Revive and preserve Myanmar cultural performing arts

Having existed for thousands of years, Myanmar's traditional cultural performing arts embody the nation's traditions and customs that thoroughly cover 'shame and fear to commit sins' and 'the four cardinal virtues'.

Now, the government is preserving and promoting national culture in its bid to improve the image of the nation and the people, while uplifting national prestige and integrity and preserving and safeguarding cultural heritage and national character.

Myanmar traditional cultural performing arts competitions play a leading role in laying down and implementing those work programmes. The Myanmar Traditional Cultural Performing Arts Competitions are held every year, and the 16th competitions will take place this year.

Yearly holding of the competitions has helped revive and promote Myanmar's drama, marionette and performing arts. Contestants from various states and divisions have good opportunities to get together in a cordial way during the period of competitions, and that enhances patriotic spirit that is based on national unity.

Alien music, songs, dances and customs are now penetrating national culture. Myanmar traditions and cultural arts are only forces with which the nation is resistant enough to the threats posed by the decadent culture. So, the entire people including artistes have to strongly equip themselves with nationalistic fervour and patriotic spirit.

The onus is, therefore, on the competitors to the 16th Myanmar Traditional Cultural Performing Arts Competitions to continue to preserve and promote traditions, culture and customs, while revitalizing cultural performing arts to their utmost in the competitions.

Obama sets stage for trip with major Iraq speech

WASHINGTON, 15 July—Barack Obama is setting the stage for his upcoming visit to Iraq with a high-profile explanation of his opposition to the war there and his pledge to complete a US troop pullout within 16 months of becoming president.

In a major speech Tuesday, the Democrat will explain how missteps in Iraq have hurt efforts to strengthen US security, aides said. He will also discuss his proposal to add two new brigades in nearby Afghanistan, as well as call for Pakistan to step up its own efforts dealing with terrorists.

In addition, the speech will discuss Obama's belief in the need for diplomacy to address Iran's nuclear programme, while addressing other global challenges such as climate change and energy security, the aides said.

Later in the day, Obama will conduct a series of television interviews to bolster his remarks.

The flurry of activity comes a day after an Obama op-ed piece in the New York Times that called for the additional Afghanistan brigades and argued the US faces a growing threat from a resurgent al-Qaida in Afghanistan.

His Republican rival, John McCain, also planned an address Thursday focused on Afghanistan. Nine US soldiers were killed and 14 injured in a militant attack Sunday, the military's highest death toll there in three years.

US military deaths in Iraq war at 4,119

WASHINGTON, 15 July—As of Monday, 14 July, 2008, at least 4,119 members of the US military have died in the Iraq war since it began in March 2003, according to an Associated Press count.

The figure includes eight military civilians killed in action. At least 3,357 died as a result of hostile action, according to the military's numbers.

The AP count is two fewer than the Defence Department's tally, last updated Monday at 10 am EDT.

The British military has reported 176 deaths; Italy, 33; Ukraine, 18; Poland, 21; Bulgaria, 13; Spain, 11; Denmark, seven; El Salvador, five; Slovakia, four; Latvia and Georgia, three each; Estonia, Netherlands, Thailand, Romania, two each; and Australia, Hungary, Kazakhstan, South Korea, one death each.—Internet

Strong quake strikes Greek island, one killed

ATHENS, (Greece), 15 July—A strong earthquake struck the Greek island of Rhodes early Tuesday, killing a woman who slipped trying to flee her home, local authorities said.

No major damage was reported to any of the island's buildings by the quake, which the Athens Geodynamic Institute said had a preliminary magnitude of 6.3.

The quake struck at 6:26 am Tuesday about 275 miles southeast of Athens, beneath the seabed south of Rhodes, the Geodynamic Institute said.

Residents and tourists fled their homes and hotels in panic. Dodecanese prefect Yiannis Mahairides said on Antenna radio that one woman died of head injuries when she tripped and fell on a staircase in her home in a village on Rhodes.

The US Geological Survey gave the magnitude as 6.4. Magnitudes often differ in the first hours and days after an earthquake.

Greece is one of the most seismically active countries in the world, but most of the quakes do not cause damage or injuries.

On 8 June, a 6.5-magnitude quake struck near the western port city of Patras, about 120 miles west of Athens, damaging hundreds of buildings and injuring more than 200 people. In 1999, a magnitude 5.9 quake near Athens killed 143 people.—Internet

Gunmen slay another aid agent in Somalia

NAIROBI (Kenya), 15 July — Gunmen in Somalia have shot dead an agent for a World Food Program transport company, the U.N. agency said Tuesday.

The incident, which occurred Sunday, was the fifth killing in Somalia of a staffer for a WFP-contracted trucking company this year.

Violence and chaos persist in the drought-stricken and war-wracked African nation, and there have been kidnappings and attacks on aid workers in recent weeks. The WFP said that members of a militia in the southern town of Buale killed the agent in a "local dispute." Militia members often demand payment from truckers carrying humanitarian assistance, the humanitarian agency said.

China 'could reach moon by 2020'

BEIJING, 15 July—China is capable of sending a manned mission to the Moon within the next decade, if it so wishes, Nasa administrator Michael Griffin has said.

The US space agency plans to return people to the lunar surface by 2020 using its new Orion spacecraft.

But it is just possible the first people on the Moon since the Apollo 17 mission in 1972 could be planting a flag with five stars, not 50. In 2003, China became only the third country to launch a person into orbit. Dr Griffin said: "Certainly it is possible that if China wants to put people on the Moon, and if it wishes to do so before the United States, it certainly can. As a matter of technical capability, it absolutely can."

Walker earlier pleaded guilty to two charges of accessing a computer for dishonest purpose, two charges of accessing computer systems without authorization, one of damaging or interfering with computer systems and one of possessing software for committing crime.

Bombers kill Iraq army recruits

Baqubqa, (Iraq), 15 July—At least 35 people have been killed and more than 50 injured in a double suicide bombing north of the Iraqi capital, Baghdad, army sources say.

The two attackers mingled with a crowd of would-be recruits at an army base in the city of Baquba and then blew themselves up simultaneously, they say.

Baquba, 60km (35 miles) from Baghdad, is the capital of Diyala province - one of the most dangerous parts of Iraq.

Violence in Iraq is at its lowest level since 2004, but frequent attacks continue throughout the country.

Iraqi army sources said the bombers - one dressed in an Iraqi military uniform, the other in civilian clothing - mingled with the crowds of young recruits before blowing themselves up.

Thousands of army

recruits have been killed by insurgents in similar attacks across Iraq in recent years.

Israel approves Hezbollah prisoner swap

JERUSALEM, 15 July — Israel's Cabinet gave final approval Tuesday morning for a prisoner swap with Hezbollah which has been set for Wednesday, the government said.

Although the Israeli government described this as a prisoner swap, many Israelis expect it to be an exchange of the bodies of two Israeli soldiers held by Hezbollah for five live prisoners held by Israel and the corpses of dozens of "infiltrators and terrorists" now in Israeli custody.

Under the exchange with the Lebanese Shiite Muslim militia, Hezbollah prisoners, including convicted murderer Sami Kuntar, would be traded for two kidnapped Israeli soldiers abducted in 2006 and presumed dead.

The abduction of those soldiers, Ehud Goldwasser and Eldad Regev sparked the 34-day war between Israel and Hezbollah two years ago.

Part of the agreement is a report from Hezbollah on the status of long-missing Israeli airman Ron Arad. That report was released recently, but Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert described it Monday as "absolutely unsatisfactory."

Although Israel's Cabinet approved the outline of the prisoner swap two weeks ago, it waited until it could review the Ron Arad report before granting final approval.

Tropical storm "Elida" moves away from Mexico

MEXICO CITY, 15 July — Tropical Storm Elida moved farther away from Mexico's Pacific coast on Sunday afternoon but it could still become a hurricane later this week, the US National Hurricane Centre said.

Earlier on Sunday, the Miami-based centre had said Elida could become a hurricane on Monday morning.

The fifth tropical storm of the 2008 season was located 245 miles (395 kilometres) south-southwest of the tourist city and port of Manzanillo and some 585 miles (945 kilometres) south-southeast of the tip of the Baja California peninsula.

The storm's maximum sustained winds remained at 65 miles per hours (100 kilometres per hour) with higher gusts. Elida was moving away from land in a west-northwest direction at about 14 miles per hour (22 kilometres per hour).

"Elida could still become a hurricane before it reaches cooler waters in a couple days," the NHC said.

Mexico's national weather service issued a heavy rain and high surf warning for the states of Jalisco, Colima and Michoacan and said the storm could pose a moderate risk to their coasts. —MNA/Reuters

Singaporean children get less sleep than those in West

SINGAPORE, 16 July — About 45 per cent of Singaporean parents think their children are not getting enough sleep, higher than the 26 per cent of parents from Western countries, said a new study in Monday's English daily The Straits Times.

The Asia-Pacific Paediatric Sleep Alliance surveyed the guardians of more than 30,000 infants and toddlers up to three years old worldwide.

The survey found that Singaporean parents are around the Asian average when it comes to fretting over things like snoring and night-time waking, said The Straits Times.

The average bedtime for a Singaporean toddler is 9:45 pm, while it is about 8:30 pm in the West, said the study. "We don't really know why Asian children sleep less," Dr Daniel Goh, who co-authored the study, was quoted as saying.

Culturally, it may be the norm for Asians to stay up later and work later than people in Western countries, he said.

Fatah agrees ceasefire only to respect Abbas' request

GAZA, 15 July — An armed wing of Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas' Fatah movement on Sunday said it is committed to Hamas-Israel ceasefire because President Abbas supports it.

"Our commitment to the lull was only to respect what the head of the Palestinian legitimacy, President Mahmoud Abbas, announced," al-Aqsa Martyrs Brigades said in a statement sent to the media.

Al-Aqsa Brigades violated the Egyptian-brokered ceasefire on several occasions after the lull took effect between Hamas and Israel in Gaza Strip on 19 June.

"We have never been parts of the (ceasefire) deal," al-Aqsa Brigades explained in the statement, which said that the armed wing fired rockets at Israel to respond to Israeli Army actions in West Bank which is not included in the six-month agreement.

Hamas arrested a number of the ceasefire violators linked to Fatah and al-Aqsa Martyrs Brigades who said they "reject the extortion and crackdown against its members and leaders" in Gaza. The ceasefire is designated to halt Palestinian rocket attacks on Israel from Gaza, and in return, Israel has to open commercial crossings into the Hamas-controlled region.

Mongolia confirms MPRP wins majority in parliament

ULAN BATOR, 15 July — Mongolia's election commission confirmed on Monday that the ruling Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party (MPRP) had won a clear majority in Parliament in a 29 June vote, where fraud allegations had led to violence.

The MPRP won 39 seats in the 76-seat Great Hural, with 25 seats going to the main opposition Democratic Party and two to smaller parties.

The results for the remaining 10 seats were in dispute and would be recounted, the commission said. The 10 seats are in three constituencies, though Parliament can meet with only three-quarters of seats filled, according to Mongolian law. "We have introduced 66 seats to the President and we have told him there are three constituencies in dispute for which we have no final result," said election commission chief Batgulga.

He added that of the three constituencies, recounts are underway in two, and in one there is a police probe, though he gave no details and did not say how long the recounts would take.

Gifted education more important in globalized world

SINGAPORE, 15 July—Singapore's Education Minister Ng Eng Hen on Monday said it is becoming more important to develop gifted and talented students in the globalized world.

Speaking at the opening of a biyearly Asia-Pacific conference on giftedness, he said history reminds us repeatedly that the actions and ideas of a select few can have an enormous impact on millions, and they are the ones who can help produce breakthrough solutions to many problems in a fast changing and complex world.

"In today's innovation-driven economy, nations worldwide and regardless of political orientation have recognized the need to put into place specialized programmes to systematically nurture their best young minds," he said.

The minister also said the gifted education programme (GEP) retains an important place in the Singapore education system. This programme was introduced 25 years ago to cater to the intellectually gifted students in Singapore.

"For Singapore, where human capital is our most precious resource, we need every Singaporean to find his or her talents from a young age, and develop them as far as possible," he said.

Media under colonialists' influence, incapable of undermining Myanmar's nationalistic fervour (1)

Tekkatho Myat Thu

News is an event that has happened recently. In this regard, the event must be the one that has taken place recently, that is not known to the people yet, and that the people should know. If so, such news has all characters a news story must have.

News stories, good or bad, take place one after another locally and globally at all time. Anyhow, news sense is essential for human beings. Such affairs as survival, development, and upgrading of towns and villages, and security and peace are based on news sense.

Researchers carry out innovations based on the inventions and innovations of others. In that way, the standards of the world's education, innovations and culture are improving gradually. So, news and information is essential for intellectual nourishment of man.

In early history, human beings relied on stories that were passed from one person to another orally for news and information. Man sent information from one to another by burning a heap of dry leaves to indicate the location, composing songs in combination with facts about information, and using birds.

Needs on news led to literature, printing and paper-making methods, followed by newspapers. China in the eastern hemisphere and Europe in the western hemisphere of the world are the regions that used newspapers first in the world. Today, every country publishes newspapers with the use of modern offset printing presses, and sends news through mass media such as radio, television and Internet. Thanks to satellites, a part of the world can know all the news that happens in any other part. So, today is called IT Age as well as ICT Age.

The world has a long history about news and newspaper. All that long history cannot be explained at one sitting. I would like to present some salient points in this regard. In the past, world famous journalists respected the code of press ethics: inserted stories are to be factually accurate, and no facts are to be willfully distorted. Therefore, today's bona fide media are to report authentic news stories without any bias and blackouts.

There were lots of partialities in collecting and reporting news in the world. Some journalists came to distort news stories and indoctrinate world people. When a scientist or expert discovered a new science or technology or invented a new machine, covetous and rapacious persons abused the discoveries, instead of serving the interests of mankind. So, the discovery of atomic energy led to production of atomic bombs and nuclear bombs, and killing and threatening world people. For example, the US dropped two atomic bombs: one on Hiroshima on 6 August and another on Nagasaki on 9 August 1945, thereby killing about 400,000 people. There have been many evidences on attacks launched with the use of chemical weapons and biological weapons.

A journalist can gain merits by reporting news as it really is. If he distorts the news story to indoctrinate the readers, it is a demerit. So, news should not be misused. There is nothing more ignoble than the abuse of news for self-interests. And such a case is not the work of civilized persons.

There have been many events in which news was distorted. For instance, in the World War II, German dictator Hitler misused media (periodicals and radio) to defeat his enemy countries (the Allies such as US, Britain and France) while occupying old colonies of the colonizers with the intention of colonizing the whole world. He indoctrinated the servicemen, governments and peoples of the Allies by giving true news stories first, then distorted news.

After the World War II, there broke out the Cold War between the Socialist (Leftist) Bloc, known as the East Bloc led by the Soviet Union and the Capitalist (Colonialists) (Rightist) Bloc known as the West Bloc led by the US. Throughout the Cold War period, the West Bloc especially the US applied media weapons. Today, the world has seen abuse of media for hegemony, interfering in and manipulating internal affairs of other countries, and exploiting the situations, more than ever.

Due to the inventions of scientists, the world started to enjoy radio services. Songs were broadcast to entertain the people. Then, educative programmes were broadcast to educate the people. And then, interesting news stories including weather reports were broadcast to inform the people.

Later, greedy persons started to misuse radio services in the economic, military and political sectors. A high-ranking official J Hay who had served for many years in Scotland Yard of Britain after his retirement became an adviser to the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC). Working there, he came to notice the vast atmosphere and popularity of broadcasting enterprise. So, he made a written remark that radio broadcasting service was effective; that it was easy to enter the airwaves of various regions and countries of the world without any visa; that the airspaces of any countries could be entered without restriction to ingress or egress; that any news stories could be known to the whole world; and that so radio broadcasting service had to be used as a political weapon. Since then, western media have become political, economic and military weapons rather than media machinery.

A Myanmar delegation led by Major-General Aung San held a meeting with British Prime Minister Attlee in London in the end of 1946 for independence. After Aung San-Attlee Agreement was reached, Major-General Aung San wanted to inform the reaching of the agreement to Myanmar as soon as possible. At that time, there was no satellite communication system or London-Yangon direct flight. He tried to send a message of good news to the people through BBC. With great pleasure, Myanmar nationals U Tin Maung and U Khin who at that time were serving for BBC took the message. However, authorities of BBC cut some sentences from the message and asked him to add some points to it. So, he flew into rage and the message was not broadcast in the end. Since pre-independence period, Myanmar and BBC have not got along with each other.

BBC, VOA, and other media incited internal armed struggle line, local riots, nationalist Chinese troops' invasion of Myanmar, insurgency of national expatriates, and 1988 unrest and are disrupting Myanmar's efforts for transition to democracy. It is known to all, so I do not want to present those incidents in detail.

Syria's Assad says Israel peace possible within two yrs

PARIS, 15 July— Syrian President Bashar al-Assad said it could take between six months to two years to reach a peace agreement with Israel if the two sides, who have held indirect negotiations, agreed to face-to-face talks.

“Signing a peace accord with Israel ... it’s a question that requires six months to two years maximum if both parties are serious in engaging direct talks,” Assad said on Sunday, speaking through a translator on France 2 television.

The Syrian President, who is in France for a summit of EU and Mediterranean leaders, also repeated a previous assertion that he did not believe direct talks could start until US President George W Bush left office next January.

It was not immediately clear if the clock for his timeframe for a possible deal would only start once the face-to-face talks began and Israel urged Syria on Sunday not to drag its feet.

“We are serious about peace. It would be a pity to let the current opportunity fall by the wayside,” a spokesman for Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert said when asked about Assad’s television interview.

He added that Olmert had conveyed a message to the Syrian leader earlier in the day through Turkish Prime Minister Tayyip Erdogan and said now was the time to move. —MNA/Reuters

Chavez says oil could reach $300

MARACAIBO, 15 July— Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez said on Sunday oil prices could hit 300 US dollars per barrel if US oil company Exxon Mobil again freezes Venezuelan assets in a dispute over a nationalized oil project.

Exxon won court orders freezing 12 billion US dollars in assets held by Venezuelan state oil company PDVSA after the OPEC nation took over a multi-billion dollar oil project, heightening tensions with the United States and helping to raise oil prices.

A London court later overturned Exxon’s temporary asset freeze, but Chavez said the company could seek further action against Venezuela.

“If they freeze us there will be no more oil for the United States, and the price will go to 300 US dollars,” Chavez said during a televised meeting with Caribbean and Central American leaders as part of an energy cooperation scheme called Petrocaribe.

Chavez also said oil prices were being influenced by a “speculative bubble”, the collapse of which could send prices as low as 70 US dollars per barrel.

World economy between recession and inflation

YALTA (Ukraine), 15 July — The world economy remains stuck “between the ice of recession and the fire of inflation”, IMF Managing Director Dominique Strauss-Kahn said on Friday.

Strauss-Kahn, addressing a conference in Ukraine’s Black Sea resort of Yalta, said the world financial market crisis was largely over, though its consequences would be felt for some time to come.

Emerging market economies, he said, were experiencing good growth, though inflation, linked to high oil and food prices, remained a serious problem.

“The biggest part of the crisis is probably behind us,” Strauss-Kahn said.

“Some parts could be still in front of us. The economic consequences of the crisis are obviously in front of us.”

He described the world response to the crisis as “broadly adequate. The central banks collaborated well together and finally they solved the question that avoided a crisis.” But conditions in the world economy remained troubling.

Earlier this week police charged Nigel Edward Farmer, 33, with the two murders, as well as arson and attempting to pervert the course of justice. Another man and a woman have also been arrested and freed on bail but were not charged.

Limit oil price or face more nuclear power

PARIS, 15 July — Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi said on Sunday oil-consuming countries should meet to fix a maximum price they are prepared to pay for oil, warning otherwise they would have to invest heavily in nuclear power.

Denouncing the “unfair” movement of wealth from consumer nations to oil-producing countries and the “exponential” rise in prices, Berlusconi issued what he said was a threat to oil exporters, saying his proposal for a meeting had the approval of British Prime Minister Gordon Brown. “Consumer countries need to meet as soon as possible, maybe in London, to reach an agreement on a maximum price for oil which cannot be breached,” Berlusconi told reporters after a summit of EU and Mediterranean leaders.

“Alternatively, we will need a massive building programme of nuclear power reactors,” he added. Italy halted its nuclear energy programme following the 1986 Chernobyl disaster.

Yahoo rejects joint Microsoft, Icahn proposal

SAN FRANCISCO, 15 July — Yahoo Inc said on Saturday it has rejected a joint proposal from Microsoft Corp and activist investor Carl Icahn that would have involved selling its search business to the software maker.

Yahoo said it received the proposal “for a complex restructuring” on Friday evening and was given less than 24 hours to accept.

It also said Microsoft and Icahn had made clear they were unwilling to negotiate the fundamental terms.

The Web company, which has been embroiled in on-again, off-again deal talks with Microsoft for six months, said the latest offer was not in the best interest of its shareholders as it carries less financial value and more risk than Yahoo’s current search advertising deal with Google Inc.

Yahoo had signed the deal with Google in June after rejecting an alternative offer from Microsoft to buy Yahoo’s search business and take a minority stake in the company.

The Microsoft/Icahn proposal would also preclude a potential sale of all of Yahoo “for a full and fair price, including a control premium”, Yahoo said in a statement.

“Working with one’s own hands in a real-world 3-D environment is imperative for full cognitive and intellectual development,” said the report’s author Dr Aric Sigman. “Research is showing that increasing time spent in the virtual world of computers is displacing hands-on play and hands-on learning.”

Teenager Del Potro wins maiden title in Stuttgart

STUTTGART, 15 July— Unseeded Argentine teenager Juan Martin del Potro upset French second seed Richard Gasquet 6-4, 7-5 to win the Stuttgart Cup claycourt event on Sunday.

The towering 1.95-metre tall world number 65 benefited from some erratic play by the French number one to deservedly clinch his first ATP title.

"I always dreamed as a young boy of winning a tournament, and now I've done it it's just unbelievable," Del Potro, 19, said in an on-court interview.

"I knew I had to serve well to win, and now I can just enjoy it."

Del Potro showed resilience and steady nerves in both sets.

After breaking Gasquet early on in each, he was pulled back to level terms in the subsequent games.

Rather than folding, he responded with further decisive breaks against the world number 15 in the penultimate game of each set, serving out to love at the end of the second to wrap up his win.

McDowell cruises to victory at Scottish Open

LOCH LOMOND (Scotland), 15 July — Graeme McDowell warmed up in style for Thursday's British Open by securing a two-shot victory at the Scottish Open, his second European Tour triumph of the season.

The 28-year-old from Northern Ireland fired a closing 68 for a 13-under tally of 271, with Sunday's first prize of 500,000 pounds (1 million US dollars) all but clinching his place in the Ryder Cup team to face the US in Valhalla, Kentucky in September.

South African James Kingston (66) was second on 273, one ahead of order of merit leader Miguel Angel Jimenez (69) of Spain and Australian left-hander Richard Green (69).

Briton Simon Khan (72), the joint overnight leader with McDowell, claimed the penultimate qualifying spot for the British Open at Royal Birkdale by finishing fifth on 275.

"It's a massive relief for me," McDowell told the BBC. "I have never stood on the 72nd tee holding a two-shot lead before. "I don't think I have ever shaken so much in my life coming down the stretch.

Robredo beats injured Berdych to claim Swedish title

BASTAD (Sweden), 15 July— Spaniard Tommy Robredo won the second Swedish Open title of his career on Sunday, easily beating Tomas Berdych 6-4, 6-1 after the Czech hurt his knee midway through the opening set.

It was the seventh title for the third-seeded 26-year-old, who beat Russian Nikolay Davydenko in the final two years ago when he reached a career-high fifth in the world rankings.

"In 2006, I had the best year of my life. This year, I didn't play well at the beginning of the season, so I think this win is more important," said Robredo, who has slipped out of the top 10 and is currently ranked 17th in the world.

"I was a bit lucky today because Tomas Berdych hurt his knee. Still, I'm happy because I've had a great week."

The pair were evenly matched until fourth-seeded Berdych injured himself when he broke back to 3-3 in the first set and took a time-out to have his knee taped.

Mickelson feels ready to launch British Open title push

LOCH LOMOND (Scotland), 15 July 14 — World number two Phil Mickelson said he felt ready to launch his British Open title challenge at Royal Birkdale on Thursday despite finishing down the field at the Scottish Open.

The American left-hander was unable to take advantage of calm, sunny conditions in Sunday's final round at Loch Lomond, returning a two-over 73 for a two-under aggregate of 282.

"I had a great week this week even though I didn't play the way I wanted," Mickelson told reporters. "I got acclimatized to the time, my body feels good and I had three good days (of practice) at Birkdale before this tournament started.

"This has given me an opportunity to look at my strengths and weaknesses, work on them and see if I can put it all together for the Open." —MNA/Reuters

Juventus complete Poulsen signing

MILAN, 15 July — Juventus have completed the signing of Sevilla midfielder Christian Poulsen, the Italian club said on Monday.

The Denmark international, 28, has moved for 9.75 million euros (15.32 million US dollars) and penned a four-year deal, the club said in a statement. Juve, who enter the Champions League qualifiers next month after finishing third in Serie A last term, have been seeking a new midfielder throughout the close-season.

Poulsen's arrival means it is less likely Liverpool's Xabi Alonso will be moving to Turin while a deal for Inter Milan midfielder Dejan Stankovic also looks dead. Juve fans do not like signing players from bitter rivals Inter and there was anger from some supporters when news leaked of their club's interest in Stankovic.

UAE shooter takes aim at "wasteful" sports chiefs

DUBAI, 15 July— The United Arab Emirates' only Olympic medalist has taken a shot at the country's sports bosses for wasting the legacy of his gold at the Athens Games.

Sheikh Ahmed Al Maktoum, the double trap gold medallist in 2004, is furious at the country's shooting federation for doing nothing to help the UAE's marksmen to become future champions.

"After seven long years of hard work, I brought glory to my country in Athens and then they just threw the medal away," said Sheikh Ahmed, who has come out of retirement in a bid to retain his title at next month's Beijing Olympics. —MNA/Reuters

First Guantanamo video released

LONDON, 15 July—A videotape of a detainee being questioned at the US prison camp in Guantanamo Bay has been released for the first time.

It shows 16-year-old Omar Khadr being asked by Canadian officials in 2003 about events leading up to his capture by US forces, Canadian media have said.

The Canadian citizen is accused of throwing a grenade that killed a US soldier in Afghanistan in 2002. He is seen in a distressed state and complaining about the medical care.

The footage was made public by Mr Khadr's lawyers following a Supreme Court ruling in May that the Canadian authorities had to hand over key evidence against him to allow a full defence of the charges he is facing.

One of those lawyers, Dennis Edney, said that his client was seen in a distressed state because he had been "abused" by his American guards.

Mr Khadr, the only Westerner still held at the jail, was 15 when he was captured by US forces during a gun battle at a suspected al-Qaeda camp in Afghanistan.

During the 10-minute video of his questioning in Guantanamo a year later, he can be seen crying, his face buried in his hands, and pulling at his hair. He can be heard repeatedly chanting: "Help me."

The science behind the Aug 1 solar eclipse

NASA, 15 July—A total solar eclipse Aug 1 will be seen only by a handful of observers lucky enough to be in the path, which starts in Canada and runs across the Arctic, through Russia and into China.

For those select few, day will turn to night, the stars will come out (weather permitting), and the moon's blackout of the sun will provide a dazzling visual spectacle that skywatchers will never forget.

The celestial alignment will create a partial eclipse visible across a broader area, including the far northeastern corner of North America and most of Europe and Asia. Many people go a lifetime never witnessing a total solar eclipse.
