Union Minister Thura U Aung Ko, in his capacity as the chairman of 'Aung San' Film Production Committee, briefed on preparations for the overall production of the film.

The production working committee for Aung San film was formed with 17 members by the order of Union Government Office on 24 November 2017. The working committee formed the seven sub-committees on 8 December 2017 to manage the production.

Thura U Aung Ko said that his committee has accepted K1.234398873 billion and US$4,813 — K846. 895873 million and $4,813 — from the previous Aung San Movie Team and K387.503000 million from Bogyoke Aung San Film Production Committee. He added the funds were being handled by the working inspection sub-committee in accordance with the financial rules.

The office of Bogyoke Aung San Film Production Committee was established at No. 131, KabaAye Road in Bahan Township, Yangon, on 28 January 2018 to prepare for the production.

Two licenses were applied for production of 'Aung San Film' on 13 December last year. The screen serials comprising 117 parts were completed on 7 June 2019. The dialogues of characters have been written and reviewed by the subcommittee for historical record. This subcommittee also approved the facts presented by the team of property designer which also collected items for the movie.

Meanwhile, the costume designer team has already created the sample military dresses, and double-checked with those in the Defence Services Museum.

The Woseley car with number plate RC-2874 used by Bogyoke Aung San was repaired at Htoo Automobile Service to be used in the movie. It has been returned to its department on 20 May 2019.

Dr Daw Su Zar Zar Htay Yi, the music lecturer who received her doctorate degree in music from Japan.

The Union Minister said the production committee was preparing for other needs such as hospital setting, a steam locomotive, a tram, Hai Lee Ship, and the residence of late Colonel Suzuki in Japan, as well as generators for shooting.

Director U Lu Min and U Soe Kyaw San visited Japan to study this residence and country scenes for the shooting. Director Academy Alinkar Kyaw Swa U Soe Moe and U Lu Min have selected the artists for the roles of Japanese characters.

film in 2020. He also expressed thanks for the assistance of all persons concerned, including the Ministry of Information, the Myawady Television, private broadcast media, and press.

The film's Director U Lu Min also said that research for this film had given him a wider knowledge on Bogyoke Aung San. He also requested to see this film as a movie rather than historical record, action movie or biopic. It would present about independence struggles in Myanmar, the inception of Tatmadaw, Aung San as a youth and university student, his works as a University student leader, a politician, a military chief, a national leader, a state leader and an architect of the country's independence.

He also added the film was believed to give the message about how the young Aung San endeavoured for the independence of this country. He also added the members of various production committees tried hard to produce this film by following all the four levels of endeavor before they reached the last and fourth level with determined efforts.

There are 29 industrial zones in Yangon Region, and about 60 per cent of the plots are being utilized, while the remaining plots are not being used. If they remain undeveloped after warnings, the plots will be seized.

“Yangon Region has 29 industrial zones, including the Thilawa Special Economic Zone (SEZ). Sixty per cent of the plots are being used by businesses to run operations, some are under construction, and on some, only warehouses and fencing have been built. The regional minister for Electricity, Industry and Transportation is collecting data, and the ministry has also urged entrepreneurs to start operations on the plots at the earliest. If the plots remain undeveloped after the warning, we plan to seize them,” said U Than.

“At present, the responsibility of the management of land on industrial zones is with the YCDC. Therefore, it will keep supervising land operation activities,” U Than added.

Suggestions were invited from the public on the Industrial Zone Bill on 3 May. Twenty chapters and 80 sections have been embodied in the bill. As per Chapter 10 on investor obligations and exemptions, each and every construction project has to be completed by them within a fixed period. If they fail to do so, a reasonable reason must be provided to the respective industrial zone committee, along with the recommendation of the Industry Zone Management Committee. If the reason is not sufficient, their business permit would be revoked, as per rules and regulations.

According to Chapter 11 of the Industrial Zone Bill, businesspersons who hold plots in industrial zones and leave them unused have to seek approval from the authority by forwarding their plans within six months of the law coming into effect. If they fail to complete the project within two years, the plots will be seized by the respective industrial zone committee, and 50 per cent of the land's value will be reimbursed to them.

Additionally, under Chapter

19 of the bill, business owners can face a maximum sentence of three years' imprisonment, if they violate any rules.

The amended Industrial Zone Bill was approved by the Pyithu Hluttaw on 3 September.

There were 2,389 privately owned petrol stations across the country as of 27 December, 2018. Over the next nine months, the authorities issued licenses for opening 187 more petrol stations, which has brought the number of private petrol stations to 2,576 as of 18 September.

As of 18 September, petrol distribution and sale licenses have been issued to 94 stations in Union Territories, 183 in Yangon Region, 631 in Mandalay Region, 211 in Ayeyawady Region, 257 in Bago Region, 177 in Magway Region, 224 in Sagaing Region, 28 in Taninthayi Region, 110 in Kachin State, 18 in Kayah State, 50 in Kayin State, four in Chin State, 131 in Mon

State, 38 in Rakhine State, 57 in Shan State (East), 193 in Shan State (North), and 170 in Shan State (South).

Myanmar imports 90 per cent of its fuel oil, while 10 per cent is produced locally.

Myanmar imported over 4.957 million tons of fuel, worth over US$2.942 billion between October and August in the current fiscal, a decline of over 480,000 tons, worth over $380 million, compared to the same period last year, according to statistics provided by the Ministry of Commerce.

The country also purchased over 3 million tons of diesel, worth $1.797 billion, and 1.877 million tons of fuel oil, worth over $1.144 billion, in the October-August period.

Mung beans, pigeon peas prices stabilize

THE prices of mung beans and pigeon peas, which depend mainly on demand from India, are now stable and have touched a fresh record in the local market, according to Myanmar Pulses, Beans and Sesame Seeds Merchants Association.

Although Myanmar planned to export the bean quota to India at the end of October, the price of beans has stabilized in the local market as Indian merchants are controlling bean purchases.

Currently, mung beans are priced at K770,000 per ton in the local market, while pigeon peas are fetching K840,000 per ton. Compared to the first week of September, the price of mung beans has increased by K50,000 per ton, and that of pigeon peas has risen by over K30,000 per ton.

Myanmar bean merchants have estimated that the production of beans grown in the monsoon season in India may decline because of bad weather conditions. There are plans to export mung beans produced in Ayeyawady and Bago regions to India as well as Pakistan and Bangladesh. Meanwhile, pigeon peas grown in the central region as monsoon crops will be exported to India, which is their main market.

Myanmar has earned over US$900 million from the export of pulses in the current financial year. The Ministry of Commerce is coordinating with those concerned to sell pulses and beans to India under a government-to-government pact.

India has announced that it will import 150,000 tons of mung beans and 200,000 tons of pigeon peas this year. Besides India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Nepal, Dubai, Malaysia, Indonesia, Taiwan, Japan, and European countries are buying beans and pulses from Myanmar. But, the volume of beans and pulses purchased by the other countries is low, according to the Myanmar Pulses, Beans and Sesame Seeds Merchants Association. — Aye Cho (Translated by Hay Mar)

Students fundamental brick for democracy's foundation stone

THE first student protest that ignited the spirit of independence, the formation of the GCBA which was called Myanmar's first political party, the establishment of the prestigious Rangoon University which took the nation's educational tradition to the topmost levels, all these occasions will be reaching their 100th anniversary in 2020.

Centenaries have always been celebrated as special occasions in Myanmar history. The 1920 student protest in Yangon erupted against what they perceived as an unfair education system that the British colonials wanted to implement. The protest was able to give inspiration all the way to our reclamation of independence.

In that sense, the student movement was the driver for opposition against the colonial administration and political traction. They were the spark that lit the fuse and their actions reverberated through the upper echelons of the British administration.

From then on, Myanmar's political scene took off and people began giving it more consideration. This upsurge in public political interest became one of the driving forces that led Myanmar to regain independence.

The next step was the second student protest in 1936 that grew into an armed revolution. Students and student unions have always been a part of the most important roles in our struggle for independence in Myanmar's history.

The student union of Rangoon University brought about such luminaries as Ko Nu, Ko Aung San, Ko Hla Pe, Ko Ba Hein, Ko Hla Shwe, Ko Thein Pe, Ko Kyaw Nyein, Ko Ba Swe and Ko Aung Kyaw, all of whom were instrumental in Myanmar's bid for independence.

And they too gave birth to the leaders of Myanmar's Tatmadaw such as Bo Aung San, Bo Kyar, Bo Yan Aung, Bo Zeya, Bo Ye Htut, Bo Yan Naing and Bo Min Kaung.

Furthermore, just before the military takeover in 1962, the top political leaders of the nation were all from student unions. And in line with history, young students have been making sacrifices up to the democracy movement.

Now too, we have to rely on the strength of our students as the foundation of democracy and national development. They need to be given support, encouragement and opportunities as they are the next generation that will be leading this great nation of ours.

The World and Myanmar Tourism

By Maung Nay

THE 2019 World Tourism Day soon falls on 27th September; this year, the celebrations will be held in New Delhi, India. Every year, the World Tourism Day is held on 27th September among the international Community for fostering the importance of tourism and its social, economic, political and cultural value. ## Myanmar Tourism Myanmar where tourism has been developing rapidly should be observed in accordance with international standards and indexes without losing sight of the world tourism. The Tourism Ministry has outlined tourism sectors from 2013 to 2020, and in all its plans, the focus has been on our country's multicultural heritage and scenic beauty.

With warm welcome comes the creation of business chances and job opportunities. Myanmar is a good location and hopes to become a better destination. While Myanmar is laying down its responsible tourism policies, wide participation of local populace is necessary to raise socio-economic developments in their regions. Eighteen community-based tourism planning are being carried out in 42 villages in States and Regions such as Kachin, Kayah, Kayin, Chin, Shan, Magway, Sagaing, Mandalay, Yangon and Taninthayi. In addition, seven planning are also implemented in seven villages.

In addition, abundant productions, distinctions and qualities related with tourism are allowed to compete by exhibiting foods and demonstrations of handicraft souvenirs. Similarly, professional trainings concerned with tourism sectors are given to improve the qualifications of those working in service sectors. The health and security of tourists, protection associations are being formed. These activities resulted in winning the Social Responsible Tourism Award in Berlin, Germany in 2017 by the Pa-O community-based tourism.

Among the responsible tourism policies, one of the main factions such as Yangon, Mandalay, Bagan and Inlay; different and beautiful spots should be created in States and Regions such as Shan, Kayah, Taninthayi, Rakhine and Kayin to reduce overtourism in one area. Thus affecting serious conditions on environment and the traditional culture could be prevented. In addition, in order not to decrease the number of tourists for market stability, the trademark of Myanmar tourism is "Myanmar, Be enchanted" to compete with the changing times. According to the research evidences for Myanmar by the World Travel and Tourism (2019), 5.9% of total workforce is from tourism with the creation of job opportunities for 135 1800 people in a position to catch up the scheduled 1.49 million people in the main (2013-2020) in Myanmar Tourism sector. In addition to the regions where tourists come en masse, new destinations should be arranged to reduce overtourism in order to distribute the tourist arrivals equally in States and Regions. Overtourism can damage natural and cultural heritage. This heritage can be protected by creating jobs in the states and regions to ensure tourism helps improve the socio-economic conditions of the local people.

In conclusion, according to the statements released by World Tourism Organization, tourists from China, Germany, Russia and Italy spend a lot of money during their trips. Exploring tourism sectors in these countries is a good task indeed. In addition, as the arrival of tourists by air is 57%, it is necessary for them to pay a visit the famous places in the country with without hindrances and also for 55% for holidaymakers. New sites and beaches should be explored to attract the tourists and holidaymakers, thus balancing supplies and demands and creating job opportunities.

YCDC to discourage people from feeding pigeons; to raise awareness on issue

By Nyein Nyein

THE Yangon City Development Committee will discourage citizens from feeding pigeons by raising awareness on the health hazard posed by the practice, with the help of vinyl stickers and posters, said U Min Aung, the Head of the Veterinary and Slaughtering Department of the committee.

“We will put up vinyl posters, asking people not to feed pigeons. First, we will carry out awareness campaigns on the health hazards of pigeon droppings and infestation. Then, we will collect fines from the public. They will be punished and even face a prison sentence if they continue to feed pigeons. But, there has been no such case until now. We will place the vinyl stickers in each township to encourage people not to feed pigeons,” said U Min Aung.

Pigeons are drawn to an area when people put out food for them, posing a threat to human health and contributing to environmental pollution, he said.

“The pigeons will surely flock to any place where there is a food source. To discourage pigeons, food must be cleared up as proximity to pigeons can be dangerous for human health. Besides, pigeon droppings are unsightly and can cause damage to parked cars and surroundings and be a nuisance to passers-by. Complaints have been filed with the YCDC, seeking removal of pigeons. However, we cannot kill them under the law. However, pigeons will migrate to other places if there is no longer any food source. If pigeons do not inhabit crowded places of Yangon, it will be good for the public,” said U Min Aung.

“Under the existing law, sellers of pigeon food can face fines and/or a prison sentence. However, we will deal with this problem by persuading sellers and feeders. The YCDC is liable to remove only dogs, rodents, and crows. But, they will remove other animals which can spread diseases,” said U Kyaw Min, the Head of the YCDC’s Administrative Department. He said public cooperation is needed to end the practice of feeding pigeons.

Trump says Rouhani meeting not scheduled as speculation swirls

UNITED NATIONS (United States) — US President Donald Trump said Monday he could not rule out a meeting with Iranian counterpart Hassan Rouhani at the United Nations this week, but no encounter was yet scheduled.

Speculation has been rife over whether the leaders of the two arch-foes would finally meet on the sidelines of the UN General Assembly in New York, with France's Emmanuel Macron trying to broker what would be a historic rendezvous.

The chances of this happening have seemingly diminished in the wake of a dramatic attack on Saudi oil facilities blamed by the United States on Iran, which denies being involved.

"I never rule anything out," Trump told reporters, but added that he had "nothing scheduled at this moment."

Macron is cautiously hopeful for a breakthrough and is seeking to bring the two together, having consulted informally with Trump on Monday, then meeting for more than 90 minutes with Rouhani that evening.

"The path of de-escalation is narrow but more necessary than ever, and it was time for Iran to take it," Macron told Rouhani in the meeting, according to a statement from the French presidency.

Macron plans to meet with the US president again on Tuesday, and told reporters earlier on Monday, "I'll do everything I can so that conditions are created for discussion."

However Trump responded to his efforts by saying "we don't need a mediator."

The Iranians "know whom to call," he said.

'Not closing the door'

Tehran and Washington have been at loggerheads since May last year when Trump abandoned a 2015 nuclear deal and began reimposing sanctions on Iran in a campaign of "maximum pressure." Following the Group of Seven summit in France in August, though, Trump spoke openly of his willingness to meet his Iranian counterpart face-to-face, if the conditions were right.

Trump is fond of the optics of high-profile meetings — his summits with North Korea's Kim Jong Un are testament to that — and a summit would mark a diplomatic coup a year ahead of his re-election bid.

He tempered his enthusiasm, though, after the devastating

September 14 attacks on Saudi oil installations that Washington and Riyadh have, to varying degrees, blamed on Tehran.

The attacks heightened tensions and renewed fears of a military escalation in the region.

"Did the chances of a meeting increase with these strikes? No, we have to be clear, we can see that things are getting tense," Macron said Sunday en route to New York. "The two main players are there," he added, referring to Rouhani and Trump. "Something can happen."

Diplomats hope a meeting would help de-escalate tensions in the Gulf that have flared since May when the United States ended all waivers in its unilateral sanctions that seek to stop Iran from selling any oil. Iran has responded by reducing its commitments under the nuclear deal and Trump has deployed military assets to the region.—AFP ■

Nissan, ex-CEO Ghosn charged in US with hiding $140 mn from investors

WASHINGTON (United States)— US securities regulators on Monday charged Japanese automaker Nissan and its former CEO Carlos Ghosn with hiding more than $140 million in Ghosn's expected retirement income from investors.

Ghosn will pay $1 million in fines to settle the matter and will be barred from serving as a corporate executive for 10 years, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) said in a statement.

Nissan will pay a $15 million fine.

The SEC also charged ex-board member Greg Kelly with aiding in the fraud. He agreed to a $100,000 fine and a five-year corporate officer ban.

But Ghosn, his former right-hand man Kelly, and Nissan neither admitted nor denied the SEC's allegations.

Attorneys for Ghosn welcomed the deal, saying it allowed him to focus on fighting similar allegations in Japan.

The SEC said Ghosn, 65, working with Kelly and other subordinates, devised ways to disguise large amounts of Ghosn's compensation.

The machinations allegedly stemmed from a shift in Japanese policy in 2009 that required disclosure of individual director compensation above 100 million yen, a little more than $1 million at the time. "Ghosn became concerned about criticism that might result in the Japanese and French media if his total compensation became publicly known," the SEC said.

Ghosn directed subordinates to lobby the Japanese government to rescind the policy.

When that failed, "Ghosn and Nissan subordinates took steps to conceal from public disclosure a substantial portion of Ghosn's compensation," the SEC order said.

Ghosn and Kelly allegedly "fraudulently inflated" Ghosn's pension allowance by more than $50 million and created a "false disclosure" to disguise the increase, the SEC said in an order.

Subordinates of Ghosn falsely told the company's chief financial officer that another big set of payments under a long-term incentive plan went to many Nissan employees and not primarily to Ghosn, the order said.

Ghosn also instructed an employee to change the currency in which Ghosn's pension would be paid.—AFP ■

Degas and his dancers: New show demolishes myth

PARIS (France)— It has always been assumed that Edgar Degas worked in the wings and rehearsal rooms of the Paris Opera to produce his staggering pictures of its dancers.

But, like the ballets themselves, it turns out that his behind-the-scenes masterpieces were a brilliant illusion. "All his scenes of the Opera are phantasmagoric," said Henri Loyrette, former head of the Louvre and Musee d'Orsay in Paris. A huge new show at the Orsay put together by the French art historian reveals that Degas hardly ever sketched in the theatre, never mind backstage. While "the painter of dancers" haunted the opera and its ballet for nearly 40 years, drinking in all the glamour and the grime, the socially awkward introvert remained mostly in the shadows.

It was from there that he observed dancers and their predatory "patrons" as well as the mothers who often pimped their daughters to rich and powerful men, Loyrette said. In fact, experts cannot find any evidence that Degas got a backstage pass until later in his life. Instead he created "his own Opera... through the filter of memory and his imagination" back in his studio, Loyrette told AFP, hiring the opera's dancers — its "little rats" as they were called — as models.

His genius was to give the impression you are there, witnessing reality, said Loyrette, chief curator of "Degas at the Opera", which opens Tuesday.—AFP ■

Indonesia, Japan reach deal on Jakarta-Surabaya rail project

JAKARTA — Indonesia and Japan signed a deal Tuesday on an outline of a medium-speed train project linking the Southeast Asian country's capital Jakarta and its second-largest city Surabaya.

After two years of negotiations, the two countries agreed to use a narrow gauge on the railway track, instead of standard gauge, to better adapt to land characteristics in dense and multi-networked areas on Java island.

Under the agreement, the project will be split into two phases, with the first between Jakarta and the Central Java provincial capital Semarang and the second between Semarang and Surabaya, capital of East Java province, covering distances of 436 kilometers and 284 km, respectively.

Both Indonesian and Japanese officials have said the initial investment value of the project was estimated at 60 trillion rupiah (about $4.2 billion).

In an interview with Kyodo News a couple months ago, President Joko Widodo expected construction of the railway to start next year.

Indonesia's Agency for the Assessment and Application of Technology has predicted that 12.4 per cent of airline passengers between the two cities, which totaled around 8 million last year, will shift to the trains.

Last year, a "political decision" was made by the government to have only Indonesian and Japanese companies participate in the tender to build the railway network.

Indonesia has been leaning toward choosing Japan for the project in an apparent effort to ease Tokyo's disappointment at losing to China in 2015 in bidding to construct a high-speed railway between Jakarta and Bandung. —Kyodo News ■

Spain court approves exhumation of Franco's remains

Franco is buried inside a grandiose basilica at the Valley of Fallen, which also holds the remains of 33,000 dead from both sides of the civil war. PHOTO: AFP

MADRID (Spain)—Spain's Supreme Court on Tuesday gave the green light for the government to remove the remains of Francisco Franco from a grandiose state mausoleum, rejecting an appeal against it by the late dictator's descendants.

In a unanimous ruling, the court decided "to completely reject the appeal lodged by the family in relation to Francisco Franco's exhumation," the judges wrote.

The ruling was hailed as "a great victory for Spanish democracy" by Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez whose government wants to transfer the remains as soon as possible. But the family and supporters of the late dictator reacted with sadness and anger, vowing to leave no stone unturned in their bid to have the decision reversed.

Franco, who ruled with an iron fist following the end of the 1936-39 civil war, is buried in an imposing basilica carved into a mountain in the Valley of the Fallen, 50 kilometres (30 miles) outside Madrid.

But plans to move his remains to another site have divided opinion in Spain, which is still conflicted over the dictatorship that ended with Franco's death in 1975.

Sanchez's government has made transferring Franco's remains a priority, saying Spain should not "continue to glorify" the dictator, whose hillside mausoleum is topped by a 150-metre (500-feet) cross and has attracted both tourists and rightwing sympathisers.

The government had planned to move Franco's remains to a more discreet tomb on 10 June, but the court suspended the exhumation pending appeal by Franco's heirs.

Tuesday's hearing was one of four appeals against the plan, but arguably the one that carries the most weight, with a court spokesman saying it was "foreseeable" the judges would issue a similar verdict in the remaining three cases. It was not immediately clear when the court would rule on the other three appeals. —AFP ■

Stunning blow for UK PM as court strikes down parliament suspension

LONDON (United Kingdom) — Britain's Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that Prime Minister Boris Johnson acted unlawfully in suspending parliament in the run-up to Brexit, in a stunning blow that sparked immediate calls for him to resign.

The 11 judges of the country's highest court were unanimous in their verdict, which they said meant parliament could now immediately reconvene.

Johnson had argued that shutting down parliament until 14 October was a routine move to allow his new government to set out a new legislative programme.

But critics accused him of trying to silence MPs ahead of Britain's scheduled exit from the European Union on 31 October — the terms of which remain unclear.

"The court is bound to conclude... that the decision to advise Her Majesty to prorogue was unlawful," Supreme Court President

Brenda Hale said.

She said this was "because it had the effect of frustrating or preventing the ability of parliament to carry out its constitutional functions".

She said the suspension was as a result "void and of no effect", adding: "Parliament has not been prorogued".—AFP ■

Seven children among 16 killed by air strikes in Yemen

DUBAI (United Arab Emirates)— Air strikes allegedly carried out by the Saudi-led coalition fighting Iran-backed rebels in Yemen on Tuesday killed 16 people including seven children, an official and a doctor said.

The raid came days after the Huthi insurgents offered to halt drone and ballistic missile attacks on Saudi Arabia as part of efforts to end a war that has pushed Yemen to the brink of famine.

The rebels claimed responsibility for the 14 September attacks on Saudi oil installations that knocked out half of the OPEC kingpin's production and sent shockwaves through energy markets.—AFP ■

Google wins EU fight against worldwide 'right to be forgotten'

Google hailed the ruling, saying it has worked "to strike a sensible balance between people's rights of access to information and privacy". PHOTO: AFP

LUXEMBOURG (Luxembourg) — Google is not required to apply an EU "right to be forgotten" to its search engine domains outside Europe, the EU's top court ruled Tuesday in a landmark decision.

The European Court of Justice handed victory to Google in the case, seen as crucial in determining whether EU online regulation should apply beyond Europe's borders or not.

The US internet giant had argued that the removal of search results required under EU law should not extend to its google.com domain or its other non-EU sites.

The court ruled that, while a search engine operator such as Google must carry out "de-referencing" of links as demanded by a regulator or court in an EU state to all European versions of its sites, that "right to be forgotten" did not need to go further.

"There is no obligation under EU law" for search engine operators such as Google "to carry out such a de-referencing on all the versions of its search engine," the court said.

But it did stress that de-referencing on EU sites must include measures to "seriously discourage" a European internet user being able to get around the "right to be forgotten" by accessing unrestricted results from a search engine on a non-EU domain.

That demands "geo-blocking", which Google says it already uses effectively in Europe.

Savvy internet users, however, can get around that measure with a VPN that masks the user's location, or by going to some non-Google search engines.

Google hails win

The EU court case, seen as pitting individuals' rights to privacy online against freedom of information, stemmed from a legal battle waged by France since 2014 to have Google apply the "right to be forgotten" to all its search domains.

If France had won, it could have deepened a rift between Europe and the United States, which is home to most of the internet's behemoths and whose President Donald Trump has railed against what he sees as EU meddling in US business.

In the end, though, the court found that EU law on the issue did not seek to have the "right to be forgotten" extend beyond its borders. Google hailed Tuesday's decision by the EU court.

"It's good to see that the court agreed with our arguments," its lawyer, Peter Fleischer, said in a statement, adding that Google has worked "to strike a sensible balance between people's rights of access to information and privacy".

The US company and other stakeholders had warned that authoritarian countries outside Europe could abuse global de-referencing requests to cover up rights violations.

"It's a balanced decision. You can't impose extraterritorial effects when it comes to de-referencing a person," said Yann Padova, a data privacy lawyer with the Baker McKenzie firm in Paris who was not involved in arguing the case.

"What would we say if China started demanding de-referencing of content accessible to French users?" he asked.—AFP ■

Thailand's investment forays into Myanmar

By Kyaw Htike Soe

THAILAND is one of the largest foreign investors in Myanmar and more Thai companies are expected to invest in the Asia's last frontier market in the years to come. In an attempt to lure more investments from Thailand, Myanmar representatives from the line ministries including the Ministry of Investment and Foreign Economic Relations and the Ministry of Planning and Finance organized a seminar headlined, "Myanmar Insight 2019" at Centara Grand Hotel in Bangkok, Thailand on 23 August.

The event aimed at providing an update on Myanmar's economic situation, current policies, and laws as well as introducing Myanmar Sustainable Development Plan (MSDP) and the Project Bank was attended by around 700 businessmen from Myanmar and Thailand. With a view to creating better opportunities for foreign investors, Myanmar government is taking part in regional connectivity initiative so as to enhance bilateral relations with neighbouring countries and encourage investment and trade. Myanmar has undertaken a number of significant reforms in various sectors with the intention of creating new opportunities for foreign investors including those from Thailand, said State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu-Kyi in her video message to the seminar. Promoting accountable and responsible investments enables the governments to establish better societies, the State Counsellor said.

Thai businessmen are very keen to expand their businesses in the areas of automobile spare part manufacturing, retail and wholesale business, foodstuff production and industry sector, according to the Ministry of Investment and Foreign Economic Relations. "Thailand has a leading role in regional automotive industry. Some companies from Japan, Korea and China set up the automobile manufacturing and assembly factories in Myanmar. I believe that Thai companies will be able to take opportunities to establish car production and assembly factories in Myanmar, said Union Minister for Investment and Foreign Economic Relations

U Thaung Tun at the business forum. The Union Minister highlighted that Myanmar's GDP increased to more than US$ 71 billion in 2018 from US$ 8.9 billion in 2000, saying Myanmar's GDP is estimated to achieve 7 percent annually during the period from 2019 to 2023.

Long-term foreign investments have been channelled into the transport, infrastructure, urbanization and communications sectors of the country. Myanmar is committed to enhancing regional cooperation with ASEAN member countries under the Master Plan on ASEAN Connectivity 2025 in order to ensure sustainable urban development and create new investment opportunities. Establishment of special economic zones in Myanmar aims to help foreign investors attract, the Union Minister added. The Yangon government is implementing the mega projects to support foreign investments in the region. The Yangon City Project, Yangon Amata Smart and Eco City Project, Eco Green City Project, Korea-Myanmar Industrial Complex Project and Yangon Project Bank are being developed by foreign investors in Yangon Region, according to a senior official from the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration under the ministry.

In addition Yangon Elevated Expressway Project and Yangon Urban Mass Rapid Transit Construction Project will be built through bidding that will be conducted using international competitive bidding and interested Thai companies are invited to take part in the bidding, said U MyoKhaingOo, Director of the DICA. He continued that small and medium-sized enterprises from Thailand want to shift their businesses to Myanmar. There are 15 companies from Thailand in Thilawa Special Economic Zone. Thilawa SEZ, located on the outskirts of Yangon, is the first Special Economic Zone in Myanmar and had become fully operational in September 2015. Myanmar has great potential to attract a huge influx of investments from Thailand over the next few years. Myanmar conducts border trade with Thailand via seven border checkpoints—Tachilek, Mese, Myawady, Kawthoung, Myeik, Hteekhee and Mawtaung gates.

Bilateral trade between Myanmar and Thailand totalled US$ 11 billion, with Thailand being Myanmar's third largest trading partner and third largest foreign investor after Singapore and China. Investments from Thailand in Myanmar amounted to US$ 6.6 billion in the financial year 2018-2019, with half of the investments went into oil and gas sector, according to a senior official from the ministry.

Fidow fires Samoa to bruising win over Russia at Rugby World Cup

KUMAGAYA (Japan)—Marauding winger Ed Fidow bagged a quickfire double as Samoa beat Russia 34-9 in a bruising Rugby World Cup encounter marked by three yellow cards on Tuesday.

Fidow provided the spark in a tempestuous Pool A clash after the Pacific islanders were reduced to 13 men in the first half for two reckless tackles in steamy Kumagaya. Russia's Kirill Gotovtsev was sin-binned later in the game.

"To lose two players, go down to 13 men and we didn't lose on the score... really proud of the effort," said Samoa coach Steve Jackson.

"We knew we would come out after half-time and the boys were still fresh — we had plenty left in the tank. I'm just glad we got over the line."

Russia coach Lyn Jones bemoaned his team's short, four-day turnaround following their 30-10 defeat by hosts Japan in the tournament-opener last Friday.

"It affected us tactically and mentally," said the Welshman.

"We played a World Cup final for our boys on Friday night and it's more the mental thing that's hurt us," added Jones.

"We just weren't there tonight and lacked the motivation compared to what we had against Japan."

Zidane brushes off criticism as Madrid look to continue recovery

MADRID (Spain) — Zinedine Zidane claims he has not even thought about the criticism aimed at him in recent weeks as Real Madrid look to build on Sunday's morale-boosting win away at Sevilla.

Madrid eased the growing pressure on their coach with a determined performance at the Ramon Sanchez Pizjuan after they had been beaten 3-0 by Paris Saint-Germain in the Champions League four days before.

That loss was Madrid's worst during Zidane's two spells as coach and prompted questions about the Frenchman's future, with Jose Mourinho among those linked with taking charge.

Madrid played newly-promoted Osasuna on Wednesday and could go top of La Liga with a victory.

"It's always the same, there has always been criticism and there always will be," Zidane said in a press conference on Tuesday.

"I don't even think about it. It is what it is, it happens. When we lose, I'm going to get sacked and when we win, I'm the best. You just have to keep working.

"I feel strong but I feel the same as I did a month ago. The important thing is to give 100 per cent and to give my best. I remember playing badly for this team as well but the important thing is to give your best."

titions so far this season and, after Osasuna, play Atletico Madrid at the Wanda Metropolitano on Saturday.

"We played a good game in Sevilla but most of all we played as a team from the first minute until the last," Zidane said.

"Playing as a team, fighting for each other, that's what we have to do against Osasuna and we have to keep playing like that."

Not for the first time this season, Zidane singled out Gareth Bale for praise on Sunday after the Welshman continued his reintegration at the club with another tenacious display.

"I am not surprised," Zidane said. "I'm with him every day and we know he can do a lot offensively but he is helping us defensively too. When we work together we can achieve good things."
