gas, jade.

The government is trying to reduce trade deficit by screening luxury import items and boosting productivity and export of the country, according to data from the Ministry of Commerce.

There were trade deficits of $91.9 million in the 2012-2013 FY, $2.5 billion in the 2013-2014 FY, $4.9 billion in the 2014-2015 FY and $5.4 billion in the 2015-2016 FY, $5.5 billion in the 2016-2017 FY and $1.3 billion in past six-month mini-budget period, according to the statistics released by the Central Statistical Organization (CSO). — Mon Mon (Translated by Ei Myat Mon)

Mandalay to allow use of fallow, virgin land for businesses

In the livestock sector, the government will grant 2,000 acres for cattle breeding, 1,000 acres for aquaculture, 500 acres for goat breeding, and 300 acres for chicken, pig, duck and quail breeding,” said Dr. Zaw Myint Maung.

“There are people who cultivate crops on forest land intentionally or unintentionally.

While some are aware that the land is forest land, others farm them unwittingly.

This being so, the establishment of community forests on forest land can be a win-win policy. It will be beneficial to local farmers as well as to the nation.

Private entrepreneurs can set up forest plantations. They can also establish eco-tourism sites on forest lands. We also want them to set up wood-based industries,” he added.

Maritime trade sees sharp fall in import, rise in export

MYANMAR’S maritime trade for the period between 1 October, 2018 and 22 March, 2019 in the current fiscal year amounted to US$11.5 billion, a decrease of $200 million compared with the corresponding period of the previous FY, according to data provided by the Ministry of Commerce.

In the October-March period, maritime exports were valued at $4.4 billion, while imports were registered at $7 billion. Sea trade saw a sharp fall of $610 million in import and a rise of $407 million in export.

The country’s total external trade topped $16.15 billion, a decline of $52 million from the previous FY.

Myanmar exports agricultural products, fishery products, minerals, livestock, forest products, finished industrial goods, and other products, while it imports capital goods, consumer goods, and raw industrial materials. The country currently has nine ports involved in sea trade. The Yangon Port is the main gateway for Myanmar’s maritime trade, and includes the Yangon inner terminals and the outer Thilawa Port. — Mon Mon (Translated by Ei Myat Mon)

Moving towards stability and peace with integrity

OVER the last decade, millions of people around the globe began using the Internet as it slowly became a major form of mass communication. According to studies, every 5 seconds, 28 new users join Facebook, and 6 hours of videos and 300 photos are uploaded to the Web. The growth of the Internet has led to some positive results—we have quicker access to information, cooperation, and groups of likeminded people, and greater transparency and communications, among other things.

The dominant age group was between 18 and 24, and they had things to say and upload round the clock. As with many things in the world, there are good and bad sides to social media. While many share positive words and helpful information online, there are those who spread rumors and hate speech as well.

Addressing the people of Kyaunggon Township on 2 April, the State Counsellor said we are all allowed freedom of expression, but there are restrictions, since we cannot blindly say what comes to our head to, or about, another person. She said the restrictions don't impinge on the people's freedom, but are intended to safeguard social stability and peace. It was important that everyone understood this fully, she added.

The State Counsellor also spoke about ethics to keep in mind while using social media. "Social media is a powerful tool and we must carefully navigate through the differing opinions, hate, anger, and criticism, which have no beneficial results for the people," she said.

"Just as social media is claiming a place in modern culture and becoming an important part of our lives, nations are becoming wary as to whether it also has a propensity to threaten national security. It seems social media is moving too fast for national security to catch up. Social media platforms can also be inhabited by liars, commens, criminals, extremists, cynics, and terrorists, and we must be prepared to protect innocent people from being influenced by their radical thoughts," she added.

Regardless of all this, there's no denying the influence of social media in people's daily lives. Users have their own personal space online, and while they can express their individuality and beliefs freely, they can also see other people doing the same thing. We must work together to ensure that the freedom and integrity of people is not harmed or compromised, and thereby, safeguard social stability and peace.

Efficient energy use from one person to all people: the promoting development of the nation

Off-shore has great potential for national income and if the extractable resources in the oil and gas industry are to be found, there are stable revenues coming to the Republic of the Union of Myanmar in short period of time for over 20 years.

Dr. Tun Naing Deputy Minister for Electricity and Energy (MOEE)

ONE can measure a country's success by observing individual use of electricity. Only the citizens of wealthy countries are able to enjoy electricity while poorer countries are not able to produce as much for its inhabitants. Myanmar, likewise, is striving towards bringing electricity to all citizens of Myanmar.

It is of grave importance for developing country such as Myanmar to provide its citizens electricity for their use.

The Deputy Minister for Electricity and Energy (MOEE) Dr. Tun Naing highlights the achievement of the 3rd year of the current administration where there is a 10.7 percent increase in usage to 370 KW hours per one person. When examining the country as a whole, it is evident that the only the main big cities are able to get access to electricity while a lot of the rural areas continue to have difficulties for such access. This is due to the need for the infrastructure for powerlines in hard to reach rural countryside.

Electricity for all in 2030

Currently, only 44 percent of the whole of Myanmar have access to a power grid. MOEE aims to increase this number to 55 percent in 2020-2021, up to 75 percent for 2025-2026 and 100 percent by the year 2030-2031. "We were able to increase the output by 12 percent from the previous year. During the current administration's first year in office, we were able to increase output by 13 percent compared to the previous," claimed the Deputy Minister.

Usage up to 3700 MW during summers

It is currently the time of the year where we are at the peak of electricity usage in the country. The Ministry expects the number to increase from the 3700 MW which is the current peak as summer approaches. The maximum for electricity usage in 2015 was 2350 MW, 2670 for 2016 and 2900 for 2017. The number got boosted by 400 MW in 2018, an increase of 12 percent.

"An increase of electricity up to 400 MW within one year indicates the need for bigger and better infrastructure along with the funding for long-term growth and sustainability. The hydropower plants, which require less time for set up, have proven to be able to produce more than its designs predicted. Hence, the increase in production," explains the Deputy Minister on how the ministry copers with the ever increasing level of electricity usage.

Increasing Output

The electricity production capacity of the Baluchaung No1 hydropower plant is 200 Million KW hours per year. However, after we have managed to expand the production capacity it can produce up to 213 Million KW hours per year. Likewise, Lawpita plant has also produced 1262 MW hours even though it was designed for 1190, rivaling that of a mid-sized production plant. Baluchaing 3 and Kinda powerplant, Mone hydroplant, Paunglanug, Sedawgyi, Shwe Kyin, Tha Pein Seit have also produced similar results, increasing production. MOEE also reported that in addition to increasing output from existing factories during the administration's 3rd year in office, there were several power plants constructed as well including the two Myingyan Township natural gas power stations, Kyakse natural gas power station, a powerplant in Thatone and two Nam Htun hydro powerplants.

Working towards providing electricity for small towns and villages

Most of the urban areas have access to electricity. However, there are areas that still need access which the government is working towards. Within a year, the administration was able to provide 7 towns including Ta Kaung and 2331 villages with electricity. "We weren't able to get the grid to extend to Manaung in Rakhine. However, we're trying to build a solar factory there. We have up to 54% coverage rate with 33894 out of 63277 villages covered," added the Deputy Minister.

Increasing Transmission Capabilities

In order to distribute electricity to all of Myanmar, more power lines have to be built. The administration has extended several power lines including a 230 KV line and

Usage exceed Capacity

The public is fully aware of the shortcomings of the grid not being able to distribute to fulfill the demand of the citizens. "People are using more electricity in their homes, factories are exceeding their quotas and there is also a lack of funding for new distribution networks and transformers. This creates difficulties for the residents and we are working towards preventing that this year. Hence, the addition of 1352 MVA transformers," explained the Deputy Minister regarding the current distribution situation.

System Breakdown

This is a term widely popular amongst the citizens as a majority of them has experienced temporary blackouts due to systems not being upgraded on time. There were 17 reported breakdowns during 2016-17 which were more frequent in areas that experienced natural disasters such as storms, strong winds and heavy rains, sometimes leading to power lines falling.

"There have only been two system breakdowns during the previous year due to Tele-protection and Auto-Reclosing Function. We were able to fix whenever a power line snaps immediately which is a very good preventative measure," stated the Deputy Minister on the improvements.

Increase in Hydropower

Myanmar relies heavily on hydropower sources. The Ministry is currently working towards to diversify with other natural resources Myanmar is abundant in.

66 kV Mawlamyine-Thanyuayay Substation

For instance, solar is utilized in Minbu Township, Magway by a public company which is reported to be producing 20MW coming April with plans to add another 20 MW after its first stages.

Changing Meters

Additionally, the administration has started to work on changing the household meters from analogue to digital starting last year. MOEE have reportedly changed up to 400,000 meter boxes within the past year including 13616 3/30 A boxes, 180848 10/30 A boxes for smaller towns and 99085 10/60 A for cities. These new changes have reduced usage for the rural communities as it charges based on the type of household equipment you use. The authorities also dated technology, the labor and budget. People want reliability – they do not constant blackouts, altering voltages and bad service. And we are working towards giving the best we can such giving notices for blackouts. However, there is still a gap between the amount of people we can employ and the amount we need," comments the Deputy Minister on the challenges the Ministry faces. The statement is confirmed by other employees that a shortage and other obstacles of hiring skilled labor is often overlooked by the public.

Need for Customer Service Department

The Deputy Minister stated, "People want a customer service hotline they can call when the lights go out. However, we need manpower-the person, the van-to be able to be dispatched to problem areas. This problem remains unsolved."

The electric sector is also facing losses – 422 billion Kyats in the financial year 2016-17 alone. This is the business in the production sector that reported losses, according to the documents published by the MOEE. The ministry expected to lose over 360 billion Kyats this financial year but the figure came out to be 422 billion Kyats. MOEE is trying to reduce production costs for electricity as the business is expected to lose over 600 billion kyats in the 2017-18 financial year.

Cover losses, expand production

The government is trying to expand hydropower plants as they have proven to be more profitable as it has a lower cost of production. "We can only manage our losses by producing more for less cost. Because we had the needs of the people at heart to produce as much as we can, we were able to cover 162 billion kyats in losses (106 million in USD)," explained the Deputy Minister.

Water festival: Bikes with power exhausts to be seized

THE TRAFFIC RULES ENFORCEMENT Supervisory Committee has issued a six-point rule to ensure the safety of vehicles during the water festival. Under the rule, action will be taken against motorcyclists whose bikes have power exhausts and make a 'roaring' sound.

Those who fail to abide by this rule will invite action under the 2015 Motor Vehicles Law, said Police Captain Zaw Win Naing from Traffic Police.

"The Traffic Police have begun seizing motorcycles with power exhausts from 19 March. The police have seized 44 motorbikes as on 1 April. The committee is taking legal action against those found riding motorcycles with power exhausts that make a roaring noise. The objective of taking legal action is to reduce accidents as well as to protect people against disturbances during the water festival," said the Police Captain.

Last year, during the water festival, the Traffic Police seized over 200 motorbikes for violating traffic rules promulgated under the 2015 Motor Vehicles Law. This year, only a few motorbikes have been seized so far, the officer said.

"Motor vehicles and motorbikes seized before and during the water festival will be returned to the owners after the water festival. Once the Traffic Police office resumes work after the water festival, the owners of seized motorbikes and vehicles can come to the office to claim their vehicles," said Police Captain Zaw Win Naing.

"We are conducting awareness courses every Saturday," he added.

The number of vehicles and motorbikes violating regulations has declined thanks to the awareness training courses, he said.—Myo Win Tun (Monywa)

Pyar Swe elephant camp to remain open during water festival

THE PYAR SWE elephant camp will remain open for local travelers and tourists during the water festival.

Opened in 2017, the camp is located in the Maw Ku forest conservation area, on the Mawlaik-Pyaung Bout road, four miles from Mawlaik Town of Sagaing Region.

"Our department will keep the elephant camp open during the water festival, and we will collect the entrance fees as usual. During the water festival last year, the camp was temporarily closed because of the extremely hot weather," said U Aung Kyaw Zan, the Assistant Manager of the camp.

The camp is open from 8 a.m. to 12 noon from Monday to Friday, and from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends. The entrance fee is K1,000 for locals and K20,000 for foreigners.

For elephant rides, an additional service charge of K3,000 is levied on locals and K20,000 on tourists.

The Pyar Swe elephant camp currently has a total of 12 elephants — nine adults and three baby elephants.

Local and foreign travelers like to visit the camp to watch elephants bathe and work. They also like to ride the elephants, feed them, and take photographs with them.

Currently, the camp is building temporary shelters

South Korean ship detained over sanctions on North: Seoul

SEOUL (South Korea) — A South Korean ship has been detained for more than six months on suspicion of violating UN sanctions against the nuclear-armed North, Seoul's foreign ministry said Wednesday.

Pyongyang is sanctioned over its weapons programme under multiple UN Security Council resolutions, which include curbs on shipments of oil and fuel to the isolated regime.

But the North has been seeking to get around the measures, with a recent UN report saying that Pyongyang was securing deliveries of fuel through ship-to-ship transfers in international waters. Seoul's foreign ministry said a South Korean ship and three others had been detained in the country, suspected of undermining the economic measures against the North.

"This is the first time a South Korean vessel has been detained for allegedly violating UN sanctions," a ministry official told AFP.

The Korea Coast Guard identified the vessel to AFP as the 5,160-tonne "P Pioneer" and said it had twice transferred diesel "illicitly" in the East China Sea during September 2017.

Both the ship — first detained last September and now held in the southern port of Busan — and its operator have been referred to prosecutors, and Yonhap news agency said 4,320 tonnes of diesel fuel were involved. The foreign ministry official did not explain the delay in the authorities making public the South Korean ship's detention.

The holding of the other three vessels — registered in Hong Kong, Panama and Togo — had previously been announced.

South Korean President Moon Jae-in has sought to engage the North to bring it to the negotiating table, dangling economic carrots before it in the form of inter-Korean projects — many of which would violate the current sanctions rules if implemented.

Questions were also raised over whether it had undermined the measures by providing supplies to set up an inter-Korean liaison office north of the border.

Last year three South Korean firms were caught importing millions of dollars worth of coal and iron from the North in 2017.

Immediate sanctions relief was a key demand of the cash-strapped North when leader Kim Jong Un met with US President Donald Trump in Hanoi in February for a second summit that ultimately broke down.

The US has since imposed sanctions on two Chinese shipping companies for doing business with North Korea, urging the maritime industry to do more to end Pyongyang's "illicit shipping practices". A UN report issued last month highlighted the North's sanctions-evading tactics at sea and recommended member countries keep a closer watch over vessels in their own waters.—AFP ■

Rising Thai political star faces fresh legal woes after election

BANGKOK (Thailand) — The telegenic leader of a Thai political party who rode to prominence during last month's election on a wave of millennial support stands accused of inciting unrest, he said Wednesday, calling his latest legal woes "politically motivated" by the junta.

Billionaire Thanathorn Juangroongruangkit heads up the youth-oriented Future Forward Party, which came out of nowhere to amass more than six million votes in the March 24 vote, the first since a 2014 coup.

Future Forward has joined an anti-junta coalition with six other parties claiming the right to form a government in the aftermath of the disputed vote whose full results will not be ratified until 9 May. But the tycoon said on Facebook he has now been summoned to appear at a Bangkok police station on Saturday to hear incitement charges against him that carry a maximum sentence of seven years. He wrote on the Facebook page, where he posted the summons, the move was "an old political game" that he expected to intensify after the party's strong election showing.

Speaking to reporters later Wednesday, Thanathorn hit back at the junta government, which filed the complaint. "It is not the Future Forward Party which causes divisiveness of the people but the military who wants to hold on to power," he said. "I am calling for a restoration of democracy in Thailand... these cases are politically motivated."

Police investigator Charoensit Jongitthi said there were two charges in total that related to Thanathorn's actions in 2015, though he would not elaborate.

"That is what I can say for now," he told AFP.—AFP ■

Children in South Asia hardest hit by air pollution, says study

HONG KONG (China) — Air pollution will shorten the life expectancy of children born today by an average of 20 months and will have the greatest impact in south Asia, according to a study published Wednesday.

The State of Global Air report, published by the US-based Health Effects Institute and the University of British Columbia, says air pollution is the fifth leading cause of early death worldwide — responsible for more deaths than malaria, road accidents, malnutrition or alcohol.

However it warns "the loss of life expectancy is not borne equally", with children in South Asia set to have their lives cut short by 30 months because of a combination of outdoor air pollution and dirty indoor air.

In East Asia the study says air pollution will shorten children's lives by an estimated 23 months — compared with around 20 weeks for children in developed parts of Asia Pacific and North America.

The report, which uses data up to the end of 2017, estimates that if air pollution levels were brought within World Health Organisation (WHO) guidelines Bangladesh life expectancy would see the highest expected gain, at nearly 1.3 years.

India, Nigeria, and Pakistan would all see average life expectancy increase by around one year. Despite state reforms to reduce pollution levels, China remains the country with the highest mortality rate due to air pollution, responsible for around 852,000 pollution-related deaths in 2017. The top five countries with the highest mortality rate due to air pollution were all in Asia: China, India, Pakistan, Indonesia and Bangladesh.

In total, the report says 147 million years of healthy life were lost in 2017 globally due to pollution. Exposure to household air pollution — mostly from people burning coal, wood or charcoal to cook or heat their homes — is most common in South Asia, East Asia and Sub-Saharan Africa.

Nearly half of the world's population is exposed to household air pollution — including an estimated 846 million people in India and 452 million in China.

A study last October from the World Health Organization found that exposure to toxic air both indoors and out kills some 600,000 children under the age of 15 each year.

It found that children are often more vulnerable to the impact of air pollution since they breathe more rapidly than adults, and thus absorb more pollutants at a time when their brains and bodies are still developing.—AFP ■

Efficient energy use from one person to all people:

With the 6 month budget estimates approaching with 309 billion kyats in losses, the ministry to trying to save almost 76 billion kyats in losses before the end. "We are working towards cutting our losses as much as possible," the Deputy Minister declared. MOEE has reported that there was an increase from 110 kyats per unit to 115 kyats per unit production cost with the selling price was increased from 35 kyats to 50 Kyats. However, MOEE is still struggling to close the gap between production costs and selling price in order to cover for the big losses. "This may require a more fair approach to the pricing system," the Deputy Minister suggested, "The loss is for 44 percent of the population while the operation costs are for 100 percent of the entire population. We have to think about the other 56 percent which is why MOEE is working diligently to bringing electricity to all. We also encourage people to think about the rest of the population who don't have access yet and try to consider saving as much energy as possible so they don't go to waste."

Solutions for the Energy Problem

The energy, much like the electricity sector, is crucial to the development of Myanmar. Only when the energy sector advancements as a whole, the electricity sector will be able to participate in the upgrade and fulfill the demand of energy of the population. The country generates income from selling energy via the extractive industries, specifically the oil and gas exploration and drilling. Before drilling for oil and gas, there must be several exploration holes. "The current administration has been able to explore to 22 wells within a year on-shore. Among them, the 22 wells have produced up to 2.31 million barrels of oil and 1901.9 million cubic meters of natural gas," stated the Deputy Minister.

In addition to on-shore drilling, there have been 46 off shore drilling wells producing up to 1/02 million oil barrels and 604818 million cubic meters of gas.

According the reports by MOEE, there were a total of 3.33 million barrels of oil and 623838 million cubic meters of natural gas produced - both on-shore and off-shore.

Off-shore has great potential for national income and if the extractable resources in the oil and gas industry are to be found, there are stable revenues coming to the Republic of the Union Myanmar in short period of time for over 20 years. In addition to the income, the country will also be able to produce more output to build infrastructure, distribute electricity and increase foreign investment. Therefore, the Ministry is working towards discovering new prospects along with examining four new off-shore prospects -A6, AD1, AD7 and M3.

The Deputy Minister shares the good news: "Two of the Shwe Yi Htun drill wells out of five -located in A6 off the southwest coast of Taninthayi are showing good prospects regarding natural gas potential and looks economically feasible." MOEE is hoping oil and natural gas may be the solution to energy problems. There are also an 18 plots on-shore and additional 15 potential plots on-shore that can be further explored. Myanma Oil and Gas Enterprise (MOGE), in accordance with its transparency initiative, have called public tenders for a joint venture so they can attract international energy players.

Kyaukse Thermal Power Plant.

"We refine the oil produced onshore in country. In the previous financial year, we produced 251,509 metric tonnes of oil and processed up till 67080 metric tonnes of petrol and 110242 metric tonnes of diesel with an increase of 38 percent in revenue for the sales," claims the Deputy Minister.

MOEE has historically produced and sold oil and gas. However, with the current processing of on-shore produce, there have been several limitations to manufacturing LPG. The administration have collaborated with the private sector in trying to meet the unfillable demands of LPG from the citizens whose choices are shifting. According to the numbers from the ministry, there has been over 8858 metric tonnes of LNG produced from on-share drill holes so that residents can use the product at an affordable price with easy access to purchasing. The Deputy Minister noted: "We have licenses for rights to operate. There are altogether 7 different kinds and we have issued up till 629 in the 3rd year of our administration alone. We are aiming for the industry to be accessible across country."

In the same way, there are plans to use the products from the extractive industry as fertilizer from the MOEE. There were a total of 127, 941 metric tonnes of fertilizer. The fertilizer factory brought in 71 billion kyats more compared to the previous year. The fertilizer industry used to show a loss of 50 billion kyats annually. This problem, however, was solved by the currently administration during its third year.

"It wasn't easy. The success I mentioned came from the hard work, change and improvements in our department. To do such feat, we need motivated employees and the proper rules and procedure that foster development along with public support.

There have been a lot of unforeseen obstacles for the Ministry exploring drill holes in the extractive industries in hopes that great results will bring forth an increase in the Gross Domestic Product of the country. A representative comment "You are working with people who own the land too -the farmers- because you are working on an on-shore site and that calls for negotiations between the countries."

The Energy industry is directly related to the country and its citizens' development. As we are approaching summer and with the industry heavily reliant on hydro power, there might be shortages in the supply. However, as technology gets better, they are more efficient air coolers being manufactured. We also like to urge the public to use electricity for their necessary proceedings and reserve as much as possible by keeping in mind of our fellow countrymen who doesn't have access.

Sugar rush fades for Indian farmers ahead of vote

PAINGA (India) — India is vying to become the world's top sugar producer, but for its millions of sugarcane growers life is far from sweet as the country prepares for its mega-election from next week.

Their woes are part of a deep crisis in rural India, with debts and drought driving thousands of farmers to suicide in recent years, putting Prime Minister Narendra Modi on the back foot as he runs for a second term.

"We have not got a single penny for four months of crop that we have sold," said Ved Pal, gazing worriedly at stacks of sugarcane piled up on his farm in Uttar Pradesh state in northern India.

"Last year's payments are still due. I have lost interest in farming but there is nothing else to do," he told AFP in the village of Painga. Sugarcane used to be an attractive option for growers, traditionally offering much higher returns than other crops. The plant is also hardy, but thirsty — further depleting groundwater reserves in many areas.

"This crop can sustain heavy rain, hailstorm and even if it catches fire we can still recover some crop. And we have (a) captive market available as well," Pal said.

One of Modi's eco-

economic successes over the past five years is taming inflation, the pernicious increase in prices that has long bedevilled India's economy.

In the case of sugar, this has been achieved by keeping a lid on the price at which sugar mills — which process sugarcane into the white stuff — can sell their produce.

But this set price — despite an increase in February — is so low that many mills are losing money. The amount they can afford to pay growers is paltry, if they can pay at all, leaving farmers high and dry. As of last month, some $3 billion was owed to sugarcane growers, according to government data.

"The government needs to set a higher minimum price for sugar — adequate to cover the cost of cane," Abhinash Verma of the Indian Sugar Mill Association told AFP. —AFP ■

Restaurant blast in southern Philippines wounds at least 13

MANILA (Philippines) — A bomb blast outside a restaurant on Wednesday wounded at least 13 people, including children, in the insurgency-plagued southern Philippines, authorities said.

The explosion shattered a window at the front of the eatery, striking family members gathered for an event in the town of Isulan on Mindanao island, Mayor Marites Pallasigue told AFP. The southern Philippines is plagued by multiple armed groups ranging from communist insurgents to Islamic State-aligned jihadists, which leave the area mired in poverty and violence.

Police cordoned off the area outside the shattered facade of the restaurant as a probe began into who was responsible. "The bomb was placed at the back of the air conditioner," said Pallasigue, putting the number of wounded at 13.

"Most the victims are related to each other," she added. Police confirmed the explosion but said the number of wounded could be as high as 18. No deaths have been reported.

On a neighbouring island to the south of Mindanao, an IS-claimed attack in January on a cathedral during Sunday mass killed 21 and wounded about a hundred others.

The bombing cast a shadow over a vote less than a week earlier to give Muslims in the south of the Catholic majority Philippines greater resources and control over their affairs. The explosion Wednesday in Isulan happened just a few meters from the site of a deadly blast which occurred last year and was believed to have been carried out by Islamist militants. —AFP ■

SMEs are integral to the economic growth of Myanmar

By Aung Khin

OVER 90 per cent of all business in Myanmar is classified as Small and Medium Sized Enterprises, and the government has recognized that SMEs are main driver for the country's future national economic development.

The topic SME stakeholders cover farmers, growers, producers, wholesalers, retailers, those who transport these produce and products and the ones who give services concerning these, for the goods to reach consumers in their respective sectors along with "Supply Chain."

Until now, the lack of international cooperation and insufficient private sector investments are the main obstacles for Myanmar SMEs.

To get better technology, productive and innovation, Myanmar SMEs need to increase access to finance, to enhance the policy and regulatory environment, and promote entrepreneurship and human capital development.

However, some Myanmar entrepreneurs who can afford sufficient investment are not very interested to put their capital in SME sectors, as they seemingly do not see immediate profit from this business. Instead, they are more willing to invest in export, import and general trading.

As a result, Myanmar has failed to produce value added products, making the lower income for the country, while increasing import volumes has caused the country suffer budget deficits every year.

The Department of Industrial Supervision and Inspection under the Ministry of Industry has categorized into 13 sectors—foodstuff, textile, lodging, household utensils, literature and artistic industry, raw material industry, mineral process and production, agricultural and farming equipment, vehicular manufacturing, electrical equipment production, general industrial workshops. Among them, foodstuff industry has got highest registration.

These local entrepreneurs complained about better financial support with almost zero interest rate, and strong markets for their potential products from SMEs. In production of consumer goods, Myanmar local products still need to give guarantees on hygiene and tastes in comparing with some neighbouring countries.

Myanmar has now opened up and is persuading international investments. As a host country, Myanmar need more investments to be able to produce safe and hygienic items more and more, with attractive packaging designs. If it fails to do so, the country will continue requiring high-priced foreign import items.

In this regard, local SME entrepreneurs need to seek advice and assistance from relevant departments and government and non-government association without delay as the neighbouring countries are getting momentum in producing global consumer products.

Myanmar has developed Small and Medium Enterprises Development Law 2015. The law with 14 chapters carries the provisions that clarify business and the role of business association to human resource development and technology. Every law needs enforcement and should be monitored for practical implementation to address issues in the real situations.

In fact, sophisticated technology tools or fully digital production process are not serious necessity for SMEs innovation. New business models, creating new lines of products, better efficiency in production processes, as well as in intensifying their promotion efforts are the driving force for promotion of SME sector.

Semi-state bodies or authorities will be needed to implement Government initiatives based on an SME development strategy. SME bodies should develop more capacities to be able to work freely without excess interference of government. A broad range of stakeholders should be invited for SME development. While the assistance of government departments is fundamental support to SMEs, a cooperative society of private business community, educational and technological institution play pivotal role.

In ASEAN, cooperation on SME development began way back in 1995, when fostering SME development became one of the priority areas in respect of policy focus and resources.

Thailand has set the target to increase contribution by SMEs to national GDP up to 50 per cent by 2021 by supporting innovation-driven SMEs that aim to offer high-valued products and services through the 5-year SME Promotion Plan of the Office of SME Promotion (OSMEP).

The current SME's contribution to the kingdom's GDP as of 2017 is 42.2 per cent. It can also be traced that the percentage of SME employment to total employment in Thailand grew steadily from 76.0% in 2007 to 83.9% in 2011.

Myanmar still needs more efforts to replace outdated technologies and to investment in research and development to keep up with that of neighbouring countries.

The government should attract investors and the participation of international suppliers in local trade fairs and exhibitions to get wider scope for SME sector. Competition and inter-company cooperation are also required to promote innovation and skill levels of SMEs.

For developing regionally competitive SMEs, it is crucial to ensure realistic access to finance not to encounter inefficiency and low productivity. Organizing seminars, workshops and exhibition at home and abroad will help interact between Myanmar SMEs and their regional counterparts, suppliers and potential counterparts.

By Thant Zin Win

Shwe Inn Thu Self Help Women Group was formed in 2009 by native Inn woman (Inn Thu in Myanmar) who have had over 10-year development experience working in Southern Shan State, under UNDP Process-led Integrated Community Development Project to improve the lives of communities with various stakeholders of the democratic societies, particularly village women who live around the Inle Lake in Nyaungshwe Township, Shan State.

In 2012, native women from 16 project-villages (Let Khoke Pin, Nyaung Phyu(N), Pha Yar Gyi, Chaung Zauk, Pan Hpei, Mya Thein Tan, Myaung Yoe Gyi, Kyan Pont Nge, Pay Pin Kone, Par Nway(N), Par Nway(Danu), Parnway(S), Hpa Yar Phyu, Nyaung Pin Thar, Ma Gyi Kone, Bant Pyin) in Nyaung Shwe Township organized and implemented community health workers by providing basic medical kits, hygiene, sanitation, water, education and nutritional food

SIT group got good market and price after contracting with METRO Wholesale in 2018 to sell their farm products, METRO also gives GAP training and buy back GAP-fruits and vegetables from SIT group.

On 8 March 2019, SIT group was invited to METRO Wholesale Myanmar Limited opening ceremony at Bago Club, Yangon, to show their farm products and got their quality consumer wholesale market. Men from Inle Lake were interested in Shwe Inn Thu women's farm projects and participated.

Project Facilitator Daw Mya Win from Ohn Hne Pin village in Nyaungshwe Township, Southern Shan State said "GAP farming is healthy for consumers and get best prices of fruits and vegetables selling via METRO Wholesale. And, it can maintain the InnLay Lake water to be free from chemical hazard. In the past, we didn't get good prices for our Inle farm products. Now, METRO is buying our fruits and vegetables from InnLay region with good prices from 10-viss to 20-viss initial sales. ## Kovac hits back at critics ahead of Dortmund showdown BERLIN (Germany) — Bayern Munich coach Niko Kovac has hit back at his critics and said that his side are the best team in Germany ahead of Saturday's Bundesliga clash with title rivals Borussia Dortmund.

Kovac is under renewed pressure after Bayern slipped two points behind Dortmund in the title race when they failed to beat Freiburg last Saturday.

Yet in an interview with Sport Bild on Wednesday, the Bayern coach said that the criticism levelled at him and his side was unjust. Kovac said that he had been unfairly portrayed as a tactical stick-in-the-mud in comparison with more glamorous coaches such as Manchester City's Pep Guardiola and Paris Saint-Germain's Thomas Tuchel. "When I was at Frankfurt, I was portrayed as a tactics nerd like Guardiola or Tuchel because I played with different systems," said Kovac. "Now people say that I am unable to change my system. But that's not correct. "When I arrived here, there was a system which had been in place since Louis van Gaal was here 10 years ago.—AFP ■
