Promote eco-tourism

Tourism industry has increased rapidly day by day. The nations of the world are widely undertaking the industry on a commercial scale. Asia and the Pacific region including Myanmar has also become a major tourist destination.

A great number of ancient cultural structures and artistic works can be seen in the archaeological regions in Myanmar. Moreover, natural scenic beauty, snow-capped mountain ranges and beautiful beaches can also be enjoyed.

Concerted efforts are to be made for development of tourism based on eco-tourism. There are snow-capped mountain ranges, various kinds of biodiversity and beautiful natural beauty in Putao region in th northern part of the country.

Many tourists who enjoy eco-tourism visit Phonkantaung region because of shorter duration required of the trip, the old route and a short distance between the nearest village and the peak.

Among the tourists, Putao region is famous for its snow-capped mountain ranges. The tourist arrival will increase by constructing resorts of international standard and roads close to the mountain including skiing camps.

Tourism officials and tour operators are urged to provide services such as accommodation, transport and communications for the convenience of tourists. By doing so, Myanma tourism industry will further develop in the future.

UK troops accused of executions, torture in Iraq

LONDON, 24 Feb — Lawyers for five Iraqis have accused British soldiers of mass executions and torture and called for a police investigation into an “atrocious episode” in British Army history.

Phil Shiner and Martyn Day, who have brought several cases against the British military for its actions in Iraq, produced statements on Friday from five men who say they were detained by British forces after a battle in southern Iraq in May 2004.

The men, who were blindfolded and bound, said their captors repeatedly beat and abused them, including forcing them to strip naked. While detained, they said they heard the systematic torture and execution of up to 20 other detainees. “On the basis of the evidence currently available, we are of the view that our clients’” allegations — that the British were responsible for the torture and deaths of up to 20 Iraqis — may well be true,” Day told a news conference.

“Whether or not there is enough evidence to prosecute individual soldiers, it will only be by an open public inquiry that this question will be answered.”

Cuba ready for election of national leaders

HAVANA, 23 Feb — Cuba has completed all preparations for the elections of a new president and other national leaders, the top electoral official said on Saturday.

The elections will proceed on Sunday as scheduled, President of the National Electoral Commission and Justice Minister Maria Esther Reus told the official daily Granma.

The Cuban National Assembly of People's Power will be convened on Sunday, when the 614 deputies elected last month will be called to create the country's new legislature.

The deputies, who are to serve a five-year-term, will choose the assembly's president, vice president and secretary-general.

Under Cuba's

constitution, the national assembly chooses 31 of its members to form the Council of State, whose leader will be Cuba's president.

Sunday's vote will determine the successor to retired Cuban leader Fidel Castro, who announced on Tuesday that he would not accept the presidency of the Council of State.

Iran's president hails “victory” after IAEA report

Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad

TEHERAN, 23 Feb — Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad on Saturday hailed his country's “victory” in its nuclear issue, one day after the UN atomic watchdog's chief circulated his latest report on Iran's nuclear programme.

“Ahmadinejad in a message on Saturday congratulated Supreme Leader of Islamic Revolution Ayatollah Seyed Ali Khamenei on Iranian nation's historical nuclear victory over the domineering powers,” said the official IRNA news agency.

“In the message, President Ahmadinejad also congratulated the Iranian nation on their victory over the domineering powers after the 1979 Islamic Revolution,” it added. The message read that the country owes the victory to solidarity and perseverance of the faithful and devoted Iranian nation under wise guidelines of the supreme leader.

Ahmadinejad assured the supreme leader that Iranian nation and government will continue their way with strong determination regardless of hues and cries of the enemy.

Iran will more joyfully and with more motivation emerge strongly in all the scientific, economic and cultural scenes, he added.

The Iranian president issued the message one day after International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Director General Mohamed ElBaradei circulated his latest report on Iran's nuclear programme to the Agency's Board of Governors.—Internet

US “torture flights” landed on British territory

LONDON, 23 Feb — British Foreign Secretary David Miliband admitted on Thursday that two US “torture flights” did land on British territory in 2002, contrary to previous reports.

Miliband told the House of Commons that he was “very sorry indeed” to have to say previous denials made in “good faith” were now having to be corrected.

“Terrorist suspects” on two separate US flights landed at a US base on the British Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia to refuel in 2002, he said, and the United States had only alerted the British Government to the incidents last week due to archive errors.

Former British prime minister Tony Blair and former foreign secretary Jack Straw made statements in 2005, 2006 and 2007 saying there was no evidence that flights had stopped on British territory.

Israel issues hijack alert to all incoming airlines

JERUSALEM, 24 Feb — Israeli Ministry of Transportation ordered all carriers heading for Israel to tighten security measures in a bid to avoid potential terror attack, in fear of a possible Hizbollah retaliation for its chief officer’s death, local Yedioth Ahronoth reported on Friday.

According to the report, Israel has recently issued an instruction to all airlines flying into the Jewish state to tighten security measures in order to minimize the risk of a terrorist attack on flights to Israel.

The instruction came following growing concerns that Hizbollah might try to launch a retaliatory attack against Israel, which the group held responsible for the killing of its military leader Imad Mugniyah.

Danny Shenar, head of security in the Transportation Ministry, has ordered all foreign and local airlines heading for Israel to require passengers to remain seated half an hour before landing, when planes approach a distance of 180 miles from the country's shores. Until now, passengers have only been instructed to return to their seats at a distance of some 90 miles from Israel, or 15 minutes before landing.

Emirates to launch flight from Malaysia to Cape Town

KUALA LUMPUR, 24 Feb — Dubai-based airline Emirates will launch its service from Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia to Cape Town, South Africa on 30 March, it said in a statement here on Friday.

The South African city will be the airline's 100th destination in its network.

Emirates will fly daily to Cape Town International Airport, Africa’s third-busiest airport, from Kuala Lumpur via Dubai, the statement said.

The Emirates’ flight will offer 2,000 seats and loading capacity for over 100 tons of cargo per week to Cape Town.

This is a development that will be welcomed by business and leisure travellers on both sides of the equator, Emirates said.

“Business tourism is a vital growth sector, often contributing more foreign spending per tourist than leisure tourism.

“Leveraging on Emirates’ strong network of operations in Europe, Middle East and Australia, Emirates will support the South African Government’s efforts in boosting business and tourism inflow into the country,” Emirates’ country manager Alban Lee said.

The airlines spokeswoman Martha Pantin said the MD80 plane with 133 passengers and five crew members on board circled first above the airport to exhaust fuel before landing.

According to Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman Kathleen Bergen, the problem was either with the nose gear or its door.

She also said “crews are well trained to handle these situations”.—Xinhua

US banker warns of slower growth

BEIJING, 24 Feb — The US will probably experience slower economic growth rather than a deeper downturn, predicts Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas President Richard Fisher.

The most likely scenario is the US will avoid a “prolonged period of negative economic growth,” Fisher said in Fort Worth, Texas, without mentioning the term “recession,” Bloomberg News reported. He also said he's hearing increasing expressions of concern from executives about inflation, which got his “attention.”

Fisher spoke after data

last week showed the US was moving closer to a recession, while inflation was accelerating at the same time. He said on Friday that the slowdown in growth will probably last for a “couple” of quarters and warned it may be difficult to quickly raise interest rates.

Fed officials anticipate growth of 1.3 percent to two percent this year, down from 2.5 percent in 2007. Two members of the panel charged with dating US economic cycles said yesterday that it's too early to decide whether the US is in recession.

“We have to be wary of the fact that we are navigating through an extremely narrow passageway here: with on the one side of us inflationary shoals and on the other the risk of weaker economic growth,” said Fisher, who alone voted against the Federal Open Market Committee's January 30 decision to lower the benchmark rate by half a point.

Musharraf says ready to work with new Parlt

WASHINGTON, 24 Feb—Embattled Pakistan President Pervez Musharraf said in a column published on Friday that he was ready to work with the newly elected Parliament to fight terrorism and build a stable democratic government to promote long-term economic growth.

"Because these goals are shared by the vast majority of Pakistanis, I am certain we can and will accomplish them, and I stand ready to work with the newly elected Parliament to achieve these objectives," Musharraf wrote in a column printed in Friday's Washington Post.

Musharraf has been one of Washington's top Muslim allies in the battle against al-Qaeda, but faces a hostile Parliament after a stunning defeat in Monday's general election.

Leaders of the two parties that won the election, the Pakistan People's Party (PPP) and the Pakistan Muslim League (Nawaz), or PML-N, vowed on Thursday to work together to form a

Iran MP says atom report positive, undermines US

TEHERAN, 23 Feb — A senior Iranian lawmaker said on Friday a report by the UN nuclear watchdog on Iran's atomic programme was "positive" and would undermine a US push for more UN sanctions, Iranian news agencies reported. The International Atomic Energy Agency said in its report Iran had shown new openness about nuclear advances earlier off-limits to UN monitors but not enough to prove the programme is not geared to making bombs.

Iran insists its programme is entirely peaceful. "In regards to the (IAEA) report ... about Iran's peaceful nuclear activities and the resolution of some unclear issues, the road will not be paved for the Americans to issue a new resolution against Iran in the (UN) Security Council," the head of the Iranian Parliament's national security and foreign policy commission, Alaeddin Boroujerdi, was quoted as saying.

Boroujerdi, speaking before a news conference by Iranian chief nuclear negotiator Saeed Jalili, described the report as "positive", the official IRNA news agency reported.

"Issuing such (sanctions) resolutions not only has no technical and legal basis but also the Security Council should apologize to the Iranian nation because of its behaviour and announce the end of studying Iran's nuclear issue," he was quoted by Fars news agency as saying.

Sacred Sa Ma Hill

Dr Khin Maung Nyunt

At the eastern extremity of Bago Yoma range are many offshoots of hills of which Sa Ma Hill is the one lying at the western end, about 3 miles distance from Thawuhti station on the Yangon-Mandalay railway. Between a triplot of Thadut paddy field, Tin Wa Taung paddy field and No 36 Forest Reserve in the Thawuhti district, near Nay Pyi Taw Lewe the hill is a small low branch covered with leafy trees and herbal undergrowths. To the east, west and south it is surrounded by ravines. Only the north side gives you the view of this hill. With five hills encircling it, the hill occupies a small area of 25 acres, or two furlongs east to west, sandwiched between the Forest Reserve and paddy fields. Travellers by trains or car on Yangon-Mandalay Highway on reaching Thawuhti, take a look at the western hill range. Though Sa Ma Hill with 5 pagodas is hidden behind green foliage of forest, religious monuments and covered stairways on the surrounding hill to the east and meditation houses and ordination hall on another nearly hill to the north would appear in their sight.

The name Sa Ma is unique. It is the two Myanmar alphabets in combination. Sa and Ma “Sa Da Ba and Wa” are four Myanmar alphabets which are used in cabalistic charms prepared by holymen in the form of magic squares, inscribed, embossed or written on metallic plates, terra cotta or papers or body skin. Holymen are neither monk nor hermit. They are ecolytes or just laymen weaving white clothes, vegetarian, observing moral precepts of Buddhism, chanting Paritta and religious scriptures, telling beads and sitting for hours to practise Samatha—concentration of mind. They live in seclusion in remote places in forest. Years of such assiduous moral and mental practices and concentration gain them some psychic powers with which they can perform good deeds, curing diseases, gifting good people with cabalistic charms which protect them from all dangers and living them fortune and luck to avoid unwholesome deed and to do wholesome deed. The short version of Hsa, Da, Ba, Wa is “Sa Ma”.

It was on the morning of the first waning moon of Waso (July) in Myanmar Era 1306 (1944) that the above 4 alphabets appeared on the clearing on the summit of the hill to the east of monastery there. A certain holymen named U Hpo Lu of Kyan Hpo Su village was informed of that strange occurrence by a villager. He and villagers came to the spot and tried to rub out or scratch away the alphabets appearing on the ground. For a while they seemed to be eradicated but later they reappeared. Not only the four alphabets but also the remaining ones of Myanmar 33 alphabets were visible on dry leaves tree trunks, stones, etc. News of such extraordinary appearances spread like wild fire, causing commotion among rural folks. The most curious of them came up the hill to see to believe. The more they tried to erase the alphabets, the more alphabets appeared almost everywhere, on fruits, bamboos, on walls of buildings, on ceilings of monasteries and even on the yellow robes of the monk U Kawein and on his body.

Rural folks of the local villages firmly believed that the hill was sacred and they began calling the hill Hsa Ma Hill, and the place of the first appearance of Hsa Ma was an auspicious site on which they should build a pagoda. Monk U Kawein and his assistant monk U Panna built a meditating monastery on the hill and they lived there. On the fullmoon night of Tazaungmon (November) in 1945, one thousand oil lamps were lit on the hill as a propitiatory act of puja to the guardian gods and goddesses of the hill before the area where the Hsa Ma alphabets first appeared was chosen as the auspicious site for building pagodas. On a big banyan Tree to the east side of the hill, over 500 wild crows alighted and uttered nonstop choruses of “Caw” “Caw” as if foreboding the coming of an important event. On the second waning of the moon, the villagers led by nine village elders, U Aung Htun, U Ye Din, U Hpo Kya, U Thein Maung, U Sein, U Kyaw Thein, U Hnan of Thaya Kon village and U Hpo Lu and U Pyaw of Kyan Hpo Su village came up the hill to begin building a pagoda. U Mar of Thawuhti village brought a band of Sidaw drum players with him. Similarly U Aung Gyi came with 4 ladies each bearing on her head two perfect bricks for ground breaking.

At sunrise the holyman Apey Nwe first struck the stake on the site. The rest were engaged at their respective duties while the Sidaw drums were booming. All of a sudden, an earth quake shook the entire hill swinging it from the north east (Sunday Planet Post direction) to the south west (Saturday Planet Post direction) with a frightening roar sending the villagers run amock. For days, religious performances took place there, chanting Parittas, preaching dhamma, meditating, telling beads, saying prayers group by group.

In 1946, outbreak of insurgency temporarily interrupted the building of the pagoda. But a year later on the 10th Waxing moon of Kason (May) the work was resumed. By 1951, five pagodas, the main pagoda in the centre and the four minors, each at the cardinal direction, were completely built. On the 1st Waning moon of Nayon (June) decorative htis were hoisted on the pagodas and the five pagodas were collectively named “Kaba Kat Kyaw Zedi Taw” (The Pagodas that protect the world from all dangers). On 14 April, 1957, the New Year Day of Myanmar Era 1320 at 4 am, the bronze bell of 108 viss in weight was installed on the precinct of the Pagodas. Leaders and followers, by turn struck the bell announcing their religious deeds to share their merit with all sentient beings.

In addition to the name “Sa Ma” the hill came to acquire 4 other appellations — (1) Yet Kan Sin Taung (2) Min Wun Taung (3) Gu Taung and (4) Hpo U Taung. (1) To the west of Sa Ma Hill there lies a hill range called Yet Kan Zin Kyaw at a distance of 7 miles. On their range there used to be two old zedis with umbrellas atop. Two monks U Kutala and U Waipulla from Mandalay came to Sa Ma Hill for religious practices. They repaired and renovated the two zedis in ruin. The zedis came to be known as Yet Kan Zin Taung Pagodas as the two monks were originally from Yet Kan Zin Hill near Mandalay. local people believe that monk Sayadaw of Yet Kan Zin hill near Mandalay had once resided on Sa Ma Hill. (2) Monks and holymen from Min Wun hill range on the west bank of the Ayeyawaddy River in the past used to reside on this hill so the hill came to be called Min Wun Hill. (3) There were nine underground caves or tunnels around this hill where monks and holymen lived and meditated. So the hill is called Gu Taung. (4) In olden days hermits and alchemists lived on this hill and experimented their alchemy. There still remain sheds with remnants of bellows used for making balls of mercury compound to turn base metals into gold or to concoct the elixir of longevity. Since then Sa Ma hill. So the hill is also called Hpo U Taung (Bellows hill).

On 23rd March 1966, the Government gave official recognition to Sa Ma hill as Buddha Sasana Land. Since then Sa Ma hill and neighbouring hills developed as forest recluses for the practices of Buddha Dhamma Buddhist devotees and wellwishers from far and near poured in donations and contributions, cash and kind for the construction of religious buildings — pagodas, monasteries, covered causeways, flights of steps leading to the hill’s summit, devotional hall, preaching halls, dining rooms, meditation caves and houses, rest houses, water tanks and stores and some nat spirits shrines. Many more are under construction. Because of heavy loads of buildings and rain water in good monsoon Hsa Ma hill is in danger of land slide and erosion. Repair and maintenance are under way to build a strong retaining wall around the affected places especially the central monastery on the summit. In the central monastery, Monk Sayadaw U Wimala, a Shan-Palaung from Mogok resides, preaching dhamma and teaching the methods of practicing Samatha and Vipassana for many years. People far and near who are in quest of truth, peace and bliss of Buddha Dhamma, came to Hsa Ma hill to hear his preaching and teaching, and practise Dhamma at the recluses for a certain period or just weekends. Their basic needs are provided free. Only vegetarian meal is served.

Besides, Buddha Dhamma works, social welfare activities are in full swing at Hsa Ma hill. Just a few steps down and away from the central monastery on the way to the main arched entrance are a cluster of brick, wood and bamboo and thatch buildings under the cool foliage of trees and shrubs, on either side of the unpaved road wide enough for cars. It is a village of orphanages privately run and managed by a monk and lay volunteer wellwishers. The billboard at the entrance of the reception hall bears the letters in Myanmar “Sa Ma Taung Parahita Kyaung”. Over 200 orphans of youngest 5 years to eldest late teenage are well looked after by a team of volunteer social workers of the locality headed by a middle age monk named Bhaddanta Nyanneinda. He is a BA graduate with history major. He hailed from Bagan NyaungU after his graduation to come Sa Ma Hill to set up an orphanage 18 years ago. The orphanage has a school, from pre-primary to the middle grade (7th standard). The board at the entrance of the establishment records the list of 4 university graduates and 3 university students who were orphans at this school. They are 3 BAs (History major) and one BA (Business Management) who are now in service. Three university students, second year Law major, 3rd year Public Policy major and second year second year English major. The monk and his colleagues are happy to brief on the success of their social welfare works. The orphanage and the school are run on self-reliance base. Orphans regardless of their race, religion and age are accepted on condition that they are orphan and no relatives or friends to care them. They are given formal school education and practical training in agriculture, domestic sciences, general hygiene and health. Two newly admitted are five year old girls found abandoned at the market place.

Thanks to systematic physical and moral training, there over 200 orphans of different races and ages are well-fed, well-looked after and well disciplined. They are happy at their orphan village. Those who have grown up and left the school, came back to give their social service and contribute cash or kind to the school. The school occasionally receives medicare, and other supports from nearby towns. Wellwishers who pass by donate cash to the school fund. There are cafeteria, store and stall at the arched entrance of the Hsa Ma Hill, run by the monk, his colleagues and orphan pupils for the fund of the orphanage. On sale at the stall are candles, incense sticks, flowers and other votive objects and souvenirs made by orphan pupils. A dining hall nearby is where pilgrims and visitors are fed with vegetables meals, free of charge for kala dana (timely charity). Some vegetable farm worked by orphans produce fruit and vegetables for meal.

An orphanage on self-reliant basis at the remote corner of Sa Ma Hill run by a team of selfless volunteers under the management of a BA graduate monk is indeed a source of admiration and inspiration to all visitors and pilgrims.

Beijing campaigns to offer bus seats to needy

BEIJING, 24 Feb— Beijing has a campaign to encourage people to give up seats to the elderly, pregnant or others in need on public buses and subway trains. The 22nd days of every month was chosen as the promotion day in Beijing for passengers to give up their seats to those in need, said Liu Xiaoming, deputy director of the Beijing Municipal Transportation Commission on Friday.

“The number 22 resembles two seats,” he said in explanation why this specific day was chosen, “and the Chinese pronunciation of two sounds like R first letter of PANG, which means giving in Chinese”. “With this move, we aim at creating a harmonious and orderly rigid environment, and raising passengers’ awareness to take care of the elderly, the weak, the sick, the handicapped and the pregnant,” he said. Municipal media will keep a candid eye on this from July to September, praising those who give up their seats voluntarily and exposing those who refuse to do so, according to Liu. MNA/Xinhua

Arizona Representative indicted on fraud, finance charges

WASHINGTON, 24 Feb — A federal grand jury has indicted Republican US Representative Richard Renzi of Arizona on 35 criminal counts including conspiracy, wire fraud, money laundering and official extortion, according to court papers unsealed on Friday. The indictment stems from plan by Renzi and an associate to benefit from a land-exchange plan in order to receive Renzi’s support for necessary federal legislation, court documents said. “It was an object of the conspiracy for Renzi to enrich (his associate) and personally benefit himself,” the indictment said. It also accuses Renzi of embezzling premiums from clients of an insurance business to fund his congressional campaign. Renzi was first elected in 2002. US Attorney Diane Humetewa in Phoenix, where the indictment was handed down, has scheduled a news conference to details the charges. —MNA/Reuters

AL concerned over Iraqi-Turkish border tension

CAIRO, 24 Feb — The Arab League (AL) on Saturday expressed concern about the current tension along the Iraqi-Turkish borders as Turkish military launched cross-border operations targeting the banned Kurdish Workers’ Party (PKK) into northern Iraq.

In a Press release issued by the Cairo-based pan-Arab body, the AL Secretary General Amr Moussa called on Turkey to end its military operation in northern Iraq while underlining the necessity not to target civilians. MNA/Xinhua

He also underscored the importance of maintaining the Iraqi sovereignty and territorial integrity as the UN security Council resolution does not allow any aggression on the Iraqi-Turkish border. Meanwhile, Moussa urged for an end of the crisis through diplomatic channels in order to keep relationship between Iraq and Turkey. Turkey says 29 killed in cross-border ground offensive

ANKARA, 24 Feb — Turkish Armed Forces killed 24 Kurdish Workers’ Party (PKK) rebels in clashes on Friday as Ankara continued its cross-border ground operation into northern Iraq, with five soldiers also died, said the military. The military, the General Staff, said in a statement posted on its website that there were dozens more rebels also killed by artillery and helicopter gunships in the fighting which continued sporadically. Earlier in the day, the General Staff announced that its Armed Forces TSK launched a cross-border ground operation into the north of Iraq as of 1900 p.m. (1700 GMT) on Thursday following an artillery bombardment. The ground operation is backed by Turkish Air Forces jets, the General Staff said, adding that TSK would return to Turkey after it achieves the planned targets. The Turkish military has launched several cross-border attacks to fight separatist PKK rebels, who use northern Iraq as a launch pad for attacks against Turkey. —MNA/Xinhua

Woodgate's extra-time marker gives Tottenham 2-1 Carling Cup win over Chelsea

Carling Cup

WEMBLEY,(England), 24 Feb — Jonathan Woodgate scored in extra time Sunday to give Tottenham a 2-1 win over Chelsea in the Carling Cup final and its first trophy in nine years.

Dimitar Berbatov had equalized in the second half after Didier Drogba's 39th-minute goal, but Woodgate headed his first goal for Tottenham in the 94th to complete the comeback.

Chelsea goalkeeper Petr Cech saved Woodgate's header from Jermaine Jenas' free kick, but the ball ricocheted back onto the defender's head and into the empty net.

It was Woodgate's first goal in English soccer since December 2002, when he scored in a 2-0 win for Leeds - against Chelsea.

Tottenham goal-keeper Paul Robinson, recalled to the team this week after a month out, then made three key saves to preserve the lead and seal Tottenham's third win over Chelsea in 43 matches going back to 1990.

It was Spurs' fourth Carling Cup title, moving them into a tie with Chelsea and Nottingham Forest for third on the all-time list.

Tottenham created more chances than Chelsea, which is eight places higher in the Premier League and was aiming to become the first team since Forest in 1990 to retain the Cup.—Internet

Thailand starts advance voting for senators

BANGKOK, 24 Feb — The Two-day advance voting for senators throughout Thailand's 76 provinces started on Saturday in an atmosphere of lethargy as many eligible voters appeared to have wearied of elections. A total of 76 senators, one for one province will be elected during the advance voting and the official election day on March 2.

After casting his vote at a Bangkok election booth on Saturday morning, the Election Commission (EC) chairman Apichart Sukhaggonond was quoted by The Thai News Agency as saying that the panel had tried its best to encourage a turnout for the Senate election campaigns. However, the timespan or window of opportunity launching the campaigns was only two months, too short a time, and probably the public has become overtired of exercising their rights, the report said.—Xinhua

The average number of injuries during the preschool years is two times higher for children who do not get enough sleep each day as described by their mothers, according to the study published in the February issue of Public Health Nursing.

In the study, researchers at the University of Rochester School of Nursing collected data from nearly 300 mothers and their preschool children during two and a half years. Mothers reported on their child's sleep, and data on injuries were collected through self-report and medical records.

The study was funded by the National Centre for Injury Prevention and Control. The study found a direct negative relationship between children's sleep and injuries. Children who get an adequate amount of sleep sustain fewer injuries.

Moderate fitness helps reduce stroke risk

LOS ANGELES, 24 Feb — A moderate level of aerobic fitness can significantly reduce stroke risk in men and women, according to a new study.

The study shows that 30 minutes or more of brisk walking, or an equivalent aerobic activity, five days a week could lower stroke risk by about 40 per cent.

Researchers at the University of South Carolina Arnold School of Public Health analyzed data on more than 60,000 people — 46,405 men and 15,282 women — who participated in a long-term study between 1970 and 2001.

The participants, aged 18 to 100 and free of known cardiovascular disease when they entered the study, were followed for an average of 18 years. During that time, 863 people — 692 men and 171 women — had strokes. — MNA/Xinhua

China to test deep-sea submersible

BEIJING, 23 Feb — China is to test a manned submersible that can reach up to 7,000 metres (23,000 feet) below sea level, the official Xinhua news agency reported on Friday, citing the State Oceanic Administration.

Research on the submersible will be given "equal importance with China's space endeavours", the report said. China put a man in space in 2003, part of an ambitious space programme that includes its first lunar probe launched last year.

Selection for the crew of the submersible began in August 2006, and China will finish building the first phase of its "deep-sea base project" by 2010.

A submersible is like a submarine, but they typically have a shorter range and rely on another vessel or facility for support.

The project would be equipped for deep-sea natural resource inspections as well as research and testing of equipment designed for deep-sea use, Xinhua said. The report did not mention military uses for the submersible.

UK's seaside arcades facing extinction

LONDON, 23 Feb — Britain's seaside amusement arcades could be wiped out within a year, the slot machine industry will tell the government on Friday.

Along with "kiss-me-quick" hats and donkey rides on the beach, amusement arcades are a quintessential part of Britain's seaside tradition.

Over the past 12 months they have been hit by new betting and smoking laws while torrential downpours lashed Britain and left coastal resorts deserted for much of the summer.

BACTA, the body that represents UK arcade and amusement operators, says revenues in the industry, which also includes high street arcades, have dropped 21 per cent over the last year.

BACTA will be the latest gambling body to lobby the UK Government to change their stance on new rules that have outlawed some of the most profitable slot machines.

Liverpool boss lauds Spanish striker

Liverpool manager Rafa Benitez praised the performance of Fernando Torres after the striker hit a hat-trick in Saturday's 3-2 victory over Middles-brough at Anfield. The Reds had fallen behind to a Tuncay Sanli goal, but Torres then netted three times to help Liverpool overtake Merseyside rivals Everton - who travel to Manchester City on Monday - in fourth place in the Premier League. Stewart Downing set up a tight finish with a late consolation but Benitez has admitted his delight with Torres, who is now the first Liverpool forward to score more than 20 goals in a season since Michael Owen in 2003.

Leaders Olympiakos held in 1-1 draw at PAOK

ATHENS, 24 Feb — Leaders Olympiakos Piraeus were held to a 1-1 draw by PAOK Salonika in the Greek Super League at Thessaloniki on Saturday. The Olympiakos defence, which comfortably held Chelsea at bay during their goalless midweek Champions League clash, was in trouble after just two minutes at the Toumba. Glen Salmon's cross was poorly cleared by Olympiakos goalkeeper Antonis Nikopolidis and Spanish midfielder Antonio Gonzalez fired PAOK in front. Sergio Conceicao and Salmon had chances to double their lead but it was Olympiakos who found the net in the 22nd minute through an unmarked Darko Kovacevic. It was the Serb's 16th league goal of the season. PAOK had a great chance to reclaim the advantage when Gonzalez was brought down in the area but Nikopolidis saved Conceicao's spot-kick. The home side created the better chances in the second half but neither team was able to break the deadlock.—MNA/Reuters

Fergie—Win stressed urgency United boss delighted to close gap

LONDON, 23 Feb— Manchester United boss Sir Alex Ferguson believes his side have put the defeat against rivals Manchester City firmly behind them. The Red Devils were stunned by City earlier this month as Sven Goran Eriksson's men claimed a 2-1 success at Old Trafford.

However, United have responded impressively, thumping Arsenal 4-0 in the FA Cup, drawing 1-1 away in the UEFA Champions League with Lyon and thrashing Newcastle 5-1 at St James' Park on Saturday.

Wenger retracts comments Arsenal boss softens stance towards Taylor

LONDON, 23 Feb-- Arsene Wenger has withdrawn comments calling for Birmingham defender Martin Taylor to be banned for life.

Taylor was red carded in the 2-2 draw at St Andrews for a tackle on Eduardo da Silva that left the Arsenal striker with a broken leg.

Wenger was furious with Taylor after the match and said he could not be forgiven for such a challenge.

However, the Gunners boss has now softened his stance after having more time to consider the incident.

"On reflection, I feel that my comments about

Arsene Wenger

Martin Taylor were excessive. I said what I did immediately after the game in the heat of the moment."

An apologetic Martin Taylor has insisted there was no 'malicious intent' in the tackle.

Wenger angry after Arsenal's Eduardo breaks leg

LONDON, 24 Feb — Arsenal striker Eduardo da Silva broke his left leg in the 2-2 Premier League draw with Birmingham City on Saturday, bringing a furious reaction from his coach Arsene Wenger.

The match was stopped for nearly eight minutes as the Brazilian-born Croatia international was treated on the field before being carried off on a stretcher.

Birmingham defender Martin Taylor was given a straight red card for his challenge on Eduardo in the third minute.

"The tackle was horrendous and this guy (Taylor) should never play football again," Wenger told BBC television.

"I've seen some bad ones before but you are not always punished with a broken leg.

"The minimum is that the season is over and we're scared it is much longer."

Birmingham manager Alex McLeish said Taylor was very upset about the injury.

"He's absolutely distraught, he's not that type of player," he told Sky Sports television. "He didn't feel he made that much contact with Eduardo."

Australia to keep troops in Afghanistan for long-term

CANBERRA, 24 Feb — Australia on Friday stated that it will keep its troops in Afghanistan for a long term, despite its decision to withdraw forces from Iraq, according to Defence Minister Joel Fitzgibbon.

"We've made it very, very clear that our commitment in Afghanistan is a long-standing one," the Defence Minister told reporters.

"I said in the Parliament just this week what a tragedy it would be if all that we'd done in Afghanistan so far was in the end all for naught. So our commitment is a long-term one."

Australia has deployed about 1,000 troops in Afghanistan, mostly in the southern Afghan province of Uruzgan, a former Taliban stronghold.

Australia's previous government had sent 2,000 troops to support US and British forces in the Iraq invasion.

But the new Australian Government, elected in November last year, promised to pull out the country's combat troops from Iraq by mid-2008.

On Wednesday, Australia Air Chief Marshal Angus Houston told a Senate committee that the military is planning to withdraw 550 combat troops from Iraq.

Ban appeals for "respect" of Turkey, Iraq border

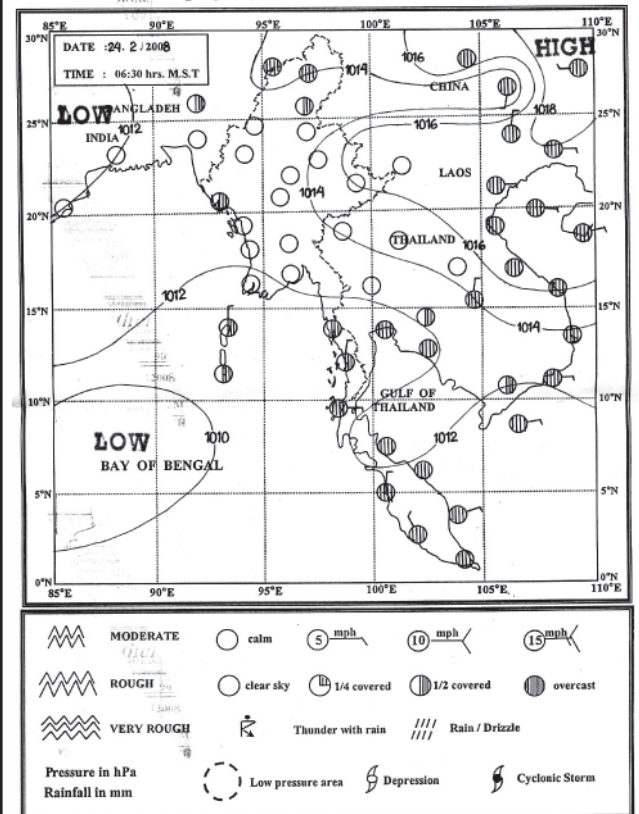

UNITED NATIONS, 24 Feb — UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon on Friday appealed for restraint and respect of the borders between Turkey and Iraq.

"The Secretary-General is concerned by the latest escalation of tension along the Turkish-Iraqi border," said a statement issued by Ban's Press office. "While conscious of Turkey's concerns, he reiterates his appeal for utmost restraint, and for respect of the international borders between Iraq and Turkey."

The UN chief also repeated his "previous calls for an immediate end to continued incursions" by the separatist Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK) elements "carrying out terrorist attacks in Turkey from Northern Iraq".

"The protection of civilian life on both sides of the border remains the paramount concern," it added.
