Constructive attitude in the area of international relations

Myanmar is a member of global family. It is dealing amicably with all countries in accord with the five principles of peaceful coexistence.

In the area of international relations also, Myanmar is dealing with other nations on a basis of mutual equality without any bias and discrimination. It is also a country that is willing to fully cooperate with neighbouring nations, regional nations and all other nations with a constructive attitude.

Senator Mr Jim Webb, Chairman of the East Asian and Pacific Affairs Subcommittee of the US Senate Foreign Relations Committee, recently visited Myanmar. During his visit, he was allowed to meet Head of State Senior General Than Shwe. He was able to meet, discuss and exchange views with the Prime Minister and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Moreover, Mr Jim Webb had an opportunity to meet those from the State Constitution Drafting Commission, social organizations, national race groups which have returned to the legal fold and officially registered political parties as well as Daw Aung San Suu Kyi.

At the request of the US senator, the Myanmar government released US citizen Mr Yettaw against whom action was taken for violating the existing law on humanitarian grounds and now he has been permitted to return home. This means that the Myanmar government has shown respect for the rule of law as well as humanitarianism and human rights.

As Mr Jim Webb's tour of Myanmar has successfully concluded, we hope that his visit will help promote constructive views on bilateral relations and hold discussions based on mutual understanding between the US and Myanmar in the future. And it has reflected the magnanimity and compassion of Myanmar people.

Argentina worries over US military bases in Colombia

BUENOS AIRES, 18 Aug— Argentine Defence Minister Nilda Garre on Monday expressed concern over the establishment of US military bases in Colombia, saying that “it is very worrying.”

Garre made the remark when attending a ceremony for the 159th anniversary of General Jose de San Martin’s death. General Martin was the liberator of Argentina.

Colombia and the United States on Friday completed talks over their military cooperation that would allow Washington to use five aerial and two naval bases in the Colombian territory, which provoked a controversy in South America.

The agreement also allows the presence in the Colombian territory of some 800 US soldiers and 600 Pentagon’s contractors. But military operations by Washington against other countries from Colombia are not allowed.

Though the United States and Colombia have said the plan was designed to strengthen Colombia’s anti-drug and anti-rebel efforts, many South American countries have voiced their concerns over more US military presence in the region.—Xinhua

Rockets hit capital two days before Afghan vote

KABUL, 18 Aug—A Taliban rocket struck the grounds of Afghanistan’s presidential palace on Tuesday, just two days before incumbent Hamid Karzai seeks re-election in tense polls that could go to a second round.

Not only is Karzai fighting for a fresh mandate, but the election is also a test of US President Barack Obama’s strategy of escalating the 8-year-old conflict in an effort to reverse recent Taliban gains.

In a speech on Monday aimed at bolstering public support, Obama called the Afghan conflict “a war worth fighting.”

Afghan attacks kill US civilian, service member

KABUL, 18 Aug— A roadside bomb in southern Afghanistan killed a US service member on Monday, while an American civilian working for the military died after militants attacked a patrol in the east, officials said.

The military death brings to 22 the number of US troops killed in August, as foreign and Afghan forces step up their fight against the Taliban-led insurgency raging in much of the country’s south and east. A military statement would not disclose details on the latest casualties. It said only that the civilian died after insurgents attacked his patrol with gunfire. Thousands of US Marines are pushing ahead with their largest-ever operation in Afghanistan as they try to secure parts of southern Helmand Province, a major Taliban stronghold.

A number of militants groups also operate in eastern Afghanistan, a mountainous area.

Iraq proposes faster US troop withdrawal

BAGHDAD, 18 Aug—Iraq announced on Monday its citizens may vote in January on a proposal to seek an accelerated withdrawal of US troops.

If approved, the measure would move the December 2011 target date for a complete withdrawal by about a year, The Washington Post reported on Monday.

The Baghdad government said the cabinet was submitting a draft law to parliament that would authorize and fund a referendum to the bilateral agreement between the United States and Iraq on US troop strength.

The Post said it was unclear how the parliament would vote on the proposal but getting US forces out of Iraq as quickly as possible would likely appeal to a large segment of voters. Shiite politicians and some Sunni leaders have already voiced support.

A poll commissioned by the US military this year found a majority of Iraqis have more confidence in their government than in American forces in terms of providing security.—Internet

Asian competitors shadow German solar industry

BERLIN, 18 Aug—Germany's solar power industry, until recently the world leader in the technology, is facing an unprecedented crisis, analysts say, outshone by cheaper competitors from Asia, most notably Chinese firms.

Q-Cells, the world's biggest solar cell producer, last week issued a far from glowing set of results, with losses of 700 million euros (984 million dollars) in the first half of the year.

As a result, the German firm said it would cut 500 jobs from its workforce of 2,600 and put others on part-time working arrangements.

The crisis in the German solar industry is affecting small companies as well as giants such as Q-Cells. Only three months ago, start-up Sunline declared bankruptcy with the loss of all its 78 employees.

A glance at the TecDax, Germany's tech-heavy stock market index, nicknamed "SunDax" for the predominance of solar firms, tells the story, with some companies losing around 30 percent of their value since the start of 2008.

"The fact is that Germany is losing more and more of its market leading position in renewable energy production to the United States and China," said Matthias Fawer from Swiss bank Sarasin, quoted in German weekly Die Zeit.—Internet

Data suggest recession in the US far from over

BEIJING, 18 Aug—Where is the American and global economy headed? Last year, there were two sides to the debate.

One camp argued that the recession in the United States would be V-shaped - short and shallow. It would last only eight months, like the two previous recessions of 1990-1991 and 2001, and the world would decouple from the US contraction.

Others, including me, argued that, given the excesses of private-sector leverage (in households, financial institutions, and corporate firms), this would be a U-shaped recession - long and deep. It would last about 24 months, and the world would not decouple from the US contraction.—Xinhua

Forest fire rampant in Spain's hot summer

MADRID, 18 Aug—The hot summer in Spain has had a secondary effect leading to large areas of the countryside affected by forest fires.

According to Jose Antonio Gonzalez, sub-director of the Spanish Environment Ministry's Forest and Desertification policy group, some 84,000 hectares have been damaged by wildfire this summer.

Gonzalez said that during the weeks up to 9 Aug, there have been 25 fires which have burned over 500 hectares of forest. Almost 72 percent of those fires occurred in the second half of July as Spain suffered a heatwave with temperatures between 35 and 40 degrees centigrade in areas such as Castilla-La Mancha and Andalucia.

Spanish health minister for tougher anti-smoking laws

MADRID, 18 Aug—Spanish Health Minister Trinidad Jimenez said on Monday the country should tighten its laws against smoking in public places.

In comparison to the rest of Europe, where most countries have imposed blanket bans on smoking in bars and restaurants, Spain still allows people to smoke in establishments of less than 100 square meters.

Given that very few bars in Spain are over 100 square meters in size, that means only 40,000 of the country's 350,000 establishments are either entirely smoke-free or contain areas reserved for smokers.

About 20,000 cases of lung cancer are diagnosed in the country every year, accounting for 18.5 percent of all cancers detected in Spain, and 18,000 die of the disease every 12 months. Those are the worst figures in Western Europe. Mubarak says peace first, normal ties with Israel second CAIRO, 18 Aug—Arab states would recognize Israel and normalize ties with the Jewish state after a just and comprehensive Middle East peace is achieved, but not before, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said.

In an interview with the state-controlled daily al-Ahram on Monday, Mubarak, who is in Washington for talks with the US administration, said the Arab experience with stalled peace talks in the wake of the 1991

Algeria woos investors to unlock tourism potential

ALGIERS, 18 Aug—Algeria announced on Monday it was slashing taxes on tourism projects to persuade investors that the country, emerging from years of violence, could become a hot new holiday destination.

Algeria has thousands of kilometers (miles) of Mediterranean coastline a short flight from Europe and vast tracts of Saharan desert wilderness — yet only a trickle of foreign tourists.

Attacks by militants, though dramatically reduced in the past few years, have kept many visitors away, along with a lack of investment that has left oil-producing Algeria with a shortage of high-quality restaurants, resorts and hotels.

Tourism and Environment Minister Cherif Rahmani unveiled reforms that included tax cuts for tourist firms, low-interest bank loans for tourism investments, reduced customs tariffs, subsidised land and streamlined bureaucratic procedures.

"Of course we are aware that we are not yet at a world-class level, but we are in the process, little by little, of building Algeria as a destination," he told a conference.

"We are going to put ourselves in a competitive position in relation to our neighbours, in terms of Algeria's attractiveness," he said.—Internet

Metro station in Algeria's capital: link to the past

Algerian archeologists clean an ancient mosaic discovered in the Casbah, Algiers' historical neighbourhood, which was named a world heritage site by UNESCO in 1992. This site was discovered during the construction of an underground station in the center of Algiers and reveals layers of civilizations — from the French colonial period to ruins dating back to the 4th or 5th century AD.

Workmen digging the foundations of a new metro station in Algeria's capital stumbled on an archaeological goldmine that gives new meaning to "time travel" — opening a window on 2,300 years of history.

Relics from the French colonial era lie on top of those from the Ottoman period, in turn covering those from the Middle Ages and early Roman Empire.

Then comes what archeologists hope will be ruins from the Punic period — when Phoenician traders established north African outposts in the first millennium BC.

Work on the metro station has now been stopped and archeologists and academics have replaced labourers on the site at the far end of the Casbah, the historic heart of the capital placed on UNESCO's world heritage list in 1992.

Just need to pass through the narrow area

Hlaing Bwa (Parami)

My plan to spend this weekend reading was knocked out by my good lady's strong request for a pilgrimage to Mandalay and PyinOoLwin. Her request somehow plucked me up from my having overloaded with work for months at a stretch. Her tone and glance at me implied that I had forgotten the family affairs for a long time, so I had no choice but to fulfil her wish.

Mandalay-PyinOolwin Road is a fine one if compared with its conditions in my youth. The grand two-way tarmacked road is designed to avoid traffic jams and is kept clean, thus adding to the beauty of the scenery along it. I relished with such a golden opportunity to view the positive changes from the car en route. If the inspiring success achieved due to the earnest efforts the government has made to generate a prosperous future of the nation is compared to a flower garden, the motorway is like a flower bed.

About an hour after we set out on the journey, I was awakened by the loud noise of a motorcycle bound for PyinOoLwin on the downhill lane. I was surprised by that vehicle moving on the other side, but in parallel with our car. So, I looked outside to find out if there was a traffic signboard indicating both forward way and return way, but I did not find such a traffic signboard. Then, I checked to find out if we took the wrong way, but I found that our car was on the correct way, as evidenced by the traffic signboards indicating to Mandalay. The event made me puzzled. Some time later, I was drowsy again.

Again I was awakened by the sound of the motorcycles driving in the wrong lane, but that time I was not surprised because I came to understand that the motorcyclists were violating the traffic rules by driving in the other lane meant for vehicles travelling opposite direction. That was very dangerous to our car moving at high speed. I shuddered at the thought that there might have been a head-on collision between the erratic cycles and our car. If so, such a traffic accident would tarnish the image of the fine road. Then, I saw some motorcycles sporadically moving in the same way, and that was no longer new to me. It seemed to me such reckless drivers violated traffic rules indiscriminately in the places where the enforcement of traffic rules hardly worked. I took my ballpoint pen out of the handbag to note down the license plate numbers with the intention of complaining to the department concerned about such careless violations of traffic rules, but I gave up my intention when my wife touched me to show her disagreement.

I wonder who will punish such reckless drivers. They seemed to think that there was no need to abide by the traffic rules in the countryside. I did not find anything that made it difficult for them to follow traffic rules. The traffic island area is just 30 feet wide. So, the area they had to pass through to take the correct way was narrow. I did not know why they circumvented traffic rules, which was disappointing. Myanmar may see a large number of cases in which some people circumvent the laws in the democratic system for which the government is working hard, as aspired by the people. They are not serious matters but they must be addressed without fail.

Then, I could not help expanding my thought about small-but-serious matters. Some groups with leaders who disregard such matters still indulge themselves in doing wrong, but some abandoned armed struggle line. On 30 March 2009, Captain Saw

Ne Soe Mya, son of late chairman Saw Bo Mya of KNU/KNLA, and party together with their families joined Htotkawcoe Village in which KNU/KNLA Peace Council is located. Why did they do so? They started to take the correct way and made peace because they came to realize that the area between the two ways is narrow. In fact, narrow strip areas are designated as borders between two states or divisions in the Union of Myanmar to facilitate the administrative machinery of the government.

The restrictions in the social, literary, cultural and commercial sectors are not heavy. Those who realize the role of small-but-serious matters fortify amicable relations between national races, safeguard the Union, cultivate a sense of Union Spirit, and live in the nation irrespective of region. In the nation, there have never been restrictions on any particular national race. That is a correct principle for a union. So, there is no need to promulgate unnecessary restrictions. If a person suggests that the nation promulgate needless restrictions, he must be inspired by his dishonest behaviours or because of the instigation of certain foreign countries that are anxious to weaken the Union.

A family member can stay anywhere in his house. So, walls will be unnecessary if occasion does not arise to protect the family members against bad weathers, thieves and robbers. However, thin partition is necessary for even a hut. With this concept, 17 national race armed groups have returned to the legal fold to share joys and sorrows with other national brethren. In February 2007, Chairman of KNU/KNLA Commander of Brigade (7) Major General Htein Maung and members made peace, thereby taking the correct way from the wrong one through the narrow area. Here is a noteworthy point that it is impossible to win the approval of the whole international community.

Certain countries that hate to see development of the Union of Myanmar, interfere in the internal affairs of other countries and exercise protectionism deceive the international community into considering small differences between the policies of Myanmar to be big ones. If their deceptions do not work, they rumour things to exaggerate the small matters. It is amazing that there is a thin layer between their one policy and another. The changes of presidents or prime ministers in those countries are like a magic show. Indeed, the political curtain of the world's stage is a thin cloth.

It is disappointing that the political party that is not capable of noticing such small-but-serious matters and sticks to their policies. That party walks in reverse on a road. It walks on the wrong way, but in parallel with others on the correct way. Actually, it on purpose fails to pass through the small area to get to the correct way although it knows that the area between the two ways is narrow. Their acts are all designed to mislead the people into considering the government to be a villain one, but itself to be a saviour of the nation. If it really wants to serve the interest of the mother country, what it needs to do is just to pass through the narrow area and join hands with the people. If it marches in parallel with others, but in the wrong way meant for traffic going opposite, it will face adverse effects, and they will go backwards even though it is trying to go forwards.

In addition, it persists in trying to revive the expired results of the 1990 election. It acts as if the disagreements were very huge, and it found it difficult to pass through the narrow area. It issued Gandhi Hall Declaration to make the country divert from its path. And if so, it will watch with great relish the conflicts between the people on the wrong way and the government. Then, it will come out of the public as a saviour with the help of its western masters. Its fantasy is particularly intended to serve its interest. However, the people have known what its fantasy is like. The people do not comply with its instructions. The people have realized that members of the party were disunited in the 1988 unrest, and the Tatmadaw relieve the miseries of the people in the mass demonstrations that broke out at the instigation of some audacious youths.

Again they are holding meetings and issuing announcements to disrupt the election the government will hold with genuine goodwill in 2010. They are like the reckless drivers I face on my pilgrimage. They are trying to put into reality the risky Methrawhta constitution drawn by traitors as well as expatriates. Surely, they will not proceed if they take the ordinary way, so they are planning to march in the lane on the other side.

To make things worse, they are demanding for reviewing the State constitution that has been approved with the support of 92.48 per cent of the voters, as the expression that is common in the country "cooking the rice that is already cooked". And they are like the drivers who drive their cars backwards on the right lane.

Anyhow, it is not too late for anti-government politicians to mend their ways because even armed insurgents have realized the small disagreements and returned to the legal fold. In other words, they just need to pass through the small area to get to the correct way. Honestly, the goal of democracy is within the touching distance if the people march with self-discipline along the path to the new nation, wiping out the drivers who are driving in the wrong lane.

No change in Iran's stance on nuclear issue: envoy

TEHERAN, 18 Aug—Iran's envoy to the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) said on Tuesday that Iran's stance on its nuclear issue has not changed, state IRIB TV reported.

Iran's envoy Ali Asghar Soltanieh has not said anything to TV channels about Iran's readiness for nuclear negotiations or about the conditions, the report said.

Earlier Tuesday, the state TV quoted Soltanieh as saying that "Iran's main stance on the nuclear issue is to hold negotiations without preconditions and on the basis of mutual respect."

U S President Barack Obama has given Iran until September to initiate multilateral talks over its disputed nuclear issue, or face further sanctions.

Iran's Foreign Ministry spokesman Hassan Qashqavi has said that "we are not against talks but we will not allow world powers to press Iran with deadlines."

Washington has been trying to beef up its sanctions against Tehran for Iran's involvement in anti-U S activities and allegedly secret development of nuclear weapons.

Iran denied these charges and insisted that its nuclear program is for generating electricity only. The UN Security Council has imposed three sanctions on Iran for its ongoing uranium enrichment program.

system which uses a combination of active radar missiles and infrared missiles to track and intercept jets, helicopters, unmanned aerial vehicles and precision guided munitions. The Spyder system has 360 degree engagement capability and the missiles can be launched from full-readiness state in less than five seconds after a target is acquired.

SHENYANG, 18 Aug—Drought-hit Liaoning Province in northeast China is expected to receive moderate and heavy rains starting from Wednesday, the provincial observatory said Tuesday.

The long-anticipated rain would "obviously" relieve the two-month-long drought that led to drinking water shortage for 792,200 people and 242,200 livestock in the province, said Yuan Zipeng, deputy director of the observatory.

In order to increase the rainfall, the provincial bureau has prepared 1,269 rocket shells along with three aircraft to seed the clouds, Yuan said.

A severe drought has hit China's northern parts and affected 170 million mu (11.33 million hectares) of crops, according to the State Flood Control and Drought Relief Headquarters.

Among the total affected crops, 62.99 million mu suffered serious drought and 16.08 million mu dried up. About 3.9 million people and about 4.37 million livestock had difficulties getting water. In Liaoning alone, 32 million hectares of farmland were hit by the drought.—Xinhua

warns N hemisphere for winter

MEXICO CITY, 18 Aug—Epitomized by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias, who is recovering from A/H1N1 flu, most Latin American countries seem on the road to complete recovery from the pandemic, which was first detected in Mexico in April and then spread to about 180 nations, killing around 1,500 people.

However, the World Health Organization (WHO) warned countries in the northern hemisphere to keep alert for the coming winter.

President Arias' office said on Monday that he will resume official activities on Tuesday with a ceremony to open a plant.

Like the vast majority of those who caught the flu worldwide, Arias recovered in around a week by resting at home and taking existing anti-viral drugs.

The bulk of the flu's mortal victims are those with existing health problems, especially those with lung conditions or severe obesity, or with a weaker immune system, including pregnant women. Less than 2 percent of those infected died.—Xinhua

US scientists find genetic glitches linked to common childhood cancer

WASHINGTON, 18 Aug — A US team of childhood cancer researchers has discovered two genetic variations linked to an increased risk for acute lymphoblastic leukemia, or ALL, the most common childhood cancer in the United States, the University of Florida (UF) said on Monday in a press release.

Because these genetic glitches point to a specific subtype of the disease, identifying them in children who already have leukemia could improve treatment, says UF researcher Meenakshi Devidas, a co-author on the study published online on Sunday in Nature Genetics. Children with this specific subtype of ALL, known as B-hyperdiploid, tend to respond well to chemotherapy.

“The findings indicated inherited genetic variants contribute to the risk of a child getting ALL and likely contribute to a specific subtype of ALL,” said Devidas, a co-director of the Children's Oncology Group Statistics and Data Center at UF.

“So far, we have known that patients with this subtype respond well to chemotherapy, but we had no idea why that was.”

Led by St Jude Children's Research Hospital scientist Mary Relling, the researchers conducted the first genomewide association study to check for genetic variations linked to the common cancer.—Xinhua

NEW YORK, 18 Aug— The 87-year-old publishing company Reader's Digest Association, company said on Monday it planned to file for bankruptcy protection to reduce debt burden by 75 percent.

The company said in a statement that it has reached an agreement “in principle with a majority of its senior secured lenders on the terms of a restructuring plan to significantly reduce its debt burden and strengthen the company financially for the future.” The company did not make a 27-million US dollars interest payment due Monday on its notes, and will use a 30-day grace period to continue talks with lenders about what it called a prearranged bankruptcy filing. “The restructuring agreement provides that the company's senior secured lenders will exchange a substantial portion of the company's 1.6 billion US dollars in senior secured debt for equity and provides for a transfer of ownership of the company to the lender group,” the statement said. The company said the agreement with lenders will cut debt to 550 million US dollars from 2.2 billion US dollars, a 75-percent reduction. Some of lenders will provide a 150 million US dollars loan, debtor-in-possession financing, to ensure the company has enough liquidity during its re-organization.

Parents can help stop child obesity

CHICO, 18 Aug— Parents can make a difference in staving off obesity in their children if they help them eat better and exercise, a US researcher says.

Edward Abramson, a professor emeritus at California State University-Chico and author of the books “Body Intelligence” and “Emotional Eating,” says there has been a tenfold increase in type-2 diabetes and psychological and social consequences, such as prejudice, rejection, discrimination and low self-esteem in children.

Bad eating habits can start with “emotional eating,” or eating when one is not hungry, or from following a strict diet, Abramson says.

“This can lead to a weight problem or an eating disorder,” Abramson says in a statement. Parents can increase the odds of getting a child to try a new food by having the child see them enjoying the food and having the child help prepare the un-familiar food, Abramson advises.

Sharapova cruises into WTA Toronto 2nd round

TORONTO, 18 AUG—Former world number one Maria Sharapova cruised into the second round of the WTA hardcourt tournament here with a straight sets win over compatriot Nadia Petrova.

The 22-year-old downed 10th seeded Petrova 6-3, 6-4, her third win over Petrova this season.

It was another step forward for Sharapova, who had shoulder surgery last October, returned to singles competition in May and is now ranked 49th in the world.

It was shortly after she won a marathon match in the second round of this event last year, when it was in Montreal, that Sharapova said she had re-injured her serving shoulder and would have to withdraw, launching her 10-month injury absence from the WTA Tour.—Internet

No 3 no worry for tennis star Nadal

CINCINNATI, 18 Aug—Rafael Nadal is taking his demotion to world number three in his stride and focusing on the long-term as he continues his comeback from injury at the Cincinnati Masters this week.

"It's only a number," Nadal said Monday. "I hope to be ready in the future to come back to No. 2 or to be in the top position. "No. 3 is a very good number, too," he added with a smile.

The 23-year-old Spaniard, forced out of Wimbledon by his aching knees, returned last week in Montreal after an absence of more than two months.

His run to the Canadian quarter-finals wasn't enough to stop eventual champion Andy Murray from seizing the world number two spot behind Switzerland's Roger Federer.

Nadal said he wouldn't let the rankings - or anything else - lure him into pressing too hard, too soon, as he battles to come back and finish the season on a high note.—Internet

BERLIN, 18 Aug—Kenenisa Bekele of Ethiopia won his fourth men's 10,000 meters title at the World Championships here on Monday.

Bekele, also Olympic champion at the last two Olympic Games, ran behind Eritrea's Zersenay Tadese until the last lap. He sped up and pulled away for a comfortable win in a World Championships record of 26:46.31.

Tadese won the silver in 26:50.12 and Kenya's Moses Ndiema Masai took the bronze in 26:57.39.

"It's great to win for the fourth time," said Bekele. "I am so happy. I planned already to stay behind until one lap is left and then kick."

The 27-year-old, who also won the 5,000m in the Beijing Olympic Games, said he has not decided whether to run the event.

"I haven't yet decided. I will decide maybe tomorrow," he said.

For Tadese, a silver is enough for him.

Hull target Negredo to stay in Spain - press

MADRID, 18 Aug—English Premier League outfit Hull City appear to have failed in their bid to sign Real Madrid striker Alvaro Negredo, who is set to join Spanish side Zaragoza, a Spanish sports daily said Monday.

The 23-year-old wants to remain in Spain, and Real are ready to let him, AS reported.

This is despite the fact that Hull has agreed to Real's terms of an 18 million euro transfer fee plus a two-year buy-back clause worth 25 million euros — an offer Zaragoza cannot match, the paper said.

It said the newly promoted outfit is ready to pay a fee "very far" from the amount sought by Real, but the Madrid club would have an option to buy back the player "for next to nothing" over the next two years.—Internet

Three indicted in largest US identity theft scheme

NEW YORK, 18 Aug—Three men were indicted on Monday for allegedly stealing more than 130 million credit and debit card numbers in what US authorities said they believe is the largest hacking and identity theft case ever prosecuted. Albert Gonzalez, a former government informant already in jail in connection with hacking cases, and two unnamed Russians were indicted on charges related to five corporate data breaches from 2006 to 2008.

Card numbers were stolen in those breaches from credit-card processor Heartland Payment Systems and retail chains 7-Eleven Inc and Hannaford Brothers Co, prosecutors said. The men targeted two other corporations, the US attorney's office in New Jersey said in the statement, without naming those companies. Heartland Payment Systems and Hannaford Brothers had previously and separately acknowledged the breaches, but the scope of the fraud had not been known.

Authorities also for the first time tied those cases to Gonzalez, who was arrested last year on suspicion of hacking into a restaurant chain's payment system. Attorneys for Gonzalez were not available for comment.

A visit to Hopong in Shan State (South)
 Article: Tin Win Lay (Kyimyindine); Photos: Htay Aung (Kyemon)

Our media crew from the Kyemon Daily was on a journey to Hopong, a plateau township, in Shan State (South), together with Assistant Director Daw May May Ni of Shan State (South) Information and Public Relations Department and Staff Officer Daw Khin Mar Wai of Township IPRD on 11 August.
 It was convenient for us to take a drive along the spiral hilly road to Hopong, 12 miles from Taunggyi.

Along the tarred road were thriving plantations of crops such as monsoon paddy and corn of highlanders.
 Hopong stands at an altitude of 3541 feet, sharing border with Loilem and Leikha townships in the east, Taunggyi and Yaksawk townships in the west, Hsihseng Township in the south and Mongkai Township in the north.
