Message of Greetings sent by President U Win Myint on the occasion of Workers' Day

At the present time, we have seen that the rights to which they are entitled, of workers all over the world, including Myanmar have improved. We need to recognize and respect those workers who have provided leadership with good intentions. The Union Government has been working with special regard to ensure that workers are able to receive and enjoy in accordance with the law, all their entitled rights.

Dear esteemed workers,

Myanmar today is a country undergoing a democratic transformation, and we have been facing challenges not only inside the country but also in the international arena. Therefore we are working to get good results we are utilizing the strength of not only our people but also the assistance of our friends at home and abroad. Our Union Government has been making concerted efforts for democracy and human rights which the people ardently desire without losing sight of these goals.

Workers who are born of the people, should carry out their responsibilities and work hard, and try to solve the difficulties they are facing in accordance with the law through negotiations and discussions.

In the MSDP – Myanmar Sustainable Development Plan (2018 – 2030), which has been formulated based on global aspirations, the Union Government has stipulated the goals of human resources and human development for the 21st century human community. In addition, the Union Government has put into its priority programs measures to utilize the productive force of all workers including migrant workers; and also to protect the rights of workers. These two items have been included into the strategy. In addition the Union Government has included programs for the prosperity and well-being of workers into the priority programs. In accordance with the above programs, the Union Government has been taking the following actions with seriousness and dedication:

- Providing full service to job seekers so that they get jobs.
- Providing the required training courses.

- Job security, happy workplace and good relations with workers.
- Increased productivity.
- Social security benefits to be enjoyed by those who have joined the scheme.
- In case of labor disputes to be settled in accordance with the prevailing laws through discussions and negotiations.

Dear esteemed workers,

We have been helping all workers who wish to work to get jobs. In addition we have put in place the following mechanisms – government programs and plans, foreign direct investment policies, policies relating to jobs, formulating policies for migrant workers, labor offices all over the country, mobile teams, One-stop service centers, domestic job agencies. These are the services we have been providing.

Furthermore, while establishing and implementing a policy to obtain foreign employment opportunities, a national level work program (2018-2022) on migrant workers has been drawn up and implemented.

Similarly, Labor Attaches were appointed and together with relevant Myanmar embassies, they are protecting and resolving issues faced by Myanmar migrant workers abroad. With the support of ILO and IMO, assistance and support centres for local migrant workers were opened.

Broadcasting of informative programs in television and news media, controlling and managing by law on conducting ethical recruitment for foreign employments and coordination works for returning migrant workers were conducted.

Skill and expertise of workers were becoming important and the State was placing great emphasis towards producing expert workers while the workers on their side also need to put in efforts towards becoming expert workers demanded by the market.

Cooperation of employers is very important. As such a bill was drawn up to amend the prevailing Employment and Skills Development Law. To effectively implement factory, shop and work site safety works a new Occupational Safety & Health Law was enacted.

Dear esteemed workers,

For workers to enjoy more social security benefit services were expanded and reforms were conducted in rising momentum to relax work procedures. Systematic works were conducted toward improving work site relationship through forming Worker Coordination Committees in all work sites.

With the benefit of the workers in mind the State has been amending laws for workers to obtain appropriate workers compensation that were in accord with the time. Foreign Workers Law was drawn up to systematically manage foreign workers. Laws that were not in line with time and era were amended or newly drawn up.

In order to effectively implement workers affairs that were in accord with the accepted international workers norms a total of 2,932 labor organizations at grass roots, township, state/region levels were formed according to Labour Organization Law.

The Union Government is drawing up a complaint mechanism together with ILO to eradicate forced labor while work programs with the aims of raising the labor rights of ethnic minorities including vulnerable persons were drawn up in order to establish a National Complaints Mechanism.

Child labor and forcing to work in the worst forms were being eradicated through managing and guiding relevant committees and resolving matters in cooperation and coordination with local and foreign employer and workers associations. Works are underway towards confirming dangerous works also.

With the aim of establishing peaceful and stable worksites through improving tripartite relationship between government, employer and workers, National Tripartite Dialogue Forums (NTDFs) are being held once every four months and matters relating to amending labor law as well as labor affairs were discussed and decided.

At a time when the State is aiming toward achieving sustainable development goals while striving for all round development, all citizens are urged overcome the challenges faced with collective strength.

At a time when the State was placing emphasis toward conducting important policy changes for the lives of the workers to progress step by step, I send this Message of Greetings with the fervent hope that employers, workers and relevant departments would work towards raising productivity with harmony and mutual understanding.

Building accountable governance, economic enterprises along with corruption-free society

THE Union Government has been taking action against corruption, in accordance with the law, without favoring anyone, with only the interests of the people and the country in mind.

Myanmar has witnessed the visible and tangible results of its success in the fight against corruption, to a certain extent, in the area of preventing and combating corruption.

We were able to establish branch offices of the Anti-Corruption Commission in the regions and states, and set up Corruption Prevention Units (CPUs) in the ministries.

The Anti-Corruption Commission responded to 5,286 letters of advice and 2,824 complaints against corruption from the people.

Thanks to investigations launched by the commission, more than K30.89 million and over US$4 million were returned to the government in 2018, preventing losses to the public exchequer.

Besides, the commission hired a third party to carry out a survey on corruption cases in the whole country, except Chin State, from October to December in 2018. Through the survey, the commission has found that it needs to step up its efforts to fight corruption in 2019.

Hence, steps are being taken to draft a bill for protecting citizens who inform the commission about corruption, and for drawing up the 4th law amending the Anti-Corruption Law so that severe action can be initiated against law breakers.

Corruption Prevention Units have been formed at ministries with three duties: to scrutinize and explore corruption cases, to solve corruption-related problems, and to prevent corruption by civil servants.

Corruption is a chronic disease which has taken deep root over many administrations, and which could push the country towards poverty.

We would like the authorities concerned to take the initiative, together with their organizations, and to make sacrifices to change the whole system. This would be in line with the process of democratization. Only then can we build accountable governance and economic enterprises in line with democratic norms.

We believe that there are many people who have been persistently against corruption, and they must take a leading role in fighting against it.

It is time for them to combat the terrible system of corruption in unison with the people.

By changing ourselves, we must endeavour to change our organizations and raise the prestige of our community, while promoting efforts at improving governance and economic conditions of the State.

MoHS: Promoting public health; Preventing disease through healthy environments; providing efficient health services

WHEN the incumbent government came into power, two previous separate ministries were combined to create the Ministry of Health and Sports. The new team met with the Union Minister of MoHS Dr. Myint Htwe to talk about the various achievements of the Ministry throughout the 3rd year of the incumbent government.

Q: What are some notable achievements throughout the previous year?

A: We are only at 55% of the permitted workforce. We hired around 10,000 more community health workers from nurses to mid-wives to hospital managers. Around 1000 more hospitals got additional beds, totaling up to 55,266 new beds along with 200 more additional community health centers/clinics built across the country.

There were also 10,377 rooms built in the 2018-19 financial year to house our staff as well as plans to build more. The healthcare budget was increased when the new civilian government took over – the budget is currently K944 billion from the Union Government, K152 billion from international entities as well as K35.5 billion set to be loaned. From the budget, around K164 billion has been set to buy medical equipment and medicines.

Within 2018 alone, the public hospitals treated 3 million in-patients and 12 million out-patients with 760,000 surgeries operated. The community health centers/clinics in villages had an additional 14 million people seeking consultation and treatment. Every month, the centers/clinics provide care and guidance for 70,000-80,000 mothers. We also opened our Fertility center in the Central Women's Hospital and successfully birthed our first test tube baby on 12 June 2018. The Ministry also spent K420 million to install a state-of-the-art tele-radiology X-ray machines in 3 townships in Mon State. If our budget allows, we will install these machines in Kachin and Kayah as well since these are really useful for people who live far from such facilities.

Q: What about improvements in laboratories and blood-donation banks?

A: The National Laboratory Department received 22 million Euros along with other Euros 5 million in funding for constructing a world-class laboratory. The laboratory performed 75,000 tests on pathology and 63,000 on microbiology. We are working with USCDC, WHO and groups from the UK to get the laboratory ISO 15189 certified. For blood donations, the Ministry was able to distribute 97,000 units of blood for free in 2018. We also opened our first Emergency Life Support Training Center in January 2019 which aims to educate doctors, nurses and all health professionals within the country to perform first-aid emergency response. The general hospitals also received additional pharmacies, restaurants and stores to accommodate the increasing patients' guests. To help prevent public health emergencies, there are health clinics and emergency response teams in the highway buses stations where there is a lot of people in a confined space in Yangon city.

Q: Can you tell us a little bit about the National Health Plan?

A: The National Health Plan (2017-2020) mandated a distribution of 33 types of medicine worth K85 million, an ambulance and Type C laboratories worth K10 million each. We expect all townships to be covered by 2021. The Ministry is also rolling out the DHIS 2 software for health management system for early detection. There is about 665 hospitals using the software currently along with the township health departments for healthcare reporting.

Q: What about capability building in the healthcare sector staff?

A: The first step for the ministry was to distribute tablet phones which contains healthcare guides, emergency response plan and other procedural documents. There are already 11,000 tablets distributed throughout the country with 14,000 more planned from Gavi Vaccine Alliance. The information is also translated into 55 ethnic languages for distribution as booklets. Other health information is also posted on our public websites and social media sites and can be accessed online.

Q: What are some measures taken towards infectious diseases?

A: In 2012, 22.5% of deaths in hospitals are caused by infections. The figure has been reduced to 14% by 2017. For HIV/AIDS, the Ministry is able to supply 166,121 patients with Antiretroviral Therapy (ART) available in 272 townships across the country. Additionally, we were able to test 1 million expectant mothers in 2018 for AIDS/HIV in an effort to prevent mother to child infections. Thanks to the public hospitals and clinics across the country, 135,435 TB patients were treated free of charge with 87% success rate. There are also 55 methadone dispensaries for drug users with plans to build 14 more. In 2016, there were 110,000 million people diagnosed with malaria. The number fell to 68,000 in 2018 with only 14 deaths in the whole country in the whole year. The main goal, of course, is to eradicate it. Dengue is also another concern with 13,000 diagnosed in 2018 with 112 deaths.

Vaccination programs for infants are also in full force with 11 types of vaccines distributed around the country. The Union spends around US$6.7 million every year to buy the necessary shots and is aiming for 100% coverage (we are currently at 80-90%). Rabies is also another priority. The ministry spent over K14 billion within the past three years for vaccine shots and treated almost 190,000 people who have been bitten. This significantly lowered death by rabies to 70 people in 2018 from 99 in 2016. Field Epidemiology Training Programs – FETP are also being held for public health workers and epidemiologists for practical training in preventing communicable diseases.

Q: What about collaborations with other international organizations?

A: We are working with several international organizations including: Global Fund, Gavi, Access to Health Fund, USAID, World Bank and ADB as well as UN organizations such as WHO, Unicef, UNDP, UNFPA, UNOPS and FAO. Others include TICA from Thailand, JICA from Japan and KOICA from Korea as well as 80 other INGOs from various different fields. We have an INGO profile book to keep track of all the Union Minister for Health and Sports Dr. Myint Htwe.

INGOs active in the country with what they are working on. The Universities under the ministry also signed 75 MoUs with universities from 75 different countries.

Q: Can you explain to us about other improvements that are planned or is in progress such as human resource capability building?

A: We are trying our best to enforce laws for the safety of consumers regarding medicine and food. There has been post marketing surveillance tests on products that are already on the market with 6746 samples for food and 298 medicine samples tested last year in 2018. The FDA lab is also ISO/IEC 17025:2005 certified. The Ministry introduced a Mobile Lab Van which tours around the states and regions. It has been a great success- the vehicle has sampled 6200 food samples and 264 medicines over the course of 6 months that it has been deployed.

In 2017, there was a Healthy Myanmar Seminar held to encourage healthy living for Myanmar citizens. There were 13 decisions that came out of the seminar including training physical education teachers and installing outdoor fitness equipment over the state and regions.

Q: Any other tips for citizens to stay healthy?

A: There is actually a couple: try to reduce your alcohol, nicotine and betel nut intake, quit if you can; exercise regularly; reduce the sugar and sodium intake; use only FDA approved medicine; meditate; vaccinate your children; read about the health announcements and warnings and go to the hospital if you have any symptoms.

Four pillars of democracy discuss balanced cooperation for accurate news dispersal

REPRESENTATIVES from the four pillars of democracy — the legislative, the administrative, the judiciary, and the media — took part in a workshop yesterday in Nay Pyi Taw to discuss ways to promote balanced cooperation between the media and the three other pillars in order to provide reliable information to the people.

Speaking at the workshop, Union Minister for Information Dr. Pe Myint expressed the hope that the forum would help strengthen press freedom and smoothen the path to democratic transition.

The meeting was aimed at the four pillars working with each other to seek solutions to challenges, said the Union Minister, adding that there are checks and balances to ensure the voices of the people and the media are heard by the other pillars.

Each pillar has rights and limitations, said the Union Minister.

Before discussions began at the workshop, Union Minister Dr. Pe Myint outlined the agenda of the workshop — the fourth pillar, the media, would demand its rights, which would be followed by a discussion, and a deliberation on ways to resolve issues.

He also told the media that if the discussions are successful, the media would gain benefits, while the remaining pillars would gain pride.

Afterwards, the Chairman of the Myanmar Press Council, Hanthawady U Ohn Kyaing, stressed the importance of building trust between the government and the media, and urged both sides to strengthen trust through understanding.

He referred to the workshop as a meeting for building trust between the government and the media.

Then, Deputy Minister U Aung Hla Tun expressed his belief that issuing of accreditation cards to media personnel by the government would help dispel distrust and doubts between media personnel and their sources.

He also stressed the importance of cooperation and understanding from the first three pillars, so that the media can provide fair and balanced information to the people.

Later, Myanmar Press Council Vice-Chairman Dr. Myo Thant Tin called for the legislative, the administrative, and the judiciary to coordinate with the media through forums and workshops to promote democracy and the perpetuation of the State and the people. Thereafter, Pyithu Hluttaw Health and Sports Development Committee Chairman Dr. San Shwe Win underscored the importance of media development, as the fourth pillar can help reduce poverty, fight corruption, uphold laws, protect human rights, and prevent losses to the public exchequer.

Next, the Deputy Director of the Union Supreme Court, U Nyo Tun, told participants at the workshop that the News Media Law was enacted in 2014 and one year later, the Union Supreme Court issued a media manual for court news.

The Union Supreme Court formed an information team at every court, and information officials of the courts released news to the media, he said.

The Union Supreme Court

releases an annual report on measures taken by the courts at different levels, he added.

Afterwards, the Secretary of the Tatmadaw True News Team, Brig-Gen Zaw Min Tun, said the Tatmadaw has maintained a good relationship with the media, and has stepped it up since the Myanmar Press Council came into existence. Then, the Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Information, U Myo Myint Maung, and the Secretary of the Myanmar Press Council, U Kyaw Swar Min, detailed efforts taken for the development of the media sector.

At the workshop, representatives from the executive pillar, the legislative pillar, the judiciary pillar, the Union Attorney-General's office, and the Myanmar Press Council discussed matters related to collecting accurate and correct information, and cooperation between the media and the other pillars by building trust and understanding. Afterwards, personnel from the Myanmar Journalists Association, Myanmar Journalists Network, Burma News International, Myanmar Press Union, and Myanmar Women Journalists Group raised questions and officials of the three pillars answered them.

The workshop came to an end with concluding remarks made by the Union Minister for Information Dr. Pe Myint. The first meeting of the four pillars of the democracy was held on 30 December, 2016, and the second on 21 February, 2018. Participants at the workshop decided to increase cooperation between the four pillars, and to hold a Union-level meeting of the four pillars at least once a year.

According to discussions at the workshop, the Myanmar Press Council and other related organizations would help the media sector ensure that they collect information ethically. The four pillars also agreed yesterday to overcome challenges by encouraging mutual respect, and the Myanmar Press Council also agreed to lead the issuing of accreditation cards to media personnel, and the other pillars agreed to assist it in this work.

The Myanmar Press Council and the Ministry of Information will work together to encourage the sustainability of print media.

Participants at the workshop also agreed to cooperate in releasing news in a timely manner, promote Media and Information Literacy, put up information and press releases on the ministries' websites and online pages in a timely manner, provide easy access to information at the Hluttaws, form a work committee to implement the results of the meeting of the four pillars, work with the authorities to expose those who disseminate fake news, control misuse of social media, promote cooperation between the Myanmar Press Council, the ministries concerned, and the Hluttaw to enact laws which can help develop the news media, and provide equal opportunities to media, including ethnic media, in terms of access to information from the regional and state government departments. — MNA ■ (Translated by AMS)

Fishing license suspended during hatching season

THE Region and State fisheries departments have stopped issuing fish and prawn catching licenses during the hatching season, according to the Fisheries Department.

"We have instructed the regional and state fisheries departments to be strict with local and overseas offshore fishing boats and entrepreneurs, in respect to observance of the rules and regulations prescribed by the Fisheries Department. Additionally, we have ordered them not to issue fish and prawn catching licenses during the hatching season. Entrepreneurs have requested that we reduce the no-fishing period.

We've fixed a three-month period of no-fishing to prevent the loss of the fisheries' resources," said

U Myint Zin Htoo, Deputy Director-General of the Fisheries Department.

"We will take legal action under the existing law against those who are engaged in exporting or catching fish and prawns during the no-fishing season. We have arranged temporary places for fishing vessels to dock during the time of bad weather. We will take legal action if we find them engaged in inshore fishing", he said.

Previously, the department has reduced the no-fishing period for fishing vessels. But this year, the department will not reduce the ban for any offshore fishing vessels. The department set up a three-month no-fishing period beginning 12 April.—GNLM (Translated by Hay Mar)

Asphalt road to Thilawa SEZ to be ready in October

THE construction of a four-laned asphalt road connecting Thanlyin Bridge to the Thilawa Special Economic Zone, which is being carried out with funds from an ODA loan from Japan, will be completed in October, said the Japanese Ambassador to Myanmar, Mr. Ichiro Maruyama.

"The Thilawa Special Economic zone is one of the special economic zones in Myanmar. The transportation sector is the most important one for the development of the economic zones. The existing roads are not ideal for safe and smooth transportation. So, we are building a four-laned asphalt road with a Japanese ODA loan. The construction of the road will be complete in October," he said.

A new Thanlyin Bridge will also be constructed at a cost of over US$300 million. The bridge will be called Thanlyin Bridge 3, and it will be constructed in three phases.

"With the development of Yangon City, the need has arisen for a new Thanlyin bridge. The existing bridge has limited capacity for transport of goods to Thilawa and the jetty. There are many difficulties, such as heavy traffic because of the increasing number of vehicles. So, a new four-laned cable-stayed bridge will be constructed in three phases by Japanese companies," said U Kyaw Lin, the Deputy Minister for Construction.

The Thanlyin Bridge-3 will be built at a distance of 125m from the existing No.1 Thanlyin Bridge. The main bridge measures 1,224 meters in length, with overall length reaching 1,928 meters upon including the approach road, connecting Yangon, Thakayta Township, and Thanlyin. The approach road on Thakayta side measures 300 meters in length, while the road on the Thanlyin side is 404 meters.

The Thanlyin Bridge-3 will have a steel box girder, and its base will be built using steel pipe sheet piles. It would have a capacity of up to 75 tons.—Aye Cho

Seed sector to develop following creation of local seed production companies

THE seed sector will be developed after the creation of local seed production companies throughout the country, according to Daw Than Than Nu, the Assistant Director of the cotton and fiber production Division, Agriculture Department.

"For the development of the seed sector, seed production entrepreneurs need to expand with agricultural staffs and to local farmers. For the sake of the local community, we have to welcome new entrants to the industry," said Daw Than Than Nu.

The cotton crop is the best fiber crop that can yield edible oil. Additionally, cotton seed provides value added products that can be manufactured. Over 70 countries around the world are growing cotton crops. The garment industry mainly depends upon cotton crops for use as raw materials.

Local seed production industries have been successful by cooperating with each other to fulfill the demand for seeds and assisting local farmers in growing quality crops.—Myo Win Tun (Monywa)

Seintalone mangoes to be sent to India via Tamu this month

STARTING from May, Myanmar's Seintalone (Diamond Solitaire) mangoes will be exported to India through the Tamu border gate under a business-to-business agreement, according to growers from Sagaing Region.

The Indian market offers higher prices than China, and the trade route to India through Kalay town in Sagaing Region is shorter.

"Last year, we sent Seintalone mangoes to India, but only small export volume was seen. This year, exports are expected to be higher than last year. Seintalone mangoes will be sent to India through the Tamu border gate under a business-to-business agreement between trade partners in the two countries," said a grower.

"There are 250,000 acres under mango plantations across Myanmar. If we estimate the yield per acre to be 3.5 tons, 200,000 acres would produce 700,000 tons of mangoes. Sagaing Region has 12,000 acres under mango cultivation, and so, the yield is estimated to be around 40,000 tons. Myanmar primarily consigns mangoes to China, along with India, Bangladesh, Thailand, the Republic of Korea, Singapore, and Japan," said an official from Sagaing Region's Consumer Affairs Department.

"As per world mango production data, India is the world's largest mango producer, followed by China. The mango harvest season falls around July in China. Therefore, Myanmar exporters send mangoes to China prior to the first week of July. Brunei and Singapore are also potential markets for mango exports, as they do not produce the fruit themselves," said an official with Sagaing Region's Agriculture Department.

"Mango farm-owners need to follow Good Agricultural Practices (GAP). They also need to obtain GAP certification. The Agriculture Department has been instituting criteria for long-term organic farming," he added. —GNLM

Bonded Warehouse Programme set to provide boost to Myanmar's industries

THE Customs Department, Ministry of Planning and Finance, and the DaNa Facility, a UK aid funded programme, today launched the Developing Custom Bonded Warehouse programme to introduce Customs officers and relevant stakeholders to the potential of a bonded warehouse system in supporting local industry, and to highlight the key components of a bonded warehouse programme in Myanmar.

Bonded warehouses are specifically designed to support industry, particularly those which import high value and/or high import duty goods. Through bonded warehouses, these industry sectors will have the ability to defer their import duties and taxes until they themselves find customers willing to buy the goods or identify export markets, meaning that they can improve productivity and better manage their cash flows.

This system allows for exported finished goods to be more competitively priced in regional and global markets as this export pricing does not include embedded duty and tax charges. This system also enable to export through such an enhanced competitive process brings in important income for the country. The significant cases are found in the garment exporting countries, where shorter lead-time is a competitive factor. Therefore, it will be a case for Myanmar.

"The Customs warehousing business has improved accompanied with increased job opportunities. Especially, opportunities for CMP manufacturing could increase in areas such as delivering goods to customers in real time, saving costs of transportation and manufacturing, allowing higher competitive capacities to enter international markets. Additionally, trade with neighbouring countries would be more developed if customs and bonded warehouses are situated at border points," said U Aung San Tun, Deputy Director General of the Customs Department.

Bonded warehouse systems not only streamline export and import process and contribute to the transformation of key industries such as garments and other manufacturing, but also create an environment conducive to linkages between SMEs and large multinational and local firms.—GNLM

Lychee high-priced in domestic market at beginning of harvest season

LYCHEE, the delicious tropical fruits, is expensive in the domestic market at the beginning of this harvest season although the majority of fruits taste sour, according to growers.

Produced in Thandaung Township, Kayin State, lychees have started entering the domestic market beginning in the third week of this month.

One of retailers living in the plains said: "Currently, lychees are sold at K3,000 per viss (3.6

pounds). This is overpriced because production is slow at the beginning of harvest season. However, the current prices are reasonable as some retailers spent lots of transport charges in purchasing lychees from the hilly region." At the beginning of this harvest time, lychees taste sour. The taste of the fruit is so sweet in the rainy season when the market sees high local demands. Bumper harvest may be seen in mid-May in the hilly regions when supply exceeds demand that causes a decrease in prices of lychees in the market. A greengrocer in Yedashe Township, Bago Reion, said: "For the time being, there are some buyers who purchase the expensive lychees as a gift."

Not only lychee growers but durian, mangosteen and pineapple growers from hilly regions normally earn handsome profits in the wet season.—Ko Lwin (Swa) (Translated by Khaing Thanda Lwin)

U Thant Sin Lwin, the acting director-general of the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration, attended a luncheon with the American Trade Mission organized by the U.S. Embassy in collaboration with the American Chamber of Commerce Myanmar at the Melia Hotel in Yangon last Monday.

At the luncheon, U Thant Sin Lwin briefed delegates on matters related to the investment law, business opportunities, and action being taken by Myanmar to improve the business environment. He also responded to questions raised by the delegates.

The luncheon was aimed to help US investors understand the business climate in Myanmar. In turn, the American investors held friendly discussions on matters concerning investment in Myanmar.

Afterwards, delegates from American and Myanmar businesses also took part in B2B meetings. They visited the Thilawa Special Economic zone yesterday.

vided by the Commerce Ministry, Myanmar's trade with the US totalled US$394.59 million during the October-February period, with exports worth $232.54 million and imports valued at $162 million.

Group A: Myanmar, Australia stamp tickets to finals

MANDALAY: Myanmar and Australia confirmed safe passage to the AFC U-19 Women's Champions Thailand 2019 Finals, after they earned wins over Nepal and Uzbekistan respectively on Tuesday.

MYANMAR 2-1 NEPAL

Group hosts Myanmar were a goal and a player down at half-time, but they completed a second-half turnaround to seal qualification with a 2-1 win over Nepal. Goals from San Thaw Thaw and May Phu Ko ensured the group hosts claimed not only the one point they needed to reach the Finals, but all three, after they had fallen behind in a sequence that resulted in their captain Zune Yu Ya Oo being sent off.

Buoyed by their fighting display against Australia on Sunday, Myanmar began full of confidence, only for both Thaw Thaw and Pont Pont Pyae Maung to squander a series of early chances.

Myanmar's position of relative comfort changed dramatically in the closing stages of the first half, with Ya Oo shown a straight red card after bringing down the goal-bound Manisha Raut, who converted the resulting penalty kick to give Myanmar a 39th-minute lead.

With their fate in the balance at the interval, Myanmar immediately pegged back the deficit through Thaw Thaw, who headed home at the back post in the 47th minute, and could have taken the lead through a Pyae Maung penalty eight minutes later, only for the forward to hit the woodwork from both the spot kick and the follow up.

Despite that dramatic moment, the hosts did eventually seal their win, with substitute Phu Ko finding acres of space before slotting a neat finish beyond Anjana Rana Magar to seal a 2-1 win for Myanmar, who will feature in the finals for the first time since 2013.

AUSTRALIA 4-1 UZBEKISTAN

Earlier, Australia took their Round 2 record to a perfect three wins from three, with a 4-1 win against Uzbekistan on Tuesday.

The Young Matildas were too strong for the Central Asian opponents, scoring three second-half goals to put the seal on their progression, and leave Uzbekistan waiting on the result in the Myanmar match; one which ultimately didn't go in their favour.

Australia burst into life in the early stages of the match, but they were initially unable to make it count as Mary Fowler missed two chances before having a goal ruled out for offside, and Kyra Cooney-Cross hit the crossbar in the 31st minute. Persistent forays forward finally paid off when Cooney-Cross beat Zarina Saidova with a low, angled effort to give Gary van Egmond's side a deserved lead in the 41st-minute.

The terrific Cooney-Cross delivered a pin-point corner for Princess Ibini to nod home in the 49th minute, before Fowler finally got her goal - her seventh in three matches in Myanmar - with a close range effort three minutes later. Uzbekistan's chances of reaching the finals were becoming slimmer by the minute, but they did manage to capitalise when Australia's defence switched off in the 78th minute, with Shahnoza Kurbonova beating Annalee Grove to make it 3-1.

But any chance of a late Uzbekistan revival was snuffed out by Chelsea Blissett, who headed home another superb Cooney-Cross set piece delivery to stamp Australia's ticket to Thailand with three minutes remaining.—AFC ■

Bale '100 per cent' committed to Real claims agent

LONDON — Gareth Bale is still "100 per cent" committed to Real Madrid despite speculation over his future, the Wales star's agent insisted on Monday.

Former Tottenham winger Bale has been linked with a return to the Premier League after a difficult season with the troubled Spanish club.

The 29-year-old has had to endure claims that he doesn't have a strong relationship with his teammates, while Real have suffered a woeful campaign on the pitch.

Bale played the full 90 minutes when Real suffered a shock 1-0 defeat against lowly Rayo Vallecano on Sunday, but Madrid boss Zinedine Zidane later questioned whether he was fully focused.

Bale's agent Jonathan Barnett has responded to Zidane's comments by telling BBC Sport Wales: "Gareth is 100 per cent committed to Real Madrid."

Referring to his past assertion that Bale wanted to spend the rest of his career with Madrid, Barnett added: "Nothing has changed."

Frustrated at a lack of starting opportunities for Real towards the end of last season, Bale had actually hinted he might consider leaving when he spoke to the media immediately after scoring twice in last year's Champions League final win against Liverpool. Bale's Madrid contract runs until 2022, but the return of Zidane, with whom he reportedly has a difficult relationship, has revived talk of a potential move. Despite winning four Champions League trophies and one La Liga title in Spain, Bale has come under-fire for his inconsistent performances and injury problems from Real fans.

Zidane, who is back after quitting at the end of last season, recently warned Real stars who are unhappy with their playing time should "go elsewhere and get more minutes".

Manchester United and Tottenham are among the clubs said to be interested if Wales international Bale wants to leave the Bernabeu.—AFP ■

Boxing must end controversies to end Olympic threat: coach

NEW DELHI—Boxing must quickly fix "controversies" surrounding the sport to keep its Olympic place when a decision is made next month, leading international coach Santiago Nieva said Tuesday.

The International Olympic Committee is to deliver its verdict on May 22 on whether to keep boxing at the 2020 Tokyo Games.

Nieva, director of the Indian men's and women's teams and a senior member of the AIBA international federation coaches commission, said he was "worried" about the looming decision.

"I think they will find a way but... in boxing we tend to exaggerate our importance for the Olympic movement," the Swedish coach told AFP.

"We think that we are so pure, one of the oldest, but for other people who are not into boxing, they see it more from a commercial and political standpoint.

"They don't want controversies, they don't want scandals at the Olympics and boxing is giving controversies over and over again," said Nieva. The IOC froze boxing's preparations for next year's Games to give the sport time to clean up its image after allegations of bout-fixing tainted the 2016 Rio Olympics. An inquiry into AIBA governance and its anti-doping programme is also being held. In response, the "right to protest" a referee's decision is to be re-introduced at the world championships in September. Nieva said India had been on the receiving end of judging blunders, and highlighted the 49kg final at the Asian Championships in Bangkok when Deepak Singh lost his final to Nodirjon Mirzamedov of Uzbekistan. "We felt it was very clear," Nieva said. India was certain Singh had won, and the coach said this is an example which showed the rules are "meaningless".

"It's tough because it is not black and white. It is a grey area when it comes to close bouts." At the 2014 Asian Games, India's Sarita Devi refused to accept her bronze medal and tried to hang it on her Korean rival instead, who won the women's semi-final on a unanimous decision.—AFP ■
