Nurture and produce good citizens on whom the State can rely

Myanmar has placed emphasis on development of the education sector in successive eras. As Myanmar people valued education, they actively took part in the development of the education sector. With fine traditions of carrying out community welfare services, the government has been able to create better education environment.

The National Education Promotion Programme was launched in 2001-2002. Requirements were fulfilled to ensure all the school-age children had access to basic education and education promotion programmes are being implemented at all basic education levels.

Nowadays, over 260,000 teachers are teaching over eight million students in over 40,000 educational institutions. Meanwhile, e-Education Learning Centres have been established with electronic information broadcasting systems in over 700 universities, colleges and high schools. Now, all the universities, colleges and some high schools have access to the Internet.

With the emergence of better education environment, the new generation youths are being nurtured and trained to be outstanding in literature, arts and sports.

The School Family Day is held yearly at the respective schools along with the prize presentation ceremonies in which prizes are presented to students who are outstanding in all spheres. The School Family Day for 2008-2009 academic year of the Ministry of Education was held at Nay Pyi Taw No. 3 Basic Education High School on 3 January and prizes were presented to students who are outstanding in Myanmar and International Social Relations and Customs Contest, International Painting Contest and International Sports Event.

Iranian leader tells Iraq not to trust US

TEHERAN, 5 Jan — Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei called on the Iraqi premier not to trust the United States, ISNA news agency reported Sunday. "As long as the Americans are in Iraq, there will be no relaxation for the Iraqi people. The presence of US and British forces in Iraq is the main basis for all the numerous problems, including terrorism and internal disputes," the Khamenei told visiting Iraqi Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki.

According to press reports, al-Maliki elaborated on the security pact signed last month between Iraq and the US, towards which Iran has a negative approach.

"There have been some worries in Iran over the security pact as the Americans are not reliable and Iraq should not trust any of their promises as the main US aim is a permanent and long-term base in the region," he said. Khamenei has the final say on all state affairs in line with the Iranian constitution.

Iran wants US forces to withdraw from Iraq even earlier than scheduled in the pact — withdrawal from Iraqi cities by the end of June 2009 and from the rest of the country by the end of 2011 — and leave all state affairs to the Iraqi government.

The Ayatollah added that the Iraqi government should prove to its people that it would not be intimidated by US threats and not retreat from national interests.

He reiterated that Iran's aim was to see tranquility and stability in Iraq and Teheran would therefore make all efforts to realize this aim.

Ending his two-day visit to Teheran on Sunday, al-Maliki said Iraq wanted Iran's assistance in reconstructing the country.

Female suicide bomber kills 40 people in Baghdad

BAGHDAD, 5 Jan — A woman suicide bomber blew herself up among a crowd of Shiite pilgrims, including Iranians, outside a shrine in northern Baghdad on Sunday, killing up to 40 people and wounding 72 others, an Interior Ministry source said.

A powerful explosion occurred before midday when a woman detonated an explosive belt at a checkpoint at the entrance of the Bab al-Qebalah gate of Kadhim shrine in the Shiite neighbourhood of Kadhimiyyah, the source told Xinhua on condition of anonymity. The woman apparently targeted the Iranian group of pilgrims and killed 16 of them and wounded 32 others, the source said.

Earlier, the source put the toll at 37 killed and 53 others injured.

Hundreds of Shiite pilgrims gather outside the shrine, three days ahead of the climax of Ashura, the 10th day of Muharram in the Islamic calendar, which is the day of mourning for the martyrdom of Hussein Ibn Ali, the grandson of Muslims' prophet Muhammad at the Battle of Karbala.—Internet

Taliban kill three 'US spies' in Pakistan

MIRANSHAH (Pakistan), 5 Jan —Taliban militants executed three people in a restive Pakistani tribal region near the Afghan border after accusing them of spying for the United States, officials said Monday.

The body of a 25-year-old local tribesman was found Monday hung upside down in a tree in the town of Naurak in North Waziristan, residents and security officials said.

The man had been kidnapped from the region's main town of Miranshah last week.

The bullet-riddled bodies of two Afghan refugees were dumped on a roadside in the same area, a security official said.

Notes found near the bodies said "they were found guilty of spying for the US forces in Afghanistan," he added.

Militants have killed dozens of local tribesmen and Afghan refugees on charges of spying, mainly for the Pakistani government or US forces operating across the border in Afghanistan.

Pakistan's lawless tribal areas have been wracked by violence since hundreds of Taliban and Al-Qaeda rebels sought refuge in the region after the US-led invasion of Afghanistan toppled the hardline Taliban regime in late 2001.—Internet

India gives Pakistan evidence over Mumbai attacks

NEW DELHI, 5 Jan—India handed evidence Monday to Pakistan that it says links the deadly Mumbai attacks to Pakistani “elements” and called on authorities across the border to investigate further and help bring the culprits to justice.

India has blamed the November attacks that killed 164 people on Pakistani-based militants, but Pakistan has denied the accusations saying India had yet to provide proof.

Foreign Secretary Shivshankar Menon gave evidence to the Pakistani High Commissioner in New Delhi on Monday linking the attacks to “elements in Pakistan,” said Foreign Minister Pranab Mukherjee.

The evidence included material from the interrogation of the lone surviving gunman, details of conversations between the gunmen and their alleged handlers in Pakistan, recovered weapons, and data from satellite phones.

“This material is linked to elements in Pakistan,” an official statement said. “It is our expectation that the government of Pakistan will promptly undertake further investigations in Pakistan and share the results with us so as to bring the perpetrators to justice.”—Internet

Australian PM supports diplomatic solution to cease-fire to Gaza

CANBERRA, 5 Jan—Australian Prime Minister Kevin Rudd said on Monday his government recognized Israel’s right of self-defense but supported a diplomatic solution to bring an immediate cease-fire in the Gaza Strip. Tens of thousands of Israeli troops backed by tanks have battled Hamas fighters as the Palestinian death toll from the offensive had passed 510.

Rudd told reporters in Sydney that “Australia recognizes Israel’s right to self-defense,” but added that the ongoing violence highlighted the need for a solution to the conflict.

“The escalation in the conflict, following the insurgence by Israeli ground forces, underlines the absolute importance of bringing about an effective diplomatic solution,” he said.

“Any diplomatic solution must find a way of bringing a halt to rocket attacks against Israel by the terrorist organization Hamas. Any diplomatic solution must also bring about a halt to arms shipments into Gaza. Any diplomatic solution must also involve an immediate cease-fire. And in that connection, we the Australian government support the actions of the United Nations now in seeking to bring about an immediate cease-fire,” Australian Associated Press quoted him as saying.

Rudd also acknowledged that many Australians were concerned about the humanitarian impacts of the conflict and called on Israel to recognize basic human rights.—Internet

HOUMA, 5 Jan—Eight people were killed and a ninth was reported critically injured after a helicopter bound for the offshore oil fields crashed Sunday afternoon in marshlands about 100 miles southwest of New Orleans.

The helicopter, operated by PHI Inc, crashed about 3:30 pm shortly after taking off from PHI’s base in Amelia, said Richard Rovinelli, a spokesman for the company. The cause of the crash isn’t

Shenzhou-7's monitor satellite finishes mission after 100 days in space

BEIJING, 5 Jan—The accompanying satellite of Shenzhou-7 orbital module has accomplished its preset mission after 100 days in space, the Beijing Aerospace Control Center (BACC) said on Sunday.

This achievement marks China's "preliminary mastery of satellite monitor technology," the centre said. Since there are still some extra fuel left, the satellite will continue its flight for more scientific experiments.

After being released on 26 Sept, one day after China's third manned spacecraft was launched, the accompanying satellite was adjusted 13 times through engine ignitions so that it could focus on the orbital module of Shenzhou-7.

The centre said the accompanying satellite has been flying around the orbital module in an elliptical circle, with the farthest distance of 7.6 kilometres and the nearest of 3.8 kilometres.

The satellite has sent back thousands of high-quality pictures of the orbital module, which were captured by its two cameras.—Xinhua

Two European journalists released by Somali kidnappers

MOGADISHU, 5 Jan—Two European journalists have been released by Somali kidnappers, reports from agencies said on Sunday, citing a regional governor.

British correspondent Colin Freeman and Spanish photographer Jose Cendon were set free after weeks of captivity, according to Muse Gelle Yusuf,

The journalists were abducted in late November when they prepared to fly home after covering the rampant piracy off north-eastern Somalia.

Rare 1937 Bugatti supercar found in English garage

In this undated image released by Bonhams, an extremely rare 1937 Bugatti Type 57S Atalante, is seen in a garage in Gosforth, England, where it was found by relatives after the death of the owner, an elderly doctor who last used it around 1960. The Bugatti, one of only 17 ever made, is expected to draw a record price when it is auctioned in Paris next month.

It was the equivalent of finding an old Picasso or an unknown Beatles tape hidden away in your uncle’s attic.

Relatives of Dr Harold Carr found an extremely rare 1937 Bugatti Type 57S Atalante — a Holy Grail for car collectors — as they were going through his belongings after his death.

The dusty two-seater, unused since 1960, didn’t look like much in the garage in Gosforth, near Newcastle in northern England.

But only 17 were ever made, and when it’s cleaned up and auctioned in Paris next month, experts believe it will fetch at least 3 million pounds ($4.3 million) and possibly much more.

Bugatti once represented the height of motoring achievement. The supercar was so ahead of its time it could go up to 130 mph (209 kph) when most other cars topped out about 50 mph (80 kph).

This particular car is even more valuable because it was originally owned by Earl Howe, a prominent British race car driver, and because its original equipment is intact, so it can be restored without relying on replacement parts.

British couple has ‘black-and-white twins’ twice

A mixed-race British couple has defied the odds — twice — by producing two sets of twins in which one sibling appears to be black and the other white. Dean Durrant’s newborn daughter Miya has dark skin like him. Twin sister Leah has fair skin like her blue-eyed, red-haired mother, Alison Spooner. Their older siblings Lauren and Hayleigh, born in 2001, also have strikingly different skin tones and eye colors.

“There’s no easy way to explain it all. I’m still in shock myself,” Durrant, 33, told Sky News on Wednesday.

Both sets of twins are fraternal rather than identical, meaning they are the product of two separately fertilized eggs, so it is not unusual that they don’t look alike. Miya’s skin color was more influenced by her father’s genes, while Leah takes after her mother. But scientists say it’s rare for a couple to have two sets of twins, end even rarer for them to have such different appearances.

“Even non-identical twins aren’t that common,” Dr Sarah Jarvis of Britain’s Royal College of General Practitioners told Sky. “Non-identical twins from mixed parents, of different races, less common still. To have two eggs fertilized and come out different colors, less common still. So, to have it happen twice must be one in millions.”

Britain’s Dean Durrant pose with his wife Alison Spooner and their four daughters. The mixed-race couple produced another set of twins in which one sibling appears to be black and the other white.

BEIJING, 5 Jan—Japanese auto maker Subaru will recall 1,135 Tribeca sport utility vehicles (SUVs) it sold in China over control system flaws, said China's quality supervisor here Monday.

It remained unclear whether the problem had resulted in any crashes or

The recall in China will start from Tuesday and involve vehicles produced between February and November in 2008, said the GAQSIQ.

Shark sightings spark alert in Oz

SYDNEY, 5 Jan — Shark alarms blared over four Sydney beaches after sharks were sighted on the weekend. Swimmers fled the water and warnings remain in place at the Maroubra, Coogee, Bronte and Tamarama beaches.

No-one was hurt but life-savers in helicopters reported seeing hammerhead sharks feeding on fish and squid near people swimming. Some experts believe cleaner water is providing more fish as bait to sharks, bringing more closer to shore.

A swimmer off the west coast of Australia, Brian Guest, was killed by a shark after Christmas. Officials in Perth, capital of Western Australia, said increased alertness among swimmers was increasing the number of reported shark sightings.

Thousands of beachgoers were affected by the weekend shark alarms in Sydney. The Sydney Morning Herald newspaper quoted lifesaver Chris Dolman after his routine boat patrol at Coogee spotted a hammerhead shark, between three and four metres long.

The shark swam away but was spotted again by a helicopter at Maroubra beach, where it was feeding on a large squid with another hammerhead shark of less than a metre just beyond the breaking waves. Another shark sighting in the afternoon forced swimmers from the water at Bronte and Tamarama beaches.

A New South Wales Department of Environment and Climate Change spokesman, John Dengeate, told the newspaper that an improvement in water quality was attracting more sharks.

In the past 50 years, reports say there have been 60 deaths in Australian waters from shark attacks.

China IPOs to rise 45% in 2009: accountancy firm

BEIJING, 5 Jan—Initial public offerings (IPOs) in China are expected to rise 45 percent in value this year as a result of government stimulus policies, accountancy firm Pricewaterhouse Coopers (PwC) said Monday.

Companies will raise about 150 billion yuan (22 billion US dollars) through IPOs in China in 2009, the PwC said in a report.

Sectors such as infrastructure, finance, consumer goods manufacturing and retailing will benefit from a 4 trillion-yuan economic stimulus package announced in November, hence IPOs in those areas will gradually come back to growth, it said.

“It’s hopeful that China’s capital market will see a steady development in the second half of 2009 as the economy’s fundamentals remain stable,” said PwC China Managing Partner Lin Yizhong. China will recover sooner than other countries afflicted by the global financial crisis because of its economic foundation and massive fiscal stimulus plan, said the report. IPOs at China’s Shanghai and Shenzhen stock exchanges slumped by 78 percent in value last year as investor enthusiasm collapsed under the crush of the financial crisis.

Egypt maintains Suez Canal transit fees

CAIRO, 5 Jan—Egypt has decided to remain the transit fees of ships and tankers crossing the Suez Canal unchanged, the state MENA news agency reported on Monday.

Admiral Ahmed Ali Fadel, chief of the Suez Canal Authority (SCA), made the announcement during a press conference on Monday at the Suez Canal city of Ismailia, said the report, saying the transit fees will remain unchanged as imposed in 2008.

Egypt’s Suez Canal tolls for ships transiting the international waterway rose as of April 1, 2008, ranging between four and 14 percent according to the type and size of different ships.

Egypt announced the nationalization of the Suez Canal in 1956, some 87 years after the Canal opened in 1869.

The Suez Canal, linking the Red Sea and the Mediterranean, is one of the world’s busiest waterways for international trade and Egypt’s major sources of revenue along with tourism, remittances from expatriate workers and oil exports.

Fadel said the Suez Canal revenues reached 5.382 billion US dollars, a 16.7 percent increase compared to the previous year.—Internet

Three dead, three detained in English arson fire

SHEFFIELD, 5 Jan—A house fire in northern England that police say was deliberately set claimed a third life on Sunday.

Two men were killed in the fire Friday night in a row house in a quiet suburb of Sheffield, The Guardian reported. Neighbours said two people jumped through windows, including one who was on fire. Two survivors suffered critical injuries, and one of the two died Sunday. Three people have been detained for questioning, including one who was picked up Sunday, police said. Investigators had not released any information on Sunday about the residents of the house, saying they were trying to get in touch with relatives first.

The fire occurred on a block of 19th century row houses. "Nothing like this has ever happened before round here," said Joan Laidler, a resident of the area for more than half a century.—Internet

Lost dog was determined to find family

YORBA LINDA, 5 Jan — An 85-pound Labrador retriever named Timber endured cactus spines and a cut to hunt down his California family 2 miles away at a house he'd only visited by car. Timber had been staying with Justin Murrietta's parents because Murrietta's landlord in Yorba Linda does not allow dogs, the Orange County (Calif.) Register reported on Sunday.

On 30 Dec, Timber escaped through an open gate at Armando and Rose Murrietta's home about 2 miles from Justin's house, which the dog had visited occasionally by car. The family posted fliers, checked the local animal control Web site every hour and drove around Yorba Linda looking for Timber. About midnight on New Year's Eve, Justin Murrietta's wife April heard a thumping at the front door and found Timber covered in cactus spines and with a cut that required 20 stitches. Apparently, the thumping was Timber hitting his tail against the front door.—Internet

NEW DELHI, 5 Jan—Air India has handed 10 air hostesses the pink slip for being overweight. The hostesses, who were grounded some months earlier, were served the termination notices in the last week of December, a senior Air India official, who did not wish to be identified, said.

All terminated hostesses were serving on domestic routes. In June last year, five of the airhostesses had approached the Delhi High Court, challenging Air India's decision to ground them for being overweight. However, the court dismissed their petition.

Air India said the action taken against the employees was justified as it was mentioned in the contract. For an 18-year-old air hostess with a height of 152 cm, the maximum weight permissible is 50 kg, while for air hostesses in the age group of 26 to 30 and a height of 152 cm, the weight limit is 56 kg.

Computer programme analyzes brain activity

PITTSBURGH, 5 Jan — A computer programme developed at a Pittsburgh university can offer limited insights into one's thoughts by analyzing brain activation patterns, researchers say.

Carnegie Mellon University computer science Professor Tom Mitchell, who is working on the computer algorithm project, said by analyzing an individual's brain activity, the program can make very accurate guesses at which word of a selected pair a person is thinking about, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reported on Sunday. It can hit correctly up to 90 percent of the time compared with a simple 50-50 guess, the newspaper said.

"Even though we're obviously very different and have had different experiences, so that when you think of a Ford Edsel you probably think of something different than what I think of," the researcher said, "nevertheless, we're similar enough that these (computer) programs can tell us quite a bit about what we're thinking.

Psychologist Marcel Just, who is also working on the project, told the newspaper the programme's use of magnetic resonance imaging to make educated guesses would likely lead to additional thought-recognition efforts in the future.—Internet

Liposuction weight loss may not help heart

DALLAS, 5 Jan — Liposuction may provide a quick fix to reduce waist size but the loss of weight may not help the heart, US researchers advise.

Dr Amit Khera, who directs the University of Texas Southwestern program in preventive cardiology, says belly fat, or waist circumference, is more closely associated than other distributions of fat with heart disease or risk factors for heart disease. However, how one gets rid of the fat seems to matter in terms of reducing these risks.

"Diet and exercise certainly can reduce abdominal fat and reduce heart disease risk, as can surgical procedures like gastric bypass, which limits caloric intake," Khera said in a statement.

"Interestingly, studies looking at liposuction do not seem to show the same benefits. Fat reduction by liposuction does not seem to reduce a protein in the blood called C-reactive protein, which is a measure of inflammation and heart disease risk."—Internet

Premature baldness, gene link

PARIS, 5 Jan — Scientists say they have pinned down a DNA mechanism that gives rise to a rare, but distressing form of baldness that strikes before adulthood.

Flaws in a gene called U2HR are to blame for a condition called Maria Unna hereditary hypotrichosis, or MUHH, named after the German trichologist who identified the problem.

Children with MUHH have sparse or no hair at birth, followed by wiry or coarse hair in childhood, but progressively lose it at puberty. Researchers led by Xue Zhang of the Peking Union Medical College in Beijing found that U2HR, located on Chromosome 8, acts as a key switch in the process.

U2HR controls a small peptide — a kind of mini-protein — that, in turn, affects a previously-identified protein called the human hairless monolog, or HR, which is crucial for the regeneration of hair follicles.

Sifting through the genome of 19 Chinese families with a history of MUHH, the team found mutations of U2HR led to increased levels of HR, the death of hair follicles and thus, greater likelihood of this kind of baldness. The study, published online on Sunday in the journal Nature Genetics, offers a potential target for drugs that would block this pathway, offering the hope that youngsters who inherit the mutations will one day keep their hair, say the authors.

Robben thunderbolt fires Real third

Real Madrid's Arjen Robben celebrates a scoring during a Spanish league football match Villarreal at the Santiago Bernabeu Stadium in Madrid.

INTERNET

MADRID, 5 Jan—A brilliant solo goal from Dutch winger Arjen Robben helped Real Madrid close their gap on runaway leaders Barcelona to 12 points as the champions defeated Villarreal 1-0 at the Santiago Bernabeu on Sunday.

Real coach Juande Ramos handed debuts to French midfielder Lassana

Diarra and Dutch international striker Klass-Jan Huntelaar — 40 million euros worth of talent — but it was Robben that proved the difference.

The former Chelsea man jinked his way past several opponents — leaving Spanish star Marcos Senna sprawling on the ground — before unleashing an unstoppable 31st minute winner. "We are getting some good results and that is the best way for us to move forward and gain confidence," explained Ramos.

It was Ramos's second league win in charge and Real climb to third but they need Barcelona, who came from behind to defeat Real Mallorca 3-1 on Saturday, to start slipping up. Barca are 11 points clear of Valencia who hold on to second spot after Sevilla drew 1-1 with bottom side Osasuna on Sunday.

SOUTHAMPTON, 5 Jan—Sir Alex Ferguson may have said it was "not realistic" for Manchester United to win a unique European and domestic quadruple but he still believes his squad can compete on four fronts.

United opened their FA Cup campaign with a comfortable 3-0 win away to Championship strugglers Southampton at St Mary's here Sunday.

Goals from youngsters Danny Welbeck and Darron Gibson either side of a controversial Nani penalty maintained Ferguson's proud record of having never lost a third round tie in his 22-year reign at Old Trafford.

United, well placed in their quest for a third successive Premier League title, are also through to the last 16 of the Champions League and face Derby in the first leg of their League Cup semi-final on Wednesday.

Le Guen takes Cup revenge, Marseille squeeze through

PARIS, 5 Jan—Paris Saint Germain coach Paul Le Guen finally took revenge on his French Cup jinx club in their 1-0 victory at Montlucon on Sunday.

Le Guen, who played for PSG during their golden days of the 1990s, was twice beaten at amateur club Montlucon, in 1997 with PSG as a player and then in 2005 with Lyon as coach.

Meanwhile, Marseille, a record 10-time French Cup champions, survived a major scare to go through at the expense of fourth division Besancon who had been just eight minutes from a famous victory. But Marseille, who lost to minnows Carquefou in the round of 16 last season, levelled from the penalty spot in the 82nd minute before squeezing into the next round on a penalty shootout and a possible clash with league leaders Lyon.

Le Guen savoured the moment of finally settling the scores. Stephane Sessegnon's second-half goal propelled PSG into the last 32 to the satisfaction of coach Le Guen. "It was a good victory," added the coach.—Internet

United and Villa into FA Cup fourth round

LONDON, 5 Jan —Premier League champions Manchester United and fellow top four side Aston Villa both made it through to the fourth round of the FA Cup on Sunday.

"I think it was okay," Manchester United manager Sir Alex Ferguson said of his side's display. "They (Southampton) are a very young team so you would expect us to win but we could have done it more comfortably," he also told Setanta.

Earlier, Villa were made to work hard for a 2-1 away win against League Two

Sony may announce drastic cost cuts: media

TOKYO, 5 Jan—Japan's Sony Corp is likely to announce closures of Japanese factories and major divisions early next month, the Times of London said on Monday, but the company denied any such plan existed.

The maker of Bravia flat TVs and PlayStation video game consoles faces halting sales and mounting piles of inventory in the wake of the financial crisis, even as a stronger yen bites into earnings.

Sony, whose empire encompasses semiconductors, movies and insurance, is braced for a series of measures that would abolish some of its domestic operations and transform the electronic giant's business, the Times said, citing company sources. "We do not plan to announce additional restructuring measures at this time," spokesman Atsuo Omagari said, in response to the report. "We don't have any such plan."—Internet

US construction declines 0.6% in November

WASHINGTON, 5 Jan—US construction spending dropped by 0.6 percent in November, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

The November drop was less than half of the 1.3 percent decline economists expected. Construction spending in October had been revised to a 0.4 percent decline from the originally reported drop of 1.2 percent. In November, private builders cut their spending on residential construction by 4.2

percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 328 billion dollars, the lowest since August 1999. Construction spending by the government, meanwhile, increased by 1.4 percent in November to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 322 billion dollars.

The once-sizzling US housing market has slid into the worst slump in over two decades. Analysts believe that housing will keep falling until a record glut of unsold homes is reduced.

Prosperous Kawthoung Township of Taninthayi Division

Article & photos: Aung Than (Mingala Taungnyunt)

Kawthoung in Kawthoung District, Taninthayi Division, a border town, is located in the southernmost part of Myanmar.

Thailand and Myanmar are divided by the Parchan River. On the other bank of the river is Ranong of Thailand. We made a trip to Kawthoung in mid-November to write an article about development of Taninthayi Division.

Kawthoung is easily accessible by all modes of transport: by car, by boat or by air, which is key to development of the region. Now, people can travel from Kawthoung to Myeik, Dawei, Mawlamyine and Yangon by car, and to Yangon by ship.

And people can make a one-day trip by speed-boat to Dawei, 300 nautical miles from Kawthoung. Taninthayi Division has seen Dawei Airport, Myeik Airport, and Kawthoung Airport. So, these regions are accessible by air within an hour, and smooth transport is a testament to development of Taninthayi Division.

Making digital maps more current and accurate

FeedMAP is taking a bottom-up approach to map updates.

BRUSSELS, 4 Jan — European researchers have designed an innovative new system to help keep motorists on the right track by constantly updating their digital maps and fixing anomalies and errors. Now the partners are mapping the best route to market.

The 'oddly enough' sections of newspapers regularly feature amusing stories of GPS mayhem. For instance, one lorry driver in Poland had such confidence in his positioning device that he ignored several signs warning that a road had been closed to make way for an artificial reservoir and drove straight into the lake!

In addition to providing a cautionary tale about investing too much faith in technology, this amusing anecdote highlights a more mundane and daily challenge: how to reflect the constantly shifting topography of Europe's road network.

A large number of digital maps used by onboard GPS navigation systems are stored on DVDs or hard disks, with periodic updates only available on replacement disks. In addition, advanced driver assistance systems (ADAS) – such as adaptive cruise control (ACC) and lane-keeping systems (LKS) – are beginning to make more extensive use of digital maps. Given the safety dimension of ADAS applications, it is crucial that digital maps are highly accurate.
