'Mini-submarine' to blast cells

TEL AVIV, 18 Jan — Ever since the 1966 Hollywood movie, doctors have imagined a real-life Fantastic Voyage—a medical vehicle shrunk small enough to "submarine" in and fix faulty cells in the body. Thanks to new research by Tel Aviv University scientists, that reality may be only three years away.

The blueprints for the submarine and a map of its proposed maiden voyage were published earlier this year in Science by Dr. Dan Peer, who now leads the Tel Aviv University team at the Department of Cell Research and Immunology. The team will build and test-run the actual "machine" in human bodies. Dr. Peer originally developed the scenario at Harvard University.—Internet

Iraqi driver killed, four injured in bomb attacks in Baghdad

BAGHDAD, 18 Jan — A driver of a municipal official was killed and four civilians were injured in two bomb explosions in Baghdad on Saturday, an Interior Ministry source said.

An explosive-charge stuck to the car of the head of municipal office of Mansour District detonated in Baghdad's western neighbourhood of Yarmouk, killing the driver and wounding a bystander, the source told Xinhua on condition of anonymity. The attack took place in the morning when the driver was heading to the residence of the official to take him for work, the source said.

In a separate incident, three civilians were wounded when a roadside bomb went off near a primary school in the al-Furat neighbourhood in southwestern Baghdad, the source added.

Sporadic bombings continue in Baghdad despite the announcement of the US and Iraqi officials about a steep drop of violence in recent months.

A NATO soldier killed in southern Afghanistan

KABUL, 18 Jan — A NATO soldier was killed in a clash with insurgents in southern Afghanistan, the military alliance said on Sunday.

The soldier was on a patrol when he was killed on Saturday, NATO said in a statement.

It did not release the soldier's nationality or the exact location of the clash.

Southern Afghanistan is the centre of the Taleban-led insurgency, and the world's largest drug producing area.

The Taleban have made a comeback after their initial defeat during the US-led invasion in 2001.

Violence in the war-torn country has reached a record level.

According to an Associated Press tally, 286 foreign military personnel died last year in Afghanistan, including 151 Americans and 51 Britons.

NATO has more than 52,000 soldiers in Afghanistan and there are an additional 13,000 American troops in the US-led coalition.

The deteriorating situation in Afghanistan has forced the US to deploy as many as 30,000 more soldiers to the central Asian country this year.—Internet

Bomber targets military convoy in Afghanistan

KABUL, 18 Jan — A suicide bomber driving a van packed with explosives detonated in eastern Afghanistan on Saturday, killing at least one civilian and wounding several others, including three Afghan National Army (ANA) soldiers, government spokesman Ahmadzia Abdulzai told.

The blast occurred at 12 pm (2:30 am ET) in the Chapar Har district of Nangarhar Province, near the Pakistan border, and targeted coalition and ANA forces, Abdulzai said. One coalition vehicle was destroyed. The Taleban took responsibility for the assault. Taleban spokesman Zabiullah Mujahid said the suicide attacker targeted a US military convoy, killing seven Americans and three Afghan police officers.

An International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) spokesman said there were no military fatalities.—Internet

Two US troops killed in separate Afghanistan attacks

KABUL, 18 Jan — A suicide car bomb attack on Saturday on a heavily guarded road between a US military base and the German Embassy in the Afghan capital killed one US service member and four Afghan civilians, officials said.

Separately, a US service member died when militants fired at a CH-47 transport helicopter and it made a "hard landing" in eastern Kunar Province, the US military said. Military spokesman Col Greg Julian said it wasn't immediately clear whether the incoming fire brought down the helicopter.

The attacks come at a time of increasing attention on Afghanistan as President-elect Barack Obama is set to take office. Obama has promised to increase America's focus on the deteriorating situation in Afghanistan while decreasing troop levels in Iraq.

The US has said it will send up to 30,000 new troops into Afghanistan in 2009, including some 3,000 forces in two provinces adjacent to Kabul, where militants now have free reign. The US now has some 32,000 troops in Afghanistan.—Internet

Al-Qaeda threatens Germany over presence in Afghanistan

BERLIN, 18 Jan — A presumed member of Al-Qaeda threatened Germany with reprisals for its presence in Afghanistan in a video made public late Saturday by the US centre for surveillance of Islamist sites SITE.

In the 30-minute video message, an individual calling himself Abu Talha Al-Alamani said the Germans were "gullible and naive" if they thought they could "escape unscathed when they are the third occupation force in Afghanistan."

"Letting me blow myself up in the name of Allah has been my wish since 1993," said the man whose face was hidden by a black turban, adding: "Time is running out for the Germans. I say to the German people 'arise and become just again'."

SITE said the video, in German with Arabic subtitles, had been produced by Al-Qaeda's production unit As-Sahab and was dated October 2008. Its authenticity had not been verified.

The message, headed "The Plan to Save Germany," went on: "The world economic crisis has hit the pride of the Germans head-on".

Obama rides the rails to DC for inaugural kickoff

WASHINGTON, 18 Jan — Invoking hope and history, President-elect Barack Obama rolled into the capital city on Saturday night after pledging to help bring the nation “a new Declaration of Independence” and promising to rise to the stern challenges of the times. He kicked off a four-day inaugural celebration with a daylong rail trip, retracing the path Abraham Lincoln took in 1861.

Obama began his day in Philadelphia, where he said the young nation had faced its “first true test” as a fragile democracy. He ended it in Washington, where his own tests await after his inauguration on Tuesday.

The president-in-waiting drew on a grand heritage of American giants as he appealed “not to our easy instincts but to our better angels,” an echo of Lincoln’s first inaugural address. He took note of the enormous challenges that lie ahead and promised to act with “fierce urgency,” a phrase often used by the Rev Martin Luther King Jr Riding a vintage railcar on his whistle-stop trip to Washington, Obama carried with him the hopes of a nation weary of war, frightened of economic chaos and searching for better days. Vice President-elect Joe Biden joined the journey en route, from his home in Delaware, and spoke for many when he said he was excited and ready for Tuesday. Then, sobered by the challenges of governing, Biden added: “I think it’s Wednesday we need to be ready.”—Internet

Palestinian civilians, only loser in Gaza war

RAMALLAH, 18 Jan— Israel declared a unilateral ceasefire after 22 days of offensive against the Gaza Strip on Saturday night. As both sides, Israel and Hamas, boasted their victory, Palestinian observers say that the only loser in this war is the Palestinian civilians.

At Saturday night’s press conference, Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert described the Israeli military operation as “successful,” and the army has achieved all its goals. Before announcing the ceasefire, the Israeli government signed an agreement with the United States, which Israel said will guarantee the stop of weapon smuggling to Hamas.

In addition, Olmert mentioned on Saturday night that the Jewish state has received different European countries’ offer to help solve the weapon smuggling issue.

The agreement, from the Palestinians point of view, “will bring about a real siege on Gaza,” according to the spokesman of the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) Yasser Abed Rabbo’s statement on Saturday.

On the other hand, Hamas leader Osama Hamdan said on Saturday that if Israel makes this decision from one side, “We will stay on the ground, and will continue our resistance against the Israeli occupation.”

US moves 6 Gitmo detainees, rejects hearing delays

GUANTANAMO NAVAL BASE, 18 Jan — The US Department of Defence announced on Saturday that it transferred six detainees out of Guantanamo, leaving about 245 at the offshore prison as President-elect Barack Obama prepares to take office.

Four detainees were sent to Iraq, one to Algeria and one to Afghanistan after a series of reviews, the Defence Department said in a statement. Obama has vowed to close the detention centre in southeast Cuba and stop the military commissions, or war-crimes trials.

Still, military judges rejected last-minute requests to postpone pretrial hearings scheduled to begin Monday for five men accused of orchestrating the 11 Sept attacks and a Canadian accused of killing an American soldier with a grenade in Afghanistan.

Defence lawyers have sought to halt the cases — or at least delay them pending a review by the Obama administration.

And the chief prosecutor, Army Col Lawrence Morris, said the prosecution was seeking a brief delay for “efficiency” and legal reasons.

Girl in China critically ill with bird flu

BEIJING, 18 Jan — A 2-year-old girl in northern China has tested positive for bird flu and is in critical condition — the second case of human infection in a month.

The girl fell ill on 7 Jan in central Hunan Province and was taken to a hospital by her grandparents four days later after she returned home to Shanxi Province, the Health Ministry said in a notice on its Web site late Saturday.

Tests confirmed she was infected with the H5N1 bird flu virus, it said. It did not say how the girl, surnamed Peng, was infected or what she was doing in Hunan.

“The patient is in critical condition, and the health department of Shanxi Province is sparing no efforts” to save the girl, the notice said.

All the people who had close contact with the girl were under medical observation, the ministry said, and no one else has been found ill.

The case comes at a worrisome time for authorities as tens of millions of people are on the move between cities and rural hometowns for Chinese New Year, which begins on 26 Jan.

Israel cease fire in Gaza

GAZA, 18 Jan — Israeli forces started to implement a unilateral ceasefire in the Gaza Strip early Sunday after a 22-day fierce offensive on the Hamas-ruled area.

Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert declared the truce late Saturday, beginning from 2 am (0000 GMT) Sunday, saying the goals of the operation in Gaza had been "met in full."

"We reached all of our objectives in Gaza," Olmert told a press conference in Tel Aviv, adding Hamas has been dealt a heavy blow by Israel

Defence Forces (IDF), and Hamas leaders are now in hiding.

But he ordered troops to remain in the enclave and return fire if they came under attack.

Minutes after Olmert declared the unilateral ceasefire in Gaza, Islamic Hamas movement's armed wing al-Qassam Brigades sent a statement to reporters, saying they will "continue resistance as long as the occupation of Gaza continues and the blockade is imposed."

Russian gas transit to Europe may resume soon

MOSCOW, 18 Jan — Gas supplies to Europe may soon be restarted after Russia and Ukraine reached a comprehensive agreement over their gas dispute, Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin said on Sunday.

"As our Ukrainian partner assured us, the transit will be resumed shortly," Putin said in a televised comment after talks with his Ukrainian counterpart Yulia Tymoshenko in Moscow.

Tymoshenko said the Russian and Ukrainian energy companies had to draw up agreements no later than Monday and "all natural gas supplies will resume as soon as these documents are signed."

"The talks were not easy, but we have achieved a mutual understanding that allows us to sign agreements," she added.

Under the new gas transit deal, Moscow and Kiev agreed that Russia would sell Ukraine gas "based on the European price formula" but would offer a 20 per cent discount for 2009.

"Starting from 1 January, 2010, we will completely switch to European prices standard both on gas and gas transit," Putin said. —Xinhua

Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert on Saturday evening declared a unilateral ceasefire in the Hamas-ruled Gaza Strip, beginning from 2 am (0000 GMT) Sunday, but Israeli troops will remain in the strip.

Iraqi parliament may delay voting on new speaker

BAGHDAD, 18 Jan — The Iraqi parliament probably will postpone the voting on a new speaker over persisting disputes about the candidate among parliamentary political blocs, the state-run al-Sabah newspaper said on Saturday.

"The final date for voting over the new speaker may delay for two more days to give more time for a common agreement among political blocs over the new speaker's personality," an anonymous source in the parliament was quoted as saying.

The voting by the lawmakers on a new speaker would be by secret ballot, the paper said.

Last week, the parliament decided to delay the voting on Ayad al-Samarai, the candidate of the Sunni Arab Accordance Front, an official in the parliament told Xinhua on condition of anonymity.

Chavez says Obama has “stench” of Bush

CAMPO CARABOBO, 18 Jan — Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez said on Saturday Barack Obama had the “stench” of his predecessor as US President and was at risk of being killed if he tries to change the American “empire.” Most world leaders expect a new era of US foreign relations when Obama, a Democrat, is sworn in as President on Tuesday after Republican George W Bush’s eight years in the White House.

But Chavez said frayed ties with Washington were unlikely to improve despite the departure of Bush, who the Venezuelan leader has often called the “devil”.

“I hope I am wrong, but I believe Obama brings the same stench, to not say another word,” Chavez said at a political rally on a historic Venezuelan battlefield.

“If Obama as President of the United States does not obey the orders of the empire, they will kill him, like they killed Kennedy, like they killed Martin Luther King, or Lincoln, who freed the blacks and paid with his life.”

Obama, who will be the first black president in US history, was given Secret Service protection on the campaign trail earlier than is customary for candidates and security for Tuesday’s inauguration is extremely tight. South Korean experts find way to remove lead from blood

HONG KONG, 18 Jan — South Korean scientists may have found a way to remove dangerous heavy metals such as lead from blood by using specially designed magnetic receptors.

The receptors bind strongly to lead ions and can be easily removed, along with their lead cargo, using magnets, they wrote in an article in Angewandte Chemie International Edition, a leading chemistry journal.

“Detoxification could theoretically work like hemodialysis: the blood is diverted out of the body and into a special chamber containing the biocompatible magnetic particles,” they wrote in a statement.

“By using magnetic fields, the charged magnetic particles could be fished out. The purified blood is then reintroduced to the patient.”

Lead is a dangerous heavy metal and is especially toxic to children. Safe and effective detoxification processes are especially important.

The South Korean team, led by Jong Hwa Jung at the Gyeongsang National University’s department of chemistry, managed to remove 96 per cent of lead ions from blood samples using these magnetic particles.

Combine harvesters to be manufactured locally soon

Myanmar is trying to transform its agriculture from conventional into mechanized farming. Combine-harvesters that had been innovated for over one year were demonstrated under the arrangements of the Agriculture Mechanization Department at the paddy field of U San Myint in Inn-yet Village-tract, Hmawby Township, Yangon Division, on 14 January morning.

At the clarification made at the Agriculture Mechanization Department in Kyaikkaloe, Mingaladon Township, before the demonstration, Director-General U Win Maw said that Myanmar used to be the largest rice exporting country before the World War II till 1954; that Ayeyawady Division was the granary of lower Myanmar and Sagaing Division, the granary of upper Myanmar; that in growing paddy, conventional farming was being transformed into mechanized farming; that as part of the process, a farm machinery factory was being constructed with the assistance of the People's Republic of China near Inngon Village in Kyaukse Township, and the drive called for a good deal of modern machinery; that head feed type combine harvesters,

U Soe Hlaing, Director of the Factory and Research Division.

which were appropriate for the Myanmar's farming and attracted the interest of local farmers, were manufactured in compliance with the guidance of the Head of State for boosting cultivation capability and production of quality of crops; that so innovation was carried out based on the types of combine harvesters from some Asian countries to produce the present type of combine harvesters; that the machine was introduced on 1 November 2007 and was upgraded several times and then its quality was on a par with that of some Asian countries.

In the process of innovation, five factories in Yangon under the Agriculture Mechanization Department produced 990 of 1263 parts of the combine harvester, and the 273 remaining parts were imported from China.

Deputy Director U Aung Soe said, "A combine harvester is a mixture of 80 percent of local-made and 20 percent of foreign-made parts.

"Such a machine is worth about 60 million kyats if it is imported, but it costs only about 25 million to produce one domestically. So, it saves about 35 million kyats for a unit."

Factory Manager U Aye Than said, "After we had got all kinds of parts, we started to assemble them into combine harvesters. We conducted test driving several times in Ywathagyi from 4 to 11 December 2008 and in Hmawby from 6 to 11 January, and we renovated it several times to achieve this level. A 48 HP combine harvester can do an acre of paddy field in two hours, and it consumes diesel only 1.25 gallons an hour. Paddy is hardly wasted if we use this machine."

Previously, the department charged 30,000 kyats for an acre of paddy field, using the use of foreign-made machines. Now, it is planning to assemble five more combine harvesters to reap paddy fields of farmers at reasonable charges and then to manufacture combine harvesters for those farmers wishing to get them for agricultural purpose.

UN provides $5m for Zimbabwe health workers

HARERE, 18 Jan — The UN children's fund UNICEF said on Saturday it had set up a 5 million-US-dollar fund to provide salaries for workers in Zimbabwe's ailing health sector.

Health workers in the southern African country — where many public hospitals have been forced to close due to a shortage of staff, drugs and equipment — have been refusing to turn up for work, demanding salaries in foreign currency.

They recently rejected a government offer of 50-US dollars for the lowest paid and 850 US dollars for doctors per month.

"I'm pleased to announce today that the United Nations will be providing five million-US dollars for salaries for health workers. We want to provide resources for health care workers so they remain in their jobs," UNICEF executive director Ann Veneman told a news conference in Harare.

"It (the money) is going through a trust fund set up by some of the donors to provide incentives for health care workers to continue turning up for work."

Veneman and UNICEF officials would not give details about how the fund would work, except to say payments would be made to workers through the trust, not the government.—MNA/Reuters

Congo Govt, diplomats optimistic on peace deal

KISHASA, 18 Jan — A pledge by Congolese Tutsi rebels to abandon their four-year insurgency marks a major step towards ending more than a decade of conflict in the war-ravaged east, Congo's Government and foreign diplomats said on Saturday.

A delegation of commanders from the rebel National Congress for the Defence of the People (CNDP), led by military chief General Bosco Ntaganda, said on Friday it was ready to end its war on government troops and reintegrate with the Army.

On Saturday, PA-RECO, the largest pro-government militia operating in eastern Congo and one of the CNDP's primary enemies, said it too was placing its fighters under government command.

"For the government, this is a very good thing that renders the evolution towards peace more real. This is a significant advance," Information Minister Lambert Mende told Reuters.—MNA/Reuters

Sino-US trade grows at slower pace upon financial crisis

BEIJING, 18 Jan—China's trade with the United States took the blunt of the financial crisis to slow down in the first 11 months of 2008, the General Administration of Customs said on Saturday.

Between January and November last year, the bilateral trade amounted to 307.82 billion US dollars, a growth of 11.6 per cent on the same period of 2007.

The growth rate was 3.9 percentage points lower than the year-earlier level, or 9.3 percentage points below that for China's total external trade.

The bilateral trade volume included 233.09 billion US dollars in export value, up 9.6 per cent, and 74.73 billion US dollars in import value, up 18.5 per cent. The growth rate for exports was 5.6 percentage points lower than the year-earlier level, but that for imports was 1.6 percentage points higher. China's trade surplus with the United States went up 5.8 per cent to 158.36 billion US dollars, accounting for 61.9 per cent of China's total trade surplus for the 11-month period.—MNA/Xinhua

Eritrea rejects UN demand for border pull-back

NAIROBI, 18 Jan—Eritrea has rejected a UN Security Council demand that it withdraw military forces from its border with Djibouti within five weeks. Djibouti accuses its Horn of Africa neighbour of sending troops across the frontier last June, triggering several days of battles that killed a dozen Djiboutian troops and wounded dozens more. Eritrea denies making any incursions.

"Under strong pressure from self-interested powers, the UN Security Council...adopted an ill-considered, unbalanced and unnecessary resolution against Eritrea," the Foreign Ministry in Asmara said in a statement on Thursday night. "Any balanced examination of the situation would lead to the conclusion that this measure cannot have been motivated by any genuine considerations of the rule of law." Djibouti hosts US and French military bases and is the main route to the sea for Eritrea's arch-foe and Washington's main regional ally, Ethiopia. N Korea says plutonium “weaponized” and off-limits

BEIJING, 18 Jan — North Korea says it has “weaponized” enough plutonium for four to five nuclear weapons, a US expert said on Saturday after talks in Pyongyang.

North Korea has made a series of demands as well as offers of cooperation over its nuclear program as US President-elect Barack Obama prepares to enter the White House.

The North's leader Kim Jong-il appears to have given up handling many day-to-day tasks after suffering a stroke and this may explain the North's hardening stance, Selig Harrison, a scholar at the Woodrow Wilson International Centre for Scholars, a policy institute in Washington D.C., said.

Harrison said senior North Korean officials had told him this week that 30.8 kilogrammes (68 pounds) of plutonium their government had listed as part of a preliminary disarmament agreement had been “weaponized”—incorporated into warheads or other arms.

Cuba says US embargo blocking human rights

HAVANA, 18 Jan—Cuba has blamed the long-standing United States trade embargo for limiting human rights on the Communist-run island, in a report to the United Nations released on Friday.

“The policy of hostility, blockade and aggression by successive US Governments against Cuba has been a serious obstacle to full enjoyment of human rights and fundamental liberties of Cubans,” said the report, which Cuba submitted to the UN Human Rights Council.

It said such things as the right to live in peace and to free will were damaged by the embargo, which the United States imposed against Cuba almost 47 years ago.

It went on to say that Cuba respects, among other things, the right to health and education and to religious freedom.

Cuba is often criticized for suppressing political dissent, free speech, a free Press and the right to travel. Opponents say more than 200 dissidents are currently in Cuban jails.

The Cuban Government blames many of its human rights shortcomings on having to fend off five decades of US attempts to topple its government.

Dissident Elizardo Sanchez, head of the illegal but tolerated Cuban Commission on Human Rights, criticized the report, which the UN council will use when it reviews Cuba's rights situation next month. —MNA/Reuters

Indian PM urges speedy Pakistan probe into attacks

MUMBAI, 18 Jan—Indian Prime Minister Manmohan Singh on Saturday urged Pakistan to fully disclose all facts about the attack in Mumbai last November that killed 179 people and to act swiftly against militant groups on its soil.

India has sent evidence to Pakistan that it said linked Pakistani militants to the attacks and has asked for the suspects to be extradited.

“We expect Pakistan to take all the consequent next steps against all those who have planned, organized and executed these horrific crimes,” Singh said at a function at the Trident hotel, one of the sites attacked by 10 gunmen. Pakistan's de facto Interior Minister Rehman Malik said the government had directed its investigating team to complete its inquiry within 10 days.

“It's a 10-day deadline with the instructions to do it as quickly as possible. The report of their findings can come even before 10 days,” the adviser to the prime minister on interior matters told a news conference.

Take Fire Preventive Measures

Almost all US cities to lose jobs in 2009

WASHINGTON, 18 Jan—All but five US cities will experience job losses this year, with New York suffering the largest decline, according to a forecast released by the US Conference of Mayors on Saturday.

Global Insight, an international economic forecasting firm that put together the outlook for the mayors' group, projected that by the end of 2009 one-third of all metropolitan areas in the country would have experienced no overall job growth for the first decade of the century.

New York will likely shed 181,000 jobs this year, with more than 50,000 in the financial services industry alone, the firm said. Los Angeles will lose 164,000 jobs. Overall, 171 cities will see job losses in excess of 2 per cent through 2009.

Unemployment rates will rise above 10 per cent this year in 70 of the 363 metropolitan areas in the United States, Global Insight said.

In November, 23 cities had jobless rates of at least 10 per cent, according to a report released this month by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, while 121 had rates of at least 7 percent. Metropolitan areas are home to 90 per cent of the country's wage income, according to the firm.—MNA/Reuters

Nepal steps up culling in first bird flu outbreak

KATHMANDU, 18 Jan—Dozens of veterinary workers in protective suits descended on a town in east Nepal on Saturday to intensify culling of poultry to prevent the spread of bird flu after the H5N1 virus was first detected in the Himalayan nation.

"Teams with safety masks, head covers, body gowns, shoes, gloves and goggles have already been sent and they will intensify culling today or tomorrow," said Prabhakar Pathak, chief of the department of livestock services in Kathmandu on Saturday.

Bird flu was detected in chickens and ducks in the densely populated town of Kakarvitta, 275 kilometres (172 miles), southeast of capital Kathmandu, authorities said on Friday, piling on problems for the Maoist-led government in the impoverished country.

British chain bans eggs from caged hens

LONDON, 18 Jan—Sainsbury's, the third-largest supermarket chain in England, says it will stop selling eggs from hens kept in tight quarters called battery cages.

The grocer plans to only sell eggs from uncaged hens in what is considered a major victory for animal rights groups, which oppose cages, The Times of London reported on Saturday.

"We are delighted that all Sainsbury's shoppers will now enjoy higher welfare eggs whilst the other major retailers still continue with over half their eggs coming from caged hens," said Sainsbury's egg buyer

Finbar Cartlidge.

Sainsbury's action comes three years before a European Union-wide ban on conventional factory-farm produced eggs comes into force.

"It's fantastic news. When Sainsbury's makes a move like this it has huge impact, making animal welfare more mainstream," said Rowen West-Henzell, food business manager for Compassion in World Farming. "They are doing the right thing on behalf of the consumer. My question to the other retailers is why aren't they responding? They've got a lot of catching up to do."

Author says chopsticks help weight loss

LONDON, 18 Jan—Using chopsticks helps you eat less and lose weight, says Kimiko Barber, author of "The Chopsticks Diet."

The human brain takes 20 minutes to register what the stomach contains, so using chopsticks slows a person's consumption, leaving them feeling satisfied while eating less, Barber said.

Chopsticks users also take smaller bites, which means food tends to be chewed more, making it easier to digest, she told The Daily Telegraph in a story published on Saturday. In Britain alone, an estimated 10 million people—24 percent of the population—are clinically obese, The Telegraph reported, noting a third of the country is expected to qualify as obese by 2012 if eating habits remain the same. Manager vanishes with hedge funds' value

SARASOTA, 18 Jan — Arthur Nadel, a Florida hedge-fund manager and philanthropist suspected of scamming his clients has disappeared, leaving a suicide note, authorities said. His wife, Peg Nadel, reported his disappearance to police this week, the Sarasota Herald-Tribune reported.

Neil V Moody, Arthur Nadel's partner, told clients on Thursday the partners' three funds — Viking, Valhalla and Scoop — appeared to be out of money, the newspaper said. Moody reportedly told clients he was not involved with trading and did not know about any problems until this week.

"Unfortunately, just yesterday afternoon we became aware of an extremely serious situation suggesting that the funds may have virtually no remaining value," Moody said in a statement to clients. As recently as November, clients were told their investments were up 8 percent despite turmoil in global markets.

The Nadels were generous to charities that included Habitat for Humanity, Girls Inc. and Jewish Family & Children's Services. None of those groups had invested money with Nadel, but some non-profits did, including the Sarasota YMCA Foundation, the newspaper said.

Loch Lomond has deep canyon underneath

EDINBURGH, 18 Jan — The first survey of Loch Lomond in 147 years has found Scotland's most famous loch is 600 feet deep in places with sheer cliffs lining an underwater canyon.

The British Geological Survey used the latest technology — multi-beam sonar — to map the floor of Loch Lomond, The Scotsman reported. The last time the bottom of the loch was surveyed, in 1861, Captain HC Otter of the Admiralty used fishing line with lead weights attached to take soundings from a rowboat.

Loch Lomond is deeper than the North Sea. The loch was gouged out by a glacier as the last Ice Age ended with a deeply sculpted northern end. The southern end of the loch is wider and shallower. "The challenge was to produce a detailed map of the loch floor," said Alan Stevenson, who led the mapping team. "At some points it is 190 metres deep at the north end and you don't find that in the open Atlantic until you get out beyond St Kilda."

Quake experts say Calif buildings at risk

LOS ANGELES, 18 Jan — Thousands of so-called soft-story apartments in California remain vulnerable to earthquakes, experts say. The Los Angeles Times reported on Saturday that just 800 of 20,000 such buildings in Los Angeles have been retrofitted since the Northridge earthquake in 1994, when the Northridge Meadows apartment complex collapsed, killing 16 people.

The state Seismic Safety Commission says only one county and about a dozen cities, including Los Angeles, have even begun to address multi-unit buildings that have a weak ground floor.

“It’s an issue we need to go back and address again,” said Los Angeles Councilman Greig Smith. As a councilman’s aide, he helped pass a local ordinance encouraging voluntary retrofits soon after the Northridge quake, which was a magnitude 6.7 temblor. “It was a partial fix, and there needs to be a complete fix,” Smith said.

After the Northridge quake, the Seismic Safety Commission recommended that addressing existing buildings that were vulnerable in earthquakes should be one of the state’s top priorities.

Vietnam, Cambodia boost neighbourliness

HANOI, 18 Jan— Comprehensive cooperation and border demarcation were two of the topics in the spotlight during discussions between Vietnamese National Assembly Chairman Nguyen Phu Trong and Cambodian National Assembly President Samdech Heng Samrin, the Vietnam News Agency reported on Friday.

Samdech Heng Samrin paid an official friendship visit to Vietnam from 15 January to 19 January, at the invitation of his Vietnamese counterpart Nguyen Phu Trong. Trong praised Samdech Heng Samrin’s outstanding contributions to strengthening and developing the friendship and cooperation between the two countries, after congratulating him on his re-election as Chairman of Cambodia National Assembly. Vietnam always nurtures the traditional friendly ties and comprehensive cooperation with Cambodia under the motto of “good neighbourliness, traditional friendship and comprehensive and long-lasting cooperation”, said Trong.—Internet

Another show of wobbles raises doubts over Nalbandian's tennis

SYDNEY, 18 Jan—David Nalbandian heads to the Australian Open fresh from taking his 10th ATP title, but another bout of mid-match wobbles in the final have raised old doubts about whether he can ever win a grand slam.

Nalbandian comes to Melbourne unbeaten in four matches this year after becoming the first Argentine ever to win the Sydney International, capturing the title on Saturday night.

But the Argentine, whose 2002 Wimbledon final is his best return in 28 grand slams, again displayed one of the anxiety attacks that have beset his career during his three-set win over Finnish journeyman Jarkko Nieminen.

Johnson leads at Sony Open, but 18-year-old in mix

HONOLULU, 18 Jan—Tadd Fujikawa returned to the putting green late Saturday afternoon, hours after his 8-under 62 put his name atop the leaderboard at the Sony Open and showed everyone he was serious about becoming the PGA Tour's youngest winner ever.

With the sun setting behind him, Fujikawa's shadow stretched across the green. At 5-foot-1, he never felt bigger. Fujikawa made birdies on half of his holes for the best round of his life, pulling him within two shots of former Masters champion Zach Johnson and giving golf its biggest buzz since the Ryder Cup.

Johnson had a bogey-free 66 for the lead, but it's so crowded at the top that a dozen players were separated by three shots, giving just about everyone a chance to win—even an 18-year-old senior in high school.

Arsenal ramp up Arshavin pursuit

HULL, 18 Jan—Arsenal will step-up their bid to sign Andrei Arshavin this week by sending a delegation to eastern Europe in the hope of securing a 20-million-pound deal for the Russian international.

Arshavin is expected to hold another round of talks with Arsenal chief executive Ivan Gazidis with manager Arsene Wenger desperate to land the playmaker before the transfer window closes as hopes of winning silverware begin to fade.

But Wenger could face a battle to keep striker Emmanuel Adebayor at the Emirates. Adebayor, who scored in his side's hard-fought 3-1 win at Hull City on Saturday, is a target of AC Milan and Barcelona.

Manchester City later this week, have untold riches to spend on finding a replacement and want Adebayor at the San Siro.

Arsenal would find a 30-million-pound offer for the Togo international difficult to refuse, but Wenger is more concerned with the thankless task of trying to catch Manchester United at the top of the Premier League table.

Benitez contract row overshadows crunch derby

LIVERPOOL, 18 Jan—Rafael Benitez has attempted to reassure Liverpool fans that uncertainty over his future will not seep through to the dressing room ahead of Monday's crucial derby game with Everton at Anfield.

Benitez revealed on Friday that talks over a contract extension had stalled, sparking fears that the Spaniard is ready to quit the club he joined in 2004.

His current deal expires in the summer of 2010 yet negotiations between Benitez's agent and Liverpool's co-owners Tom Hicks and George Gillett have ended without the two parties being able to agree on the extent of the manager's remit. Benitez is happy with the financial terms of the deal but has demanded more control over football matters, and is adamant that he should not have to answer to chief executive Rick Parry over the buying and selling of players.

Benitez is negotiating from a position of strength with Liverpool mounting a serious challenge for their first title since 1990, and Hicks has insisted the outstanding contractual issues can be resolved.—Internet

Drogba's future at Chelsea in doubt

LONDON, 18 Jan—Didier Drogba's future at Chelsea has been thrown into doubt after the Ivory Coast striker was again excluded from Luiz Felipe Scolari's squad for the dramatic 2-1 win over Stoke.

Drogba had been dropped for the midweek FA Cup victory over Southend in the wake of a lacklustre display in last weekend's heavy defeat against Manchester United. And the decision of Scolari to include teenagers Franco Di Santo and Miroslav Stoch on the substitutes bench ahead of Drogba underlined how far the former Marseille star has fallen out of favour.

The gamble looked set to backfire on Scolari when his side trailed struggling Stoke to Rory

River water pumping projects in Taikkyi Township benefiting 12,523 acres of arable lands

Article: Tin Htwe (MNA); Photos: WRUD

Under the supervision of the Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation, the Water Resources Utilization Department is implementing three aims: to pump up water from rivers and creeks, to undertake underground water tapping and to efficiently use water in agriculture tasks across the nation.

As part of efforts to benefit the agriculture tasks, the department implemented river water pumping projects in Taikkyi, Htantabin, Hmawby, Mingaladon, Hlegu and Thanlyin townships of Yangon Division.

At present, five river water pumping projects in Taikkyi Township are benefiting 12,523 acres of cultivable lands.

Aingkalaung river water pumping project site, located on the Aphyauk-Taikkyi road near Aingkalaung Village in Taikkyi Township, uses water from Hline River to irrigate 5,000 acres of farmlands.

The project pumps water as high as 32 feet, with a water-pumping platform, the 2.67 miles long main canal, tributary canals stretching 14.88 miles in total and six sets of 132 KW water pump.

Alabok river water pumping project, near Alabok Village of Taikkyi Township, is pumping water from Hline River to benefit 1,120 acres of farmlands. The project also pumps water as high as 20 feet, with a Slight changes in climate may trigger abrupt ecosystem responses

Forest fire near Bailey, Colorado. A new analysis shows that slight changes in climate may trigger major abrupt ecosystem responses — including insect outbreaks, wildfire, and forest dieback — that are not easily reversible.

SCIENCE DAILY, 18 Jan — Slight changes in climate may trigger major abrupt ecosystem responses that are not easily reversible.

Some of these responses, including insect outbreaks, wildfire, and forest dieback, may adversely affect people as well as ecosystems and their plants and animals.

The US Geological

Survey led a new assessment of the implications of a warming world on "ecological thresholds" in North America. The report, which was commissioned by the US Climate Change Science Program and authored by a team of federal and academic climate scientists, is based on a synthesis of published scientific literature and addresses what research and steps are needed to help mitigate resulting effects.

An ecological threshold is the point at which there is an abrupt change in an ecosystem that produces large, persistent and potentially irreversible changes.—Internet

New family of antibacterial agents uncovered

Hydra.

KIEL, 18 Jan — As bacteria resistant to commonly used antibiotics continue to increase in number, scientists keep searching for new sources of drugs. One potential new bactericide has now been found in the tiny freshwater animal Hydra.

The protein identified by Joachim Grötzinger, Thomas Bosch and colleagues at the University of Kiel, hydramacin-1, is unusual (and also clinically valuable) as it shares virtually no similarity with any other known antibacterial proteins except for two antimicrobials found in another ancient animal, the leech.

Hydramacin proved to be extremely effective though; in a series of laboratory experiments, this protein could kill a wide range of both Gram-positive and Gram-negative bacteria, including clinically-isolated drug-resistant strains like Klebsiella oxytoca (a common cause of nosocomial infections). Hydramacin works by sticking to the bacterial surface, promoting the clumping of nearby bacteria, then disrupting the bacterial membrane.

Real Madrid match Kaka offer?

MADRID, 18 Jan — Real Madrid are reportedly ready to match Manchester City's offer for Kaka, so he could force Milan to wait until the summer.

Rossoneri general manager Adriano Galliani had refused to part with the Ballon d'Or winner when Real made a reported £80m bid last year, but times have changed.

"The world is now worth half of what it was a year ago," he warned after last night's 1-0 win over Fiorentina.

"I have the same feelings as the fans and love this club, but as general manager I have to keep sentiment and reasoning together."

Milan are eager to cash in on Kaka, but Manchester City do not provide a draw for the player, as they are unlikely to qualify for the Champions League for at least another year.—Internet
