High education standard, key to national development

At the core of the plan to enable the nation to catch up with other global family members lies development of human resources. With this concept, the government is working hard to create good educational spheres to produce more and more human resources.

Achievement of the education plans and goals under way for charting a prosperous future of the nation rest on those engaging in the education field. Among the aspects of schoolteachers' jobs is to improve the students' technological skills and reasoning power.

Now, the government is paving the way to a peaceful, modern and developed democratic nation with flourishing discipline. The State Constitution, which serves as the foundation of the future nation, has been adopted with the approval of the majority of the people.

Development projects are now in progress to build economic, education, health and social infrastructures, and considerable success has been achieved in various sectors, as a result. A large number of new roads, bridges and dams are a testament to the efforts the government, the people and the Tatmadaw have made in harness for national development.

It is required to make sustained endeavours to maintain the already-built political, economic and social infrastructures, and sharpen the abilities of younger generations into a national force capable of taking over duties to develop the nation in future.

National economic growth relies on the education standard and innovative power of the people. It is, thus, believed that national development tasks can be expedited with a growing number of human resources.

Iran says it won't halt nuclear work, talks to EU

TEHERAN, 5 Aug—Iran and the representative of six world powers talked by telephone on Monday without resolving a row over Tehran's sensitive nuclear work, which the Islamic Republic said would not be stopped.

A European Union official said the telephone call was "not conclusive" and Washington said it expected a written response from Tehran on Tuesday, warning of more sanctions unless it was "positive."

Western officials had set an informal deadline of last Saturday for Teheran to respond to the offer by the powers to refrain from steps to impose more UN sanctions, if Iran froze expansion of its nuclear work.

Iran dismissed the deadline set by Western capitals. Before the call between Iran's chief atomic negotiator Saeed Jalili and European Union foreign policy chief Javier Solana, an Iranian official said Iran would not discuss a freeze.

The West fears Iran aims to build nuclear warheads under cover of a civilian programme, a charge Teheran denies.

In comments likely to stoke tension, Iran's Revolutionary Guards chief said the Islamic Republic had the ability to close the Strait of Hormuz, a vital oil shipping route, if attacked. The Guards also said they had tested a new naval weapon.

Israel's Barak predicts more strikes on Gaza

Israeli Defence Minister Ehud Barak.

JERUSALEM, 5 Aug—Israeli Defence Minister Ehud Barak said Israel will go back to carrying out military strikes on the Hamas-ruled Gaza Strip despite a month-old truce, Army radio reported on Tuesday.

"Those who miss the operations in the Gaza Strip, don't worry, they will come," Barak told a Labour party event in Jerusalem, without elaborating.

In June, Israel agreed to an Egyptianbrokered truce with Palestinian militants in Gaza that has mostly halted the near daily rocket and mortar attacks launched from the impoverished territory on southern Israel.

But Israeli officials remain wary of the deal and suspect Gaza's Hamas rulers and other armed groups are using the calm to train and rearm with weapons smuggled through a vast network of tunnels under the border with Egypt.

Israel had also said the truce depended on progress in releasing Gilad Shalit, an Israeli corporal seized by Gaza militants in a deadly cross-border raid on 25 June, 2006. Israel's Army chief said on Monday that the military knows Shalit's location and the identity of those holding him, raising the possibility that Israel could seek to extract him through military means.

Israeli officials have in the past ruled out such an option, saying that his exact location was unclear and that such an operation would be extremely risky.

South American leaders mull transportation plan

BUENOS AIRES (Argentina), 5 Aug—The presidents of Argentina, Brazil and Venezuela on Monday discussed creating a regional airline and train network as a way to better integrate their nations.

Argentina's ambassador to Venezuela, Alicia Castro, said that besides an alliance of airlines, the leaders were also considering "a dream that today appears utopian" of a railway stretching from Caracas to Buenos Aires.

Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez joined Brazil's Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva and Argentine President Cristina Fernandez on Monday at a business seminar in Buenos Aires.

Chavez told reporters at the airport that the three countries have emerged as an "axis of the South" capable of countering Europe and the US, and able to help meet the world's rising demand for food. Castro says the idea of a transportation network emerged at the meeting as a possible way to build stronger regional ties.—Internet

Helicopters ready for new rescue attempt on K2

ISLAMABAD (Pakistan), 5 Aug—Helicopter pilots were waiting for thick clouds to clear Tuesday before attempting to rescue an Italian mountaineer stranded on K2 after he survived an avalanche and exposure that left 11 other climbers presumed dead.

Mountaineer Marco Confortola, who reached the summit of the world's second-highest mountain on Friday before the avalanche struck, has climbed down with feet blackened by frostbite to the relative safety of Camp 1 at 19,000 feet.

Confortola reached the camp with the assistance of two Nepalese sherpas and an American climber, Roberto Manni, an alpine guide at base camp, told Italy's SKY TG 24 TV late Monday.

"He's rehydrating, he's eating a little and getting some oxygen," said Agostino Da Polenza of Everest-K2-CNR, an Italy-based high-altitude scientific research group that is helping with the rescue effort.

China's Wahaha wins court victory in trademark dispute

SHANGHAI, 5 Aug—A Chinese court has ruled that China's largest soft drink maker is the owner of the Wahaha trademark, ruling against France's Danone, the Chinese company's former partner, the companies said Tuesday.

The Wahaha Group was the rightful owner of the brand name, the Hangzhou Intermediate People's Court said in a ruling dated 30 July, that endorsed an arbitration decision from December, Wahaha said in a statement.

"The dispute over the ownership of the Wahaha brand, which lasted more than one year, was finally settled and it was affirmed that Wahaha brand belongs to Wahaha," the Chinese drink maker said in a statement.

However, Danone plans to pursue the case at a higher court, Danone spokesman Michael Chu said in a statement.

"Danone will continue to pursue all legal options to protect its contractual rights and financial interests," the company said.

The firms have been locked in a protracted and bitter feud over the ownership of the Wahaha brand name.

The dispute involved a series of joint venture firms once lauded as a model of Sino-foreign cooperation.

Nissan cars to push back when drivers floor it

TOKYO, 5 Aug—Nissan Motor Co will soon sell cars that push back when drivers try to put the pedal to the metal. It has also developed a test model packed with additional sensor technology to make vehicles crash-free.

The features unveiled this week by Nissan Motor Co are the latest among recent efforts by the world's automakers to vamp up their images.

Nissan's collision-free prototype has sensors at its back and side that turn on alarms and brakes to help avoid collisions.

The system also helps the vehicle maintain a safe distance with the car in front, as well as preventing it from veering off its lane, Nissan said Tuesday.

Nissan has said it hopes to halve the number of traffic accidents or serious injuries involving Nissan vehicles in Japan by 2015 compared to 1995 levels.

Nissan's "ECO Pedal" system — promoted as being both green and safe — makes the gas pedal press upward when it senses motorists are speeding up too quickly.

Nissan said in a news release Monday the system, which will be available next year, can help drivers improve fuel efficiency 5 to 10 percent.

The system calculates the most efficient rate of acceleration in a vehicle based on how fast fuel is being burned and other factors and causes the gas pedal to push back to alert overzealous drivers.

Wang said trade between the two nations grew from 150 million dollars in 2003 to 614 million dollars in 2007, thanks to the joint efforts of the customs from both countries.

From January to May in 2008, the commercial exchanges between the two countries reached 281 million dollars, up over 30 percent compared with the same period in 2007, Wang said.

Sinopec in "takeover" bid for Imperial Energy

BEIJING, 5 Aug—Sinopec, China's largest oil refiner, has launched a bid for the London-listed Imperial Energy as part of its overseas development.

Imperial Energy's board has allowed Sinopec to start due diligence, the Sunday Telegraph reported, without revealing the source. Sinopec is understood to have approached the Russian authorities and been given the approval to carry out a potential takeover, said the British newspaper.

If Sinopec succeeds in buying the $2.5 billion firm, it would be the biggest takeover by a Chinese company of a rival listed on the London market, said the report.

A Sinopec spokesman declined to comment on the report yesterday.

Analysts said the move signified that China, the world's second biggest energy consumer, is marching at a fast pace to enter the Russian energy market. The country will enable China to have better access to oil worldwide.

Imperial Energy has oil blocks in Russia and Kazakhstan. It produced about 10,000 barrels of oil per day in December 2007 and is aiming to raise the production to 80,000 barrels per day by the end of 2011. —Xinhua

New wave of openness a sign of self-confidence

BEIJING, 5 Aug—As the Beijing Olympic Games approaches, the preparations for the world sports gala have intensified and with all these there is an atmosphere of openness.

Things which were previously regarded as taboos are now put in the spotlight for public discussion. On 17 July, the anti-terror bureau of the Ministry of Public Security made public a pamphlet on the prevention of terrorist attacks, guiding people how to detect terror traces, and how to take measures to fend off dangers in case of a terrorist attack.

It also tells people how to carry out simple but necessary self-rescue in an emergency situation.

Behind the popularization of such common knowledge is a remarkable breakthrough the Chinese government has made in its traditional mindset.

The government now realizes that common people should be taught how to prevent terror attacks in case of an emergency, even if the knowledge may never be used in one's lifetime.

Another thing that testifies the country's openness is its permission of the sales of some foreign publications to domestic and foreign readers in the Games venues and dozens of hotels.

Some 18,300 police were on high alert with riot gear and bomb-sniffing dogs to maintain order during Bush's brief visit, the National Police Agency said.

An estimated 20,000 anti-Bush protesters gathered. Police turned water cannons on them as they tried to move onto the main central downtown boulevard, telling the crowd that the liquid contained markers to tag them so they could be identified later.

Pakistani PM says Indian accusations hurt peace process

COLOMBO, 5 Aug—Pakistan’s Prime Minister said there was no evidence linking his country to attacks on India, adding such accusations had hurt the peace process, a report said on Sunday.

Relations between the two sides thawed after a 2004 peace move, but a deep mistrust remains and a series of recent attacks in India and one in Afghanistan have infuriated New Delhi.

Both India and Afghanistan blamed Pakistan’s spy agency for a 7 July attack on India’s Embassy in Kabul in which two Indian diplomats were among 58 people killed, prompting India to say the peace process was “under stress”.

Pakistan Premier Yusuf Raza Gilani’s comments came a day after he promised his Indian counterpart to hold an inquiry into the alleged role of his spy agency in the Kabul attack.

“The Indian statement is not only surprising but shocking too,” Gilani told Sri Lanka’s Sunday Leader newspaper in an interview.

“There were also bombing incidents in Pakistan subsequently, but we have not pointed fingers at anyone as we believe in carrying out investigations before laying responsibility.”

He was referring to a 2006 anti-terrorism mechanism they established to provide a platform for information exchange and assistance in investigations.

China considers giving migrant workers election rights

BEIJING, 5 Aug— China’s State Council, or Cabinet, is considering two law amendments that would allow migrant workers to run for election on to their community committees if they lived in the area long enough.

The action will require amendments to both the Village Committee Organization Law and the Urban Resident Committee Organization Law, and would strengthen the protection of migrant worker rights.

The second revision of the Village Committee Organization Law since 1998 also included clauses on judicial remedy and election bribery, said Wang Jinhua, a senior official with the Ministry of Civil Affairs on Sunday, without giving details.

Now some local regulations allow rural migrant workers the right to run in local committee elections if they had lived in an urban community for more than six months. Wang said China had a floating population of 150 million, and it was increasing by five million every year. “It’s the largest of its kind in the world, almost equal to the entire US electorate.”

The government is seeking to bolster their legal rights by requiring their native villages to inform them of upcoming elections and urban committees to consult them before making decisions that could significantly affect their interests. In addition, migrant workers would have the right to set up their own associations and labour unions and enjoy the same rights as urban residents.— MNA/Xinhua

Vitamin C injections slow tumour growth in mice

WASHINGTON, 5 Aug— High-dose injections of vitamin C, also known as ascorbate or ascorbic acid, reduced tumour weight and growth rate by about 50 percent in mouse models of brain, ovarian, and pancreatic cancers, researchers from the US National Institutes of Health (NIH) report on Monday.

The researchers traced ascorbate’s anti-cancer effect to the formation of hydrogen peroxide in the extracellular fluid surrounding the tumours. Normal cells were unaffected.

These results will appear in the 5 Aug issue of the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

Natural physiologic controls precisely regulate the amount of ascorbate absorbed by the body when it is taken orally.

To bypass these normal controls, NIH scientists injected ascorbate into the veins or abdominal cavities of rodents with aggressive brain, ovarian, and pancreatic tumours.

Iran to fingerprint Westerners in tit-for-tat move

TEHERAN, 5 Aug—Iran will start fingerprinting visitors from the United States, Britain and France, police said on Monday, listing three Western powers that are pressuring Teheran over its disputed nuclear programme.

MDs urged to quit prostate screens in elderly men

NEW YORK, 5 Aug—Doctors should stop routine prostate cancer screening of men over 75 because there is more evidence of harm than benefit, a federal task force advised Monday in a new blow to a much scrutinized medical test.

The US Preventive Services Task Force, which made the recommendation, reported finding evidence that the benefits of treatment based on routine screening of this age group “are small to none.” However, treatment often causes “moderate-to-substantial harms,” including erectile dysfunction and bladder control and bowel problems, the task force said.

The new guidance is the first update by the task force on prostate cancer screening since 2002. The last report on the subject from this panel of experts, which sets the nation’s primary care standards, concluded there was insufficient evidence to recommend prostate screening for men of all ages. In recent years, there has been a growing debate about the value of the somewhat imprecise PSA test to detect cancer, as well as the value of treating most prostate cancers. A number of experts contend patients are being overtreated.

More than 500 fire hot spots in Sumatra

JAKARTA, 5 Aug — More than 500 hot spots have been spotted across Indonesia’s Sumatra Island, signalling the annual dry-season forest fires and the haze it sometimes carries, a Forestry Ministry official said on Monday.

Forestry Ministry official fear the number of hot spots could exceed last year’s record as the current dry season will be marked by less rain than usual, Sonny Partono, the director of forest fire control, told Reuters.

“According to the meteorology agency, this year’s dry season is very dry, not wet like last year. That’s the problem,” Partono said. “Looking at the fluctuation of hot spots, this year could be worse than last.”

Partono said he had recorded 8,000 hot spots since January. Last year’s dry season was wetter than usual, resulting in 35,000 hot spots, down from 144,000 in 2006. In the past, Indonesia’s neighbours have grown increasingly frustrated by the annual fires, most of which are deliberately lit by farmers or timber and palm oil plantation companies to clear land for cultivation.—MNA/Reuters

Britain’s “great rail robber” jailed

LONDON, 5 Aug — A thief who used a crane to steal five lorry-loads of track from one of Britain’s busiest railway lines has been jailed for nearly three years.

Anthony Porretta, 53, masterminded the theft of 171 tons of steel track, worth 83,000 pounds, to sell for scrap. He used a crane to load five trucks with the metal, left by the side of the line during engineering work in the village of Acton Turville, Gloucestershire.

Porretta, from Newport, south Wales, sold it to a scrap dealer in his home town, capitalizing on recent rises in metal prices.

He was sentenced to two years and nine months in jail after pleading guilty to theft at Bristol Crown Court. Charges against four others were dropped.

Police said he could have caused a crash as the track was removed in the early hours of 1 December, 2006.

Three kids among five killed when plane hits home

GEARHART (Ore), 5 Aug — A single-engine plane crashed into a fogbound coastal home where a family was vacationing Monday, killing the two people in the plane and three children on the ground, authorities said.

A woman and two additional children were injured.

City officials in the resort town of Gearhart said pilot Jason Ketchson and passenger Frank Toohey, 58, both from Clatsop County, were aboard the plane that went down before 7 am, apparently hitting a tree during conditions described as foggy with low clouds.

When the plane crashed, six people were in the four-bedroom rental home at Gearhart for a family reunion and vacation, City Administrator Dennis McNally said. A vacant house next door was also damaged.

The owner of the house, Greg Marshall of Portland, told The Oregonian newspaper that the victims arrived Sunday for a planned two-week stay.

The plane, a four-seat Cessna, was owned by a business in nearby Seaside, Aviation Adventures, which had rented it to Ketchson, McNally said.

POEM:

Knot the Closest Tie through Breastfeeding

- * All expectant and new mothers-
Be proud to breastfeed your babies and toddlers
Because it's believed to be the way-best
To ensure their life-long health.
- * Some scientists said breast-fed kids
Get more insulin from their mothers' milk
With a lesser chance to get 'diabetes'
Or any other related disease.
- * A new born baby is an addition to the family
For mothers to bring it up properly
Childhood molding is utterly necessary
Through a lasting relationship gained from breastfeeding.
- * Holding the baby in both arms
Cuddled and being fed in her bosom
With its secured and warm feelings running high
A mother creates the closest tie with her beloved child.
- * For the babies growing on breastfeeding
Those precious moments have a special meaning
Forever to cherish and treasure
Full of tender love, fondling and pleasures.
- * A period of nine months, a little less or more
Many favourite things a pregnant mother has to forgo
For the tiny one inside, looking after herself with great care
Daily praying for the arrival of a baby proper and well.
- * To the pregnancy-care and sacrifice willingly made
Add a new extension she can take;
To breastfeed and get the advantage
Of a mother-child relationship so great.

Dokhtawady Bridge in Hsipaw Township to contribute to flow of commodities and regional development

Article & Photos: Hsipaw Ko Latt

Hsipaw is located on Mandalay-Lashio-Muse Union Highway. Dokhtawady River is flowing in the northeastern and southern parts of Hsipaw. Those wishing to travel to Lashio, Muse and Shan State (South) have to cross the river. Therefore, Dokhtawady Bailey Suspension Bridge was built in 1946. Forty years later on 11 October 1986, the bridge was swept away by raging torrents of the Dokhtawady River. The flood left behind only two brick piers. On 29 October 1986, the bridge was rebuilt by Public Works. With the length of 470 feet and width of 12 feet the bridge can withstand 30-ton loads.

After 1988, the nation has been witnessing swift flow of commodities thanks to the market-oriented economic system. The transport sector plays a pivotal role in the smooth flow of commodities. Various kinds of vehicles carrying commodities from the People's Republic of China and a variety of products from Myanmar pass through the bridge up and down daily. However, the bridge was not designed to bear such a large amount of commodities. Trucks carrying heavy loads often caused damage to the bridge. As a result, minor repairs had to be made frequently.

Beginning February this year, trucks with loads of above 30 tons have to unload their goods at

Asia World toll gate at the entrance to Hsipaw on their way to the border and trucks travelling down the road have to unload their goods at the eastern entrance to Sint-in Bridge in Lashio Township.

From those transit the goods are carried through the bridge bit by bit.

Then, trucks travelling up the road reload their cargo at the place in the eastern end of Sint-in Bridge and the down trucks reload their cargo at the western end of Dokhtawady Bridge.

To have better transportation facilities, the construction of new Hsipaw Dokhtawady Bridge started on 2 May 2008. It is being conducted by Asia World Co Ltd Reinforced Concrete Bridge Construction Project (Mandalay-Lashio). The new bridge will be 569 feet long and 38 feet wide flanked by pedestrian ways. The bridge will have a capacity to withstand 60 tons of loads. The lower structure of the bridge will be reinforced concrete type and the upper structure, steel frame type. The construction site of the new bridge is located in the east of the existing bailey bridge.

In an interview, Engineer-in-charge U Myint Win of the Bridge Construction Project said that arrangements are being made for completion of the new bridge in 2010. The construction tasks are being carried out with the use of manpower and heavy machinery. On completion, the bridge will help facilitate smooth transport to northern Shan State and trade between Myanmar and China. In addition, the new bridge will contribute much to regional development.

While new Hsipaw Dokhtawady Bridge is under construction, arrangements have been made to build a pontoon bridge linking Myohaung, on the east bank of the river and the lower part of Zay Ward, on the west bank of the river, to enable the trucks and lorries to pass through the river without transit.

HIV-positive migrants accuse US of neglect

MEXICO CITY, 5 Aug — Olga Arellano sobs as she recalls how her HIV-positive daughter spent two months succumbing to infections in a US migrant detention centre, complaining that she didn't see a doctor or get the right medicine.

Fellow inmates also begged for help after Victoria Arellano started vomiting blood in their holding cell, where her lawyer said 105 detainees were crammed onto bunks and mattresses in a space designed for 40.

She died three days later, chained to a hospital bed. The death of the 23-year-old transgender Mexican immigrant is at the forefront of discussions at this week's international AIDS conference in Mexico City. Rights activists say it shows the failure of immigration officials to deal humanely with HIV-positive inmates among the 30,000 migrants held in detention centres across the United States.

New York-based Human Rights Watch surveyed detention centre officials and inmates after Arellano's death and found 14 cases in which it said HIV-infected immigrants were not given proper care while in custody of US Immigration and Customs Enforcement.—Internet

Eating fish may thwart "silent" brain damage

NEW YORK, (Reuters Health) 5 Aug — Older adults who regularly eat fish may have a lower risk of subtle brain damage that contributes to stroke and dementia — as long as the fish isn't fried — researchers reported Monday.

A salmon dish

In a study that followed 3,660 adults age 65 and older, Finnish researchers found that those who ate more fish were less likely to show certain "silent" brain infarcts — tiny areas of tissue that have died because of an insufficient blood supply — on an MRI scan. The tissue damage is considered silent, or "subclinical," because it causes no obvious symptoms and can only be detected through brain scans. It can, however, raise a person's longer-term risk of having a stroke or developing dementia.

Among older adults in the current study, those who said they ate tuna and "other" baked or broiled fish at least three times per week were one-quarter less likely than those who rarely ate fish to have subclinical brain infarcts at the study's start.

Fatty fish may help prevent memory loss: study

LONDON, 5 Aug — Eating tuna and other fatty fish may help prevent memory loss in addition to reducing the risk of stroke, Finnish researchers said on Monday.

People who ate baked or boiled — but not fried — fish high in omega-3 fatty acids have been found to be less likely to have "silent" brain lesions that can cause memory loss and dementia and are linked to a higher risk of stroke, said Jyrki Virtanen of the University of Kuopio in Finland.

"Previous findings have shown that fish and fish oil can help prevent stroke, but this is one of the only studies that looks at fish's effect on silent brain (lesions) in healthy, older people," Virtanen, who led the study, said in a statement. Omega-3 fatty acids are also found in salmon, mackerel, herring, sardines, and in other foods such as walnuts. They have been shown to provide an anti-inflammatory effect and have been linked to a lower risk of heart disease.

The Finnish team studied 3,660 people aged 65 and older who underwent brains scans five years apart to detect the silent brain lesions, or infarcts, found in about 20 percent of otherwise healthy elderly people

The researchers found that men and women who ate omega-3-rich fish three times or more per week had a nearly 26 percent lower risk of having silent brain lesions.

Scientists warn forest clearing more harmful than thought

A forest fire in Victoria. Clearing natural forests in Australia would pose a greater danger to the global climate than previously thought because they hold three times as much carbon as estimated, a report says.—INTERNET

SYDNEY, 5 Aug—Clearing natural forests in Australia would pose a greater danger to the global climate than previously thought because they hold three times as much carbon as estimated, a report released Tuesday said.

The Australian National University report warns that all nations, not just those in the developing world, should prevent the clearing of their forests because this could release huge amounts of harmful carbon into the atmosphere.

"From a scientific perspective, green carbon accounting and protection of the natural forests in all nations should become part of a comprehensive approach to solving the climate change problem," the report said.—Internet

Singh finds range on short putts, wins Bridgestone

AKRON, 5 Aug — After hitting his golf ball more than 17 miles over four days at Firestone Country Club, Vijay Singh agonized over the final 42 inches.

Singh had a shaky grasp on a one-shot lead at the Bridgestone Invitational as he bent over the 3-foot, 6-inch par putt on the 18th green, circled by thousands of fans and with Stuart Appleby and Lee Westwood watching to see if they'd sneak into a playoff with a miss.

But the 45-year-old Singh — who according to tour statistics had hit just eight of his 18 putts in the tournament between 4 and 8 feet—cast aside his troubling case of flat-stick nerves and gingerly nudged the ball in the side of the cup for a one-shot victory.

"I don't know why I left myself a 4-footer," the usually dour Singh cracked.

He missed three putts shorter than Yao Ming on the back nine, providing an open door for Phil Mickelson among others to walk up and grab the $1.35 million first-place check. But either they were fighting their own self-induced problems or waited too long to try to catch Singh, who ended a streak of 34 PGA Tour events without a win.—Internet

Fish advances at Los Angeles tennis

LOS ANGELES, 5 Aug — American Mardy Fish posted his first victory in nearly two months by beating Alejandro Falla 6-2, 6-2 at the Los Angeles Classic.

The sixth seed broke a run of four opening defeats to advance at an event populated by non-participants in the Beijing Olympics.

Fish last tasted success on 11 June, when he beat Australian Chris Guccione at Queen's club on grass before losing in the third round to compatriot Andy Roddick.

Since then the American has exited in openers at Wimbledon, Newport and the summer Masters tournaments at Toronto and Cincinnati.

Fish won the 30-minute first set with two breaks of serve and began the second with more of the same in his first meeting with the Colombian ranked 116 which ended after just over an hour.

Number 40 Fish will await an opponent from a Tuesday match between Floridian Vince Spadea and Frenchman Sebastien Grosjean.

Gunman shoots radio journalist in Philippines

MANILA, 5 Aug—A gunman shot and critically wounded a Philippine radio commentator as he walked to a shopping mall in a southern city, police said on Tuesday, adding the attack could be work-related.

The Philippines is one of the most dangerous places in the world to work as a journalist. Fifty-seven reporters have been killed since 2001.

Dennis Cuesta was walking with a friend in General Santos late on Monday when a man emerged from behind and shot him five times at close range, the city’s police chief Robert Po said.

“Cuesta remains comatose at a local hospital after he was shot in the head, shoulder and hip,” Po told reporters, adding the radio commentator had been getting death threats because of his on-air attacks on gambling and drugs.

Turkey picks Army boss, public tension seen easing

ANKARA, 5 Aug — Land forces commander Ilker Basbug has been appointed head of Turkey’s powerful Armed Forces, a hawkish general who is expected to avoid open confrontation with the Islamist-rooted governing AK Party.

The General Staff said in a statement on Monday Basbug would take charge of NATO’s second biggest Army on 30 August from retiring general Yasar Buyukanit, who has often clashed openly with the government.

The move comes as Turkey, a key US ally, hopes to put behind it a long power struggle between the powerful secularist establishment, including generals and judges, and the AK Party.

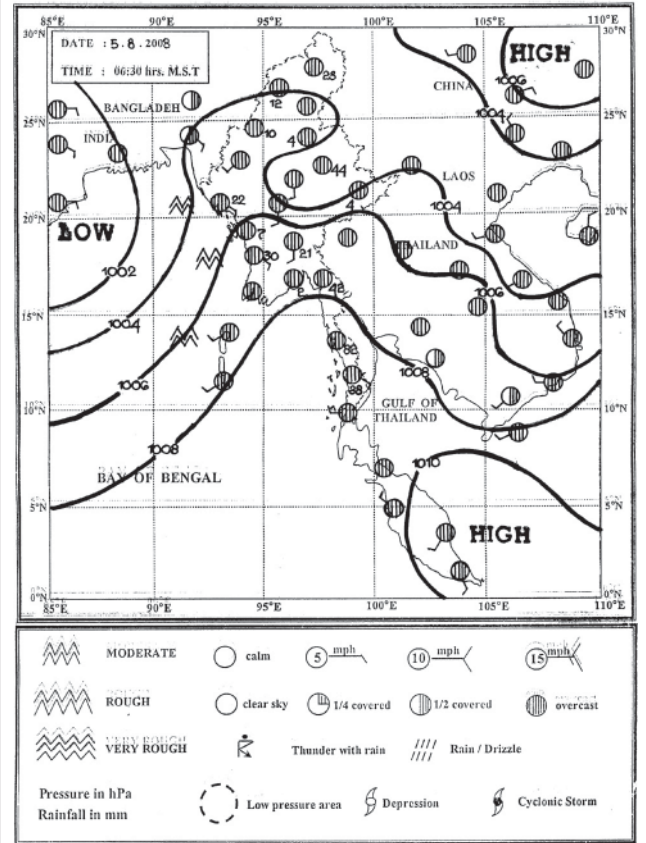

“Unlike the often impulsive incumbent... Buyukanit, Basbug is known for his cool and calculating nature,” said Wolfgang Piccoli, an analyst at political risk think-tank Eurasia Group.

“The result will be less likelihood of abrupt escalations in civil-military tension, but at the same time more effective political pressure from the military,” he said.

Turkey’s highest court on Wednesday rejected an attempt by a chief prosecutor — seen as backed by the secularists — to shut down the AK Party but imposed financial penalties on it for anti-secular activities. The government has long been at odds with the secularist establishment over the role of religion in Turkey.
