Connect University looks forward to the future as the American University of Yangon

On Saturday 8th June 2019, Connect University started a new chapter of the university's history as the American University of Yangon. A name changing ceremony on the Inya Road campus was attended by faculty, staff, Miss Myanmar Bella Myat Thiri Lwin, San Htate Htar Oo and other celebrities and friends. The ribbon cutting ceremoniously opened the school to students and parents, who enjoyed food, entertainment and seminars.

For the past five years, the university has been running its signature ‘2+2 program’, allowing Myanmar students the unique opportunity to study 2 years of U.S. university courses in Yangon and then finish their final two years of a four-year degree in the U.S. During the program, students are equipped with the skills necessary to meet the rigorous educational standards at U.S. universities, and are exposed to a diverse range of subjects under the ‘General Education or GE’ system. Within the GE system courses cover a diverse variety of subject areas, giving students the opportunity to explore their true interests and broaden their understanding of the world. Students also learn crucial life skills like leadership, public speaking, and additional conversational English to help them thrive in the US and to develop into confident young people.

Once students complete two years of GE courses in Yangon, they continue on to study an additional two years in the United States at one of AU's 12 partner universities. To date, more than 45 students have successfully transferred to the U.S. to continue their degrees.

We spoke to some students to find out more about life at AU Yangon. Htet Myet Min Htun, a top 4 student in Whole Burma in 2018 and participant in the Yale University Exchange Program, has been attending AU for one year. When asked about his experience, he said, ‘I think I have improved a lot by attending classes at AU. The education system is very good, not only preparing us for academic challenges, but also for many other aspects of our life’.

His sentiments are echoed by his classmate, Nicole Aye: ‘Since studying here, I have become more skilled in critical thinking, self-study, independent learning and research. Personally, my favorite part of studying here is the opportunity to study so many different subjects, as well as the discussion-based learning environment.’

While the name change is big news for the university, students can rest assured that the caliber of instruction and commitment to excellence is stronger than ever.

In light of the event, Emily Stephenson, Director of Programs said, ‘We are so pleased to be starting this new chapter of the school's history at the American University of Yangon. The past 5 years have been an incredible journey, and we are so grateful for the support we have received from our students and university community. We look forward to the challenges that lie ahead and are so excited to see what is next as we continue to grow.’

Legal organizations, media groups meet to design strategies on rule of law

MYANMAR legal organizations and media groups held strategic talks at the Hilton Hotel in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday morning on finding ways to strengthen rule of law in the country.

Deputy Minister for Information U Aung Hla Tun made an opening remark of the meeting.

The deputy minister said that the statement of World Justice Project issued early this year concluded more global countries have suffered a negative slide toward weaker rule of law around the world, and no country has achieved a perfect realization of the rule of law.

He also said the rule of law is a common issue related to every person, and it cannot be restored just by an individual or any organization.

The government is making the best for the rule of laws by holding educative talks, dialogues and workshops, as the Ministry of Information has collected the copies of documents on existing laws, rules and regulations, as well as official gazettes in its 417 IPRD offices across the country.

“In accordance with legal principle, ‘Ignorance of the law is no excuse’, it’s very important to promote public legal awareness,” the deputy minister said.

The ministry’s website www.moi.gov.mm have uploaded a total of 727 enacted laws, 115 bills and 120 bylaws for free download.

Deputy Minister U Aung Hla Tun added media and the rule of law are interrelated, as the former being independent, ethical and self-regulated are crucial for promoting the latter.

He also remarked the rule of law is essential for the emergence of independent, ethical and self-regulated media.

The deputy minister also noted investigative journalism helps a lot in exposing and taking actions against those who commit corruptions, misappropriation and malpractices, while the journalists in this role need to write such stories with clean hands.

He also recounted the difficulties of media in the past.

“Media played an important role in our struggle for democracy and human rights. Now our country has reached on the right track to democracy but facing mounting challenges. I’d like to request the media to keep helping so that our country won’t deviate from the road to democracy and will be able to walk towards the final goal after getting over the challenges,” U Aung Hla Tun said.

He also called on the participants in the talks to exchange their opinions and suggestions openly and cordially.

Then, Mr Robert La Mont, Chief of Party from USAID Promoting Rule of Law in Myanmar (PRLM) made a speech.

The talks focused on the release of information from the legal sector to media, possible mutual cooperation between the two sectors, challenges and opportunities for media in reporting the rule of law.

The meeting was attended by U Nyunt Shwe and U Soe Phone Myint from Myanmar National Human Rights Commission, U Han Nyunt from Anti-Corruption Commission, Secretary U Khin Zaw from Union Legal Aid Board, parliamentarians, legal organizations and officials from ministries concerned and media groups.—MNA

Lessons from Martyrs' Day

AT the conference of the Pha-Sa-Pa-La (Anti-Fascist People's Freedom) League on the middle platform of the Shwedagon Pagoda in Yangon on 20 January, 1946, Bogyoke Aung San delivered a historic speech on politics.

In his speech, he said politics was not a dirty game, but some persons entered politics and muddied it.

Seventy-two years ago today, the architect of our independence, Bogyoke Aung San, and his colleagues were assassinated by a group of armed men manipulated by a dirty politician, and fell prey to ugly politics while struggling for independence on behalf of the country and its people.

The people determine who should be called a martyr, and what kind of person should be accepted as a martyr. Therefore, Martyrs' Day concerns the people.

themselves entirely to the welfare of the people and the country, even at the cost of their own lives.

No one can profit from deeds that do not benefit other people. From this point of view, we must always prioritise people's interests.

The people determine who should be called a martyr, and what kind of person should be accepted as a martyr. Therefore, Martyrs' Day concerns the people.

When remembering the martyrs, some people cherish dreams of becoming well-known and famous like the martyrs, but they are unwilling to struggle and face the same difficulties. Others take lessons from history.

On this Martyrs' Day, we would like to ask youths to use their time in the most valuable way, and remember the martyrs' real desires, instead of simply grieving for them, like everyone else.

Martyrs' Day was born of the people. We wish all the people remember this. Essentially, the people decide a country's destiny.

The assassination shows how the image of politics can be tarnished by unscrupulous politicians.

The actions of politicians were on the same plane as those of the assassins, and they sent our country into a ruinous decline.

The assassination of the national leaders reminds us of their sacrifice for the country, and we must be inspired by this spirit of martyrdom. Besides, the new generation must understand why inhuman acts to seize political power, use of arms, and actions that can precipitate the ruin of the country must be rejected.

The spirit of martyrdom is simple. A martyr is someone who prioritises the people's interests and subordinates personal interests. Martyrs devote

It was on the occasion of Sayagyi U Razak, our immediate neighbor who came to us to bid goodbye as he would join Bogyoke Aung San's cabinet as Minister of Education. U Razak's family and ours are almost close relatives. His mother Daw Nyein Hla was a strong Buddhist who accompanied the writer's mother to Buddhist Dhamma lectures and festivals. Sayagyi's sisters and brothers' were Buddhist U Ba Kyaw, Daw Thein Thein, Daw Yan were very religious and very

patric. Though the writer was not U Razak's pupil as he was a principal of Mandalay St Peter's English High School he was indirectly involved in the activities of Mandalay National School of which Sayagyi U Razak was the head master. He himself was a unique personality. He was the product of Mandalay Westlyan School [Methodist school] specializing in English, Pali and Buddhism. He wore European dress neat and tidy and spoke English. Pali and Burmese excellently. To cut the story short, as he bid farewell to us, he turned to me and said " Hey young boy, come with me to Yangon. I appoint you as my personal body guard Maung Aye [who was only month my senior]. "What is PA Sayagyi?" "PA means personal assistant. You have to be near me and to do all jobs I ask you to do such as fetching my clothings, food, books etc." "No, Sayagyi I don't like that kind of job I like pwes [festivals] in Mandalay I would miss them. Besides I'm sitting for Matric Examination this year March 1947". "Ok, Ok then I'll wait for your Matric result. Then you'll have to join me as my PA". Then turning to my mother, Sayagyi said "Amagyi [my elder sister] would you agree to my idea?" But things did not work out as Sayagyi's plan. But the writer missed luckily the tragic end like Ko Htwe. Bo Htun Hla [Tetkatho Ney Win] whom the writer often met on the occasions of the Writers' Day told me often two things the write never forgot. Firstly သောတမေရာဝ် ဘတ်မေရာဝ် "[If your time has not arrived for your death, your life survives]. Secondly strong and devout national leaders are sincerely convinced that they had no dangerous enemies who are always their immediates". We both used to reviews assassination cases in Buddha Jataka stories, Myanmar history as well as those of the world. In Jataka the son Ajatasa killed his own father King Bimasara and many other stories of Patricides and Matricides. In Myanmar history cases of patricides such as Narathu the son of King Alaung Sithu two sons Myint Kun and Myin Khons Taing of King Mindaon. In the world's history, it was his close friend Bruthus who assassinated Julius Caesar, Emperors of Roman Empire. As he was stabbed he opened his eyes to know who his assassin was and he exclaimed. "Et tu, Brutus". There are many cases of political murder or assassinations with unsolved problems of who the assassins were namely Abraham Lincon's assassin, Mahathma Gandhi's assassin, Andra Gandi's assassin, JF Kennedy's Assassin, Hammarskjold's assassins etc. etc. In the case of our martyrs, though we had found out the assassins of our leaders, we still did not know who directed them to carry-out that political murder. Second point of lesson that Bo Htun Hla and the writer got from these assassination cases was that devoted patriot leaders' over-confidence that they had no dangerous enemies and that there enemies were near at hand. Bo Htun Hla told the writer that very morning when the cabinet meeting was about to begin, Bogyoke Aung San called off the bodyguard saying, there could not be dangerous enemy for us who were working for our country's independence. Bo Htun Hla was asked by Bogyoke Aung San to go back to his office to bring him some important files on his desk. So he very narrowly escaped assassination. When he heard shootings and appeared on the spot Bogyoke was dead in a well of blood with many bullets in his body. Whereas Ko Htway, personal bodyguard of Sayagyi U Razak was lying dead with bullets in body. The writer explained to Bo Htun Hla that he had the same case of သောတမေရာဝ် ဘတ်မေရာဝ်. Had he accepted the PA post, he might or might not have met the same fate as that of Ko Htwe. But Bo Htun Hla and the writer both agreed and would like to leave our sincere message to our patriotic leaders of the present and future "Please do not take it for granted that they have no dangerous enemies, who are always near you. Please take caution and keep security measures. Body guards to protect you safety, health and happiness and success to all.

Five public spots in Yangon to get free WiFi

By Nyein Nyein

FIVE public places in Yangon — Mahabandoola Park, People's Park, Thuwunna Park, Sule Square, and Inya Lake — will have free WiFi connection soon, said U Than, Joint Secretary, Yangon City Development Committee.

Officials from the Yangon Region government and Mytel are negotiating to install the free WiFi network, said U Than.

"Mytel representatives met with the Yangon Region Chief Minister to discuss about installation of the free WiFi network.

They will install WiFi in five public places, and plan to install telecom towers in other places after paying charges. The negotiations with the regional government are under way," he added.

Further negotiations will be conducted for the installation of telecom towers, according to the YCDC. At present, the first round of negotiations has been conducted. A second meeting will be held to discuss the matter in detail. Of the 33 townships under the YCDC, the Shwedagon Pagoda and some YBS buslines offer free WiFi access.

Over 600 natural eel larvae to be conserved as Myanmar eel

By Aye Yamone

OVER 600 eel larvae, which were hatched naturally in 2019, will be conserved as Myanmar eel, according to the Myanmar Fisheries Federation.

From October, 2017 to May, 2018, 100 pairs of eels were hatched on an experimental basis at the MFF head office, but the reproductive organs of the eels were found to be damaged and only two eels could be produced. "The eels were hatched only at the research level. Last year, a few eels were produced, but all died of fungal disease. This year, we did not have to administer any injections as the eels reproduced naturally. Over 600 natural eel larvae have been produced and we have given some to Yangon University, which is also conducting research on eels," said Dr Toe Nanda Tin, the vice chairperson of the Myanmar Fisheries Federation.

In 2017, MFF officials had gone on a study tour to Viet Nam, where eel cultivation has been successful, in order to conduct experimental eel farming, she said. "Although we have already conducted experimental farming with eels imported from Viet Nam, it prefers to conduct business only through government-to-government cooperation," she added.

"Research could not be finished within a year. Last year, we didn't get any results and we thought of Viet Nam, which has many good species produced in hatching camps. When we asked them to share their species with us, they said they didn't share them with private entrepreneurs. That is why we requested the Fisheries Department to conduct G2G negotiations," Dr Toe Nanda Tin added.

"Currently, over 100 eel larvae have been sent to the Zoology Department of Yangon University for research on eel hatching. Also, research is being conducted on more than 400 eel larvae to conserve them as a local eel species on MFF land," she said. "An eel can produce 200 to 1,000 eggs. So, if hatching is successful, local fish breeders can breed eels on a manageable scale," she added.

"We would like to make a suggestion on eel hatching. We would like the MFF to work with us on the project. In 2013, eel farming was conducted in Mandalay Region. We have some records," said U Hla Htay, the Deputy Head of the Yangon Region Fisheries Department. "If the MFF cooperates with the Fisheries Department to conduct experimental eel farming, hatching will be successful because the department can provide land and staff for the project," he added. Myanmar eel species are mainly exported to China and Thailand. (Translated by Hay Mar)

MoU to be signed for exporting chilli to Viet Nam this month

By Aye Yamone

THE Chili Market and Technology Development Association will sign a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with a Viet Nam-based company this month for export of chillis to Viet Nam.

Six containers of chillis are expected to be exported to Viet Nam every month under the agreement. The price at which chillis will be procured from farmers for export will be calculated on a daily basis according to the prevailing market rate.

“The price of chili is on the decline because we don’t have demand from China. That is why we have turned to Viet Nam to purchase chillis from local farmers. Once local farmers agree, contract farming will be conducted on a regular basis. At present, we will purchase chillies from local farmers first because they are facing difficulties due to the price fall,” said Daw Ohnmar Kyaw, the chairperson of the Chili Market and Technology

Development Association.

Currently, the Viet Nam-based company, which is negotiating chili production through contract farming and provision of seeds to local farmers, will buy chillis from local farmers under the MoU. “The company wants to purchase more than six container cars of chili. But, we don’t have much supply because some chillis were damaged by bad weather conditions. That is why we can guarantee only six containers of chili. The price of chili will depend on the daily market price. Contract farming must be conducted after fixing the price,” said Daw Ohnmar Kyaw.

Last June, the price of chili was between K8,000 and K17,000 per viss in the local chili market. In the third week of July this year, the price of chili is ranging between K1,200 and K1,500 per viss.

“China buys chili only when it needs it. At present, we export most of our chili to China,” said U Soe Than Min Din, the chairman of the Myanmar Fruit and Vegetable Producers and Exporters Association. While local chillis are mainly exported to China and Thailand, Myanmar also exports 692 chili varieties to other countries. Myanmar chili is mainly cultivated in the Ayeyawady Region and Kyaukse township of Mandalay Region. (Translated by Hay Mar)

Public Co to be set up to control speculations in sterculia gum market

By Aye Yamone

A public company will be established to control price manipulations in the market for sterculia gum (locally called Saekalarma), according to the Myanmar Sterculia Gum Association.

“Currently, we are taking the necessary measures for company registration. Additionally, we are drawing up a potential index to attract investors so that we can set up a sterculia gum public company. The decision to establish a public company was made at a meeting held between the executives and the Central Executive Committee in June,” said a source close to the association.

“We will set up a public company to control the manipulation of the price of sterculia gum in the market. Currently, we have only invited members of our association to invest in the public company. Each share will be sold for K100,000. We have already invited some investors. On the day of invitation, we received requests for 80 shares,” said U Hein Htet, the secretary of the Myanmar Sterculia gum Association.

The public company will be established depending on the amount of capital invested by the members, he added.

“Sterculia gum is currently a tax-free good. Among the Asian countries, four countries have declared sterculia gum tax-free. To be able to export Myanmar sterculia gum legally, the government must start establishing government-to-government contacts,” he said.

In 2019, the price of sterculia gum in season increased to over K60,000 per viss from K40,000. Currently, a viss of sterculia gum is selling for K30,000 per viss.

“We believe that traders are manipulating the sterculia gum price. Therefore, we have decided to set up a private company to ensure price stability,” said U Hein Htet.

The Magway Region Chief Minister and the region’s sterculia gum farmers had signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with Japan in 2018 to export the gum to Japan. At the moment, Myanmar sterculia gum is mainly exported to China and South Korea. Myanmar is also planning to export sterculia gum to Taiwan.

There are more than 30,000 acres of sterculia gum plantations in Myanmar. The country can produce over 5 tons of sterculia gum per day. Sterculia trees begin producing latex at 3-5 years of age until they are around 30-50 years old. Sterculia gum is cultivated mainly in Mandalay, Magway, and Sagaing regions. (Translated by Hay Mar)

Six firms eligible for tendering process for construction of smart car park

By Nyein Nyein

THE Expressions of Interest (EOIs) submitted by six companies for the construction of a smart car park in Yangon have been passed, and the firms will be allowed to file tenders for the project soon, according to U Lin Khaing, the Head of the Roads and Bridges Department, Yangon City Development Committee.

The YCDC had invited EOIs from private companies for the smart car park project, and 26 companies had submitted their applications to the YCDC.

“Six of the 26 companies are eligible to proceed to the tendering process. The YCDC is still drawing up the procurement guidelines for tender preparation,” said U Lin Khaing.

The regional government plans to implement a smart car park in Yangon as the roads in the commercial hub are cramped, and there is no designated parking area for vehicles, said U Phyo Min Thein, the Yangon Region Chief Minister.

“To tackle the appalling traffic congestion, the smart car parking project was formulated,” U Maung Maung Soe had said at the sixth regular session of the 2nd Yangon Region Hluttaw, held on 15 February, 2018.

“Earlier, the YCDC collected car parking fees through informal methods, such as the contract system. During the government transition period, that system was abolished,” U Maung Maung Soe had said.

Under the incumbent government, the Yangon Region Transport Authority was formed to improve the public transport system.

There are 144 roads on which no vehicles are allowed to park in Yangon. Vehicles parked on those roads are towed and the owners are fined. But, drivers continue to park vehicles on public roads and violate traffic rules owing to lack of parking space.

The registered vehicles in Yangon Region surged to 529,473 as on 31 July, 2017 from 214,649 as on 31 August, 2011. At present, the number of registered vehicles has crossed 530,000, prompting the authorities to implement a smart car parking system to accommodate those vehicles and resolve the parking issue at the soonest. Public announcement on seasonal influenza monitoring, preventive measures, response

The Ministry of Health and Sports collaborates, in line with International Health Regulations 2005, with the World Health Organization, regional and affiliated organizations on administering communicable disease surveillance to prevent the rise of public health problems and epidemics.

The government, departments, public citizens and affiliated organizations have increased work on monitoring, patient treatments, raising health awareness, preventing and responding to the current seasonal influenza.

The seasonal influenza has been impacting regional countries and other across the globe. Myanmar has seen 281 cases of the virus this year, between 1 January to 16 July. People within the 15-65 age group make up 51% of those afflicted.

The table shows seasonal influenza contagions from January to 16 July, 2019, across the world:

No.	Country	Estimated population (mln)	A/H1N1 pdm09 detected	A/H3	B	Total
1	China	1,433.70	47,805	19,144	23,464	90,413
2	India	1,366.40	5,684	1,936	226	7,846
3	Brazil	192.76	1,022	435	241	1,698
4	Australia	25.2	544	3,361	1,133	5,038
5	Bangladesh	163	271	263	699	1,233

7	Thailand	69.6	150	189	546	885
8	Laos	7.2	128	17	33	178
9	Cambodia	16.49	88	13	31	132
10	New Zealand	4.9	0	165	202	367

The table shows seasonal influenza cases between 1 January to 16 July, 2019:

Number of people screened for seasonal influenza	Number of patients with seasonal influenza
	Influenza A (H1N1) pdm09	Influenza A (H3N2)	Influenza B	Total
682	243	21	17	281

Upon examining the people who had contracted the influenza virus, we can see that although the death toll is not high, it is most dangerous elderly people and young children, especially those with compounded health problems. Of the 56 people who have died, 45% were from the 15-65 age group and 44 people died with comorbidity, making up 75% of the deceased. We have found that seeking medical attention too late, despite identification of early symptoms, have increased the death toll.

The table shows the results of medical examinations conducted on deceased patients confirmed with Influenza A(H1N1)pdm09:

Number of deceased patients with comorbidity	Number of deceased patients from age group with high fatality rate (elderly and young children)	Number of deceased patients due to seasonal influenza	Total deaths
44	5	7	56

117 patients with seasonal influenza have recovered from hospital treatment, as of 16 July 2019, and have been discharged while 44 inpatients are steadily recovering.

The table shows the results of medical examinations and number of deaths related to the seasonal influenza across the states and regions, between 1 January to 16 July 2019:

17	Shan State (East)	-	1	-	-
	Total	76	681*	280*	56

Remark – 682 patients received medical examinations and 281 patients were confirmed with the virus. One patient is being investigated due to lack of a proper address.

State and Regional government have taken the following precautions and measures:

The Ministry of Health and Sports has arranged for hospital staff across the states and regions to be vaccinated first with the vaccines distributed by the ministry.

Providing health awareness on seasonal influenza in townships with diagnosed patients and screening for new patients, monitoring the virus and performing medical check-ups on family members. Coordinating medical staff to cooperate with officials from the local General Administration Department, City Development Council and Education Department to conduct seasonal influenza awareness campaigns, arranging for news and demonstrative videos to be shown on LED boards, putting up informative posters in offices and crowded public places (e.g. stations, markets, schools, bus stops, shopping centres, YBS), and setting up IEC Corners.

Forming Rapid Response Teams to counteract the seasonal influenza.

Increasing teleconference sessions with emergency operation centers across the nation for more effective prevention techniques against the seasonal influenza.

The ministry uploads information in real-time on its website at www.mohs.gov.mm and the Facebook pages of MoHS and Myanmar CDC. The ministry urges the public to remain vigilant towards the seasonal virus and follow the guidelines published by the ministry.—Ministry of Health and Sports

Wine Expo Myanmar to debut in Yangon from 26 to 27 September

Singapore-based Asia Expo Services announced recently that the inaugural launch of Wine Expo

Myanmar (WEM), will be held in Yangon from 26 to 27 September 2019.

At the press conference held recently at Grand Mercure Yangon Golden Empire Hotel, founder and managing director Shawn Lee was on hand to unveil the programme for Myanmar’s most prestigious wine event. “Myanmar is a country of 54 million people that is modernising and growing rapidly. From my first visit in 2010, I encountered a beautiful nation that’s not just hungry for change, but also keen to engage with the world.

With my background in the wine industry, I was inspired to bring the world’s wines to Myanmar so that we could spark the connection. This has led my partners and I to establish Wine Expo Myanmar, which will take place annually and hopefully act as a catalyst for growing the new generations of wine lovers in the country,” said Shawn.

Aside from reaching out to wine lovers in the country, Wine Expo Myanmar is expected to attract members of the hospitality industry, one of the fastest growing industries in the economy.

Tourist numbers to Myanmar has increased by 18% in 2017 to reach 3.44 million visitors, while McKinsey Global Institute estimated that tourism could contribute US$14.1 billion to Myanmar’s economy by 2030 and employ around 2.3 million people.

Two days of non-stop activities Wine Expo Myanmar has lined up a two-day programme packed with something for everyone. The key to understanding the Myanmar On Trade and Off Trade market is that hotels and hotel chains, similar to wine distributors, are given importation quotas to bulk buy their wine supplies.

A total of 200 brands are expected to take part in the wine showcase, from major wine producing countries such as France, Italy, United States of America, Chile, Australia, New Zealand, Portugal and China.

The event itself is hosted at Grand Mercure Yangon Golden Empire Hotel, within easy reach of Yangon International Airport.—GNLM

Hunt and his rival, Boris Johnson, took part in the final Conservative Party leadership debate before the results of the vote is announced next week.

In his final presentation, Hunt said it would not be right to suspend parliament to force a no-deal Brexit. But he said if he becomes prime minister, he would deliver a budget in September, which would include preparations for a no-deal Brexit.—Xinhua ■

Czech Republic ready to help EU tackle migration but rejects quotas: FM

PRAGUE — The Czech Republic is ready to help find a common European solution to migration, but refuses to accept migrant distribution quotas, the country’s Foreign Minister Tomas Petricek said here Wednesday.

Petricek was reacting to German Interior Minister Horst Seehofer’s comment that the Czech readiness to participate in a joint solution in migration is close to zero.

Seehofer told a press conference in Berlin earlier on Wednesday during the presentation of the Federal Police Annual Report that “We have no European solution at all”. “Czechia is ready to help in the joint European tackling of migration, but binding quotas are still unacceptable for us,” said Petricek in response. He said the Czech Republic has helped financially and by sending its police and soldiers to the countries along the migrant routes to help local authorities.—Xinhua ■

Myanmar U-18 beat Japan's Serezo Osaka U-18 2-1 in friendly match

THE Myanmar U-18 national football team beat Japan's Serezo Osaka U-18 team by one goal in a friendly match yesterday at the Minami Tsumori Sports Ground in Osaka, Japan.

The friendly match was aimed at helping team Myanmar prepare for the ASEAN Football Federation U-19 Championship, which will be held in Viet Nam next month, and the Qualifiers for the Asian Football Confederation U-18 Championship, according to a statement issued by the Myanmar Football Federation.

The goals for team Myanmar were scored by youth talents Saw Kyaw EL and Hla Min Htwe.

The match proved to be challenging on account of the rain.

Saw Kyaw EL scored the first goal for Myanmar with an assist from Zaw Win Thein at 8 minutes.

The goal prompted the Japanese club to redouble their efforts, and the match became heated from the middle of the first half.

Friends collide as Cisse and Belmadi target AFCON crown

CAIRO — They were born a day apart, raised in the same city and enjoyed prosperous playing careers, and while both Aliou Cisse and Djamel Belmadi are now experiencing similar success as coaches, only one can lift the Africa Cup of Nations in Cairo on Friday.

Cisse was born March 24, 1976 in Senegal, with his Algerian counterpart arriving in the world the following day, in Champigny-sur-Marne. It was in this Parisian suburb, where Cisse moved to at the age of nine, that the pair's destiny would be shaped.

"He's an old acquaintance. I say that with great fondness," said Belmadi, who broke through into the professional ranks at Paris Saint-Germain while Cisse started out with Lille. Despite never playing on the same team, they graced the same pitches in France for nearly a decade.

The duo made close to 180 Ligue 1 appearances between them across spells at six different clubs, but it's in Africa where their legacy has assumed a greater dimension.

Cisse, captain of the Senegal team beaten in the 2002 Cup of Nations final, got the better of Belmadi's Algeria in qualifying for that year's World Cup, but the latter gained revenge in the dugout here, claiming a 1-0 victory in the group stage, setting up Friday's decider.

The occasion will pit local coaches against each other in a Cup of Nations final for the first time in 21 years since Egypt, under the tutelage of Mahmoud El Gohary, defeated Jomo Sono's South Africa 2-0 in Ouagadougou.

"It's much more complicated when you're local than when you're an expat. It's up to us (Africans) to have confidence in ourselves, in our boys, in our coaches. Bit by bit the order is changing," said Cisse.

'Great message' for Africa

"To play this final against my friend, it's amazing. I think it's a great message we're sending to football officials in Africa," added Belmadi.

Cisse has carefully constructed his Senegal team since taking over in 2015, making steady progress that included an appearance at the 2018 World Cup following a 16-year absence, and reaching just the country's second Cup of Nations final.—AFP ■
