Extensive use of farm equipment in agriculture

Now, being the cultivation season, farmers throughout the nation are extensively engaged in agriculture. Work is well under way to put over 17 million acres under monsoon paddy nation-wide in the 2009-2010 cultivation season. In that regard, cultivation of monsoon paddy in Yangon and Bago Divisions has been completed meeting the set acreage and ceremonies to complete ploughing were held in the divisions.

Yangon and Bago Divisions are enjoying the higher per acre yield of paddy, for they are able to cultivate monsoon paddy in time yearly. Meanwhile, efforts are to be made to exceed the target of cultivating monsoon paddy through continued cultivation of paddy in the areas where water receded later.

For boosting the per acre yield, the use of high yield quality paddy strains is absolutely imperative along with modern agricultural methods. Moreover, systematic use of fertilizer, extensive use of farm equipment and cultivation of paddy in the most suitable time are indispensable.

Myanmar Farm Equipment Factories were established in Ingon, Kaukse Township, Mandalay Division, in Ywathagyi, 9th Mile and Kyaikkalo, Yangon Division for farmers to be able to extensively use farm equipment. Those factories are in the process of producing and distributing Leya-16 power tillers, Leya-22 power tillers, one-wheel power tillers, power tillers used on slope, long-handle power tillers, threshers and other farm equipment.

The extensive use of farm equipment can save time, money and energy and minimize loss and wastage. With early completion of cultivation of monsoon crops, farmers will be able to engage in double cropping in time.

At a time when the government is taking all the possible measures for development of the agricultural sector, the onus is on farmers to actively engage in agriculture making better use of farm equipment, quality paddy, fertilizer and agricultural methods. Only then, will the agricultural output surely increase.

Double suicide bombing kills more than 20 in Iraq

BAGHDAD, 13 Aug—A double suicide bombing devastated a cafe packed with young people in northwestern Iraq on Thursday, killing at least 21 people, officials said, in the latest attack against a minority community.

The blast occurred shortly after 5 p.m. in Sinjar, a city dominated by members of the Kurdish-speaking Yazidi religious group that is concentrated near the Syrian border.

It came two years after a village near Sinjar was hit by one of the worst insurgent attacks since the 2003 U.S. invasion. Four suicide truck bombers exploded nearly simultaneously in Qahataniya on Aug. 14, 2007, killing as many as 500 Yazidis.

The Ayoub cafe that was struck Thursday is located in a leafy area near a spring and is a popular sunset destination.

City officials imposed a curfew and said some of the most seriously wounded were evacuated to hospitals in the nearby semiautonomous Kurdish region.

Three dead in attack on head of northern Mexico prison

CIUDAD JUAREZ (Mexico), 13 Aug — Gunmen attacked a vehicle carrying a prison director in the northern Mexico state of Chihuahua, killing three bodyguards and wounding two more seriously, authorities said on Wednesday. Prison director Gerardo Hernandez was unharmed in the attack late on Tuesday, but has been replaced in the post for his own safety, Chihuahua state Public Safety Secretary Victor Valencia said. He started the job in June. Valencia said the two surviving guards are in serious condition at local hospitals. The attack occurred in the state capital, also known as Chihuahua.

In the border city of Nuevo Laredo, city police found a bullet-ridden sport utility vehicle belonging to the federal Communications and Transportation Department crashed into a post on a street. There was blood on the seats, and four department employees identified as cargo inspectors were reported missing.

Nuevo Laredo is a major shipping route to the United States, and drug traffickers frequently use it to smuggle drugs. More than 11,000 people have died in drug-related violence since President Felipe Calderon took office in late 2006 and began a major offensive against drug cartels.—Internet

A Libyan official in Tripoli said an agreement was "in the last steps" but added that a deal had also been struck that neither side would make any official announcement about Megrahi's release until he was on home soil. Al Megrahi was convicted under Scottish law and sentenced to life in prison for blowing up a Pan Am airliner over the Scottish town of Lockerbie as it flew from London to New York on 18 December, 1988. ## Singapore's SingTel 2Q profit rises 7.7 percent

SINGAPORE, 13 Aug — Singapore Telecommunications Ltd, the largest telephone company in Southeast Asia, said its profit rose 7.7 percent in the April-June period as a growing subscriber base aided income.

The company, also known as SingTel, said in a statement on Thursday that net income for its fiscal first quarter rose to 945 million Singapore dollars ($654 million), up from SG$878 million a year earlier.

"The current operating environment remains a challenge," Chief Executive Chua Sock Koong said. SingTel said income gained 1.9 percent to SG$3.85 billion as its global subscriber base jumped by a third to 262 million.

A stronger Singapore dollar undermined profits from overseas units, the company said.

SingTel's stakes in operators in Australia, Thailand, Indonesia, India, the Philippines, Pakistan and Bangladesh account for more than half of the company's profits.

"If we look at the economic numbers that have been announced across the region, we're probably quite comfortable that the worst is over," Chua said.

"But we see that the growth across sectors in the economy is actually still uneven."

Hyundai Motors's January-July sales in China soar

SEOUL, 13 Aug — South Korea's Hyundai Motor Co said on Thursday it saw a 66 percent year-on-year sales jump in China during the first seven-month period of 2009 thanks to stimulus packages by the Chinese government.

Hyundai's total sales of vehicles stood at 300,816 units in the January-July period, sharply up from last year's sales of 294,506 units, the company said. The automaker said its gain sprang up mainly due to China's tax cuts on small vehicles, cars with an engine size of 1.6 liters or less.

"Hyundai will continue to witness its sales increase steadily down the road," local analysts said.

The South Korean leading carmaker recently revised up its target sales in China for a second time this year on the back of stimulus measures by the Chinese government to spur demand. — Xinhua

Short Web address site tr.im to stay in business

SAN FRANCISCO, 13 Aug — Web address shortening service tr.im is back in business — just days after announcing it would trim itself out of operation.

Eric Woodward, co-founder of The Nambu Network, said his company's tr.im service has reopened in the wake of "countless public and private appeals."

"Nambu will keep tr.im operating going forward, indefinitely, while we continue to consider our options in regards to tr.im's future," he wrote in a blog post on Tuesday.

Woodward had announced in a Sunday blog post that tr.im would be shutting down after about a year in operation.

Because of its growing popularity, the service needed "significant development investment and server expansion to accommodate," he wrote then.

No one would take over the site from Nambu Network, even for a "token amount of money," he added.

Though the site was shut down, Woodward said existing tr.im links would work through the end of the year. At that point, Nambu was to decide whether to extend that deadline. Tr.im is currently back up and running. Services like tr.im convert super-long Web addresses into a handful of characters.

Delta suspends Salt Lake to Tokyo flights because of A/H1N1 flu

HOUSTON, 13 Aug — Delta Air Lines Inc, the world's largest carrier, said on Wednesday it will suspend its nonstop service to Tokyo from Salt Lake City because of the weak economy, a drop-off in air travel and fears about the A/H1N1 flu virus.

Delta spokesman Anthony Black said that flights will be suspended between 1 Oct and 14 May, when they are set to resume.

While the recession played a big part in Delta's decision to suspend the Tokyo route launched in June, analysts say the A/H1N1 scare also played a role.

Last month, Delta announced a loss of 257 million dollars for the second quarter.

Delta said the global recession, exacerbated by the impact of the A/H1N1 flu virus, has caused the company's revenue to decline more than 3 billion dollars for the first six months of the year, translating to more than 40,000 dollars in lost revenue per employee.—Xinhua

Bank of England says Britain's economic recovery to be slow

LONDON, 13 Aug — The Bank of England Governor Mervyn King said on Wednesday that the recession in Britain appeared to be deeper than it previously thought and the country's economic recovery would be slow.

Speaking at a press conference on issuing the bank's quarterly inflation report, King said that the unprecedented monetary stimulus is taking effect but stressed that the depth of the downturn meant that recovery would be protracted despite recent encouraging reports on the housing market and consumer confidence.

He added that unemployment is likely to rise for the foreseeable future and that there is a significant risk that inflation will undershoot its 2 percent target for some time. The British central bank governor stressed that while the bank expects economic growth to resume over the next few quarters, "we will find ourselves in a difficult position for years to come." The British economy shrank by 0.8 percent in the second quarter following a steep drop of 2.4 percent in the first quarter, the fifth straight quarter of decline. Many analysts including those of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) have predicted that the British economy will shrink by more than 4 percent this year and increase at a speed under 0.5 percent next year.

Global population to hit 7 billion in 2011

WASHINGTON, 13 Aug — Global population will grow from about 6.7 billion at present to some 7 billion in 2011, according to a report released on Wednesday by a US nonprofit research group.

Meanwhile, a staggering 97 percent of the world’s population growth over the next 40 years will happen in Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Caribbean, the Washington DC-based Population Reference Bureau said in its 2009 World Population Data Sheet.

In the developed world, it said, the United States and Canada will account for most of the population growth during that period — half from immigration and half from a natural population increase.

High fertility rates and a young population base in the developing world will fuel most of the growth, especially in Africa, where women often give birth to six or seven children over a lifetime, it said.

Second World War seaplane wreckage found in eastern Canada

Canadian archaeologists have found the wreckage of a United States military seaplane that sank under the water of the St Lawrence River during the Second World War, local media reported on Thursday.

The US army air forces PBY 5A flying boat, also known as a Catalina, went down in the St Lawrence River near Anticosti Island 67 years ago. It was trying to take off in high waves when it foundered and sank.

It may contain the remains of five crew members who died when it sank in 1942, the report said. Four of the nine crew members were rescued.

During the Second World War, the region was home to one of the airfields built in Eastern Canada that were used to ferry aircraft and supplies to Allied forces in Europe.

Canadian officials will now work with the US government to formally identify the wreck and to explore the possibility of eventually recovering the remains of the missing crew members, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC) said in a report.

These tropical regions receive rainfall of over 200 inches. It was pouring with rain at the time when we arrived there.

Thanbyuzayat was named for a white CI sheet-roofed rest house built by merchants from the nearby villages including Wakharu and Panga villages to enable travellers to stop over there. Thanbyuzayat is called Zupbu in Mon language. "Zup" means rest house and "bu" means tin.

The construction of 700-foot long approach road on Panga bank and 650-foot long approach road on Kayokepi bank has been completed. Upon completion, the bridge will contribute to smooth transport and swift flow of commodities and it will become very convenient for local people from Panga and Welkawah villages in Thanbyuzayat and villages such as Kayokepi, Anin, and Thabyaechaung on the side of Kayokepi model village.

The court pronounced the final judgment on the case against Mr John William Yettaw and Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, which received media coverage at home and abroad. In the run-up to the final judgment, the media incited protests, generated public outrage and masterminded the schemes, claiming that anti-government groups would do something harmful to the nation if Daw Aung San Suu Kyi was put behind bars. So, I was in fear that there might be riots again in the nation. But, the entire people now can breathe a sigh of relief and the situation is acceptable to all sides as the Head of State issued a directive on the court pronouncing sentence to show his consideration and benevolent attitude to them.

In particular, all wondered what judgment the court would pronounce to Daw Aung San Suu Kyi. The statements and arguments of the witnesses at the court were stated daily in the newspapers, so all could view the nature and developments of the trial. The majority of the people accepted that if someone is found guilty, the court has to take action against him in accordance with the existing law, without any discrimination against or in favour of a particular person, because no man is above the law.

In short, the final judgment was pronounced to Daw Aung San Suu Kyi and others on 11 August. The court delivered sentences in the presence of lawyers of the accused, district law officers (public prosecutors), ambassadors whose offices are based in Yangon and Thailand, military attaches, representative of UNDP, and local and foreign journalists. Yangon North District Court delivered three years rigorous imprisonment to the accused Daw Aung San Suu Kyi in connection with the 1975 Law Safeguarding the State Against the Danger of Subversive Elements, Section 22.

Shortly thereafter, MRTV and MRTV-4 aired breaking news, which relieved all the emotional feelings of the entire people. It was a good news which brought about a result acceptable to all. One day before the court's final judgment to Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, the Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council issued a directive to amend under Criminal Procedure Code that half of the sentence to be served was remitted and the remainder of the sentence was to be suspended, and all suspended sentences shall be pardoned if she abides in accordance with the annexed stipulations in good conduct during the suspended period. The State Peace and Development Council Office gave the directive to the Ministry of Home Affairs. The news was aired promptly by the MRTV and radio, and that reflected the efficiency of brilliant performance of State media.

The directive said that the court constituted the case for breach of provision against Daw Aung San Suu Kyi and the State Peace and Development Council Office was aggrieved at the said action; that however, for the sake of the rule of law, judicial proceedings justly made in accordance with existing law shall be respected and abided by all citizens. It is an inspiring statement. Every country has their laws, and each citizen has to respect the judgments pronounced in accordance with the existing law. The law treats all the people equally, and no man is privileged in law, and that is very important.

However, Daw Aung San Suu Kyi is the daughter of General Aung San, who sacrificed his life for the independence of Myanmar, viewing that peace, tranquility and stability will prevail, no malice should be held against each other, and there should be no obstruction in the path to democracy, the Head of State showed his consideration in the framework of his authority for Daw Aung San Suu Kyi.

So, whatsoever sentence was pronounced, it was amended that the half of the sentence to be served was remitted and the remainder of the sentence was to be suspended. During the period of suspended sentence, she shall reside in her residence with her two companions. Moreover, all suspended sentence shall be pardoned if she abides in accordance with the annexed stipulations in good conduct during the suspended period and not exceeding such period.

Hearing the good news, the people were all pleased, relishing the thought and hope of continuing the transition to democracy smoothly without sacrificing community peace and stability due to the directive the visionary Head of State issued with benevolent attitude and loving-kindness.

Issuing the directive, the Head of State not only respected the law but also expressed consideration towards Daw Aung San Suu Kyi to his highest degree for her comfort and convenience. In the international arena, the ruling government not only exercised the jurisdiction skillfully, but also relieved the concerns of the foreign countries and regional countries that favour the interest of Myanmar. The directive can be deemed to be an important decision that helps avert needless consequence of instability, and an opportunity given for carrying on the democratization without infringing stability and peace.

Actually, the directive indicated that the government commuted the sentence at the highest level. In other words, the directive is designed to ensure win-win situation. Moreover, it gave anti-government groups good opportunities to accept the situations and keep on carrying out political activities.

The directive also says that should Daw Aung San Suu Kyi abide in accordance with the annexed stipulations in good conduct during the suspended period and not exceeding such period, all suspended sentences shall be pardoned. As far as I am concerned, Daw Aung San Suu Kyi can enjoy amnesty if she abides by the annexed stipulations. Then, she can hope good opportunities for her future.

The people accepted wholeheartedly the court pronouncing sentence to her and the government's consideration. But, certain countries and foreign radio stations, as usual, are still claiming unreasonably that they object the sentence, they are deeply concerned over her, and she should be released immediately. Needless to say, the government's decision is just, fair, and considerate, which is known to the people and the international community. Nevertheless, some countries and anti-government media cannot accept the judgment and are commenting on the situations blindly. They have no choice but to continue their scheme, turning a blind eye to objective conditions of the nation because they are already locked in the situations. They have committed themselves in their words, so they are in no position to eat their words.

The government permitted Daw Aung San Suu Kyi to reside in her residence, but foreign media use the expression "house arrest" to mislead the global family into misunderstanding the government. Such an expression should not be used. The decision is intended for her convenience. She can live in the compound of her house freely; she can read allowed newspapers, journals and publications; she can watch MWD and MRTV; she can get health care from the permitted doctor and nurses; she can make written request for her needs; she can receive her guests with restrictions; and she can do other necessary things through permission. That depicts that the government complies with her wishes at the unprecedented level, and it is, indeed, a positive change.

Anyway, different people have different views on a matter. The people understand and believe that the government showed its benevolent attitude and consideration as possible as it could to generate a situation that is acceptable to all sides. We also assume that the directive created some more opportunities for a brighter future of the nation. So, we hope that the two sides turn to forgive and forget attitude and the political forces will work together for successful completion of the democratic process.

Due to the term "change" said by President Obama, these days, that word is very popular all over the world. In my opinion, by issuing the directive, the government has paced a giant step towards change. If a person offers his hand, and the other does the same, it will not be difficult for them to shake hands. We should smile in return when someone smiles to us, and we should show loving-kindness in return when someone shows loving-kindness for us. Only then will there be a change.

At least 45 killed in major battle in Philippine south

MANILA, 13 Aug—A major battle between Philippine troops and Muslim guerillas on a remote southern island has killed at least 45 people, a senior military commander said on Thursday.

At least 22 rebels and 23 soldiers were killed in a military assault on Wednesday on a base of Abu Sayyaf rebels in the interior of the southern island of Basilan, Brigadier-General Rustico Guerrero told reporters. "We launched a decisive law enforcement operation targeting the Abu Sayyaf's main training base on Basilan, but we were met by heavy resistance," Guerrero said.

Other officials said the battle died down after eight hours, as the guerillas fled into the heavily wooded interior of the island. Rear Admiral Alexander Pama, a commander on Basilan, said an estimated 40 rebels were killed, but only 22 bodies had been recovered at the scene of the conflict.

"It was close quarter combat, the two sides almost came into hand-to-hand battle," Pama told Reuters, adding the proximity meant the military could not call in air strikes. "What's more important for us was we've disrupted their crude bomb factory and training base".—MNA/Reuters

Storms In The Tropics Of Saturn's Moon Titan Discovered

SCIENCE DAILY, 13 Aug—For all its similarities to Earth—clouds that pour rain (albeit liquid methane not liquid water) onto the surface producing lakes and rivers, vast dune fields in desert-like regions, plus a smoggy orange atmosphere that looks like Los Angeles's during fire season—Saturn's largest moon, Titan, is generally "a very bland place, weatherwise," says Mike Brown of the California Institute of Technology

"We can watch for years and see almost nothing happen. This is bad news for people trying to understand Titan's meteorological cycle, as not only do things happen infrequently, but we tend to miss them when they DO happen, because nobody wants to waste time on big telescopes—which you need to study where the clouds are and what is happening to them—looking at things that don't happen," explains Brown, the Richard and Barbara Rosenberg Professor of Planetary Astronomy.

UK jobless rate hits 13-year high of 7.8%

LONDON, 13 Aug—British unemployment hit its highest rate since 1996 in the three months to June, official figures showed on Wednesday, while the number of people claiming jobless benefit rose broadly as expected in July.

The Office for National Statistics said the ILO jobless rate rose to 7.8 per cent in April-June, above forecasts for a rise to 7.7 per cent and the highest since October-December 1996.

The number of people without a job on this measure rose to 2.435 million, its highest since 1995. There was little market reaction to the data as investors focused on the Bank of England's quarterly inflation and growth forecasts, due at 0930 GMT.

Despite recent signs Britain may be starting to emerge from recession, unemployment is expected to keep rising for some months to come. Many analysts reckon the jobless total will hit three million, bad timing for Prime Minister Gordon Brown's Labour government which faces an election next year.

"There doesn't seem to be much sign that the rate of increase (in unemployment) is slowing down," said Stephen Lewis, chief economist at Monument Securities. Business Secretary Peter Mandelson, speaking before the figures were released, said Britain's stimulus measures had saved at least 500,000 jobs during the recession.

"The Treasury estimates that there would have been at least, probably far in excess of, 500,000 more jobs lost in the recession had it not been for the government's and the Bank of England's intervention," he told BBC radio. The ONS said the number of people claiming unemployment benefit rose by 24,900 in July, broadly in line with forecasts for a rise of 25,000 and after a downwardly revised increase of 21,500 in June.—MNA/Reuters

Black tea may fight diabetes

SCIENCE DAILY, 13 Aug—Long known for its antioxidants, immune boosting and, most recently, antihypertensive properties, black tea could have another health benefit. Black tea may be used to control diabetes, according to a study in the Journal of Food Science, published by the Institute of Food Technologists.

Next to water, tea is the second most consumed beverage in the world. Researchers from the Tianjin Key Laboratory in China studied the polysaccharide levels of green, oolong and black teas and whether they could be used to treat diabetes. Polysaccharides, a type of carbohydrate that includes starch and cellulose, may benefit people with diabetes because they help retard absorption of glucose.

The researchers found that of the three teas, the polysaccharides in black tea had the most glucose-inhibiting properties. The black tea polysaccharides also showed the highest scavenging effect on free radicals, which are involved in the onset of diseases such as cancer and rheumatoid arthritis.

SYDNEY, 13 Aug — The Australian Parliament has rejected government plans to introduce an ambitious carbon trading scheme to tackle global warming. The measure was the centrepiece of the government's environment plans, and would have cut greenhouse gas emissions by 5% over the next 10 years.

But opposition senators who control the upper house feared the legislation would harm the country's mining sector. The government can re-introduce the legislation after three months.

Climate Change Minister Penny Wong confirmed after the Senate defeat by 42 votes to 30 that the government would seek to do this. However, if the government is defeated again it could trigger a general election. —Internet

Missing ship headed into Atlantic

MOSCOW/LONDON, 13 Aug — A merchant cargo ship that disappeared off the coast of France two weeks ago is headed out into the Atlantic Ocean, maritime officials said on Wednesday, reinforcing the likelihood that it has been hijacked. Russian warships were ordered to join the hunt for the Arctic Sea, a 4,000-tonne bulk carrier with a 15-strong Russian crew that went missing shortly after passing through the Dover Strait between France and Britain late last month. The Maltese-registered, Finnish-chartered vessel was sailing from Finland to the Algerian port of Bejaia, where it was due to have docked on 4 August with a $1.3-million (786,400 pounds) load of timber. —Internet

Singapore may have passed peak of A/H1N1 outbreak

SINGAPORE, 13 Aug — The outbreak of flu A/H1N1 may have peaked in Singapore, local newspaper the Straits Times reported on Thursday. The number of patients seeking help at polyclinics for upper respiratory tract infections fell by 16.5 percent to 20,435 last week, compared with 24,477 the week before.

This may be indicative that the A/H1N1 wave has abated since community spread began in June, the Ministry of Health was quoted as saying. The situation is expected to be clearer in the next few weeks, the ministry said.

However, local doctors say that with deaths trailing new cases by a week, people should still expect those numbers to go up for another week or so. A 10th patient died of A/H1N1 here on Wednesday. Singapore reported its first confirmed case of A/H1N1 on 27 May. The country's first A/H1N1 related death case was reported on 18 July.

France prepares to close schools for A/H1N1 flu

PARIS, 13 Aug — The French government has prepared to close schools in the country in case that the A/H1N1 flu becomes a nationwide pandemic, Education Minister Luc Chatel was quoted by daily newspaper Le Figaro as saying on Wednesday.

"In case of a complete pandemic we are ready to close all of the schools in France," Luc Chatel said. "No threshold has been fixed for the closing of a school. It will be adapted on a case-by-case basis."

According to the minister, the government has worked on distance learning materials for broadcasting public teaching on television, radio and Internet. France has so far recorded around 1,000 H1N1 flu infections and one death. The government is worried that the spread of the virus will be accelerated following the start of the new school year.

Magnitude 6.5 quake hits off east coast of Japan

TOKYO, 13 Aug — A magnitude-6.5 earthquake hit off Japan's eastern coast early Thursday, the country's Meteorological Agency said. There were no immediate reports of damage or casualties. The agency said there was no danger of damage from a tsunami.

The quake hit at 7:49 am (1049 GMT) off the coast of Hachijo, a small island about 170 miles (275 kilometers) south of Tokyo, at a depth of 25 miles (40 kilometers).

Japan is one of the world's most earthquake-prone countries, and experts believe Tokyo has a 90 percent chance of being hit by a major quake over the next 50 years. In 1995, a magnitude-7.2 quake in the western port city of Kobe killed 6,400 people.—Internet

Egyptians pay tribute to pyramids

BEIJING, 13 Aug — The towering pyramids are the most recognizable symbol of the country. Young Egyptians launched a campaign to promote preservation of the ancient monuments last weekend. More than 400 Egyptian youth began a march, starting at the Sphinx and ending at the pyramids. They hoped the parade would raise public awareness on the need to preserve the ancient sites.

An Egyptian student said, "We hope people can have an understanding of our history by seeing these ancient relics. We should treasure the legacies we inherited and encourage people to learn about ancient Egyptian civilization." The marchers were mostly college and middle school students who are on summer vacation. The Cultural Ministry of Egypt organized the event, hoping to encourage the youth to learn more about the country's history.

Pyramids at Giza, on the outskirts of Cairo, are the most well known. Several of the pyramids at Giza are considered some of the largest structures ever built. The Pyramid of Khufu at Giza is the largest pyramid in Egypt. It is the only surviving monument of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World.2—Xinhua

Blind boy scales heights

BEIJING, 13 Aug — Lang Lang called him "Master Lai" after they performed a piano duet at the National Center for the Performing Arts last year. The totally blind 12-year-old Lai Jiajun let his fingers dance over the keyboard, and smiled as if he had noticed the surprise on Lang Lang's face.

Lai has magic hands and a memory that enables him to precisely repeat a song on the piano after listening just one or two times. He treasures the gift and loves spending hours at a time playing. His hobby became his major preoccupation when he was admitted in June to the prestigious Middle School Affiliated to Central Conservatory of Music. Lai is now practicing at least six hours a day.

"I think it's strange when my peers and their parents ask me whether I get bored practicing piano for so many hours a day. If I am not enthusiastic about my hobby, what is the point of doing it?" Lai says. Lai, however, is dissatisfied with his magic hands. He thinks they are too small and not supple enough to cover some piano pieces. Even so, he is confident that his hands will get bigger and more flexible.

Lai was blind soon after being born four months premature. He was put on a ventilator, but given too much oxygen, which cost him his eyesight. Aged 2, his father, Lai Gehong, bought him a toy electric piano. Music quickly grabbed little Lai's attention. He played for two months and memorized the sound of each key.—Xinhua

Antidepressants suicide risk age-dependent: FDA

BEIJING, 13 Aug — People under the age of 25 have a higher risk of suicide or suicidal thoughts when they take antidepressants and the risk declines steadily with age, according to reports Thursday quoting a new analysis by the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA). The FDA analysis by Dr Marc Stone, Dr Thomas Laughren and colleagues involved a review of 372 trials involving nearly 100,000 people who took antidepressants.

The findings showed that the drugs increase the risk for suicide in people under 25, have no effect in those 25 to 64 and reduce risk in those 65 and older. Since 2003, US and EU regulators have been sounding alarms on the use of antidepressants after clinical trials showed the drugs increased the risk of suicidal thoughts and behaviors in people under age 18. In February 2005, the FDA added a black box warning on the use of all antidepressants in young children.

In May 2007, it extended the warnings to young adults aged 18 to 24.

The new research findings support the agency's warnings on the drugs labeling for people under 25.

The research also found that antidepressant drugs could have two distinct effects. In some patients, they can promote suicidal thoughts or behavior — but this risk appears to decrease with age.

Mexico City respects traditional medicine, languages

MEXICO CITY, 13 Aug — The government of Mexico City is promoting respect for indigenous culture, including languages and medicine, head of community equality for the city, said in a recent interview with Xinhua. Indigenous people "have been excluded (from the mainstream society) for centuries because of culture, language and habits," Maria Rosa Marquez Cabrera said. "This has been reducing but that does not mean it has ceased to exist."

The Mexico City is trying to address the issue by, among others, reviewing cases of indigenous citizens in prisons under its jurisdiction and supporting indigenous herbalists, she said.

Marquez explained that some jailed indigenous people are stuck in prison because they miss paperwork or are unable to pay small fines.

"Many indigenous people coming from other areas of the nation don't have a birth certificate," she said.

"Some have not been subject to a fair legal process because of their financial condition, physical condition and because they only speak their own language."

Healthy diet, exercise lower dementia risk

BEIJING, 13 Aug — Long-term lifestyle habits as eating healthy diet and increasing physical activity levels can reduce the risk of mental decline in old age, according to reports Thursday quoting two new studies published this week. The first study, conducted by Taub Institute for Research on Alzheimer's Disease and the Aging Brain at Columbia University Medical Center, monitored 1,880 elderly people in New York City in a long term.

The study found that a Mediterranean-type diet, which emphasizes fruits, vegetables, legumes and healthy fats, and physical activity was linked to less risk for Alzheimer's disease. The second study, a shorter-term observation of 1,410 patients in France, found some correlation between a Mediterranean diet and slower cognitive damage. "There was an association between both a healthy diet and physical activity and reducing risk for Alzheimer's disease," said Nikolaos Scarmeas, the lead author of the first study.

From 1992 through 2006, researchers at Columbia University monitored 1,880 men and women without dementia every 18 months for diet, exercise and mental health. Those who ate well and exercised had a 60 percent reduction in the risk of developing Alzheimer's disease compared with those who didn't, according to the study. — Xinhua

Mexico beats US 2-1 in soccer World Cup qualifier

MEXICO CITY, 13 Aug — Mexico beat the United States 2-1 in Mexico City's Azteca Stadium on Wednesday, keeps the Mexican soccer team in the running for a ticket to 2010 World Cup due in South Africa.

The team fought back from an early setback when the US' Charlie Davies scored the opening goal after just nine minutes. However, it took just 10 minutes for Mexico's Israel Castro to score the equalizer, leaving the teams 1-1 at half time.

The hard-fought second half saw goalscoring chances for both teams and it was not until minute 81 that Mexico's Miguel Sabah scored the decisive point, just four minutes after coming on to substitute teammate Guillermo Franco.

Ronaldo to be back in action in a month

RIO DE JANEIRO, 13 Aug — Brazilian star striker Ronaldo said Wednesday that he would return to field in a month after figure surgery but declined to clarify the reports over weight reducing liposuction.

"We have a period of one month for the consolidation of the bone," said Ronaldo, who had surgery on his left hand two weeks ago after he fell badly to be injured during Corinthians' 3-0 defeat by Palmeiras on 26 July.

Asked at a news conference if he had had liposuction and if he thought it could help him, Ronaldo said: "I don't know, I don't even know if I did it. These are things we don't know...What I do with my private life is my business." Corinthians have not won in five matches and slipped to 11th in the Brazilian soccer championship standings.—Xinhua

English clubs mostly in frugal mood as new season starts

LONDON, 13 Aug — Ahead of the new Premier League season and amid Britain's deep recession, most top clubs in England are holding back from spending vast sums on new players without first offloading some of their own.

Only Manchester City are proving the exception, freely splashing the cash on some of their Premier League rivals' biggest stars as they prepare for the start of the 2009-10 campaign on Saturday.

Bankrolled by wealthy Gulf-based owners, City have so far spent a combined 95 million pounds (110 million euros, 157 million dollars) on transfer fees for five big names.

It includes 25 million pounds for Argentina forward Carlos Tevez from last season's title winners and local rivals Manchester United.

The Eastlands outfit have also spent 40 million pounds to land Emmanuel Adebayor and Kolo Toure from Arsenal, 18 million pounds on Blackburn's Roque Santa Cruz and 12 million pounds on Gareth Barry from Aston Villa.

Milan waive keeper Kalac to make room for Roma

"Milan thank Kalac for what he did during his time at the club and wish him the best for the future," said a statement on the club website.

Kalac, whose contract with Milan had been cancelled by mutual consent, joined Milan in 2005 but he was rarely their first choice option. Milan have three other keepers on their books, but only Marco Storari is fully fit, with Dida and Christian Abbiati both fighting to recover from injury.—Xinhua

Don't get cocky, Capello warns England footballers

England's coach Fabio Capello leaves the pitch after an international friendly World Cup match against Holland, on 12 Aug, in Amsterdam.—INTERNET

AMSTERDAM, 13 Aug — Fabio Capello has warned his England stars not to get cocky again after their over-confidence led to a sloppy 2-2 friendly draw with Holland.

A run of seven successive World Cup qualifying wins has taken England to the brink of reaching next year's finals and raised hopes of success in South Africa.

But Capello's team produced a performance that reeked of complacency in the first half at the Amsterdam Arena on Wednesday.—Internet

Beckham ready to snub Premiership for Milan return

AMSTERDAM, 13 Aug — David Beckham has all but ruled out a return to the English Premier League after insisting AC Milan are very much his first choice when he leaves LA Galaxy at the end of the Major League Soccer season.

Beckham, who won his 113th cap for England during Wednesday's 2-2 draw against Holland in Amsterdam, has been told by his national coach Fabio Capello that he must move back to Europe if he wants to be considered for next year's World Cup finals in South Africa.

Capello's comments led to speculation that Beckham could return to the Premier League for the first time since leaving Manchester United for Real Madrid in 2003, with Tottenham, Portsmouth and even Chelsea reported to be interested. But the midfielder, who paid out of his own pocket to subsidise a loan move to Milan last season, was unimpressed when asked if he could play in England again.—Internet

But the Spanish regrouped after their horrendous opening phase and the second half was an entirely different affair.

Researchers Unravel Mystery Behind Long-lasting Memories

Extreme emotions trigger the release of a chemical in the brain called norepinephrine, which is related to adrenaline. That norepinephrine somehow helps memories last a long time – some even a lifetime.

INTERNET

SCIENCE DAILY, 12 Aug—A new study by researchers at Wake Forest University School of Medicine may reveal how long-lasting memories form in the brain.

The researchers hope that the findings, now available online and scheduled to appear in an upcoming issue of Neuroscience, may one day help scientists develop treatments to prevent and treat conditions such as post-traumatic stress disorder.

“Although many things are known about memories that form from repeat experiences, not much is known with regard to how some memories form with just one exposure,” said Ashok Hegde, Ph.D., an associate professor of neurobiology and anatomy and the lead investigator on the study.

For physicians bust myths about insulin

SCIENCE DAILY, 11 Aug— People diagnosed with type 2 diabetes often resist taking insulin because they fear gaining weight, developing low blood sugar and seeing their quality of life decline.

A study recently completed at UT Southwestern Medical Center suggests that those fears are largely unfounded and that patients and physicians should consider insulin as a front-line defense, as opposed to a treatment of last resort for non-insulin-dependent diabetes.

"We found that those patients who received insulin initially did just as well, if not better, than those who didn't receive insulin," said Dr. Ildiko Lingvay, assistant professor of internal medicine at UT Southwestern and lead author of the study appearing online and in a future issue of Diabetes Care. "This reinforces the idea that insulin treatment is a viable and safe option for patients, even in the very initial stages of their diagnoses.—Internet
