Extend railroad networks for trade and transport development

Myanma Railways is the most widely used means of transportation in Myanmar. Its ability to transport natural resources and products of various regions to markets in a short time contributes a great deal to domestic trade.

The government has given top priority to transport infrastructure for regional development. Accordingly, it is building new motor roads and railroads, including bridges, and extending the existing ones the length and breadth of the nation. Due to the extension of networks of railroads, various regions are now enjoying trade and transport development.

The 98-mile railroad that will link Katha in Sagaing Division and Bhamo in Kachin State is being constructed section-wise and the 16-mile Katha-Moetagyi section was commissioned into service on 20 February.

The Katha-Moetagyi section is a major part of the Katha-Bhamo railroad and, when the entire project is completed, it will be possible for people to go from Mandalay to Bhamo direct by train and for goods to be transported. There will be better and smoother transport in Katha, Shwegu, Mansi and Bhamo townships that line along the new railroad.

Myanma Railways under the Ministry of Rail Transportation is maintaining and upgrading the existing railroad as well as building new ones. It is also producing carriages both for passengers and freight. Advanced carriages have been introduced on Mandalay-Yangon and Nay Pyi Taw-Mandalay lines.

For the emergence of the Union railroad network, Myanma Railways has been extending the construction of railroads, and we believe that, new railroads will facilitate transport and boost trade between one region and another across the Union.

Eurostar train breaks down in England

LONDON, 22 Feb — A Eurostar train broke down in southeast England with hundreds of passengers trapped on board, the train operator said.

The cross-Channel rail operator said 740 travellers on the Paris to London service were trapped around 10:45 pm (2245 GMT) on Sunday near Ashford, in Kent, when the train ground to a halt.

Passengers said they had waited more than an hour before a replacement train arrived to take them to St Pancras station in London.

They said they were plunged into darkness after the breakdown, but the operator said emergency lighting eventually came on. A passenger called Oliver told Sky News television that the train suddenly stopped and the lights went out.

"It's getting fairly hot, but people are very calm, very relaxed," he said.

"We don't know exactly what happened or why at the moment," a Eurostar spokesman said.

"We are investigating what happened fully."

The service's departure from Gare du Nord in the French capital late Sunday had already been delayed after an unattended bag caused a security alert.

The operator said no disruptions to services between London and Paris were expected as a result of the breakdown.

Eurostar has recently been hit by a series of problems, the most serious being the breakdown of five trains carrying more than 2,000 passengers in the Channel Tunnel during the busy pre-Christmas period.

Rich oil prospects in disputed islands raise Argentina-Britain tensions

BEIJING, 22 Feb — Tensions between Argentina and Britain have been escalating over Britain's oil drilling plan in the disputed oil-rich Malvinas (Falkland) Islands. The two countries were locked in a new round of verbal skirmishes 28 years after their bitter war over the ownership of the archipelago.

Earlier this month, the British government approved Desire Petroleum, a British oil explorer, to drill around the disputed islands, drawing strong opposition from the Argentine side.

British Foreign Secretary David Miliband said last Thursday that the exploration was "completely in accordance with international law."

However, Argentina accused Britain of doing "an unilateral act of aggression and subduing" by deciding the hydrocarbon exploration in the South Atlantic archipelago.

The disputed islands lie in southern Atlantic, 450 km from the Argentine coast. They are called the Falklands by Britons and the Malvinas by the Argentines. The archipelago has been occupied by the British forces since 1833.—Xinhua

Taleban kill Six police in S Afghanistan

KABUL, 22 Feb—Six Afghans were killed and two others sustained injuries as Taleban militants opened fire in Afghanistan's southern Helmand Province on Saturday, the Interior Ministry said in a statement issued here on Sunday.

when militants opened fire, as a result six policemen were martyred and two others sustained injuries," the statement added. It blamed the enemies of Afghanistan, a term used by Afghan officials against Taleban militants for organizing the attack.

Notorious for growing poppy and militancy,

Nepal's shortest man in quest for world record

A man who is only 22 inches (56 centimetres) tall left his home country of Nepal on Sunday in a quest to be recognized as the world's shortest man. Khagendra Thapa Magar is traveling to Europe to campaign for the Guinness World Record title. He applied to London-based group for a place in the record book in October, soon after turning 18, but said he has not received any response.

Magar's family initially filed a claim when he was 14, but it was rejected because he was not an adult and there was a chance he might grow.

They say doctors in Nepal have not been able to explain why Magar is so small.

"We are going to Italy to try to record his name in the Guinness Book of World Records," his father, Rup Bahadur Thapa Magar, told reporters in Kathmandu. They plan to appear on an Italian television show to talk about his bid for the title.

Most 'test tube' kids are healthy

More than 30 years after the world greeted its first "test-tube" baby with a mixture of awe, elation and concern, researchers say they are finding only a few medical differences between these children and kids conceived in the traditional way.

More than 3 million children have been born worldwide as a result of what is called assisted reproductive technology, and injecting sperm into the egg outside the human body now accounts for about 4 percent of live births, researchers reported Sunday at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The majority of assisted reproduction children are healthy and normal, according to researchers who have studied them. Some of these children do face an increased risk of birth defects, such as neural tube defects, and of low birth weight, which is associated with obesity, hypertension and Type 2 diabetes later in life, the researchers said.

Warming to bring stronger hurricanes

WASHINGTON, 22 Feb—Top researchers now agree that the world is likely to get stronger but fewer hurricanes in the future because of global warming, seeming to settle a scientific debate on the subject. But they say there's not enough evidence yet to tell whether that effect has already begun.

Since just before Hurricane Katrina hit Louisiana and Mississippi in 2005, dueling scientific papers have clashed about whether global warming is worsening hurricanes and will do so in the future. The new study seems to split the difference. A special World Meteorological Organization panel of 10 experts in both hurricanes and climate change—including leading scientists from both sides—came up with a consensus, which is published online Sunday in the journal Nature Geoscience.

"We've really come a long way in the last two years about our knowledge of the hurricane and climate issue," said study co-author Chris Landsea, a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration top hurricane researcher. The technical term for these storms are tropical cyclones; in the Atlantic they get called hurricanes, elsewhere typhoons.

The study offers projections for tropical cyclones worldwide by the end of this century, and some experts said the bad news outweighs the good. Overall strength of storms as measured in wind speed would rise by 2 to 11 percent, but there would be between 6 and 34 percent fewer storms in number. Essentially, there would be fewer weak and moderate storms and more of the big damaging ones, which also are projected to be stronger due to warming.—Internet

KEENE, 22 Feb—Several homes in central California remained evacuated on Sunday after the car of a freight train that derailed at a tunnel entrance near a small town burned and choked the area with thick, black smoke. A day after the derailment, about seven homes were evacuated and the residents of 30 other houses were advised to stay indoors with the windows closed, said Kern County Fire Department Engineer Justin Corley.

There were no serious injuries in the derailment about 9:30 pm Saturday near Keene, about 15 miles east of Bakersfield. Two cars from the long Burlington Northern Santa Fe Corp freight train went off Union Pacific tracks at a tunnel entrance on the well-known Tehachapi Loop south of Keene.—Internet

Train kills three teen girls crossing Florida bridge

MELBOURNE, 22 Feb—After goofing around downtown, four teenagers marched past a "no trespassing" sign and braved a railroad trestle that spans 200 feet over a creek. As they joked around and took pictures at the bridge's halfway point, an oncoming train barreled down the tracks, its whistle howling alarm.

Onlookers yelled for the teens to run or jump into the slow-moving water 20 feet below, but only a young boy could sprint to safety. The three others, all girls, were killed Saturday as the sun set over Crane Creek, police and witnesses said.—Internet

Genetic test reduces babies with inherited diseases

BEIJING, 22 Feb—Are you afraid of having a baby because of inherited diseases? There is good news that using genetic testing can decide whether to have children. The Associated Press found births of babies with cystic fibrosis, Tay-Sachs and other less familiar disorders seem to have dropped since the genetic testing came into wider use.

Scientists report on way to derail spread of AIDS

SAN DIEGO, 22 Feb—A successful AIDS vaccine remains elusive, but researchers say aggressive, early anti-viral therapy might provide a way to derail the spread of disease.

The goal is to catch new AIDS cases early and administer therapy to reduce the amount of virus in the patient's system. Anti-retroviral therapy has increased in the past five years. But it's been given too late in the course of infection. By the time people start therapy they have infected most of those that they would have infected anyway. That's according to Brian Williams of the South African Centre for Epidemiological Modeling and Analysis.—Internet

Although many of these diseases are little known, they can lead to disability and are often fatal during childhood. Now more women are being tested as part of routine prenatal care, and many end pregnancies when diseases are found.

Media reports said one study in California found that genetic testing reduced by half the number of babies born with the severest form of cystic fibrosis. Moreover, more couples with no family history of inherited diseases are getting tested before starting families to see if they carry mutations that put a baby at risk.

Cat food latest weapon against Australia's cane toads

SYDNEY, 22 Feb—A tin of cat food may be the solution to reducing the number of toxic cane toads in Australia, one of the country's major pests which environmentalists have tried for years to stop from killing off the native wildlife.

Scientists from the University of Sydney said that putting cat food close to ponds inhabited by baby cane toads attracts carnivorous ants that are also immune to the toads' poisonous skin. The ants then attack the baby toads and eat them."In one spot we tested, 98 percent of the baby toads were attacked within the first two minutes," researcher Rick Shine told Reuters. "It was a bit like a massacre."

Scientist have spent years — and a significant amount of money — trying to find ways to get rid of the toxic toad that has plagued Australia's flora and fauna for decades and which is considered one of the country's worse environmental mistakes.

The toads, introduced from Hawaii in 1935 in a bid to control native cane beetles, have led to dramatic declines in populations of native snakes, goanna lizards and quolls, a cat-sized marsupial.

Vietnam bear cub dies, mother freed at bile farm

HANOI, 22 Feb—A bear cub died at the weekend after its unexpected birth to a bear rescued with 18 others from an illegal bile farm in Vietnam, according to an animal welfare group.

The week-old moon bear cub, named "Tiger" for the new Lunar Year, died on Sunday morning despite attempts to treat it at the Moon Bear Rescue Center near Hanoi, said Hong Kong-based Animals Asia Foundation, which runs the facility.

Tiger's mother is one of 19 bears rescued in January from 40-foot (12-meter) cargo containers in Binh Duong Province near southern Ho Chi Minh City.

"Our veterinary team was taken by surprise by the birth, as Vietnamese farms don't breed," an Animals Asia statement said.

The birth suggested that Tiger's mother was probably taken from the wild, against Vietnamese law, the group said.—Internet

Developing countries face health problem caused by e-waste

BALI, 22 Feb—Developing countries face health problem caused by electronic waste (e-waste) dumped by rich ones, a UN official said here on Monday. "Developing countries will also face rising environmental damage and health problems if e-waste recycling is left to vagaries of informal sector," Achim Steiner, the United Nations' Under Secretary and the Executive Director of the United Nations Environment Program told a press conference in Nusa Dua of Indonesia's Bali Province.

He added that boosting developing country e-waste recycling rates can have the potential to generate decent employment, cut greenhouse gas emission and recover a wide range of valuable metals, including silver, gold, palladium, copper and indium. "By acting now and planning forward, many countries can turn an e-challenge into an e-opportunity," said Steiner.

Steiner said that the aim of the report titled "Recycling from E-Waste to Resources" was not to prevent people to buy electronic equipment any more. "That's not our goal. We just want to say that this report gives new urgency to establishing ambitious, formal and regulated processes for collecting and managing e-waste via setting up of large, efficient facilities," said Steiner.

The report cites a variety of sources to illustrate the e-waste problem, adding that global e-waste generation is growing by about 40 million tons a year.

US scientists warn of fraud of stem cell 'banks'

SAN DIEGO, 22 Feb—Clinics that offer to "bank" stem cells from the umbilical cords of newborns for use later in life when illness strikes are fraudsters, a top US scientist said here Saturday.

Clinics in many countries allow parents to deposit stem cells from their neonate's umbilical cord with a view to using the cells to cure major illnesses that could occur later in life.

In Thailand, for example, parents pay in the region of 3,600 dollars to make a deposit in a stem cell bank, thinking they are taking out a sort of health insurance for their child.

But Irving Weissman, director of the Institute of Stem Cell Biology and Regenerative Medicine at Stanford University in California, said the well-meaning parents were being fleeced by the stem cell bankers.

"Umbilical cords contain blood-forming stem cells at a level that would maintain the blood-forming capacity of a very young child," Weissman told reporters at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS).

"They could also have derived mesenchymal cells — fiberglass-like cells that have a very limited capacity to make scar, bone, fat — but they don't make brain, they don't make blood, they don't make heart, they don't make skeletal muscle, despite what various people claim," he said.—Internet

Diabetes drug linked to heart attacks

WASHINGTON, 22 Feb—The US Senate Finance Committee released a 334-page report on Saturday showing a link between the Type 2 diabetes drug Avandia and thousands of heart attacks. The committee's report, which reviewed more than 250,000 pages of documents provided by drug maker GlaxoSmithKline, the US Food and Drug Administration and research institutes, also criticized the FDA for ignoring safety concerns about Avandia (rosiglitazone) brought up by its staff, CNN reported.

The Wall Street Journal said confidential studies showed FDA officials recommended Avandia be removed from the market because of a risk of heart attacks and heart failure.

The FDA is the federal agency charged with regulating food, tobacco and medications.

"Americans have a right to know there are serious health risks associated with Avandia, and GlaxoSmithKline had a responsibility to tell them," committee chairman Sen Max Baucus, D-Mont, said. Josh Li said his wife, Ting, was the first to suggest the couple embrace his love of Apple by holding their wedding in a store dedicated to the computer company's products, The Daily Telegraph reported on Saturday.

"I used to joke that the Apple Store is my church because I am not religious, and I loved everything Apple," Li said.

The couple's unauthorized Valentine's Day wedding was attended by nearly 30 guests, as well as a priest dressed as Apple Chief Executive Officer Steve Jobs.—Internet

Where dust comes from

TUCSON, 22 Feb—Most indoor household dust that collects on furniture and floors actually comes from outdoors, University of Arizona researchers found.

David Layton and Paloma Beamer said that household dust consists of a potpourri that includes dead skin shed by people, fibers from carpets and upholstered furniture and tracked-in soil and airborne particles blown in from outdoors.

The dust also includes lead, arsenic and other potentially harmful substances that migrate indoors from outside air and soil. Those substances can be a special concern for children, who put dust-contaminated toys and other objects into their mouths.

The scientists used a computer model that tracked distribution of contaminated soil and airborne particulates into residences from outdoors.—Internet

Higuain double hands Pellegrini win over old team

Real Madrid's Argentinian forward Gonzalo Higuain celebrates after scoring a goal against Villarreal during their Spanish League football match at Santiago Bernabeu stadium in Madrid.—INTERNET

BARCELONA, 22 Feb—A double from Argentinian striker Gonzalo Higuain helped Real Madrid coach Manuel Pellegrini celebrate a 6-2 victory over his former team Villarreal as the winners kept up the pressure on Spanish league leaders Barcelona on Sunday.

Real — who are just two points behind Barcelona — started like a dream with Cristiano Ronaldo scoring from a brilliant freekick and dedicated it to the flood victims of his home island of Madeira, and then Brazilian star Kaka put them 2-0 to the good with a penalty.

Niang, Bastos trebles keep pressure on Bordeaux

PARIS, 22 Feb—Seasoned Senegalese international striker Mamadou Niang and Brazilian Michel Bastos both scored hat-tricks on Sunday for Marseille and Lyon respectively to maintain some pressure on French champions Bordeaux.

Niang's hat-trick in a 3-1 victory over Nancy took him to the top of the goalscoring charts as he racked up 14 for the season six of which have come in February alone as Marseille moved to within six points of Bordeaux.

Roma and Milan close in on leaders Inter

ROME, 22 Feb—AS Roma closed the gap to leaders Inter Milan at the top of Serie A to just five points with a narrow 1-0 win over Catania at the Stadio Olimpico in the capital on Sunday. And AC Milan stayed in the hunt as well, bouncing back from Tuesday's 3-2 Champions League defeat at home to Manchester United with a 2-0 success at Bari. Montenegro forward Mirko Vucinic scored the only goal of the game as Roma took their unbeaten run in the league to 15 matches with their seventh Serie A win in a row.

It means Roma have now shaved six points off Inter's lead over the last three matches with the champions having drawn three in a row, including Saturday's 0-0 stalemate at home to Sampdoria, in which Jose Mourinho's team were reduced to nine men after just 38 minutes following the dismissals of centre-backs Walter Samuel and Ivan Cordoba. Roma had three wins, two draws and five defeats in their first 10 games of the season but have since taken 39 from a possible 45 points.—Internet

Miyazato wins season-opening LPGA Thailand

Ai Miyazato of Japan

PATTAYA, 22 Feb—Japanese star Ai Miyazato rallied to win the season-opening Honda PTT LPGA Thailand on Sunday, holing a 30-foot birdie chip on the final hole for a 9-under 63 and a one-stroke victory over Norway's Suzann Pettersen. Miyazato, six strokes behind Pettersen after the third round, was 6 under in a six-hole stretch midway through the round, then birdied three of the last six holes to match the tournament record of 21 under set by Pettersen in October 2007.

"I didn't think of winning. I was just focused on my game and tried to do my best in the final round," Miyazato said. "It was my lucky day as no matter what I did was right. This victory is a good start of the season for me." Pettersen finished with a 70 Siam Country Club's Old Course. She had a chance to force a playoff on the par-5 18th, but missed a 23-foot eagle try.

Leverkusen pip Bayern to top spot

BERLIN, 22 Feb—Bayer Leverkusen equalled a Bundesliga record of 23 straight games unbeaten on Sunday as they overhauled Bayern Munich on goal difference at the top of the table with a 2-2 draw away to Werder Bremen. Following a disappointing 1-1 draw away at lowly local rivals Nuremberg, Bayern are one goal behind Leverkusen, who were left to rue a lack of concentration that allowed Bremen to score an agonising last-minute equaliser.

Despite drawing two games the in-form leaders would have hoped to win, they nevertheless stretched their lead over third-placed Schalke to four points after they slipped up 2-1 to last season's champions Wolfsburg. But Leverkusen coach Jupp Heynckes dismissed what he described as premature talk of lifting the Bundesliga crown.—Internet

Querrey rallies to beat Isner for Memphis title

Eighth-seeded Querrey, who upset top-seeded Andy Roddick in the quarter-finals, battled back to claim the third title of his career and first of 2010. Querrey, who was never broken in the match, won two straight points on Isner's serve to take a 6-5 lead in the second-set tiebreaker and rolled from there.

He broke Isner for a 2-1 lead in the third, and broke again to seal the match. Isner had been in firm control, taking a 5-2 lead in the second-set tiebreaker when Querrey mis-hit a return.—Internet

Angry Mancini wants Tevez back at City

MANCHESTER, 22 Feb—Manchester City manager Roberto Mancini has ordered Carlos Tevez to return from Argentina, where he has been on compassionate leave, after the forward ignored repeated requests to give the club a date for his expected return. City missed the Argentine striker as they drew 0-0 with Liverpool at Eastlands on Sunday and Togo international Emmanuel Adebayor is now Mancini's only fully match-fit senior striker.

Tevez has been in his homeland for over a week since his girlfriend gave birth to a child one month prematurely and has ignored repeated questions from City management about his return date. The player's girlfriend, and the child, are now out of danger but Tevez is yet to return, or indicate when he can be expected back.

Redknapp demands more from goal-hero Pavlyuchenko

Tottenham Hotspur's Russian striker Roman Pavlyuchenko

WIGAN, 22 Feb—Tottenham manager Harry Redknapp warned unsettled striker Roman Pavlyuchenko that his two-goal blast in his side's 3-0 win at Wigan will mean nothing unless he gets down to some hard work. Pavlyuchenko had attacked Redknapp in the Russian media last week in a rant which included the claims that his boss treated him as a joke and had gone back on his promise to play him more often.

But the Russian international, who had looked set to return to his homeland with Lokomotiv Moscow last month, was given a chance to do his talking on the pitch on Sunday when Redknapp sent him on as a late substitute and he responded with his first league goals of the season. With Jermain Defoe also on target, Tottenham moved above Manchester City and Liverpool into fourth place in the Premier League table and now hold the lucrative final Champions League spot.—Internet

Ferguson defends United owners

LONDON, 22 Feb—Sir Alex Ferguson has insisted he has never had any issues with Manchester United's owners the Glazer family. The Americans have been the target of fans' criticism recently, United supporters unhappy with off-field matters including the scale of the club's debt. But Ferguson told Sunday's Observer newspaper: "I'm never against protest. 'It's everyone's right, there's no doubt about that. 'But my problem with it, being manager of Manchester United, is that I've got owners who have never caused me any bother.

Aung Thabye Modern Cinema: a new relaxation facility for Nay Pyi Taw dwellers

Article: Win Kyaw; Photos: Khin Maung Win (Kyemon)

Every body has to work and it is necessary to do something for relaxation after work.

People try to relax for pleasure and relieving stress. When we, Myanma Alin news crew, heard the news about an advanced cinema is under construction and efforts are being made to open it in the not too distant future as a recreation facility for the people around Nay Pyi Taw, we went to the construction site of the cinema near Thabyegon Roundabout, in front of Water Fountain Garden, on

Zabu Thabye Road in Nay Pyi Taw Zabuthiri for a byline. We had an interview with U Tha Htay, member of board of directors of G-4 group of companies. He explained to us that the cinema which is under construction is a 2D, 3D cinema. Work on construction of the cinema began on August, 2009, and it will be opened during March of this year.
