Water Pumping Project for Greening Meiktila Plain

Article & Photos: Tin Htwe (MNA)

It is no exaggeration to say that farmers of Anyar (arid) regions prefer water to gold, because it is not difficult for them to get gold if they are provided with adequate irrigated water.

Meiktila Plain that covers parts of Meiktila and Kyaukse districts in Mandalay Division gets average annual rainfall of 29 inches only. So, it relies on irrigation facilities for agricultural purposes. Now, the State Peace and Development Council is implementing the Meiktila Plain Greening Project. As a result, the farmlands in the irrigated areas of Kinda Dam and the Samon Creek have proved successful all-year round.

In compliance with the guidance of the Head of State, the Water Resources Utilization Department under the Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation is executing the Water Pumping Project for Greening Meiktila Plain.

The project is situated in Wundwin Township, Meiktila District, Mandalay Division, and it supplies water from the Kinda Diversion Weir to 30,000

Maintain already-built foundations for national development

The runway of Kengtung Airport in Shan State (East) was opened at the airport the other day, with an address by Prime Minister General Thein Sein. The Prime Minister formally opened the stone plaque to mark the opening of the runway.

The government has built Union Highways, major bridges across the rivers, railways, ports and new airports in efforts to ensure smooth transport in the nation. In air transport sector there were only 21 airports in 1988 and now the number of the airports reaches up to 32. In the past, the number of airports where Fokker F-28 jets can take off and land was seven but the number has increased to 26.

Taunggyi-Namhsan-Kengtung motor road was built as an exit of Kengtung region, In addition, new railroads were built and the runway of Kengtung airport was extended. The new runway is 8,000 feet long, 150 feet wide and 18 inches thick and it is an asphalt concrete one. F-28 aircraft carrying 85 passengers can take off and land at the airport.

The government upgraded Kengtung Airport phase by phase as Kengtung is a major city in Shan State (East) in eastern part of Myanmar.

Infrastructures including Kengtung Airport built for development spending a large sum of money are foundations built through the strength of local people. This is why all the national people need to strive for national development through regional development.

Iraq raises security at Shiite shrines after bombs

BAGHDAD, 26 April—Iraq tightened security on Saturday at major Shiite shrines in response to two days of suicide attacks targeting worshippers — including one at a revered Baghdad tomb that was the single deadliest bombing in the country this year.

More than 150 people, many of them Iranian pilgrims, died in the attacks on Thursday and Friday. The increase in attacks in recent weeks has raised questions about the abilities of Iraq's security forces, and U S Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton met with Iraqi leaders on Saturday in Baghdad to assure continued American support even as it moves toward withdrawing its troops.

The number of dead in

Friday's attack by two female suicide bombers at Baghdad's shrine of Imam Mousa al-Kazim reached 71, an Iraqi police official said on Saturday. A hospital official confirmed the toll, adding that 125 were also wounded in the bombing. Many were Iranian pilgrims on their way to pray at the popular mosque.—Internet

Three dead, two hurt in Georgia shooting

ATHENS, 26 April — A University of Georgia professor who police suspect in the fatal shootings of his ex-wife and two men outside a theater near campus on Saturday disappeared in his Jeep after dropping his children off with a neighbour, authorities said.

A nationwide manhunt was on for 57-year-old George Zinkhan, whom neighbours and others described as a quiet, introverted and respected marketing professor at the university in Athens.

Members of a local theater group had gathered midday at the Athens Community Theater when Zinkhan left his children in his car and fired at them, said Athens-Clarke County Police Capt Clarence Holeman. Killed were Zinkhan's ex-wife Marie Bruce, 47, Tom Tanner, 40, and Ben Teague, 63, Holeman said. Two others were injured by flying shrapnel.

SWAT members swarmed Zinkhan's neighbourhood about seven miles from campus, and authorities searched his university office but came up empty. It didn't appear he had used his credit cards or ATM card, police said.—Xinhua

WHO declares swine flu outbreak "public health emergency"

GENEVA, 26 April — The World Health Organization (WHO) on Saturday declared the swine flu outbreak in Mexico and the United States a "public health emergency of international concern" and urged countries to be alert.

Based on the advice of a WHO emergency committee, Director-General Margaret Chan "has determined that the current events constitute a public health emergency of international concern," the UN agency said in a statement.

The WHO chief is recommending, on the advice of the committee, that all countries intensify surveillance for unusual outbreaks of influenza-like illness and severe pneumonia, the statement added.

However, more information is needed before a decision could be made concerning the appropriateness of the current "phase 3" alert level of a pandemic risk, according to the advice of the committee, which is composed of international experts in a variety of disciplines.

The WHO's pandemic alert includes altogether six phases. "Phase 3" means "no or very limited human-to-human transmission."

The emergency committee was established in compliance with the International Health Regulations (2005). It convened its first meeting on Saturday to assess the swine flu situation and advise the WHO chief on appropriate responses.

European economy still deep in recession

BRUSSELS, 26 April — Economic data released recently showed that Europe is still deep in economic recession, but some signs of recovery have been spotted.

Industrial new orders fell in the 16-nation euro zone in February by 0.6 percent month-on-month, and by 34.5 percent year-on-year, European Union's statistics agency Eurostat said on Thursday.

The fall, for the seventh month in a row, indicated that export, one of the vital driving forces to Europe's economic growth, was not gaining steam yet.

Current account deficit in the 27-nation EU in the final quarters of 2008 widened over the same period a year ago though narrowed over the third quarter.

Its external current account recorded a deficit of 57.3 billion euro (74.5 billion U.S. dollars), compared with a deficit of 67.4 billion in the third quarter, and a deficit of 21.6 billion euros in the same period in 2007, according to the second estimate of Eurostat.

In the period, the EU made direct investment abroad of 23.9 billion euros, compared with 171.9 billion in the fourth quarter of 2007, while foreign direct investors disinvested in the EU by 34.4 billion, compared with investment of 140.0 billion in the same quarter of 2007.

Portfolio investment recorded a net inflow of 370.1 billion euros compared with a net inflow of 8.3 billion in the same months of 2007.—Internet

Britain's first electric car — 1884

LONDON, 26 April — A British man has released a photograph of his great-grandfather, a 19th century inventor, sitting atop what is believed to be Britain's first electric car. Graham Parker, 76, said his grandfather, Thomas Parker, created his electric car as early as 1884, The Daily Telegraph reported on Friday.

"I don't think all that many were made because he was more interested in trams and tramways," Parker said. Thomas Parker, who died in 1915, was a prolific inventor who is credited with electrifying the London Underground trains as well as overhead trains in the cities of Liverpool and Birmingham.

"He was into anything really," Graham Parker said. "Anything on four wheels was quite a novelty, people were terrified of the things and someone with a red flag had to walk in front of it. Electricity was even more terrifying because it was something you couldn't see or touch, there seemed to be quite a lot of resistance to it."—Internet

Air pollution "helps plants blunt climate change"

PARIS, 26 April—Cleaning up skies choked with smog and soot would sharply curtail the capacity of plants to absorb carbon dioxide and blunt global warming, according to a study published on Thursday.

Plant life — especially tropical forests — soak up a quarter of all the CO2 humans spew into the atmosphere, and thus plays a critical role in keeping climate change in check.

Through photosynthesis, vegetation transforms sunlight, CO2 and water into sugar nutrients.

Common sense would suggest that air pollution in the form of microscopic particles that obstruct the Sun's rays — a phenomenon called "global dimming" — would hamper this process, but the new study shows the opposite is true.

"Surprisingly, the effects of atmospheric pollution seem to have enhanced global plant productivity by as much as a quarter from 1960 to 1999," said Lina Mercado, a researcher at the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology in Wallingford, Britain, and the study's lead author.

Bulgaria faces tough talks on gas deal with Russia

SOFIA, 26 April—Bulgarian Premier Sergey Stanishev was to travel to Moscow for sensitive talks with his Russian counterpart Vladimir Putin on the terms of Bulgaria's participation in the South Stream pipeline to bring Russian gas to Europe.

Stanishev's task in Moscow "will not be an easy one," Bulgarian President Georgy Parvanov said on Saturday at a gas summit in Sofia that was boycotted by Putin over Bulgaria's lack of readiness to ink the South Stream deal on the sidelines.

Parvanov also reiterated Bulgaria's wish to take part in the project to channel Russian gas through Bulgaria to Western Europe via a pipeline under the Black Sea.

But he admitted there was a "clash of interests" between Sofia and Moscow on the terms of the deal and insisted that the small Balkan state would defend its interests.

"It is not fatal if we do not ink the deal now. There is no rush," he said.

Microsoft to release version of Windows 7

SEATTLE, 26 April—Microsoft said on Friday a version of its long-awaited Windows 7 operating system will be made available from next week. Exercise attacks bad effects of belly fat URBANA, 26 April—US researchers say moderate exercise reduces inflammation linked to metabolic syndrome, a group of risk factors predicting heart disease and type 2 diabetes. The syndrome has been linked to inflammation found in visceral fat — better known as belly fat.

"In the study, the benefits of exercise were apparent, even without a change in diet. We saw improvements in insulin sensitivity, less fat in the liver, and less inflammation in belly fat," study researcher Jeffrey Woods of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign said in a statement.

The researchers assigned mice to either a sedentary group, an exercise group, a low-fat diet group, or a group that combined a low-fat diet with exercise for six or 12 weeks. Combining diet and exercise didn't yield dramatically different and better results than diet or exercise alone. The only significant increase from six to 12 weeks in belly fat was in the sedentary mice. Woods said this is a promising finding.

Keeping slim is good for health, planet

Maintaining a healthy body weight is not only good for one's health, it benefits the environment as well, British researchers said.

Phil Edwards and Ian Roberts of the London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine said because food production is a major contributor to global warming, a lean population, such as in Vietnam, will consume almost 20 percent less food and produce fewer greenhouse gases than a population in which close to 40 percent of people are obese as in the United States. "When it comes to food consumption, moving about in a heavy body is like driving around in a gas guzzler," the study authors said in a statement.

"The heavier our bodies become the harder and more unpleasant it is to move about in them and the more dependent we become on our cars. Staying slim is good for health and for the environment. We need to be doing a lot more to reverse the global trend towards fatness, and recognize it as a key factor in the battle to reduce emissions and slow climate change."

Wahpa Dam supplying drinking water to Thaton dwellers, irrigating 2400 acres of farmlands

Article and Photos: Aung Than (Mingala Taungnyunt)

Water from Wahpa Dam flows out to 2400 acres of farmlands through a drain.

(from page 16) and it was inaugurated in 1994. In the past, self-reliant wells were dug for drinking water. In laterite soil, the wells had to be dug up to 60 feet deep. At present Wahpa Dam is supplying 2.43 million gallons of drinking water to the local people and irrigating 2400 acres of farmlands in Gaw, Binhlain and Theingon Village-tracts. Moreover, water is being supplied to 500 acres of summer paddy plantations. The dam having over 200 inches of rainfalls annually drains out surplus water through the spillway. We control water supply to the town and all the local people are being supplied with 20 gallons each of water per day.”

To observe the water supply functions of the dam, we proceeded to the office of Township Development Affairs Department on Yongyi Road of Nankhe Ward in Thaton. Assistant Director Executive Officer U Myint Thein and Junior Engineer (Civil) Daw Khin Moe Hnin explained supply of water to the township.

Assistant Director U Myint Thein said that a total of 630,000 gallons of water is being provided to 7,827 households of four wards in Thaton Township. After performing the quality control task, drinking water is being supplied, he added. As over 500,000 gallons of water is added into the water supply facility, over 11 million gallons of water can be distributed to the urban area. He further explained that water from the dam is being pumped to 300,000-gallon-capacity water tank at the foot of Myathabeik Hill through 24-inch diameter concrete pipes. After that, drinking water from the tank is supplied systematically to the households installed with water meters in the urban areas, he said.

As part of efforts to develop the nation, the Irrigation Department and Township Development Affairs Department are joining hands in supplying water to Thaton dwellers and 2,400 acres of farmlands.

South African ruling ANC wins overall victory

JOHANNESBURG, 26 April — The South African ruling African National Congress (ANC) has won overwhelmingly in Wednesday's national elections by garnering just over 66 per cent of the votes, the tally from the Independent Electoral Commission in Pretoria, the administrative capital of the country, showed early on Saturday morning.

But ANC has fallen short of the two-thirds of votes needed to secure a parliamentary majority. With Almost 99 per cent of the votes counted, ANC got 66.02 per cent of the vote but fell short of the 66.7 per cent of the votes to ensure the two-thirds majority in Parliament.

The opposition Democratic Alliance was placed at the second with 16.54 per cent of the votes, followed by the new Congress of the People with 7.42 per cent of the votes. The South Africans went to voting stations on Wednesday to elect a new National Assembly and nine Provincial Legislatures. The National Assembly will then pick a new president, widely expected to be (ANC) leader Jacob Zuma. — MNA/Xinhua

Darfur kidnappers say Chad talks stalled

KHARTOUM, 26 April — Kidnappers holding two foreign aid workers in western Sudan's volatile Darfur region said on Saturday that talks with the government of neighbouring Chad had stalled and a quick solution appeared difficult.

"The negotiations were not successful. Tension will rise in this situation," an unidentified kidnapper told Reuters via satellite phone near the Chad border. "The delegation returned yesterday because we wanted to guarantee its safety."

Earlier this week, the group calling itself the Freedom Eagles of Africa said a delegation would go to Chad for direct talks with a senior official but the man told Reuters on Saturday the group had returned with no resolution.

Madagascar Drought puts 250,000 children at risk

PORT LOUIS, 26 April — Up to 250,000 children are at risk of malnutrition and disease in southern Madagascar as a political crisis and tropical cyclones exacerbate severe food shortages, the UN children agency said.

UNICEF said that the rains had failed again in the Indian Ocean island's southern region, devastating the last harvest and reducing the amount of safe water available for human consumption.

"By the end of 2008, almost 400,000 people were living in food-insecure districts across Madagascar. The situation has only worsened since. Up to a quarter-million children are now reportedly at risk of disease and malnutrition," it said.

Earlier this week, aid agencies warned that the world's fourth largest island was on the brink of a humanitarian catastrophe.

Acute malnutrition rates have reached serious levels in five districts in Madagascar, the UN agency said in a report late on Friday. —MNA/Reuters

Brazil's unemployment rate consecutively rises

RIO DE JANEIRO, 26 April — Brazil's unemployment rate consecutively rise due to the global financial crisis, the Monthly Employment Study released by the country's Institute of Geography and Statistics (IBGE) said on Friday.

The unemployment rate in Brazil reached 9 per cent in March, up from 8.5 per cent in February, the IBGE said, adding that it was the third consecutive rise in the country's unemployment rate. The number of people who search for a job last month reached 2.1 million, the highest figure since 2007, the study said.

In Salvador and Recife, the poorest regions in the northeast of the country, the unemployment rate jumped to 11.9 per cent and 10.4 per cent.

The government took some measures, which included numerous tax cuts and actions to stimulate consumption, to preserve the jobs in the first quarter of the year. Although the measures resulted in the industrial production undergoing a slight recover in the period, they did not increase employment as much as it was expected.

Nevertheless, the IBGE said that the unemployment levels in Brazil are stabilized. The March figures reflect a high demand for jobs, when the market is not generating many new jobs, said the study's manager Cimar Azeredo.—MNA/Xinhua

Clinton tries to reassure Iraqis during visit

BAGHDAD, 26 April— US Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton tried to reassure nervous Iraqis that the US won't abandon them, even as she said the American troop withdrawal would stay on schedule despite a recent surge in violence.

On her first visit to Baghdad as chief US diplomat, Clinton said on Saturday that Washington remains committed to moving US soldiers out of urban areas by June 30 and pulling out combat troops from the country by 2011.

"Our strategy in working with you may be in a new phase, but we pledge our full and continuing commitment to Iraq and the Iraqi people," she told a news conference after meeting Iraqi Foreign Minister Hoshiyar Zebari.

"As we drawn down militarily we will deepen our civilian cooperation," Clinton said, standing beside Zebari in an auditorium at the Foreign Ministry.

The withdrawal will proceed in a "responsible and careful way," she said, and would not affect efforts to improve Iraq's security forces, or complete reconstruction and development projects.

Zebari welcomed Clinton's "very assuring message that the United States would continue to support the efforts of the Iraqi government and the enhancement of Iraqi security and stability." He said Iraqi authorities wanted to ensure there is "no vacuum" when US troops leave.

Clinton made clear, however, that Iraqis and their security forces in particular need to overcome sectarian and other differences if they are to build a united, secure nation, she said.

Iran closes Iraq crossing after bomb attacks

TEHERAN, April 26 — Iran has closed a border crossing with Iraq for Iranians after many pilgrims from the Islamic Republic were killed in two bomb attacks in the neighbouring country, official media reported on Saturday.

On Thursday, most of the 57 people who were killed in a suicide bomb in the northeastern Iraqi province of Diyala were Iranians, who have flocked to Iraq's Shi'ite holy sites since Sunni Arab strongman Saddam Hussein was ousted in 2003.

The following day, two female suicide bombers blew themselves up near a Shi'ite Muslim shrine in Baghdad, killing 60 people, police said. Many of the dead and wounded were Iranian pilgrims.

"After ... bombings in Iraq and the martyrdom of a number of Iranian pilgrims, crossing the Khosravi border for Iranians has been banned until further notice," the official IRNA news agency said. State radio carried a similar report.

The Khosravi border crossing lies north-east of Baghdad. Iranian media did not say whether other border crossings were also affected.

South side of Mt everest facing denudation

KATHMANDU, 26 April— Forest degradation ratio in Sagarmatha National Park and its buffer zone, in the south of Mt. Qomolangma (Mt Sagarmatha, also named Mt Everest), has been increasing due to the use of excessive wood for fuel, a survey has shown.

"Our study on Fuel Wood Consumption and Forest Degradation has shown that forest degradation is at 8.5 square metres per hectare in the park," local newspaper The Himalayan Times on Sunday quoted Nabindra Lal Karmacharya, who is undertaking a master's thesis under the Faculty of Environment Science in Khwopa Engineering College, based in Bhaktapur to the east of Nepali capital Kathmandu.

Annual 27,000 international tourists, their guides, porters and accompanying persons add woes to the problem as food cooked in a wood oven is believed to be tastier. The total population of the area is 5,869. A whopping 92.5 per cent people depend on fuel wood, 5 per cent on electricity, 1.5 on Liquefied Petroleum Gas and one per cent on kerosene, according to Karmacharya.

Three terrorists killed in Algeria

ALGIERS, 26 April—Algerian security forces killed Saturday three terrorists during a security operation in the city of Tebessa, east of the capital Algiers, security sources said.

Among the three terrorists killed, one was the assistants of al-Qaida leader Al-Khadrawi who has been arrested last week, the sources said. No casualties have been reported among security forces following the battle that lasted for more than one hour.

Large amounts of weapons and ammunition have been found during the operation, the sources added. Meanwhile the army and local security troops foiled attempts by terrorists to infiltrate into the city of Bejaia, east of Algiers. The terrorists attacked military barracks of the local troops in the area.

However, they failed to infiltrate through the security siege. Algerian security forces also arrested members of a pro-terrorists cell in the district of Khenchela.

Security sources said members of the cell who face accusations of helping terrorist groups will be referred to the court as soon as interrogations end. —Internet official said.

Pirates also released the Greek vessel, MV Saldanha, after they were paid $1.9 million in ransom, a pirate source said.

The Malta-flagged, German-owned MV Patriot belongs to Patriot Schiffahrts and is managed by Blumenthal JMK of Hamburg, Germany, said Andrew Mwangura, director of the Mombasa-based East African Seafarers Assistance Program.

"I hear it was taken early this morning," he told Reuters. "It was hijacked in the eastern end of the Gulf of Aden."

The ship's 17 crew members are unhurt, Mwangura said.

The Foreign Ministry

A pirate told Reuters his comrades had also released a Greek ship but he could not give its name.

"My friends have released the Greek ship after $1.9 million ransom was paid," said the pirate, identified only as Hussein.

Mwangura named the ship as the Saldanha, captured on 22 February, and said it was now on the way to safer waters.

Two other Greek ships are still in pirate hands — the MV Irene EM, with 22 Filipino crew members, and the Nipayiya.

Strong family relationship delays alcohol

LAUSANNE, 26 April—Teens who have a strong relationship with parents may start drinking later, lessening their risk of developing alcohol problems, Swiss researchers said.

Lead author Dr Emmanuel Kuntsche of the Swiss Institute for the Prevention of Alcohol and Drug Problems in Lausanne, Switzerland, said past studies suggested that the age at which teens start drinking is a key factor in whether they eventually develop alcohol-related problems, such as fights, having academic or work problems. Kuntsche and colleagues surveyed 364 teens three times during a two-year period.

The study, published in the May issue of the Journal of Studies on Alcohol and Drugs, found that, in general, teens who reported an earlier drinking age during the first survey tended to be drinking more heavily by the second survey and were at greater risk of drinking-related problems by the third survey.

However, only teens who reported both a later drinking age and a high-quality relationship with their parents had a lower risk of drinking problems compared with their peers. Kuntsche said a high-quality relationship was one where teens felt they could discuss their problems with their parents and that their parents respected their feelings. —Internet

Nanoparticles may help attack cancer more directly

WASHINGTON, 26 April—Nanoparticles designed to provide more direct delivery of cancer drugs to tumors have been developed by US researchers.

Made from a safe, biodegradable polymer, the nanoparticles are chemically engineered to inhibit the MARK signaling pathway, which is involved in most human tumors, and to carry a higher concentration of anti-cancer drugs to a specific area, according to the scientists at Brigham and Women's Hospital and the Harvard-MIT Division of Health Sciences and Technology.

By inhibiting the MARK signaling pathway, the nanoparticles hinder the multiplication of cancer cells and make the cells more susceptible to chemotherapy drugs.

The researchers also modified the polymer used in the nanoparticles to increase drug loading 20-fold to overcome what they describe as a current drawback in nanomedicine — low efficiency of drug loading.

“Current chemotherapy drugs must be administered in high concentration throughout the body in order to destroy tumor cells, translating to high toxicity and discomfort for the patient, mainly due to the effects on normal cells,” co-lead author Rania Harfouche said in a Brigham and Women's news release.

China's new contender for world's tallest man

TIANJIN, 26 April—Zhao Liang needs two beds to rest his 2.46-metre (8ft, 1in) frame, one of life's inconveniences for the Chinese giant who could become officially known as the world's tallest man.

The 27-year-old is 10 centimetres (four inches) taller than the current holder of the title, another Chinese man, but the media-wary Zhao has not yet decided whether he wants the Guinness Book of Records to officially ratify him. Lying on a makeshift iron bed in a hospital in the northern city of Tianjin after an operation on his foot, Zhao seems almost bored with his sudden rise to fame.

The hospital was forced to put together two standard-sized iron beds to accommodate the giant from central Henan province whose parents are of average height, but he still has trouble fitting his large frame onto the narrow mattresses.

His shoulders, hands, legs and feet are all massive, and he finds it difficult to find clothes and shoes to fit. Weighing 155 kilogrammes (341 pounds), Zhao squeezes into European size 56 (US size 20) shoes, and has to order his sports shoes from Japan or the United States.

Albino buffalo a first for Kenya

NAIVASHA, 26 April—Rangers in Kenya's Hellsgate National Park have spotted an albino buffalo, the first of its kind ever recorded in the wildlife rich country, park officials said on Friday.

“This is the first time that an albino buffalo has been found in our parks and it's a great day for nature and animals lovers,” said Nelly Palmeris, senior warden at Hellsgate.

The three-month-old calf, spotted within a large herd, has a very light brown coat, and is easily distinguished from other buffalo.

Its lighter colour will make it a more noticeable target for predators, park officials said.

The cultural stigma against albinos, both animal and human, among the Maasai pastoralists that live near the park could also create a threat.

“The African community and especially Maasais associate albinos with bad omens,” Palmeris said. “We are just coming from a bad drought and the Maasai might associate the famine with this buffalo and kill it.”

Researchers say immune cell may spread cancer

DENVER, 26 April—An immune cell thought to fight breast cancer may actually promote its spread, US researchers say. The mice studies linked the spread of breast cancer to the lungs to production of an inflammatory protein — called RANK ligand — by immune system cells known as lymphocytes.

Wei Tan and Michael Karin of the University of California, San Diego, say their findings establish RANK ligand as a potential marker to help determine breast cancer prognosis. “Without lymphocytes, there is no metastasis,” Tan said in a statement.

The researchers developed two types of mice that developed breast tumors. The first group had lymphocytes in the tumors and expressed RANK ligand while the second group did not. The cancer spread to the lungs in the first group but did not in the second group.

When the RANK ligand was injected into mice that lacked lymphocytes, the potential for the cancer to spread was restored — indicating the RANK ligand making lymphocytes were critically important to the process. —Internet

Chelsea's Hiddink plans to take fight to Barcelona

LONDON, 26 April—Guus Hiddink has vowed to carry the fight to Barcelona in this week's Champions League semi-finals as he steels himself for his biggest test as Chelsea's interim manager. The Dutchman believes it would be suicidal to sit back and try to contain the La Liga side's vast array of attacking talents, even though the Blues have the advantage of playing the second leg at Stamford Bridge eight days later. Instead, he has urged them to pose their own problems against a side whose defence is far from watertight.

"It is a huge clash against the best team in Europe, possibly the world," said Hiddink, after Chelsea's 1-0 victory over West Ham on Saturday. "But we should not go there and drop back, wait and wait until the storm is coming." "We must take what is in our team and do some harm as well. That is always our intention in big games. If we wait, we will have problems."—Internet

Bordeaux thrash Vannes to seal League Cup crown

PARIS, 26 April—A clinical first-half showing from title-chasing Bordeaux inspired them to a 4-0 victory over underdogs Vannes in the French League Cup final at the Stade de France here on Saturday. Second-division Vannes had seen off top-flight opposition in the shape of Valenciennes, Auxerre and Nice en route to the final, but were blown away by a three-goal blitz from their opponents in the opening 12 minutes. Yoann Gourcuff capped a fine display with a fourth before half-time to cap Bordeaux's third triumph in the competition following their victories in 2002 and 2007.—Internet

Benitez says Liverpool can still win Premiership

HULL, 26 April—Liverpool manager Rafael Benitez insists his side can still win the Premier League title after watching them overcome Hull 3-1 at the KC Stadium. Benitez is refusing to give up on his club's hopes of winning their first championship in two decades, even though Manchester United restored their three-point lead at the top with a 5-2 victory over Tottenham in Saturday's late game.

While United remain firm favourites, Benitez has urged Liverpool to complete a perfect finish to the season, starting with next Sunday's home encounter with struggling Newcastle at Anfield. Benitez will be boosted by the return to fitness of talismanic leader Steven Gerrard, who is poised to shake off a nagging groin problem as Liverpool aim to finish the campaign with four straight wins and hope United slip up. The England international has missed the last four games but Benitez confirmed that he expected him to be available again for the visit of Alan Shearer's side.—Internet

Ferguson dampens title talk after United comeback

MANCHESTER, 26 April—Sir Alex Ferguson refused to accept that the Premier League title race is over after his team moved three points clear at the top of the table thanks to a stunning 5-2 victory over Tottenham at Old Trafford on Saturday.

The United manager saw his side score five goals in 22 second-half minutes to recover from a 2-0 half-time deficit, but they benefited from a dubious 56th-minute penalty award from referee Howard Webb.

The official judged that Spurs goalkeeper Heurelho Gomes had tripped Michael Carrick, although replays suggested the decision was wrong - a theory backed up by furious Tottenham manager Harry Redknapp. Even Ferguson felt it had been a fortunate call, although his obvious pleasure at the manner in which his team played thereafter did not extend to him celebrating what would be the 11th English league title of his career.—Internet

Four-goal Fiorentina boost Champions League hopes

ROME, 26 April—Fiorentina eased past Roma 4-1 to take another confident step closer to Champions League qualification.

Victory moved them into fourth place in the table — the last qualifying spot for Europe's premier club competition — on 58 points although they could be displaced by Genoa, who are a point behind and tackle struggling Bologna on Sunday.

For Roma, however, their Champions League hopes are fading fast with defeat leaving them in sixth place, six points behind Fiorentina with just five games left.

I'm in best form ever, warns Nadal

BARCELONA, 26 April—Rafael Nadal pronounced himself in the best shape of his career on Saturday as the world number one stormed into the Barcelona Open final where he will face Spanish compatriot David Ferrer.

"I'm living the best time of my career," said Nadal after easing into his fifth straight final at his home event with a 6-3, 6-2 dismantling of Russia's Nikolay Davydenko. "I really need to appreciate this time because it will not be repeated."

The 22-year-old king of clay is ready to follow up last week's fifth straight title victory in Monte Carlo with the same achievement in the Catalan capital.—Internet

Federer, Djokovic struggle to derail Nadal

ROME, 26 April—Roger Federer and Novak Djokovic launch their latest attempts to derail Rafael Nadal's non-stop, claycourt express at the Rome Masters which gets under way at the Foro Italico on Sunday. Nadal won three successive titles here until last year when he suffered a shock second round loss to Spanish compatriot Juan Carlos Ferrero. With Federer losing to Radek Stepanek in the quarter-finals, Djokovic seized his opportunity to take the title beating Stanislas Wawrinka in the final. However, if Federer and Djokovic, the world numbers two and three respectively, had been hoping Nadal's early exit in 2008 was to signal a rapid decline, they were in for a devastating wake-up call.—Internet within four points at the summit with victory at Sevilla on Sunday and then try to beat their rivals in next Saturday's 'El Clasico' at the Santiago Bernabeu.

Dutch midfielder Hedwiges Maduro and winger Pablo Hernandez scored twice in as many minutes to go 2-1 up after Barcelona had taken the lead through Lionel Messi on 24 minutes. Henry scored in the 86th minute to salvage a point for Barcelona who had a 12-point lead over Real back in mid-December, but could find themselves just four ahead by next weekend.—Internet

Teacher attacked by ungrateful squirrel

ANN ARBOR, 26 April — A Michigan teacher guiding students around the University of Michigan campus was attacked by an irate squirrel when she tried to help one of its young.

The teacher, from Detroit, spotted the squirrels Thursday as she ushered her students through a campus tour, The Ann Arbor News reported on Friday. She noticed the young squirrels were not in their nest and a crow was eyeing one that appeared to have been left behind.

The teacher, whose name was not reported, first tried to shoo the crow away from the squirrels and then to draw the mother's attention to the danger. The mother squirrel instead turned on the teacher.

Diane Brown, a spokeswoman for the Detroit Public Schools, said the teacher fell while running back to the bus to get away from the angry squirrel. The animal bit or scratched her ankle, but the teacher was able to get up and escape.—Internet

Article and Photos: Aung Than (Mingala Taungnyunt)

Last month, I made a field trip to Thaton District of Mon State to observe the higher living standard of the local farmers thanks to sluice gates built by Irrigation Department and their feeling. On the way to Irrigation Yeiktha of Thaton, we saw a signboard bearing "Town Water Supply" beside Thaton-Hpa-an Road.

Staff Officer (Civil) U San Thwin of Construction (6) of Irrigation Department conducted us round the drinking water supply facility being undertaken by Thaton Township Development Affairs Committee for 68,730 people of five wards from Thaton.

The department is supplying drinking water to the township from Wahpa Dam, 1.5 miles east of the town, through 24-inch diameter concrete pipelines.

We had an interview with Deputy Staff Officer (Civil) U Hla Myaing of Irrigation Department which is maintaining Wahpa Dam in Thaton. He said, "In accord with the guidance of the Head of State, Wahpa Dam was built on Wahpa Creek in Thaton Township (See page 9)

noon. In its debut, the Myanmar National Football Team trounced Macao 4-0. The winning goals for Myanmar came through from Khin Maung Lwin at 2nd minute and Yaza

Win Thein at 15th minute in the first half and Pyae Phyo Oo at 3rd minute and Myo Min Tun at 14th minute in the second half. Myanmar will play against Bangladesh on 28 April.—MNA

Untimely rainfall warning

NAY PYI TAW, 26 April — According to the observations at 11.30 a.m MST today, as a consequence of the cloud moving from the East towards Myanmar, fairly widespread rain or thundershowers are likely in Kayah, Kayin, Mon and Rakhine States, Mandalay, Magway, Bago, Yangon and Ayeyawady Divisions with isolated heavy rain within next 24 hours commencing noon today. Surface wind speed in squalls may reach 35 to 40 mph.—MNA

New effort to discover habitable Earth-like planets

HERTFORDSHIRE, 26 April—Astronomers have announced plans to build an ultra-stable, high-precision spectrograph for the Science and Technology Facilities Council's 4.2-m William Herschel Telescope (WHT-part of the Isaac Newton Group or ING on La Palma) in an effort to

The original HARPS spectrograph at the European Southern Observatory, during laboratory tests. The vacuum tank which isolates the spectrograph from the environment is open, allowing some of the high-precision optical components to be seen.
