Give polio vaccine to all under-fives

Millions of children throughout the world suffer infantile paralysis due to poliomyelitis. The whole global community is trying to eradicate polio. The world saw polio cases in 125 countries in 1988, and only four countries in 2008.

Myanmar has conducted vaccination campaigns every year since 1978. At first, children were vaccinated against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and TB. Then, polio, measles and hepatitis (B) vaccines were also given to children.

The Ministry of Health regularly gives vaccines and holds National Immunization Days across the nation including border and rural areas in order that children do not fall victim to polio.

Polio vaccines were given to under-fives on the National Immunization Days held in November and December 2007. The first time covered more than 98 per cent, and the second time, over 97 per cent.

National Immunization Days for 2009 will be held soon. Polio vaccines will be given to more than seven million under-fives of 325 townships from 10 to 12 January in the first stage, and from 7 to 9 February in the second stage.

Polio disease is caused by poliovirus, and it makes victims have their legs and hands atrophied. The viral infections spread person to person primarily via excrement. Here, a notable point is that a person can be infected with poliovirus through food and water that are contaminated with poliovirus through human waste of a victim.

All mothers and regional social associations have to work together to ensure giving polio vaccines to each and every under-five on National Immunization Days in order that all under-fives are free from the disease.

US wars in Iraq and Afghanistan “will cost an additional $69bn”

WASHINGTON, 8 Jan—US Defence Secretary Robert Gates has told legislators that the military will need an additional $69.7 billion (£47bn) this year on top of the $65.9 billion (£44bn) already approved by Congress to continue the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

In a New Year’s Eve letter to the chairmen of the House and Senate panels overseeing the wars, which was published on Wednesday, Mr Gates estimated that the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan will cost almost $136 billion (£91bn) for the 2009 budget year if they continue at their current pace. Mr Gates added that the estimate would cover Pentagon operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, as well as other elements of Washington’s “war on terror.” But he acknowledged that the estimate doesn’t account for a proposed escalation of military operations in Afghanistan.

“This estimate is my personal assessment and does not reflect the position of the Bush administration or the incoming Obama administration,” he wrote. An official request for war funding will follow a review by the Obama administration.—Internet

Iraqi cleric urges attacks on US troops over Gaza

BAGHDAD, 8 Jan—Anti-US cleric Muqtada al-Sadr on Wednesday urged reprisals against American forces in Iraq to protest Israel’s Gaza offensive, as Arab anger grows over civilian deaths in the Palestinian territory.

The strongly worded statement signaled a threat by al-Sadr’s militia fighters to renew violence against American troops after months of relative calm. It was unclear, however, just how much influence the once-powerful Shiite leader — who is believed to be in Iran — still has. His fighters have been hit hard in US-Iraqi military operations over the past year.

The US State Department dismissed al-Sadr’s calls, describing them as “outrageous.”

“Any call for attacks against Americans is outrageous and, frankly, not worthy of much more comment,” deputy State Department spokesman Robert Wood told reporters. “Outside calls to attack Americans for what’s going on in the region are outrageous.”—Internet

Troops kill 32 militants in east Afghanistan

KABUL, 7 Jan—US-led forces raided a Taleban bomb-making cell in eastern Afghanistan, killing 32 militants in a battle with scores of armed militants who shot at them from rooftops and alleyways, the military said on Wednesday.

The firefight broke out Tuesday in Laghman province when as many as 75 armed militants converged on the troops, who were searching a number of compounds in the area, the military said in a statement. The 32 insurgents were killed when coalition troops returned fire.

The troops destroyed two caches of weapons and roadside bomb-making materials that were too unstable to move to another location, the statement said.

Insurgents have frequently targeted Iraqi security forces in a bid to disrupt recent security gains that have led to a sharp decline in violence.

Study shows California's deteriorating situation in higher education

LOS ANGELES, 8 Jan—California, once regarded as a leader in the United States for its public higher education system, is quickly dropping in the rankings, said a report released on Wednesday.

California ranks next to the last in the US for its number of adults with at least a high school diploma, according to the report, titled "California at the Edge of a Cliff," released by the California Faculty Association.

Meanwhile, the state's investment in public higher education has dropped over the past three decades, and now ranks 22nd in the country. That's despite having the country's largest public higher education system, the report said. "It's a collapse," said Thomas Mortenson, author of the report, who is an independent analyst living in Iowa and a senior scholar at the Pell Institute for the Study of Opportunity in Higher Education in Washington, DC.—Xinhua

Hamas responsible for deadly Gaza attack

OTTAWA, 8 Jan—The Canadian government blamed the Palestinian militant group Hamas for the deaths of more than 40 civilians who were killed by Israeli shells on Tuesday in some of the most hard-line comments by any leading western nation on the deadly incident.

Medical officials in Gaza said the civilians had been sheltering at a United Nations school. The Israeli army accused Hamas of using the civilians as human shields and of firing mortars at its troops from inside the school.

“Hamas bears a terrible responsibility for this and for the wider deepening humanitarian tragedy,” Canadian Junior Foreign Minister Peter Kent told Reuters when asked for Ottawa’s reaction to the attack.

“The burden of responsibility is on Hamas to stop its terrorist rocketing of Israel.”

Canada’s current Conservative government, which took power in early 2006, is an outspoken supporter of Israel.

“It is a tragedy and Canada is concerned about the loss of civilian life”, Kent said of the school shelling, adding that Ottawa did not yet know much about the incident.

“Hamas’s record is to use civilians — the population and civilian infrastructure — as shields and it would seem quite possible that this is yet another tragic instance,” he said.

Rocket fire defines life in southern Israeli town

SDEROT, 8 Jan—Few residents of the Israeli town of Sderot are on the streets these days. They prefer to sit out the war in safer parts of the country or barricade themselves at home as Palestinian rockets keep coming despite Israel’s devastating military offensive against Gaza’s Hamas rulers. One mile outside Gaza, Sderot was for years the top target of Palestinian rocket fire. Its residents have long demanded a military campaign to wipe out Gaza rocket squads, saying the current disruption of their lives is a small price to pay if the war brings what they long for: the ability to walk outside without hearing the dreaded rocket alert.

Maxim Ben-Zikri runs one of the few thriving businesses in the town of 24,000 people: His Alum Mondial window business specializes in fixing houses that have been damaged by rocket fire. “I have work all the time, but that doesn’t make me happy,” he says.

He used to fix windows in Jewish settlements in Gaza before Israel pulled out of the seaside strip that is home to 1.4 million Palestinians in 2005. Now that Gaza militants have taken over those former settlements and moved closer to Israel, he has his hands full repairing windows in Israeli border communities.

Melting snow causes heavy flooding in Wash State

SNOQUALMIE, 8 Jan— Rain and high winds lashed Washington state Wednesday, causing widespread avalanches, mudslides, flooding and road closures as the heavy snowfall that has buried parts of the state began to rapidly melt.

More than 30,000 people were told to leave their homes in flood-endangered areas across western Washington as authorities warned of heavy flooding.

“This is going to be a memorable flood event,” said Andy Haner, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Seattle.

Fire trucks rolled through Orting, about 10 miles southeast of Tacoma, with loudspeakers advising everyone to leave the town and surrounding valley, home to about 26,000 people. Sandbags were placed around many downtown homes and businesses as the Puyallup River neared record levels. It was forecast to crest on Thursday.

“They expect the town of Orting to go under water,” Pierce County sheriff’s Detective Ed Troyer said, adding that the flooding could be the worst in more than a decade. Tacoma Mayor Bill Baarsma declared a civil emergency because of flood risks at Puyallup River.

Throughout the state, about 60 highways were closed, including all east-west passes across the Cascade Mountains.

AP Gaza reporter finds hometown in rubble

GAZA CITY, 8 Jan—I live alone in my office. My wife and two young children moved in with her father after our apartment was shattered.

The neighborhood mosque, where I have prayed since I was a child, had its roof blown off. All the government buildings on my beat have been obliterated.

After days of Israeli shelling, the city and life I have known no longer exist.

Gaza City, with some 400,000 people, stopped supplying water when the fuel ran out for the power station driving the pumps.

We listen to battery-run radios for news, even though the outside world watches what's happening to us on television. The Hadi grocery where we once shopped is closed. Food is scarce all over town.

Three days after Israel began its airstrikes against Hamas militants on 27

Dec, my apartment building was shaken by bombs aimed at a nearby Hamas-run government compound.

My brother took a picture of the room where my boys, 2-year-old Hikmet and 6-month-old Ahmed, once slept. Their toys were broken, shrapnel had punched through the closet and the bedroom wall had collapsed. I don't know if we will ever go back.

NY man demands estranged wife pay him for kidney

A Long Island surgeon embroiled in a nearly four-year divorce proceeding wants his estranged wife to return the kidney he donated to her, although he says he'll settle for $1.5 million in compensation.

Dr. Richard Batista, a surgeon at Nassau University Medical Center, told reporters at his lawyer's Long Island office Wednesday that he decided to go public with his demand for kidney compensation because he has grown frustrated with the negotiations with his estranged wife. He claimed he has been prevented from seeing their children, ages, 8, 11 and 14, for months at a time.

He said he gave his kidney to Dawnell Batista, now 44, in June 2001.

She filed for divorce in July 2005, although he claims she began having an extramarital affair 18 months to two years after receiving the kidney transplant, his attorney, Dominick

Douglas Rothkopf, the attorney representing Dawnell Batista, did not return telephone calls seeking comment.

Matrimonial attorneys were quick to shoot down any possibility Batista would succeed.

Zeppelins set for comeback

A Russian company specializing in airships is planning to build a hard-shelled zeppelin capable of lifting 180 tonnes at a time — more than any modern cargo plane.

Exactly a century ago, in 1908, the first Russian airship blasted off in the then capital St Petersburg.

Today, after successfully building scaled-down zeppelins, the Russian company RosAeroSistemy is planing to realize the ideas of the rocket scientist - Konstantin Tsiolkovsky. The Russian pioneer of space theory predicted that airships with hard shells could be highly reliable and maneuverable once the right technology was developed.

The DT-N1 (Dirizhabl (zeppelin) Tsiolkovsky - 1) project is about building an airship 268 meters long, 64 meters wide, capable of carrying a 180-tonne cargo. Its maximum speed will be 179 km/h, with a cruising speed of 120 km/h. It will have a range of 5,000km.

The airship's all-metal body will have a total volume of 400,000 cubic meters.

UN urges Nepal to search for missing slave girls

UNITED NATIONS, 8 Jan—The United Nations human rights agency has urged Nepal's government to search for girls who went missing after their parents sold them into domestic service, and urged an end to the practice.

Traditionally girls as young as six or seven from the ethnic Tharu community in five districts of west Nepal have been sent to work with families in towns and cities for as little as 1,500 Nepali rupees ($20).

The girls, known as "kamalaris" or indentured labourers, are often taken away by middlemen and made to work for about 20 hours a day without pay.

Although the government abolished the practice eight years ago and charities have rescued about 5,000 girls, activists say thousands of girls are still illegally employed.

"Parents send their daughters to be kamalaris as a last resort when they are under extreme pressure to settle debts; many of them end up being trafficked," Richard Bennett, from the U.N. High Commission for Human Rights in Nepal, said late on Wednesday.

"I urge the government to take concrete steps to prohibit this practice, search for the missing kamalaris, and provide for rehabilitation to those who have been victims of this practice."

Hundreds of girls, rescued after working as indentured labourers for years, began protests in Kathmandu this week demanding education, training and jobs.

They want the government to determine the fate of the missing girls, and seek justice for those who suffered sexual exploitation, torture, rape and other abuses.

All citizens must steadfastly uphold “Our Three Main National Causes”...

There will also be opportunities for outstanding graduates to continue their further studies for Doctorates. In this connection, I would, first of all, like to urge you to do your utmost bearing in mind and fulfillment of the objectives of the Mother Institute.

Comrades,

If I may expound Our Three Main National Causes, namely Non-disintegration of the Union, Non-disintegration of national solidarity and Perpetuation of Sovereignty, these causes have been our national responsibilities handed down by the history. You would have learnt bitter lessons from a number of world events, in which certain States have become weaker after disintegration of their union owing to the external intervention in the midst of their conflicts resulting from the disintegration of national unity as well as those which have become puppet governments after losing their sovereignty.

Comrades,

If we look back to the origin of our national races, there were bodies of evidences which showed that human races have inhabited in our country since 40 million years ago. However, complex geographical location hindering communication, divergence of climates has resulted in emergence of various languages, and diverse costumes, cultures, customs, and traditions and this has led to the emergence of more than a hundred national races.

However, our national brethren, like a myriad of fruits stemming from a sin-their divide-and-rule policy, resulting in separatist mentalities creeping into their minds since the colonial time. This is why, as you all are aware, our independence was regained only after forging national unity through painstaking efforts.

Comrades,

However, as national unity was not fully consolidated even after regaining independence, armed insurgencies mushroomed accompanying the independence.

National development efforts were not able to be carried out as armed insur-gencies were rampant throughout the country. Development projects were done in vain as the roads, bridges and schools constructed were destroyed by the insurgents. Education and health levels of the national races in the remote border areas were seriously affected as the staff in these sectors were quite reluctant to serve in the border regions for lack of security there. This is why the human resource development of the State lagged behind to some extent.

gle stalk, have lived in unity through weal or woe, with wisdom taught by blood relations. They have been moving around for their livelihood in the country as freely as they desire. In this way, our national brethren have inhabited the length and breadth of the country maintaining the undividable unity and solidarity. Notwithstanding their cohesiveness, seeds of discord were sowed among our national brethren by colonialists and colonial historians through projects in every corner of the country including the border areas for the human resource development and the development of the State. The Tatmadaw’s relentless efforts for the national reconciliation have achieved significant improvements. As of now, 17 major national race armed groups and many small splintered groups have returned to the legal fold and have been working together with the Tatmadaw Government for the development of their respective regions. Therefore, all the national races nowadays are enjoying the fruits of peace and stability.

In order to avoid recurrence of the bitter experiences of the past, all the citizens of the State must steadfastly uphold “Our Three Main National Causes” as a national policy.

Comrades,

Let me continue to touch upon the physical and mental prowess. These twin capabilities are qualities that must be acquired and exist together. As patriotic Tatmadawmen, you must have physical strength and military knowledge to be able to safeguard the State. Likewise, you must also have courage, bravery and strong will to crush your enemies. You can carry out your duties well in the battlefield with your medical knowledge and expertise. Likewise, if required, you must be able to command your troops to combat and to defeat your enemy. Therefore, you will be given further training such as Platoon Commander Course, Company Commander Course and Commanding Officer Course in compatible with the respective ranks.

Comrades,

There have been many fine examples of the members of the Tatmadaw Medical Corps who were honoured for their distinguished bravery and sacrifice in the battlefields since the pre-independence period. As you have already committed to sacrifice the lives and limbs for the country, you must have the right attitude in demonstrating your courage to sacrifice your life. As you must work hand in hand with the infantry troops for the duties of medical care in the battlefields, you must have the spirit of good Tatmadawmen to learn combat experience willingly.

Comrades,

To become a good Tatmadawmen, you must strictly observe the codes of conduct of the Tatmadawmen. Similarly, you must have the five basic qualities such as spirit, discipline, loyalty, unity and three capabilities which are of necessary requirements for each armed force and Tatmadawman. You must also have the desire to carry on the twelve traditions of the Tatmadaw. In this way, you will be able to fully serve three major responsibilities of the Tatmadaw, namely to combat, to undergo training and to carry out nation-building task for the people.

Similarly, in your primary duties of medical care, you have to keep records of significant experiences. In encountering some difficulties in the field, you have to learn from experts. In addition, you have to provide continuous medical care to each and individual Tatmadawman, their family members, and the public by systematically keeping their health records.

Comrades,

Today, the Tatmadaw has exerted relentless efforts for the simultaneous development of the whole country by laying down Three Special Projects. They are Project for the Development of Border Areas and National Races, Project for Development of Special Regions and Project for Development of the Rural Areas. While serving duties at the assigned places, you will have to take care of the health and well-being of the public in order to contribute to the success of the health sector of the three special development projects.

Comrades,

In conclusion, I wish to urge you to

- Protect “Our Three Main National Causes” by sacrificing your own lives,
- Try to become a Tatmadawman with sound physical and mental prowess,
- Strictly observe the codes of conduct of the Tatmadawmen,
- Try to be endowed with the five basic qualities which are essential requirements for every armed force and Tatmadawman,
- Try to acquire much battlefield experience,
- Serve the interests of the people by participating in the development activities of the State, and
- Continue your further study in nursing and pharmacology to become specialists.

Woman burned to death for practicing witchcraft

HIGHLANDS, 8 Jan — A young Papua New Guinea woman was burned to death in what authorities fear is the latest witchcraft killing in the remote and lawless interior of the country. The woman, believed to be between 16 and 20 years old, was stripped naked, gagged and tied to a truck loaded with firewood— which was driven to a town dump and doused with gasoline — before being set aflame, according to witnesses who saw the act near Mount Hagen in the Western Highlands.

"The girl was stripped naked and could not shout for assistance or resist as she was tightly strapped and her mouth gagged," Jessie James, a man who saw the girl's death, told the local Post Courier Mail. "I don't know the right words to describe it but it's barbaric. Can you find the best words to describe such acts that are rampant here?" said Highlands police chief Simon Kauba.

PNG police believe the girl was either accused of being a witch or that she had been blamed for infecting one of her killers with HIV/AIDS, both of which are punished by the death penalty by the jungle justice practiced by the indigenous communities of the Highlands.

Canadian charged in cousin's 1970 death

KIRKLAND LAKE, 8 Jan—It took them 38 years, but police say they have solved the mystery of a 12-year-old Canadian girl's disappearance, charging her cousin with murder. Ontario provincial police said on Wednesday that Barry Vincent Manion, 60, has been charged with kidnapping and first-degree murder in the 1970 disappearance of his cousin, Katherine May Wilson of Kirkland Lake, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. reported. Manion will appear in court in Haileybury, near Kirkland Lake, Friday, the CBC said.

Wilson vanished while walking home from a gas station convenience store about 5 pm, shortly after talking by phone with her mother, who sent her two sisters to meet her half way. Despite weeks of searching, her body has never been found. The CBC said authorities have not divulged how they broke the case. But for Wilson's mother, Manion's arrest brought relief.

"Now we'll have some closure," an emotional Aline Wilson said. "It's been a long time not knowing."

Lottery 'misprints' cost man $135,000

TORONTO, 8 Jan—A Toronto-area man who won $135,000 on four scratch-off lottery tickets has been told they were printing mistakes, and he won't be given the prizes. Thomas Noftall, 27, told the Toronto Sun he scratched the four tickets on New Year's Eve and was ecstatic to see his winnings.

He contacted the Ontario Lottery and Gaming Corp in Toronto by telephone, and a claims representative said he would be paid, but that he had to come to the lottery headquarters, the Sun said. That's when Noftall's luck turned sour.

"One guy pulled me into his office and said, 'Between me and you, they're going to void your tickets. They're not going to pay,'" Noftall told the newspaper. A lottery spokesman told the Sun there were 1,000 misprinted tickets distributed throughout the province.

AccuWeather.com reported a nasty mix of snow, ice and rain over much of the Northeast Wednesday night. Up to one-half inch of ice coated trees and power lines in parts of Pennsylvania, New York and New England. The Thursday morning commute potentially could be brutal with slush and black ice possible from Washington and Baltimore to Philadelphia and New York up to Boston. The wintry mess is expected to continue into Friday. Meanwhile, snow was expected to spread eastward across the northern Plains and more precipitation could trigger flooding in the Northwest. International experts probe into pig virus in Philippines

MANILA, 8 Jan.— A team of international experts are investigating the Ebola Reston virus found in pigs at two farms in the northern Philippines, the World Health Organization (WHO) said on Thursday.

Experts from the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, the World Organization for Animal Health and the World Health Organization are now working with their Philippines counterparts “to address, through field and laboratory investigation, important questions as to the source of the virus, its transmission, its virulence and its natural habitat, in order to provide appropriate guidance for animal and human health protection,” according to a statement released by the Manila-based WHO Western Pacific Regional Office. This is the first time that the virus has been found outside monkeys, and the first time ever, worldwide, that it has been found in swine, a food-producing animal.

The joint mission will last ten days and testing results will come out weeks later, said Caroline-Anne Coulombe, a technical officer of WHO, in a phone interview.

Meanwhile, WHO said that it remains safe to consume pork meat, as long as it is purchased in accredited outlets and it is handled and cooked properly. Meat from suspect pigs, sick pigs or pigs found dead, should not be eaten nor fed to other animals, and proper hygiene precautions and protection should be taken to dispose of sick or dead pigs, health experts warned the public.—Internet

Sudden veer took jetliner into field

DENVER, 8 Jan — A jetliner that roared into a field on takeoff in Denver last month veered suddenly off the runway despite the pilot’s efforts, a report issued on Wednesday said. The National Transportation Safety Board investigators reported the Continental Airlines Boeing 737-500 “suddenly diverged to the left” while taking off 20 Dec at Denver International Airport, The Denver Post reported.

“Attempts to correct the deviation with the rudder were unsuccessful,” the report stated. The incident left 38 of the 110 passengers and five crew members injured. All those hurt are now out of the hospital, the Post reported. The report went on to say the veteran pilot briefly tried to turn the aircraft back to the center of the runway with his tiller but was unable to control it. The jetliner, speeding at more than 100 mph, traveled 2,300 feet across a snow-covered field, bounced through a gully and went over an airport taxiway and raised airport service road before stopping. Everest trip helps critically ill

LONDON, 8 Jan — The lessons learned by medics from a trip to Everest could help the treatment of critically ill patients. The team that braved the Himalayan summit to study the body’s responses to extreme adversity has recorded the lowest ever human blood oxygen level. The results could see treatment plans for some patients with similarly low blood oxygen levels re-evaluated.

The “Caudwell Xtreme Everest” work has been published in the New England Journal of Medicine. The blood readings established what has long been suspected—that high-altitude climbers have incredibly low levels of oxygen in their blood, which at sea-level would only be seen in patients close to death. The average arterial oxygen level was 3.28 kilopascals or kPa - the lowest was 2.55 kPa.

The normal value in humans is 12-14 kPa and patients with a level below 8 kPa are considered critically ill. Expedition leader Dr Mike Grocott said: “We rarely see below 6 kPa in our patients.”

Twelve dead as winter weather freezes Europe

WARSAW, 8 Jan — A blast of frigid weather has claimed up to a dozen lives in Europe as temperatures tumbled below freezing overnight in what weather officials today dubbed the coldest night of winter. Polish police said the latest victims who froze to death yesterday included a 68-year-old homeless man found in an abandoned house in the southeast town of Jozefow, and a 51-year-old man who lived alone in central Eligiow and died a few steps away from his home.

Five other deaths across Europe have also been blamed on the harsh blast of wintry weather, including that of a man in Milan who died when a canopy collapsed on him under the weight of snowfall. Temperatures in Poland dropped as low as -25deg Celsius. According to Interior Ministry data, hypothermia has been blamed for 76 deaths in Poland since November 2008. Snowfalls disrupted air traffic across Europe, shutting down airports in Italy for several hours and paralyzing TGV high-speed trains in France. Milan’s two airports Malpensa and Linate, as well as the airports in Turin and Bergamo, were closed all morning after snow reached up to 30 cm.

Lucky United still on course for five football trophies: Ferguson

Ferguson said United were lucky to still be on course for five trophies this season after their shock 1-0 defeat against Derby.—INTERNET

DERBY, 8 Jan — Alex Ferguson said Manchester United were lucky to still be on course for five trophies this season after their shock 1-0 League Cup semi-final, first leg defeat against Derby County.

The Manchester

United manager was punished by the side languishing 18th in the Championship for fielding a vastly-weakened side, with only Serbian Nemanja Vidic and Paul Scholes beginning the game decided by Kris Commons' wonderful 30th minute goal.

Ferguson clearly had one eye on Sunday's crucial Premier League meeting with rivals Chelsea at Old Trafford and that was part of his team thinking but even the 60th minute double substitution of Cristiano Ronaldo and Wayne Rooney could not prevent overwhelming favourites United from slipping to their fourth defeat of the season against the side that was relegated from the Premier League eight months ago with 11 points, the worst total ever recorded.

LONDON, 8 Jan — Harry Redknapp hopes to follow his swoop for Jermaine Defoe with a host of new signings to bolster Tottenham's bid for cup glory. Redknapp's League Cup holders moved within touching distance of a second successive final appearance by thrashing Burnley 4-1 in the semi-final first leg at White Hart Lane on Tuesday. But despite the one-sided nature of the scoreline, Tottenham were totally outplayed by their Championship opponents in the first half and Redknapp is more convinced than ever that new recruits are needed to continue the north London club's recent revival. Redknapp has tied up a deal to bring Defoe back to Spurs from Portsmouth in a 15 million pounds transfer worth around 60,000 pounds a week to the England striker. But the Spurs boss is desperate to add some experience to the squad he inherited from Juande Ramos.

"It's been a badly balanced, badly put-together squad from day one," Redknapp said. "I'd like to get three or four decent players in. I think we need them. There are some young players here and there's a bit of experience and know-how missing at times." I'm having a look at Stephen Appiah. I watched him six or seven times when he was playing for Ghana but Juventus wouldn't sell.

Wigan poised to sign Colombian striker

Colombian international striker Hugo Rodallega, seen here in 2008, looks set to sign for Premiership side Wigan Athletic.

INTERNET

LONDON, 8 Jan — Colombian international striker Hugo Rodallega looks set to sign for Premiership side Wigan Athletic and provoke more speculation surrounding the futures of Senegal's Henri Camara and England international Emile Heskey.

The 23-year-old Colombian will cost Wigan 4.5 million pounds from Mexican side Necaxa, for whom he scored 15 times in 36 appearances last season, should he be granted a work permit next week. Wigan manager Steve Bruce said that the club would be securing the talents of an out and out scorer. "He's fast, about 6ft 1in, he's good in the air, rangy rather than thick-set, can score a goal - just a genuine all-round striker," said Bruce.

Rodallega said he was prepared for the challenge of a totally different style of football. "They (Wigan) have a very similar style to all the teams there — fast, strong, tough," he said. "Considering what I have and what I am going to learn, I will get to a team with a lot of ambition. I think you can adapt yourself to all the leagues. If the English league is not the best in the world, it is one of the best. It is a big challenge to me and I am mentally prepared."—Internet

Mauresmo still a force as she ousts Ivanovic at WTA Brisbane

Amelie Mauresmo of France hits a backhand return in her victory over Ana Ivanovic of Serbia in the quarter-finals of the Brisbane International, on 8 January.—INTERNET

BRISBANE, 8 Jan — Amelie Mauresmo showed she was still a force to be reckoned with as she thumped top seed Ana Ivanovic 6-3, 6-2 in the quarter-finals of the Brisbane International. Mauresmo, the world No 23, took just 67 minutes to down the fifth-ranked Ivanovic, who struggled through the first two rounds of the tournament and looked completely out of touch against the 29-year-old Frenchwoman.

The win was Mauresmo's first over a top 10 player since she beat Kim Clijsters in Antwerp in 2007 and sets up a semi-final against either her fellow countrywoman Marion Bartoli or Italy's Tathiana Garbin.

Both Mauresmo and Ivanovic had marathon second round matches on Wednesday but Mauresmo, eight years older than her Serbian opponent, looked the fresher of the two players.

INTERNET

PERTH, 8 Jan — Slovakia advanced to a fourth Hopman Cup final in dramatic circumstances when Germany's Nicolas Kiefer collapsed on court with an ankle injury and was taken off in a wheelchair.

Both teams were unbeaten going into the tie, but the much-anticipated clash came to a premature end when Kiefer crashed down with a twisted ankle in the fifth game of his singles clash with Dominik Hrbaty.

Slovakia won the tie 3-0 after being awarded the mixed doubles on a walkover.

Xerox Classic goes on hiatus for lack of sponsor

ROCHESTER, 8 Jan — The Xerox Classic has been left off the Nationwide Tour schedule for 2009 after the corporate sponsor decided not to sign a new deal. Xerox Corp. cited the harsh economic climate that forced it to lay off 3,000 employees in October as reason for ending its sponsorship of the event.

Tournament director Don Jeffries of the Rochester Broadway Theater League, which ran the event and was one of the benefiting charities, informed the PGA Tour that the tournament would have to go on hiatus. Jeffries said he'll continue to shop for a new title sponsor in hopes the event can return to the Nationwide Tour schedule in 2010.

Dementieva through to WTA ASB Classic semis

AUCKLAND, 8 Jan — World number four Elena Dementieva cruised into the last four of the ASB Classic, defeating Israel's Shahar Peer who faced protests over her country's military offensive in Gaza. The Russian Olympic champion and top seed had little trouble in winning 6-3, 6-1, but Peer refused to use the noisy protest by about 20 people outside the tennis centre as an excuse.

The 21-year-old said she had been unaffected by the protest, which ended during the early stages of the match, although Dementieva said the situation in Israel must have affected Peer. "I'm sure it was a tough day for her because of the situation in her country," Dementieva said. "I'm sure it was not easy to play for her. I just know she can play better tennis next week."

It takes two to know one: Shared Experiences change self-recognition

SCIENCE DAILY, 8 Jan — Looking at yourself in the mirror every morning, you never think to question whether the person you see is actually you. You feel familiar—at home with your own unique self image. After all, you have been sporting the same old face for years. An innovative study by Dr Manos Tsakiris, Department of Psychology, Royal Holloway, University of London, challenges this common-sense notion about our own self image.

The study shows for the first time that the image we hold of our own face can actually change through shared experiences with other people's faces.

The study reveals that recognition of our own face is not as consistent as we might think. The participants' ability to recognise their own face changed when they watched the face of another person being touched at the same time as their own face was touched, as though they were looking in a mirror. Specifically, when asked to recognize a picture of their own face, the picture that people chose included features of the other person they had previously seen. This did not happen when the two faces were touched out of synchrony. Sharing an experience with another person may change the perception we have of our own self, such as the recognition of our own face. "As a result of shared experiences, we tend to perceive other people as being more similar to us, and this applies also to the recognition of our own face. This process may be at the root of constructing a self-identity in a social context," says Dr Tsakiris who led the study funded by the Economic and Social Research Council, UK.

The findings imply that shared experiences may influence the way we perceive ourselves and possibly the way we interact with others. Dr Tsakiris explains, "If I feel that you are more like me, I might then behave to you in a different way. We now test whether shared experiences can make us stereotype others less, or change our attitudes towards people of different social groups, race or gender."

Research on self-recognition may also have a significant impact in understanding and helping people with appearance-related concerns. Shared sensory experiences may ease such concerns and provide insights into the mechanisms that cause them.
