Railroad networks on western bank of Ayeyawady River

It costs less to travel by train. A large number of people and huge amount of goods can be transported by train in a short time. So, the government has been building more and more railroads across the nation.

Kyangin-Pakokku Railroad, 320 miles long, is one of the railroads designed to form railroad networks for trade development. Kyangin-Pakokku Railroad is an artery in the regions on the western bank of the river Ayeyawady.

So far, road sections between Kyangin, Otshinpin, Kanma, Thayet and Minhla along with the Pakokku-Kyungyaung section of the railroad have been put into service, thus contributing towards the transport of the region. Minhla-Minbu section of Kyangin-Pakokku Railroad was inaugurated on 18 September. Therefore, Patheingyi is now directly accessible by train from Minbu through Kyangin.

The 25-mile long railroad section emerged as a result of the plan to open Kyangin-Pakokku Railroad section-wise. Now, people and commodities can be transported with convenience between Minhla and Minbu townships.

Having vast arable lands, the regions along the western bank of the river Ayeyawady serve as a source of edible oil crops, beans and pulses and many other crops. Long ago, the area was in no position to enjoy swift commodity flow and lagged behind other regions in development in consequence of poor transport.

Today, there have emerged several bridges over the Ayeyawady River, linking the eastern and western banks together in terms of transport. Besides, many more railroad networks are being built, and they are being commissioned section-wise. Owing to a growing number of railroad sections, the regions on the western bank of the river have potential for rapid economic growth with brisk trade with other regions.

SUKKUR, 20 Sept—Suhani Bunglani fans flies away from her two baby girls as one sleeps motionless while the other stares without blinking at the roof of their tent, her empty belly bulging beneath a green flowered shirt.

Their newborn sister already died on the ground inside this steamy shelter at just 4 days old, after the family's escape from violent floods that drowned a huge swath of Pakistan. Now the girls, ages 1 and 2, are slowly starving, with shriveled arms and legs as fragile as twigs. More than 100,000 children left homeless by Pakistan's floods are in danger of dying because they simply do not have enough to eat, according to UNICEF. Children already weak from living on too little food in poor rural areas before the floods are fighting to stay alive, as diarrhea, respiratory diseases and malaria attack their emaciated bodies.

Doctors roaming the 100-degree camp that reeks of urine and animal manure have warned Bunglani three times to take her children to the hospital, or they will die.

The mother says she knows they need help, but she cannot leave the tent without her husband's consent. She must stay until he returns, even if it means risking her daughters' lives.

Eight killed in US drone strike in NW Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, 20 Sept—At least eight people were killed and two others injured in a US drone strike launched Monday afternoon in Pakistan's northwest tribal area of North Waziristan, reported local media.

According to the report, the US drones fired four missiles in the area of Tehsil Shawa in Miranshah of North Waziristan which borders Afghanistan and one of the missiles reportedly hit a vehicle carrying five local welfare workers and all of them were said to be killed.

There are also reports saying at least four foreign militants belonging to Hafiz Gulbabbdur group were killed in the strike.

Monday's strike is the second of its kind over the last 24 hours. On Sunday night, the US drone fired three missiles targeting at a house and a car in the Datta Khel area of North Waziristan, killing six Hafiz Gulbabbdur militants.

Located along the Pakistan-Afghanistan border area, North Waziristan is considered to be a major stronghold of militants in the country.

Despite the fact that the US drone strike is mainly targeting at the militants active in the area, many innocent people have also been mistakenly killed in such strikes and this has led to a strong resentment against the United States among the local people.

Analysts here believe that with the step-up of the US drone strikes against the militants in Pakistan, more retaliatory actions will also be taken by the militants in the country in the near future.

Iran presses US as freed American returns

NEW YORK, 20 Sept—Iran has urged the United States to free eight Iranians as a "humanitarian gesture," while freed American hiker Sarah Shourd made an emotional plea for the release of two compatriots.

"Iran was the country that released Sarah. We haven't even received a note from the United States on that," President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad complained in an interview with ABC's "This Week," calling Shourd's release "a huge humanitarian act."

"It would not be misplaced to ask that the US government should take a humanitarian gesture to release the Iranians who were illegally arrested and detained here in the United States."

Ahmadinejad did not elaborate on the identity of the Iranians he said were being held by the United States.

But in comments to Iranian state television on Friday, he referred to "several Iranians it (the United States) has caught in Thailand, Georgia and elsewhere, or inside the US for exporting certain goods."

Shourd, 32, arrived at Dulles International Airport outside Washington days after being released on 500,000 dollars bail by Iran, which is still holding two other US hikers more than a year after they were detained along with Shourd.

She later drove up to New York, after Ahmadinejad arrived there ahead of the United Nations General Assembly.—Internet

World leaders seek new ways on Millennium goals

UNITED NATIONS, 20 Sept—World leaders are kicking off a summit to hammer out new ways to meet ambitious targets set a decade ago to cut poverty, millions of avoidable deaths and improve equality by 2015.

US President Barack Obama, President Nicolas Sarkozy of France, Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao and Iran's President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad are among the leaders who will put rival plans to get the badly behind schedule Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) back on track.

Most experts say it will be impossible to meet any of the goals, which range from cutting the number of people in extreme poverty by half and the number of children who die before reaching five by two thirds, to fairer trade and spreading the internet to the world's poor.

UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon says more money and political will is needed to give new life to the MDG campaign.

The European Union is expected to announce one billion dollars of MDG funds and the World Bank 750 million dollars for education, according to aid groups.

That still leaves more than 120 billion dollars to be found over the next five years. And the financial crisis has undermined much of the global community's ability to find new funds.

"I know there is skepticism but this MDG is a promise, a blueprint, by the world leaders to lift billions of people out of poverty. This must be met and delivered," Ban said in an interview with AFP ahead of the summit.—Internet

Hurricanes cause major damage in Caribbean nations and Mexico

BEIJING, 20 Sept—Hurricanes Igor and Karl have caused major damage and injuries in several Caribbean nations and Mexico.

Huge waves pounded Bermuda's beaches as residents rushed to board up windows, fill sandbags and stock up on water, food and other necessities. The US National Hurricane Centre, says Igor is expected to pass over, or very close to, Bermuda late Sunday or early Monday. High surf, kicked up by the storm, has already swept two people out to sea in Puerto Rico and the US Virgin Islands.

In Mexico, residents are cleaning up from flooding and wind damage, caused by Hurricane Karl, which killed at least seven people, after it came ashore Friday. Many people complain they've received little support from authorities.

World powers to tackle climate amid skepticism

NEW YORK, 20 Sept—The 17 nations responsible for 80 percent of carbon emissions blamed for global warming will seek to unblock stalled climate negotiations this week but analysts expect little progress. The two-day Major Economies Forum on Energy and Climate kicks off Monday and will include top government envoys, including US special envoy for climate change Todd Stern. US President Barack Obama launched the meetings to facilitate climate talks in the wake of last year's disappointing United Nations conference in Copenhagen.

The successor conference to the Copenhagen meet is set for this November in Cancun, Mexico.

"I don't think anyone is expecting any major announcement," said Michael Levi, an analyst with the Council on Foreign Relations.—Internet

NEW YORK, 20 Sept—Call it Mother Earth if you like, but "Little Brother" might be a more appropriate nickname for our messy, squirmy and unpredictable planet.

A night with the moon: skywatchers savor lunar views in global event

MOFFETT FIELD, 20 Sept—At first it seemed like rain would spoil everything. But despite early threats of foul weather, the clouds parted right on time and 8-year-old Alexandra Chin—along with hundreds of other skywatchers—took a long, deep look at the moon on Saturday. "It looks even closer when you get to see the craters," Alexandra said.

Chin and her family were just a few of the 500 people who turned out here at NASA's Ames Research Centre to peer through telescopes, picnic on the grass and listen to talks about the moon during the first International Observe the Moon Night, a global skywatching event to spur public interest in the moon with almost 400 venues scheduled in 30 different countries. "This is fantastic," said Sandra Chin, Alexandra's mother. She had brought her three children to the Ames centre from nearby Foster City to see the moon. "The kids are amazed. They're very surprised that they can see planets, not just the moon." Alexandra and her siblings observed the moon through one of the 25 or so telescopes set up by amateur astronomers on a big patch of grass. At Ames, in the heart of Silicon Valley, clouds hung around for much of the afternoon, threatening to cast a pall over the moon and the event. But the sky cleared around dusk, yielding brilliant views of the moon, Jupiter and Venus that were only occasionally spoiled by a white Farmers Insurance blimp cruising overhead.—Internet

Facebook denies plans to build its own phone

LOS ANGELES, 20 Sept—Social networking website Facebook said on Sunday it is pushing deeper into the mobile phones sector, but denied an Internet report that it will build its own phone.

Privately held Facebook has more than 500 million users worldwide and the company already has applications on a number of mobile phones that tie into its social networking website. But Jaime Schopflin, a spokesman for Facebook, said the privately held company "is not building a phone." Facebook's current projects include "deeper integrations with some manufacturers," he said. TechCrunch.com said Facebook wants to integrate deeply into the contacts list and core functions of a mobile phone, which it can only do if it controls the phone's operating system. Facebook, for its part, cited Facebook Connect, a service to allow members to log onto third-party websites, for Apple Inc's iPhone, and contact syncing on its iPhone application as projects it has already undertaken.—Reuters

Scientists ID 5 gene variants linked to ovarian cancer

DUKE, 20 Sept— New genetic variants linked to ovarian cancer risk have been identified by an international consortium of scientists.

The researchers analyzed the DNA of more than 10,000 women with ovarian cancer and more than 13,000 women without the disease. They found five genetic variants in regions of the genome (chromosomes 2, 3, 8, 17 and 19) associated with ovarian cancer risk.

Four out of five of these variants were more common in women who had serous ovarian cancer, the most common and aggressive form of the disease.

"These latest findings raise the possibility that in the future, women in the general population who are at the greatest risk of developing ovarian cancer because they carry these newly discovered DNA variants can be identified and given closer surveillance to look for early signs of ovarian cancer when it is most treatable," Dr Andrew Berchuck, head of the steering committee of the international Ovarian Cancer Association Consortium, said in a Duke University Medical Center news release.—Internet

Gene study adds to research of breast cancer risk

WASHINGTON, 20 Sept—Newly identified gene mutations may affect breast cancer risk in some women, an international team of researchers has found. It is already known that BRCA1 gene mutations substantially increase the risk of breast and ovarian cancer. This new study looked at whether other gene mutations might modify or alter that breast cancer risk. The Mayo Clinic-led team first studied genetic mutations in 1,193 women with BRCA1 mutations who had invasive breast cancer and 1,190 women with BRCA1 mutations who didn't have breast cancer. They then used those findings to study a larger sample of women in each group. The investigators eventually identified five gene mutations in the region of chromosome 19p13 that modify breast cancer risk in women with BRCA1 gene mutations. But these mutations do not affect ovarian cancer risk in these women, the researchers noted.

BofA may test new pricing packages for its customers

BANGALORE, 20 Sept— Bank of America Corp (BAC.N) plans to test different pricing packages in a bid to recover some of the $4.3 billion in revenue it expects to lose from new restrictions on bank and credit card fees, the Financial Times said.

The largest US retail bank may create a tiered price system that rewards its best customers for maintaining a minimum current account balance, using credit cards a certain number of times per month, or conducting all banking transactions

Customers who do not adhere to certain rules will be charged a higher fee, the newspaper said.

"We are not guaranteeing that we will recover all of the revenue lost as a result of the new regulations, but over several years we think we will get back a good share," Joe Price, head of BofA's consumer bank, told the paper. ### Nissan to double China capacity to tap hot market

ZHENGZHOU, 20 Sept—Japan's Nissan Motor Co Ltd (7201.T) plans to double its capacity in China to 1.2 million units by 2012, as it aims for a 10 percent share of the world's biggest auto market, its top executive said on Monday.

The new plan is 20 percent above Nissan's earlier production target, underscoring the car maker's strong interest in China, which has been a major bright spot for many automakers as the global industry struggles to recover from a steep downturn.

Nissan, 44 percent held by France's Renault SA (RENA.PA), runs an auto venture with Dongfeng Motor Group Co Ltd (0489.HK), which on Monday announced the opening of its first sport utility vehicle (SUV) plant in the central Chinese City of Zhengzhou. Separately, Nissan-Renault has no plan to buy shares in General Motor's (GM.UL) upcoming initial public offering, Chief Executive Carlos Ghosn told Reuters on the sidelines of the opening ceremony for its new SUV plant.

Ghosn also told reporters that Nissan was expanding its other two production bases in China. SINGAPORE, 20 Sept—Oil prices hovered below $74 a barrel Monday in Asia as traders look to indicators on the US economy and crude inventories for clues about the strength of demand. Oil has traded in the $70s for most of the past year as strong demand from commodities in emerging economies is offset by a sluggish recovery in developed countries. In day-to-day trading, oil prices often follow stock markets and currencies as crude investors look for guidance on overall investor sentiment.

KATHMANDU, 20 Sept—At least 19 persons have died in a month and more than 7,000 have been afflicted with dengue and viral fever in Chitwan in central Nepal, The Himalayan Times daily reported on Monday.

According to Mahendra Prasad Shrestha, District Public Health Officer, nine persons have died of dengue and viral fever in Chitwan Medical College (CMC), six in Bhara tpur Medical College and four in Bharatpur Hospital since the spread of the diseases in the district in the last week of August.

He estimated that more than 7,000 others had been suffering from the diseases. According to Dr Shital Adhikari, head of Medical Department of CMC, 40 patients of dengue fever were visiting the hospital daily and at least 12 of them had test positive for dengue. The disease spreads with mosquito bite and begins with common cold and fever, he said. According to health workers, once a person is afflicted with the dengue virus, he becomes susceptible to the disease in the future too. ## Two radio stations in Mogadishu taken over by rebels MOGADISHU, 20 Sept—Two independent radio stations in Mogadishu were on Sunday taken off air and their equipment were also confiscated by rebels, station staff said.

The stations, HornAfrik Radio and Global Broadcasting Corporation (GBC) were separately raided by heavily armed fighters from the two groups of Al Shabaab and Hezbul Islam respectively. “We were ordered to switch off the radio and the management was told that the station would be under the control of Hezbul Islam,” Ahmed Abdi Hassan, a reporter with GBC told Xinhua.

Fighters from Al Shabaab group have also stormed the station building of HornAfrik radio in the insurgent stronghold of Mogadishu and forcibly taken away the FM equipment and computers in the station studio.

It was not immediately clear why the groups have raided stations in the section of the Somali capital where they control.

Neither group nor station owners has officially commented on the surprise takeover of the two independent radio stations.

One of the stations, HornAfrik, has been off the air for few days before the news of its takeover emerged on Sunday. Some reports suggest that differences between the station management have led to its closure after one side sought the intervention of fighters from Al Shabaab.

BP's spill costs reach 9.5 billion US dollars

HOUSTON, 20 Sept—British oil giant BP said Sunday its costs to clean up the massive oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico amounted to about 9.5 billion US dollars. That figure included the cost of the spill response, containment, relief well drilling, static kill and cementing, grants to the Gulf states, claims paid and federal costs, the company said in a statement.

BP in June announced an agreed package of measures, including the creation of a 20 billion-dollar escrow account to satisfy certain obligations arising from the oil and gas spill.

Meanwhile, the company said it has paid hundreds of millions of dollars in claims for damages to Gulf Coast residents.

Village becomes lab for curing Africa's problems

DERTU, 20 Sept—This village of straw huts sits on a sea of sand 100 kilometres (60 miles) from the nearest paved road. Camels and girls with jerrycans crowd around the watering holes. There's little electricity and not a single TV.

But on the edge of Dertu stands a shimmering sign of progress—a new cell phone tower. And that means farmers no longer have to travel for hours to learn the latest market prices; they can get them by text message.

It's one of many innovations that have come to some 6,000 people in eastern Kenya and to 13 other such villages scattered around 10 countries in sub-Saharan Africa. They are called Millennium Villages, designed to show how aid and smart, simple technology can advance the UN's Millennium Development Goals of dramatically reducing global poverty and boosting education, gender equality and health by 2015.

The UN is hosting a summit in New York starting Monday to review progress since the goals were set 10 years ago.

About 70 percent of Dertu's people earn less than $1 a day, and most depend on food aid. The two-room hotel charges $1.25 a night. Generators and solar energy provide some basic needs, like charging cell phones, but the school's nine donated computers aren't yet connected to the Internet.

Not surprisingly, the advent of Millennium Village status four years ago generated exaggerated expectations, and now some villagers feel disappointed. There is also sharp debate between supporters and detractors about whether the idea can be "scaled up" into sweeping solutions for the world's poorest region.—Internet

File photo shows children studying under a tree in a makeshift settlement outside the village of Dertu in northeastern Kenya. Dertu looks no different from thousands of villages that dot the impoverished landscape of sub-Saharan Africa, except for the cell phone tower that keeps it in touch with the outside world. This is one of 14 'Millennium Villages' envisioned as launch pads for a mass leap out of poverty, one of the targets which the UN set itself a decade ago, and which will be reviewed at a summit opening on 20 Sept, 2010, in New York.

Dutch arrest alleged UK terror suspect at airport

AMSTERDAM, 20 Sept—Dutch police on Sunday arrested a British man of Somali ancestry at Amsterdam's Schiphol airport for possible links to a terrorist group, a spokesman for the Dutch prosecutors said.

The man was arrested after flying in from Liverpool, England, and before he flew out to Uganda, prosecutors' spokesman Evert Boerstra said, without specifying what terror group was involved. His name and age have not been released.

"He was arrested on the tip-off from British authorities," Boerstra said.

Dutch state broadcaster NOS reported that the suspect is allegedly linked to Somalia's most dangerous militant group, al-Shabab, which has claimed responsibility for suicide bombing attacks at UN facilities and other targets, including July attacks in Uganda's capital during the World Cup final that killed 76 people.

Al-Shabab said those blasts were in retaliation for civilian deaths caused by African Union troops in the Somali capital, Mogadishu, and the group has called for Uganda to withdraw its peacekeeping forces from Somalia.—Internet

Landslides, monsoon floods kill 47 in north India

LUCKNOW, 20 Sept—Heavy monsoon rains and landslides swept the hilly areas of northern India over the weekend, killing at least 47 people, officials said Monday.

Twenty-four people died Sunday as falling boulders crushed their homes in three villages in Almorah district in Uttarakhand state, said Prashant Kumar Tamta, a state government spokesman.

Another 23 people were either swept away by floodwaters or died when homes collapsed in landslides in Pitthoragarh, Champawat and Uttarkashi regions of state Saturday and Sunday, Tamta said. Rains continued to lash the region on Monday, threatening dozens of villages near Tehri Dam whose water level was nearing the danger level.

The area is 250 miles (400 kilometres) southwest of Lucknow, the capital of Uttar Pradesh state.

20 dead in India train crash

BHOPAL, 20 Sept—Two trains collided in bad weather in central India on Monday in an early morning accident that left 20 dead and dozens injured, railway and police officials said.

The crash occurred in the Shivpuri District of Madhya Pradesh, about 350 kilometres (220 miles) from state capital Bhopal, when a goods train smashed into a passenger train waiting at a station in heavy rain.

"So far 20 people have been found dead and as many as 50 injured," local railway manager Ghanshyam Singh told AFP. "Relief operations are on while the injured are being admitted to nearby hospitals."

Television pictures showed several badly damaged carriages, one of which had been lifted up off the tracks by the force of the accident. A rescuer could be seen cutting into the mangled steel with a blowtorch. India's state-run railway system—still the main form of long-distance travel despite fierce competition from new private airlines—carries 18.5 million people daily.

There are hundreds of incidents on the railways every year, with two major crashes this year.

In May, nearly 150 people were killed when a Mumbai-bound high-speed passenger express from Kolkata veered off the tracks into the path of an

On Friday, a boat carrying mostly schoolchildren capsized in a flooded river near Faizabad, a town in Uttar Pradesh state, drowning 15 people, said Surendra Srivastava, a police spokesman. The annual monsoon season from June to October brings rains that are vital to agriculture in India. However, monsoon rains take a heavy human toll in South Asia every year.

Minywa River Water Pumping Station improves ...

(from page 16) farmers were educated about advanced agricultural methods; that they launched a pilot summer paddy plantation of 50 acres; that the region's paddy sown acreage and per acre paddy yield were increasing thanks to all-round assistance provided the whole season by the township agricultural committee; that up to 1988, food sufficiency of Yesagyo Township was only 15 per cent; that in its time, the Tatmadaw government had built five dams and seven river water pumping stations in the township; and that as a result, the township's food security increased to 59.93 per cent in 2009-2010.

Staff Officer U San Kyaw Win, Staff Officer of Minywa River Water Pumping Station, three furlongs from Hsinbyushin Bridge on the road to Mandalay, said that the project started in 2000-

2001 and was completed in 2003-2004; that the water source for the project was the river Chindwin; and that the project benefited some 3000 acres of farmlands.

Staff Officer U Khin Maung Htwe of the township Settlements and Land Records Department said that the region had sandy soil; and that the township's monsoon paddy sown acreage was 2000 in 2009-2010 as against only 503 in 2004-2005.

On our way to paddy fields along the main canal, Manager U Than Sein of the township Myanmar Agriculture Service said that unlike in the past, the township could grow paddy thanks to the river water pumping station built in compliance of the guidance of the Head of State; that the soil of the township was not fertile, and so they were seeking all possible ways to boost agricultural production; that in recognition of the government's goodwill, local farmers were working hard in their farming; that the region's soil would get fertile because a lot of silt came with the water pumped from the river; and that the paddy fields were hopeful of becoming productive farmlands in the near future.

So, it is fair to say that Minywa River Water Pumping Station is a force behind contribution to the region's economic growth and boosting agricultural production.

Residents desert Delhi ahead of Commonwealth Games

NEW DELHI, 20 Sept— With the Commonwealth Games just two weeks away, many in New Delhi are in no mood for celebration, with grumpy residents set to jet off in their droves rather than stay home to enjoy the spectacle.

All schools and colleges and a few government offices have been ordered to close for the duration of the 3 to 14 October event in a bid to reduce congestion on the city's already overloaded roads.

The opportunity to take holidays has been eagerly seized by middle class Delhiites, many of whom see the unpopular games as a symbol of excess, corruption and public incompetence.

The daily English language newspapers are filled with advertisements from travel agents offering "Commonwealth Escape Packages" to Thailand, Malaysia or Europe.

"We've seen a 60-70 percent rise in bookings," said Pratima Thakar, a senior manager for the makemytrip.com online travel agency. "Clients have

Air Zimbabwe wants two new Airbus planes

HARARE, 20 Sept— Air Zimbabwe, wants to buy two Airbus A340 planes for about 400 million dollars, state media said Sunday.

"The country is expected to take delivery of the aircraft soon and operational modalities have already been completed," said the government mouthpiece Sunday Mail, quoting an unnamed source.

"Staff, including engineering experts that had been sent for training in Germany, is now returning, but it should be noted that Airbus is prepared to send some of the crew to be attached to the planes for a two-year period," it said. The paper said the plans would cost a total of 400 million dollars, but Air Zimbabwe chairman Jonathan Kadzura said he was not aware of the order. "I have also heard about it, but to be frank, I am not aware of it," Kadzura told the paper. But the report was likely to inflame tensions with the embattled airline's pilots, who went on strike on 8 September saying they have not been paid their full salaries.

ZHENGZHOU, 20 Sept—More than 120 renowned Chinese archaeologists on Sunday agreed that an ancient tomb belonged to Cao Cao, a cunning general and ruler who lived some 1,800 years ago, amid doubts about its authenticity. LONDON, 20 Sept — More than 600,000 plant species have been deleted from the dictionary of life after the most comprehensive assessment carried out by scientists. For centuries, botanists from different parts of the world have been collecting and naming "new" plants without realising that many were in fact the same. The humble tomato boasts 790 different names, for example, while there are 600 different monikers for the oak tree and its varieties.

The result was a list of more than 1 million flowering plant species. Although experts have long known that it included many duplicates, no one was sure how many. Later this year, the study

Woman bags 1,025-pound alligator in SC lake

A Massachusetts woman has a remarkable souvenir from South Carolina. Maryellen Mara-Christian bagged a 13 1/2-foot, 1,025-pound alligator in Lake Moultrie. Mara-Christian said Friday that she is an experienced hunter, but this was her first gator.

The 48-year-old former bank marketing officer from Fitchburg, Mass., was hunting Wednesday with her husband, who is a firefighter and a part-time hunting guide. It took about two hours to secure the gator before they could shoot it.

The .22-caliber gun they used wasn't powerful enough to put the animal down, so Mara-Christian used a knife to sever the alligator's spinal cord.

Meat processor Steve Drummond said the gator had so much fat that only about 40 pounds was usable meat. He will stuff the animal for Mara-Christian to display.

British grandmother wants cucumber record

A grandmother in Britain grew two huge cucumbers but was in a pickle when the largest decomposed before Guinness World Records could verify its size.

Clare Pearce's largest cucumber was at least 47 inches long; Frank Dimmock of Thame, in Oxfordshire, set the current Guinness cucumber record of just over 41 inches more than two years ago, London's Sunday Telegraph reported.

However, Pearce's smaller cucumber, at 42 inches, could set a new record if its size can be verified before it decomposes, the newspaper said.

Pearce, 78, said she didn't do anything special to grow the vegetables.

"I've never grown cucumbers before, but I knew it was massive. My daughter contacted the Guinness World Records but apparently we needed a horticulturist to verify it, and we didn't know one," Pearce said.

NH chicken's painting auctioned on eBay

It's not Picasso but a New Hampshire woman hopes a piece of art painted by a chicken will raise money to rebuild a playground. The 8.5-by-10-inch painting called "Feathered Fire-works" is being auctioned on eBay.

Wendy Thomas of Merrimack says she created the piece by dipping the chicken's feet in paint then placing the hen on canvas.

WMUR-TV said Thursday that bidding started at $9.99. The proceeds will help rebuild the Kids Kove playground in Merrimack.

Kitten survives 70-mile drive under truck

A Washington state man says a 6-week-old kitten with a bad leg made a 70-mile trip hanging onto the undercarriage of his truck and lived to meow about it.

"I never knew she was there till I heard the faintest, tiniest meowing," Rod Thomas told The Wenatchee World Sunday. "It was a real surprise."

Thomas, 45, was on his way to a morning sales trip from East Wenatchee to Moses Lake when a bird flew into the path of his Ford F-150 pickup. He says he didn't see the bird's remains on the highway and decided to take a look when he got to his destination.

At Moses Lake Thomas checked the grill and although he didn't find the dead bird he noticed a thin, furry tail sticking out from behind the skid-plate protecting the truck's transmission, the newspaper reported.

"I gently tugged on it," Thomas said. "It pulled away, was gone for a second, and then a blur, then this little fuzzy head peeks out."

It took five minutes for Thomas and his sales associates to coax the kitten out. "She was spooked, that's for sure, but we got the poor thing out and made a place for her in the back of the pickup," he said. Thomas is allergic to cats but may keep "Lucky," as the kitten has been dubbed, as a barn mouser.

Ancelotti's joy tempered by bigger tests ahead

LONDON, 20 Sept — Carlo Ancelotti admits the true test of his Chelsea side lies ahead after the Blues defeated Blackpool 4-0 to extend their perfect start to the season.

Two goals from Florent Malouda and strikes from Salomon Kalou and Didier Drogba handed Chelsea a fifth successive Premier League victory four days after they had opened their Champions League campaign with a 4-1 win over MSK Zilina.

So far the season could hardly have gone any better for Chelsea, although the manager concedes the fixture list — Chelsea have so far faced only teams expected to feature in the bottom half of the table — has meant they

Mourinho a frustrated figure despite Real form

MADRID, 20 Sept — Jose Mourinho's positive start to the season at the helm of Real Madrid has left the charismatic Portuguese coach throwing water bottles around the dug-out in frustration.

Real have two wins and a draw in the Spanish league and have won their Champions League opener in midweek, but Mourinho is far from happy with the fixtures list, or being denied the chance to help his native Portugal.

Mourinho watched Real grind out a fortunate 2-1 win at Real Sociedad on Saturday to make it seven points from nine in the league. So far, Real are unbeaten under Mourinho.

Although happy with the win, Mourinho's temper got the better of him in the closing stages of the match and he was seen throwing a water bottle at the glass cover in the dug-out as Real threatened to concede a second equaliser.

Iranian ambassador sees great potential for Iran-China co-op

BEIJING, 20 Sept—Iran and China, with different economic advantages, could complement each other in many areas, the Iranian ambassador in China has told Xinhua.

In an interview with Xinhua late Sunday, Ambassador Mahdi Safari said there was great potential for Iran-China cooperation.

"The relations between Iran and China went back to more than 2,000 years. The two nations got to know each other, especially through the Silk Road," he said, referring to the ancient route of commerce and trade, which starts from China and makes its way westward to reach as far as the Mediterranean region.

"The two countries did not have (common) border, but the relations came through trade and commerce," said Safari, a senior Iranian diplomat who had been one of Iran's deputy foreign ministers before he took office as Iranian ambassador to China earlier this year.

Safari said Iran and China have already enjoyed good relations in various areas, adding that he would try to sustain the relationship and boost it to a "fantastic" level.
