Further strengthen friendly ties between Myanmar and PRC

Myanmar and the People's Republic of China have been good neighbourly nations for many years maintaining friendly ties. As the relationship between the two countries is based on Paukphaw relations, they have been able to forge mutual trust, understanding and respect.

The diplomatic relations between the two countries will turn 60 in the coming year, and during the past 60 years, mutual friendship and understanding have been further strengthened.

With the exchange of visits between leaders of the two countries, relationship and economic cooperation between the two countries are ever more apparent.

During his stay in the PRC, Vice-Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council Vice-Senior General Maung Aye met with Chinese Premier Mr Wen Jiabao in Beijing on 16 June.

At the meeting, Vice-Senior General Maung Aye said that it was the third time he arrived in the PRC, and the aim of his visit was to scale up friendly ties and economic cooperation between the two countries.

Responding to the statements of Vice-Senior General Maung Aye, Chinese Premier Mr Wen Jiabao said that in rendering assistance to the development of Myanmar's economy, the PRC will do so in accordance with the no-strings-attached policy, adding that emphasis will be placed on promotion of the friendship and cooperation between the two countries.

Myanmar and the PRC have maintained friendly ties for years based on the five principles of peaceful co-existence. And we firmly believe that the visit of Vice-Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council Vice-Senior General Maung Aye to the PRC will not only promote friendly ties but also foster economic cooperation between the two countries.

Explosion kills two, wounds 20 in E Afghanistan

KABUL, 22 June—A powerful explosion rocked Afghanistan's eastern Nangarhar Province on Monday morning, killing at least two civilian and wounding over a dozen others, officials said.

"The incident occurred at 05:30 am (0100 GMT) inside a warehouse of weapons, collected under disarmament programme from people in Farm-e-Ada area, outside provincial capital Jala-labad, wounding 20 persons," spokesman of provincial administration Ahmad Zia Abdulzai said.

It took place close to residential areas and that was why caused catastrophe to civilians.

Meantime, Baz Mohammad, the deputy to health department in Jalalabad city told Xinhua that two persons including a child were killed in the bloody incident while two Afghan soldiers are among the injured men.

Ten of the injured have been discharged from the hospital after receiving first aid while the remaining including three in critical condition are under medical treatment, Mohammad added.

However, the officials did not say if the blast was due to militants' involvement or merely an accident.

Afghan firefight shows challenge for US troops

NOW ZAD, 22 June—Missiles, machine guns and strafing runs from fighter jets destroyed much of a Taliban compound, but the militants had a final surprise for a pair of US Marines who pushed into the smoldering building just before nightfall.

As the two men walked up an alley, the Taliban opened fire from less than 15 yards, sending bullets and tracer fire crackling inches past them. They fled under covering fire from their comrades, who hurled grenades at the enemy position before sprinting to their armored vehicles.

The assault capped a day of fighting Saturday, orchards and walled compounds of southern Afghanistan between newly arrived US Marines and well dug-in Taliban fighters. It was a foretaste of what will likely be a bloody summer as Washington tries to turn around a bogged-down, eight-year-old war with a surge of 21,000 troops.

Budget crisis forces deep cuts at California schools

RICHMOND, 22 June—California's historic budget crisis threatens to devastate a public education system that was once considered a national model but now ranks near the bottom in school funding and academic achievement.

Deep budget cuts are forcing California school districts to lay off thousands of teachers, expand class sizes, close schools, eliminate bus service, cancel summer school programmes, and possibly shorten the academic year.

Without a strong economic recovery, which few experts predict, the reduced school funding could last for years, shortchanging millions of students, driving away residents and businesses, and darkening California's economic future.

"California used to lead the nation in education," US Education Secretary Arne Duncan said during a recent visit to San Francisco. "Honestly, I think California has lost its way, and I think the long-term consequences of that are very troubling."

The budget cuts will be especially painful for struggling schools such as Richmond High School, where more than half of its 1,700 students are English learners and three-quarters are considered poor.

The East Bay area school has failed to meet academic standards set by the federal No Child Left Behind Act for more than four years.

TEHERAN, 22 June—Iranian officials have lashed out at some Western countries, particularly Britain and the United States, over their "interference" in Iran's election affairs as the country has been hit by post-vote unrest.

In his speech to foreign diplomats in Teheran on Sunday, Iranian Foreign Minister Manouchehr Mottaki was "highly critical of some Western countries, specifically France, Germany, Britain and the US, for their inappropriate, illogical and interfering words."

Mottaki also pointed out "an inflooding of British intelligence officials ahead of the election" into Iran, the English-language satellite channel Press TV reported.

The Iranian Foreign Minister insisted that Iran's election process and the whole observing structure make the possibility of any irregularities or vote rigging "close to zero."

Mottaki also criticized some foreign media outlets and television channels for beating "the drums of war" in their reports of Iran's post-election disputes.

Gaza's two years under Hamas: order and absurdity

GAZA CITY, 22 June—Two years after Hamas seized power, the Gaza Strip is a jumble of absurdities: an economy sustained by smuggling through tunnels, a civil service that gets paid on condition it doesn't work, and a population no longer fearful of gangs but feeling muzzled under the thumb of Hamas.

Under a border closure enforced by Egypt and Israel, the UN says, shampoo can come in but conditioner can't.

Nor can toys, candy or footballs.

The blockade was imposed on Gaza to drive the Islamic militants from power by cutting off all but basic humanitarian needs.

Instead it has entrenched their power while forcing hundreds of thousands deeper into poverty and making Gaza more of an obstacle to any peace deal.

Voices calling for new thinking are growing louder, with the Obama administration arguing that squeezing ordinary Gazans is a recipe for instability.

But there's no clear path forward, since opening the borders would require engaging the militants whom much of the world has shunned.

Carnivorous dinosaur's teeth discovered

TAMBA, 22 June—Museum officials in Japan say fossilized teeth from an ancestor of the tyrannosaurus have been found in the Hyogo Prefecture.

Museum of Nature and Human Activities officials said the teeth found in Tamba were inside strata thought to be up to 140 million years old, Kyodo reported on Sunday.

Curator Haruo Saegusa

said the fossils indicate the carnivorous dinosaur they came from was likely nearly 16.5 feet long.

Saegusa added if the fossils' age was similar to that of the strata it was discovered in, the finding would represent an early ancestor of the tyrannosaurus, the Japanese news agency said.

"If the dinosaur belongs to the same era as the strata, the tyrannosaurus could have started to grow larger much earlier than thought," Saegusa said.

Kyodo reported the tens of millions of years thought to separate the fossilized dinosaur from the later tyrannosaurus age may indicate the earlier dinosaur may have been evolving.

Ancient man-made cave found in Israel

A giant man-made underground cavern from the era of the Roman Empire has been found in Israel's Jordan Valley, scientists say.

Researchers from Haifa University's Department of Archaeology say the cave was used as a quarry and perhaps later as an ancient monastery, The Jerusalem Post reported on Sunday.

The cave was found in March just north of Jericho and is the largest man-made cave ever found in Israel, the newspaper said.

Its main hall is reportedly held up by 22 pillars, on which are carved Roman numerals, a Roman legion's pennant, crosses and zodiac-like symbols.

Professor Adam Zertal, who headed the dig, told the Post he dates the cavern to 1 AD. "Initially, the place was utilized as a quarry, which was active for 400 to 500 years," Zertal said.

Artists offer hints at mummy's former face

A curator at the University of Chicago's Oriental Institute says two artists came up with very similar renditions of a 2,800-year-old Egyptian mummy's face.

"They are so close that we feel pleased that we're giving people a pretty good idea of what Meresamun looked like in life," Teeter said. The two artists each used CT-scan images of the mummy's skull as a basis for their forensic investigation and the only major differences between their creations lay in their renderings' noses and chins.

Flu may cut Mexico Q2 GDP by 2.2%

SEOUL, 22 June—The fallout from the new H1N1 flu could cut 2.2 per cent from Mexico's gross domestic product for the second quarter, the World Bank said on Monday.

"Should recent levels of disruption in the commerce, restaurant, hotel and transportation businesses in the Mexico City region persist, they could reduce second-quarter GDP by as much as 2.2 per cent," it said in The Global Development Finance 2009 report released in Seoul on the sidelines of an international conference.

Slammed by the US recession, Mexico's economy shrank 8.2 per cent in the first quarter compared to the year-ago quarter, its biggest economic contraction since 1995.

But some experts say Mexico's economy may have already hit bottom and have predicted growth in the second half of 2009.

Iran accuses VOA, BBC of stirring up post-election unrest

TEHERAN, 22 June—Iran has accused Voice of America (VOA) and the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) of stirring up unrest in the country amid a dispute over the recent presidential election, the satellite channel Press TV reported on Sunday.

The two news outlets sought to stir up ethnic discord across Iran in the hope of fomenting the country's disintegration, Press TV quoted Iran's Foreign Ministry spokesman Hassan Qashqavi as saying on Saturday.

"The channels act as command posts engineering the ongoing post-election riots," he said. The Foreign Ministry spokesman also said that the two media served as the mouthpieces of the United States and Britain.

"VOA and BBC are state-funded channels and not privately-run. Their budgets are ratified in the US Congress, as well as the British Parliament," Qashqavi said.

He warned that any sort of contact with the two channels either through e-mail or telephone "runs against Iranian national sovereignty and is considered as an act of enmity towards the Iranian nation."

Death toll from Iraq's Kirkuk blast rises to 73

KIRKUK (Iraq), 22 June —The death toll from Iraq's deadliest bombing in more than a year rose to 73, police said on Sunday, a day after a suicide bomber detonated a truck packed with explosives outside a mosque in the north of the country. More than half of the victims were pulled from the rubble and dust of around 70 clay brick homes that were flattened in the explosion near the northern city of Kirkuk, said Brigadier General Najeh Mohammed, the local head of civil defence.

"We expect that there are still some dead bodies under the rubble. But the chances are less than before," said Mohammed. A survivor of the powerful explosion, Askar Zaman, said 10 of his relatives were killed, including sons and grandsons. Another, Hussein Azab, said he lost eight members of his family.

Ahmadinejad tells US, Britain to not interfere

TEHERAN, 22 June—Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad told the United States and Britain on Sunday to stop interfering in the Islamic Republic's internal affairs after its presidential election, the ISNA news agency said.

"Definitely by hasty remarks you will not be placed in the circle of friendship with the Iranian nation. Therefore I advise you to correct your interfering stances," Ahmadinejad was quoted as saying in a meeting with clerics and scholars.

Ahmadinejad, who often rails against the West, was directing this remark at US President Barack Obama and British Prime Minister Gordon Brown, ISNA said. Many Western countries have criticized the election, which was won by Ahmadinejad according to official figures, and its aftermath. His main opponent, moderate Mirhossein Mousavi, says the vote was rigged. The government denies the charge.

"They (Western countries) want to portray as small the great and powerful position that has been created for the Iranian nation inside and outside after the recent election, by which of course they made a mistake and they showed they still do not know the Iranian nation," Ahmadinejad said.—MNA/Reuters

Gazprom Neft reverses Sibir's leadership reshuffle

MOSCOW, 22 June—Mid-sized Russian oil firm Sibir Energy has re-appointed Stuard Detmer its chief executive at the request of its largest shareholder, Gazprom Neft, the company said on Monday.

The change reverses last week's management reshuffle, which saw Detmer replaced by Gazprom Neft's top legal expert Igor Tsibelman.

The annual shareholders' meeting of Gazprom Neft, the oil arm of gas export monopoly Gazprom, is scheduled for Monday, where the company's efforts to gain greater control of Sibir are likely to be discussed.

The appointment of Tsibelman last Thursday was seen as part of Gazprom Neft's drive to take operational control of London-listed Sibir after it spent more than one billion US dollars amassing a stake of 34 per cent.

Tsibelman will now become the first deputy chief executive to Detmer, "to ensure the seamless transition of the management of the company", Sibir said in a statement.—MNA/Reuters

Qantas flight hits turbulence, injuring seven

CANBERRA, 22 June—A Qantas flight from Hong Kong to Perth plunged about 100 feet (30 meters) after striking severe turbulence on Monday, injuring seven people. The Qantas A330-300 Airbus, with 206 passengers and 13 crews on board, was four hours out of Hong Kong when it hit an air pocket over Borneo, according to Qantas spokesman David Epstein.

Passenger Keith Huxtable described the brief but terrifying plunge as "like falling out of a 30-storey building".

Although several passengers without their seatbelts fastened were hurled around the cabin, most of the injuries are believed to have been minor.

Epstein said the Air Transport Safety Bureau was investigating the incident.

He said the pilot aboard QF68, Captain Brett Flack, had decided it was safe to fly onto Perth after the injuries had been reported back to medical authorities in Australia. Ambulance officers went on board the aircraft to treat the injured when it landed in Perth. —Xinhua

Study shows dinosaurs much lighter than previously thought

WASHINGTON, 22 June —Dinosaurs may not have been as monstrously heavy as previously thought, because of flaws in the statistical model to calculate their weight, researchers reported on Sunday.

Widely cited estimates for the mass of Apatosaurus louisae, one of the largest of the dinosaurs, may be double that of its actual mass, the researcher said in the Zoological Society of London's Journal of Zoology.

Apatosaurus was said to have weighted 38 tons but its actual mass may be only 18 tons, they claimed.

"Paleontologists have for 25 years used a published statistical model to estimate body weight of giant dinosaurs and other extraordinarily large animals in extinct lineages," lead researcher Gary Packard from Colorado State University said in a statement.

Heart attacks more survivable in US

LOS ANGELES, 22 June — Heart attacks have become less fatal in the United States due to improved health care, a new study shows.

After reviewing more than 10,000 first heart attacks in four widely separated areas of the United States, researchers found only a marginal decrease in the heart attack death rate, from 5.3 percent in 1987 down to 3.8 percent in 2002.

But when researchers looked at 20 indicators of severity, they found that heart attacks today are not as damaging and deadly as in years past, according to the study published by Health Day News on Sunday. "There are several possible reasons why heart attacks are not killing as many people," said lead researcher Dr Merle Myerson, director of the cardiovascular disease prevention programme at St Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital in New York City.

"We need to look at those and determine how we should train the next generation of health-care providers to continue this progress," said Myerson.

Part of the reason for that, Myerson said, lies in the quality of care people are receiving at the hospital. There are better medications available, including anti-platelet and anti-coagulant drugs to help clear blockages.

There also are better medical procedures available, with more doctors becoming skilled at performing angioplasty and bypass surgeries and implanting stents to open blocked arteries, she added.—Internet

Green tea may slow prostate cancer

SHREVEPORT, 22 June — Men who consumed compounds in green tea showed a reduction in serum markers predictive of prostate cancer progression, US researchers said.

James A Cardelli of the Feist-Weiller Cancer Center, Louisiana State University Health Sciences Center-Shreveport, and colleagues conducted an open-label, single-arm, phase II clinical trial to determine the effects of short-term supplementation with green tea's active compounds on serum biomarkers in patients with prostate cancer.

The biomarkers include hepatocyte growth factor, vascular endothelial growth factor and prostate specific antigen. HGF and VEGF are good prognostic indicators of metastatic disease, Cardelli said. The study included 26 men, ages 41-72 years, diagnosed with prostate cancer and scheduled for radical prostatectomy — removal of the prostate.

Researchers claim breakthrough in AIDS treatment

WASHINGTON, 22 June — A group of Canadian and American researchers announced on Sunday they had discovered where the AIDS virus hides, a breakthrough that they claim could lead to a possible method for eradicating HIV infection. The researchers believe a combination of targeted chemotherapy and antiretroviral drugs could be one day used to attack so-called "HIV reservoirs" — immune system cells where the virus plays hide-and-seek.

"Current medications allow us to control HIV and limit its progression in most cases," said lead researcher Rafick-Pierre Sekaly of the University of Montreal, whose paper appeared in the journal Nature Medicine.

"However, the medications do not eradicate the disease. Instead, the disease persists within the body — much like water in a reservoir — and is never fully destroyed. We believe our latest research may help scientists and physicians overcome this hurdle," Sekaly said.

The researchers found that the AIDS virus is able to survive within two subsets of memory T-cells. Memory T-cells are a portion of the body's immune system and have the ability to learn, detect and attack certain types of infectious diseases. Once the virus is hidden in these reservoir cells, it becomes dependent on them: if the cell lives, the virus lives, but if the cell dies, so does the virus. It persists in memory T-cells through cell division. As such, destroying these immune cells will lead to the elimination of the resilient or hidden parts of the virus, the researcher said.

Existing drug cocktails known as highly active antiretroviral therapy of HAART destroy the AIDS virus circulating in the body, yet cannot reach those hidden in reservoir cells, they said.

"Based on this research, we believe one possible method for eliminating HIV in the body is to use a combined approach," said Sekaly.—Internet

China raises tobacco tax to curb smoking

BEIJING, 22 June — China has raised taxes on tobacco by six to 11 percent in an effort to pad state coffers and curb smoking in the world's largest cigarette market, according to the government and state press.

Tobacco wholesalers have also been hit with a five percent levy according to new tax rates that went into effect on 1 May but were announced over the weekend, the State Administration of Taxation said in a notice on its website.

"Efforts to increase the tobacco tax and lift tobacco prices have proven the most effective in reducing smoking among smokers of all income levels," the China Daily quoted the Chinese Association of Tobacco Control as saying Monday. "It will prevent young people from smoking and encourage more smokers to quit the harmful habit."

Tax on more expensive brands of cigarettes went up from 45 percent to 56 percent per carton, while the tax on cheaper tobacco saw an increase to 36 percent from 30 percent, the administration said.—Internet

BERLIN, 22 June—German top flight side Hoffenheim said on Sunday they have signed 18-year-old midfielder Franco Zuculini from Argentina's Racing Club Avellaneda for 4.7 million euros.

"Franco is a player full of talent and he has a lot of heart," said Hoffenheim manager Jan Schindelmeiser.

"Franco should come to Germany in a few days for final medical tests. We have agreed his contractual conditions with his father though the deal has yet to be signed," added Schindelmeiser.

Werder Bremen had also been tracking the youngster. Zuculini could be followed to Germany by his brother Bruno. Senegalese striker Demba Ba meanwhile is still angling for a move from Hoffenheim to VfB Stuttgart, who want him to fill the hole left by Mario Gomez, who has joined Bayern Munich for 30 million euros.—INTERNET talks with Nakamura's agent on Monday, Jiji Press reported. Club officials could not immediately be reached for comment.

Nakamura, 31, had initially expressed his readiness to resign with the Marinos when his contract with the former Scottish champions expires at the end of this month. Barcelona want to keep Eto'o

Samuel Eto'o

MADRID, 22 June—Barcelona president Joan Laporta said Sunday he hoped Samuel Eto'o would see out the rest of his career at the club despite interest in the Cameroon striker from major European clubs.

Eto'o "is the best striker in the world, highly valued in the market. It would be nice if he could finish his career at Barca," said Laporta. But "Eto'o's contract ends next season and that requires us to sit and talk. The club wants him to continue for many more years, always in line with our wage structure," he was quoted as saying on the club's website.

Eto'o was Barcelona's top scorer in the league last season with 30 goals, and helped them win a unique treble of league, Spanish cup and European Champions League trophies. But the 28-year-old has reportedly sparked interest from big-spending English Premier League club Manchester City and Italy's Inter Milan.

US books place in semi-final by beating Egypt 3-0 in Confederations Cup RUSTENBURG, 22 June—The United States recovered on Sunday in its final group match of the Confederations Cup, thrashing African champions Egypt 3-0 to secure a slot in the semifinals.

Before the match, Egypt stunned the soccer world by beating world champions Italy 1-0 and losing to South American power Brazil 4-3, while the US suffered two consecutive defeats thus far. It was the first ever meeting of the two teams in the Royal Bafokeng Stadium in the South African northern mining city of Rustenburg.

The victory earned the US a slot of the semifinals after Group B leaders Brazil thrashed World Cup winners Italy 3-0 in Pretoria on the same day. The United States will meet Spain in the semifinals on Wednesday in the central South African city of Bloemfontein while Brazil will face hosts South Africa in Johannesburg on Thursday.

Venus sets her sights on Wimbledon hat-trick

LONDON, 22 June—Venus Williams has history in her sights as the American aims to cement her place among the grasscourt greats by completing a hat-trick of Wimbledon triumphs this year.

Williams will become only the fourth woman since the 1960s to claim three successive titles at the All England Club if she retains the aptly Venus Rosewater Dish, joining Steffi Graf, Martina Navratilova and Billie Jean King in the elite list of treble champions. Few would bet against the 29-year-old who has reached seven Wimbledon finals in the last decade.—INTERNET

Italy beaten by Brazil 3-0 in Confederations Cup

PRETORIA, 22 June—South American champions Brazil denied Italy's chance to march into the semi-final of the FIFA Confederations Cup on Sunday by thumping the World Cup winners 3-0 in their final group match.

In the Loftus Versfeld Stadium in Pretoria, Brazil repeated their habit of beating Italy just as before when Selecao Brasileira (Brazilian Selection) won their two FIFA World Cup final fuels in 1970 and 1994. Compared with the Azzurri whose defence seemed porous from the outset, Brazil produced a stunning display of their prowess by enjoying better possession of the ball in the first half.

Before the fuel with Brazil, Italy had three points, the same as Egypt who had a match against the United States on Sunday in Rustenburg. The Azzurri's hope to sail into the next stage became slimmer after their 1-0 defeat by African champions Egypt in the South African economic hub of Johannesburg on Thursday.

It was also a new record in African
