Produce new export items extensively

The government is extensively engaged in reclamation of fallow land and growing quality strain crops to meet the food, clothing and shelter needs of the growing population.

For the development of the agricultural sector, it places special emphasis on full utilization of land and water resources, boosting the per acre yield of crops, extensive use of machinery and application of agricultural methods and quality strain crops.

Applying various ways and means, the government is extending the sown acreage by reclaiming virgin and fallow lands and wet lands.

As cultivation of Noni is now meeting with success, efforts should be made for the growing of Noni on a commercial scale. A total of 290 Noni saplings can be grown on one acre, thus producing about 69,600 pounds of Noni. Fifty per cent of juice can be extracted from Noni fruits, and nine pounds of the juice is equivalent to one gallon.

One litre of Noni juice can fetch US$ 6 in the international market. If the growing of marketable Noni on a commercial scale achieves success, there will be a new export item for the nation in the international market.

Noni juice is popular among male and female for their health. Although Noni is more suitable to an equatorial climate it grows well in any other climates with a lower risk of being subject to insects.

All in all, if marketable Noni is extensively grown, processed and exported as a new export item it will surely help the country earn foreign exchange.

Indonesia becomes promising market for Singaporean property

JAKARTA, 22 Aug—Indonesia becomes a promising market for Singaporean property, contributing a big share for foreign investment in the sector, the Kompas daily reported on Saturday, quoted an official.

Eindrata Tanukusuma, the general manager of property sales in the Far East Organization, the largest property developer in Singapore, said that at the peak of Singaporean booming property in 2007, Indonesian investors filled 31 percent of foreign market in the country. That time, 27 percent of Singaporean property was bought by foreign buyers.

"We are optimistic that Indonesia still has a chance to contribute much, especially buyers from big cities like Jakarta, Bandung of West Java province, Surabaya of East Java province and Semarang of Central Java province," said Tanukusuma in Semarang on Friday. He said that the trend was initiated by growing people who chose Singapore to look for qualified education and health services.

He also said that in average foreign buyers filled 13 percent of Singaporean property, the second largest after Malaysia. "At least Indonesia had once dominated foreign purchasing in Singapore. We hope that Indonesian buyer percentage could return to 2007 level," said Tanukusuma.—Xinhua

GM board to review final bids for Opel

CHICAGO, 22 Aug—US automaker General Motors Co. is expected to review final bids for its Opel subsidiary on Friday amid mounting pressure from Germany to accept an offer from Magna International Inc. According to a Detroit News report, the German government would provide 6.4 billion US dollars in loans to Adam Opel GmbH, if GM selected the bid from a Magna-led consortium.

Magna, a Canadian supplier, proposes to acquire 27.5 percent of Opel, with Russia's Sberbank taking an equal stake. GM would keep 35 percent, and Opel employees would get 10 percent. Magna recently revised its bid to allay GM's concerns about the risk of intellectual property losses, notably to Russian carmakers.

GM is entitled to select the bid, but may have little choice. As Germany's money appears to be the only option to provide Opel with a viable future, precisely what decision GM has to make seems academic, analysts say. Opel has 25,000 employees in Germany, representing about half of GM.

Indonesian Air Force pilots to serve in commercial flights

JAKARTA, 22 Aug— Indonesian air force pilots would be recruited to meet pilot staffing crisis at national flag carrier, PT Garuda Indonesia, as the airline firm expands its fleet, the Jakarta Globe reported here on Saturday.

Under the Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) between the air force and Garuda Indonesia signed on Friday, the air force will provide pilots on loan as well as provide training for Garuda's pilot and aviation engineers. The MoU was set up following the aggressive expansion plan of the airline firm to double the size of its fleet from 56 to 116 planes within the next five years.

"We need at least 100 more pilots to fly our planes," Garuda Indonesia President Director Emirsyah Satar said on the sidelines of the MoU signing ceremony. The Garuda's plan was following the European Union's (EU) revocation on the flight ban against Indonesian planes from serving in EU's territory.

The EU uplifted the ban in July after it imposed it for two years.

However, the agreement is still in its infancy as many details have yet to be settled, including restriction on military employees, who are not currently allowed to work as civilians. "We are currently waiting for the regulation issued by the Defence Ministry regarding this issue," Indonesian Air Force Commander Air Marshall Subandrio said.

Australia lists Somalia's al-Shabab as terrorists

SYDNEY, 22 Aug — Australia's government designated a Somali extremist group with links to al-Qaeda as a terrorist organization on Friday, just weeks after several men allegedly associated with the group were charged with planning a suicide attack on an Australian military base.

Al-Shabab, which is already listed as a terrorist organization by the United States, "has prepared, planned and carried out frequent attacks as part of its violent insurgency since the beginning of 2007," Australian Attorney-General Robert McClelland and Foreign Minister Stephen Smith said in a statement announcing the designation.

The terror listing means it is illegal to be a member, provide funds or associate with the group.

Earlier this month, five men linked by police to al-Shabab were charged in an alleged plot to shoot up an Australian military base. The men — all Australian citizens with Somali and Lebanese origins — were charged with conspiring to plan a terrorist attack.

Men walk away from fiery small plane crash in NJ

TETERBORO, 22 Aug — Two men walked away from a fiery small-plane crash Friday morning and were found by emergency responders at a bus stop minutes later — alert and conscious but badly burned. The mishap occurred after the pilot of the twin-engine Beechcraft Baron aborted a landing at Teterboro Airport and crashed into a tree and sign just after 3 am.

Teterboro is the same airport where a 2005 jet crash injured 20 people and where, earlier this month, a controller and supervisor were suspended for their conduct during a deadly midair collision over the Hudson River.

In Friday's crash, the airplane was about half-way down a runway when the pilot, George Maddox, aborted the landing, then tried to climb and come around for another try, said Robert J Gretz, a senior investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board. The pilot never radioed a distress call and it's not clear why he aborted the landing, Gretz said.

The plane cleared a set of power lines and traffic lights along a highway that borders the airport before hitting a tree on the other side of the roadway, breaking in half and hitting a large sign, Gretz said. The cockpit and engines wound up in a grassy field near a warehouse. The plane was sitting upright when it caught fire, and the two men inside managed to crawl out.

A bartender waiting at a traffic light heard the crash and saw a flash of light over his shoulder, Little Ferry Police Lieutenant Frank Novak said. The man ran to help and came upon the burning plane and two men.

Apple a day helps keep kidney stones away

US researchers say a healthy diet high in fruits and vegetables helps prevent kidney stones.

The study, published in the Journal of the American Society of Nephrology, finds those who eat healthy foods recommended in the Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension diet may effectively ward off kidney stones. The DASH diet limits salt, red or processed meats and sweetened beverages, but has lots of fruits, vegetables, nuts, low-fat dairy products and whole grains.

Researchers at the Boston's Brigham and Women's Hospital, led by Dr Eric Taylor of Maine Medical Center in Portland, scored the diets of 45,821 men enrolled in the Health Professionals Follow-up Study; 94,108 older women the Nurses' Health Study I; and 101,837 younger women of the Nurses' Health Study II. A total of 5,645 incident kidney stones developed in the participants.

Participants with the highest DASH scores were 40 percent to 45 percent less likely to develop kidney stones than participants with the lowest DASH scores. The reductions in kidney stone risk were independent of age, body size, fluid intake and other factors.

Death toll in Nigerian cholera outbreak hits 52

KANO (Nigeria), 22 Aug—A cholera outbreak in northern Nigeria has killed 13 more people, taking the death toll to 52, the health commissioner said on Saturday.

"We recorded more cases of cholera outbreak in the state in the last five days," Zainab Baba Kwanci told AFP of the outbreak in Adamawa state.

"In Demsa, we have recorded nine deaths while 120 people are hospitalised. In Fufure, we recorded four deaths and 18 hospitalised."

On Tuesday, 39 people were reported killed by the disease in Maiha, according to local government official Yahaya Hamman-Julde.

He said "scores of people" had been hospitalised as a result of the disease, stressing that an ongoing strike by medical workers in the state was hampering efforts to assist the sick.

Julde could not pinpoint the cause of the outbreak, but recalled that a similar one in June killed 20 people in the area.

Cholera is an intestinal infection that causes serious diarrhoea and vomiting leading to dehydration. With a short incubation period, it can be fatal if not treated in time.

Last September, a spate of cholera outbreaks in northern Nigeria claimed almost 100 lives in Katsina, Zamfara and Bauchi states.—Internet

It was unclear why the charge was reduced. No one from the Hong Kong Judiciary could be reached for comment Saturday.

Prosecutors said earlier that Mudd was more than three times over the legal alcohol limit on June 27 when the crash occurred. But Polson argued the alcohol test results were irrelevant because there was no evidence that Mudd was driving.—Internet

Germany: 100 professors suspected of Ph.D. bribes

BERLIN, 22 Aug—German prosecutors are investigating about 100 professors across the country on suspicion they took bribes to help students get their doctoral degrees, authorities said Saturday.

The investigation is focused on the Institute for Scientific Consulting, based in Bergisch Gladbach, just east of Cologne, which allegedly acted as the intermediary between students and the professors, said Cologne prosecutor's spokesman Guenther Feld.

Feld confirmed reports of the investigation in both Focus magazine and the Neue Westfaelische newspaper, but would not give further details.

The Institute for Scientific Consulting did not answer its phone Saturday.

According to the two publications, students paid between euro4,000 to euro20,000 ($5,700 to $28,500) to the company, which promised to help them get their doctorate degrees through its extensive contacts within university faculties.

The Neue Westfaelische newspaper reported that "hundreds" of students were involved, and that the company paid professors between euro2,000 to euro5,000 when their clients had successfully received their Ph.D.'s. It was not clear whether the students knew that bribes were being paid.—INTERNET

Indian actress held for violence against child

NEW DELHI, 22 Aug—In a rather appalling episode of brutality against a juvenile, Urvashi, an Indian small time TV actress, was arrested in Mumbai on Saturday for cruelly abusing a 10-year-old girl she employed as her domestic help, said police.

The actress had inhumanly punched the girl in her eyes. Her entire body turned black and blue with unignorable bruised marks. She had apparently also burnt the child's arm mercilessly, the police sources in Maharashtra said.

The actress has now been booked under the Juvenile Justice Act and the Child Labour Act.

The victim in her statement said that the actress had brought her from Amravati in Maharashtra, after telling her parents that she will send her to school in Mumbai.

However, the actress made the girl work in her house and then abused her. The girl was locked up in the house for a week and when she finally was let out; the neighbors noticed the bruises and took her to the nearest police station.

Urvashi, who is being kept at the Amboli Police Station for now, is expected to be produced in the court later today. The girl is under the custody of the police and is awaiting the arrival of her parents.

BEIJING, 22 Aug —The global spread of swine flu will endanger more lives as it speeds up in coming months and governments must boost preparations for a swift response, the World Health Organization said on Friday.

There will soon be a period of further global spread of the virus, and most countries may see swine flu cases double every three to four days for several months until peak transmission is reached, said WHO's Western Pacific director, Shin Young-soo.

"At a certain point, there will seem to be an explosion in case numbers," Shin told a symposium of health officials and experts in Beijing. "It is certain there will be more cases and more deaths."

WHO has declared the swine flu strain a pandemic, and it has killed almost 1,800 people worldwide through last week. International attention has focused on how the pandemic is progressing in southern hemisphere countries such as Australia, which are experiencing winter and their flu season.—INTERNET

Three Chinese tourists robbed at knifepoint in NZ

WELLINGTON, 22 Aug —Three Chinese tourists were robbed at knifepoint in New Zealand North Island's Far North region on Friday, police said. Detective Sergeant Trevor Beatson said the tourists were assaulted on the roadside after stopping to help two Maori men aged in their 20s, at about 3:30 p.m. local time Friday (03:30 GMT Friday), Radio New Zealand reported.

He said the tourists were flagged down on a gravel road running through Te Paki Reserve, just south of Cape Reinga, by the men who claimed they were lost. The tourists were then set upon and assaulted as the men produced knives and demanded money and property. Beatson said it was a shocking incident.

"It was the worst possible thing that could have happened to them when they went out of their way to help these two men. They had come to New Zealand fully believing it was a safe place to holiday and now their holiday and impressions of our country have been shattered," he said. So far, the police have not captured the robbers. A team of detectives has been working through the night at the scene, looking for forensic evidence and dealing with the victims.

US researchers devise wearable kidney for dialysis patients

LOS ANGELES, 22 Aug — US Researchers were testing a wearable artificial kidney for dialysis patients, which might replace dialysis machine, the American Society of Nephrology reported on Thursday.

The equipment is devised by researchers of the University of California at Los Angeles. It is essentially a miniaturized dialysis machine and can be worn as a belt. It weighs about 10 pounds (4.5 kilograms) and is powered by two nine-volt batteries.

Currently, dialysis patients have to spend hours each week hooked up to a full-size dialysis machine in hospitals. With the new "kidney belt," patients are free to walk, work, or sleep while taking continuous and gentle dialysis that approximates natural kidney function.

"Our vision of a technological breakthrough has materialized in the form of a wearable artificial kidney, which provides continuous dialysis 24 hours a day, seven days a week," lead researcher Victor Gura said. Preliminary tests, including two studies in dialysis patients, have been proven successful. The researchers will test the device in clinical trials.

The details will be described in an upcoming paper in the Clinical Journal of the American Society of Nephrology.

Gene discovery reveals critical protein's function in hearing

WASHINGTON, 22 Aug —Discovery of a deafness-causing gene defect in mice has helped identify a new protein that protects sensory cells in the ear, according to a study led by University of Iowa researchers in the United States.

The findings, which also involved Kansas State University, appeared in the 21 Aug issue of the open-access journal PLoS Genetics. In humans, hereditary deafness is one of the most common birth defects, yet most genes involved in hearing are unidentified. Mice are used as research models because mouse and human auditory genetics are very similar.

Using a deaf mouse model generated at the Jackson Laboratory, the team identified the deafness-causing defect in the claudin-9 gene. The mutated gene fails to produce normal claudin-9 protein, which, according to findings of the University of Iowa team, is needed to maintain the proper distribution of potassium in the inner ear.

"Genes in the claudin family number at least 24 and produce proteins that prevent ions, including potassium, from moving between cells," said the paper's senior author Botond Banfi, assistant professor of anatomy and cell biology in the University of Iowa Carver College of Medicine.—Xinhua

Brazilian, Argentinean scientists discover long-term memory mechanism

RIO DE JANEIRO, 22 Aug — A team of Brazilian and Argentinean researchers made an important discovery on the role of neurotransmitter dopamine in the consolidation of memories, the Pontifical Catholic University of Rio Grande do Sul (PUC-RS) announced on Friday.

The research was also published on Friday's edition of Science magazine. It lasted two years and was headed by PUC-RS' Medicine School Professors Martin Cammarota, Janine Rossato, Lia Bevilacqua and Ivan Izquierdo, as well as visiting Professor Jorge Medina, from the Buenos Aires University.

In the study, the scientists managed to demonstrate through biochemical tests and experiments with mice that dopamine is responsible for the long-term memorization or forgetfulness of a traumatic event. According to the scientists, 12 hours after a crucial event occurs (in the experiment, the mice were subjected to an electric shock), the brain produces a high dose of dopamine, which leads to the mice remembering the painful experience for a long time.—Xinhua

Since the outbreak of the A/H1N1 flu in late April, The CDC has reported on its website the latest development of the new virus every weekend including numbers of deaths and confirmed and probable cases of the new flu virus. But beginning from 24 July, the CDC has changed the reporting requirements for the A/H1N1 flu by local health jurisdictions.— Xinhua

Lyon stepping on the gas again

PARIS, 22 Aug—Shorn of the mantle of reigning champions going into a domestic season for the first time in seven years Lyon look to be emerging from the minor trauma of not sweeping all before them last time out.

After Wednesday's 5-1 hammering of Anderlecht in the Champions League qualifiers at the Stade Gerland there seems little likelihood that seven years of famine will follow the seven years of plenty which began with a first ever league crown in 2002.

Third last season, the club then saw the likes of Brazilian midfielder Juninho and star French international striker Karim Benzema move on. With champions Bordeaux and Marseille back to prominence and Paris St Germain determined to emerge from years in the doldrums, Lyon, who only scraped a draw on the opening day at Le Mans, are fully galvanised once again following their Anderlecht showing, says coach Claude Puel.—Internet the potency of their armoury and depth of their creativity following the loss of Brazilian superstar Kaka to Real Madrid.

Milan, as well as champions Inter and fellow powerhouses Juventus, begin their campaigns with relatively gentle opens this weekend before facing their first big challenges in only the second week of the season.

The two Milans will clash in their city derby while Juventus will travel to the capital to tackle AS Roma, only sixth last season but the runners-up from the previous three campaigns. But first there are some potential banana skins to negotiate and most eyes will be on Milan following their torrid summer.—Internet

Van Persie backing Arsenal to defy predictions

LONDON, 22 Aug—If Arsenal really are mired in crisis, they are doing a fine job of disguising it.

Arsene Wenger's side were supposed to be the weakest member of the Premier League's 'big four' this season, rendered vulnerable by the emergence of Manchester City, the continued progress of Tottenham, Aston Villa and Everton, and the departures of Emmanuel Adebayor and Kolo Toure.

Hardly a week went by in the close-season without another expert forecasting Arsenal's demise, their pessimism fuelled by Wenger's steadfast refusal to spend big in the transfer market.

But, just two games into the new campaign, those predictions are looking decidedly dicey.

Creamer's clutch putt gives Inkster Solheim record

SUGAR GROVE, 22 Aug—Pushing 50 and winless the last three years, Juli Inkster showed she still has some of the strokes that drove her to the top.

Now, she also has a record. For that, she can thank Paula Creamer.

Creamer knocked in a 20-foot putt late Friday to give the United States a 4 1/2-3 1/2 lead over Europe in the Solheim Cup and make Inkster the highest-scoring US player in the event's history. The veteran now has 17 1/2 points, one more than assistant US captain Meg Mallon.

Moroccan striker Marouane Chamakh

Chamakh snubs West Ham to stay at Bordeaux

BORDEAUX, 22 Aug—Bordeaux's highly-rated Moroccan striker Marouane Chamakh has snubbed English Premier League suitors West Ham to stay with the French champions.

In an interview with regional television station France 3 Aquitaine, the 25-year-old said: "From a sporting point of view, I prefer to stay at Bordeaux than go to West Ham."

Chamakh admitted that he was still "in the process of mourning Arsenal" after the Premier League side targeted him at the beginning of August, but that he had been convinced to stay after talks Bordeaux coach Laurent Blanc.

Mandalay Division Myanma Posts and Telecommunications contributing towards rural areas

I recently went to Mandalay that I had not visited for long. Blocks of brick buildings, grand hotels, stores and markets are indication of Mandalay's socio-economic growth.

Among those civic infrastructures, I saw Internet centres and small public telephone communication stations.

To study communication services in Mandalay Division, I paid a visit to the Division Man-
