Strive for urban and rural development

The national development tasks that are being implemented today cover tasks for development of border areas and rural regions. Priority is being given to development of rural regions where the majority of the nation's population reside. As a result, rural people are now enjoying peace and development like urban residents.

The government is building more new roads and bridges that are indispensable for rural development while striving for supply of drinking water and irrigation water. In the meantime, it has laid down and is implementing plans for the development of economic, education and health sectors of rural folks.

Thanks to combined efforts of development affairs departments and township development affairs committees over 200 miles of urban roads and over 2,000 miles of rural roads were upgraded in 2007-2008 fiscal year. In 1988, there were over 5,000 miles of urban and rural roads, and now the length of urban and rural roads has increased up to over 30,000 miles, thereby bringing about secure and smooth transport between urban regions and rural regions.

Likewise, over 1,000 projects for supply of water to urban and rural regions were implemented in 2007-2008 fiscal year. Projects for supply of drinking water to rural regions have been implemented since 2000-2001 in Sagaing, Magway and Mandalay Divisions. Now, the number of the projects has increased to more than 10,000. As a result, rural people have now access to adequate drinking water.

Nowadays, a large number of district-to-district roads and urban-to-rural roads have emerged, contributing much towards the improvement of socio-economic life of rural people. Thanks to concerted efforts of local authorities, local people and well-wishers under the leadership of the government, urban and rural regions will continue to witness greater peace and progress in their areas.

Castro says US a loser in South American peace

HAVANA, 9 March — Cuba's ailing Fidel Castro praised Latin American presidents for putting their differences aside on Friday and avoiding an outbreak of war he said had been fostered by "Yankee plotting" in the region.

"(US) imperialism was by all means the only loser," Castro, who retired last week after almost half a century at Cuba's helm, wrote in a column distributed to the Press by e-mail in Havana.

The presidents of Ecuador, Venezuela and Colombia, the United States' top ally in South America, shook hands at a regional summit and ended a border dispute that erupted with a Colombian raid into Ecuador to kill a guerilla leader.

The handshake at a Rio Group meeting in Santo Domingo prevented the weeklong diplomatic crisis from escalating into the first war between Latin American countries in more than a decade.

Castro highlighted that the meeting took place outside the Organization of American States, the hemispheric forum often seen as a tool of US power in Latin America.

"The essential thing is that no US diplomats were present," said Castro, 81, whose country was suspended from the OAS in 1962, three years after he took power in a revolution.

Putin says NATO enlargement harmful to UN

Moscow, 9 March — NATO's continued enlargement is harmful to the status of the United Nations, Russian President Vladimir Putin said after meeting German Chancellor Angela Merkel in Moscow Saturday.

"You get the impression that attempts are being made to set up an organization that would be a substitute for the UN Humankind is unlikely to agree with such architecture of future international relations, and I believe the potential for conflict would only increase," Putin told a joint Press conference with Merkel.

Putin said Russia will agree with Ukraine's accession to NATO, "if this is the choice of the Ukrainian people and not of the political elite".

"If the overwhelming majority of Ukrainians do not want their country to join NATO, and the country is being dragged into it by the neck, we cannot consider it a manifestation of democracy," Putin said.—MNA/Xinhua

Malaysia police battle mob in Islamist stronghold

KUALA LUMPUR, 9 March—Malaysian police fired tear gas and water cannon to disperse an angry crowd of people, mainly supporters of an Islamic party, following clashes over alleged unregistered voters in Saturday's general election, police said.

Police arrested 22 supporters of Parti Islam se-Malaysia (PAS) after they were attacked with bottles, sticks and stones, and the windscreens of three police cars were smashed, witnesses said.

The incident, the worst violence in the election so far, took place in Rusila, the power base of PAS President Hadi Awang. "We strongly condemned the police action," PAS Deputy President Nasharudin Mat Isa told Reuters. "I think there must be some provocation."

PAS said several of their supporters were hospitalised for injuries. They included Hadi's 31-year-old son Kholil, who sustained facial injuries.

Police said the fracas broke out after police detained Kholil for questioning in a dispute over confiscated identity cards seized by men, believed to be PAS supporters, from about 70 passengers of two buses entering Rusila.

Britain offers up to 18 more nuclear power sites

LONDON, 8 March — Britain said on Thursday it was making 18 more sites available for the next generation of nuclear power stations and gave operators four weeks to pick the ones they wanted.

“Interest in building new nuclear power stations in the UK is strong,” Business Secretary John Hutton said in a statement on the Government News Network (www.gnn.gov.uk).

“Planning applications for new plants are likely to focus on areas in the vicinity of existing sites and so it's welcome that the NDA is making its significant land and other assets available to the market,” he added.

Until now, the only sites that were clearly available were eight belonging to British Energy.

The UK's Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA), which owns 18 sites including two with operational reactors, issued a notice asking potential developers to name the assets they were interested in by 3 April.

Hutton told the Financial Times he expected the new generation of nuclear power stations to supply much more of the country's electricity than the 19 per cent the existing ones deliver.

Politicians, people's duties and nation's future

Ko Phyaunt

I am not a politician. I am just a political observer. I have come to know that I have a lot to do for my country. So, I thought over to do something to ensure national development and remind the people about what they should notice. It is because the people can pursue the common goal in harness only when they have a common concept. In this regard, I believe I have to present some notable points without bias against or in favour of the government or the anti-government groups. I realize that only then, will it be possible for me to present what I understand as it really is.

On 9 February 2008, the evening TV news programme carried Announcement No 1/2008 and Announcement No 2/2008. The first announcement was about the forthcoming referendum, and the other, elections. I sincerely believe that both announcements will go down in the annals of the nation's history, bringing down the curtain on the past events and fulfilling the present requirements.

I have not listened to the broadcasts of foreign radio stations for many months. But now I again listen to their broadcasts to know their reaction to the government's announcements. As I expected, through many particular broadcasts, they were dissuading the people from voting for the draft constitution with the intention of disrupting the public poll. In the past, I used to switch off the radio whenever the broadcasts were very bitter to my ear. However that time I listened carefully to the broadcast, instead of switching off the radio. Mostly, what a politician says and what he does, in other words, their words and deeds are different from each other. I had to listen to carefully and record what they aired. Because, they are in the habit of broadcasting slanderous and unreliable news stories without taking into consideration the interests of the people, and later denying that they broadcast so.

I think the memories of the events that took place in 1996 are still with the people. It was the Visit Myanmar Year. A person dissuaded the international community from visiting Myanmar. In consequence of that person's call, many foreign factories and companies closed down and withdrew from the country in 2003. It was part of economic sanctions. Out of the hardships stemming from the economic sanctions, the people were found expressing their dissatisfactions. Then, they said that they were not responsible for the economic sanctions.

Now, they are instigating the people not to vote for the draft of the constitution. Now, I am not in a position to stop them from doing so, but I want to remind them that they will be held responsible for their words. I will contribute towards the drive for approving the draft. So, I would like to exhort the people to weigh the situations with care. We the people have been under the rule of the Tatmadaw government from 18 September 1988 to date. The forthcoming constitution is the only thing that can transform the nation from the rule of the Tatmadaw government into the democratic rule. If the people fail to embrace the unique opportunity due to ignorance, the situations will remain unchanged. I wish to enjoy the rights 100 per cent. If we refuse 75 per cent just because we cannot get cent per cent, the answer will be zero. The percentage of the people will rise gradually to cent per cent later if we accept 75 per cent at first. Here, I would like to suggest that the people try to know what deserves first priority and what does not deserve first priority.

I wish the people would no longer keep past events in mind and would work together for a prosperous future of the motherland. However, it is virtually impossible for my hope to come true because the most opportune time for the people to remain united has elapsed long, and the issue is a hot potato on the table. So, the people should guess who is capable of addressing this issue and who is doing so, and should support the capable one. I do not want to recall the past events. But, those who recall the past are going backwards. So, I am worried in case the people will go backwards.

After the 1990 election, the burden of drawing a constitution fell on the shoulder of the representatives-elect. In my opinion, they missed the golden opportunity due to the fact that they made a demand for handing over power first to draw a constitution, misusing the authority. That had adverse effects on the people. However, it was fair to say that fortunately, the nation did not come under the rule of the unqualified politicians.

Taking advantage of internal problems of Myanmar, certain powerful countries tried to interfere in the internal affairs of the nation. So, Myanmar people fell victim to the attacks of economic sanctions. They gave a lame excuse that the economic sanctions were targeted at the government only. In practice, the whole country was hard hit by the crises. The economic sanctions were at the instigation of the politicians and due to their power-craving attitude.

Apparently, they have no sympathy for the people. Up to now, not a single politician has called for withdrawal of economic sanctions. I do not want to put blame on those politicians who failed to do so due to their lack of knowledge. Those who failed to do so although they understood to call for withdrawal of economic sanctions will be put on record as historic perpetrators of the nation. I would like experienced politicians to take part in the processes. I wonder what they will reply. Will they reply that is not their concern or they will not demand or they will join hands with the people? But, I would like to ask the people to get ready to put their replies on record.

Therefore, the people have to search and nurture qualified politicians with foresight and such politicians who are sympathetic towards the public and who do not use the people for political purposes, or they should try their utmost to become reliable politicians themselves if necessary. The reliability of a politician can be evaluated based on who call for in collaboration with the people the withdrawal of economic sanctions, and whether he disrupts the State constitution (draft). A constitution is the fundamental factor to introduce democracy. Political parties are to be formed according to the constitution. There will be elections only after political parties are formed systematically. And there will be a civilian government after elections.

I would like to present some points about the draft constitution. We people should study the draft of the constitution to know whether it carries the rights we should enjoy. We should not vote for or against the draft without knowing about it thoroughly. Otherwise, we may suffer grievances. One will happen to go wrong if one puts trust in others' deception although what one wants is enumerated in the draft.

I do not think it is prudent to look forward to a perfect constitution. In the world, no constitution is perfect, and there will never be a perfect one, either. What is the most important is what the people want to enjoy is stated in the constitution whoever has drawn it. According to the prevailing situation, the present draft is the most suitable one for the nation. We people are obliged to assess the draft constitution according to the prevailing situations of the nation. If one fails to seize the unique opportunity when opportune, one is deemed to shape one's miserable future.

Every citizen is responsible for doing many things important for the democratic transition—to call for removal of all forms of blockages that are against democracy, to extend a helping hand for emergence of an enduring constitution, and to elect reliable politicians or people's representatives.

In successive periods, reactionary politicians gained domination, so the people are not to blame for their mistrust in the politicians. However, a nation cannot be built without politicians. The nation needs a greater number of visionary politicians who sacrifice their self-interests with good morality. In conclusion, I would like to remind the people that they are responsible for emergence of and electing reliable politicians.

Obama's top adviser resigns over offensive on Clinton

WASHINGTON, 9 March— Democratic Presidential candidate Barack Obama's top foreign policy adviser resigned on Friday for her offensive remarks on his rival, Hillary Rodham Clinton in an interview with media.

Samantha Power, a Pulitzer Prize winner and Harvard University professor, was caught in hot water after she told a Scottish newspaper that New York Senator is a "monster."

"She is a monster, too — that is off the record — she is stooping to anything," The Scotsman quoted Power as saying in the report.

After US media released the abstract of the report, Power issued a statement making an apology and Obama's campaign also decried the remarks. However, Clinton's campaign made an immediate response by urging Power to resign.

"Senator Obama has called for change, and a new kind of politics," said Clinton's supporter, New York Representative Gregory Meeks. "This is the worst kind of politics."

The two Democratic presidential contenders are bracing for the caucuses in Wyoming on Saturday that would yield 12 pledged delegates and six superdelegates.

After Clinton won three primaries on Tuesday, she regained the momentum and magnetism for campaign fund, but still lost to Obama in the number of delegates who would vote at the nomination convention.

Researchers identify new CRC-related genes

WASHINGTON, 9 March—Researchers from Case Western Reserve University have identified new genes related to colorectal cancer (CRC), according to a new study published on Friday in The American Journal of Human Genetics.

Because only 5 per cent of CRC cases are due to known gene defects, this study is designed to identify the remaining CRC-related susceptibility genes. The team built on a previous study which identified a specific region on chromosome 9q that harbors a CRC susceptibility gene.

Upon review of a whole genome scan of all chromosome pairs in 194 families in the United States, the researchers were able to identify additional CRC gene regions on chromosomes 1p, 15q, and 17p.

"The goal of our study is to identify the CRC genes in susceptible patients to better understand who may be prone to develop CRC and why," said Georgia L Wiesner, lead author of the study. "This study is a step towards the future of genetic testing for the third most commonly diagnosed cancer in Americans."

Edison builds biggest power transmission project in US

LOS ANGELES, 9 March— Electricity supplier Southern California Edison said Friday that it has begun to build the biggest transmission project for wind energy in the United States.

The project is scheduled to be finished by 2013 and will be capable of carrying 4,500 megawatts of electricity, much of it from turbines in the windy Tehachapi area north of Los Angeles, according to the company, which provides power supply service in much of Southern California.

That is enough to power about three million California homes, the company said in a statement.

California currently generates about 2,500 megawatts of wind electricity, ranking second in the United States after Texas with about 4,500 megawatts. It is estimated that some 17,000 megawatts of wind electricity were generated in the country by the end of 2007. Edison's wind energy transmission project, with an estimated cost of 1.8 billion dollars, is part of a five-billion-dollar transmission expansion plan proposed by the Los Angeles-based utility company.

About 100 bodies found in Iraq mass grave

BAGHDAD, 9 March— Iraqi security forces found about 100 badly decomposed bodies in a mass grave north of Baghdad, the US military said on Saturday, one of the largest such finds in the country for months.

US and Iraqi security forces said it was not clear who was responsible for the grave near Khalis, 80 kilometres (50 miles) north of Baghdad, or when the victims had been killed.

"Initial reports indicate it may contain the remains of approximately 100 people," said US military spokesman Major Winfield Danielson.

Iraqi police said they suspected those in the grave were likely to have been killed some time after the 2003 US-led invasion to topple Saddam Hussein.

Tens of thousands of Iraqis have been killed in sectarian fighting between majority Shiites and minority Sunni Arabs and in a mainly Sunni Arab insurgency since the invasion.

"The skeletal remains appear to have been in the grave for a long time, and we have not yet determined who might be responsible for their death and burial," Danielson said.—MNA/Reuters

World Bank power projects in Nigeria absorb $400m

LAGOS, 8 March — Bayo Adeniyi, the Manager, PHCN World Bank Project Monitoring Unit (PMU) said the World Bank has spent 400 million US dollars on power projects in Nigeria.

"This is very small when compared to the amount needed to finance the power sector in Nigeria," he said.

Adeniyi said in Abuja, capital of Nigeria, that the aim of the power project was to entrench best practices, according to the News Agency of Nigeria.

"If it can work in other countries, it will work in Nigeria if the government and the people are willing to adopt it," he said.

He said a positive mark of success would have been achieved when the power projects in Karu and Kubwa were completed.

"The power supply in those areas will definitely improve with a remarkable difference," Adeniyi said. "Earlier we started by replacing the bigger transformers with the smaller ones. We have done much work in this area to improve supply in Karu and its environs."

Adeniyi said there was the need to build a power sub-station in Karu to increase the bulk of energy supply to the area and curb the problem of load shedding.

He said the design of the station had completed and we have placed order for the materials needed for the construction of the power sub-station.

Brazil bars entry of Spaniards in diplomatic spat

BRASILIA, 8 March — Brazil turned back eight Spanish citizens at a northeastern airport for not meeting entry requirements, police said on Friday, ratcheting up a diplomatic spat over immigration.

The move follows Spain's expulsion on Wednesday of a group of Brazilians at Madrid's airport for not complying with immigration laws.

The Spaniards flew into the airport in the city of Salvador late on Thursday. They were sent back to Spain immediately because they did not have the minimum amount of money required for entry or proof of hotel reservations, an immigration officer in Salvador told Reuters.

Some of the Brazilians had been barred from entering Spain for the same reasons, local media reported.

The Brazilian Government said on Thursday it was "deeply disturbed" by another episode of denying its citizens entry into Spain and that it was considering measures in response.

Brazil's Foreign Ministry had no immediate comment on Friday. Foreign Minister Celso Amorim had already complained to Spain earlier this year about the restrictions and demanded Brazilian citizens be treated with dignity.

Spain's Embassy in Brasilia said on Friday it was awaiting details of the incident in Salvador. The ambassador had said on Thursday that Spain was merely applying European Union immigration laws. —MNA/Reuters

German President backs bravery medal for soldiers

BERLIN, 8 March — German President Horst Koehler backs a plan to introduce Germany's first medal for bravery in combat since World War II, his spokesman said on Thursday, but some left-wing politicians have spoken out against the idea.

German soldiers have not been awarded medals for exceptional courage since the defeat of Nazi Germany, but the Defence Ministry is preparing to introduce a new decoration.

"The President is in principle in favour of this," said his spokesman, Martin Kothe.

The ministry has yet to finalize its plans, and according to the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung newspaper, one conservative member of Parliament suggested the decoration could be shaped like an iron cross — the old medal.

Introduced by Prussia in 1813 during the Napoleonic Wars, the iron cross later became synonymous with the military aggression of the Nazis, who redesigned it in 1939, inlaid with a swastika.

The Defence Ministry has ruled out using the iron cross as the basis of the new design, according to German media reports.

BOGOTA, 8 March — A top leader of Colombia's biggest left-wing rebel group, Ivan Rios, was killed on Friday in Colombia, the Army said, in the second major blow to insurgency's leadership in less than a week.

On Saturday Colombian forces killed the FARC's No 2 leader

Ecuador and its leftist ally Venezuela have dispatched thousands of troops to their borders with Colombia and cut ties with their US-backed neighbour.

Rios, a member of the seven-member secretariat of the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia, or FARC, died in combat with soldiers in the northwest coffee-producing part of the country.

Singapore unveils high-tech UAF storage facility

SINGAPORE, 8 March — Singapore on Friday commissioned its first underground arms storage facility, the world's most modern one of its kind.

Located at the old Mandai quarry, the Underground Ammunition Facility (UAF) is also the first large-scale underground containerized facility to be designed and developed within a densely developed and urbanized area, the Defence Ministry said in a statement.

At the commissioning of the Facility, Singapore's Defence Minister Teo Chee Hean highlighted its efficient land use and space management. By building the facility below ground, it freed up about 300 hectares of land, equivalent to 400 football fields.

The storage needs 20 per cent less manpower to operate than a conventional above-ground one because it is equipped with the latest ammunition storage technology and systems. It also needs half the energy for cooling due to the natural insulation provided by granite caverns. The defence minister also called it an "engineering achievement" which has set new standards in underground storage, safety and efficiency.

Bulgaria bans smoking in trains after deadly fire

SOFIA, 9 March — Bulgarian Transport Minister Peter Mutafchiev has issued an order for developing additional security measures in Bulgaria's trains, including a total ban of smoking, local Press reported on Friday.

The order issued on Thursday also includes strengthening control over the type and the weight of the train passengers' baggage, informing the passengers about what to do in case of fire or other incidents, and improving the communication between the train staff.

The enhanced safety measures also deal with the evacuation ways, the use of the emergency break, the fire-extinguishers' spots in the train carriages, and the door closing and opening systems.

These measures were proclaimed one week after last month's deadly train fire tragedy. On 29 February, two carriages of the night train travelling from Sofiato to the north-eastern town of Kardam burst into flames minutes after midnight, left nine people dead and nine injured. Critics said that most of these measures had already been in place but had not been strictly executed.

Mutafchiev admitted that there was a ban of bringing flammable objects onto the trains but that no one controlled whether it was observed.

China recommends daily diet for citizens

BEIJING, 8 March — The Chinese Nutrition Society and the Ministry of Health have released a newly-revised edition of "Guideline of Chinese Residents' Diet (2007)".

The diet is structured as a pyramid with five levels that aim to introduce Chinese to a better dining habits. The importance of and the amount of different types of food in a daily diet is displayed in each level. For example, 250 to 400 grammes of cereal, potato and bean, together with 1,200 grammes of water, are at the bottom. At the top are 25 to 30 grammes of oil and 6 grammes of salt.

The second level contains 300 grammes of milk and milk products, 30 to 50 grammes of beans and nuts, while on the third level are 50 to 75 grammes of meat, 50 to 100 grammes of fish and shrimp and 25 to 50 grammes of eggs. Some 300 to 500 grammes of vegetables and 200 to 400 grammes of fruits are placed at the fourth level.

CNS experts said an ideal daily diet should include all the foods listed in the diet, but there was no need to follow the suggested diet daily.

It added the average of the total amount of food eaten during a week should coincide with the suggested amount.

Portsmouth's Sulley Muntari (L) scores a penalty past Manchester United's Rio Ferdinand during their FA Cup quarter-final soccer match at Old Trafford in Manchester, northern England on 8 March, 2008.—INTERNET

Portsmouth in semis after United Cup shock

LONDON, 9 March — Portsmouth stunned Manchester United with a smash and grab 1-0 victory at Old Trafford on Saturday to reach the FA Cup semifinals.

Pompey were under siege for long periods but a penalty 12 minutes from time by Sulley Muntari after United keeper Tomasz Kuszczak was sent off for fouling Milan Baros gave them a first victory at Old Trafford since 1957.

They can now look forward to a Wembley semifinal, the first time they have reached the last four of the FA Cup since losing to Liverpool in 1992.

"It was the worst draw we could have got but it was a great performance and a great result," Portsmouth manager Harry Redknapp, who memorably led Bournemouth to a 1984 Cup victory over United, told Sky Sports. "We rode our luck but United are a fantastic team and we deserved our luck." Portsmouth managed comfortably enough in the first half with Glen Johnson's headed clearance from Carlos Tevez and a loud United penalty appeal when Sylvain Distin barged Cristiano Ronaldo off the ball their most worrying moments.

After the break, however, they were forced into desperate defence against the Premier League champions with Sol Campbell outstanding at the heart of the Pompey resistance. Ronaldo headed one good chance over the bar and minutes later Michael Carrick looked certain to score when he went past keeper David James, only for Distin to make an incredible last-ditch tackle.

Ferguson blasts refereeing Red Devils manager unhappy with officiating

Sir Alex Ferguson

LONDON, 8 March — Manchester United boss Sir Alex Ferguson hit out at the refereeing after Portsmouth beat the Red Devils 1-0 at Old Trafford to progress into the semifinals of the FA Cup.

United will wonder how they lost this game after hitting the post through Patrice Evra and having Carlos Tevez and Michael Carrick efforts cleared off the line.

Earlier replays show they had a clear-cut penalty rejected when Cristiano Ronaldo was brought down by Sylvain Distin in the seventh minute but referee Martin Atkinson did not award the spot-kick.

The South Coast side then won a penalty, when Milan Baros was brought down by substitute keeper Tomasz Kuszczak, who was sent-off. —Internet

Liverpool cruise past Keegan's hapless Newcastle

LONDON, 9 March — Liverpool piled more misery on Newcastle United with a 3-0 victory at Anfield in the Premier League on Saturday.

First-half goals from Jermaine Pennant and Fernando Torres, his 25th of the season, and Steven Gerrard's effort after the break strengthened Liverpool's hold on fourth place.

Relegation-threatened Newcastle, without a league win since December, have picked up only two points in seven matches since Kevin Keegan returned as manager in January and are leaking goals at an alarming rate.

"It was disappointing," Keegan told Sky Sports television. "The first goal was a killer but other than that I didn't think we showed enough courage or self belief on the ball."

"They were much better than us." Reading, third from bottom at the start, jumped five places with a 2-0 home victory over Manchester City while second-from-bottom Fulham drew 1-1 at Blackburn Rovers.

Grant praise for Barnsley Chelsea boss gracious in defeat

LONDON, 8 March — Chelsea manager Avram Grant admitted his side were second best as they suffered a huge giant-killing at the hands of Barnsley in their FA Cup quarter-final at Oakwell.

Kayode Odejayi scored the only goal of the game just after the hour to give Barnsley the most unlikely of wins - although Chelsea barely threatened at the other end.

Chelsea manager Avram Grant

"We started the game well then we conceded the goal and we couldn't score," he told Sky Sports News. "We didn't play well, especially in the first half, and all the credit to Barnsley. They won against Liverpool, they won against us. All credit to them and I congratulate them."

"I am very, very disappointed and sad about this. It's an important competition. We had a chance to do something in this competition and we didn't do it so now we need to look forward for the league and Champions League." —Internet

FIFA ends all goal-line technology experiments

GLENEAGLES (Scotland), 9 March — Goal-line technology to determine whether a goal has been scored will not be used in football for the foreseeable future, the game's law-makers ruled on Saturday.

FIFA, world soccer's governing body, will not sanction any further experiments into technological aids, and according to Brian Barwick, the chief executive of the English FA who supported the experiments, "the idea is now dead in the water". —MNA/Reuters

Raul's 200th league goal puts Real eight clear

MADRID, 9 March — Raul scored his 200th league goal to move Real Madrid eight points clear in the Primera Liga after a 2-1 comeback win over Espanyol on Saturday.

The visitors went ahead in the first half through Valdo, taking advantage of a Real side suffering a hangover from their midweek Champions League exit at AS Roma's hands. Gonzalo Higuain levelled before the break and Raul converted a penalty in the second half to earn Bernd Schuster's side a morale-boosting three points. —MNA/Reuters

Holdings Chelsea dumped out of FA Cup at Barnsley

LONDON, 9 March — Holders Chelsea were knocked out of the FA Cup in the quarterfinals on Saturday when they lost 1-0 at Championship (Second Division) side Barnsley.

Kayode Odejayi's 66th minute header clinched a victory that sparked incredible scenes at Oakwell as Barnsley fans celebrated reaching the semifinals for the first time since 1912.

The Yorkshire side beat Liverpool at Anfield in the previous round and deserved their latest upset after weathering waves of desperate Chelsea attacks in the final minutes.

"I'm over the moon, I can't believe it," Barnsley manager Simon Davey told the BBC. "We went to Anfield at put on a show but nobody thought we could do it again."

"The players were fantastic. I've never been to Wembley before and nor have many of the players. To knock out a team like Chelsea with the millions they have got...unbelievable." Barnsley are guaranteed a trip to Wembley Stadium for the semifinals, along with Portsmouth who had earlier stunned Manchester United 1-0 at Old Trafford in their quarterfinal. —MNA/Reuters

Canadian couple have natural, identical triplets

OTTAWA, 9 March — A Canadian couple have given birth to naturally conceived, identical triplets, the chance of what is estimated only at one in 200 million.

The babies were born on 29 February, 10 weeks before their expected due date, in New Westminster in British Columbia Province.

They are all healthy, weighing between two and 3.3 pounds. They are expected to remain in hospital at least until their original due date, in early June, Canadian Press reported Friday.

A spokesman for neonatal services at the New Westminster hospital where the babies were delivered, said even veteran staff members are awe-struck.

"The rarity, it's amazing, it's huge. Especially babies of this size, born at 1.5 kilos (3.3 pounds), only 10 per cent are conceived naturally. In other cases, 90 per cent are (born after the use of) fertility drugs. This is an extremely rare occasion," the spokesman said.

Rett syndrome patients suffer high fracture risk

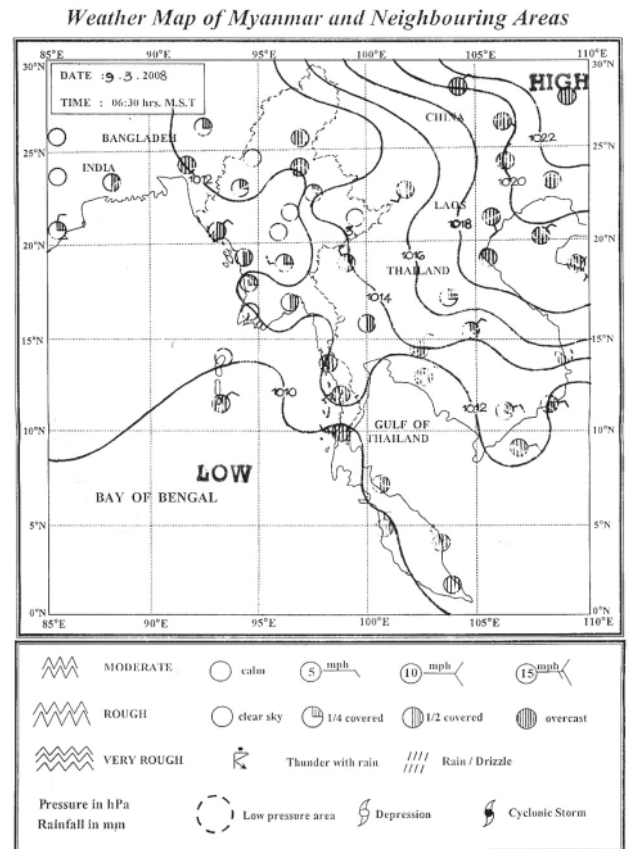

WASHINGTON, 9 March — Australian researchers have found that girls and young women with Rett syndrome are nearly four times more likely to suffer a fracture, according to the latest edition of the US journal Paediatrics.

Head of the Australian Rett Syndrome Study Helen Leonard said the results had important implications for the care of girls with the syndrome. Many of the girls had fractures of the femur which are particularly disabling given the limited mobility of many of these children.

"This information will be important for doctors and for families in both identifying fractures and endeavoring to find ways to prevent them where possible," said Leonard. Researchers will try to identify the mechanism that is making the girls more susceptible to fractures. "We will look at the effect of the specific gene that's responsible for the syndrome," Leonard said.

Rett Syndrome is a severe childhood neurological disease that is the most physically disabling of the autism spectrum disorders. The disease affects primarily girls, striking at random in early childhood and destroying speech, normal movement and functional hand use. Many children become wheelchair bound and those who walk display an abnormal, stiff-legged gait. Disordered breathing patterns and Parkinson-like tremors are common. — MNA/Xinhua

Illegal "AK-47" rifles seized at California pawn shop

LOS ANGELES, 9 March — Ten AK-47 assault rifles have been seized at a pawn shop near Los Angeles and authorities believe the weapons were illegally imported into California, officials said on Saturday.

Local and federal law enforcement officers raided Bright Spot pawn shop in Glen Avon, about 70 kilometres east of Los Angeles, making no arrests, but authorities would seek charges against the owner of the weapons.

Police and officers with the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms executed the search warrant at the shop Friday after having received information that illegal AK-47s were being sold there, according to a statement by police. The case will be forwarded to the Riverside County District Attorney, seeking charges against the owner of these weapons while the authorities are continuing an investigation.

Although AK-47s are popular in the assault rifle market, such weapons are not legal for most Americans, say gun control advocates who feel there is no reason for hobbyists to own such potentially-destructive guns.
