No proposals or plan to permit casinos: Yangon Region Chief Minister

By Nyein Nyein

THE Yangon Region Investment Committee (YRIC) has not received any proposals for casino businesses, and it does not plan to green light such businesses, said U Phyo Min Thein, the Yangon Region Chief Minister.

He made the remarks at a press conference held on Wednesday at the YRIC office.

"There is no proposal for setting up a casino business in Yangon Region. Also, the investment committee does not plan to endorse such businesses," said U Phyo Min Thein.

"The casino legislation is still being drafted. After the rules and regulations are drawn up, the MIC would be able to grant permission for casino businesses," said U Myo Khaing Oo, the secretary of the YRIC.

The Myanmar Investment Commission (MIC) had received enquiries for establishing casino businesses, especially from

On 9 February, 2018, U Aung Hlaing Win, a representative of the Mingaladon constituency, had raised a question at the Pyithu Hluttaw, asking whether casino businesses would be permitted in islands where most tourists flock to, as such businesses can earn revenue and help improve the hotel and tourism business.

Union Minister for Hotels and Tourism U Ohn Maung had responded that the Ministry of Home Affairs had agreed to allow casinos only after the amendment of the Gambling Law 1986. "Under the existing law, casino businesses at islands that tourists usually visit cannot be approved. We will work for this as we have already obtained approval from the concerned ministry," he had said.

On 22 August, 2018, the Public Affairs Management Committee submitted the 2018 gambling bill, including six chapters and 23 sections, before the Pyithu Hluttaw.

However, the two Hluttaws were divided over the 2018 gambling legislation. Later, the Bill Committee presented parts of each section of the bill and held a debate on the tenth day of the Second Pyidaungsu Hluttaw's 11th regular session on 26 February, 2019. Thereafter, the members submitted their suggestions to the committee. ■

"Regarding commercial boiler installation, we will meet with those businessmen. We will check whether boiler operators are following safety regulations or not," said the minister.

"Additionally, the government will also inspect factories. If factories are found not complying with safety rules, they may get their licence revoked," he added.

"We issued permits only after a screening process conducted by the Directorate of Industry Supervision and Inspection to ensure safety conditions were being met. However, we need to keep monitoring the factories to

Thailand's top court upholds Myanmar workers' death penalty in British backpacker murders

THAILAND'S Supreme Court yesterday upheld the death sentences of Myanmar migrant workers in the high-profile murder of two British backpackers on the popular tourist island of Koh Tao in 2014.

Zaw Lin and Win Zaw Tun were found guilty of the rape and murder of Hannah Witheridge, 23, and of killing David Miller. 24.

The 2017 appeal decision was read to the two migrant workers and it took for nearly four hours at the court yesterday, according to U Htoo Chit, who is from the special investigation commission-3 to the case formed by Myanmar, and who was present at the court.

He said the committee for the two migrant workers would request the Myanmar government to seek a royal pardon from the King of Thailand.

Prosecutors insisted the evidence against the men from Myanmar's impoverished Rakhine State was clear, and a lower court upheld their conviction in 2017.

But during the proceedings, the defence said authorities mishandled the investigation and DNA evidence, not allowing independent analysis of samples and using confessions the pair said were coerced.

Police were accused of buckling to pressure to solve a crime that made global headlines and threatened to damage a tourism sector that accounts for a fifth of Thailand's economy.

Andy Hall, an international adviser to the defence, said the evidence against them was "unreliable".

"The death penalty sentence against the two accused and their conviction should be reversed and quashed," said Andy Hall.—Pwint Thitsar

OPINION NATIONAL 30 AUGUST 2019 THE GLOBAL NEW LIGHT OF MYANMAR THE GLOBAL NEW LIGHT OF MYANMAR

Helping investors thrive and prosper is our commitment

HE world is witnessing a monumental shift in its centre of economic gravity, a global economic rebalancing towards Asia, which is expected to account for over 50 per cent of the global GDP by 2040.

Even today, the continent accounts for almost 50 per cent of global investment. It is estimated that our region could drive up to 50 per cent of global consumption growth in the years ahead. In the next decade alone, close to one billion new middle-class consumers will emerge in Asia.

Positioned at the crossroads of Asia, Myanmar constitutes a key bridge between East and West — a link between India and China, a doorway to ASEAN. Myanmar seeks to capitalize on this favourable position by connecting these rising geo-economic regions, offering a strategic trade conduit, providing a gateway to the Indian Ocean, and thus,

Economic reforms, including the relaxation of economic policies, the introduction of the online registration system, and the implementation of project bank and land bank, have increased investment to $2.3 billion (77 per cent) by mid-2019.

Besides, with the promotion of a more favourable, friendly, predictable, and investment enabling environment that ensures a fair and level playing field, we could attract responsible investment that creates jobs, provides new opportunities, sustains growth, and spreads

Over half of the country's population is young and they can help drive the economy. Myanmar is also rich in natural resources and we can see the benefit in the demand and supply of raw materials.

We have implemented a number of significant reforms in the economic, political, and social spheres aimed at creating new opportunities for investors.

There has been progress, but there are also challenges to be overcome, barriers and obstacles to be removed. We are confident that the current and other reforms will prove fruitful in attracting increased foreign investment and will help us overcome the challenges.

We welcome investors as partners in our endeavor as we pursue the vision outlined in the Myanmar Sustainable Development Plan for a more prosperous, peaceful, and democratic Myanmar.

We are committed to seeing foreign investment thrive and prosper.

Be prepared to do a good turn daily

HERE are two main sources for national development. They are human resources and natural resources. The principle requirement of human resources is the education, and human resources development is also the main goal of education. Education promotes human intelligence and widens the scope of knowledge and innovative ideas, and the formation of scout bodies is one of the endeavours to reach this goal.

Scouting

Scouting or the Scout Movement is a movement with a strong focus on the outdoors and survival skills that aims to support young people in their physical, mental, and spiritual development so that they may play constructive roles in society. In other words, scouts are to help others, they must be independent and always ready for their work. They are trained to be sharp-eyed, active, cooperative, and free from politics. They must become models who are outstanding in their studies, pursuing a simple life, and having a strong determination. Scouting is an inclusive movement.

The Myanmar word for scout The founder is "kinhtauk". We can obviously find the word in the treatises of Inwa period. But the word "kinhtauk" actually means scouting the enemy movement or situation, and not the scout activity. So, today's scouting is different from the past. It's the movement of youths for the good of the society, community and the country. Scouting is a movement to enable young people to learn various fields of knowledge till becoming future leaders. So, it's a noble movement. It is a mere social activity which is totally free from political and military influences. The movement can produce independent and self-reliant citizens, who understand the value of responsibility and accountability.

According to records, Lieutenant-General Robert Stephenson Smyth Baden-Powell, 1st Baron Baden-Powell (1857-1941) founded the scout movement. So, he is called the father of the world's scout movements. He found the movement for the youth members to have good morals, to understand the human ethics, and to stay away from Africa during the Second Boer War, Baden-Powell was besieged in the small town of Mafikeng (Mafeking) by a much larger Boer army. The Mafeking Cadet Corps was a group of youths that supported the troops by carrying messages, which freed the men for military duties and kept the boys occupied during the long siege. The Cadet Corps performed well, helping in the defence of the town (1899-1900), and were one of the many factors that inspired Baden-Powell to form the Scouting movement.

Three years later, in South

In the summer of 1907 Baden-Powell held a camp on Brownsea Island in England to test ideas for his book. This camp and the publication of Scouting for Boys (London, 1908) are generally regarded as the start of the Scout movement. England founded its first scouting association 1908. As the scouting became more popular, a girl's scout movement was founded in England in 1910. In the ensuring years, scouting spread beyond the British Empire. Robert Stephenson Smyth Baden continued its scouting activities after he retired from the active service. According to the Weekly Rangoon Times issued on 7 February 1921, he visited Myanmar in February 1921.

during the Japanese occupation of the country from 1942-1945. But Myanmar resumed the scout activities after the Japanese left the country in 1945. In 1953, the country appointed its President Sao Shwe Thaik as the Patron of Myanmar Scout Association. In 1964, the scout association was abolished

In 2012, the Republic of the Union of Myanmar reformed the scout association in accordance with the international practice. The Ministry of Education conducted a central level scout training in Yangon from 24 November to 2 December that year.

Scout movements teach youngsters to have good moral conducts and understand the value of discipline. In fact, they are producing valuable youth members for the nation. The Three Promises of Scouts are: I will do my duty to my religion and my country; I will help other people; and I keep the scout law.

The points of the Scout Law are: A scout's honour is to be trusted; a scout is loyal; a scout's duty is to be useful and help to others; a scout is a friend to all, and a brother to every scout; a scout is courteous; a scout is a friend to animals; a scout obeys orders; a scout smiles and whistles; a scout is thrifty; and a scout is brave, clean and reverent.

Currently, Myanmar has over 24,000 scout members of the associations formed at 24 universities. Scouting is one of the six largest movements of the world. Myanmar is the 164th member of the world which has 212 members. In consideration of the development of its activities, the Myanmar Scout Association has been approved as a full fledge member on 11 August

Scout movements bring out good citizens who are free from political and military influences. In accordance with the motto "be prepared", a scout is always in a state of readiness, in mind and body, to do his duty. And, in keeping with the scout slogan "do a good turn daily", a scout is always ready to do something good for the world, apart from his own home, school, community, town, and country.

Yangon Govt, Lexis Nexis ink MoU on real estate information system

THE Yangon Region government signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with Southeast Asia Lexis Nexis Co. Ltd for developing the Housing Real Estate Information System (HREIS) on 28 August in Yangon.

Speaking at the signing ceremony, Yangon Region Chief Minister U Phyo Min Thein said there are nearly 1.6 million households in Yangon. Of them, 64 per cent own houses and 36 per cent are renting accommodation, he said.

"Yangon is where migrants mostly come and settle. However, it has no reliable source of real estate information, which leads to difficulties in charting current prices, identifying tax avoidance, and contributes to market instability, so some buyers suffer. It is also difficult, with these inaccurate figures, to draw up future development plans," he said.

"There are four stages in building a real estate information system – pre-scoping, selecting tenders, setting up the Housing Real Estate Information System, and maintenance," said the Chief Minister.

"As Lexis Neixs has offered to conduct the pre-scoping free of charge, the MoU has been signed to launch the project," he added.

With the setting up of the HREIS, facts and information about real estate will be available at one place. Laying down real estate policies, predicting property prices, and drawing up future development plans will also be made simpler with the collation of facts and information, said the Chief Minister. He then called for cooperation between related governmental departments and organizations for developing the information system. This was followed by the signing of the MoU.

Thereafter, the selling housing projects supervision committee presented a certificate of honor to RITZ Company which assists with technologies for selling fair-priced and low-cost apartments. Developers asked to pay security deposit on jointly owned buildings

By Aye Yamone

FOR construction of jointly owned buildings, developers will now have to hire an appraiser and deposit 15 per cent of the estimated value of the property with a bank, according to the Yangon Region Collectively Owned Buildings Construction Management Committee.

"Currently, developers don't have an appraiser to calculate the partial value of jointly owned buildings. So, they are not being issued construction licenses for building jointly owned buildings. They have already submitted a request to the authorities concerned to hire an expatriate partial value appraiser. Additionally, developers will have to make a 15 per cent security deposit at a bank. The purchasers will also have to deposit money at the same bank. We are having discussions now related to when a deposit can be withdrawn from the account, and also, how it can be withdrawn," said U Myo Myint, a member of the committee.

If the matter of appraising the partial value can be resolved, developers who have already constructed buildings according to the Condominium law will not have to make the 15-per-cent security deposit.

"Currently, we are making arrangements for developers to hire a partial value appraiser in Myanmar. Construction licenses are expected to be issued at the end of September to those who are holding a license for construction of jointly owned buildings," said U Myo Myint.

"We've asked them to deposit 15 per cent for the sake of safety. But, we haven't decided on a bank yet. When the bank has been chosen, they will have to deposit 15 per cent with that particular bank, and the purchasers will also have to deposit money with the same bank," he said.

The collectively owned buildings law was enacted on 29 December, 2016, and its provisions have been amended several times since then. Under the law, foreigners are permitted to purchase apartments, but foreign ownership of jointly owned buildings cannot be more than 40 per cent.

"Currently, we cannot sell apartments to foreigners because developers are facing difficulty in calculating the partial value," said U Myo Myint.

Moreover, jointly owned buildings must be over 20,000 square feet wide. And, the buildings must have more than 6 floors, a lift, an assembly place, and waste disposal system.

Up till now, construction founder licenses for jointly owned buildings have been issued to 30 local companies and two foreign companies. Construction permits for jointly owned buildings will be issued at the Collectively Owned Buildings Construction Management Committee Office soon, it is learnt.

Trade at Muse continues to be suspended over security concerns

INFLOW of goods through the Muse gate has been suspended for over two weeks owing to fighting in northern Shan State, said U Min Thein, the vice chair of the Muse Commodity Depot.

"Following the fighting on 15 August, trade at the Muse 105-mile gate has been halted completely, as the trucks cannot go down from Muse. The trucks cannot travel on the Mandalay-Muse road. In the last two days, some trucks stranded at Muse gate were seen leaving for Mandalay. The gate has also seen entry of some trucks. However, there is no product inspection or security screening procedures at the gate as trade has now been suspended completely," said U Min Thein.

Therefore, only some stocks of goods left at Muse gate can flow into China, according to the Muse depot.

"Only small volumes of goods are being sent to the China market as there is no supply to the Muse gate due to the closure of the road," said U Min Thein.

To tackle the trade halt, the government is conducting discussions with the related organizations, said Union Minister for Commerce Dr. Than Myint at the 29th meeting of Vice President 1 with private businessmen, held on 24 August at the UMFCCI office.

Earlier, Muse and Chinshwehaw gates witnessed trade worth million dollars. At present, the trade value at the gates is estimated to be in just six figures. Trading has halted in some places. The Muse 105-mile trade zone normally handled goods worth $6 million per day, prior to the outbreak of fighting. After 15 August, trade at the gate plunged to around $700,000 a day. Similarly, the Chinshwehaw trade zone earned $1.2 million per day before the attacks. On 15 and 16 August, the gate registered trade of just $300,000. From 17 August, trading has been suspended.

"The fighting in the northern Shan State has cut off transportation on the major trading route, which has drastically affected Muse gate. In addition to damage to infrastructure on that road section, the entire trade chain, including truck drivers, owners, workers, and businessmen are suffering on account of this," said Dr. Than Myint.

Japan utilities, Toshiba, Hitachi eye nuclear business alliance

TOKYO —Two Japanese utilities and Toshiba Corp and Hitachi Ltd. said Wednesday they have agreed to discuss potential collaboration in the nuclear business, as the industry faces a difficult environment following the Fukushima accident.

Amid lingering safety fears over nuclear plants, Tokyo Electric Power Company Holdings Inc., operator of the crippled Fukushima complex, Chubu Electric Power Co. and the two major nuclear reactor builders said they consider jointly developing human resources, technologies and supply chains.

Since the 2011 Fukushima nuclear disaster, stricter safety requirements have been implemented and only nine reactors at five complexes in Japan have restarted operations. At the time of the disaster, Japan had 54 nuclear reactors for commercial use.

The four companies said the envisaged partnership is aimed at effectively operating and developing nuclear technologies, and that they plan to promote cooperation especially in the boiling water reactor business.

However, demand for nuclear energy in Japan is unlikely to recover to the pre-Fukushima disaster level.

Facing huge compensation payments and other costs stemming from the Fukushima disaster, Tokyo Electric Power Company is eager to resume operating two reactors at the Kashiwazaki-Kariwa nuclear plant in Niigata Prefecture but has found difficulty in obtaining necessary approval from host municipalities.—Kyodo News

Organic beauty is big business right now

WASHINGTON — The beauty industry is getting an organic overhaul, and it could mean big business in the next few years.

According to a new report, the global organic personal care ingredients market size is on track to reach US$11.1 billion by the year 2025, representing a 5.4 per cent compound annual growth rate from 2019 to 2025.

The report points to growing consumer awareness about the benefits of organic personal care products — which are free from potentially harmful chemicals — in comparison to their synthetic counterparts as one of the key reasons for a surge in demand. The organic personal care sector is biggest in the US, but emerging economies such as China and India have also witnessed an increase in demand over the last few years.—AFP

Tax body finds Facebook Japan failed to report 500 mil yen in income

TOKYO – The Japan unit of Facebook Inc. failed to declare about 500 million yen ($4.7 million) in taxable income over the two years through 2017, sources close to the matter said Thursday.

The tech giant's advertisement revenues earned in Japan were paid to its branch in Ireland, where the corporate tax rate is lower, in an attempt to reduce taxable income at the Japan unit, the sources said.

Facebook is believed to have corrected its tax declaration and paid the additional levies of over 100 million yen imposed by the Tokyo Regional Taxation Bureau, the sources said.

"We are cooperating with taxation authorities to comply with legal regulations in each country," the Japan unit said.

Regulators are stepping up scrutiny over tax-saving measures taken by digital hegemons such as Facebook, Apple Inc., Amazon.com Inc. and Google LLC, including transferring locally derived revenues to a unit in a country with lower tax rates.—Kyodo News

Dollar slips into upper 105 yen on US-China spat, Brexit fears

TOKYO—The US dollar fell into the upper 105 yen range Thursday morning in Tokyo on persisting concerns about the US-China trade conflict as well as increased fears over a "no-deal Brexit" after it was decided to suspend the British Parliament.

At noon, the dollar fetched 105.91-92 yen, compared with 106.08-18 yen in New York and 105.73-75 yen in Tokyo at 5 p.m. Wednesday.

The euro was quoted at $1.1081-1085 and 117.36-38 yen against $1.1072-1082 and 117.48-58 yen in New York, and $1.1092-1094 and 117.28-32 yen in Tokyo late Wednesday afternoon.

The dollar initially drew modest buying against the safe-haven yen as an overnight rise in US shares lifted investor sentiment, dealers said.

But the dollar was later sold back amid caution ahead of Washington's planned imposition Sunday of additional tariffs on Chinese imports, dealers said

Selling increased with fears growing about the United Kingdom's potential departure without any deal from the European Union as the suspension of Parliament means British politicians will have less time to discuss ways to prevent a no-deal Brexit before an October 31 deadline. "A fall in Japanese shares also weighed on the US unit," said Hideki Shibata, senior interest rate and forex strategist at the Tokai Tokyo Research Institute.—Kyodo News ■

Japan to introduce tighter rules for tech giants to protect customers

TOKYO—Japan's antitrust watchdog said Thursday it has compiled draft guidelines for tighter regulations of technology giants to strengthen customers' data protection, as it aims to introduce the first such rules as early as October.

The Japan Fair Trade Commission said the guidelines are designed to address criticism against major tech companies such as Amazon.com Inc., Apple Inc., Facebook Inc. and Google LLC for obtaining personal data by making use of their "superior bargaining position."

These companies are facing growing criticism that they are discouraging new companies from entering the market by monopolizing customer data through their platforms to bolster their competitive positons.

The new guidelines will be applied to companies providing services of online shopping, social media, search engines and video, music and apps distribution, the commission said.

The regulators will apply the antimonopoly law for the first time to business practice between a company and customers to protect consumers' privacy.—Kyodo News

Court bids launched to stop Johnson suspending UK parliament

LONDON — Prime Minister Boris Johnson's (pix) suspension of parliament weeks before Britain's EU departure date faced legal challenges on Thursday following a furious outcry from pro-Europeans and MPs opposed to a nodeal Brexit.

The Conservative leader announced the surprise decision Wednesday to dismiss parliament — known as proroguing — for nearly five weeks next month, claiming it was necessary to allow him to pursue a "bold and ambitious" new domestic agenda.

But the move sent shockwaves through the British political system, which relies on centuries of precedents and conventions instead of a codified constitution.

Opponents labelled the suspension a "coup" and a "constitutional outrage" and it prompted immediate court bids in London and Edinburgh to halt the process. Gina Miller, a businesswoman and leading anti-Brexit campaigner, said she had applied for an urgent judicial review challenging "the effect and the intention" of the suspension.

"We think that this request is illegal," said Miller, who in 2017 successfully won MPs the right to vote on formally starting to leave the EU in a court challenge.

"There is no example in modern history when prorogation has been used in this way," she told BBC radio.

"It is clearly being used to hamper, in our view, parliament legislating against no deal."

Meanwhile, Scottish National Party (SNP) politician Joanna Cherry said lawyers had applied for an urgent interim hearing at Scotland's highest civil court which they hoped would take place as early as Thursday.

However, arch-Brexiteer minister Jacob Rees-Mogg defended the suspension and insisted MPs would still have time to debate Brexit ahead of Britain's 31 October EU departure date.

"The candyfloss of outrage, which is almost entirely confected, is from people who never wanted to leave the European Union," he told BBC radio.—AFP

EU backs US-Iran talks but says nuclear deal must stay

HELSINKI — The EU's diplomatic chief said Thursday that the bloc would support talks between the US and Tehran, but only if the current nuclear deal with Iran is preserved.

Tehran and Washington have been locked in a bitter standoff since last year when US President Donald Trump unilaterally pulled out of the 2015 deal that gave Iran relief from sanctions in return for curbs on its atomic programme.

The idea of direct talks between Washington and Tehran as a way out of the crisis has grown this week after Trump mooted the idea and the new US defense secretary urged Iran's leaders to engage. The EU has desperately sought to stop the deal from collapsing completely, arguing it is the best way to stop Iran developing nuclear bombs.

EU diplomatic chief Federica Mogherini gave a cautious welcome to the idea of negotiations, after Trump said Monday he was ready to meet Iran's President Hassan Rouhani within weeks.

"We are always in favour of talks, the more people talk, the more people understand each other, the better, on the basis of clarity and on the basis of respect," Mogherini said as she arrived for a meeting of EU foreign and defence ministers in Helsinki. But she added "first and foremost what is existing needs to be preserved" — specifically the 2015 deal known formally as the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action or JCPOA.

"We will always advocate for the full respect by all sides of the UNSC resolutions and that includes the JCPOA," she said.—AFP■

Yemen's separatists regain control of Aden: Security officials

ADEN — Yemen's separatists have regained full control of the interim capital Aden following clashes with government forces who withdrew from the southern port city, security officials from both sides said Thursday.

"The Security Belt force completely controls the city of Aden along with its entrances," Haitham Nezar, a spokesman for the pro-independence Southern Transitional Council, told AFP.

A government security source confirmed Aden was under the full control of the STC, saying government troops who entered parts of the city on Wednesday "withdrew from Aden" to the nearby Abyan province.

The internationally-recognised government of President Abedrabbo Mansour Hadi claimed on Wednesday it had seized back Aden from the separatists who captured the strategic city on 10 August after a fierce battle.

Nezar said the Security Belt forces are now setting their sights on Abyan and Shabwa provinces which had been retaken the government troops earlier this week.

"Aden is fine," STC vice president Hani bin Breik wrote on Twitter on Thursday.

He posted pictures of himself and other southern leaders touring the streets of the city including the airport, while warning fleeing government loyalists of punishment.

Thousands of Security Belt troops, dominated by STC and backed by the UAE, were recalled from several parts of the country, including from Hodeida, to reinforce the STC in Aden.—AFP ■

China to continue actively participating in Iraq's reconstruction: envoy

UNITED NATIONS — A Chinese envoy said Wednesday that China will continue to actively participate in Iraq's reconstruction, while stressing that the international community should fulfill its commitment to provide help for Iraq.

"China will continue to actively participate in Iraq's reconstruction in sectors such as energy and infrastructure, and under the framework of the Belt and Road," Wu Haitao, China's deputy permanent representative to the United Nations, told the Security Council meeting on the situation concerning Iraq.

"To the best of its abilities, China will provide assistance to Iraq for its economic and social development, and help Iraq achieve peace, stability and development," said the envoy.

Duterte to raise territorial claims in talks with China: Ambassador

BEIJING — President Rodrigo Duterte will bring up territorial issues in his Beijing meeting with Chinese President Xi Jinping, the Philippines ambassador said on Thursday, as tensions rise over claims to the South China Sea.

The Filipino leader faces growing pressure at home to confront China over its aggressive approach to upholding its contested territorial claims in the waterway after largely setting aside the standoff for his years in office.

Beijing claims the majority of the sea, often invoking its so-called nine-dash line to justify its alleged historic rights, but the waters are also contested by Malaysia, the Philippines, Taiwan and Brunei.

"The President has made it clear that from his point of view the time has come" to discuss the issue, said Philippine Ambassador Jose Santiago Santa Romana, noting Thursday's meeting will be the eighth between the two heads of state.

Mine spill turns PNG coastline red

PORT MORESBY — Papua New Guinea officials have sealed off the area around a Chinese-owned nickel plant in the north of the country after the leakage of potentially toxic slurry that has turned the ocean red.

The Mineral Resources Authority said on Thursday it had cordoned off a portion of Basamuk Bay in the north of the country, while emergency tests are carried out to determine the scale of environmental damage.

The water and coastline were dyed ochre red by the slurry, which is said to have overflowed from tanks at the Ramu Nickel refinery for almost an hour. The multibillion facility is run by the state-owned China Metallurgical Group, which mines and processes nickel, a metal widely used in batteries, including in electric cars. The Mineral Resources Authority said it had moved to "prevent villagers from going near or fishing within the affected area" while investigations "determine the nature of the slurry, including toxicity, pH" and whether heavy elements were discharged.

The incident is believed to have taken place at 4:30 am on Saturday, but was not reported until the afternoon. Officials finally reached the site on Monday and they have now been joined by Mining Minister Johnson Tuke.

The probe will "establish any procedural failures on the part of the operator and necessary remedial measures will be imposed", the authority said. "In the meantime, we are placing our efforts in safeguarding the local communities as our priority."—AFP

US-Taliban deal 'close', insurgents claim

KABUL — The US and the Taliban are "close" to a deal that would see the Pentagon slash troop numbers in Afghanistan, the insurgents said Wednesday, although the US military insisted that the country must not become a sanctuary for extremists.

The foes have been meeting in Doha to put the final touches on a historic deal that would see the Taliban make various security guarantees in return for a sharp reduction in the 13,000 or so US troops based in Afghanistan.

"We are close to an agreement. We hope to bring good news for our Muslim and freedom seeking nation soon," Taliban spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid tweeted.

In Washington, General Joseph Dunford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and America's most senior uniformed officer, sounded a note of caution, telling reporters he was not yet using the word "withdrawal" to describe the deal.

"I'm using 'we're going to make sure that Afghanistan is not a sanctuary, and we're going to try to have an effort to bring peace and stability to Afghanistan," he said.

Defence Secretary Mark Esper, standing next to Dunford, also said a deal with the Taliban must guarantee that Afghanistan "is no longer a safe haven for terrorists to attack the United States." AFP

China 'rotates' troops in Hong Kong ahead of planned rallies

HONG KONG — China's military on Thursday said fresh troops had arrived in Hong Kong as part of a routine rotation, as the financial hub prepares for fresh political rallies against Beijing's tightening grip on the city

State media published a video of armoured personnel carriers and trucks driving across the Hong Kong border in the border.

"The Hong Kong Garrison of the Chinese People's Liberation Army on Thursday morning completed the 22nd rotation since it began garrisoning Hong Kong in 1997," Xinhua news agency reported.

A new mass rally was planned for Saturday.

But Hong Kong police denied permission for the demonstration on security grounds, raising the likelihood of another weekend of clashes between police and protesters.

In a letter to the rally organisers the Civil Human Rights Front (CHRF) on Thursday, police said they feared some participants would commit "violent and destructive acts".

Protesters have not only carried out "arson and large scale road blockades but also used petrol bombs, steel balls, bricks, long spears, metal poles, as well as various self-made weapons to destroy public property," the letter said of previous protests.—AFP

S Korea top court sends ex-leader Park's bribery case to lower court

SEOUL — South Korea's Supreme Court on Thursday nullified a lower court ruling that sentenced former President Park Geun Hye to 25 years in prison and sent her corruption case back to a lower court.

In sending the case back to the Seoul High Court, the top court found there had been a violation of rules for trying crimes and ordered separate trials on her charges. It did, however, still find the 67-year-old guilty of accepting bribes, determining that she had conspired with a close friend in doing so.

The lower court had found Park guilty of accepting large bribes from multiple conglomerates, such as Samsung Group, in conspiracy with her close friend, Choi Soon Sil, with the appeals court ordering the former leader to pay 20 billion won ($16.5 million) in penalties.

Park faced bribery and other charges, including accepting a 7 billion won bribe from major conglomerate Lotte Group in conspiracy with Choi.

The former president was also charged with forcing multiple South Korean conglomerates, including Samsung Group, to donate a total of 77.4 billion won to foundations under Choi's control. In Thursday's ruling, the Supreme Court also sent back to a lower court a case involving Samsung Group's de facto leader Jay Y. Lee. He was originally sentenced to five years in prison for bribing Park, but an appeals court had reduced his sentence by half and suspended it for four years.—Kyodo News ■

'Rough and unpredictable': Djokovic troubled by shoulder at US Open

NEW YORK — Defending US Open champion Novak Djokovic complained of feeling "quite rough and unpredictable" as a nagging shoulder problem hampered him during Wednesday's second-round win over Juan Ignacio Londero.

you saw, a medical timeout. At changeovers, I tried to use within the rules as much as I can physiotherapy and medical help. That has definitely helped me stay in the match

"The way it has started for me, especially midway through the first set, I didn't know if I would be able to finish the match."

Djokovic, who is attempting to become the first back-to-back men's champion here since Roger Federer won from 2004-2008, said the problem affected both his serve and backhand. He also revealed it was an issue he has been dealing with for "quite a while".—AFP ■

Lewandowski extends Bayern Munich contract until 2023

BERLIN — Striker Robert Lewandowski has extended his contract at Bayern Munich until 2023, the defending Bundesliga champions announced Thursday.

"FC Bayern is one of the three largest clubs in the world and we have an outstanding team. I am proud to be part of this club," said the 31-year-old, who has scored 207 Bundesliga goals in 292 appearances for Bayern and former club Dortmund.

Lewandowski, reportedly one of Bayern's highest paid stars on 15 million euros ($16.6m) per season, will be approaching his 35th birthday by the time his new contract expires in June 2023.

His pre-season demands that Bayern sign more players to strengthen their star-studded squad seem to have been appeased by the arrival of Brazil midfielder Paulino Coutinho from Barcelona and back-up striker Ivan Perisic from Inter Milan.

"FC Bayern has become my sporting home. We also feel very comfortable as a family in Munich," added Lewandowski, whose wife gave birth to a daughter in 2017.

"I am convinced that we will achieve a lot more in the coming æars."

Bayern are delighted to have secured the long-term future of their star striker amid persistent rumours he was being courted by Real Madrid.

"Robert is for me the best centre forwards in the world and for years a supporting pillar of our team," said Bayern chairman Karl-Heinz Rummenigge.

"We are therefore very happy that he will be playing for FC Bayern for a long time to come".

Lewandowski wrote himself into Bayern folklore by scoring five goals in just nine minutes during a Bundesliga match in 2015.
