The industrial complex for economic cooperation of the two countries has been a milestone for both nations, and it is expected to attract more investments from ROK, making the bilateral cooperation stronger.

The Vice President said he also appreciated the assistance of the ROK President and his country, together with the relevant organizations, in establishing the industrial complex.

He also congratulated the ROK's New Southern Policy that aimed to promote cooperation with ASEAN member countries and India.

The Vice President also explained that Myanmar was making reform processes to create a more decent destination in the country for investors as it had adopted a people-centered all-inclusive sustainable economic development policy, and its 12 economic policies were geared for the sustainable development of the country. Meanwhile, the country has been practicing an investment policy which supported the national economic policy and economic development of the country.

Myanmar did not discriminate investors, and had been inviting responsible investments that could develop the country such as in infrastructure by adopting a sound legal framework.

Myanmar was trying to adopt the best international practices like other countries of the world including ASEAN members, in order to attract foreign investments, and was striving to overcome all the obstacles faced by the country.

The country occupied a geographically strategic position in the region, and had lower labour wages and human resources. These opportunities have provided great benefits for the manufacturing sector in the country, and had developed industrial and economic zones with partner countries.

The ROK was a country that was putting in major investments in the manufacturing and infrastructure sector of Myanmar. Due to the development of the private sector and its cooperation with the state sector, the investment flow from ROK had gradually increased in Myanmar year by year. According to the figures of the Myanmar Investment Commission up to July 2019, Myanmar had permitted US$81 billion worth of 1,779 businesses from 50 countries. The ROK had already invested $3.9 billion for 177 investment projects, standing at the 6th position among foreign investor countries.

In scrutinizing the investment proposals, Myanmar has favoured responsible businesses which take into consideration conservation of the natural environment and social environment.

In this regard, the investments of ROK were found to meet the priority sectors for the promotion of Myanmar's foreign investment.

Vice President U Myint Swe concluded that ROK's investments have brought employment opportunities, knowledge and skills into the country, and it was believed to create a better socio-economic situation for the Myanmar people. He also made a wish for further success in bilateral cooperation between Myanmar and ROK.

Also present at the ceremony were Union Minister Dr Pe Myint, U Han Zaw and U Thauung Tun; Yangon Region's Chief Minister U Phyo Min Thein and the regional cabinet members, Myanmar Ambassador to ROK U Thant Sin, ROK Ambassador to Myanmar Mr Lee Sang-hwa, the members of the Union of Myanmar Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Chairman & CEO of Korea International Trade Association and businesspersons of the two countries.

President of the Republic of Korea Moon Jae-in said that in the vicinity of Myanmar's economic capital, Yangon, a large-scale complex has been constructed housing a whole host of industrial infrastructure with capacity for various industries, including fashion, textiles, construction and telecommunications.

It is a significant result of the efforts of two governments working towards a common goal. And in doing so, Myanmar and Korea will together be able to go beyond Asia and into the global market. He said his appreciation that Korea may take its part in the powerful leap of Myanmar's economy.

He also expressed his sincere gratitude to both the Myanmar Ministry of Construction and the Korea Land & Housing Corporation for their efforts in launching the Korea-Myanmar Industrial Complex.

Myanmar is the hub that links 3.4 billion consumers in China, India and the ASEAN. With a population of 53 million, half of which comprised young individuals below the age of 30 years old, Myanmar is a young and dynamic nation.

Myanmar government's economic reforms have resulted in consistently rapid growth of 6-7% per year, growth visibly represented by daily changes to its skyline as hotels and shopping malls are constructed. Myanmar is making fast and strong progress in keeping with the country's name.

It is all thanks to the hard work and achievements you have accomplished together. He also expressed his hope that the Korea-Myanmar industrial Complex will be a stepping stone in creating the "miracle of the Ayeyawady River" in Myanmar, just as Korea made possible the "miracle of the Han River" through economic growth.

During the Korean War 70 years ago, Myanmar provided

$50,000 worth of rice in aid to the Korean people, this was life changing to those who had to worry about each meal in the ruins of the war.

The bilateral trade volume between the two nations amounted to over $1 billion for the seventh consecutive year, as a result of the complementary relationship that has formed. The two countries have many things in common.

Myanmar's culture of public offerings, sharing meals and building virtues resembles Korea's similarly Buddhist culture. Moreover, there is a shared culture of respecting elders and observing the rules of manner.

Myanmar and Korea have nurtured a close relationship allowing them to be able to create stronger economic cooperation through shared culture and emotion.

Myanmar's "Sustainable Development Plan" is composed of three pillars: "Peace and Stability", "Prosperity and Partnership", and "People and the Earth". The Republic of Korea's new southern policy seeks to prosper with ASEAN, sharing much of the same philosophy and goals as of what is contained in Myanmar's development plan of "cooperation for people, coexistence and peace." Based on these common goals, he highlighted three future-oriented cooperation directions for both countries.

The ROK President said, "First of all, we will strengthen cooperation among those who are willing to share knowledge and experience. Myanmar's enthusiasm for higher education and outstanding human resources are the cornerstones of a new economy. We will endeavor to strengthen our higher education capacity and cooperate utilizing direct education to innovate Myanmar's education system to ensure the successful operation of Myanmar's R&D and Trade and Investment Promotion Organizations which will play a pivotal role in economic development, we will share experiences and cooperate."

He added, "Cooperation" and "Start-up innovation" agreed yesterday will bring about an opportunity to explore and develop promising future projects such as bio, nano, space, and nuclear power industries. Second of all, we will reinforce cooperation in building infrastructure that contributes to helping people's lives as well as industries. Our two countries have successfully cooperated in the construction of infrastructure such as with the Korea-Myanmar Friendship Bridge, the construction of transmission networks, railway expanded thanks to support from export financing and investment guarantee agreements.

He also pledged to promote and enhance cultural exchange while expanding cooperation on household goods. A K-Pop audition program in Korea inspired a similar program to be made in Myanmar; 'Myanmar Galaxy star', and a joint film coproduced between Korea and Myanmar has greatly enhanced cultural content exchange between the dedicated to Korean franchises, allowing Myanmar consumers to get to know more about Korea and its culture.

He also expressed his hope that this exchange of culture will be expanded with new items and services in Myanmar, and expected that the rich culture and household goods of Myanmar will be introduced and loved by the Korean people.

In commemorating the 30th anniversary of Dialogue with the day's event will be a place where businessmen from both countries build friendships and whereby we may all ride the same boat for peace and prosperity. The Korea-Myanmar Economic Industrial Complex is just a starting point towards greater things and closer ties.

He concluded his speech with saying to continue to help each other, learn together and move upwards and onwards toward a brighter future.

After the speech, a video on Myanmar-ROK economic cooperation was shown.

President Korea Moon Jae-in also attended the signing ceremony of MoU's for nine Korean companies which will be investing in Myanmar.

Then, the launching ceremony of the Korea-Myanmar Economic Industrial Complex was held.

President Korea Moon Jae-in, Vice President U Myint Swe, Union Minister U Han Zaw and Yangon Region's Chief Minister U Phyo Min Thein drove the ceremonial stakes to launch the project.

Both sides then posed for documentary photos.

At the ceremony, Yangon Region Government and KB Kookmin Bank signed an MoU for financial cooperation in the real estate sector. The regional government and Korea Land Housing Corporation also signed an MoU for the preliminary survey of the Dala New City Project.

The UMFCCI and the Woori Financial Group also signed an MoU for cooperation in economic development, holding economic forums regularly and exchange of economic information between the two countries.— MNA

He continued that the two countries have hoped to further cooperate with each other through the $1 billion external economic cooperation fund agreed by the two countries. The Economic Industrial Complex will provide companies with well-equipped infrastructure to help businesses operate stably and successfully.

When 'Korea Desk', a window for Korean companies, is established, investment and entry of companies will be further

He also quoted State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, saying "The film has the power of unity."

The ROK's President also said that culture and its exchange plays a significant role in understanding each other on a deeper level. Myanmar's interest in Korean household goods such as food, cosmetics, and fashion also enhances the close relationship existing between the two countries.

Currently, the largest shopping mall in Myanmar has a space

He also quoted Myanmar proverb that goes 'from the moment you get on a boat, you are traveling together.'

Improving transport infrastructure can help uplift rural areas

AS an agricultural country, Myanmar must give priority to building its transport infrastructure, especially for agricultural products in rural areas, which underpin the country's GDP.

Besides, by making roads and bridges accessible all year long, people living near them can travel faster and more easily to markets to sell agricultural products. Their income would rise and living conditions improve significantly.

Infrastructural development of the regions and states can play a crucial role in helping increase the country's GDP. Better road networks are required to transport finished products to the market.

Hence, the Union Government has adopted a strategy to turn 80 per cent of rural roads into all-weather ones by 2030.

The move to help realize this dream came yesterday, with the Pyidaungsu Hlutaw giving its nod to the Ministry of Construction and the Ministry of Planning and Finance to borrow US$51.20 million from the Asia Development Bank.

In support of the strategy, the ADB has offered a loan to Myanmar, and if we can sign the agreement by December, we can enjoy the grant of $5.8 million, and so, the actual amount of loan would be reduced to US$45.4 million.

The loan would be spent on building transportation infrastructure in Ayeyawady Region and Magway Region first, and it will be utilized for similar projects in other regions and states next year.

The Ayeyawady Region is a delta area full of rivers and creeks. With fertile land and abundant aquatic resources, agriculture is a major source of livelihood for the local people.

The region was widely known as the granary of Myanmar, and the promotion of its agricultural sector is largely dependent on easy access to the area.

Developing road networks would help make this delta area reachable, without consuming much time.

Meanwhile, reliable road transport could support farmers who grow peas, pulses, and sesame in the Magway Region of central Myanmar.

Developing basic infrastructure across the country would help farmers avoid wastage and derive greater benefits.

Hence, the process for borrowing the loan from the ADB should be completed by December.

We are confident that the rural transport system and farm-to-market roads, in general, can help improve the economic conditions of farmers, who make up 70 per cent of our labour force.

Improving graduate employability

By Dr. Myo Kywai (Hsinbaungwae)

THE National Education Policy Commission and the Union of Myanmar Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry (UMFCCI) discussed matters relating to the University-Industry Engagement 23 August 2019. UMFCCI adviser Dr Aung Tun Thet said that according to the demand and supply mechanism, there must be an almost 100 per cent balanced ratio between the number of graduates and diploma holders produced by universities, colleges and technical schools and the employment demand, and warned that if not there might be mismatching.

In some cases, the demand may be low although the supply is high as the latter doesn't meet the academic qualification of a particular demand. But in other cases business companies face a shortage of required employees and a high cost of providing courses for recruits as the supply of professionals for a particular job

Human resources development through academic learning will take time, as it is a long term undertaking that never shows results in a short period. It can take two to three years for the teachers of the institutions of higher learning to complete their further studies such as master's degree courses and doctorate courses abroad. So, our country's human resources will need five to ten years of time to gain extra acceleration. If we can have foreign aid, we can arrange programs in which professors and technicians from abroad will give lectures on various subjects in Myanmar. The initial research deals with identifying prioritized subjects for short-term development of the national economy. For example, Some institutions of higher learning in Myanmar are running courses on tourism. These courses or subjects can be prioritized.

As a matter of fact, tourism is a smoke-less industry, earning much income for the country. Accordingly, those subjects should be also lectured at other universities and colleges so that graduates of those higher learning schools will have higher employment opportunities.

Our team visited Chiang Mai in Thailand in June 2019 to attend educational workshops and to visit the universities of Thailand's second largest city. Although Chiang Mai airport seemed to be smaller than Yangon Airport, the number passengers it is handling is twice or thrice larger than our main airport. According to the 2018 record, Myanmar welcomed 3.58 million in that year. Thailand hopes to receive 40.1 million tourists in 2019, and of them over 10 million will enter the country through Chiang Mai airport.

The Faculty of Social Sciences of Chiang Mai University has a tourism department and the courses on tourism subjects conducted by the School of Tourism Development of Maejo University. They are conducting diploma courses and master's degree and doctorate courses, apart from bachelor degree courses, which are providing human resources for the generating the country's foreign exchange income through the smokeless industry. There are tourism departments in other universities of Thailand that are also acting as human resources developers of the industry.

Without a doubt, tourism is the fastest growing and the most successful industry in the world. Globally, it employs 270 million people, and in Thailand alone, over six million people are involved in the industry. If we leave no stone unturned in our quest for tourism develop through inclusive efforts, the industry will earn more money for the nation and generate more job opportunities for its citizens. We can conduct the following diploma courses, bachelor degree courses, master's degree courses and doctorate courses in connection with various branches tourism industry at our institutions of higher learning.

Without a doubt, tourism is the fastest growing and the most successful industry in the world. Globally, it employs 270 million people, and in Thailand alone, over six million people are involved in the industry.

We can also carry out cultural tourism, eco-tourism, environmental tourism and agro-tourism, apart from ordinary tourist services. We saw with our own eyes the practical us of tourism related courses as a source of income by universities in Chiang Mai.

Our country can also run diploma courses, bachelor degree courses and master's degree courses on food development, culinary, food science and technology. Although we have an abundant domestic supply of milk and fruits including grapes, we have to dig deep into our pockets as we are consuming milk, milk powder, butter, cheese that come from Australia, New Zealand, Thailand and China because of the weakness in our packaging technology. Moreover, lack of technology has pushed us to rely mainly on imported wines and various kinds of fruit juices which are more expensive than the local ones. Our reliance on the import will continue till we can disseminate require technology through the respective courses in our country. We also need laboratories, testing processes and up-to-date production technologies for our goods to meet the international level.

In this regards, we should reduce the number of diploma courses, bachelor degree courses and further studies which are not in conformity with the age, and should increase the number of professional courses and research and development programs that may be beneficial for the State.

MYANMAR traditional handmade lantern businesses are earning a good income due to high demand in the rural market ahead of the light festival of the Thadingyut season, according to traditional handmade lantern makers.

“Normally, sales of lanterns rise in July (Warso), and most of the lanterns are sent to the rural regions by the end of July. As for the urban market, we have to send the lanterns in August. Furthermore, the cost of making the lanterns is increasing year after year due to the high price of raw materials,” said Ma Htay Kyi, a traditional lantern maker.

Myanmar traditional lanterns are usually made ahead of the Thadingyut Festival at 42nd street, southern part of Ward 840 in Mahaangmyay Township, Mandalay Region. Most of the lanterns are purchased from Kyaukse, Sagaing, Shwebo, Namhkam, and Wundwin towns.

The price of handmade lanterns ranges from K150 to K3,500, depending on the size and design. Lantern makers are designing a variety of shapes, including Pyittinehtaung, giant, cube, aéroplane, truck, ship, rabbit, peacock, and other animal shapes, to penetrate the kid's market.

“After the Thingyan festival, lantern makers start to trim the bamboos for raw drawing and the transparent papers needed to put on the shaped bamboos. The lanterns are sent to the markets after they are painted and sun-dried. At present, the sales of traditional handmade lanterns have declined compared to the previous years due to the inflow of China-made lanterns in the local market,” said Ko Phoe Kyaw, a traditional lantern maker.

“Myanmar traditional handmade lanterns are made of bamboo, transparent paper, wooden wheel, glue, and clothes string. Previously, entire wards conducted lantern businesses, but now, there are only four or five makers left due to the high cost of raw materials. Moreover, traditional lanterns can be easily damaged by the rain,” said the lantern makers. — Tinzar Hlaing (IPRD)

A delegation led by Mr Edgar Kwan, the Chairman of the Myanmar-Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce and Industry-MHKCCI, met with the Yangon Region Chief Minister Tuesday to discuss promotion of investment. They spoke at the opening ceremony of the Myanmar-Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce and Industry at Sule Shangri-la Hotel, Yangon.

At the opening ceremony, the Yangon Region Chief Minister said that Myanmar has eased investment rules to attract more investors to the country. The country is also upgrading the Asian highway that will benefit logistics and trade flow for India, China, and ASEAN countries. The regional government is welcoming investments, he said.

The stakeholders discussed matters to accelerate Yangon-based mutual investment activities through the establishment of the Myanmar-Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

Hong Kong has been working towards closer economic integration with ASEAN countries, including Myanmar. Economic interaction between Myanmar and Hong Kong has been increasing rapidly.

Hong Kong has emerged as the fourth largest investor in Myanmar, after Singapore, China, and Thailand. Between 1988 and July, 2019, 210 enterprises from Hong Kong brought in foreign direct investment of US$8.27 billion into Myanmar, according to official data on existing enterprises provided by the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration.

Meanwhile, the value of Myanmar's bilateral trade with Hong Kong touched $210 million in the October-July period in the current fiscal year, with exports surpassing imports, according to data provided by the Ministry of Commerce.

Between October and July, Myanmar shipped goods worth $195.5 million to Hong Kong and imported goods valued at $14.67 million.

Myanmar's major items of export to Hong Kong include precious stones, agricultural products, fishery products, and garments. The nation mainly imports telecommunications equipment and optical goods from Hong Kong.—San Kyaw Oo/ Ko Khant

Sesame from Myaing, Yaw regions enters Pakokku market

SESAME from Myaing and Yaw regions began entering the Pakokku market starting September, according to local sesame merchants.

“Although brown sesame and yellow sesame have entered Pakokku market, there are only a few products in the market. The market price of brown sesame is K46,000 per viss, while that of yellow sesame is K44,500,” said a local merchant.

“Brown sesame and yellow sesame that have entered the market contain acid residue. So, the market price of sesame is around K45,000. The price of high quality sesame will be up to K50,000 per viss,” he said.

“New sesame from Yaw region has started to enter the market. But, the volume is low as farmers have just started harvesting sesame. More sesame will enter the market in the days to come. Some farmers got the sesame while it was raining. Such sesame has been found to contain acid residue, and its price is, thus, only over K40,000 per viss,” he added. “Although there is high demand, buyers are looking at the quality of the sesame,” said the local merchant.

Last year, the price of sesame hit a record high in Pakokku market due to high demand from merchants. At the time, the market price of black sesame reached around K90,000 per viss. —Aye Cho (Translated by Hay Mar)

Private sector agro exports show slight decrease in current fiscal

PRIVATE sector agro exports have fallen slightly by US$28 million, while public sector exports have showed an increase of $356.6 million in the past eleven months of the current fiscal year compared with the year-ago period, as per figures released by the Commerce Ministry.

Between 1 October, 2018 and 23 August, 2019, Myanmar's exports of agricultural products crossed $2.98 billion from $2.65 billion in the corresponding period of the 2017-2018FY. While the public sector shipped agricultural products worth $1.34 billion, the value of private sector agro exports was registered at $1.6 billion.

In the exports sector, the agriculture industry showed the highest performance, along with the natural gas sector. The chief items of export in the agricultural sector are rice and broken rice, pulses, corn, and rubber. Fruits and vegetables, sesame, dried tea leaves, sugar, and other agro products are also exported to other countries.

Myanmar agro products are primarily exported to China, Singapore, Malaysia, the Philippines, Bangladesh, India, Indonesia, and Sri Lanka. However, the export market remains uncertain due to unsteady global demand.

“Myanmar is facing slower access to market information, which sometimes causes obstacles to exports. Moreover, the country has poor logistics and warehouse infrastructure, thereby, the quality of fruits suffers,” said an official from the Myanmar Fruit, Flower and Vegetable Producer and Exporter Association (MFVP).

According to the Myanmar Rice Federation, quality control and food safety are key to the promotion of exports. Therefore, improved agricultural practices need to be developed.

“Additionally, the country requires specific export plans for each agro product, as they are currently exported to external markets based upon supply and demand. Contract farming systems involving regional and state agriculture departments, exporters, traders, and some grower groups are required in order to meet production targets,” said an official from the Agriculture Department.

The Commerce Ministry is working to help farmers deal with challenges, such as high input costs, procurement of pedigree seeds, high cultivation costs, and erratic weather conditions.— Ko Htet

Over 30 firms show interest in Yangon water distribution project

By Nyein Nyein

THE Yangon City Development Committee (YCDC) has invited Expressions of Interest (EOI) for a project for zoning the water distribution system in the city under public-private partnership (PPP), and over 30 local and foreign companies have inquired about the project and purchased application forms, said U Myint Zaw Than, the head of the Water Resources and Water Supply Authority Office under the YCDC's Engineering Department.

"Interested local, international, and joint-venture companies can purchase EOI documents at the Water Resources and Water Supply Authority Office in YCDC's 12-storey new office building at No 390, Merchant Road, Botahtaung Township, Yangon, Myanmar, from 28 August. Within a week, 33 companies have come to buy the forms at the YCDC," he said. "Sealed applications need to be delivered in person to the Water Resources and Water Supply Authority Office by 28 October. EOI documents submitted later than the designated time and date will not be considered," he added.

After the evaluation of EOIs, the Tender Committee will invite Proposal Bids from applicants who have been prequalified.

The YCDC is planning to privatize water distribution as it is dealing with water pipe leakages, water losses, and shortage of staff, said U Maung Maung Soe, Yangon Mayor.

Additionally, the current rates for water supply do not cover production costs, he said.

"Water meter bills must include the charges for laying pipe networks and water distribution costs. If we compare the water meter rates with the distribution cost, the existing bills are much lower than that, excluding the cost of machines. Thus, like in the case of power supply, the government is making a loss on running the service," said U Maung Maung Soe. However, there is no plan to hike the water rate for now, he added.

"At present, the Yangon authorities are raising awareness about systematic water meter installation, dealing with water pipe leakages, unsystematic water consumption, management of water loss in urban water distribution, and curbing illegal connections to the water pipe network," said the Yangon Mayor.

Currently, the rates for water are K88 per unit (220 gallons) for households and K120 per unit for businesses. The Gyophyu, Phoo Gyi, and Nga Moe Yeik reservoirs are the main sources of water supply in Yangon, providing over 2 million gallons of water every day, about half of which gets wasted due to water losses and leakages in the supply system.

Unlicensed food cars will be penalised: YCDC

By Nyein Nyein

MOBILE food car vendors will face one-month imprisonment if they are found operating without a licence, said U Kyaw Min, the head of the Administrative Department of the Yangon City Development Committee (YCDC)

"Unlicensed food car vendors will be fined K10,000 to K100,000 at the first instance. If they continue operating without a licence, they will face one-month imprisonment. Moreover, food car vendors are not allowed to sell food in six townships of downtown Yangon. They can sell food in other townships," he said. "Licences are not being issued to mobile food car vendors in six townships of downtown Yangon. This is because, they may act like street vendors on the Yangon main roads. At present, action is being taken against food car vendors. Car vendors can sell food in other townships except the downtown areas. But, they can operate only at fixed locations, where vehicles can be stopped without causing traffic congestion. However, sales must not be conducted the whole day," said U Kyaw Min.

"Vendors holding business licenses are obligated to follow the rules embodied in the licence. If they are found violating the rules, they will face a fine and get their licence revoked for a period of one to three months, or permanently," he added. The YCDC is currently issuing mobile food vending license. However, unlicensed vendors are still operating in Yangon.

Mobile vendors can register with the YCDC if they hold an e-driving licence issued by the Road and Transportation Administration Department by presenting the vehicle registration book, said U Kyaw Min.

"Only Yangon licensed trucks can apply for business licenses. While seeking a license, the vendors have to present the vehicle registration book and a copy of the wheel tax receipt, census, tax receipt from the related Internal Revenue Department, and a commitment to follow the rules and food descriptions," said U Kyaw Min.

Currently, licences have been issued to over 170 cars vendors, according to YCDC data. (Translated by Ei Myat Mon)

Myanmar Steel Industry getting ready to support industrialization and modernization

Zaw Min GNLM

STEEL plays an important role in industrialization and modernization. Before bulk production of steel with Bessemer process, steel production was very expensive to produce and was used in small and expensive items like knives, swords and armour. With Bessemer process and modification of it, steel became a major source of the world's industrial economy providing the base on which industries develop.

First steel frame structure in Myanmar if not Asia

The first steel structure building in Myanmar, if not Asia, was reported to be the New Court Building constructed in Yangon during the colonial period. The British Governor of Myanmar Sir Harcourt Butler laid the foundation stone for the New Court Building in March 1927. Steel frames produced by Dorman & Long Company were used to construct this building and this company also provided steel frames for the famous Sydney Harbour Bridge in Australia. During the colonial period of early 19th and 20th century, iron works and steels were produced in the west only. New Court Building was the latest heritage building to be awarded with a Blue Plaque and was now being renovated as Rosewood Yangon Hotel. This building close to 100 years old shows the durability of steel structures.

Opening of the economy and establishment of industrial zones

opens up its economy to become a market economy from the centrally planned socialist economy. When industrial zones were established, new factories were built with modern steel structures. Initially, as in the colonial period, steel structures were imported. Steel structures custom made to the local requirements were fabricated by foreign steel fabricators and imported into the country. The difference between colonial period and the 1990s was production of steel. Even though Myanmar was not a steel producer, countries like Japan and China in Asia were producing steel that were competitive both in quality and price wise. As more and more industrial zones were established with factories constructed by steel, local business person saw opportunity in the steel fabrication business and a local company Southern Metal Industry (SMI) Co., Ltd. became the first local steel fabricator producing steel structures with imported steel.

Expanding into other construction sector

More and more local steel fabrication companies entered into the market as industrial sector and construction sector booms. Office buildings, banks, car showrooms, shopping malls as well as houses were quickly constructed with steel structures in addition to factory buildings. In addition to I and H beams, local steel companies were producing box columns for high-rise buildings and bridges.

First steel structure high rise in Yangon

Another factor pointing to the emergence of steel was in the building construction sector. The under construction M Tower high-rise building situated between Hledan Centre and Asia Green Development Bank in Kamayut Township, Yangon was a milestone in Myanmar's building construction sector. While New Court Building mentioned earlier was the first steel structure building in Myanmar at least if not in Asia as claimed, M Tower was the highest steel structure building to be constructed in Myanmar with many more to follow. This modern steel structure high rise was constructed by Mottama Holding Company with steel structures produced by Min Dhama Steel Structures Co., Ltd. which was part of Mottama Holdings. Raw materials used in the buildings were imported from China, South Korea and Japan and more than 8,000 tons of quality Japan technology steel were being used.

Fabrication of special steel structures

Another development in Myanmar steel fabrication sector was SMI's fabrication of special steel structures for Pang Pet Steel Mill No. 1 of Heavy Industries Enterprise, Ministry of Industry. This was another forward step of Myanmar steel fabrication sector from importing steel and producing I, H beams and box columns to fabricating custom made special steel structures.

Requirement of regulations and regulatory bodies

With the stated developments in the Myanmar steel sector, there was no reason for Made-in-Myanmar steel to thrive in Myanmar market and export to foreign market. Some local steel fabricators were already doing this already. Our labour cost as well as workmanship in the steel sector is highly competitive compared to its neighbours.

As a local consultant recently pointed out in an article "The future of Myanmar's steel industry is in the Government's hands" (Global New Light of Myanmar 1 September 2019 issue), Myanmar to its credit plays by the rules and was not putting up tariffs while some of its competitors in the region were imaginatively putting up a wide ranging barriers to the smooth entry of our own steel into their market. Furthermore lack of regulation and oversight in Myanmar was allowing sub-quality steel products into the local market under cutting the quality based price of local players.

This is similar to smuggled low quality goods entering into the country illegally threatening the existence and survival of local producers. A free and fair trade is good for the market players as well as the consumer by providing quality products and services at competitive rates. A free and unfair or unregulated trade provide poor products and services at dirt cheap rates that are detrimental to quality producer and the consumer alike while promoting traders and producers of sub-standard products and services.

Government moving toward setting up regulations and regulatory bodies

Sensing this, our incumbent government was doing much needed reforms. Recently, at the 14th-day meeting of Second Pyithu Hluttaw's 13th regular session held on 27 August 2019, Deputy Minister for Industry had said that at the moment under the title of state-owned enterprises (SOEs), the SOEs were conducting the (multiple and conflicting) functions of policy maker, regulator, public service and economic entities.

As per international practice, SOEs were to be classified and the transition or transformation needs to be systematically implemented.

The meaning was to separate the functions so that the SOEs were not in a conflict of interest mode affecting the business sector it was in.

Earlier in the 10th-day meeting of Second Pyidaungsu Hluttaw's seventh regular session held on 26 February 2018, Deputy Minister for Construction said the ministry was moving forward as much as possible to convert its departments into regulatory bodies instead of being SOEs.

The first to become a regulatory body was Department of Building. Starting from 1 April 2018 the Department of Rural Development will not conduct any work on its own with the union budget. However, if governments of states/regions request the ministry, the department will continue to work until 30 September 2019, and starting from 1 October 2019, it will become a regulatory body, said the Deputy Minister.

For the Department of Road and Department of Bridge to become a regulatory body, standards and specifications, rules and regulations, laws, standard operation procedures, policies and plans are being drawn up with the help of the Asian Development Bank. Once this is done, the plan is for the two departments to become a regulatory body before December 2020, explained the Deputy Minister.

The sooner these transitions and reforms were accomplished to Ministry of Construction and Ministry of Industry, the better it'll be for Myanmar steel industry. And the sooner such transitions and reforms were accomplished in other ministries, the better it'll be for the country, the people and the economy.

THE Myanmar national football team will take on Mongolia's national team at the 2022 World Cup Qualifiers at 3.30 p.m. (Myanmar Standard Time) today at the Football Stadium in Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia.

A pre-match conference for the qualifiers was held yesterday at the Holiday Inn in Ulaanbaatar.

The head coach of the Mongolian team, Michael Weib, said that Myanmar is a very strong team.

He said that under the helm of the new head coach, team

Myanmar is very different and strong.

"The match will not be easy. Myanmar's youth players from the era of former head coach Gerd Zeise are currently star players," he said.

"Myanmar has become better within a two-year period, not only in tactical, but also the physical aspects, but we are hoping for the best result on our home venue," said the Mongolian head coach.

The captain of the Mongolian national football team, Tsedenbal Norjmoo, said that their team met team Myanmar in 2011, and Myanmar is quick, with fast strikers.

The fast strikers of Myanmar can make the game difficult for Mongolia, he said. The captain said his team will need to focus hard in the face-off with Myanmar. He also said the match will be thrilling as both teams have talented young players.

The head coach of Myanmar, Miodrag Radulović, said that in his experience, all the openers will be tough, especially with the team playing under different weather conditions, time, and venue. Earlier, Myanmar was defeated on Mongolian turf, but this time will be different, and the team will shape a good result, he said. The goalkeeper of team Myanmar, Kyaw Zin Htet, also revealed that this is the second time Myanmar has played in Mongolia.

"Like us, team Mongolia are far better, with strong players with better stamina and power of play. We will compete with respect, and do everything to gain a victory in the opening match," said Kyaw Zin Htet.—Lynn Thit (Tgi)

England pick Marchant for Italy match despite World Cup omission

LONDON (United Kingdom)—England have selected from outside their World Cup squad for Friday's final warm-up match against Italy by naming Joe Marchant at outside centre in a "mix-and-match selection". Marchant is not in the 31-man squad bound for Japan on September 8 but slots into the midfield alongside Piers Francis, with captain Owen Farrell starting the final warm-up fixture at fly-half.

Two further players not picked for Japan 2019 are present on the bench in lock Charlie Ewels and flanker Matt Kvesic.

Ruaridh McConnochie finally makes his debut on the right wing after two aborted attempts in the double header against Wales due to hip and hamstring injuries. The Bath sevens specialist forms a rapid back three alongside Anthony Watson and Leicester flyer Jonny May.

Henry Slade has lost his battle with a knee injury and misses the last opportunity to get some game time before the World Cup and Ben Youngs is given another run at scrum-half.

Star number eight Billy Vunipola will make his fourth start of the campaign. Mark Wilson makes his first start of the summer at openside flanker and Tom Curry is given another run at six.

"We have gone with a mix-and-match selection policy to develop our adaptability and the team's ability to cope with any situation," said England coach Eddie Jones. England have enjoyed a promising World Cup warm-up series, with a win against Wales at Twickenham and crushing victory over Ireland only slightly offset by a narrow defeat in Cardiff.

Italy complete the four fixtures in the nation's first outing at St James' Park, two days before the squad set off for a pre-tournament training camp in Miyazaki. "We have had a solid training week in Treviso with hot conditions so we are looking forward to testing ourselves against Italy on Friday night," said Jones. "Then we hop on the plane and are ready to go to Japan." —AFP ■
