Strive for sustainable development of urban and rural regions

Delta in Ayeyawady Division is teeming with rivers and creeks but is blessed with fertile lands. As agriculture and fishery industries can be extended, the region has better prospect of economic progress.

In the past, delta was difficult to access, and strong winds and heavy rains are common there. At present, the government is implementing the Ayeyawady Delta Region Road Network Development Project. Priority is being given to construction of the road network in Bogale, Pyapon, Pyinsalu, Labutta and Mawlamyinegyun townships.

Rehabilitation and reconstruction of urban and rural areas severely hit by the storm is a Herculean task. Thanks to the all-out efforts of the government, the people and the Tatmadaw, livelihoods, health, education, social and economic situations of the local people returned to normalcy within one year.

During the inspection tour of Bogale and Labutta townships of Ayeyawady Division on 10 May, Vice-Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council Deputy Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services Commander-in-Chief (Army) Vice-Senior General Maung Aye stressed the need for taking preventive and preparedness measures against natural disasters like storm Nargis, ensuring local water sufficiency, developing education and health sectors, growing perennial trees and compiling correct and accurate economic statistics.

Rural housing, offices and departmental buildings, township hospitals and cyclone shelters are under construction with momentum in Bogale and Labutta townships. Efforts are being made for construction of large clean water lakes, enhancement of meat and fish industries and conservation of mangrove ecosystem.

Nowadays, many infrastructures in economic, education and health sectors in addition to transport sector are being built for improvement of the coastal regions. That is why all the local people are to strive for ensuring sustainable development of rural and urban regions while making utmost efforts for progress of the region and taking preventive and preparedness measures against natural disasters.

Attacks kill over 100 in Iraq, Al-Qaeda blamed

BAGHDAD, 11 May—Bombers and gunmen with suspected links to a battered but still lethal al-Qaeda killed more than 100 people on Monday in a wave of attacks on markets, a textile factory, checkpoints and other sites across Iraq.

The attacks wounded more than 300 others in the capital, Baghdad, the southern oil hub of Basra and other towns and cities, and appeared aimed at showing Iraqis that Sunni Islamist militants were still a potent force, even after battlefield defeats in recent weeks.

"Despite strong strikes that broke al-Qaeda, there are some cells still working, attempting to prove their existence and their influence," said Baghdad's security spokesman, Major General Qassim al-Moussawi, calling the attacks "hysterical".

The attackers exploited the political disarray that followed a on 7 March election that produced no outright winner and pitted a cross-sectarian bloc backed by minority Sunni against two major Shi'ite-led coalitions.

The beard man explained that his shoes were just vibrating massager, but an airport security official was worried for the equipment, though simple, could easily trigger a bomb.

The man is still under interrogation and so far has not been charged.

14 dead in northwest Pakistan missile strike

PARACHINAR, 11 May—Several suspected US missiles destroyed two vehicles and makeshift homes in a tribal region near Afghanistan early Tuesday, killing at least 14 people and wounding four, two intelligence officials said.

The attack happened in the Doga area of North Waziristan, but the identities of the people killed in the attack were not immediately known, said the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak to the media.

Some of the victims were in newly constructed homes, while some were in the targeted vehicles, which were traveling over a dusty road in the same area, the officials said.

North Waziristan has been the target of nearly all of about 30 other American attacks this year. In recent months, it has become a new haven for militants who fled a Pakistani army offensive in their previous stronghold, neighboring South Waziristan.

Astronauts arrive in Florida for final planned launch of shuttle Atlantis

CAPE CANAVERAL, 11 May—The astronauts who will fly the space shuttle Atlantis' final planned mission arrived at their Florida launch site late Monday, four days ahead of their scheduled liftoff.

Commander Ken Ham led his STS-132 mission crewmates to a 6:49 pm EDT (2300 GMT) landing on the Shuttle Landing Facility here at NASA's Kennedy Space Centre in Florida, the same runway where he will ultimately land Atlantis for the spacecraft's last time.

The astronauts came to Florida from the Johnson Space Center (JSC) in Houston, Texas, flying in four T-38 training jets. They are due to launch Atlantis' final mission, on 14 May, at 2:20 pm EDT (1820 GMT).

"We are ready to launch," Ham told reporters gathered at the landing strip. "We've completed every bit of training we can and we're confident."

"Look for a good show on Friday," he added.

NASA's launch abort test builds on 50 years of astronaut escape systems

WASHINGTON, 11 May—NASA on Thursday successfully tested an astronaut abort system, recreating a scene last staged during the Apollo programme while building upon technology first demonstrated 50 years ago this week.

"The Orion Pad Abort-1 team has successfully tested the first US-designed abort system since Apollo," said Doug Cooke, NASA's associate administrator for the exploration systems directorate, at a post-flight briefing. "This system is much more advanced in capability and technology than any abort system designed in the past."

The Pad Abort-1 (PA1) flight test, which flew a boilerplate 16-foot (4.9-meter) wide, 18,000-pound (8,160-kg) Orion capsule under a nearly 45-foot (13.7-meter) long launch abort system (LAS) tower, lifted off at 8:00 am EDT from the US Army's White Sands Missile Range near Las Cruces. The flight lasted about 135 seconds from launch until the module touched down about a mile (1.6 km) north of where it had lifted off.

The flight, which was set up to model what would happen if an emergency on the launch pad required the spacecraft to separate from its booster, was the first fully-integrated test of this abort system design. The information gathered from the test will help refine design and analysis for future launch abort systems, resulting in safer and more reliable crew escape capability during launches, said NASA.

Astronomers find recoiling supermassive black hole

SCIENCE DAILY, 11 May—Astronomers have found a possible supermassive black hole that is recoiling out of a distant galaxy at high speed. The black hole, visible with X-rays as a clear star, is not located in the centre of the galaxy, as would normally be the case. Recoiling black holes are interesting because they provide insights into how supermassive black holes develop in the centre of galaxies.

To make the discovery, she had to compare hundreds of thousands of X-ray sources, picked up by chance, with the positions of millions of galaxies. Normally each galaxy contains a supermassive black hole at its centre that sometimes lights up under X-rays. Yet the star Heida discovered was clearly not located in the center of the system. However, under X-rays the object is so bright that it can best be compared to other bright supermassive black holes in the universe.

NLD criticizes the laws unjust and refuses to register

If NLD wants to amend the Constitution it should run for the election and should act in accord with the law

Calling for constitutional amendment impractical

US Assistant Secretary of State meets SPDC Spoke Authoritative Team, Foreign Affairs Minister, Science and Technology Minister, UEC Chairman, Labour Minister, USDA Secretary-General in Nay Pyi Taw

The Spoke Authoritative Team of the State Peace and Development Council holds discussions with US Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs Mr. Kurt Campbell.—MNA

NAY PYI TAW, 11 May—The US Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs Mr Kurt Campbell and party arrived in Nay Pyi Taw by special aircraft at 1.30 pm on 9 May and met the Spoke Authoritative Team of the State Peace and Development Council, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, the Minister for Science and Technology, the Chairman of Union Election Commission, the Minister for Labour and the Secretary-General of the Union Solidarity and Development Association.

The Spoke Authoritative Team of the State Peace and Development Council and Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs Mr. Kurt Campbell held discussions at the meeting hall of the Ministry of Information at 3 pm on 9 May.

Leader of the SPDC Spoke Authoritative Team Minister for Information U Kyaw Hsan said, there are many developments in the democratization process of Myanmar since the first meeting.

The nation is going to hold the multiparty democracy general elections this year. Nowadays, we have issued Political Parties Registration Law, the election laws and rules and also formed the Union Election Commission. The Union Election Commission has been approving the formation of political parties in accord with the laws. It will also supervise the multiparty democracy general elections to be free and fair. The Political Parties Registration Law and Rules guarantee free and fair formation and registration of political parties. The Election Law and rules also guarantee a free, fair, credible and all-inclusive elections.

Up to now 36 parties have submitted applications to the Commission in accord with the laws and rules. Of them, 31 have been permitted to set up. More parties are expected to submit applications. There are also many who will take part as independent candidates.

However, NLD criticized the laws unjust and refused to register. We have ensured the all-inclusiveness of the elections. It is up to the NLD to decide not to take part. There are three main points that NLD is claiming unjust. The first is Article 6 (c) of Political Parties Registration Law which states that political parties shall protect the Constitution of the Union of Myanmar. The NLD said that it cannot accept the provision as it has called for the amendment of the Constitution. Actually, that provision merely calls for maintaining the Constitution, but does not call for a pledge that parties will never amend or try to amend the Constitution or that the Constitution is not amendable or cannot be amended at all. In fact, amendments can be made according to the provisions of Chapter XII. If NLD representatives are elected, they can initiate discussions on constitutional amendments at Hluttaw and go on with amendment procedures in accord with the provisions. However, amendments cannot be made outside the Hluttaw. Neither the NLD nor the government has the right to do so. The fact is that the Constitution was ratified with overwhelming public support. Therefore, Hluttaw members who are the public representatives will have the right to make amendments at the Hluttaw in accord with the provisions. If NLD wants to amend the Constitution it should run for the election and should act in accord with the law. Otherwise it is like making impracticable demands. So its decision to stay away from the election will only further complicate the situation. It will only lead to confrontation. Besides, all other provisions are issued in accord with the Constitution. Article 405 of the Constitution states that political parties shall abide by and respect this Constitution and the existing laws.

The second point is Article 10(e) of the Political Parties Registration Law which states that any one serving prison terms shall not be organized as a party member. But this provision does not say that anyone who has completed his prison term shall not become a party member. A political party is an organization on which the people can rely. Should there be convicts among its members? Convicts may include persons who have committed serious crimes. It is a common sense that convicts should not be included in a ruling party. So, this provision does not concern with any particular person, but with all those who are serving prison terms in Myanmar.

The third point is Article 10(a) of the Pyithu Hluttaw Election Law stating that anyone serving prison terms shall not have the right to stand for the election. There is criticism saying that the provision aims for a particular person. It in reality is a bias criticism that ignores the truth. This provision is not a new one. It is in accord with Myanmar norms as well as international norms.

There was also a provision in the 1947 Constitution saying that a person, during his prison term or after five years from the date he has completed his prison term, shall have no right to be elected as a Hluttaw member. The 1989 Pyithu Hluttaw Election Law has a similar provision. Likewise most of the Asian countries including Singapore, Indonesia, some countries, votes are counted only after sending ballot boxes to provisional capitals or the State capital. Our election will be apparently much freer, fairer and more credible than those elections.

The laws are based on the overwhelmingly approved 2008 Constitution. In addition, reference has been made to the laws issued and practiced during the parliamentary democracy period from 1948 to 1962 and the laws enacted in 1990.

Moreover, every perspective was taken into consideration for the laws and rules to be rational and just and in conformity with our country's prevailing democratization, and meet norms of the previous laws and international laws, rather than meeting the needs of a particular person or a party. No law in any country gets absolute approval. Only laws that are acceptable to the majority can be enacted. This is common sense. It is usual that every government aims at serving and protecting national interest. It is a rightful act. The promulgation of the laws is to serve the national interest and is just the internal affairs of a country. A broader view, but not a narrow-minded view based on personal and organizational prejudice, is required for our democratization process. Election is a must for

The provision does not target specific person as slandered by the anti-government elements, but for all the persons serving prison terms in Myanmar.

Thailand, India and Pakistan have similar provision. Some countries even ban a person from election within the period of five years from the date he is released.

The election law of the nation bans only the persons serving prison terms, but not the ones who have released from prison. The present Election Law is more flexible than the previous laws of Myanmar and the laws of other countries. The provision does not target specific person as slandered by the anti-government elements, but for all the persons serving prison terms in Myanmar. We have made every arrangement to hold a free, fair and credible multiparty democracy general elections in 2010. Candidates have been permitted to assign a representative and a helper at the polling stations to act on their behalf. Voting will be in front of the public, and vote counting will be carried out at the polling station. Ballot counting will be under the supervision of the returning officer or an assigned staff of the polling station and it will be witnessed by the polling station staff, the public and the representatives assigned by the candidates. After the vote counting, votes received by each candidate will be sent to the subcommissions at higher levels in sealed envelopes. The representatives are permitted to take part in sealing the envelopes. These arrangements prove that the election will be free, fair and credible. In conditions. Moreover, they meet the international norms. It will not be fair to evaluate our laws with the yardstick based on individual person's right to take part in the election or the like of a particular party. A conclusion cannot be drawn whether our laws are just or harsh by measuring with this yardstick. The more important thing is to consider whether the laws serve the majority interest, pave the smooth, stable and peaceful way for to democracy, there will be agreements and disagreements as well as supporters and opposition. However, decisions are passed according to majority wish. So, the 2010 election is legitimate.

According to the constitution, all the ethnic armed groups will have to surrender their arms as there has to be only the Tatmadaw after the election. Discussion and negotiation with ethnic armed groups are under way and there are many fruitful results in this regard.

The 2010 election will be successfully held, and Hluttaws, governments and judicial bodies will emerge. Those institutions will continue to build a peaceful, modern and developed democratic nation in accord with the 2008 constitution. At the same time, political parties, ethnic races and politicians will discuss and negotiate about their political issues, the rights of ethnic races, amendment to the constitution and democratic affairs in Hluttaws and comprehensively improve them. This is the only viable way to peaceful democracy that serves the interest of the nation and its people. It would also be in conformity with the prevailing conditions of the State. We understand that the US government wishes Myanmar to promote democracy and develop with peace and stability. We thank you for that. Therefore, we would like to receive your kind cooperation so that the 2010 election can be held peacefully and successfully.

We are a developing nation striving hard to develop in the future. At the same time, we are exercising the independent, active foreign policy and dealing with the neighbouring countries, regional countries and global countries in accordance with the five principles of peaceful co-existence. Our nation is a UN member and is collaborating with ASEAN and BIMSTEC in shouldering regional and international duties. Moreover, we have never shown aggression and invaded any country. In addition, we are always against terrorism and have been cooperating with the neighbouring countries in combating terrorism. We have signed 11 out of the 13 UN conventions on international terrorism.

In short, we are striving in an honest way for the security and development of our own nation and people. This is why we would like your country to show positive attitude towards our internal affairs such as the drafting of the constitution and measures for holding the elections after issuing the necessary laws for democratization process. We really want to normalize and promote the relations between Myanmar and the US. We also welcome the US policy of direct engagement. We believe that such engagement is important for the normalization and promotion of bilateral ties and building of understanding and confidence. In such contact and discussion, there will be common views as well as differences between the two sides. Cooperation on common views will promote understanding and trust, thereby contributing to the bilateral ties. I would like to conclude by saying that we should promote our bilateral ties not only for the short term interest, but also for the long term.

Mr Campbell asked whether former NLD CECs form a new party and run for the election. Minister U Kyaw Hsan said that 23 NLD CCs including NLD CEC U Khin Maung Swe, Dr Than Nyein, Dr Win Naing and U Thein Nyunt formed the National Democratic Force (NDF) to run for the election. They issued an announcement on 8 May saying that they are preparing to take part in the election and that they will submit application to the Commission on 15 May. It is a well-known matter in the political community.

Mr Campbell asked whether there will be observers or monitors at the coming election. The minister explained that the matter will be decided only by the Commission.

He then asked the exact date of the election. The minister said that the Commission will decide the matter. It is now busy with the tasks of scrutinizing applications to set up parties and forming subcommittees at township level. After completion of the tasks, it will announce the date.

Government working in accord with the Constitution will emerge and the constitution will come into force only if the election is successful. At the same time, freedom, human rights, politics and economy will be transparent in accord with constitution. And this will benefit not only Myanmar but also the regional countries and global countries including the US. So, all should lend a helping hand for holding the election peacefully, while understanding the objective conditions. We have held talks with you twice to foster bilateral goodwill relations.

Mr Campbell thanked the minister, expressing hope to meet again. The minister said that efforts will be made for improvement of bilateral relations.

At 2 pm, the delegation led by Mr Kurt Campbell called on Minister for Foreign Affairs U Nyan Win at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. At the call, Minister U Nyan Win said that he expected to exchange views of through discussions. The minister begged the indulgence of the guests for some inconvenience in arranging a call with the Prime Minister as the Prime Minister was on a local trip.

Mr. Campbell said that the Myanmar-US direct engagement programme has been implemented for about eight months. He continued to say that he would like to know the attitude of Myanmar on the programme and the wish of Myanmar on discussion process.

Minister U Nyan Win said that Myanmar wanted to cement relations with all the global countries including the US. The attitude of the US played an important role in promoting the Myanmar-US relations. Imposing economic sanction, restriction of visa and putting pressures of the US has resulted in Myanmar-US relations dwindling. Thus, he hoped that the present direct engagement would promote the bilateral relations.

Mr. Campbell expressed thanks for knowing the attitude of Myanmar side. After holding the meetings in New York and Nay Pyi Taw for the first time, the US focused on building mutual trust and extension of collaboration step by step, he said. The basic point of direct engagement programme is to hold meetings regularly. However, he noted that there were difficulties and delay in making a meeting with Myanmar.

Minister U Nyan Win said that he would like to openly discuss about it, saying that some delegates only make criticisms against Myanmar during the discussions. So, it is natural that the guests who criticized the host again and again are unwanted. If the meeting is based on the positive attitude for promoting bilateral cooperation, there will not be difficulty, he explained.

Mr. Campbell said that the US on its part wished to continue the direct engagement programme. He expressed his opinion that agenda should be made to hold the meetings such as meetings between ambassadors or the directors-general.

Minister U Nyan Win discussed that plans on topic-wise discussions will be informed to the US through the embassy after the ministries had held the coordination meeting on ongoing cooperation matters.

The delegation led by Mr. Kurt Campbell met with Minister for Science and Technology U Thaung at the hall of the Ministry of Science and Technology at 4.30 p.m. At the meeting, Minister U Thaung said that the US could not able to get true information due to lack of relations between the two nations during the period of 14 years. He stressed the need to join hands in setting up the good relations between the two nations during the period of six or seven months when relations were normalized again. He said that he heard discussions were made in Senate to extend the sanction against Myanmar for one more year which was timed to coincide with the arrival date of the delegation here. Thus, the act of the Senate of the US was not constructive. The Senate's decision to extend the sanction against Myanmar for another year showed there was a different approach towards Myanmar between the government and the Senate, he added.

In his response to Mr Campbell for his expression of international concern over Myanmar-North Korea relations, Minister U Thaung replied that Myanmar government had publicly announced that it agreed to follow the UNSC resolutions (1718) and (1874) absolutely, but it has the duty to maintain and protect national sovereignty.

Mr. Campbell asked about future plan to be made with the elected government. He said that ASEAN Regional Forum will be held in July in Vietnam. The US delegation including US Secretary of State Mrs. Clinton and Senator Mr. Jim Webb will attend it. So discussions may be held with them at the forum, he added. The minister replied that relations can be made easily with the new government as it is a democratic government. The Minister for Foreign Affairs attends ASEAN Regional Forum. Regarding the discussions to be held at the forum, the matter will be reported to the higher authorities. It is necessary to take more time and to have patience in making cooperation as there were differences between the two governments, he added.

The delegation led by Mr Kurt Campbell called on Chairman U Thein Soe of the Union Election Commission at Office No (22) in Nay Pyi Taw at 5 pm. The commission chairman briefed them on the functions of the commission, and said that most of national races applied for formation of political parties; that some old members broke away from their old parties and applied for formation of new parties; that the Union Election Commission takes into consideration the fact that those wishing to form political parties can take their time; and that tasks are being carried out as scheduled for successful holding of free and fair elections.

US Charge d' Affaires at Mr Larry M. Dinger said that he would like to know the date of Myanmar elections. In response, U Thein Soe said that it has been announced that elections will be held in 2010; that elections processes are being taken step by step and that the date of elections will be announced after preparations have been made.

Regarding the Union Solidarity and Development Association, Mr Larry M. Dinger said that he would like to know whether or not ministers' application for formation of political parties is in conformity with the law and whether they can be allowed to do so. U Thein Soe responded that a provision says that State service personnel shall not be organized in political parties; that ministers are political posts, not State service personnel; Section 448 of State Constitution (2008) says that in-service State service personnel including the Tatmadaw formed under the State Peace and Development Council on the date on which the constitution came into force shall continue to discharge duties until the government of the Union of Myanmar promulgates other provisions; that Section 444 (A) says that the government that is existing on the date on which the constitution comes into force shall continue to discharge its duties until a new government is formed in accordance with the constitution; that so, present ministers' formation of Union Solidarity and Development Party is in conformity with the law; that in many other countries, presidents and ministers engage in party services; and that only persons who will be appointed as ministers in the government to be formed in accordance with the constitution of Myanmar shall not engage in party services.

Mr Kurt Campbell said that he would like to know whether international watchdogs including ASEAN will be allowed to visit the nation for elections. U Thein Soe said that the nation has a lot of experience of elections; that according to the provisions of Election Law and Regulations, candidates standing for elections have the right to appoint election representatives, polling station representatives, helpers and clerks for them; that those persons have the right to watch polling stations, and the ballots are to be counted in front of the voters along with them; that so it is clear that arrangements have been made to ensure free and fair

The entire people will be organized in the drive for formation of a government reliable for the State and the people in accordance with the State Constitution (2008) that has been approved with the support of the entire people, and the laws promulgated by the Union Election Commission, and it is believed that all will focus on the development of the State and the people although parties and people may have different beliefs, concepts and policies.

elections; and that international watchdog groups do not need to come here.

Mr Kurt Campbell said that he thanks the commission chairman and party for clarifications; and that the forthcoming elections will be an important challenge for Myanmar. The commission chairman said that they are working, taking lessons from international elections for the country.

The delegation led by Mr Kurt Campbell met Minister for Labour U Aung Kyi at his office at 5.45 pm, and the two sides exchanged views on matters for boosting bilateral relations.

At 6.50 pm, the delegation held a meeting with USDA Secretary General U Htay Oo at USDA Headquarters in Nay Pyi Taw Dekkhina Thiri.

On the occasion, the USDA Secretary General said that Union Solidarity and Development Party will be formed based on the Union Solidarity and Development Association; that the purpose of the party is to build a peaceful, modern and developed democratic nation, as aspired by the people, and to cooperate with the people for sustainable progress of the nation; that those who proposed to form a political party have resigned as State service personnel in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution and the Election Law; ministers and deputy ministers are merely the political posts, not government servants; that the party will recruit new members in line with the principles; that the previous USDA comprises government servants; that only those who have resigned as government servants are allowed to join the party; that USDA also comprises students; that they want students to continue their education without engaging in party politics; and that they will not recruit students as party members, and will encourage their education.

He continued to say that they will organize the entire people in the drive for formation of a government reliable for the State and the people in accordance with the State Constitution (2008) that has been approved with the support of the entire people, and the laws promulgated by the Union Election Commission; and that they believe that all will focus on the development of the State and the people although parties and people may have different beliefs, concepts and policies.

Next, Mr. Campbell and party put questions, in connection with formation of political parties, USDP and 2010 elections. The USDA Secretary General replied to the questions.

Mr Campbell said that there have many positive changes between his previous and present trips; that the USDA Secretary General's clarifications are beneficial a lot; and that he hopes that the new government will pay serious attention to the discussions held for improving the bilateral relations. The USDA Secretary General said that greater positive cooperation will benefit both countries; that some disagreements can be settled through coordination; and that he believes that Mr Campbell's trip will be successful.—MNA

Kungfu Chen Zhen returns

BEIJING, 11 May—“Legend of the Fist: The Return of Chen Zhen”, the latest film about one of the best-known action heroes on China’s screens, will hit local cinemas in October, producers have announced.

Investors said at a press conference on Monday that they are expecting a box-office take of 500 million yuan (73.3 million US dollars). That number, if reached, would make the film one of the most profitable Chinese-language films of all time. “The Founding of a Republic”, last year’s box-office leader, earned 420 million yuan.

Donnie Yen, who portrayed the fictitious martial-arts hero Chen Zhen in a 1995 TV drama, reprises the role that has also been played by Bruce Lee and Jet Li. A frequent character on China’s big and small screens, Chen Zhen is usually portrayed as a student of martial-arts legend Huo Yuanjia (1867-1910).

“Unlike Bruce Lee’s Chen Zhen who’s uneducated, or Jet Li’s version, Donnie Yen has to go further. Yen’s Chen Zhen returns to China from France, and is more mature and romantic than previous incarnations,” explained Gordon Chan, the film’s producer.

According to the production team, Yen’s Chen Zhen is a special agent who works against Japanese spies in 1920s Shanghai.

The film also stars Shu Qi, Anthony Wong and Huang Bo.

Scientists discover five genetic links to breast cancer

BEIJING, 11 May — Cambridge scientists have identified five genetic clues to explain why some women have a family history of breast cancer, according to news reports on Monday.

The research led by Douglas Easton in Cambridge University in Britain scanning the gene maps of more than 16,000 patients suggested women who are targeted screening and treatment are more likely to get breast cancer. The results, which found five new gene variations, suggested that 5 percent of all breast cancer patients are down to inherit faults in known genes. However, the precise cause of the disease are still not known.

Breast cancer is the most common type of cancer in women. It kills around half a million people worldwide each year. Having a close relative with breast cancer nearly doubles a woman’s risk for it.

Escaped circus elephant squats Italian garden

Residents of an Italian village were surprised to find an elephant relaxing in their garden on Tuesday after she escaped from a travelling circus, the ANSA news agency reported.

The elephant, named Dumbo and weighing around three-and-a-half tonnes, took a walk from her cage shortly after the Armando Orfei circus arrived in the village of Bassano, around 100 kilometres (65 miles) north of Rome. The 40-year-old pachyderm walked a few hundred metres (yards) into a house garden, where a dog gave the alert and prompted the owners to call the fire brigade.

But Dumbo’s tamer, Lino Orfei, had already noticed the beast was missing and promptly arrived to take the hapless animal back to the circus.

Flood said the ear chunk was not found.

Godfrey was arrested on suspicion of felony assault and remained in custody on Wednesday. Case records don’t yet list her attorney’s name.

Mexican gunmen kidnap groom, best man at wedding

MEXICO CITY, 11 May—Gunmen burst into a wedding ceremony in Mexico and kidnapped the groom and his brother, his best man and his uncle, in a case of apparent score-settling between rival drug gangs, authorities said.

Before barging into the church, the gunmen killed a man in the church parking lot, said the Chihuahua state Attorney General's office, adding that the victim was shot in the back as he fled from the group. No ransom demand has been received for the three kidnap victims, as police said is often the case with cases of bloody score-settling hits between rival gangs.

The crime took place on Friday in Ciudad Juarez, dubbed the murder capital of Mexico. Since late 2006, more than 2600 people have been murdered in this city across from El Paso, Texas, including 856 so far this year. Violent attacks have exploded across Mexico since President Felipe Calderon launched a military crackdown on organised crime when he took office at the end of 2006.—Internet

Girl 'frozen in time' may hold secrets to ageing

LONDON, 11 May—Scientists are hoping to gain new insights into the mysteries of ageing by sequencing the genome of a 17-year-old girl who has the body and behaviour of a tiny toddler. Brooke Greenberg is old enough to drive a car and next year will be old enough to vote—but at 16lb (7.2kg) in weight and just 30in (50cm) tall, she is still the size of a one-year-old, London's Sunday Times revealed.

Until recently she had been regarded as a medical oddity but a preliminary study of her DNA has suggested her failure to grow could be linked to defects in the genes that make the rest of humanity grow old. If confirmed, the research could give scientists a fresh understanding of ageing and even suggest new therapies for diseases linked to old age.

"We think that Brooke's condition presents us with a unique opportunity to understand the process of ageing," said Richard Walker, a professor at the University of South Florida School of Medicine, who is leading the research team. Superficially, Brooke, who lives with her parents Howard and Melanie Greenberg and her three sisters in Reisterstown, a Baltimore suburb, is frozen in time.

Stem cells from uterus treat parkinson's in mice

WASHINGTON, 11 May—Stem cells from the lining of a woman's uterus transformed into brain cells when they were injected into mice whose brains had damage resembling Parkinson's disease, researchers reported on Thursday. The findings suggest that women with Parkinson's could serve as their own stem cell donors, the team at Yale University School of Medicine in Connecticut said.

And because the cells are easy to find, banks of tissue-matched endometrial stem cells could be set up, they said. "Endometrial tissue is probably the most readily available, safest, most easily attainable source of stem cells that is currently available. We hope the cells we derived are the first of many types that will be used to treat a variety of diseases," said Yale's Dr Hugh Taylor.

"I think this is just the tip of the iceberg for what we will be able to do with these cells," added Taylor, whose findings are published in the Journal of Cellular and Molecular Medicine. Stem cells are the body's master cells.

NANNING, 11 May—A rain-triggered landslide killed three people, including a 5-year-old child, and injured one in Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region, the local authority said on Monday.

The casualties occurred when rocks hit a home after continuous rain caused a landslide in Dadong Village, of Baise City, at about 11:40 pm on Friday, said a statement from the regional flood control and drought relief headquarters.

Many regions in Guangxi have suffered frequent downpours since the rainy season started in April. A rainstorm pelted more than 345 townships between on Sunday and Monday.

German trade surplus widens in March

BERLIN, 11 May—Germany's trade surplus widened to 17.2 billion euros (22.2 billion US dollars) in March from 12.7 billion euros (16.4 billion dollars) in February, sending another strong signal of the country's export-led recovery, according to official data released on Monday.

The Federal Statistics Office said the country's seasonally-adjusted exports jumped 10.7 percent on a monthly basis, while imports were up by 11.0 percent.

Surpassing some economists' prediction of 1.3-billion-euro (1.68-billion-dollar) growth, the trade balance rose by 4.5 billion euros (5.8 billion dollars) in March compared to that of the previous month.

The exports, the main economic booster, registered a 23.3-percent increase in March, compared with the same month in 2009, while imports climbed by 18.3 percent, a clear sign of recovery.

The Red Sox needed just one hit in that inning to take the lead, a cushion that came in handy when John Lackey (4-1) struggled through six innings before three relievers held the Blue Jays hitless. Jonathan

Golfer Tiger Woods waits for a question during a news conference at Aronimink Golf Club, on Monday, 10 May, 2010, in Newtown Square. INTERNET

NEWTOWN SQUARE, 11 May — Tiger Woods insists there's "zero connection" between the neck spasms playing havoc with his golf swing and his 27 Nov car accident.

Woods said during a news conference on Monday that his neck started bothering him two weeks before the Masters, his first competition in five months. He brushed it off as "no big deal" and believed he could play through the pain. That changed on Sunday at The Players Championship, where Woods' creaky neck locked up. That prevented him from making his usual forceful turn on the ball on even a routine shot, and he was forced to withdraw after six holes. Internet

Iraq boosts security after deadliest day this year

BAGHDAD, 11 May— Iraq boosted security around Baghdad and the rest of the country Tuesday, a day after a string of attacks across the country killed 119 people and wounded hundred.

The sheer breadth of the attacks, stretching from cities in the north to the normally peaceful southern port of Basra, was a blow after recent victories against insurgents and raised questions about the militants' enduring strength.

Across Baghdad, as helicopters buzzed through the skies, new checkpoints were established, especially in the east side of the city. In the past, however, boosted security has often lapsed within a few days.
