Work in concert in production and sales of gems

Gemstones of Myanmar such as jade, ruby, sapphire and pearl are world famous and popular because of their good quality.

The Ministry of Mines holds gems emporiums every year to earn more foreign exchange. The government is also taking measures in order that national private companies can take part in the emporiums.

Special sales of jade, gems and pearl started at the Mynamar Convention Centre and the Myanma Gems Mart in Yangon on 20 June and it will continue till 4 July. A total of 500 lots of A and AA quality pearl will be on sale. They will be sold to national gems merchants on 22 June and to foreign gems merchants on 23 June.

More than 60 foreign gems merchants have been invited and most of them are from Japan and Hong Kong. At the Myanmar Convention Centre, only jade will be on sale and the other gems and pearl lots will be on sale at the Myanma Gems Mart.

The ministries concerned are assisting national private companies by providing technology to them so that these companies can offer finished products and by exploring new markets and making necessary arrangements in order that they can take part in international trade fairs.

We believe that the government and national gems merchants will work together in the production and sales of gems for mutual benefits and for boosting foreign exchange earnings

Los Angeles, 19 June—The J Paul Getty Museum's trust has found 350 of its Greek, Roman and Etruscan artefacts were bought from dealers suspected or convicted of dealing in looted artefacts, the Los Angeles Times has reported.

The report comes amid talks between the Los Angeles museum and the governments of Italy and Greece over allegedly looted material in Getty's collection

A review conducted by the trust last year to gauge the Getty's exposure to claims against objects in its collection "shows that the trust purchased far more pieces from suspect dealers than has been previously disclosed," the newspaper reported. The 350 vases, urns, statues and other sculptures were valued at close to $US100 million

They are in addition to 52 items in the Getty collection that Italy has demanded back, contending they were illegally excavated and exported, it said. "The assessment does not address the question of whether any of the 350 objects were purchased illegally, nor does it evaluate their artistic significance," the newspaper said. But Getty records show that they include 35 of the museum's 104 masterpieces."-Internet

The plots of saboteurs inside and outside the nation and the truth that should be realized —1

Soe Mya Kyaw and Saw Mya Aung

In Myanmar at present, the globally proclaimed seven-point Road Map is being implemented for the emergence of a peaceful. modern and developed discipline-flourishing state. The government on its part has been striving to fulfill the three requirements for the flourishing of democracy - prevalence of peace and stability and the rule of law in the entire nation including border areas; cementing of foundations for ensuring a robust national economy, and raising of the intellectual level and thinking power of the people — while in the process of smooth and democracy transition despite the many obstacles and difficulties. The more we witness and understand government's endeavours for the cause, the greater confidence we have in them.

The first and the most important step of the Road Map is the National Convention that is going to conclude successfully in the near future as it has already adopted over 70 per cent of the detailed basic principles that will shape the future state's structure and materalize the form and essence of the legislative power. In other words, the public desired peace, progress, prosperity and democracy are within our remnants of the Burma Communist Party and other external and internal saboteurs are committing to reverse the trend and put the people into an inferno.

Dailies issued on 16 June revealed the perpetration the national traitors, persons holding negative views. expatriates, insurgents and neo-colonialists from abroad are committing to disturb and isolate Mvanmar through aboveground underground tactics with the participation of expatriates. In the dailies said "Po Than Gyaung of BCP, son of Ludu Daw Amar, a prominent writer of Mandalay, has a hand

He has installed a website in which he raised the method of sending foreign troops into Myanmar to remove the government with military force. instigating opposition members to launch an armed revollt and organizing Tatmadawmen to join forces with the opposition. Likewise, the NCUB is also distributing fliers calling for a commotion that will be followed by an anarchist acts. Some foreign radio stations in collusion with BCP and NCUB are also trying to deceive the public.

Here, the powers of the West who terribly hate the communists and foreign radio stations under their domain. political opponents, expatriates and insurgents are in the same rolling bandwagon according to the BCP's scheme to set up an authoritarian rule, while advocating democracy with slogans. Why? This is what we have been studying.

What undeniable for all is the road we are marching on towards multiparty democracy. What is obvious for all is the market-oriented economy we are practising. What is within our reach is a new constitution firmly proclaiming the adoption of democracy and the market economy. Hence, it is crystal clear that the plot of the persons to install democracy through a commotion is none other than to push the people into an abyss just to grab

grabbing power through aboveground insurrection and underground armed struggle line is the extremist ideology, the BCP has been following since its birth till today. The option spread to other inexperienced leftist politicians who ignited the internal strife burning in the nation beginning 1948. While the communists were following the policy of insurrections and armed insurgency after the nation regained independence, insurgents holding narrow racism were also turning to armed struggle line. Those insurgents fuelled riots followed by looting and destruction. They destroyed roads and had built for the nation. To make matters worse, they had in hand the remnants of the arms and ammunition used in the time of World War II, and so they chose the armed struggle line that later spread throughout the country. Such aboveground insurgency also incited the 1988 unrest.

bridges the government

When the internal and external destructive elements found impossible to seize the power through underground insurgency, they instigated mass protests, at the expense of the lives of the people. Indeed, until now all the aboveground and underground political groups have constantly practised the policy of inciting the people to stage mass demonstrations. Now there remains just a few of politicians in the nation who practise politics in the interests of the nation and the people.

Surely, the BCP will stick to its dogmatism until it comes into power And with the grudge, the remnant BCP insurgents will continue to oppose the Tatmadaw that strongly stands by the people and has dealt a devastating blow on the Yebaw Kyaw (a) Soe Win is a son of Ludu U Hla and Ludu Daw Amar and who went underground at the instigation of BCP UGs and was posted to the BCP (Central).

In an attempt to divert the public attention from its wrong policy, BCP insurgents held the claiming grievance campaigns at Mya Ya Pin forest in Bago Yoma while they were running for their lives due to the attacks of the Tatmadaw.

At the instigation of the then BCP chairman Thakin Than Tun and party, artless and naive BCP youths under the name of Tatni (red army) members with bigot views spoke ill of and insulted their relations.

Some of them became so inhuman that they even committed patricide. BCP member Po Htoo, son of BCP Central Committee secretary Yebaw Htay, made an emphatic demand for death penalty for his father claiming "I will kill traitor Nga Htay. I will behead him" Together with other BCP Tatni members, Po Htoo fisted, kicked and struck his father to death.

It was Bo Yan Aung who was killed by BCP members on 26 December 1967 with the charges of being counterrevolutionary, revisionist and traitor. Among the BCP members who committed that murder was Bo Yan Aung's dearest son BCP Ze Latt (a) Yebaw Saw Min who claimed "I have no sense of relations in the class struggle. I have to kill even my father or son if necessary". Member of the central committee Bo Tun Nyein, Yebaw Tun Shein and Yebaw Ba Tin (a) Goshal were among the victims who met their tragic end in the campaign to implement the policy of "Dismiss, remove and kill" of the BCP.

At that time, BCP Tun Kyaw (a) Soe Win, brother of BCP Po Than Gyaung, emphatically claimed "My parents are merely exploiters and capitalists. I will not hesitate to kill them if I am under the circumstances of the revolution". BCP members Ba Than, Bo Tha Khin Win and Tun Kvaw (a) Soe Win, who placed too much reliance on the BCP and went underground from Yangon University did not manage to survive the campaign. They were accused of being followers of Bo Tun Nyein and were struck with solid bamboo sticks to death at the central office of the BCP at 1.30 pm on 13 September 1968. Those who accused

Such extreme acts despicably committed in the BCP central camp in Bago Yoma in 1967-68 are stated in detail in the book "Last days of Thakin Than Tun" by Yebaw Mya, Yebaw Ba Khet, Bo Min Din, Yebaw Saw Hla and Bo Tin Shein who fled BCP to return to the legal fold. Due to the well-plotted instigation of hard-core BCP UGs, the 1988 unrest was infected with mob rules initiated by the BCP members who became inhuman and desperately anxious to grab State power.

The 1988 unrest was followed by a number of inhumane murders committed under the mob rule in the public places and that was totally against the Myanmar During the period, various fabrications were being manufactured widespread to mislead the people into the wrong views and many innocent people who were not connected with purported cases were under various accusations and decapitated without thorough investigations.

period from 18 August to 19 September 1988, the anarchists beheaded 55 innocent people. They also killed 18 innocent people with the use of swords. spears, spear-like weapons and jingali. Detailed facts about these incidents are stated in the books such as 'True stories about violence in 1988 unrest" and "Myanmar that went through hell".

incidence originated from the genuine desire of the people for a change that would bring modernization and development to the nation. However, subversive acts of the BCP UGs who had been plotting for years to wage armed attacks aboveground and underground revolt in synchronization plus thoughtlessness of the politicians who had emerged overnight led to anarchistic acts and chaotic situations in the nation. The disturbances in the nation worsened due to the sinister acts of the BCP UGs and the embassies of the West bloc and propaganda of the broadcasting stations, namely, BBC, VOA, AIR and so on, and newspapers and periodicals, namely, the Nation, Bangkok Post, Asiaweek, Far Eastern Economic Review and so

In the meantime, the government offices were ransacked, godowns broken into, the public property looted, and strike groups were formed thereby causing the breakdown of the administrative machinery; these are all subversive acts. In downtown Yangon and major cities, those who were ready to commit cruelties and bully people dominated the unruly mob.

The majority of the people thus lost protection of the rule of law. They had to live in fear of the nearest bullies.

The productive capital of the State-owned mills and factories worth K 535 million were destroyed. Other property losses amounted to as high as K 620.5 million. #### US military charges 3 over prisoner deaths in Iraq

BAGHDAD, 20 June — The US military said on Monday three US soldiers had been charged over the deaths of three male prisoners in Iraq on 9 May.

It said the soldiers faced charges including "murder, attempted murder, conspiracy, communicating a threat, and obstructing justice". It was not immediately clear whether all three faced the murder charge.

3rd Brigade Combat Team, 101st Airborne Division have been charged in connection with the deaths of three male detainees," the US military said in a statement.

The case comes as the US military is investigating other cases of alleged abuses, including the killing of up to 24 unarmed civilians in the town of Haditha last year by US Marines.

More Chinese bankers believe macro economy overheated

Beijing, 19 June-Latest survey by China's central bank shows that 42.6 per cent of bankers in the country believe that the macro economy is overheated, and 26.6 per cent think the situation will continue

The People's Bank of China and the National Bureau of Statistics quarterly send questionnaires to principals of all kinds of banks including foreign-funded ones, asking them about impression upon the current economic situa-

Some 42.6 per cent of bankers think the macro economy is overheated in the second quarter of this year, and 26.6 per cent predict such situation will continue in the next quarter, which is the maximum ratio in history.

China's economy is facing heightened overheating signs, as outstanding bank loans surged 15.97 per cent year on year by the end of May amid a seemingly unabated investment binge.

So as to cool down the overheated economy, the People's Bank of China in April raised the minimum rate commercial banks charge on one-year loans in local currency, the yuan, 27 basis points, to 5.85 per cent in an aggressive move to discourage lending. It was the first increase since October 2004.

China helps Africa on desert control

Lanzhou, 19 June— Officials and technicians from African countries will come to northwest China's Gansu Province in August for an annual training programme on combating desertification.

The African trainees will learn Chinese experiences on desert control through lectures and field practice, said Man Duoqing, head of the international affairs department of Gansu Desert Control Research Institute (GDCRI).

"They will spend some 25 days in the field across Gansu

Desertified land shrinks in Beijing

Beijing, 19 June— Beijing has seen its desertified land shrink by 1,613 hectares, a drop of three percentage points than five years ago.

A report released by the municipal horticulture and afforestation bureau Saturday shows that 92 per cent of the city's largest piece of eroded land around Yongding River has been put under control from further expansion in the past five years.

Beijing, the host of the 2008 Olympic Games, has been frequently hit by sandstorms over recent years. Previous reports said that deserts in the north of the city had been expanding rapidly.

Li Jinhai, an official with the bureau, said that Beijing's three major waterways, Yongding, Chaohe and Wenyu rivers, used to be coasted by 54.621 hectares of desertified land.—MNA/Xinhua neighbouring provinces and regions to learn how to choose plants for desert control and how to set up windbreaks, among others," according to Man.

The two-month China International Training Course on Desert Control Science and Technology is run by the GDCRI, a leading anti desertification agency. It has more than 20 trainees this year, among whom a dozen come from Africa.

One third of the world's land faces threat of desertification that which causes 42 billion US dollars in economic losses every year, UN statistics show. With deserts including the Sahara, Africa is the worst desertificated region in the world. The poverty-stricken continent is in urgent need of international economic and technical assistance

China will cover all the expences of the trainees, including tuition and accommodation, as well as air tickets to and from China if needed, GDCRI director Wang

Wang said China aims to boost international cooperation in desert control and help developing countries especially those from Africa in this regard.

Since the first session of the programme in 1993, about 150 African officials and technicians from more than 30 countries including Egypt, the Republic of Congo, Ghana, Angola and Tanzania have been trained, Wang added.

Greenland seeks to hunt humpback, bowhead whales

FRIGATE BAY (St Kitts and Nevis), 19 June-Greenland asked an international whaling body on Saturday to examine whether it could extend whaling by its Inuit hunters to endangered humpbacks and bowheads, alarming environmentalists.

Anti-whaling nations attending an International Whaling Commission, or IWC, meeting in the Caribbean island state of St Kitts and Nevis said they were opposed to the proposal given the fragile state of most whale species.

Environmentalists also said they were puzzled by the request because Greenland has for years failed to meet a quota of minke whales and fin whales that its indigenous hunters are permitted to catch under an exemption from an international moratorium on commercial whaling

"We'd be very concerned about extending the hunt to two new species," said British Environment Minister Ben Bradshaw

Commercial whaling was banned in 1986 to save great whales from extinction but the IWC issues quotas to aboriginal communities which have a tradition of whale hunting.

Japan and other prowhaling nations had been expected to take control of the IWC at this year's meeting and to begin chipping away at the global whaling ban. But anti-whaling nations including Australia and South Africa managed to retain a slim majority when the gathering began on Friday

Amalie Jessen, an alternate IWC commissioner for Denmark and Greenland's representative in the Danish delegation. said

Greenland's haul of whale meat was consistently falling 220 metric tons short of its 670-ton aboriginal quota.

The ice-capped Arctic country of 65,000 people is allowed to hunt 19 fin whales and 187 minkes. a small species. It voluntarily reduced its fin whale catch to 10 after scientists at the IWC said they could not guarantee that the full quota was sustainable.

Jessen said Greenland did not believe it could increase the number of minkes and fin whales that its 2,500 whale hunters kill with exploding harpoons and rifles each year without putting a strain on those species.

It therefore wanted the IWC to conduct a study about humpback and bowhead whale numbers off West Greenland to see whether those two species might fill the gap.

NASA says "Discovery" set for launch on 1 July

WASHINGTON, J19 uly- The US space shuttle Discovery is set for a new launch on 1 July after an almost one-year pause meant to review the safety issues concerning a future mission, the US National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Saturday.

After two days of meetings with managers and engineers, NASA administrator Michael Griffin finally made the decision to launch Discovery on a trip to the International Space Station although some had recommended no flying until improvements were made on the shuttle's fuel tanks.

Griffin insisted that the launch would not pose a danger to the shuttle's crew despite the fact that there were still room for improvement in the design of the outer fuel tanks

TheColumbia shuttle disintegrated shortly after a launch in February 2003, killing a11

astronauts aboard, in a disaster that was blamed on a chunk of foam breaking away from the external tank

NASA suspended its shuttle programme to open a long-time review of safety issues following Discovery's last flight in last July.

Jordanian King meets Abbas

Amman, 19 June — Jordanian King Abdullah II met on Sunday with visiting Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas on the deteriorating security and economic situation in the Palestinian territories.

During the meeting, the King called on all parties on the Palestinian front to exert efforts to overcome challenges facing the Palestinian people.

He underlined the importance of ending any military escalation and calming tension between the Palestinians and Israelis to build confidence at this stage and ensure a quick return to the negotiating table.

He also urged the international community to shoulder its responsibilities through ensuring the flow of international aid to the Palestinian lands to avoid a humanitarian crisis.

The Palestinians were "the only ones affected by the halt of aid", he said, adding Jordan will continue to work with other countries to solve the problem.

He also briefed Abbas on the outcome of his talks with Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert on June 8, saying that a two-state solution is the only solution that all parties in the Middle East and the international community should work to achieve.

Abbas expressed appreciation for efforts exerted by Jordan to help the Palestinians overcome difficult conditions

Spain fight back to claim place in last 16

STUTTGART, 20 June— Late strikes from Raul and a Fernando Torres double saw Spain come from behind to claim a dramatic 3-1 win over Tunisia that clinched a place in the knockout stages of the World Cup.

Tunisia had looked on course for a shock Group H win over the much-fancied Spaniards when midfielder Joahar Mnari steered home at the second attempt after striker Ziad Jaziri had teased his way past three Spain defenders in the eighth minute.

The 2004 African champions looked as though they might keep Spain at bay as their defence deflected wave after wave of attacks in the second half.

But Spain skipper Raul and fellow substitute Cesc Fabregas turned the course of the match.

Raul pounced on the rebound after Fabregas' low shot from the edge of the area was parried by keeper Ali Bomunijel to level the scores 19 minutes from

Five minutes later Fabregas fed a great through ball to the feet of Fernando Torres who rounded Boumnijel and steered the ball into the empty net.

Torres then grabbed his second goal from the penalty spot, and became top scorer at the tournament with three goals, when he fired home in the first minute of stoppage time.

The striker, who had himself been fouled in the area by substitute Alaeddine Yahia, almost got a hat-trick late on but his drive was brilliantly save by Boumnijel.

Ukraine cruise past Saudi Arabia 4-0

HAMBURG, 20 June—Ukraine revived their hopes of advancing to the World Cup's second round with a crushing 4-0 victory over Saudi Arabia in World Cup Group H on Monday.

Goals from Andriy Rusol and Serhiy Rebrov had given a fired-up Ukrainian side a deserved 2-0 lead before Andriy Shevchenko headed home from an inswinging free kick just a minute after halftime.

Ukraine's Anatoly Tymoshchyuk tries an acrobatic kick.—Internet

Shevchenko set up midfielder Maksim Kalinichenko for the fourth in the 84th minute.

The Eastern Europeans dominated throughout. with coach Oleg Blokhin's change to a 3-5-2 formation after last week's 4-0 drubbing by Spain offering plenty of width to generate a series of crosses which troubled a nervous Saudi defence.

The Saudis showed promise going forward in patches, but created little by the way of clearcut scoring chances. Victory puts Ukraine level on three points with Spain, who play Tunisia later on Monday. Tunisia and Saudi Arabia both have one point after an opening 2-2 draw.

Determined to recover their self-respect after being outclassed by Spain, the Ukrainians played with energy and patience on a slippery pitch.

They had already gone close when centre-back Rusol burst on to a Kalinichenko corner to give them their first goal in a World Cup finals after just four minutes, kneeing home from close range.

Saudi keeper Mabrouk Zaid fell victim to the pitch in the 36th minute, slipping as he tried to block a dipping long-range drive from Rebrov which made it 2-0.— MNA/Reuters

Togo, whose players had threatened on Sunday to boycott the match over a long-running internal pay dispute, seemed unhampered by the unorthodox build-up as the game finally got underway.

Aside from Frei's goal, there was little to distinguish the two teams during the first half with Switzerland enjoying plenty of possession but Togo looking the more dangerous on the break.

Just as Switzerland were starting to look shaky, top scorer Frei came to his side's rescue once again, finishing off a well-worked move to claim his 26th international goal.

Right back Ludovic Magnin pressed forward before crossing the ball to Barnetta who deftly flicked a first touch pass across the goalmouth for Frei to turn in. MNA/Reuters

Italy magistrate ends probe, sees corruption

ROME, 20 June- The magistrate leading the probe into alleged match fixing in Serie A handed his findings to the Football Association's prosecutor on Monday saying he had found corruption but Italian soccer was not rotten root and branch.

Francesco Borrelli, who headed the "Clean Hands" probe into political corruption in the early 1990s, handed over the results of six weeks of interviews with referees and officials from the Football Federation (FIGC) and leading clubs to Stefano Palazzi.

Top Serie A sides Juventus Milan, Lazio and Fiorentina are among the clubs under investigation. Borrelli's report was not expected to recommend specific sanctions, leaving it up to Palazzi to decide which clubs or individuals should be charged and stand trial by sporting authorities, Italian media said.

China to evaluate local officials on energy-efficiency

Hangzhou, 20 June — China is encouraging officials to spare some of their attention, usually focused on GDP growth, for energy conservation.

Zhejiang, an economically booming province in the country's east, has decided to add energy efficiency to the evaluation system on local officials' perfor-

Eleven mayors and 58 county heads in the province have recently been appointed as top officials in charge of local energy-saving work.

The new indicator is intended to encourage officials to score more by lowering enterprises' costs, promoting technological innovation and adjusting industrial structures for energy and ecological security, according to Lu Zushan, the province's governor.

The coastal province, like most developed areas in the country, is suffering from a sharp conflict between energy shortage and galloping economy.

The average per capita GDP in Zhejiang exceeded 3,400 US dollars in 2005, while 95 per cent of its resources relied on imports or transfer from other places in

The province has set a goal which requires the energy consumption per unit of GDP in 2010 decline by 15 per cent from 2005, Lu said.

Some government officials used to be indifferent to energy conservation, as exemplified by their ignorance of energy wasting in government buildings they worked every day.

A survey showed that the daily per capita electricity consumption by the provincial administration centre building in 2004 was nine times that of common residential buildings.

The building was later driven to upgrade its energy-saving measures, including raising the temperatures of air-conditions, using central heating system and powersaving lights.

In addition to Zhejiang, Jiangsu, Shandong, Hebei, Gansu provinces and Shanghai have also decided to evaluate officials' performance on energy conservation.

Chinese Vice Premier Zeng Peiyan called earlier this month for the establishment of a new evaluation system that relates energy-efficiency to the appraisal of local officials. - MNA/Xinhua
