Accessible learning opportunities in own regions

Now peace and prosperity and progress have been achieved in the Union as the government is creating better conditions in transport and communications, economic and social sectors including the education field.

Education foundation must be sound for lasting existence of a society. High education standard indicates dignity and status of a nation and its people. With high efficiency and education every citizen can surely contribute towards the development of the nation and the people.

This is why the government is building educational infrastructures for local youths to gain opportunities of higher learning in important regions of the Union.

Technological University (Loikaw) of Technical and Vocational Education Department of the Ministry of Science and Technology was inaugurated in Loikaw the other day. In 24 special regions including Loikaw higher learning institutions were built. Each region has an arts and science university, a technological university and a university of computer studies. Local people can now learn higher education in their own region.

Today there has been an enormous and wider development in science and technology and electronics industry. At the same time, it is necessary to turn out more and more qualified human resources.

There is equal learning opportunity for all the local youths in the education sector as the government is building development infrastructures in all the states and divisions. We urge the students to learn advanced science and technology hard and to apply them in the practical field to serve national and regional interest.

UN chief strongly condemns suicide bomb attack in Iraq

UNITED NATIONS, 14 Feb—UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon on Friday strongly condemned the suicide bomb attack which killed 35 Shi'a pilgrims near Baghdad.

Ban, in a statement issued here by his spokesperson, said, "These acts cannot be justified by any political or religious cause and must be condemned in the strongest possible terms."

The secretary-general, who was appalled by the Friday's attack," joins with the people of Iraq in rejecting these cruel and reprehensible attempts to reignite sectarian violence in the country," the statement said.

"He also calls on Iraqi leaders to work together in a spirit of national dialogue and mutual respect as demonstrated during the peaceful provincial elections held last month," the statement added.

Last Russian general warns US on Afghanistan

Moscow, 14 Feb—Twenty years after Red Army troops pulled out of Afghanistan, the last general to command them says the Soviets' devastating experience is a dismal omen for US plans to build up troops there. On Friday, the anniversary of the Soviet departure from the Afghan capital, the Russian parliament's lower house adopted a resolution honoring the soldiers who "were faithful to the warrior's duty, who displayed heroism, bravery and patriotism."

In retired Gen Boris Gromov's view, the valor was shown in an unwinnable battle.

"Afghanistan taught us an invaluable lesson ... It has been and always will be impossible to solve political problems using force," said Gromov, the last soldier to leave Afghanistan two days after the Kabul pullout.

He told reporters that US plans to send thousands of new troops to Afghanistan would make no difference against a resurgent Taliban, who came to power in 1996 in the chaos after the Soviet withdrawal.

BAGHDAD, 14 Feb—A female suicide bomber struck a tent filled with women and children resting during a pilgrimage south of Baghdad on Friday, killing 40 people and wounding about 80 in the deadliest of three straight days of attacks against Shiite worshippers.

The grisly assault, which also appeared to be the deadliest in Iraq this year, demonstrates the determination of some extremists to reignite sectarian warfare. It also underscores how fragile security remains here, even as the US turns over more responsibility to the Iraqis.

Witnesses said many of the injured were hurt in a stampede as terrified survivors — most of them poor Shiites exhausted after days of walking — scrambled away from the tent in terror.

They left behind piles of clothing, small rugs and toddlers' strollers, Associated Press Television News video showed. A dismembered leg believed to have been the bomber's lay wrapped in an abaya in a cardboard box.

Noise, fuel-dumping cause anger at US Kyrgyz base

MRAMORNAYA, 14 Feb—For many in this ramshackle village just outside the last US base in Central Asia, news the Americans may be leaving hasn't come a moment too soon. Villagers voice grievances about pollution, airplane noise and the killing of a Kyrgyz citizen by an Air Force serviceman. Some also fear the American presence could drag their country into a regional conflict.

Kyrgyz President Kurmanbek Bakiyev took Washington by surprise this month in announcing the closure of the Manas air base, which the US wants as a springboard for sending thousands more troops to Afghanistan

Bakiyev's government has accused the US of refusing to pay enough for the base and has gotten a better offer from Russia. But the opposition of ordinary Kyrgyz to the base would make it easier to evict the Americans. Bakiyev is under pressure because of the deepening economic crisis and is expected to call early presidential elections this year. ## South Korean, Philippine sailors freed by Somali pirates

SEOUL, 14 Feb—Somali pirates have released an oil tanker and its crew of 23 sailors from South Korea and the Philippines after holding them hostage for three months, South Korea's foreign ministry said on Saturday. The Chemstar Venus, a Japanese-operated combined chemical and oil tanker, was hijacked off the coast of Somalia in mid-November. It had a crew of 18 Filipinos and five South Koreans.

"The sailors are all safe and the South Korean crew will return home," the ministry said in a statement.

There was no mention of whether a ransom was paid for the release of the sailors and the 20,000 deadweight tonne vessel.

Last year, gunmen from the anarchic Horn of Africa nation hijacked dozens of ships and won tens of millions of dollars in ransom payments.

The South Korean government would send a navy vessel soon to the Gulf of Aden to protect the country's commercial vessels from pirates, the statement added. Other nations have sent naval ships to the region to combat the threat of pirates.—Internet

Somali pirates release Japanese ship with 23 crew

NAIROBI, 14 Feb—Somali pirates have released a Japanese cargo ship which was seized in mid November off the Horn of Africa nation's coast with 23 crew, a regional maritime organization said on Friday.

A statement from Ecoterra International said the Panama-flagged MT Chemstar Venus, whose crewmen include five South Koreans and Filipinos, was released on Thursday evening after being hijacked by an armed group in waters off Somalia on 15 November, 2008. Ecoterra International, an organization monitoring piracy in the region, said the ship was freed after a ransom was paid to the pirates. "MT Chemstar Venus, sea-jacked on 15 November, 2008, was released last evening. Last minute conflicts among the pirates as well as between the captors of the vessel and the owner could be solved. The last of her captors left around 22:30hrs after having received a ransom delivered by tug-boat," the statement said. ## Anger grows in Britain as recession deepens LONDON, 14 Feb—As the recession bites harder in Britain, concerns are growing amongst the unemployed as to how they are going to pay their bills or find another job. There is rising anger directed towards the government and more recently top bankers.

The public has complained that politicians' daily rhetoric is not solving Britain's economic problems. Many see government actions as only bailing out the banks and financial institutions rather than helping the ever increasing number of jobless and falling businesses.

Britain is witnessing the highest ever level of unemployment since 1997. The number of jobless rose to 1.97 million between October and December 2008, according to the latest official figures.

Nearly 3,000 people are being made redundant every day in Britain. To better depict this worrying situation, British media have drawn parallels to the 1980's Conservative party election campaign, when a famous poster showed a long queue of unemployed under the banner "Labour isn't Working."

The psychological blow brought by the recession has been felt by the public since late last year. This week, the Bank of England warned of a "deep recession" for 2009.—Internet

New US envoy in Afghanistan to assess security

KABUL, 14 Feb—US President Barack Obama's new envoy to Afghanistan and Pakistan met key ministers in the Afghan capital on Friday, two days after triple Taliban attacks in the city demonstrated just how much security is deteriorating.

Wednesday's attacks on Government buildings show how hard it is for the Afghan Government and its Western backers to ensure security, even with dozens of police checkpoints in Kabul and armed guards at the entrance of every state office. Holbrooke met with the Afghan ministers of defence and the interior, the head of the national intelligence agency and President Hamid Karzai's security adviser at the heavily guarded US Embassy, an Afghan Government official said.

He is due to meet Karzai later in the day, said the official, who declined to be named. Holbrooke, who arrived in Kabul after four days in Pakistan, has so far been tight-lipped during his first trip to the region in his new role as Obama's point man on the conflict that has become a US foreign policy priority.

We are proud to be Myanmar

Kyei Sin Naing

The anthropoid primate excavated in Pondaung region, Myanmar, is aged at about 40 million years, so Myanmar people can be proud to claim human being originated in Myanmar.

Bagan is the most wonderful region in Southeast Asia for its rich archaeological and cultural heritage. The religious edifices of Bagan Period reveal that Buddha Sasana of Myanmar reached its peak and the arts of architectures, wall paintings and the ten traditional crafts improved remarkably. Apart from touchable things such as pagodas, stupas, temples and royal city walls, Myanmar possesses religious faith and high civilization. So, the people are under the national duty to preserve the cultural heritage. Due to such high cultural standard in successive periods, moral and cultural standards of the people can be deemed to be high, which is evidenced by their deep belief in the religious faith, consolidated unity, high generosity, and high intellectual power.

In the Bagan Period, Buddha Sasana flourished as bright as the sun shines at noon. In the period, Myanmar not only witnessed high standards of architecture, wall painting, and ten traditional handicrafts, but also wielded great power and influence. The archaeological sites indicate that the people of Bagan Period were united and brave with high intelligence.

Palm leaf manuscripts and paper parchments depict that fine arts such as literature and music flourished in Pinya, Innwa, Toungoo, Nyaungyan and Konbaung periods. So, it can be deduced that ancient Myanmar people were gentle, dynamic, and calm.

The people of today are descendants of ancient Myanmar, so the people should innovate and improve cultural heritage. In the Stone Age and Iron Age, it needed a large number of people to construct large buildings, but now such buildings can be constructed in a short time due to advanced technologies and machinery. And man can make a long journey in hours, for which ancient people had to take many days with the use of pony carts and bullock carts.

Today, there has been rapid changes in science and technology, and due to the globalization process, the global community is like a village. So, diverse cultures of the countries are spreading to each other. Many countries with military and technological superiority are trying to wield influence over small countries.

Under the circumstances, Myanmar faces the danger of losing cultural heritage that the people have relayed from one generation to the next in successive periods. The ancestors of the people inherited future generations fine traditions of politeness, gratitude and forbearance which are based on the religious faith.

It is required of the people to have awareness about the threat of possible deep penetration of alien culture into the nation. As the saying that goes, "If culture is no more, a people will be no more", the people have to safeguard own culture from being influenced by alien culture. With this concept in view, the government organizes Myanmar Traditional Cultural Performing Arts Competitions, and contests and talks on traditional costumes that target the youth. So, the people have to relay younger generations cultural heritage such as patriotic fervour, nationalistic spirit, honesty, bravery, politeness, professing deeply the religious faith, preservation of national prestige and integrity, unity, gratitude and compassion, for which Myanmar has a good reputation in the global community. It would be very heart-rending for the nation if the people exercise such noble traditions only theoretically, not practically.

Militarily strong countries are proud of their military power; economically strong countries, of their strong economy; the countries with religious domination, of their religion; and the countries with high education standard, of their education. Myanmar is proud of its high cultural standard.

A variety of sorts of the cultural heritage—religious edifices, wall paintings, handicrafts, palm-leaf manuscripts, paper parchments, excavated pots, beads, urns, and city walls are necessary for making Myanmar's very long history well-known to the international community. Myanmar still has many archaeological sites to be excavated. The people are to preserve and safeguard the cultural heritage that testifies the cultural standard of the nation. The youth have to shoulder archaeological tasks to be able to stay in touch with the history. In that case, the government is dealing with the unearthed artifacts and giving educative talks to the people through media.

Now in the world, Myanmar is the only country in which the people wear traditional costumes. So, the people have to preserve traditional costumes, ideas, code of conduct, and belief.

Of the things that have spread to the nation due to the globalization, the people have to accept suitable ones and stay away from decadent ones. Myanmar has been able to preserve well its culture. It managed to revive own culture that somewhat degraded in the colonial rule of over 100 years.

The people are responsible for preserving and improving cultural heritage in accordance with the cultural trend of the world. The youth of today are under the bounden duty of improving the cultural trend of the nation in order that future generations will be able to be proud of the high cultural standard of the motherland.

In fact, Myanmar people built and innovated the culture in conformity with the geographical features, innate nature of the people and climate. That is the key to why Myanmar people have managed to preserve traditional costumes, diet and lifestyle till today.

Honesty, friendship and forbearance of the people plucked the nation from obscurity at the international level. Moreover, the people's sharp sensitivity to unfair treatment, a fine legacy handed down by forefathers, has attracted the attention of the international community. It is heartening to witness Myanmar traditional festivals portraying unity, mutual help and deep profession to the religious faith.

In retrospect, Myanmar had already seen civilization since pre-historic period. And it has preserved firmly the culture, customs and fine traditions. Myanmar has been able to stand tall in the world. A citizen can be proud to be a Myanmar national only if he preserves and relays culture and fine traditions to younger generations.

Redknapp predicts lengthy Chelsea stay for Hiddink

TOTTENHAM, 14 Feb—Tottenham Hotspur manager Harry Redknapp expects Guus Hiddink to stay at Chelsea long beyond the end of the 2008/09 Premiership campaign.

The Dutchman has been appointed as Luiz Felipe Scolari's successor at Stamford Bridge, yet he has only agreed a deal until the summer as he refuses to relinquish control of the Russian national side.

Penguins marching into trouble

SCIENCE DAILY, 14 Feb — Imagine you live in the suburbs of Chicago and you must commute hundreds of miles to a job in Iowa just to put food on the table. Magellanic penguins living on the Atlantic coast of Argentina face a similar scenario, and it is taking a toll. The penguins' survival is being challenged by wide variability in conditions and food availability, said Dee Boersma, a University of Washington biology professor and a leading authority on Magellanic penguins.

For example, while one parent incubates eggs on the nest the other must go off to find food. But these days, Boersma said, penguins often must swim 25 miles farther to find food than they did just a decade ago.

However, Redknapp believes that once 62-year-old Hiddink gets to grips with life in the Premier League, he will be eager to sit down with the Blues paymasters and discuss a long-term contract to remain at the helm.

"I think he is here to stay," Redknapp said in the Sun.

"I just cannot see Hiddink suddenly upping sticks and moving on when the season's over. Hiddink and [Chelsea owner] Roman Abramovich are close and they have been particularly close since Jose Mourinho left the club.

"Hiddink is also a world-class manager, not the sort of bloke happy to come in and hold the fort for someone else to arrive in the summer and say 'thanks very much, I'll take over from all your good work now'.

"I think that once he gets here, Guus will be here for a long time."

Internet

"That distance might not sound like much, but they also have to swim another 25 miles back, and they are swimming that extra 50 miles while their mates are back at the breeding grounds, sitting on a nest and starving," she said.

UK anti-Semitic attacks rise after Gaza conflict

LONDON, 14 Feb — The number of anti-Semitic attacks on British Jews rose sharply after the start of the conflict in Gaza, a Jewish charity said on Friday.

The London-based Community Security Trust, which monitors anti-Semitism and works to safeguard the Jewish community in Britain, said 250 anti-Semitic incidents were recorded in the four weeks after 27 Dec, when Israel launched attacks on Gaza to stop Hamas rocket attacks.

That compares to 40 incidents from the same period the year before.

Dave Rich, a spokesman for the trust, said Jews in Britain are unfairly seen as local representatives of Israel — a view that fuels some of the anti-Semitic attacks.

“This is racism,” he said. “And like all forms of racism, it is unacceptable.”

The trust said crimes included assaults, damage to Jewish property, threats, hate mail, verbal abuse and anti-Semitic graffiti.

Police figures echo this rise. London police have recorded about three times the number of anti-Semitic incidents from 27 Dec to 3 Feb as compared to the same period last year. Though some of that increase came from a change in the way the statistics were kept, the data still reflected a surge in incidents in the capital.—Internet

Israeli warplanes strike on N Gaza

GAZA, 14 Feb — Israeli F16 warplanes struck on Friday night two targets near Jabalia refugee camp in northern Gaza Strip, no injuries were reported, witnesses said.

Jabalia residents said the Israeli aircraft hovered over the northern area of the Gaza Strip, where two big successive explosions struck the area, adding the two explosions were a result of Israeli missiles fired at east of the refugee camp.

Earlier on Friday, Israeli F16 warplanes carried out three separate airstrikes on the borderline area between southern Gaza Strip town of Rafah and Egypt, adding that the air strikes targeted underground tunnels used for smuggling.

The Israeli airstrikes on the Gaza Strip came after a pro-Hezbollah group claimed responsibility for launching two homemade rockets from the Gaza Strip at the southern Israeli towns of Sderout and Ashkol.—Internet

Petrobras discovers evidence of oil off Iran's coast

RIO DE JANEIRO, 14 Feb—Brazil's state-owned oil and gas company Petrobras has discovered evidence of hydrocarbons in ultra-deep water in the Persian Gulf off the coast of Iran, company officials said on Friday.

Petrobras signed a contract in 2004 to develop exploration projects in the Persian Gulf off Iran. The company so far has invested 100 million US dollars in the drilling of two wells, Zelada said.

He said the type of partnership with Iran has not been discussed yet and will be determined only if the discovery proves to be of commercial value.

Essex greengrocer stung by scorpion

An Essex greengrocer has been rushed to hospital after being stung by a scorpion hiding in a box of bananas.

Daniel Amey thought that he had scratched his finger until it swelled up. While being treated at hospital, doctors discovered a scorpion's tail in his finger and promptly removed it and drew out the venom.

“I put my hand in the box and thought I had cut it but by the time I was carrying the bananas, my finger had swollen up to twice its size and it felt like it was burning,” he said.

Mexican troops kills hitmen in desert shootout

MEXICO CITY, 14 Feb—Mexican troops turned the tables on three suspected drug hitmen today, shooting them dead after an ambush in the desert near the US border, where cartel violence has killed 21 others this week. Three gunmen opened fire on soldiers hunting for gangsters near a farming town in Chihuahua state, over the border from El Paso, Texas and tried to lob grenades, but were shot by the troops, army spokesman Enrique Torres said.

The violence followed fierce gunbattles on Tuesday in the same area, near the town of Villa Ahumada, where drug gangs abducted local police and shot six people, triggering an army raid that left 14 dead.

An army sergeant was also killed by the drug gang. Tuesday's violence left bodies strewn across the desert in one of the bloodiest scenes this year in a spiraling drug war that killed 6000 people last year, raising fears of a spillover into the US.

"The army will continue to search this area where gangs are hiding until they are caught," Mr Torres said. Officials believe the hit men were working for Mexico's most-wanted man, Joaquin "Shorty" Guzman, leader of the powerful Sinaloa cartel who is trying to wrestle control of a smuggling corridor into Texas from the Juarez gang.—Internet

Zimbabwe's cholera outbreak still not under control

GENEVA, 14 Feb—The cholera death toll in Zimbabwe is still increasing, showing that the epidemic is still not under control, the World Health Organization (WHO) said on Friday. From Feb. 11 to Feb. 12, 280 new cases and 11 new deaths were reported, and the total number of cases increased to some 73,000 with 3,524 deaths, according to latest figures released by the UN agency.

WHO said the current fatality rate of Zimbabwe's cholera epidemic, which has been spreading since last August, was as high as 4.8 percent.

In order to say that cholera is under control, the fatality rate has to be below 1 percent. Despite the increasing number of cholera treatment centers opening in Zimbabwe, risks of flooding linked to the current rainy season would make areas difficult accessible, WHO spokesperson Fadela Chaib told a news briefing in Geneva.—Internet

Wife of Ecuadorean dragged by NY van wants justice

QUITO, 14 Feb—The wife of the Ecuadorean man hit by a car, trapped under a van and dragged for nearly 20 miles through New York City is demanding justice for her husband's death.

Russian warship apprehends Somali pirates

MOSCOW, 14 Feb—A Russian heavy missile cruiser stopped three pirate ships off the coast of Somalia, and detained 10 pirates, according to a statement released Friday by Russian Navy headquarters in Moscow.

The cruiser, Peter the Great, halted two small high-speed motor boats and a mid-size, support vessel on Thursday, the Russians said. "Ten pirates have been detained. All of them are citizens of Somalia," the press release obtained by CNN stated.

The Russians said a Russian helicopter Ka-27, which took off from the cruiser, had located two small boats, which were moving toward an Iranian fishing vessel at high speed last Thursday. When those in the boats spotted the helicopter overhead, the boats began slowing down, then veered off toward their support vessel, which was adrift nearby.

The helicopter crew could see pirates in the two motor boats throwing weapons into the sea, and kept chasing the boats until the Russian cruiser arrived in the area. "The three boats were (captured and) delivered to the Peter the Great, and ten Somali pirates were taken aboard.

"The detainees possessed weapons, including a G-3 rifle, an Ak-47, two AKMS machine-guns, two grenade-launchers and two anti-infantry grenades, and also had a GPS receiver, a ladder, 500 grams of drugs, a large amount of money, a bag of sugar and a bag of rice. The detained pirates were high on drugs," the press release said.—Internet

$250K Microsoft bounty to catch worm creator

Experts say a single infected laptop could expose an entire network to the worm.—INTERNET

NEW YORK, 14 Feb — Software giant Microsoft is offering a $250,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of hackers behind a powerful computer virus that could lead to millions of PCs being hijacked. Experts have so far been baffled by the true purpose of the Conficker or Downadup virus, but have described its spread as one of the most serious infections ever seen.

The worm exploits a bug in Microsoft Windows to infect mainly corporate networks, then — although it has yet to cause any harm — it opens a link back to its point of origin, meaning it can receive further orders to wreak havoc. Microsoft has issued a patch to fix the bug, however if a single machine is infected in a large network, it will spread unchecked — often re-infecting machines that have been disinfected.

The threat from the virus prompted Microsoft in collaboration with other technology industry names to this week announce a $250,000 reward for information to track down those behind Conficker.—Internet

Dictionary keeps up with teen slang

LONDON, 14 Feb — Don't go stunting your pee, there's a piff breh. It may sound like gobbledegook, but it could end up in the Collins English Dictionary which is seeking the latest slang for a new edition.

Publisher Harper Collins has come up with a shortlist of words put forward by 14 to 18-year olds and has asked the social networking website Bebo to help pinpoint the most common slang terms in Britain. Over coming months, Bebo's 10.5 million users will vote on the words they think should be included in the 30th anniversary edition of the dictionary.

"Teenage slang is notoriously hard to pin down if you rely on the normal channels," said Cormac McKeown, head of content at Collins."By the time it's filtered into publications, broadcasts, and eventually mainstream speech, it's too late, young people have stopped using it."The findings from the Bebo community will give us the chance to keep track of an exciting part of our language that usually goes unrecorded."

Among the slang terms proposed, "piff" means good, "breh" means boy and "shifted" means get arrested. Other slang words are "stunting" (showing off), "pee" (money), "co-dee" (friends) and "pinky" (50 pounds). The list also includes "sick" (cool, good) "bare" (a lot of), "seen" (cool), "mugged" (mocked), "fiend" (addicted) and "hater", which means a negative person.—Internet

No warrant needed to trace Internet use

TORONTO, 14 Feb—A judge in Canada has ruled that Internet users have no expectation of privacy and police can use track people through Internet protocols without warrants.

The ruling by Ontario Superior Court Judge Lynne Leitch is binding on lower courts, and gives law enforcement a new tool to use in investigating such matters as child pornography, the National Post reported on Friday. Ruling in a child pornography possession case, Leitch found that the Canadian Charter does not provide a "reasonable expectation of privacy" regarding subscriber information retained by Internet service providers. Police asked Bell Canada in 2007 for subscriber information on an IP address used by someone who had allegedly accessed child pornography. ## Residents return to fire-destroyed town

BUXTON, 14 Feb—Residents of the town worst-hit by Australia's wildfire disaster made a brief and emotional return there on Saturday but were not allowed to stay because the entire village is being treated as an arson crime scene.

About 300 people from Marysville were loaded on buses with fire and police officials and driven through the town, exactly one week after waves of blazes swept southeastern Victoria state, killing at least 181 people and razing 1,800 homes in a matter of hours.

One man has been arrested and charged with arson causing death and deliberately lighting a wildfire in connection to one of the fires, though not the one that destroyed Marysville. The suspect, also charged with possessing child pornography, is in custody pending a court hearing on Monday.

Marysville, a picturesque village nestled in the Mystic Mountains popular with honeymooners and nature lovers, was devastated by the fires. Just a handful of buildings remain standing.—Internet

Hiddink appointment not a panic move says Wilkins

Russian national football team Guus Hiddink.—INTERNET

LONDON, 14 Feb—Chelsea assistant manager Ray Wilkins insists the club's decision to sack Luiz Felipe Scolari and hire Guus Hiddink as the Brazilian's replacement was not a panic move. Wilkins will be in charge on Saturday for Chelsea's FA Cup fifth-round tie at Watford before Hiddink officially takes over on Monday.

Hiddink, who will watch from the stands at Vicarage Road, has been installed as manager until the end of the season and will combine the role with his other job as coach of the Russian national side. Chelsea owner Roman Abramovich axed Scolari after just seven months in charge following reports of dressing room unrest at his tactics and laid-back training regime, as well as a series of increasingly underwhelming performances.

The sight of fans protesting against Scolari after a goalless draw against Hull last Saturday was the final straw for Abramovich, but Wilkins is adamant Hiddink's impressive CV makes the decision understandable. "I don't think it's a panic measure, he's a world class coach," Wilkins said.—Internet

Scolari says Robinho could have made all the difference

Robinho

LONDON, 14 Feb—Luiz Felipe Scolari said he was in charge of a 'bureaucratic' Chelsea side which, because of injuries to key players and the lack of a game-changing forward like Robinho, left him with few tactical options.

Speaking to France Football magazine a week before he was sacked on Monday the Brazilian admitted he faced several challenges during his short stint with the Premier League giants. Scolari told the magazine he had two main requests before taking over from the sacked Avram Grant at Stamford Bridge, namely signing Brazilian forward Robinho and Brazil-born Portuguese midfielder Deco.—Internet

ROTTERDAM, 14 Feb—Rafael Nadal had to struggle through another three-set challenge before beating Frenchman Jo-Wilfried Tsonga 6-4, 6-7 (5/7), 6-4 on Friday to reach the Rotterdam Open semi-finals. The world number one has been taken to three sets in all three rounds this week, but the Spaniard said his game was improving on this fast, indoor surface.

"This was definitely my best match of the week," said Nadal after two hours, 40 minutes in a contest where Tsonga fired six aces. "Tsonga just came from winning a tournament and was extremely tough. This was a very important win for me. I'm so glad to be in my first semi-final here."—Internet

Leverkusen shock leaders Hoffenheim

BERLIN, 14 Feb—Germany striker Patrick Helmes scored twice as Bayer Leverkusen shocked Bundesliga leaders Hoffenheim 4-1 on Friday. Both goals were executed with ruthless finishing by Helmes as Hoffenheim were humbled at home for the first time at the Rhein-Neckar-Arena which opened in January.

"We knew that we had to put our opponents on the back foot," said Bayer coach Bruno Labbadia. "We wanted to be the first team to beat Hoffenheim here and I am happy for the team that we achieved that. It was important for us to know we can beat any team in the league."

The league leaders are now in danger of losing their place at the top to Bayern Munich or Hertha Berlin on Saturday. They lead by just a point from Bayern with Bayer Leverkusen now up to fourth and just three points off the leaders.

"We made too many errors, which is not typical of us," said Hoffenheim coach Ralf Rangnick. "We conceded two goals in the first ten minutes. There were a few key passages of play for us, above all the goals just before and after half-time." It is crucial now to see how the team responds in our next game against Stuttgart."

Wie in position for 1st LPGA victory

KAHUKU, 14 Feb—Michelle Wie just wanted to start anew where she could leave all her past struggles. She's in a position to do more than that. Wie put herself into contention for her first LPGA Tour victory, shooting a 2-under 70 in difficult conditions Friday in the second round of the season-opening SBS Open.

Making her rookie debut as an LPGA card-carrying member, Wie used a three-birdie run to surge to the top of the leaderboard and finish with an 8-under 136, where she was tied with Angela Stanford (71) heading into Saturday's final round. "I'm starting with a clean slate," she said. "I earned my way here. I'm a rookie. ... And I've been through a lot, so I'm just going to start fresh, start new and just have a great year."

Turkish Army kills 13 rebels in north Iraq

ISTANBUL, 14 Feb—Turkish Armed Forces killed 13 Kurdish PKK rebels during an air strike last week in northern Iraq, the state-run news agency Anatolian reported on Friday, but a Kurdish spokesman said the number of casualties was lower.

The airstrike also badly damaged a PKK operations and logistics base, according to Anatolian. PKK spokesman Ahmed Danees said three rebels were killed.

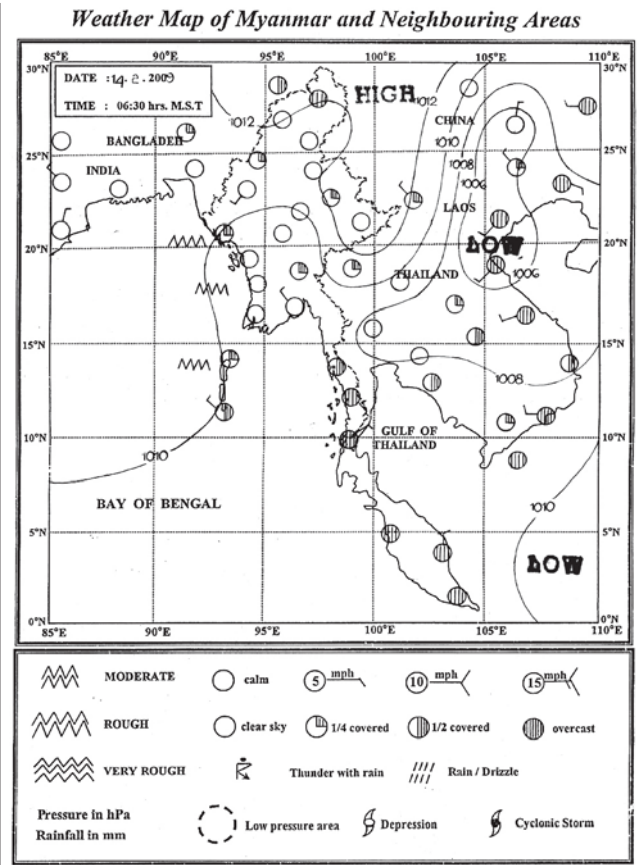

"Not 16 like the Turkish Army said," he said. "The PKK is in a self-defence posture. They don't want to escalate the war with Turkey but if they are forced into it they are ready." Kurdish separatist fighters use Iraq's autonomous northern region as a base to launch attacks on targets in southeastern Turkey, and Turkish forces have frequently retaliated with air and artillery strikes.—MNA/Reuters

Prosperous Tamoenye region with business of thriving tea plantations

Article & Photos: Sai Thar Hlaing (Orange Land)

The scenic beauty of Tamoenye region can be seen as a part of the panoramic view in Shan region. Such beautiful scene depicts thriving Hsinshweli Wulon strain tea plantation grown on contour lines of the hilly regions of Tamoenye region in Kutkai Township, Shan State (North), applying modern agriculture technology.

Tamoenye is a hilly region. Capturing rainfall all year round, the region has 20 degrees Fahrenheit in maximum and 4 degrees Fahrenheit in minimum. It rains 125 days every year registering 76.41 inches. As such, the freezing air always brings moisture to the region. We saw mountain toddy palms along the road to the town and on the mountain ranges.

Eight wards of Tamoenye are home to over 10,000 people and 29 village-tracts, home to over 50,000 people. Most of the people are engaged in the growing of tea plantation and hill-side cultivation.

In the region, Hsinshweli Wulon strain tea plantation was introduced to the local growers in February 2004. With a view to ensuring welfare and economic development of the local people, the suitable and marketable tea plantations were established in the region.

With regard to thriving Hsinshweli Wulon strain tea plantation in Tamoenye, Tea Industry Manager U Myint Lwin explained that the tea
