Strive for further revitalization of the national strength

Myanmar traditional cultural performing arts competitions have been held every year since 1993. The main aim of holding these competitions is to further strengthen and promote traditional culture, customs and national character of Myanmar people and to enable youths to understand and appreciate the basic nature and aesthetic value of the performing arts and national essence.

The opening ceremony of the 12th Myanmar Traditional Cultural Performing Arts Competitions was held at the National Theatre in Yangon on 14 October and it was attended by Prime Minister General Khin Nyunt.

In his speech on the occasion, the Prime Minister said, "At a time when IT is the dominant force entering every country continuously, passing through all natural and geographical barriers and boundaries, it is required specially for Myanmar to always beware of and ward off all decadent culture and behaviour to ensure that not even a single mark of it is left behind in any cultural corner or lifestyle of the nation as the neocolonialists are trying to disseminate decadent culture through film, music, literary and cultural fields, which have become a tool used by neocolonialists in the guise of globalization."

It is natural for a people to preserve and safeguard their own national characteristics and national culture. And it is very encouraging to see that Myanmar youths have come to appreciate their national culture and have a genuine taste for things Myanmar. It is because of Myanmar traditional and cultural arts are being systematically promoted. As they cherish and uphold their fine traditions and culture, they will surely become strongly imbued with nationalist fervour and be able to brave the penetration and influence of alien decadent customs.

The objectives of this year's competitions are to vitalize patriotism and nationalism in all citizens, to preserve and safeguard Myanmar cultural heritage, to perpetuate genuine Myanmar music, dance and traditional fine arts, to preserve Myanmar national character, to nurture spiritual development of the youths and to prevent influence of alien culture.

We would like to urge all the artistes to strive with their talent for further revitalization of the national strength that can help build and defend the modern and developed nation while preserving and promoting our national character and social and cultural values, so that the Union of Myanmar can stand grand and firm in the international community as long as the world exists.

Jordan hostage freed in Iraq for 50,000-dollar ransom

Amman, 14 Oct—Jordanian hostage Hisham Talab al-Ezza released in Iraq after two weeks in captivity in return for a 50,000-dollar ransom returned home saying he had witnessed the beheading of an Iraqi policeman.

"I am in good health," Ezza told AFP by telephone from his home in the northern town of Irbid.

The 55-year-old father of six said Thursday that he had been held in Fallujah by people who claimed to belong to the Imam Ali Brigades," a Shiite Muslim organization, although he believed they were Sunni Muslims.

about 50 members of the organization, then they brought in an Iraqi in police uniform who they said was a spy who filmed the activities of the mujahedeen (Muslim warriors.)

"One of them had a large knife and beheaded the policeman and put his head on his back."

Afterwards, he said one of his captors told him "tomorrow it will be your turn. Then he threatened me every day with being decapitated if the initial ransom of 500,000 was not paid".

Ezza said the incident must have taken place on 2 or 3 October, just a few days after his kidnapping at gunpoint on 30 September by three men in a car in Baghdad.

Two Iraqi intelligence officers beheaded by Zarqawi group

Dubai, 14 Oct—An Iraqi group led by suspected al-Qaeda ally Abu Musab al-Zarqawi has beheaded two Iraqi intelligence officers and posted a video of the killings on the Internet on Wednesday.

The video from the Tahwid and Jihad Group showed a closeup of the two men's identification cards which said they were Iraqi intelligence officers. Militants later cut off the two men's heads.

The two men said in the video they were captured on 28 September in Baghdad's Haifa Street, a militant stronghold, while trying to remove the body of a slain female colleague, Nadia Abdulwahhab Matlak. They admitted to working for Iraqi intelligence and warned other Iraqis to abandon working for the security forces.

"I advise my brothers, the sons of Iraq, who are working for the government agencies, in intelligence, the Armed Forces and the police to repent," one of the men said.

Last month, Tawhid and Jihad said it had killed Matlak and abducted three of her colleagues during clashes with members of the Iraqi National Guard in Haifa Street. Washington says Zarqawi is its number one enemy in Iraq and his group has claimed responsibility for some of the bloodiest suicide bombings and attacks against US forces and Iraqi government officials.

The group has also killed several foreigners it kidnapped. The latest hostage to be beheaded was Briton Kenneth Bigley who was abducted in Baghdad along with two American colleagues, who were also beheaded. —MNA/Reuters

"It is our firm belief that debtor countries should consider relief positively as an investment in Iraq's future. So, we are requesting solutions that deliver deep and comprehensive debt relief. Saleh also listed the top three social sector priorities in dire need of assistance: health, water and sanitation; education and housing.

He vowed to carry out measures to stamp out corruption, and create a totally transparent system for the collection and application of all revenue and expenditure, especially in the oil industry which currently accounts for 94 per cent of Iraq's revenues.

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL'S MESSAGE ON WORLD FOOD DAY

16 October 2004

The following is the message sent by the Secretary General of the United Nations on World Food Day which falls on 16 October 2004.—Ed

Some 840 million people in the world suffer from chronic hunger. Such large-scale hunger is not only unprecedented but also should be unacceptable in our world of plenty. In a world in which enough food exists to feed every man, woman and child, We need to do for better—politically, economically, scientifically, logistically — if we are to achieve the Millennium Development Goal of reducing by half, by the year 2015, the proportion of people who suffer from hunger.

The theme of this year's World Food Day observance, "Biodiversity for Food Security", highlights the essential role of biodiversity in that effort. Biodiversity provides the plant, animal and microbial genetic resources for food production and agricultural productivity. It provides essential ecosystem services such as fertilizing the soil, recycling nutrients, regulating pests and disease, controlling erosion and pollinating many of our crops and trees. Knowledge of biodiversity — notably on the part of farmers responsible for their families' health and well-beinig — can ensure the availability of food during periods of crisis such as civil conflicts, natural calamities or disabling dis-

The unprecedented loss of biodiversity over the past century should thus raise the loudest of alarms. Many freshwater fish species, which can provide crucial dietary diversity to the poorest households, have become extinct, and many of the world's most important marine fisheries have been decimated. Food supplies have also been made more vulnerable by our reliance on a very small number of species; just 30 crop species dominate food production and 90 percent of our animal food supply comes from just 14 mammal and bird species which themselves rely on biodiversity for their productivity and survival. There has been a substantial reduction in crop genetic diversity in the field and many livestock breeds are threatened with extinction.

In 2002, the parties to the Convention on Biological Diversity pledged to achieve significant reduction in the current rate of biodiversity loss by the year 2010, a goal subsequently endorsed at the World Summit on Sustainable Development. If we do not do more to meet this target and to conserve and sustainably use the world's precious biodiversity, we will not fulfil our responsibility to feed the world. And if we fail in that endeavour, there will be little hope of eradicating extreme poverty. On this World Food Day, I urge individuals and institutions alike to give greater attention to biodiversity as a key theme in our efforts to fight the twin scourges of hunger and poverty and achieve the Millennium Development Goals.

practitioners could set a milestone in the medical history of Myanmar. Therefore, it is the achievement in which the State itself and the medical practitioners themselves should take pride.

At the time of the present government, the achievements made in cardiac treatment, renal surgery and transplant, separation of conjoined twins, microsurgery on the replantation of amputated and crushed distal forearm including open heart surgery are all significant milestones in the health sector.

Since assumption of the State power in 1988, the Government has been laying down and implementing projects with added momentum in various sectors for achieving marked success in the health care services. It has been building 300-bed, 200-bed and 16-bed hospitals mushrooming in the whole country. It has built over 100 new hospitals, and the total number has reached over 700. In the past, in the private sector, there were only dispensaries in the nation. But now there are advanced private-owned labs in addition to large hospitals. The Government has been striving to upgrade the public health care services, to further improve the standard of medical science, and to produce efficient medical practitioners.

It is now in progress in implementing a special four-year programme to develop the nation's standard of

It has spent over US $ 20 million to provide advanced electronic lab, medical and hospital equipment for all institutions of higher learning of the health and medical field and hospitals. Thanks to the all-round endeavours, health care services are developing and can now cover even the remote border regions. The assistance of local and foreign social organizations and UN agencies is also on the increase. The international community has acknowledged Myanmar's efforts to control dreadful diseases such as HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria and is giving assistance to the campaigns, especially, cooperation with neighbours in the anti-HIV/AIDS drive is gaining momentum. The development of traditional medical sector also plays an important role in the progress of the nation's health sector. The Government is giving encouragement to the traditional medicine for its development with the conviction that it will benefit both the nation and the people.

Nowadays, there have emerged not only Myanmar traditional medicine hospitals but also Traditional Medicine University which will be able to elevate and train Myanmar traditional medical science.

Myanma Traditional Medicine Practitioners Conference is held yearly, thereby contributing much to development of medicines as well as spiritual development in Myanma Traditional Medicines Sector.

With the encouragement of the Government, Myanma traditional medicine science, which died out in the past, has surfaced again and the field of Myanmar traditional medicines, which is dying out, has come of age. Myanma traditional medicine science has nowadays been popular again among the people with the emergence of the modern Myanma traditional medicine factories.

Moreover, Head of State Senior General Than Shwe has given guidance on production of modern herbal medicines to be based on Myanmar herbal plants and Myanma traditional medicines for six major diseases which are common in Myanmar. In accordance with the guidance, work is well under way and potent Myanma traditional medicines for malaria, hypertension, diabetes, diarrhoea and dysentery have been in the process of production.

At present, International level Hepatitis B vaccine Factory, which is instrumental in control of Hepatitis B, a health problem of new era, has been established and the trial-production of Hepatitis B vaccines is being launched.

At a time when marked progress has been made in the Myanmar health sector, it is incumbent upon all officials of the health sector to make earnest efforts for improvement of the health care services of the people.

To keep pace with changes and developments, constant efforts are to be made for development of Myanmar health sector.

Meanwhile, officials of the health sector are to strive to contribute their health care services up to rural areas and far-flung regions. In particular, efforts are to be made in earnest from the health sector for successful realization of the five rural development tasks. At a time when unprecedented progress has been made in the Myanma health sector, officials of the health sector are to make relentless efforts for qualitative and quantitative development of health care services of the people.

Love your country

Aung Moe San

Every country and every race has martyrs who sacrifice lives for their own nation and race. But there are also persons who betray their own nation and race. There are patriots as well as minions of other nations. Without patriotism, a race will disappear, followed by vanishing of the nation itself. Thus, the love for the nation and race is a patriotic spirit everyone should have. Patriotism is also associated with uplift of morale and morality of the entire nation. The opposite of patriotism is the spirit to yield to the influence of other nations, longing for the aunt over one's own mother, betraying one's own race, making attempts to harm the nation, thinking lowly of one's own race and nation, while thinking highly of other nations and races, and harming one's own national interest while serving other nations' interest.

After three wars — one in 1824, another in 1852 and the other in 1885 — with the British colonialists, Myanmar fell under enslavement. A famous poet composed a poem about Myanmars who betrayed the national cause then. His poem continues to uplift the nationalistic fervour of Myanmars till now.

The BBC, the VOA, the RFA and the DVB have been broadcasting daily the news about a handful of Myanmar expatriates holding negative views staging demonstrations at a place near the UN headquarters where the UN Conference took place. The radio stations see them as democracy activists.

Today, the Tatmadaw Government is building a democratic state through the seven-point Road Map. The Road Map is the sole way to national consolidation and peaceful developments. The Government has opened the door for all to make collective efforts to materialize the programme. If the expatriates holding negative views have the real wish to see emergence of a democratic nation, the only way for them is to return to the legal fold and to take part in the task, which is the historic duty to build a democratic nation.

Democracy can take root quickly only in countries where productive forces are developing and social living standard improving. Economic sanctions which cause deterioration of the economy will not bring democracy. Democracy can flourish in countries enjoying progress in the capitalist industries. In industrialist countries also, first, they tried to develop and strengthen the two basic classes — the capitalists and workers — and also the middle class and intellectuals and intelligentsia. In America, women and the Blacks won the right to vote only after waiting for many years. Democracy has never emerged in a very short span of time. We will have to wait for a certain period of time to build democracy.

Thus, the Tatmadaw Government has been paying serious attention to the development of the marketoriented economy. Thus, economic sanctions and pressure are not meant for democracy but just for selfinterest. There are three possible factors concerning the perpetration to discredit Myanmar.

- To copy the western type of democracy at once.
- To work in accord with the wishes of some powers for self-interest.
- To grab power through short cut.

The reason may be one of the three. The big democracies need to differentiate between the interest of a handful of persons and the over 53 million people of the nation. The powers should not harm the interest of the over 53 million just to honour a handful of persons holding negative views. If they do want to serve the interest of the over 53 million people, they will have to take action against the handful of pessimists. The ASEAN nations, the Asian nations and the neighbouring nations stand by the interest of the over 53 million people of Myanmar. But some powers wishing to put Myanmar in their domain may stand by the interest of the handful of pessimists.

Instead of airing one-sided news reports to harm the interest of the people of Myanmar, the radio stations of the west — the BBC, the VOA, the RFA and the DVB should broadcast news reports that will serve the interest of the over 53 million people.

Because, press freedom should concentrate on serving other's interest, rather than harming it.

Press freedom is permitted in accord with the constitution in a democratic state. There are no restrictions on journalists. The journalists on their part cannot go against the laws enacted in the interest of the people. Prohibiting of press freedom leads to closing the public eyes and ears. Press freedom is required to improve the knowledge level of the people. But the journalists should stay away from publishing bias or random or concocted news reports or baseless rumours, or news reports that may harm the interest of others. They should not act taking advantage of press freedom.

Against the UN Charter, the BBC, the VOA, the RFA and the DVB are presenting news reports in favour of the US, although the country is occupying Iraq illegally. At the same time, they are airing news on Myanmar from the negative side of view, to the detriment of her interest. So they should see themselves to know whether they are in accord with the journalism codes of conduct and principles of their profession. News reports that are not free from bias are poisonous to the people.

Today's national interest of Myanmar is to build a democratic state with collective and united efforts in accord with the seven-point Road Map. All attempts to oppose the national interest are the destructive acts against the national cause. Hence, in this time and situation, all the people born in Myanmar should love their country.

Hyundai fined $1m

London, 14 Oct — South Korean carmaker Hyundai has been fined one million US dollars by motor sport's world governing body FIA after missing four rounds of last year's world rally championship, according to a Reuters report.

The report said that Hyundai Motor Company had appeared at a meeting of the FIA's World Motor Sport Council in Paris to explain their absence and failure to pay financial penalties for each event missed. Contracted manufacturers are obliged to contest all rounds of the world championship but Hyundai quit last year, saying they intended to develop a new car for a comeback in the second half of 2006 and a full season in 2007.

The fine could spell trouble for Japan's Mitsubishi, who have missed the last few rallies of this season to concentrate on building a new car for 2005, Reuters reported. MNA/Xinhua

High birth rate, rapid growth risk factors for breast cancer

Boston, 14 Oct — A study of more than 117,000 Danish women provides the most convincing evidence yet of a link between a girl's growth rate and her risk of developing breast cancer later in life, researchers said on Wednesday.

The study, published in Thursday's edition of The New England Journal of Medicine, found that women who were tall and thin by the age of 14 and those who weighed a lot at birth were more likely to develop breast cancer.

Researchers in Copenhagen looked at height and weight measurements taken from 117,415 girls born between 1930 and 1975, which they obtained from school health records.

The Danish team found that high birth weight, time of mammary gland development, being tall and having low bodymass-index during adolescence were independent risk factors for breast can-

Specifically, they determined that girls who were about five-feet sixinches tall by age 14 were 50 per cent more likely to develop breast cancer later in life than girls who were just under five feet tall at the same age.

The team also found that newborn girls who weighed more than 8-3/4 pounds were on average 17 per cent more likely to develop the disease later in life than those who weighed about 5-1/2 pounds.

In an editorial in the Journal, Karin Michels and Walter Willett of Harvard University said rapid growth around the | the study reinforces growing evidence that breast cancer may have its origins early in life.

"An association between the risk of breast cancer and the rate of growth during adolescence has been suggested previously, but these new data are the most convincing," the pair wrote, citing the considerable size and the unbiased source of the data used in the study.

Breast cancer is the most common cancer among women, other than skin cancer. It is the second leading cause of cancer death in women, after lung cancer, according to the American Cancer Society. Nearly 216,000 women in the United States will be found to have invasive breast cancer in 2004, and about 40,110 women will die from the disease this year. MNA/Reuters

Hi-tech development sees fruitful in China's economy, foreign trade

Shenzhen, 14 Oct national China's economy and foreign trade are benefitting from the development of the country's high technology industries, said Wei Jianguo, Vice-Minister of Commerce, on Tuesday.

Addressing a symposium of ministers on an international hi-tech trade fair that opened on Tuesday in Shenzhen, a city in south China's Guangdong Province, Wei said the hi-tech industry is playing an increasingly significant role in adjusting China's economic structure.

The gross production value of the hi-tech sector in the country reached 2.75 trillion yuan (330 billion US dollars) in 2003, up 31 per cent from the previous year and contributing 25 per cent to the country's industrial gross production value, Wei said.

The Vice-Minister said that China's exports of hi-tech products saw an average annual rise of 40 per cent from 1998 to 2003, 20 percentage points higher than the growth rate of exports.

The country also saw an upgrade of its industrial structure by introducing advanced technology from foreign countries, Wei said. He said that the Chinese Government encourages overseas businesses to invest in the hitech sector in the country. —MNA/Xinhua

Prolonged mobile phone use increases risk of acoustic neuroma

STOCKHOLM, 14 Oct—Ten or more years of mobile phone use increases the risk of developing acoustic neuroma, a benign tumour on the auditory nerve, according to a study released on Wednesday by Sweden's Karolinska Institute.

The risk was confined to the side of the head where the phone was usually held and there were no indications of increased risk for those who have used their mobile for less than 10 years, the Karolinska Institute said in a statement.

"At the time when the study was conducted only analogue mobile phones had been in use for more than 10 years and therefore we cannot determine if there results are confined to use of analogue phones or if the results would be similar also after long-term use of digital (GSM) phones," it said.

The mobile phone market is now dominated by GSM phones, which replaced the bulkier and less advanced analogue phones in many markets the midand late-1990s.

The mobile phone industry has said there is no scientific evidence of negative health effects from use of mobile phones.

The Karolinska Institute said 150 people with acoustic neuroma and 600 healthy people participated in the study.

"The risk of acoustic neuroma was almost doubled for persons who started to use their mobile at least 10 years prior to diagnosis," the institute said.

"When the side of the head on which the phone was usually held was taken into consideration, we found that the risk of acoustic neuroma was almost four times higher on the same side as the phone was held and virtually normal on the other side."

Finland's Nokia is the world's biggest mobile phone maker.

Other large producers include Motorola of the United States, South Korea's Samsung Electronics, Germany's Siemens and Swedish-Japanese joint venture Sony Ericsson.

Indian PM addresses 137 secretaries of various departments

New Delhi, 14 Oct— In the first-ever meeting with over 100 secretaries of the Union government, Indian Prime Minister Manmohan Singh on Wednesday asked the bureaucracy to pull up its socks, be more accountable and work without fear or favour to produce results.

"Civil service should be accountable, effective and transparent in its functioning. It should be proactive and produce results," Singh said addressing 137 secretaries of various government departments.

Directing senior officials to "work without fear or favour", he said secretaries can approach him and bring to his notice any difficulties faced by them in carrying out their duties.

"Whenever you feel that certain issues need to be discussed further and certain matters need to be brought to my notice, you are free to see me," he told bureaucrats in an hour-long meeting.

Singh said he has instructed his office to give priority to such requests.

The Prime Minister said he expected secretaries to be innovative while applying their minds to sort out problems of their sectors.

"The initiatives will have to come from you. You will have my full support. We need to move from expenditures to outcome," Singh said.

Pointing to key issues in governance, Singh said there was a need to improve the quality of public sector management and the performance of core sector power, coal, ports and shipping, roads, telecom and railways.

He also asked the secretaries to make social sector spendings and delivery more effective besides ensuring that growth in economy generated employment opportunities.

Singh stressed on the need for heralding in another "green revolution". MNA/PTI

Computer programme developed to predict women's health

London, 14 Oct- Scientists said on Tuesday they have developed a computer programme that can predict whether women have a high risk of developing breast or ovarian cancer.

By using detailed family history, the programme called BOADICEA selects women who are most susceptible to the illness and would benefit from further screening or treatment.

"BOADICEA works out a woman's breast and ovarian cancer risk using detailed information on her family history of cancer," said Professor Doug Easton, of the Cancer Research UK Genetic Epidemiology Unit in Cambridge, England.

"The programme calculates both her risk of carrying a particular cancercausing mutation and her overall risk of developing breast or ovarian cancer," he added.

Identifying women with a high risk of either illness will enable doctors to monitor them more closely or take preventive measures such as surgery or drug treatments.

Scientists have identified two mutations in the BRCA1 and BRCA2 genes that increase cancer risk but many other genes are also involved.

"BRCA1 and BRCA2 together account for under 20 per cent of breast cancer clusters in families, so for a computer programme of this nature to be accurate it is vital it can take other mutations into account," said Easton, who described the programme in the British Journal of Cancer.

Women with the BRCA1 mutation have a 60-85 per cent chance of developing breast cancer at some stage in their lives, as well as a 20-40 per cent risk of ovarian cancer.

A fault in the BRCA 2 gene conveys a 40-60 per cent risk of breast cancer and 10-20 per cent chance of ovarian cancer.

The computer programme is based on genetic information from 1.484 women with breast cancer and 156 families with breast and ovarian cancer cases.

Easton tested the programme by comparing its findings with genetic tests done on women it had predicted as high risk.

"Having put the finished product through its paces by rigorously testing it, we have confirmed that it is more accurate than any other such programme in the past," according to Easton.

After the programme has been made more userfriendly, the researchers plan to make it available on the Internet to oncologists and geneticists.—MNA/Reuters

New study uses MRI and pet scans to chart Alzheimer's disease

WASHINGTON, 14 Oct— A new study will look at the brains of Alzheimer's patients to see if various scans can chart the disease and if new drugs can slow it down, doctors said on Wednesday.

The National Institute on Aging hopes the study will encourage drug companies to make new drugs to treat Alzheimer's, which affects an estimated 4.5 million Americans but which is projected to strike many millions more as the baby boomers age.

The 60 million US dollars, five-year publicprivate partnership will include 800 adults across the United States and Canada, and experts in neurology, imaging, Alzheimer's and other

It will use two types of scans — magnetic resonance imaging, or MRI and positron emission tomography, or PET — as well as biological markers in the blood, urine and spinal fluid to see which give the best indication of how a patient's disease is progressing.

"This is an extraordinary pooling of talent and resources toward a common goal — delaying or preventing Alzheimer's disease," said NIA director Dr. Richard Hodes.

"The initiative should become a landmark study ... helping us to find biological changes early so that we can identify the people at highest risk of the disease and test the effectiveness of new therapies more quickly and efficiently." Hodes said companies are already testing drugs aimed at slowing Alzheimer's, which steadily destroys the brain with a buildup of proteins and tangled nerve fibres. There is no cure and current treatments only temporarily help symptoms.

Portugal crush Russia 7-1

Lisbon, 14 Oct — Portugal crushed Russia 7-1 in a World Cup qualifier on Wednesday as they bounced back from a humiliating draw with Liechtenstein at the weekend.

Winger Cristiano Ronaldo and substitute Armando Petit both scored twice as Russia crumbled in the face of a superb Portuguese performance in the Alvalade Stadium in Lisbon.

Portugal pressed Russia from the first minute and striker Pauleta opened the scoring after 26 minutes, tapping in after being set up by Ronaldo. The unstoppable Ronaldo notched his first after 39 minutes following a goalmouth scramble.

Russia, who lost 2-0 to Portugal in Lisbon during Euro 2004 when they were eliminated in the first round, went 3-0 down on the stroke of halftime when Deco curled in from outside the area.

Ronaldo made it 4-0 with a powerful strike in the 69th minute before Russia, who were missing several key players including first-choice goalkeeper Sergei Ovchinnikov, pulled one back through Andrei Arshavin.— MNA/Reuters

Chile holds Argentina to 0-0 draw in World Cup qualifier

Santiago (Chile) 14 Oct—Chile held favourite Argentina to a 0-0 draw on Wednesday in a lively World Cup qualifying match. The draw left Argentina in second place in the 10-team South American qualifying group with 19 points from 10 matches. Chile has 12 points.

Seeking to reverse a disappointing performance in a 2-0 loss to Ecuador on Sunday, Chile deployed an orderly midfield led by Rodrigo Valenzuela, building several dangerous attacks.

Chile had the best chances to score early, but shortrange shots by Marcelo Salas and Reinaldo Navias produced brilliant saves by Argentina goalkeeper Roberto Abbondanzieri.

Jorge Valdivia later sent a shot wide from inside the small box. Argentina, although showing its usual good ball control, had difficulty breaking through Chile's strong defence, and Chile goalkeeper Nelson Tapia was rarely tested in the first half.

Carlos Tevez, the top scorer in the Argentine team that won the gold medal at the Olympics, nearly scored with a header that forced Tapia into an excellent save.

Keane's record scoring brings Sweden thrash Iceland 4-1 Ireland victory

Dublin, 14 Oct—Robbie Keane set an Irish scoring record of 23 goals when he scored twice to give Ireland a 2-0 home win over the Faroe Islands in their World Cup Group Four qualifier on Wednesday.

Winger Damien Duff made a diagonal run into the area where he was brought down and Keane slotted the penalty inside the right-hand post in the 14th minute to break Niall Quinn's old record of 21 Ireland goals.

He scored again less than 20 minutes later, pouncing on a rebound after Roy Keane's through ball came off a defender.

The Tottenham Hotspur striker was twice denied a hat-trick by goalkeeper Jakup Mikkelsen, who came out to block his shots in the second half, and central defender Jon Roi Jakobsen who cleared another effort off the line in the 80th minute.— MNA/Reuters

Henry, Wiltord help France badly needed 2-0 win over Cyprus

NICOSIA, 14 Oct — Striker Thierry Henry scored his first international goal for four months to help struggling France snatch a badly needed 2-0 victory over Cyprus in their World Cup Group Four qualifier on Wednesday.

The French went in front thanks to Sylvain Wiltord, who opened the scoring seven minutes from the break before Henry netted a fine pass from substitute Daniel Moreira in the 72nd.

France clinched the three points to keep alive their hopes of securing a direct berth in the 2006 World Cup after they were held to a goalless draw at home by Ireland on Saturday.

Japan advances to final round of Asian World Cup

Muscat, 14 Oct — Japan advanced to the final round of Asian World Cup qualifiers with an efficient 1-0 victory in Oman on Wednesday.

Defeat in Muscat would have been potentially disastrous for Japan but striker Takayuki Suzuki settled Japanese nerves with a powerful header seven minutes into the second half.

Moments later a rasping Naohiro Takahara volley was brilliantly saved by Oman goalkeeper Ali Al-Habsi. Oman striker Imad Ali came close in the 57th minute but Makoto Tanaka rescued goalkeeper Yoshikatsu Kawaguchi with a superb goalline clearance.

REYKJAVIK, 14 Oct — Sweden struck four first-half goals, including two from Henrik Larsson, to thrash Iceland 4-1 on Wednesday and move top of World Cup qualifying Group Eight.

Sweden followed their 3-0 win over Hungary on Saturday with another convincing victory to move two points above unbeaten Croatia, who did not play on Wednesday and have a game in hand.

Fleet-footed Christian Wilhelmsson was behind Sweden's most dangerous attacks and the Anderlecht midfielder wrapped up the victory with his first goal in his 16th international.

Wilhelmsson set up two stylish Larsson goals and a slightly lucky one for Marcus Allback in a purple 15minute patch that started midway through the first half before scoring himself with a powerful volley from 18 metres a minute before halftime.—MNA/Reuters
