Toward successful realization of the seven-step Road Map

Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services Senior General Than Shwe on 22 April inspected the site to construct Kyungon Bridge in Wakema and Pyapon Bridge in Pyapon, Ayeyawady Division and gave guidance.

During his inspection tour, Head of State Senior General Than Shwe met with members of Ayeyawady Division Peace and Development Council, departmental officials, chairmen of Patheingyi, Myaungmya, Hinthada and Maubin District Peace and Development Councils, chairmen of Pyapon, Bogalay, Kyaiklat and Dedaye Township Peace and Development Councils, members of Union Solidarity and Development Association, social organizations and townselders at Thiri Annawa Hall in Pyapon.

In his guidance, Senior General Than Shwe said that the government has laid down and is implementing the seven-step Road Map to ensure smooth transition to democracy; that democracy cannot be introduced through words; and that the introducing of democracy without discipline can incite mob rule and anarchy.

Today is the time when the State, the people and the Tatmadaw are making all-out efforts for the emergence of a peaceful, modern, developed and discipline-flourishing democratic nation. The government has laid sound foundations needed for flourishing of democracy in different parts of the nation. As a result, remarkable progress has been made in all aspects.

Restoring peace and stability and prevalence of law and order in the nation including border areas, strong national economy and high intelligence and rich knowledge of the people are prerequisite for laying the sound foundations.

Due to lack of such solid foundations, the parliamentary democracy practised from 1948 to 1962 and the Socialist democracy practised from 1962 to 1988 in the nation did not last long and met their end.

Therefore, sound foundations needed for flourishing of democracy are to be laid in the transitional period.

Such being so, we firmly believe that the State, the people and the Tatmadaw will be able to do their bit in an effort to successfully realize the seven-step Road Map for the emergence of a peaceful, modern, developed and discipline-flourishing democratic nation.

Iran says rich states must pay "real" oil price

TEHERAN, 22 April — Iran's President said on Friday that his country was looking at ways to help protect poor states from the impact of surging oil prices while rich countries should pay what he called the "real price".

Mahmoud Ahmadinejad was reiterating Iran's increasingly hawkish position on prices that have charged to record levels, partly on the back of worries that Iran's dispute with the West over its nuclear programme could disrupt Iranian crude supplies.

Ahmadinejad said earlier this week that oil prices had not reached their "real value" yet, suggesting they should rise further. He did not specify an appropriate level.

"There is a fund in OPEC, and the Oil Ministry and Foreign Ministry are in talks to see whether this OPEC fund has the capacity (to support poor countries)," Ahmadinejad said when asked about his plans to set up an assistance fund.

"If so, then we will strengthen this fund and find a formula to protect poor and weak countries not to be harmed because of the crude price hike," he told reporters while touring an oil industry exhibition.

"But those rich and industrial countries that have billions of dollars in income should pay the real price for their crude oil," he added.

He did not give details about the financing mechanism to protect poor countries but the Organization of the Petroleum-Exporting Countries already has a fund to promote development.

US envoy publicly states respect of Venezuela's sovereignty

CARACAS, 22 April — US Ambassador to Venezuela William Brownfield made a public statement on Thursday, saying the United States respects Venezuela's sovereignty in oil matters. He said the US-Venezuela relationship in terms of trade and gasoline was "positive", and described the countries as natural partners for geographical reasons.

It was up to the Venezuelan Government whether or not it wanted to retain or change its policies toward the United States, said the ambassador at a donation ceremony, adding that he did not expect any change.

On Wednesday, Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez said in Paraguay that Venezuela would blow up all its oil wells if the US ordered an invasion of his country, following US naval manoeuvres in the Caribbean. He described the exercises as a new attempt by "the empire" to intimidate him.

Washington deployed an aircraft carrier and three other warships in the Caribbean in April, and exercises in the area will continue until the end of May. This comes at a time when US Government officials have publicly stated their concern that Chavez is trying to influence the region's politics.

TV time linked to overweight risk for some kids

NEW YORK, 21 April — Too much television watching may increase a child's risk of being overweight, according to a study in the Archives of Pediatrics and Adolescent Medicine. However, another study in the same journal found that the association is true only for children of obese parents.

In that study, among children of normal-weight parents, television viewing time did not seem to affect their overweight risk. For children with at least one obese parent, however, the opposite was true.

"You can't think about the impact of television and obesity as uniform for all children," study author Dr Elizabeth A Vandewater, of the University of Texas at Austin, told Reuters Health.

"The findings of this study suggest that parental weight status is an important moderator of the relationship between television viewing and child weight status, and that researchers interested in understanding and intervening in childhood obesity would do well to collect information from parents as well as children," Vandewater and her coauthor, Xuan Huang, write. Their in-home and telephone interviews of 1,483 children aged 6 to 19 years in 2002 revealed that parental obesity was generally associated with an increased overweight risk for all of the children, except 6 to 9-year-old boys.—Internet

Iran-India gas link deal close despite US fire

DOHA, 21 April— Iran, India and Pakistan are close to signing a gas pipeline deal, the Iranian and Pakistani oil ministers told Reuters on Saturday, defying US opposition to the project.

The plan to pump Iranian gas to India through Pakistan was first proposed more than a decade ago, but progress has been slow because of hostility between India and Pakistan and, more recently, US opposition to Iran because of its nuclear programme.

Iranian Oil Minister Kazem Vaziri said he had an understanding with India and Pakistan and was unconcerned by US opposition.

"We have a very good understanding," Iranian Oil Minister Kazem Vaziri told Reuters. "They are willing and Iran is ready."

Asked when the deal would be signed, he said only: "I hope we are going to have a ministerial meeting in Teheran in June," adding it would be attended by the same three ministers.

Dozen nations urge Norway to stop commercial whaling

LONDON, 21 April— A dozen countries including Britain, France, Germany and Australia called on Thursday for an end to commercial whaling by Norway, which plans to step up whale hunts this year to the highest in two decades.

Norway's Foreign Ministry rejected the protest, saying the minke whales Norway harpoons for food in the North Atlantic are plentiful and well able to withstand the planned catch of 1,052 of the giant marine mammals in 2006.

"The UK and many other countries remain strongly opposed to Norway's existing and unnecessary lethal whaling activities and we urge Norway to stop them," British Fisheries Minister Ben Bradshaw said in a statement delivered on behalf of the 12.

"We shall continue to register our disapproval of all these whaling activities, which undermine the moratorium on commercial whaling," he said. A senior British diplomat in Oslo delivered the formal statement to the Norwegian Foreign Ministry.

Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, the Czech Republic, the Netherlands, New Zealand and Spain were the other countries to back the statement, issued soon after the start of the Norwegian whaling season on 1 April.

Parasite kills endangered tigers in Pakistan zoo

KARACHI, 22 April— A blood parasite that has killed scores of tigers in India and Bangladesh has now killed two endangered Bengal tigers at a zoo in Pakistan, officials said on Friday.

The tigers died in Lahore Zoo on Wednesday, victims of the "Trypanosoma" parasite which is spread by flies and mosquitoes, Nasir Saleem, a deputy director of the zoo, said.

The parasite is known to have killed over 100 tigers in India and Bangladesh in the last six months. Zoo director Mohammad Yousuf Pal said the parasite killed eight tigers in Pakistan in 1995 and 1997.

"We are taking every precautionary measure and treatment to ensure it does not become an epidemic in our country," he said.

The Bengal tiger is endangered because of poaching and loss of habitat, with less than 3,000 left in the wild today.

India alone had an estimated 40,000 tigers at the beginning of the last century.

Actor in 11 September movie denied entry to US

LONDON, 22 April— An Iraqi actor who plays a hijacker in a new film about the 11 September attacks on the United States complained on Friday he had been denied entry into the country for the movie's premiere.

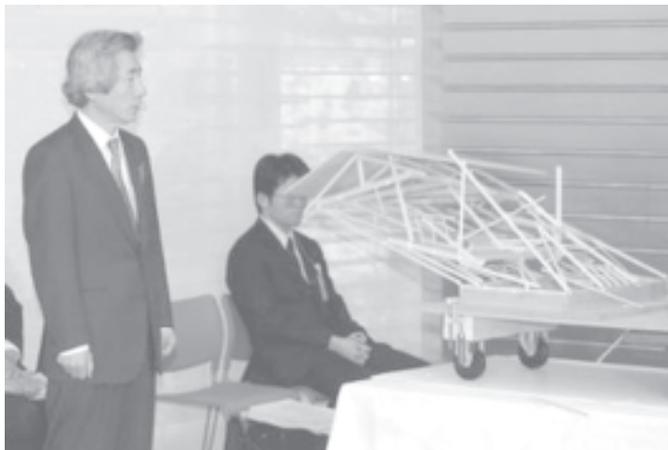

But the US Embassy in London said Lewis Alsamari, who has lived in Britain since 1995, had not given sufficient notice about his planned trip.

A spokeswoman said officials at the embassy would try their best to get Alsamari to New York on time but could give no guarantees.

Alsamari stars in

"United 93", a film about the hijacked plane that crashed in Pennsylvania which has sparked intense debate about whether Americans are ready to see an on-screen portrayal of the events.

China, UNDP agree on rural technology transfer project

BEIJING, 21 April — The Chinese Government and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) have agreed on a project to provide innovative technologies and expertise to poverty-ridden rural areas in China. With three million US dollars from the Ministry of Science and Technology (MOST) and one million US dollars from UNDP, the four-year project, titled "Alleviating Rural Poverty through Innovative Technologies Transfer," will set up technical task forces to introduce to farmers both better technologies and innovative organizational methods for farmers to receive tailor-made technological services to increase their income. MOST Vice-Minister

Liu Yanhua said, "The UNDP is the first international organization that helps China to develop and enhance technical task forces to extend technologies to rural China."

Nanping City, southeast China's Fujian Province, piloted a scheme in 2002 to send technical experts to help rural people raise their earnings with appropriate technologies. Since then, 598 counties in 24 provinces nationwide have followed suit.

Khalid Malik, UNDP resident representative in China, said, "We hope that the project will help generate new job opportunities in local communities and allow agriculture technology experts from government agencies, academies, research institutes, and other organizations to participate more effectively in lifting farmers out of poverty."

The fire occurred around 8 a.m. Thursday local time at the Annapolis Valley farm owned by Mitchell and Jennifer Visser near Waterville, which is located about 80 kilometres west of the provincial capital Halifax, reports reaching here said.

More than a dozen firefighting departments from around the Annapolis Valley were called to the scene. But they had to focus their attention on saving nearby buildings.

Neighbour Howard

The Vissers said the barns and animals were insured, so they hope to be able to return to raising hogs.

Two Chinese monks to retrace “journey to the west”

GUANGZHOU, 22 April — Two Buddhist monks are to follow in the footsteps of a famous predecessor Xuanzang on a journey from China to India.

Xuanzang (602-664 AD) travelled from the city of Chang’an, today’s Xi’an in northwest China’s Shaanxi Province, to India in 629 to study Buddhism and obtain Buddhist scriptures. His trip took 19 years.

And, as part of a series of activities to commemorate Xuanzang’s journey, two monks, one from the Chinese Mainland and the other from Taiwan, will set off from Xi’an on 20 July.

Their 120-day journey to India will follow Xuanzang’s exact route.

The two monks — 33-year-old Mingxian from east China’s Jiangxi Province and 36-year-old Huikuan from Taiwan — will travel on foot along certain sections of the journey.

They will travel through Pakistan and Nepal and will arrive at Nalanda in India, the ancient centre of Buddhist learning, on 20 November.

Mingxian said he hoped their journey would promote world peace.

British troops should get out of Iraq now

LONDON, 22 April — British troops should get out of Iraq now because it is in a state of civil war, former shadow Foreign Secretary Michael Ancram said on Friday.

In a stark contradiction of Conservative party policy, Ancram said Britain’s 8,000 troops in Iraq “should come home now, while they can with honour and dignity”.

“Whatever word games Tony Blair, Jack Straw and John Reid may try to play, everyone knows that Iraq today is effectively in a state of civil war,” Ancram wrote in the Daily Mail. ## Ex-CIA agent says White House ignored WMD intelligence

WASHINGTON, 22 April — The CIA had evidence Iraq possessed no weapons of mass destruction six months before the 2003 US-led invasion but was ignored by a White House intent on ousting Saddam Hussein, a former senior CIA official said according to CBS.

Tyler Drumheller, who headed CIA covert operations in Europe during the run-up to the Iraq war, said intelligence opposing administration claims of a WMD threat came from a top Iraqi official who provided the US spy agency with other credible information.

The source “told us that there were no active weapons of mass destruction programmes”, Drumheller said in a CBS interview to be aired on Sunday on the network’s news magazine, 60 Minutes.

“The (White House) group that was dealing with preparation for the Iraq war came back and said they were no longer interested,” he was quoted as saying in interview excerpts released by CBS on Friday.

“We said: ‘Well, what about the intel?’ And they said: ‘Well, this isn’t about intel anymore. This is about regime change,’” added Drumheller, whose CIA operation was assigned the task of debriefing the Iraqi official.

He was the latest former US official to accuse the White House of setting an early course toward war in Iraq and ignoring intelligence that conflicted with its aim.

CBS said the CIA’s intelligence source was former Iraqi Foreign Minister Naji Sabri and that former CIA Director George Tenet delivered the information personally to President George W Bush, Vice-President Dick Cheney and other top

White House officials in September 2002. They rebuffed the CIA three days later.

“The policy was set. The war in Iraq was coming and they were looking for intelligence to fit into the policy,” the former CIA agent told CBS.

Myint Soe (NaTaLa)

It took me five to ten years to learn an important event in the past. For example, in the year when I joined the Defence Services Academy, the story about Point 6041 Battle was well-known. Major Thiha Thura Thein Tun Tin, who commanded the Tatmadaw members in the battle, gave a lecture to us, the cadets at the DSA with the use of sand maps. After leaving the DSA, I carried the booklet about the battle wherever I went.

When I was posted to Tangyan in 1988 and assigned duties to supervise Naunglai camp, I happened to study Point 6041, Parphan and Naunglai battles with the use of the map. Some village elders who had knowledge and experiences of these battles recounted facts about the battles in detail to me. I had an opportunity to learn the military objectives and offensive strategies of the Burma Communist Party (BCP).

Sisiwan-Tarpang Battle that took place in 1986 was another example. My friends Myo Myint and Captain Tin Ko of Defence Services (Air) fell in that battle. About ten years later, I met a national race leader from Mongla Region of Shan State (East) Special Region 4. He recounted to me his experiences when he was under the BCP. He said national race people were never given opportunity to play a leadership role in the BCP, and were repressed. And young men of national races had to take risks in the front lines of violent battles.

He also recounted his involvement in Sisiwan-Tarpang Battle, heavy casualties BCP suffered due to the attacks of fighter planes of the Defence Services (Air), and shooting down a fighter by Migyaung (2) camp with the use of 0.5 machine gun. I studied all the facts about the Sisiwan-Tarpang Battle and desperate moves the BCP made through the book "Attributes of Tatmadaw Members" by Maj-Gen Hla Myint Swe (Retd). The book also featured wholehearted support with documentary photos by the people including members of Red Cross Society and auxiliary fire brigade for the Tatmadaw.

I remember an event that took place more than three decades ago when the operation of four cuts reached its peak and delta region command (Central) led by BCP Bo Aung Pe was under siege by the Tatmadaw with the help of tens of thousands of local people including my uncles. When they returned home, I learnt from them that Bo Aung Pe was captured dead.

At that time, Bo Aung Pe was well-known to all local people around the region. He was also known as Darkhokkyi (big scar) because he had a big long scar on his cheek hit with a sword. When I was interviewed for joining the Defence Services Academy, the chairman of the examination board asked if I knew about the four cuts in reference to cutting or preventing supplies and from reaching the enemy so on in the delta region and facts about the biography of Bo Aung Pe. Later I learnt that the chairman took part in the military operations launched in the delta region.

The book "True experiences, operation after operation" by Brig-Gen Than Tin (Retd) who had served as commander of South-West Command Headquarters and won the National Literary Award for 2004 enhanced my knowledge about military operations. At that time, the BCP and KNDO insurgent groups took a stronghold in the delta region and collected extortion money from local people. Out of it, they provided yearly K 4 million for the BCP (Central) and K 5 million for KNU (Central). And BCP's delta region command served as a bridge between Rakhine and Taninthayi regions and the BCP (Central).

The book "True experiences, operation after operation" reminded me of basic education schools at the foot of the west Yoma mountain range — Sein Taung basic education primary school, Hlawkahtar basic education middle school (now high school), and Laymyet-hna basic education high school. It was because I spent my school days of primary and middle school education in the period when military operations were launched in the delta region. Memory still serves me right that at that time it was the period of the operation of four cuts, and I drew a day's rations for my family every morning. I strained my ears to the crack of gunfire I sometimes heard while studying in the classroom, and I was acquainted well with Tatmadaw members who were stationed in the village monastery.

The operation "Moe Hein", the operation "Shwe Lin Yon", the operation "Shwe La Win", the operation "Ayeya Min", the operation "Taing Lon Aung" were conducted from 1968 to 1974. In the operation "Taing Lon Aung", the Tatmadaw swept away all the remnant insurgents. The Tatmadaw also had to launch the operation "Htaw Paing" to crush the expatriates who entered Bogale Township in 1972. At the time, among the 26 townships in Ayeyawady Division, only a few townships were free from the danger of insurgency. The Tatmadaw launched military operations one after another to wipe out the insurgency and managed to change the region from black region to brown region, and then to white region which means it was totally free from insurgents.

It is common knowledge that "Chaungtha" is now a site where people can stay for recreation and leisure in peace. But, I do not think all the people know that more than 30 years ago, a massive force of over 20,000 local people including Tatmadaw columns, members of the Myanmar Police Force and people's militia collectively put Chaungtha and its surrounding areas under siege to crush the insurgents of KNDO.

Like Ayeyawady Division, many places in Yangon Division saw the stresses and strains of public life. In November 2001, 104 excursion team members from Kengtawng and Kengkham regions in Shan State (South) paid a visit to Yangon. They were provided with accommodation in No 1 Transist Centre in Bayintnaung, Hline Township. I remember that Maj-Gen Maung Bo (now Lt-Gen Maung Bo) visited and asked after them. He asked if they had a good sleep at the previous night. He elaborated that they could enjoy a good sleep thanks to the fruit of peace and stability; that many violent combats occurred in the places of the hostels the members were lodging; and the members were to make earnest efforts to ensure peace and stability in their native towns Kengtawng and Kengkham.

As peace and stability has been restored, Inlay, the cultural hub of Shan State, has become a region that people can visit for recreation, and cultures of Intha tribes are preserved and safeguarded well, as well as an economically strategic region. Various forms of battles that occurred in the eastern and western parts of Inlay Lake in olden days harmed the beauty of the lake.

Previous governments employed various ways and means to restore stability of the State and community peace and built as far as they could national reconsolidation. However, they could not gain much success. Since 1989, the Tatmadaw Government has been striving for national reconsolidation as the national policy. And the drive has come to fruition that is unprecedented in the nation. Seventeen national race armed groups have returned to the legal fold and that has helped restore peace and stability fully.

With the fruitful results of peace and stability, development tasks are being implemented with added momentum in border areas with an investment of K 78,794.93 million in total. The regions where local people had to stay in a state of alarm in the past have been put on the track towards development.

It took a large number of years to restore peace and stability in a village or a town. It has taken a greater number of years, a huge investment has to be made, and many lives have to be sacrificed to restore peace and stability in the entire state or division made up of many towns. Peace and stability serves sound foundations for prospects and progress to a region.

The ultimate goal of the State is to build a peaceful, modern and developed democratic nation with flourishing discipline. Indeed, peace and stability is fundamental to the drive for building a new nation.

Entire national people are therefore dutybound to protect and safeguard in concert already-restored peace that is essential for a nation.

the anniversary of Myawady TV, the prize-presentation ceremony for the best manuscript award and colour photo competition of Myawady Literary House was also held today, he said. Nowadays, the term 'Technology Age' is very popular as global nations are vying each other for getting ahead in technology. And the world's technologies are advancing very rapidly today.

Myanmar has been striving for the development of human resources with the use of technology.

With the development of technology information can be sent from one place to another in the world in no time. In other words, television and periodicals draw to the public as mass communication has developed rapidly.

Some developed nations of the world with superiority in military, economy and technology dominate, threaten and invade developing countries and it is found that they are trying to control those countries through media channel.

Ignoring the developments of Myanmar, some big nations make others misunderstand Myanmar with the use of media as a weapon and they spread false news and rumours in order to weaken national solidarity, to break up the Union Spirit and to undermine peace and stability. At the same time, they are trying to instill their thoughts, attitudes and culture into the people in the country. They also provide assistance to internal destructive elements and destroy the developments of Myanmar.

It is the duty of the mass communication to broadcast prevalence of law and order, development and cooperation of the Tatmadaw, the people and the State. Among the media, television and periodicals are the most effective mass communication in information and education. Myawady TV plays important role in the mass communication and entertains, educates and informs the people.

He stressed the need to produce the programmes that will benefit the State and people while sustaining their achievement. The Tatmadawmen and staff who worked hard in the year were deservedly awarded in the prize presentation ceremony. He urged the prize winning staff to make more efforts in their tasks and the other Tatmadawmen and staff are to participate in achieving more success of Myawady TV.

Best short story, novelette, article, poem and cartoon in Myawady and Ngwetari Magazines within one year will also be presented to winners, and prizes will be presented to winners in the Myawady Colour Photo

Contest for 2005.

The Government is giving priority to development of literature and fine arts sector. As part of implementing the aims of the State, Myawady Literary House holds the ceremony to present literary and photo prizes to outstanding persons.

Myawady Literary House was set up in November 1952. Since its birth, the house has been organizing the photo contest of Myawady Magazine. In October 1961, Myawady Literary House took the responsibility for publication of Ngwetari Magazine. Hence, Ngwetari Magazine is standing as a senior magazine in the Myanmar literature world.

Both Myawady and Ngwetari magazines have been producing famous writers in their traditions.

Due to making utmost efforts in literary and photo works, winners will be awarded with prizes at today's ceremony. At the same time, the ceremony will honour those under units and schools of Directorate of Public Relations and Psychological Warfare who won prizes in State-level literary contests and Traditional Cultural Performing Arts Competitions, those who took prizes in contests to mark the Armed Forces Day, outstanding Tatmadawmen and staff of Myawady TV, outstanding writers and those who contributed to functions of Myawady TV and Myawady Literary House.

In conclusion, the Secretary-1 urged those from Myawady TV and Myawady Literary House to strive for improvement of their media works while serving the interests of the State and the people; and to try their best to uplift integrity of respective works while discharging duties assigned by the Directorate of Public Relations and Psychological Warfare.

Buffalo milk may help meet China's growing cheese demand

NANNING, 23 April — China may tap its rich buffalo milk resources to meet the growing domestic demand for cheese, which has become so popular on the Chinese dinner table thanks to the prevalence of Western food.

China has 22.76 million buffaloes that together produce 2.65 million tons of milk a year, says Zheng Hua, an expert attending the ongoing fifth Asian Buffalo Congress in Nanning, south China's Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region.

Buffalo milk contains more fat and protein than cow's milk and therefore provides ideal raw material for cheese production, says Zheng, a food engineering specialist.

"In Italy, almost all the buffalo milk is used to produce cheese, including the world-famous Mozzarella," he said.

If China fully taps its own buffalo milk resources, he said the country will not have to rely on imports to satisfy its domestic cheese demand and can even enter the world cheese market with its own brands.

Iranian President says oil prices "very good"

TEHERAN, 22 April — Iran's President said on Friday the rise in oil price was "very good", Iran's Mehr news agency reported, emphasizing the hawkish position of the world's fourth largest oil exporter as crude prices have hit record levels.

"The increase of the oil price and growth of oil income is very good and we hope that the oil prices reach their real levels," Mahmoud Ahmadinejad said as he toured an oil exhibition in Teheran, the agency reported.

He did not say what those real levels should be. But these and other earlier remarks suggest he believes crude prices should rise above this week's record high of over 74 US dollars a barrel.

On Friday, European Brent crude oil dipped below 73 US dollars.

Iranian Oil Minister Kazem Vaziri-Hamaneh said on Thursday Iran was happy with surging prices.

The minister blamed the price rise on a shortage of gasoline in the United States and not a shortage of crude in world markets.

Most members of the Organization of the Petroleum-Exporting Countries worry that the high prices will hurt world economic growth and Iran had previously shared that view.

OPEC member Venezuela has also taken a hawkish position.

Spain Catalonia Region reports 15 cases of Legionnaires' disease

MADRID, 22 April — The authorities of Spain's Catalonia Region said on Thursday that 15 Catalan retirees had been treated for Legionnaires' disease following a stay in a hotel in a southern Spanish town.

The retirees, all between 60 and 85 years old, had travelled to Almunecar, a town in the southern region of Andalucia as part of a package holiday. They had stayed in the same hotel between 25 March and 12 April.

The first few cases were diagnosed in Granada in southern Spain and others were detected upon the pensioners' return to Catalonia. The hotel was declared a "suspect establishment" afterward by health officials, who have taken water samples from the building's cisterns and an ornamental fountain.

A Granada Government source said the hotel's water supply was the suspected source of the infection, adding that the local authority had ordered building to shut down on Wednesday evening as a precaution. —MNA/Xinhua

Earthquake damages buildings in Russian Far East

Moscow, 22 April — A major earthquake struck the Kamchatka Peninsula in Russia’s Far East on Friday, damaging some buildings and slightly injuring a few people in the remote region, the Emergencies Ministry said.

The 7.7 magnitude

tremour occurred at 12:25 pm local time (2325 GMT Thursday) roughly 7.8 miles (12.6 kilo-metres) underground, the US Geological Survey said on its website.

The initial quake was followed by 10 aftershocks with magnitudes ranging between 4.5 and 6.1, according to the survey. “Buildings and a runway have been damaged but there are no reports of casualties,” said a regional Emergencies Ministry spokesman.

The epicentre was on Kamchatka’s eastern coast, 70 kilometres (40 miles) east of the settlement Tilichiki, he added. Around 12,000 people live in the area affected by the quake. “Some people had slight injuries but have been treated on the spot. Two planes with rescue workers have been dispatched to the area and people have been moved to higher ground where a temporary camp is planned,” he added.

Indian research institute develops hi-tech walking stick for blind

NEW DELHI, 22 April — The Indian Institute of Technology (IIT) Delhi has developed a high-tech stick to make walking and commuting easier for the country’s nine million visually impaired people, Indo-Asian News Service reported on Friday.

The walking stick, named “smart cane”, will help the visually impaired people easily commute by city buses, walk inside a room without knocking into things and take a safe passage in case of an emergency, according to the IIT Computer Science Department.

The smart cane was made up of two parts, vibration technology to detect obstacles and ultrasonic ranger to help commute on city buses.

With detective and vibration warning devices, the new cane can navigate much above the knee level and gauge the obstacle from over a three-metre distance, compared with the sticks in the market that can only navigate up to knee level within a range of one metre.

BRASILIA, 22 April — Brazilian President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva on Thursday awarded the nation’s first astronaut Marcos Pontes with the National Order of Merit after he returned to Brazil from a mission to the International Space Station (ISS).

“When we assume the responsibility of continuing our space programme, it was another signal that Brazil would take the big steps needed to be master of its own fate, Brazil is developing very quickly towards exercising its full sovereignty,” Lula said at the welcoming ceremony, describing the Pontes mission as a historical achievement.

The 43-year-old Pontes told a crowd of cheering primary schoolchildren, from the Brasilia Federal District, that the mission was a complete success and had allowed Brazil to conduct important experiments in space.

“All of these were very important, not only for their results but also for their future effect,” he said, adding that an important goal of the mission was to awaken an interest in space among young people.

Under-strength Villarreal lose 2-0 to Sociedad

MADRID, 23 April—A weakened Villarreal clearly had their focus on next week's Champions League semifinal return against Arsenal as they slumped to a 2-0 home defeat against Real Sociedad in the Primera Liga on Saturday.

Villarreal rested several key players with six out injured and it showed when the Basque side raced into an early lead with Mikel Alonso and Mark Gonzalez scoring in the first 27 minutes to effectively settle the match.

The defeat left Villarreal eighth on 49 points while Sociedad climbed away from the relegation zone and are now 12th with 38 points after their third win in four outings.

Tottenham earn controversial draw at Highbury

LONDON, 23 April—Thierry Henry came off the bench to rescue a 1-1 draw for Arsenal against Tottenham Hotspur in a pulsating last north London derby at Highbury on Saturday.

The Frenchman, one of several first choice players left out of the starting lineup by Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger, produced a delicate finish to deny Spurs a first league victory at the ground since 1993.

Tottenham, who started the day four points above Arsenal in the battle to finish fourth in the Premier League and claim the final Champions League berth, ended with 10 men after Edgar Davids was shown a red card.

Davids had been involved in Tottenham's controversial opener for Robbie Keane after 65 minutes—a goal that produced a furious touchline row between Wenger and his Spurs counterpart Martin Jol.

Arsenal's Gilberto and Emmanuel Ebou collided trying to stop Tottenham's impressive midfielder Michael Carrick, but instead of kicking the ball out of play Carrick played in Davids whose low cross was tapped in at the far post by Keane.

"It was a shame," a clearly angry Wenger told Sky Sports. "There was a hesitation by Carrick when he saw two players down. They said they did not see it from the (Spurs) bench, to lie about that I find very disappointing."

Jol, whose side will finish fourth if they win their last two matches of the season, preferred to concentrate on their first-half performance.—MNA/Reuters

Liverpool foil Chelsea's double bid

LONDON, 23 April—Liverpool reached the FA Cup final and foiled Chelsea's bid for the league-Cup double with a 2-1 victory in their semifinal at Old Trafford in Manchester on Saturday.

"To win this game was amazing...I think in the end the players worked so hard, we deserved to win," said Benitez, relieved that his team withstood Chelsea's late onslaught.

Liverpool went ahead midway through the first half when John Arne Riise scored from a free kick, curling a low shot between Paulo Ferreira and Frank Lampard at the near end of the wall and past unsighted keeper Carlo Cudicini.

Chelsea conceded the second goal from a throw-in on the right on 53 minutes when a poor headed clearance fell to Luis Garcia. The Spaniard raced away from three defenders to hit a dipping shot high into the far top corner.

"It was a fantastic goal for Luis and necessary for us," said Benitez.

Didier Drogba put Chelsea back into the game with 20 minutes to go when Liverpool made a hash of clearing the ball and keeper Jose Reina, racing off his line, was caught out of position by the striker's header.

It was Benitez' second win against Jose Mourinho's Chelsea in 10 meetings in all competitions after theseysiders put the Londoners out of the Champions League in the semifinals almost a year ago.—MNA/Reuters

They took a 14th minute lead with Ricardo Vaz Te's header from Hidetoshi Nakata's cross from the right.

Borgetti made it three in the 31st with a right-footed shot into the roof of the net and Davies added a late fourth. Striker Darren Dent pulled one back for Charlton with a 76th-minute penalty for his 18th league goal of the season after keeper Jussi Jaaskelainen fouled substitute Jay Bothroyd.

Everton striker James Beattie had a goal disallowed in the 55th minute and an overhead kick six minutes later saved by keeper Maik Taylor.

Newcastle United 3 West Bromwich Albion 0

Mechanism needed to further push ASEAN-China ICT cooperation

PINANG (Malaysia), 23 April — A follow-up mechanism is needed to implement and further refine those proposals generating from the ASEAN-China information and communication technology (ICT) cooperation, Malaysian Deputy Prime Minister Najib Tun Razak said here on Friday.

Significant initiatives and benefits had been seen since the First ASEAN-China ICT Week was launched in China last year and issued the Beijing Declaration, Najib said as the ASEAN-China ICT Ministerial Forum opened here in conjunction with the Second ASEAN-China ICT

Week. The proposals, including the construction of the ASEAN-China information superhighway, joint development and promotion of applicable technology suitable for rural and remote areas, and the creation of an ASEAN-China Coordination Framework for Network and Information Security Emergency Responses, are highly commendable, he said.

The measures, including the establishment of working groups which will meet each year before the ASEAN-China ICT Week, are needed to be tapped to discuss, plan and strategize to implement and realize the proposals or benefits, he said.
