Make relentless efforts for improvement of socio-economic status of the people

Blessed with scenic beauties and flora and fauna, Kachin State is rich in natural resources.

In the past, because of armed insurgency resulting from the divide and rule policy and difficult of access due to a series of hills and mountain ranges, Kachin State lagged behind in development.

In the time of the Tatmadaw government, it has been able to forge national solidarity, and as a result, peace and tranquility prevails and law and order has been restored.

Sharing border with the People's Republic of China and the Republic of India, Kachin State plays an important role in cementing mutual relations between the two countries and trade and commerce. The government is making all-out efforts to bring about harmonious development the length and breadth of the nation.

With better transport, the national brethren can travel easily from one region to another and have frequent contacts among them, thereby contributing to further fostering friendship and development of the economic, education and health sectors.

Meanwhile, opening of hospitals and dispensaries, upgrading of hospitals and fulfilling medical equipment and dispatching of staff abroad for training courses of international level are being carried out.

As the government has already built a large number of infrastructures for regional development, the entire people are to do their best for the improvement of socio-economic status making better use of the already-built infrastructures for regional development.

People's Desire

- * Oppose those relying on external elements, acting as stooges, holding negative views
- * Oppose those trying to jeopardize stability of the State and progress of the nation
- * Oppose foreign nations interfering in internal affairs of the State
- * Crush all internal and external destructive elements as the common enemy

Firm once known as Blackwater exits Baghdad

BAGHDAD, 8 May — The American security firm once known as Blackwater ended its operations in the diplomatic hub of Baghdad on Thursday, bringing to a close a bitter chapter in US-Iraqi relations that began with a deadly shooting by its contractors.

Iraqis welcomed the departure from the capital of the company, which has protected American diplomats in Iraq since the start of the war in 2003. The company, which has changed its name to Xe, will continue to have guards in some southern areas and to run its aviation service and through September.

The end of the firm's Baghdad operations comes nearly two years after the Iraqi government first demanded it leave after the September 2007 shooting on a busy square in central Baghdad that left as many as 17 Iraqi civilians dead.

It was small consolation for Iraqis. "As far as I'm concerned this decision should have been taken years ago. Any security firm in Iraq should have used Iraqi personnel so that they could help them know Iraqi culture," Baghdad resident Jabbar Farhan said.

US Embassy spokeswoman Susan Ziadeh said Xe's contract for Baghdad ended Thursday and a new security provider, Herndon, Virginia-based Triple Canopy, was taking over.

Blackwater guards will remain protecting American diplomats in the predominantly Shiite cities of Hillah, Najaf and Karbala, all south of Baghdad, until 4 Aug, according to the State Department.

And Presidential Airways — which operates some two dozen helicopters — will continue to fly until 3 Sept, it said.

Ziadeh would not comment on the company's other task orders, saying only that they "will come to an end once they expire, which will be soon."—Internet

Afghan official says 147 dead in fighting

KABUL, 8 May— Sobbing relatives showed US and Afghan investigators the demolished buildings and graves in two western villages where a local official said Thursday he collected the names of 147 people killed in a disputed incident involving American forces and Taliban militants.

If local reports of the death toll are confirmed, it would be the deadliest case of civilian casualties in Afghanistan since the 2001 US-led invasion that ousted the Taliban regime.

Although the results of the joint US-Afghan investigation were not expected to be announced until Friday, Afghans blamed US bombing raids for the deaths in the villages of Ganjabad and Gerani. In the capital of Farah Province, where the fighting took place, some 150 stone-throwing protesters chanted "Death to America" and clashed with police.

The large number of civilian deaths comes at an awkward time for the Obama administration, as it steps up its military campaign here while emphasizing the importance of nonmilitary efforts to stabilize the country. President Barack Obama expressed sympathy over the loss of life in a White House meeting Wednesday with Afghan President Hamid Karzai, who contends that such killings undermine support for the fight against the Taliban.

Five Taliban militants killed in NW Afghanistan

KABUL, 8 May— At least five Taliban militants were killed in a clash between Taliban and the government forces in Badghis province, northwest Afghanistan, police spokesman in the region Abdul Rauf Ahmadi said on Thursday.

"Taliban rebels attacked police checkpoints in Balamurghab district Wednesday night and police encountered, as a result five rebels were killed and several others were wounded," Ahmadi told Xinhua. During the firefight, two policemen were also injured, he added.

Taliban militants have yet to make comment as the hard-line militants have vowed to launch spring offensive and speed up attacks against Afghan and US-led forces based in Afghanistan.

Obama allocates more war funds for Afghanistan than Iraq

WASHINGTON, 8 May—US President Barack Obama allocated more war funds for Afghanistan than those earmarked for Iraq in a budget plan he unveiled on Thursday.

The president proposed 130 billion US dollars in appropriation to support overseas military operations in fiscal year 2010 that begins 1 Oct, including 65 billion dollars for Afghanistan and 61 billion dollars for Iraq, according to his budget plan released by the White House.

It marks the first time that war spending for Afghanistan overtook those for Iraq and is in accordance with the new administration's ongoing shift of war focus from Iraq to Afghanistan.

Steve Stanley, the director of force structure, resources and assessment on the Joint Staff, told reporters at a Pentagon briefing that the budget request represents "where you're going to first see the swing of not only dollars or resources, but combat capability" from Iraq to Afghanistan.

"The money requested here — about 65 billion dollars for Afghanistan — actually exceeds the 61 billion dollars that we're requesting for Iraq," he said.

"So that's the first time in our war costs request," the official added.

Stanley explained that those numbers are based on keeping between 50,000 to 100,000 troops in Iraq and 68,000 in Afghanistan.

In Iraq, US troop levels are supposed to come down gradually over the next year, and these numbers are based on plans to bring troop levels down to around 50,000 by the end of the fiscal year 2010, which is 30 Sept next year, according to the Pentagon.

Russia lifts ban on pork imports from five American states

MOSCOW, 8 May— Russia has lifted a ban on pork imports from five American states that had been imposed earlier because of the A/H1N1 flu virus, the country's food safety watchdog said on Thursday.

The ban on pork imports from Indiana, Kansas, Michigan, Nevada and Ohio was lifted because of "the absence of worsening epidemic/outbreak conditions," Rosselkhoznadzor, the watchdog, said in a statement.

However, the watchdog imposed a ban on pork products from Illinois. A ban on pork from seven other American states remains in effect.

Russia has also banned pork imports from some Canadian provinces, Britain and Spain, despite claims that the flu virus can not be transmitted by meat.

The World Health Organization has reiterated that there is no risk of infection by consuming well-cooked pork and pork products.—Internet

US banks need to up capital to meet 'stress tests'

WASHINGTON, 8 May— Ten major US banks need to raise a total of 74.6 billion dollars for "capital buffers" in the event of a deeper economic slump under "stress tests" unveiled by US regulators.

Federal Reserve chairman Ben Bernanke said the results "should provide considerable comfort to investors and the public," despite the need for new capital in 10 of the 19 banks subjected to the process.

Bernanke pointed out that the Treasury "stands ready to provide whatever additional capital may be necessary to ensure that our banking system is able to navigate a challenging economic downturn."

The central bank, which conducted the tests at the request of President Barack Obama's administration, said they showed the banks can withstand an adverse economic scenario but will be required to raise fresh capital to boost their reserves against losses.

Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner said in a statement the tests "will help replace the cloud of uncertainty hanging over our banking system with an unprecedented level of transparency and clarity."

LOS ANGELES, 8 May —A wildfire was still raging in Santa Barbara about 128 kilometres northwest of Los Angeles on Thursday, forcing thousands of people to flee for safety, authorities said.

The fire has charred about 527 hectares of land, injured eight firefighters and forced the evacuation of more than

The department said the number of evacuees could double later in the day as the fire would get worse due to another round of howling winds expected later in the day.

More fire crews were called in from around the state to battle the blaze. Currently 1,394 firefighters were battling the blaze.

"We really can't do any containment lines. It's too dangerous," Santa Barbara County fire Capt David Sadecki said.

"We're doing some structure protection, but firefighters can be in a safe location one minute and in a dangerous situation the next."

Paraguayan president visits Brazil on power plant contract modification

RIO DE JANEIRO, 8 May—Paraguayan President Fernando Lugo started on Thursday a visit to Brazil, during which he will discuss with his Brazilian counterpart Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva on modifying the contract of a joint hydroelectric plant.

In the meetings with leaders of Brazil's Senate and House of Representatives, Jose Sarney and Michel Temer, Lugo said that it is not good for Brazil to have an impoverished neighbouring country, calling on the two countries to work together for mutual development. Lugo was referring to the amendments his administration is requesting in the contract of the Itaipu Hydroelectric Plant, which was built in 1973 in the Brazil-Paraguay border with investments from both countries. By the terms of the contract, each country has the right to own half of the energy produced by the power plant. China calls for joint efforts with EU against protectionism BRUSSELS, 8 May—The European Union (EU) and China should work together to ward off potential surge of protectionism amid the global economic slump, Chinese Vice Premier Wang Qishan said on Thursday.

"China and the EU should stand firm against any form of protectionism for the sake of a global economic recovery," Wang said in an opening remark at a high-level economic and trade dialogue between the EU and China, two major trading powers in the world.

The EU is now China's largest trading partner, while China is the second largest of the EU. Trade volume between them grew to 425.58 billion US dollars in 2008, an increase of 19.5 percent over the previous year despite the impact of the financial crisis, according to figures from China's customs authorities.

Wang said the two sides have every reason to avoid protectionism, either for the urgent need to work out of the current crisis or due to the irreversible trend of globalization.

He warned that protectionism, featuring the pursuit of benefits for one country at the expense of others, would in the end protect nobody, but lead to retaliation and make the crisis even worse, which has been proved by the history.

The world economy paid a heavy price for the prevalence of trade protectionism during the Great Depression in the 1930s, which resulted in the contraction of global trade by two thirds.

Also present on the occasion were Lt-Gen Tha Aye of the Ministry of Defence, Chairman of Kachin State Peace and Development Council Commander of Northern Command Brig-Gen Soe Win, ministers, deputy ministers, departmental heads, service personnel, members of social organizations, teachers, students, drum and bugle corps, pom pom troupe and local people.

Minister for Construction Maj-Gen Khin Maung Myint in his speech said that the bridge is the latest one among the 18 above-180-foot-long bridges constructed in Kachin State from 1988 onwards. Warazwut Bridge No (2) on the old road was 775 feet long and 12 feet wide and could withstand only 13 tons of loads. Warazwut Bridge No (2) on the new road is 354 feet long and 22 feet wide. It is of reinforced concrete type and can withstand 60 tons of loads.

The bridge is the result of the hard work the government and the private have jointly exerted for ensuring smooth transport, which is one of the five rural development tasks the government is carrying out.

In the past, Kachin State was difficult of access, and railway and airway were its major transport means. At that time, internal roads were not fine facilities in the region. Local people encountered undesirable consequences of poor Myitkyina-Namti-Tanai Road and lack of security along it for many years. In contrast, now the whole Kachin State has seen stability and peace and has developed considerably in various sectors. As a result, mutual understanding, trust and cooperation have been built among national brethren, security, peace and the rule of law have been restored, national unity has been further cemented, and development tasks can be expedited.

Upholding Our Three Main National Causes, the government is working hard in compliance with the guidance of the Head of State to improve the economic, education, health and transport sectors for equitable development of all parts of the Union.

Now, all the townships and villages are enjoying development with the characteristics of a township and a village. Border areas have seen international level cities and their development is on a par with that of border areas of neighbouring countries.

Up to 1988, the nation had only two large river-spanning bridges: Sagaing Bridge over the Ayeyawady River and Sittoung Bridge over the Sittoung River. The government has constructed eight bridges over the Ayeyawady River, two over the Chindwin River, five over the Thanlwin River, and one over the Sittoung River.

So far, the government has constructed 225 above-180-foot-long bridges over rivers and creeks including Warazwut Bridge No (2) in its time.

The government is trying for all-round development of the nation, bridging the development gap between one region and another, and transforming the nation into a peaceful, modern one. And it has achieved remarkable success due to the active participation of the people.

In conclusion, he called for maintenance of the facility, and sustained collaborative efforts with Union Spirit for emergence of a peaceful, modern, developed discipline-flourishing democratic nation in line with the State's seven-step Road Map.

Egypt brushes off reports on nuclear traces

CAIRO, 8 May — Egypt said on Thursday media reports that UN nuclear inspectors found traces of highly enriched uranium at an Egyptian reactor complex addressed an old issue that had already been resolved.

A restricted International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) report, obtained by Reuters on Wednesday, said the inspectors found the traces but did not specify if they were weapons-grade — enriched to a high-enough level to make a bomb.

Diplomats said the traces were not enriched to that grade but their fissile concentration was higher than the level normally suited to fuelling civilian nuclear power stations.

The report said Egypt had explained to the IAEA that it believed the highly enriched uranium (HEU) “could have been brought into the country through contaminated radio-isotope transport containers.” Egypt’s Foreign Ministry spokesman Hossam Zaki said in a statement the media reports were “mistaken and old” and led to questions about the motivations behind such a leak.

“Egypt previously explained to the agency the circumstances of this issue and the officials in the agency agreed with the Egyptian explanation,” he said, adding that the IAEA had always affirmed Egypt’s nuclear plans were peaceful.

He said the issue had been first raised in 2007.

Indian warship for anti-piracy operations in Seychelles

NEW DELHI, 8 May —With sea pirates increasing their activities off Seychelles Islands, the Indian Navy has sent another warship to the region to take on anti-piracy roles in tandem with foreign navies already there.

Navy sources said here Thursday that an Offshore Patrol Vessel was sent to Seychelles recently to relieve its hydrographic survey vessel, INS Nirdeshak, which was diverted for anti-piracy patrol to the Island nation’s waters two weeks ago.

“The offshore patrol vessel, which is escorting the Seychelles fast attack craft ‘Topaz’ following the latter’s refit in Vishakapatnam, is likely to stay back in the Island nation’s waters for a few days carrying out patrols,” the sources said.

The Navy move comes due to increased pirate attacks on ships in the region, following their activities being curtailed by the increased presence of foreign warships in the Gulf of Aden. — MNA/PTI

Volvo recalls 3,136 vehicles over windshield wiper malfunction

BEIJING, 8 May—Global automaker Volvo Car Corporation decided to recall 3,136 S80 vehicles in China over windshield wiper flaws, said the General Administration of Quality Supervision, Inspection and Quarantine (GAQSIQ) here Friday.

In a report to the top quality supervisor, Volvo said it identified a deviation in the Central Electronic Module (CEM) software in its model S800 cars that may cause the windshield wipers to malfunction.

If this happens, the windshield wipers may not work when needed, or they may work when not activated.

The affected vehicles were all imported and produced between Jan. 24, 2006 and June 4, 2007. Volvo and its dealers will contact the owners and inspect the CEM and upgrade the software free of charge.

Mazetier said he’ll think twice before stopping again to help someone on the street. He’ll be 85 in June.

Boeing and Airbus to learn efficient flight from birds?

Air drag on vehicles can be reduced by outfitting them with artificial feathers, a research team believes. Real birds have been using the trick for ages.

In addition to long feathers, which birds use to take wing and keep in the air, they have smaller ones called coverts. Coverts in the back of the wing vibrate in the airflow when the bird is gliding.

An Italian team of fluid physics researchers at the University of Genoa used computer modeling to see how big an effect these feathers have on flight efficiency, reports New Scientist magazine. They used a 20-cm diameter cylinder with artificial coverts in a virtual wind tunnel.

The 4 to 6 cm long and 0.5 mm in diameter bristles covered the cylinder at a density of around three fibers per square centimeter, and orienting parallel to the wind. When the wind blew, they started to vibrate just like real coverts do, and reduced the drag on the cylinder by approximately 15%.

The effect is due to the fibers interfering with the air flowing along the surface and preventing the forming of a low-pressure zone behind the cylinder. This zone causes turbulence and increases drag. A similar process explains why fresh, fuzzy tennis balls can speed through the air faster than worn ones, says Alessandro Bottaro, head of the team.

American detained in Italy over death

ROME, 8 May—A 24-year-old American studying in Florence was detained Thursday for questioning in the death of an Italian man, police and news reports said.

The American was found "covered with blood" about 200 metres (yards) from where the body of the victim, 62-year-old Riccardo Nistri, was discovered in a storefront on a quiet Florence street, said Carabinieri police Lt Col Ferdinando Musella.

The ANSA news agency, quoting unidentified investigators, named the American as Johnathan Robert Hindenach of Michigan.

Nistri's son had alerted police after he tried calling his father on the cell phone and heard an American in a "confused state" pick up, Musella said. A friend of the victim's also called police with a similar story and told police Nistri kept a second apartment on the street. ANSA said Hindenach had left his hotel Wednesday night in a confused state shouting that people wanted to kill him.

ANSA said he was believed to have been in Florence studying. A receptionist at the hotel, the Grand Hotel Mediterraneo, confirmed that several groups of students were staying at the hotel but said she only knew of the incident from the media. Nistri had two deep cuts in his neck, apparently cut by a broken piece of mirror, ANSA said. Hindenach also was wounded, it said. Hindenach was first taken to the hospital, then brought to the police station for questioning, ANSA said.—Internet

LIMA, 8 May—An American woman serving a 20-year sentence in Peru for collaborating with leftist guerrillas gave birth Wednesday to a baby boy, her father said.

I'm just ecstatic. This child will likely be my only grandchild, and I'm going to spoil him if I can," her father, Mark Berenson, a former college professor, told The Associated Press. Lori Berenson, a 39-year-old former Massachusetts Institute of Technology student, was arrested in 1995 and sentenced to life in prison by a military court the following year. Brazilians avoid deadly reptiles in fleeing floods CORIMATA DA CIMA, 8 May—Northern Brazil's worst floods in decades have driven 218,000 people from their homes to seek refuge wherever they can, packing onto flatbed trucks and braving rivers teeming with deadly reptiles in a scramble for higher ground.

Already, 36 people have been killed in the flooding, sparked by unusually heavy rains that have been falling for two months on 10 of Brazil's 26 states. Three times the size of Alaska, the affected area stretches from the normally wet rainforest to coastal states known for lengthy droughts.

Meteorologists blame an Atlantic Ocean weather system that typically moves on by April—and they forecast weeks more of the same. Maria do Remedio Santos, whose fields of rice and manioc lay ruined underwater on Thursday, said it was time to join those fleeing for safety. Heavy rains had begun seeping into her mud-brick, thatched-roof home, where nine relatives and neighbours were camped out. Outside, the dirt road was a muddy river."

Porpoise is 2nd to give birth in captivity

India proposes new railway, seaport links with B'desh

DHAKA, 8 May—Proposing new railway and seaport links with Bangladesh, India has said "constructive talks" on the long-pending transit issue could be resumed once the next government takes over in New Delhi and argued that enhanced connectivity will bring "huge financial gains" to Dhaka.

"Transportation of goods through railway is cheaper than any other modes of transport," Indian High Commissioner in Dhaka Pinak Ranjan Chakravarty told reporters after a meeting with Commerce Minister Faruq Khan here Wednesday night.

Chakravarty suggested establishment of a new railway connection between Akhaura in central Bangladesh and Agartala in Tripura for enhanced trade and said that "constructive" talks on connectivity or transit could resume after a new government takes office in India.

"Everybody now acknowledges that connectivity is necessary. If Bangladesh offers its roads and Chittagong Port for regional use, money will not be a problem for building required infrastructures," he said.

He said New Delhi would like to see the upgrading of the northeastern Chittagong Port as well as southwestern Mongla Port so India could use these to transport its goods to northeastern states. "There are many institutions to provide funding for upgrading the ports".

Scientist says volcanic eruption in Congo imminent

KINSHASA, 8 May — Scientists found evidence of intense volcanic activity — including tremors, pools of lava and plumes of smoke — at two volcanoes near a major city in eastern Congo, and said some residents had fled for fear of an eruption.

The volcanoes in the central African nation could be about to erupt, threatening Goma, which has a population of more than half a million people, scientists said Thursday. They made their observations on visits to the two volcanic peaks of Nyiragongo and Nyamulagira.

“The eruption could be tomorrow, or the day after — or at any other time,” said Dieudonne Wafula, the head of Goma’s Volcanological Observatory.

The Nyiragongo crater is only 11 miles (18 kilometres) north of Lake Kivu, where Goma is located. Wafula estimates that 1.3 million people are threatened by the two volcanoes, including the residents of Goma, the villages surrounding it and the inhabitants of Gisenyi, located across the Rwandan border.

“The villagers living near Nyiragongo have already left their villages after they saw the volcano shake today. They thought it was already erupting,” Wafula said.

He said government agencies and Red Cross workers were making preparations, although the country’s infrastructure has been destroyed by decades of civil war.

Nyiragongo is listed as one of the eight most dangerous volcanoes in the world and its lava can flow at up to 24 miles (40 kilometres) per hour, according to Wafula.

Two rare elephants found dead in Indonesian jungle

PEKANBARU, 8 May — Two rare Sumatran elephants believed to have been poisoned with cyanide-laced pineapples were found dead in the jungles of northwestern Indonesia with their tusks removed, a conservationist said.

The giant males aged 16 and 23 were discovered Thursday near Pekanbaru, Sumatra, about 560 miles (900 kilometres) from the capital, Jakarta, said Muslino, a spokesman for the Conservation and Natural Resources Agency. Like many Indonesians, he uses just one name.

Four pineapples spiked with cyanide were scattered on the ground near the carcasses and two sets of bloodied tusks had been hidden in the underbrush, said Muslino.

Police were searching for poachers believed responsible, he said.

Cleveland bridge to be moved 4 inches

CLEVELAND, 8 May — Construction workers in Cleveland face a Herculean task — moving the 70-million-ton Inner Belt Bridge 4 inches to the west, officials say.

The west end of the span, which carries Interstate 90 over the Cuyahoga River, will be raised off its piers, set on greased plates and then jacked the inches necessary to get it realigned properly, The Plain Dealer reported on Wednesday.

Once in place, the bridge will be re-bolted to the piers. The project is to start Friday night and take several days to complete.

Most of the work is to be done at night so traffic interruptions should be minimized, officials say.

“Basically we are going to pick it up and open it up,” said Tom Hyland, a Ohio Transportation Department construction engineer.

The project is being undertaken for safety reasons, Hyland said. Relocating the bridge will help an expansion joint to work as designed.

The joint is closed so tightly now that summer heat could cause it to jam or shut, putting more stress on the span. Ultimately, the bridge needs major repairs and likely replacement, the Cleveland newspaper said.

Britain to remove some DNA profiles from database

LONDON, 8 May — Britain bowed to a court ruling and promised Thursday to remove the DNA records of hundreds of thousands of innocent people from its vast national database of genetic information — but many will have to wait up to 12 years for their details to be deleted. People arrested on suspicion of a vast range of minor offenses, from shoplifting to public drunkenness, will have their DNA profiles held for six years even if they are not charged.

Critics accused the government of flouting the spirit of a European Court of Human Rights ruling and undermining the legal presumption of innocence in British law. The court in December rejected Britain’s “blanket and indiscriminate” storage of genetic information. “People in Britain should be innocent until proven guilty,” said Chris Grayling, law and order spokesman for the opposition Conservatives. “Ministers are just trying to get away with as little as they possibly can instead of taking real action to remove innocent people from the DNA database.”

H1N1 genes dissimilar to past outbreaks

LIVERMORE, 8 May — US researchers failed to find most genetic markers of influenza infection severity identified from past outbreaks in the current H1N1 flu. Jonathan Allen and Tom Slezak of the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory published their analysis identifying 34 conserved amino acid markers from past pandemic flu strains two weeks ago.

They have since studied sequences from the new virus and found that only about half of their 34 markers are present. “This lack of similarity does not necessarily mean that the current H1N1 virus is not going to be a major problem, but it does suggest that it lacks many of the attributes that have made previous outbreaks deadly,” Slezak said in a statement.

However, the researchers stress that, although their work appears to suggest the current virus may not be as dangerous as feared, more studies are required before any firm conclusions can be drawn.

Bremen edge Hamburg to brave into UEFA Cup final

BERLIN, 8 May — German football powerhouse Werder Bremen staged an incredible comeback victory in Hamburg as they edged local rivals Hamburg 3-3 on aggregate to brave into the UEFA Cup final on away goals.

Playmaker Diego, Claudio Pizarro and Frank Baumann hit the net for Werder, with Hamburg's Ivica Olic scoring the first and last of the game.

Werder Bremen thus overturned a 1-0 home deficit from the first leg to beat Hamburg 3-2 and qualify for the final of the UEFA Cup on the away goals rule.

Bremen will now meet Ukrainian side Shakhtar Donetsk in the final in Istanbul on May 20th - unfortunately without Diego, who is suspended after picking up a booking.

Thomas Schaaf's men are rapidly becoming something of a bogey team for their northern German rivals, having beaten them on penalties, also in Hamburg's back yard, in the DFB Cup semi-final just over two weeks ago.

The match was a pulsating encounter from the off and the first clear chance fell to Bremen, Claudio Pizarro heading a cross from Sebastian Boenisch over the bar in the 12th minute.—Xinhua

Samba stars send Shakhtar Donetsk into UEFA Cup final

DONETSK, 8 May — Shakhtar Donetsk thanked their Brazilian contingent's eye for goal as they saw off fellow Ukrainians Dynamo Kiev 2-1 to reach the UEFA Cup final for the first time on Thursday.

Donetsk's 3-2 semi-final aggregate win gave them a May 20 final date in Istanbul against Werder Bremen who put out German rivals Hamburg on the away goals rule. Shakhtar coach Mircea Lucescu praised his team.

"We are now a part of the history of European football," he said. "It was a tough game as Dynamo were at their best as well."

Hammam wins election to retain FIFA committee seat

KUALA LUMPUR, 8 May — Mohamed Bin Hammam will retain his seat on FIFA's executive committee, winning by just two votes on Friday at the Asian Football Confederation Congress.

After two ballots were deemed spoiled and inadmissible, the 46 nation AFC Congress voted in favor of the AFC president 23 votes to 21 against his Bahraini opponent, Sheik Salman bin Ibrahim Al-Khalifa.

"You have really shown the world the meaning of democracy," Hammam said. "It was really a close competition."

To those who supported me, I promise I will do more than I have done," he said. "To those who didn't support me, I promise I will do more to gain your trust and confidence."

The Qatari businessman had said he would resign as head of the AFC if he had lost the election. Sheikh Salman accepted Friday's outcome, with no dispute over the spoiled ballots, but said the narrow margin of victory put the president on notice to improve his performance.—Internet

US soldier found guilty in Iraqi rape, deaths

LOUISVILLE, 8 May—A former US soldier was convicted on Thursday of raping an Iraqi girl and killing her and her family near Baghdad in 2006 and now faces a possible death sentence. The federal court jury that delivered guilty verdicts on all 16 counts against former Private 1st Class Steven Green will decide his fate in the trial's death penalty phase beginning on Monday.

Green, 24, was tried in federal court as a civilian on murder, rape and obstruction of justice charges since his arrest came after he was discharged from the US Army later in 2006 for a "personality disorder". The trial, which lasted eight days before 1-1/2 days of jury deliberations, featured prosecution testimony by Green's former comrades in which they detail the brutal assault, one of several incidents involving American soldiers that enraged Iraqis and strained US relations.
