Strive for socio-economic development of the people

Community peace and stability, better transport and abundant natural resources are a prerequisite for the socio-economic development.

Myanmar with favourable weather is rich in natural resources such as forests, minerals and meat and fish. It is also blessed with vast areas of arable land. Therefore, concerted efforts are to be exerted for national development making better use of the qualities of man.

To bring about equitable development the length and breadth of the nation the government has laid down and is implementing development projects. As a result, most of the regions that lagged behind in development in the past have now enjoyed better transport as well as development in agriculture, livestock breeding and marketing.

Situated in the north of Myanmar Kachin State is dotted with forests and mountain ranges. Owing to fulfillment of the government in the transport sector it is now enjoying economic development including the development of eco-tourism.

Likewise, with the emergence of a number of large and small bridges Rakhine State has also seen better transport and it is now accessible to different regions. With offshore natural gas deposits and thriving fish and prawn breeding it is making progress in economy.

With peace and stability and prevalence of law and order in both urban and rural regions the entire people are now enjoying the fruits of development. At such a time, the entire national people are to try their best for national development making better use of abundant natural resources. Only then, will the living standard of the people improve.

No outbreak of diseases or famine in Ayeyawady Delta

NEW YORK, 10 June—Under Secretary-General of UN Emergency Relief Coordinator Mr John Holmes said that there were no outbreak of diseases or famine in Ayeyawady delta of Myanmar during the period of one month after the cyclone Nargis. The UN official remarked it at the meeting of relief experts held in New York by Asia Sociality recently. Relief workers have reached most of the storm-hit villages and in overall view, the situation is getting better, he noted. Moreover, distribution of relief supplies forcefully without the consent of Myanmar Government would not bear fruit for the victims, he remarked.

“It was more of a feeling that you’re brothers and sisters working together”:Filipino mission leader

MANILA, 13 June—The 30-member Philippine humanitarian mission arrived back home on 9 June. The team arrived at Labutta in Ayeyawady Division on May 30. It was the first destination in a 15-day tour that took them through 4 towns around Myanmar – 2 in the Ayeyawady and 2 in Yangon.

“It was more of a feeling that you’re brothers and sisters working together. It was a very nice coordinated activity ... and even when we arrived, you’d see how prepared they were, you can see the way the briefing was carried out, civilians and military working together,” said Dr Amel Rivera, the mission chief.

The Filipino aid mission was the first group to enter Myanmar as the country grappled with its worst humanitarian crisis in years. The government opened up sponsored a donors conference initiated by the United Nations and backed by the Association of South-East Asian Nations of which Myanmar was a member. “What others say that there were many soldiers around, we never felt like that.” said the team leader. As they described it, the Filipino contingent was feted to a reception fit for dignitaries as soon as they touched down aboard a military plane in Yangon. “They greeted with the presence of representatives of the Myanmar government, from the uniformed services, the ministers of foreign affairs and health,” said Rivera.

The team was provided transport for their mission and a cargo truck for their load of close to 13 tons of medicine and relief goods. Myanmar civilian officials were with them throughout the mission but there was no feeling of being watched. “We were accompanied ... We didn’t find any problem, they were already well organized, the system was already in place and we were there augmenting them. We never implied that we were doing something other than assisting,” Rivera said.

Once in Ayeyawady, the impact of Nargis devastation met with eye to eye. For Sabater, a native of disaster-prone Bicol, ground zero was nothing like any disaster area he had seen before. “Look to the right, to the left, to the front and back, there was not a single mountain. The area was like one major river with many branches and terrain was so flat, said Sabater. Social worker Jing Guerrero, one of those who gave psycho-social treatment to refugees said that the people of Ayeyawady delta had never seen such a severe cyclone.

There was even technology transfer, said Sabater as the team taught locals an improvised water filtration system used in Philippine villages. The system uses the Myanmar version of the tapayan (clay tar) and sand and gravel for the natural filtration, Sabater said.

The medical team flew back from Myanmar through a commercial flight that arrived at 7:30 pm Monday.

Israeli envoy returns without Gaza truce deal

BEIT LAHIYA, (Gaza Strip) 13 June—An Israeli envoy engaging in Gaza ceasefire talks returned without a deal late Thursday, after another day of bloodshed in the coastal territory that included seven Palestinians being killed in an explosion that Hamas indicated was an accident. When the explosion flattened a house in the Gaza Strip, killing the seven, Hamas blamed Israel and unleashed rockets and mortar shells at southern Israel. But the militant group, which has controlled Gaza the past year, later suggested the blast was accidental. Dozens of gunmen have been killed while handing explosives in recent years.

By then Israel had carried out an airstrike aimed at a Gaza rocket squad, killing a Palestinian. Two other Israeli military operations in Gaza killed five more militants. Clashes in and around Gaza are putting a strain on Egypt’s effort to arrange a truce by acting as a go-between because Israel has no contacts with Hamas, which has killed more than 250 Israelis in suicide attacks and rejects the Jewish state’s right to exist.

Top US court deals Bush blow on Guantanamo prisoners

WASHINGTON, 13 June— The US Supreme Court has ruled prisoners at the Guantanamo military base have a right to challenge their detention in US civilian courts, dealing a stiff rebuke to the Bush administration.

“The laws and constitution are designed to survive, and remain in force, in extraordinary times,” the court said in its historic ruling Thursday, the third blow in four years to the government’s case for trying “war on terror” suspects in military tribunals.

“Liberty and security can be reconciled; and in our system they are reconciled within the framework of the law,” the court added.

The court ruled by five to four that prisoners in the US military prison in southeastern Cuba “have the constitutional privilege of habeas corpus.”

Pakistan should reconsider its ties to US

ISLAMABAD, 13 June— The top elected official in northwest Pakistan said Thursday the country should rethink its relationship with America after a US airstrike that reportedly killed 11 Pakistani soldiers.

The US and Pakistan remained at odds in their versions of a Tuesday night clash on the Afghan border that led to American planes dropping bombs on insurgents who had staged an attack inside Afghanistan.

President Bush's national security adviser said it was not clear exactly what happened and American officials "have not been able to corroborate" Pakistani troops died.

The US "would be very saddened" if that were true, Stephen Hadley told reporters traveling with Bush in Europe.

The incident is presenting a stiff test for an already-strained alliance, a partnership many here say has cost many Pakistani lives with limited recognition for their cooperation in the US campaign against international extremist groups.

Gaza militants bombard Israel after deadly blast

GAZA CITY, 13 June— Palestinian militants bombarded southern Israel on Thursday after a Hamas commander's house in northern Gaza was blown up in a blast which killed seven people, including a four-month-old baby.

The attacks started immediately after the explosion which Palestinian medics said also wounded 51 people, among them women and children, in and around the two-storey building.

The Israeli military said nearly 50 rockets and mortar rounds were fired from Gaza following the explosion, which Hamas blamed on the Jewish state

Iraqi lawmakers reject security draft pact

BAGHDAD, 13 June— New US proposals have failed to overcome Iraqi opposition to a proposed security pact, two lawmakers said Thursday, and a senior government official expressed doubt an agreement could be reached before the US presidential election in November.

Iraqi reinforcements, meanwhile, arrived in the oil-producing southern city of Amarah on Thursday as the military geared up for another crackdown against Shiite militia fighters, officials said.

The security agreement would provide a legal basis for the presence of US forces in Iraq after the UN mandate expires at the end of this year.

Failure to strike a deal would leave the future of the American military presence here to the next administration.

US negotiators offered new proposals this week after Iraqi lawmakers expressed outrage over the direction of the negotiations, claiming that accepting the US position would cement American military, political and economic domination of this country.

Iman al-Asadi, a Shiite member of the parliamentary committee on legal affairs, said the latest American version "wasn't satisfactory to say the least."

She said the American proposals contained "some good points but they were not up to what we had expected."

Al-Asadi said the committee had recommended to the negotiators that they reject the latest draft, the fourth since the talks began last March.

Kurdish lawmaker Mahmoud Othman confirmed al-Asadi's comments, adding that "we will not sign" the agreement as proposed by Washington.

Armed robbers steal Picasso prints in Brazil

SAO PAULO, 13 June— Three armed robbers stole two Pablo Picasso prints from an art museum in downtown Sao Paulo on Thursday, the city's second high-profile art theft in less than a year.

The bandits also took two oil paintings by well-known Brazilian artists Emiliano Di Cavalcanti and Lasar Segall, said Carla Regina, a spokeswoman for the Pinacoteca do Estado museum.

The Picasso prints stolen were "The Painter and the Model" from 1963 and "Minotaur, Drinker and Women" from 1933, according to a statement from the Sao Paulo Secretary of State for Culture, which oversees the museum. The prints and paintings have a combined value of $612,000, the statement and a museum official said. About noon, three armed men paid the $2.45 entrance fee and immediately went to the second-floor gallery where the works were being exhibited, by passing more valuable pieces, authorities said.

"This indicates to us that they probably received an order" to take those specific works, Youssef Abou Chain, head of Sao Paulo's organized crime unit, told reporters at a news conference.—Internet

Killers with use of words and swords

An Observer

The government hand in hand with the people and Tatmadawmen speedily carried out relief and rescue work for the survivors in the disaster-affected regions that were hit by cyclone Nargis in early May to continue to survive.

In the same month, SSA-S insurgent groups ruthlessly murdered innocent civilians earning their living in an honest way with various weapons such as sticks and swords.

During the storm, a private from the military service lost his life while he was alerting the people of a village in the Ayeyawady Delta to evacuate. From a delta town, motorized boats with rescue teams were sent to nearby villages and 597 storm victims were saved in time. Up to 14 May, 637 victims were saved and evacuated with the use of helicopters and 51 emergency patients were sent to specialist hospitals. Although helicopters could not touch down as some regions were flooded, they dropped relief supplies to nearest places. So, the victims were able to survive and reach the relief camps.

Such news was carried in both State-run newspapers and private journals. Some of the scenes were seen on TV screen. As an experienced journalist, I felt such news scenes were not exaggerated. I even analyzed them thoroughly whether there was any blackout. Like the roots of a tree, the southern Delta is teeming with streams, creeks and rivers. As almost all the ships, boats and motor boats in the region were sunk, it was not possible to rush to the affected areas for a certain period. That was why helicopters flew over transporting relief goods, evacuating the victims and sending patients to hospital. We did understand that. At such a time, we noticed some broadcasting stations manufactured fabricated news stories to the liking of internal and external anti-government groups without considering how the government, private mediemen and donors would reach out to the storm victims and how they would carry out their relief work to cover the whole affected areas.

This is a great opportunity for anti-government groups. Ignoring sympathy and understanding, those expressing the wish to help Myanmar with humanitarian aid made a political trick changing the title of the Myanmar issue into a crime against humans. They exacerbated the problem. With skyful of lies, they launched a psychological warfare.

Those who exaggerated some weaknesses of Myanmar in implementing relief and rescue work for the storm victims that occurred due to difficulties turned a blind eye to the news about the massacre committed by SSA-S Ywet Sit's group in Konlaymok village in Maukmai Township, Shan State (South). They blacked out this news. Although I was waiting for foreign news agencies how they would comment about this, nothing was heard except that BBC announced SSA-S blamed the government for the killings.

Why is it so? Is it their policy that everything the government does is to blame and everything the insurgents do is to be praised? Otherwise, they are seeing the government rescuing on a self-help basis hundreds of thousands of victims with negative view and they are seeing the insurgents killing about a dozen of innocent civilians with positive view. It is because all the stories the internal and external groups created showed this direction.

Don't think that those creating make-up stories are not expert in the job. Indeed, they are expert at tracking news. As they seem to be blind or are pretending to be blind, I will reveal what the SSA-S Ywet Sit group is.

The group is made up of insurgent drug dealers. Since a neo-colonialist nation attempted to stab in the back of Myanmar, U Khun Sa-led MTA group

Some might already hear that there are machines issuing fake money. As the article can be so long, I will mention mainly about the Ywet Sit group committing crimes such as massacre, arson and rapes practising anti-Bamar sentiment and chauvinism.

On 9 February, 1993, they attacked the Tatmadaw camp in Pantawi village and set fire to the whole village as they retreated. A total of 60 villagers were killed and 30 injured.

On 18 January, 1997, they set fire to Meethwaygon (Bamar village) and raped the women of the village. Altogether 13 men and unconditionally exchanged arms for peace and returned to the legal fold in January 1996. But Ywet Sit went underground again to continue engaging in the heroin business as he wanted to get back the money owed. He contacted the remnant Shan insurgent group of Khun Kya Nu and committed subversive acts. Later, their group was called SSA-S. The headquarters is based in Lwetailyan, Mongna. As it is all open to foreigners and foreign mediemen, news hunters also have been there. Near the region there are opium refineries.

children were killed and eight injured.

Altogether 21 local people from ward-6 of Namsan were captured and hit without any reason while they went to the village for making charcoal on 28 January of the same year.

On 13 June, 50 passenger-buses were robbed and the women were raped at a place on Kunhing-Kengtung motorway. They separated the Bamar national from the passengers and opened fire to them. So 26 people died and five injured.

(See page 9)

A wood cutter murdered by SSA-S insurgent group.

Killers with use of words and swords

They detonated a time bomb inside Myoma cinema in Mandalay on 21 May 1998, and the explosion left one dead and 11 injured. On 18 October the same year, they hit six workers to death with sticks and swords at the quarry on Panglong-Leikha road near Kyauktaung village.

On 24 March 2003, they fired small arms at the Gu monastery in Loikon village, Kunhein, and one monk was killed and a novice injured in the incident.

On 26 March 2005, they set fire to Hti-takhu, Naungde, Monglut and Panming villages, the majority of whose populations were Pa-O national people, in Hongpong Township. More than 100 houses were burnt down and 446 villagers left homeless. They also set fire to the primary school and the middle school of Hti-takhu village.

They are only some of the terrorist acts SSA-S Ywet Sit group has committed. They also committed many crimes in which one or two victims were shot dead. They have been recruiting new members.

In that regard, they did not spare even minors. So, many parents had to send their boys to the monasteries in nearby towns and had them initiated into novices there.

Those incidents have been published into publications with documentary photos. They are compelling evidence news hunters should keep for good references.

I would like to present one more profound event. Deputy commander-in-chief of the forces commander of Brigade No (758) U Mein Sin and 848 troop members whose objection did not work and who had lost their patience with those terrorist acts returned to the legal fold bringing together with them arms and ammunition on 6 July 2006.

Diplomats, representatives from UN agencies and local and foreign journalists covered the news at the ceremony in which U Mein Sin and party relinquished their armed insurgency line and entered the legal fold. The news hunters out of worry about possible collapse of Ywet Sit group aired special broadcasts to maintain the group.

Deputy commander of Brigade No (758) U Sai Ta in his speech said, "Ywet Sit practises anti-Bamar policy. A large number of villagers of Meethwaygon village, workers and passengers were killed under his command. They robbed passenger buses, killed Bamar people, raped women and took the money from the victims. Moreover, they set fire to houses and schools in the villages of Pa-O nationals and forced them out of Shan State, accusing Pa-O people of giving information to the Tatmadaw. They stick to racism and theirs are terrorist acts. It is a long time we have been desperate to break away from his group".

Presenting compelling evidence that Ywet Sit-led SSA-S group had risen against the State and tortured the people repeatedly, the government released an announcement on 25 August 2006 to declare the group and its members, terrorists.

However, certain elements are turning a blind eye to their terrorist acts, covering the news about terrorist acts, and keeping them as lackeys. So, Ywet Sit group members are still committing slaughters of innocent people audaciously.

It was very cruel of Ywet Sit troops to slaughter 11 workers of the sawmill near Konlemok village in Maukmai Township on 28 May 2008. News about this cruelty was carried in 31 May issue of the newspapers. The victims were all Bamar and Pa-O national people. They said, "We'll kill all of you" and cut their throats to death. Before doing so, they hit the victims with sticks. It is fair to say that they are far crueller than BCP members and '88' terrorists. In the policy of "Dismiss, remove and kill", BCP members used solid bamboo sticks in killing the victims. The "88" terrorists used swords to behead the victims. SSA-S troops used both sticks and swords. One of the 11 victims with injuries managed to escape. He recounted the atrocities in detail. The 10 victims were killed and thrown away into a ravine. When the Tatmadaw column arrived, one of the 10 victims was still alive, so he was rushed to hospital. The victims were buried. If all the 11 victims were dead, the news hunters would have covered up the fact and accused the Tatmadaw of killing the victims.

It might be in the middle of last year. After a foreign media group had interviewed the SSA-S spokeswoman, SSA-S said that it had sent a message for tripartite talks and there had been no reply yet, with the intention of sounding out for information. Some members of the terrorist group were from NCUB. They were also terrorists. The government had declared NCUB, FTUB, ABSDF and NLD (LA), unlawful groups and terrorists.

Members of the ABSDF (North) brashly committed atrocities under the "Dismiss, remove and kill" policy in which they killed fellow members. The group was then split into small groups. The group broke up and Than Gyaung and followers joined SSA-S Ywet Sit. Than Gyaung then continued to kill innocent people. He claimed himself to be Sao Khun Kyaw. In the end, he surrendered when the insurgent groups were surrounded by the Tatmadaw columns and the people in Nankham Township.

ABSDF, in collusion with Maung Maung (a) Pyithit Nyunt Wai of FTUB and expatriate Sein Win of NCUB, detonated bombs many times and killed many people. Their bomb attacks included the bomb explosion that took place at the ceremony to temporarily keep Buddha Tooth Relic for public homage in Maha Pasana Cave on Kaba Aye Hill, letter bomb explosion, and a series of bomb explosions in three busy places in Yangon. SSA-S group massacred people in the jungles, while terrorist groups such as NCGUB, FTUB and ABSDF killed many people in urban areas.

Are they the ones who engage in a revolution, or democracy activists, or freedom fighters? Anti-government elements at home and abroad are supporting the terrorist groups to conceal the terrorist acts. However, the terrorist groups will be punished one day. I do not want the foreign radio stations to be put blame in those cases. They hunt news, whereas SSA-S, FTUB and ABSDF hunt human victims. If they continue to help the terrorist groups with atrocities, they will have to suffer evil consequences like hunter Sonutthora in King Elephant Chaddan Jataka. Writer Salay U Ponnya named those who killed others with the use of words or arms, stupid persons or heretical slaves.

Brazil starts clinical test on esophagus cancer vaccine

RIODE JANEIRO, 13 June — The Brazilian lab Eurofarma said Wednesday it will carry out clinical tests of a biological vaccine developed in Cuba against esophagus cancer.

The project of the lab, the fifth biggest in Brazil, will be supported by the Brazilian National Bank of Economic and Social Development (BNDES).

The BNDES announced Wednesday that it has approved a credit of 2.2 million reais (about 1.3 million US dollars) to fund the project. If the results of clinical test is satisfactory, the vaccine will be produced in Brazil.

Eurofarma will contribute 1.3 million more dollars to prove the efficiency of the medicine that combats esophagus cancer. It is also being tested in treatments on head, neck, brain and lung malignant tumors.

The vaccine, Nimotuzumabe, is a monoclonal antibody developed from biological molecules by the Centre of Molecular Immunology (CIM) in Havana, Cuba. It is synthesized protein that acts over structures of specific proteins of the surface of tumour cells.

The medicine complements treatments against cancer like chemotherapy and radiotherapy.

The tests made till now with vaccine in Cuba have proved that the medicine has the same clinical benefits with other drugs used against cancer but without producing collateral effects.

Patients "not benefiting" from British NHS reforms

LONDON, 13 June — Patients have yet to see any significant benefits from the government's billion-pound overhaul to the National Health Service, two independent watchdogs said on Thursday.

NHS officials have underestimated the complexity of overhauling the health system, they said, although in the long run they expected the reforms to pay off.

While general NHS standards had improved considerably in the past few years, patients were still failing to feel any significant benefits because the reforms were not "delivering the desired changes." The conclusions were reached in a joint report from the Healthcare Commission—which oversees health-care in England—and the Audit Commission, which monitors other public bodies.

Officials from the two bodies estimated the reforms, unveiled almost a decade ago by Tony Blair, have cost taxpayers close to one billion pounds.—MNA/Reuters

Then there were 8: Pluto loses planet status

Two years after Pluto was struck from the planetary A-list and downgraded to "dwarf-planet" status, the ninth rock from the Sun regained some dignity by lending its name to new category of celestial bodies.

INTERNET

Pluto gets a new name

WASHINGTON, 13 June— Pluto, demoted from planet status in 2006, got a consolation prize on Wednesday—it and other dwarf planets like it will be called plutoids.

The International Astronomical Union said in a statement that its executive committee meeting in Oslo, Norway, decided on the term.

Plutoids will be defined as celestial bodies in orbit around the Sun farther away than Neptune. They must have near-spherical shape, and must not have swept up other, smaller objects in their orbits, said the organization, which names newly discovered planets and other celestial bodies.

The two known and named plutoids are Pluto and Eris, but astronomers expect to find more.

Another dwarf planet, Ceres, does not merit the plutoid designation because it is in the asteroid belt between Mars and Jupiter.

End to discrimination urged against HIV-infected people

UNITED NATIONS, 13 June — UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon appealed on Tuesday for an end to the discrimination against HIV-infected people, calling it “an affront to our common humanity”.

Six decades after the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, “it is shocking that there should still be discrimination against those at high risk, such stigma attached to individuals living with HIV,” Ban told a high-level meeting on HIV/AIDS which opened Tuesday at the General Assembly.

“This not only drives the virus underground, where it can spread in the dark; as important, it is an affront to our common humanity,” he said.

Citing his meetings with the UN’s group of HIV-positive staff, UN Plus, the UN Chief described such encounters as “one of my most moving experiences as Secretary-General”. “They are wonderfully courageous and motivated people,” he said. “I am determined to make the UN a model workplace in embracing them, and all our staff living with HIV.”

Ban also called on the international community to change laws that “uphold stigma and discrimination —including restrictions on travel for people living with HIV”.

The United Nations began on Tuesday the two-day high-level event to review progress made in implementing the 2001 Declaration of Commitment on HIV/AIDS and the 2006 Political Declaration on HIV/AIDS.

George Milonas, 49, chairman of the Federation of Industries of Northern Greece and CEO of aluminium company Alumil, was snatched at gunpoint late on Monday outside his home in the northern city of Thessaloniki by unknown assailants.

“A person claiming to know Milonas’ whereabouts contacted his wife early this morning demanding 50 million euros for his release,” a police official who declined to be named told Reuters.

Although the abduction of Milonas is not considered to be the work of urban guerillas, authorities have not ruled it out. Road blocks have been set up throughout the city and across northern Greece.

New-style bird flu vaccine shows promise

WASHINGTON, 13 June—A new-style bird flu vaccine made using monkey cells instead of chicken eggs appears to be safe and effective, corporate researchers reported on Wednesday.

The vaccine against H5N1 avian influenza, made by Baxter International, is the first bird flu vaccine to be made using cells in a lab dish instead of chicken eggs. This is important because the right type of chicken eggs are difficult to obtain — and because H5N1 kills chickens rapidly.

The trial of more than 250 people was a phase I/II safety trial, but the report, published in the New England Journal of Medicine, showed the vaccine produced a strong immune response in people who received two doses.— MNA/Reuters

Cashew nuts may cut greenhouse gas from belching

TOKYO, 13 June — The cast offs from snacking on cashews may help fight global warming caused by animals that belch methane. Tests in Japan have show that oil produced from the shell of the cashew nut may slash by 90 per cent the methane emissions from belching cattle when mixed as an additive to feed, a spokesman for oil refiner Idemitsu Kosan Co said on Wednesday.

The firm’s research division is working with Hokkaido University on Japan’s northernmost island, on the project, with the aim of launching sales within four years, the spokesman said.

“We are in the process of applying for a patent,” he said, although the research has so far been only in the laboratory with the treatment yet to be fed to cattle.

Methane emissions from livestock in the field are a major factor in climate change. In New Zealand the two main gases from agriculture, methane from livestock and nitrous oxide from fertilisers, make up close to half of the country’s emissions.

Mediterranean shark numbers down 97%

ROME, 13 June — The number of sharks in the Mediterranean has fallen by 97 per cent in the last 200 years, putting the sea’s ecological balance at risk, a report released on Wednesday said.

The report, by the Washington-based Lenfest Ocean Programme, used records such as fishermen’s logs, shark landings, museum specimens and visual sightings to estimate the number and size of the Mediterranean sharks over the last two centuries.

There was only enough data on five of the 20 big shark species present in the Mediterranean to be useful to the study — the hammerhead, thresher, blue and two species of mackerel shark, which averaged a decline of 97 per cent.

“It will have a major impact on the ecosystem because large predatory sharks are at the top of the food chain,” said Francesco Ferretti, the report’s lead author.

A report last month by the International Union for Conservation of Nature found 11 kinds of shark faced extinction due to overfishing, partly caused by booming demand for shark fin soup in Asia.

France coach secretive but not superstitious

BERNE, 13 June— France coach Raymond Domenech remained tight-lipped about his starting lineup to face Netherlands in their second match at Euro 2008 although he said that playing on Friday the 13th was not a problem.

Domenech, who is known to be interested in astrology and other mysterious matters, was asked about the date of the Group C match in Berne, the second clash of heavyweights in the tournament.

“I’m not superstitious,” a relaxed Domenech told a news conference on Thursday. “It brings bad luck.”

He said his 23-man squad were all fit, meaning striker Thierry Henry and midfielder Patrick Vieira, who missed the opening 0-0 draw against Romania with thigh injuries, should both take some part in the game. —MNA/Reuters

German FM turns airport into soccer lounge

HELSINKI, 13 June — German Foreign Minister Frank-Walter Steinmeier unexpectedly took over a VIP lounge at Helsinki airport on Thursday to see Germany take on Croatia in the Euro 2008 soccer tournament.

Just before the end of the first half of the match, Steinmeier’s plane stopped just 10 metres away from the lounge and his 100-strong delegation hastily took their seats to watch the remainder of the game on a wide screen television.

Officials said the plane had to refuel on its way to China, where Steinmeier is headed for an official visit. —MNA/Reuters

Sagnol says France can still win the title

BERNE, 13 June — France are still contenders to win Euro 2008 despite a dismal start against Romania that produced no goals, fullback Willy Sagnol said on Thursday.

“It would have been better to beat Romania but we have a goal which is to go all the way and that still stands,” Sagnol told a news conference the day before France face Netherlands.

The confident Dutch started with a 3-0 demolition of world champions Italy and Sagnol.

“It will be difficult but we knew that from the start,” he added.

France, now facing a struggle to survive a tough Group C, can turn to recent history for inspiration, having started their 2006 World Cup campaign with a dull 0-0 draw with Switzerland.

“We’re used to sluggish starts at major tournaments,” Sagnol said, without mentioning that in Germany, France next faced South Korea and Togo rather than Netherlands and Italy here.

He also believes the other two heavyweights in the group would find it hard against Romania, who played defensively against France. —MNA/Reuters

Argentina coach Basile unimpressed by Euro 2008

BUENOS AIRES, 13 June — Argentina coach Alfio Basile has not been impressed by Euro 2008.

“I don’t like the European championship,” he told a news conference on Thursday.

“As always, the Europeans play firstly to qualify. I don’t have a favourite but I always believe in the major powers.

“Spain had a good win but they don’t have the history which Germany and Italy have.”

Basile, whose team face Ecuador in a World Cup qualifier on Sunday and visit Brazil three days later, said he would not be fooled by Brazil’s 2-0 friendly defeat to Venezuela last Friday.

“It’s not usual for Brazil to play like that, and it was a day when everything went well for Venezuela,” said Basile, who has been on the wrong end of two 3-0 defeats against Brazil since taking over as coach after the 2006 World Cup. —MNA/Reuters

Romania holds Italy to 1-1 draw

Zurich,(Switzerland), 13 June—Gianluigi Buffon saved a late penalty kick by Adrian Mutu, giving Italy a 1-1 draw with Romania on Friday at the European Championship. Daniel Niculae was dragged down in the area by Christian Panucci in the 80th minute. Buffon, a star for Italy’s World Cup champions two years ago, dived left and reached back with his hand to stop Mutu’s shot, and the ball then deflected away off the goalkeeper’s leg.

Mutu had given Romania the lead in the 55th minute off a defensive mistake by Gianluca Zambrotta. Panucci equalized a minute later for Italy following a scramble off a corner kick.—Internet

Players insist Torres incident gone and forgotten

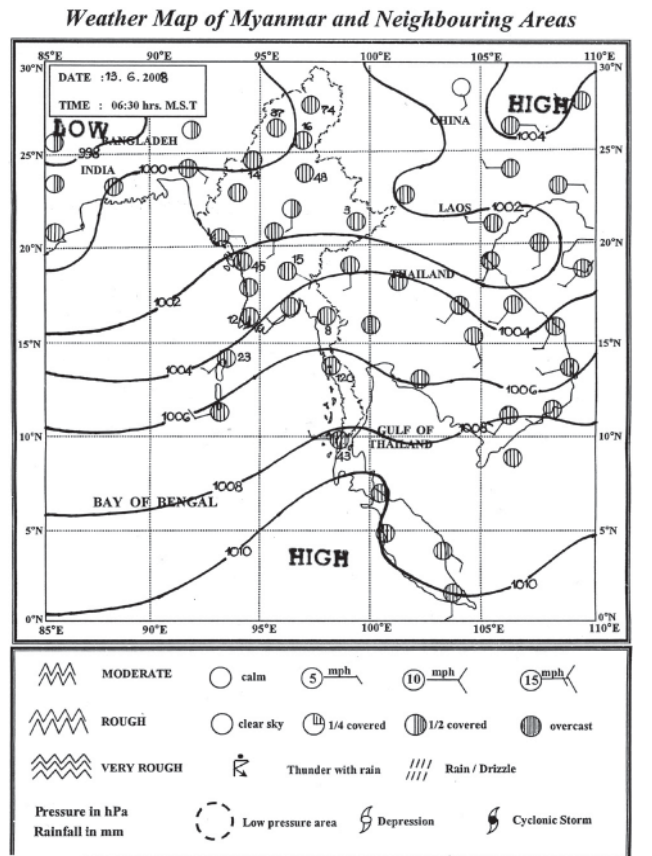

NEUSTIFT (Austria), 13 June — Fernando Torres’s angry reaction after being substituted during Spain’s 4-1 win over Russia will do nothing to undermine morale in the Spain camp, players said on Thursday.

Spain coach Luis Aragones went to shake Torres’s hand after taking him off early in the second half of the Group D game in Innsbruck on Tuesday, but the striker ignored him as he walked off to be replaced by Cesc Fabregas. “Why destroy everything we’ve done by worrying about a small detail,” defender Joan Capdevila told a news conference. It is past now and we have to look ahead. We need to look at positive things not the negative. —MNA/Reuters
