Choose good and able persons

Multiparty democracy general election will be held on a grand scale. It will go down in the annals of Myanmar history. The people will march on toward the new democratic nation with democracy administration by choosing candidates with nationalistic spirit.

An election is important for the future of the nation and the people. Casting votes in the election is fundamental rights and duty of a citizen. The people eligible for casting votes are to choose the good and able persons by effectively enjoying rights of citizen.

Casting votes in the election is to be done without fail in transition process to a democratic nation. People can enjoy democratic right by choosing candidates on their behalf to serve the interest of the State. As democracy is a system to be realized through concerted efforts of the people, all the people are to join hands in practicing democracy.

The upcoming election is the first step to shape the nation into democratic one. In this case, the ballots of the people are the most important in democratization process. Thus, all the people are to cast votes in order to place right persons in right places with farsightedness.

The respective election commissions have made systematic arrangements to see that the election is free and fair in all aspects. The people have the opportunity to freely vote for parties and candidates of their choice. Political parties and candidates have been allowed to take part in the election and to canvass for the votes in line with the respective rules and regulations.

The upcoming election is the threshold for emergence of a democratic nation. Thus, all the voter people are to go to polling stations for casting votes for the candidates who will serve the interests of the nation and the people with genuine goodwill.

World Bank raises China growth outlook

BEIJING, 5 Nov—China's rapid growth is easing to a manageable pace and Beijing can do more to reconfigure its economy to promote domestic consumption and reduce reliance on trade, the World Bank said Wednesday.

Inflation that has risen steadily this year should level off and is unlikely to be a serious problem, the bank said in a quarterly China outlook.

The Washington-based bank raised its 2010 growth forecast from 9.5 percent to 10 percent and said the expansion should slow to 8.7 percent next year.

Growth eased to 9.6 percent in the three months ending in September, down from 10.3 percent the previous quarter, as the government imposed lending and investment curbs.

"We think that coming from this very strong growth, China should be able to ease into a more sustainable growth rate in the long term," said the report's main author, Louis Kuijs, at a news conference.

The outlook reflects China's status as the first major economy to rebound from the global crisis on the strength of a flood of stimulus spending and bank lending. While Washington and others are trying to shore up growth, Beijing faces the challenge of cooling inflation and restoring normal conditions.

Rocket blows up in police vehicle, kills four

BAGHDAD, 5 Nov—A rocket confiscated by authorities blew up in the back of a police pickup truck in northern Iraq on Thursday, killing four people. Police and hospital officials also said two people died in a roadside bomb explosion west of Baghdad. The deaths come just days after the Iraqi capital was hit by a series of horrific attacks that claimed more than 150 lives.

At least 91 people died Tuesday night in a string of bombings in the city's predominantly Shiite Districts while 58 died in a four-hour siege of a Baghdad church during Sunday Mass. Iraq's Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki strongly condemned the assault on the Catholic church in downtown Baghdad, calling it an "evil terrorist attack that targeted our Christian brothers."

CARACAS, 5 Nov—Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez and Colombian counterpart Juan Manuel Santos agreed Tuesday to strengthen ties through energy projects as they sought to improve relations and leave behind recent bitter disputes. They agreed to resurrect plans for a natural gas pipeline stretching from Venezuela to Central America and also revived a proposal to build an oil pipeline from Venezuela's oil fields to Colombia's Pacific coast.

Cuba says all 68 on board died in plane crash

HAVANA, 5 Nov—All 68 people on board an Aero Caribbean plane were killed when it crashed in mountainous central Cuba on Thursday after issuing an emergency call, a Cuban Government website said on Friday.

"There were no survivors in airline accident," www.cubadebate.cu said in a headline that topped a list of the passengers and crew on the ill-fated plane.

The Civil Aeronautics Agency said there were 40 Cubans on board, including seven crew members, and 28 foreigners. The foreigners came from 10 countries.

Costa Rica landslide kills 20 people

SAN JOSE, 5 Nov—A landslide caused by heavy rain killed 20 people in Costa Rica on Thursday as President Laura Chinchilla considered declaring a national emergency to help the coffee-growing nation deal with widespread flooding. The National Emergency Commission said 15 people remained missing after rains overnight loosened a swathe of Cerro Pico Blanco, a mountain popular with hikers and rock climbers, causing the mudslide that buried poorly constructed houses. Chinchilla told a conference earlier on Thursday the disaster was one of the worst the Central American nation had confronted. "It has been a great national tragedy," she said.

Rescuers searched for survivors in San Antonio de Escazu, where shanty homes are mixed in with stately dwellings belonging to foreigners drawn to its trails and wooded areas. Over 1,300 people in the capital and along Costa Rica's Pacific coast were moved to shelters to flee the flooding prompted by rains pelting the country this week.—MNA/Reuters

Report says Arab world faces worsening water crisis

BEIRUT, 5 Nov—The Arab world, one of the driest regions on the planet, will tip into severe water scarcity as early as 2015, a report issued on Thursday predicts. By then, Arabs will have to survive on less than 500 cubic metres of water a year each, or below a tenth of the world average of more than 6,000 cubic metres per capita, said the report by the Arab Forum for Environment and Development (AFED).

"The Arab world is already living a water crisis that will only get worse with inaction," the report says, adding per capita supply has plunged to only a quarter of its 1960 level. Rapid population growth will further stress water resources. According to UN projections, the Arabs, who now number almost 360 million, will multiply to nearly 600 million by 2050. Climate change will aggravate matters. By the end of this century, Arab countries may experience a 25 percent drop in precipitation and a 25 percent increase in evaporation rates, according to climate change models cited in the report.

"As a result, rain-fed agriculture will be threatened, with average yields estimated to decline by 20 percent," it says. Thirteen Arab countries are among the world's 19 most water-scarce nations. People in eight Arab countries already have to make do with less than 200 cubic metres a year each.

World stocks gain as Fed word on stimulus awaited

BANGKOK, 5 Nov—World stocks were mostly higher Wednesday as markets digested news that Republicans gained control of the House in midterm US elections and attention refocused on the Federal Reserve's plans to stimulate the world's biggest economy.

Oil prices rose above $84 a barrel amid expectations the Fed's upcoming announcement could further weaken the dollar and boost demand for crude.

In currencies, the dollar fell against the yen and the euro.

European bourses rose in early trading. Britain's FTSE 100 was up less than 0.1 percent to 5,759.42. France's CAC-40 was up 0.3 percent to 3,875.82, and Germany's DAX rose 0.1 percent to 6,661.46.

Stock market futures in the United States were little changed as election results streamed in. Dow futures were down less than 0.1 percent to 11,145. Standard and Poor's 500 Index, the market index that most professional investors follow, was down 0.5 point, or less than 0.1 percent, at 1,192.20.

Among Asian shares closing higher was Hong Kong's Hang Seng index, which climbed 2 percent to 24,144.67.

South Korea's Kospi rose 1 percent to 1,935.97 and Australia's S&P/ASX 200 climbed 0.5 percent to 4,722.6.

Is GM really worth as much as Ford right now?

DETROIT, 5 Nov—If investors pay what General Motors hopes to get for its stock in a planned IPO, they'll have to buy the logic that the company's stock-market value should be similar to its closest competitor, Ford Motor Co. But Ford is making far more money these days and its US market share is rising while GM's is falling and its new management team has little auto industry experience.

Ford's market value — calculated by multiplying its current share price by the total number of shares outstanding — is almost $50 billion.

A GM logo is seen at a General Motors used car dealership at the Troy Motor Mall August 2010. INTERNET

GM's total would be close to that if it is successful in selling a portion of its shares in an initial public offering later this month somewhere between $26 and $29 a share. That price range was confirmed Monday by three people briefed on the sale who asked not to be named because a formal announcement has not yet been made.

But is GM really worth as much as Ford right now? Ford has been working on a rebuilding plan for five years. It earned $1.7 billion in the third quarter, its sixth consecutive quarterly profit. It also managed through the financial downturn without taking taxpayer money, a big plus in the minds of American car buyers who increasingly are choosing its new cars and trucks.

General Motors Co is still in the early stages of its restructuring, having emerged from bankruptcy protection just 16 months ago. The company has had four CEOs in less than two years, and still must find a way to pay back more than $50 billion in taxpayer money it took to help survive the economic downturn. It has only posted profits in the last two quarters, totaling $2.2 billion.

BMW astonishes with 11-fold jump in quarterly profit

FRANKFURT, 5 Nov—The world's leading luxury car maker, BMW, reported a huge leap in third-quarter net profit on Wednesday as recovering global markets snapped up its saloons (sedans) and sports utility vehicles.

BMW said its net profit leapt 11-fold from the equivalent figure last year, to 874 million euros (1.2 billion dollars), and stood by its sales target for this year and profitability targets for 2012.

"Strong demand for our models, a high-value model mix and the group's strong sales position on international automobile markets resulted in above-average earnings," a statement said.

Analysts polled by Dow Jones Newswires had forecast a slightly more modest gain of 914 percent to 791 million euros.

Sales in the quarter rose by 35.6 percent to 15.9 billion euros from 11.76 billion, exceeding the 14.27 billion euros expected by analysts.

US jobless claims up, productivity caps inflation

WASHINGTON, 5 Nov—New US claims for jobless aid rose last week and a strong rebound in productivity in the third quarter showed employers wringing more output from current workers rather than hiring.

US business productivity rose at a stronger-than-expected 1.9 percent annual rate, the Labour Department said on Thursday, leading to a surprise dip in unit labor costs, a closely watched gauge of inflation pressure.

The data came a day after the Federal Reserve launched a programme to buy an additional 600 billion US dollars worth of government bonds out of concern over lofty unemployment and the risk slowing inflation could lead to a downward price spiral that could shackle the economy.

"The big picture is that firms are trying to squeeze every ounce out of the workers they have and this is one reason they feel no need to hire," said Cary Leahey, an economist at Decision Economics in New York.

The government's closely watched monthly employment report, to be released on Friday, is expected to show anemic jobs growth in October.

Battle begins in business-software square-off

OAKLAND, 5 Nov—A battle between two of the world's biggest makers of business software hinges on the value of a trove of millions of stolen customer-support documents.

In its first pitch to a federal jury Tuesday, Oracle Corp said archival SAP AG's plundering of password-protected Oracle websites dealt a $2 billion blow to Oracle's business.

The attacks on Oracle's resources at times seemed ham-handed.

Oracle said an SAP subsidiary, TomorrowNow, created bogus accounts to get access to walled-off Oracle websites. Once inside, Oracle said, TomorrowNow deployed computer programmes that powered through page after page of support documents, "scraping" and saving the contents of those pages as they went.

It also forecast "a significant increase in group pre-tax earnings for the full year 2010," but did not provide a detailed figure.

Google was in 'significant breach' of data law

LONDON, 5 Nov—Google violated Britain's data protection laws when its Street View mapping service recorded data from private wireless networks, the country's information commissioners said Wednesday.

The American Internet search giant will escape any fines, however, so long as it pledges not to do it again.

Google Inc drew international outrage after it emerged that its Street View cars, which take street-level photographs to illustrate the company's popular mapping service, had also been scooping up e-mails, Internet addresses and passwords from unencrypted wireless networks. Scotland Yard recently said it would not launch a criminal inquiry into the breach, which the company has described as inadvertent.

Information Commissioner Christopher Graham was recently given the power to levy fines up to 500,000 pounds (about $800,000) for serious violations, but he said in a statement that the "most appropriate and proportionate regulatory action" would be to seek a written assurance from Google that the breach would not be repeated and conduct an audit of the company's data protection practices.

The company based in Mountainview, California said in a statement that it "was profoundly sorry" for the breach, adding that it had since worked to improve its internal controls.

"We did not want this data, have never used any of it on our products and services, and have sought to delete it as quickly as possible," the statement said.

WASHINGTON, 5 Nov—The Supreme Court on Tuesday expressed sympathy for a California law that aims to keep children from buying ultra-violent video games in which players maim, kill or sexually assault images of people.

But justices seemed closely split on whether the restrictions are constitutional.

The high court has been reluctant to carve out exceptions to the First Amendment, striking down a ban on videos showing graphic violence to animals earlier this year.

California officials argue that they should be allowed to limit minors' ability to pick up violent video games on their own at retailers because of the purported damage they cause to the mental development of children. Some justices appeared to agree.

"We do not have a tradition in this country of telling children they should watch people actively hitting schoolgirls over the head with a shovel so they'll beg with mercy, being merciless and decapitating them, shooting people in the leg so they fall down," Chief Justice John Roberts said.

Kinect aims to please, but price could be a hurdle

NEW YORK, 5 Nov—Caryn Bailey, a 32-year-old blogger and mother of two, is impressed with Microsoft's new Kinect game-control system. But she already owns the Wii from rival Nintendo, and she's not ready to shell out hundreds of dollars to switch.

That's the challenge Microsoft Corp faces as it begins selling the long-awaited system on Thursday ahead of the lucrative holiday season. To succeed, Kinect will need to exude the kind of iPad-like magic that defies frugality and gets people spending to experience something new, even as they cut back elsewhere in the uncertain economy.

By all accounts, Kinect is loads of fun. The black, rectangular device, used in conjunction with Microsoft's Xbox 360 console, goes just below your TV screen and senses all the activity in the living room.

Advent Energy owners deny talks with Indian group

NEW DELHI, 5 Nov—The owners of Advent Energy denied a report Wednesday that India's state-run energy group ONGC was in talks to buy the Australian explorer as the fast-growing country seeks new fuel sources abroad.

India's Economic Times newspaper had said Oil & Natural Gas Corp (ONGC) was leading a consortium of Indian groups in talks to buy a 25-percent stake in the unlisted company in a deal that could be worth a billion dollars.

"Commentary in the media in India on formal discussions between Advent Energy Ltd and a consortium of Indian state-run energy firms, regarding talks to acquire a 25-percent stake in Advent for one billion, is incorrect," its owners said in statements.

India's growing dependence on energy imports has led the government to urge state-run groups to step up efforts to make overseas acquisitions.

However, none of the big Indian state-run groups has been able to seal a deal in the past 18 months as they suffer competition from their financially stronger Chinese rivals.—Internet

Having seen several elections, Myanmar has encountered varieties of evil consequences of elections. Myanmar had never witnessed (democratic) elections in the time of the colonialists. Chosen to the parliament were only consultant ministers to the British governor. So, it was under complete influence of foreigners. There were so many restrictions on the voting right and the right to stand for election. Therefore, such unfair elections are not put on the list of democratic elections that reflect the desire of Myanmar people.

Despite the rule of the British, Myanmar people's independence struggles picked up momentum, thus pressurizing the British governor grant permission to General Aung San at the helm of independence movements to form a consultant council (Myanmar interim government). So, the nation got closer to the goal of independence. That called for formulation of a constitution to be designed to enable the representatives elected by vote of the people to effectively exercise State's sovereign power (the power to promulgate laws in the public interest, the power to rule the country in line with those laws, and the power to put law offenders on trial). So, a constituent assembly election was convened in 1947 to coordinate independence movements and draw a constitution.

The election was held in the reign of the British government but under the aegis of General Aung San, head of the Myanmar Patriotic Army which was a household name for its fine tradition of anti-colonialist movements, anti-Fascist resistance and independence struggles. General Aung San steered the AFPFL (Anti-Fascists People's Freedom League) formed to launch attacks with massive participation of the public for independence. The entire people firmly believed that the nation would soon regain independence thanks to the leadership of General Aung San, and the strength of the AFPFL and the people in combination. Therefore, in the 1947 constituent assembly election, the people expressed massive support for all the AFPFL candidates (except seven Communist candidates) nominated by General Aung San. In the election, there were no vote rigging, murders or threats.

Myanmar regained independence on 4 January 1948, and Burma Communist Party, Pyithu Yebaw (White Yebaw) and Red Flag Communists went underground shortly thereafter. KNDO (Kayin) attempting with the abetment of the West bloc to secede from the Union, MNDO (Mon), Mujahit, and KMT (nationalist Chinese) troops that had fled from China and invaded and occupied eastern Shan State with the abetments of CIA of the US sparked multicoloured insurgency. Many members walked out of the AFPFL. After the demise of General Aung San, the AFPFL was no longer popular among the people.

In such alarming situations, the AFPFL extended its rule to 1952 by making amendments to the constitution three times, instead of holding an election due to take place in June 1949 in accordance with the provisions of the constitution. Myanmar saw a parliamentary general election in 1952, an election in 1956, and two elections held under the arrangements of the AFPFL government. Yet, pocket armies of AFPFL (Pyusawhti, militia, defence, reserve police force, and special police) committed the murder of nine men (killed in Minhla and Sitkwin), and massacre in Sitaung-aing Village, Myeik.

The election was held for three separate sessions in order that every AFPFL representative could be elected in another election if they were not elected in an election. The election was completely rigged. They dishonestly arranged the results of the election. District commissioners under the influence of AFPFL were appointed as officials for district elections. Only after being kept for many days, were the ballot papers counted. One way or another, they deterred voters who were in support of Pa-Ma-Nya-Ta (opposition) from casting votes. In the meanwhile, insurgents (Communists) made death threats to residents of villages in order that the latter would vote for Pa-Ma-Nya-Ta. The book "Towards Fair Multiparty Democracy Election" written by the chairman of the election commission Saya Che (Naingngan Gonyi Grade I) and published by Aung Sit The Publishing House, the books published by opposition party Pa-Ma-Nya-Ta, the-then newspapers and documents on the election tribunal feature all the dishonest arrangements for election results.

After the ruling AFPFL government split into many factions, Socialist Party in disguise of AFPFL was broken into two groups: Nu-Tin (Clean AFPFL) with U Nu, who was not a member of Socialist Party but who could not bear the situations of losing power at all, and Thakin Tin; and Swe-Nyein (Stable AFPFL) led by U Ba Swe and U Kyaw Nyein. They were aggressive to each other. With the intention of taking one jump ahead of their rivals, members of Clean AFPFL smuggled forces and weapons into Yangon, so the situation was on the verge of a bloodstream. Worrying that a battle between two Socialist facts was in the horizon, U Nu resigned from the party as Prime Minister on 28 October 1958, and handed power to General Ne Win to hold a free and fair election following restoration of State stability. Taking over power at a parliamentary conference, General Ne Win's Caretaker Government launched measures to restore stability, and held an election in February 1960.

At the conference of commanding officers in Yangon in 1959, General Ne Win said that the Tatmadaw government would hold a free and fair election, instructing senior military officers and high-ranking officials not to interfere in and to be neutral in the election in order that not only the people but also servicemen would be able to vote for the candidates they favoured. (read contemporary publications for more details)

Stable AFPFL, Clean AFPFL and Pa-Ma-Nya-Ta were major contenders in the election in February 1960. In the run-up to the election, U Nu of Clean AFPFL offered religious incentives in canvassing for votes. Burma Communist Party that went underground issued announcements to canvass for votes and made armed threats to many villages for Pa-Ma-Nya-Ta to come to power. About 10 military commanding officers, hard-cores Socialist Party, with attachments to Stable (Swe-Nyein) AFPFL also dishonestly arranged the election results, made threats and committed election rigging. Only when the winning party Clean AFPFL (Pa-Hta-Sa) submitted reports on dishonest arrangements to change election results by some commanding officers, did the commander-in-chief of defence services know about that. Later, the offenders were sacked from the Tatmadaw. The head of the Tatmadaw and the whole armed forces served as an upright judge, so the prime minister of Pa-Hta-Sa praised General Ne Win and the Tatmadaw (Caretaker Government) at the parliamentary session on 4 April 1960. Commanding officers, reserve police and commanding officers of special police forces who were in support of Stable AFPFL were widely slammed in the 1960 election. Bo Tet Myint, who supported Stable AFPFL, killed six people who were canvassing for votes to Clean AFPFL, which was later known as the murder of six people.

From 1974 to date, the nation saw elections for four times under the arrangements of the Revolutionary Council and the Myanmar Socialist Programme Party government. At that time, the Myanmar Socialist Programme Party served as the one party government according to the 1974 constitution approved by 90.19 percent of the voters. In the election pattern, a voter had to put his ballot for a party into the white ballot box if he was in favour of the representatives nominated by the party, or into the black ballot box if he was not. At the time, the Myanmar Socialist Programme Party was the most popular in the nation, so only the representatives it had nominated were elected. There were some objection votes. So, there were no tragedies or rigging in the election.

Myanmar's election will be free and fair

The Tatmadaw government organized the 1990 election. It did not interfere in it. The election was held in the absence of a constitution. So the election was, like the 1947 election, merely a constituent assembly designed to write a constitution. Of the 238 parties, 93 parties stood for election. The Tatmadaw assigned duties to the election commission to ensure a free and fair election.

However, such foreign radio stations as BBC, VOA, and AIR meddled in the election. They unjustly canvassed for votes. In addition, insurgents underground made armed threats to and squeezed the people to cast votes for the candidates the former favoured. Some foreign diplomats who did not honour the diplomatic ethics interfered in the election for the candidates they were in support of. Many elements launched movements as pro-democracy activities for a repeat of 8-8-1988 disturbances. The winners claimed that the election was free and fair. If in doubt, anyone can observe the tribunal records or files heard at Yangon High Court at No. 1, Pansodan Street, after the election, regarding the complaints lodged by many parties.

In the times of 1952 and 1956 elections, many people did not have national registration cards yet. Taking full advantage of that weak point, some people drew ballot papers several times by telling who they were and cast votes several times. In a case in Pinyinmana, a person was arrested with 45 ballot papers in his pocket. According to the situation, a person could put a large number of ballot papers into the ballot box. In the 1960 election, voters were checked with their national registration cards. (However, many cases of rigging could not be prevented.)

In the election held on 27 May 1990, every voter had to show their national registration cards. In it, ballot paper system was used instead of poll card system. A voter had to make a seal in the square box shown against the name of the candidates they were in favour. In some cases, seals were not clear, and in some cases, seals were too inky, which were cancelled. No one had opportunity to rig the election. When polling station hours were over, ballot papers were counted in front of the candidates. The Tatmadaw was neutral and made sure that the election was free and fair.

The referendum (2008) was held in the time of the State Peace and Development Council (Tatmadaw) government. A voter had to submit his citizenship scrutiny card to draw a ballot paper, enter a polling booth and put a tick if he favoured or a cross if he did not favour the draft constitution. Then, he had to put it into the ballot box in front of others. Before the polling station was opened, some persons who were already in the station were invited to witness that the ballot boxes were empty and set in places where the boxes were easily visible to comers. After the voting process was over, last comers were invited to a place where ballot boxes were opened and ballot papers were counted. Then, the papers were classified and put on record, put into sacks and sent to the superior election commission. Diplomats of foreign embassies in Yangon, and representatives of UN agencies were invited to the referendum for their firsthand experience. They came to know that the referendum was fair.

The reliable Election Commission in the time of the Tatmadaw government will hold the forthcoming election in consistence with the constitution and election rules on 7 November 2010. Every voter can vote freely in a polling booth. They just have to put their ballot papers into the ballot boxes in front of others. Before that, they have to fold the ballot papers in half in order that others including the returning officer cannot know for who voters have voted. Ballot boxes will be set in clearly visible places. As soon as the polling station is opened, ballot boxes will be opened and proved that they are empty. Only then, will the ballot boxes be closed. Then, voted ballot papers will be put into the boxes. When the polling station is closed at 4 pm, ballot papers will be counted in front of the candidates or their representatives. Then, ballot papers will be classified, registered and put into respective sacks. Then, signs will be put and the sacks will be sealed. If an unauthorized person approaches the site, he will be clearly visible to bystanders outside the polling station. If so, security members will debar him from advancing. And the representatives of the candidates can object such suspicious acts. Only ballot papers that carry the signature of the returning officer will be counted in order that fake ballot papers cannot be put into the ballot boxes. A law has been promulgated to prohibit anyone from canvassing for votes in the area 500 yards radius of the polling station.

On 18 October 2010, Chairman of the Union Election Commission U Thein Soe invited resident representatives of UN agencies, foreign diplomats and journalists to Nay Pyi Taw and make clarification to the voting process so that the visitors would see that the election will be free and fair. Out of pessimism and negative attitude, certain elements are claiming that they do not think that the upcoming election will be free and fair. There are so many profound evidences of elections of other countries. But, I'd rather make no comments on them because they are the concerns of the nations concerned. I am confident that upcoming Myanmar's election will be record free and fair.

Funded by FIFA, permission for construction of Football Academy (Upper Myanmar) was granted on 10-acre area next to the Sports and Physical Education Institute. One international-standard football stadium, one sports stadium, one swimming pool, one velodrome ground, one sepak takraw stadium, one weight lifting centre, one bowling alley, one shooting range and tennis courts will be constructed in the remaining area.

President of Myanmar Football Federation U Zaw Zaw gave a supplementary report on construction of the international-standard football stadium.

The construction of the National Sports Park Complex (Mandalay) is being implemented with the aim of improving Myanmar's sports standard and hosting Asian Games as well as SEA Games in the future.

The Secretary-1 said that to uplift sports standard and to host SEA Games and Asian Games, two international-standard football stadiums are being constructed in Nay Pyi Taw and Youth Training Centre (Thuwunna) is being upgraded into modern one. On completion of sports facilities in Nay Pyi Taw, Yangon and Mandalay, Myanmar will be able to host Asian Games in a classy manner. He urged the officials to mind for safety of spectators, and to systematically construct the National Sports Park Complex with full facilities.

The Secretary-1 coordinated for construction of an international-standard football stadium in Mandalay due to insufficient seating capacity at Bahtoo football ground which is currently hosting the MNL League. The Secretary-1 viewed the layout of the international-standard football stadium and gave necessary instructions.

After inspecting the sites chosen for construction of the stadiums, the Secretary-1 left the football academy for Nay Pyi Taw and arrived back here in the evening.

Plans underway to build international...

The stadium in the National Sports Park Complex (Mandalay) will be built between 68th Street and 73rd Street and between Ngushwewah Street and Thazin Street in Chanmyathazi Township in Mandalay Region.

The stadium, which will be able to hold 30,000 fans will be 16265 square metres wide running track with 294.27 square metres-wide football pitch. The height of its structure will be 23.5 metres.

Showroom, office, meeting hall, clinic, dressing room, VIP room, cafeteria, press room, bath room, mega stores, training room, library and offices for referees and coaches will compose the ground floor of the stadium.

Offices, meeting halls, coach rooms, bath room, and restrooms will be included on its first floor.

cafeteria, TV room, radio room and light and sound control room will form the second floor.

Football academy, tennis grounds, shooting range, body fitness centre, swimming pool, velodrome, archery range, weight lifting centre, sepak tekraw ground, and bowling alley will be built in the stadium.

The construction of the National Sports Park Complex (Mandalay) is being implemented with the aim of improving Myanmar's sports standard and hosting Asian Games as well as SEA Games in the future.

Mandalay currently has Ba Htoo and Aungmyay Mandalay stadiums, but both of which do not meet the seating capacity for local matches.

On completion of the park, it will be able to hold domestic games conveniently.

Civilian wounded in mine blast in Htantabin Township

NAY PYI TAW, 5 Nov— A mine planted by insurgents in Kyaukkyee Pauk Village in Htantabin Township, Bago Region exploded at 3:30 of 31 October, leaving one civilian seriously wounded.

Zaw Min Tun, who lives in Kyaukkyee Pauk Village, Htantabin Township, Bago Region, stepped on the mine near Yaukthawa Creek while searching wood with his companions.

The victim lost his right foot and was transferred to Taungoo Hospital from Htantabin Hospital. He is now receiving treatment at Taungoo Hospital.—MNA

Instructions to be followed in voting process

1. Try to know your serial number of ballot list in order to cast vote without any delay.
2. Voting process can be quick by giving your serial number of ballot list to the ballot list inspector.
3. Put a tick in the box next to the candidate and the symbol you want to choose on your ballot paper.
4. Do not sketch or write anything on your ballot paper, except putting a tick.
5. Do not sketch anything impossible to decide whether it is a tick or cross on your ballot paper.
6. Make sure that your ballot paper is not torn.
7. Put the ballot paper you have put a tick on into the ballot box concerned.

Notable points to avert having votes cancelled

Election Rule 66 (c) states that the following types of ballot papers shall be cancelled.

- (1) A ballot paper that does not have the seal of the commission
- (2) A ballot paper that does not have the signature of the returning officer
- (3) A ballot paper with more than one tick to favour more than one candidate
- (4) A ballot paper with no tick
- (5) A ballot paper with an unclear tick
- (6) A ballot paper the returning officer decides to be a fake one
- (7) A ballot paper with a mark designed to hint
- (8) A torn-up ballot paper

To amplify the provisions on cancelled votes for the knowledge of voters,

- (1) A voter must put a tick in the square box shown against the name of the candidate he favours.
- (2) If a voter puts at least two ticks or crosses in square boxes shown against candidates, the ballot paper is cancelled.
- (3) A vote with no tick is cancelled.
- (4) If a ballot paper carries only one mark in a box, but the mark is not clear enough to decide whether it is a tick or cross, it is cancelled.
- (5) However, if a vote is cast with one tick to favour only one candidate, it can be deemed to be a firm vote even if the tick is in the square box, or it passes through the line of the square box, or it is put diagonally or horizontally, or it has a bent line at its end or not.

To decide whether a ballot paper is valid or invalid is up to the returning officer. Candidates to hluttaws, their election representatives, and the representatives of a polling station are allowed to check the cancelled votes. The reason why a vote is cancelled will be put on record with the designated form.

Kenny Chesney returns to road with Zac Brown Band

NASHVILLE, 5 Nov — Kenny Chesney is returning to the road with a vengeance. Country music's top touring draw of the decade announced Thursday he will co-headline nine stadium dates next year with the Zac Brown Band, pairing two top road acts.

Chesney had sold more than a million tickets a year for eight consecutive years before taking 2010 off. He filled up his time by making two movies and completing his new album, "Hemingway's Whiskey," which debuted at No. 1 in September.

The singer admitted to feeling the lure of the road while away, but the four-time winner of entertainer of the year from both The Country Music Association and The Academy of

Applications for jobless aid rise sharply

WASHINGTON, 5 Nov — The number of people seeking jobless benefits jumped sharply last week, after two straight weeks of declines. The Labour Department said on Thursday that initial claims for unemployment aid rose by 20,000 to a seasonally adjusted 457,000 for the week ending on 30 Oct.

Wall Street analysts polled by Thomson Reuters had expected a smaller rise. The increase comes after claims fell in four of the previous five weeks. Those drops had brought claims to their lowest level since July and raised hopes the job market was improving. In stead, claims have risen back above the 450,000 level they have fluctuated around all year.

They will need to drop below 425,000 to signal sustained job gains. The weekly applications for unemployment benefits are volatile, but are considered a real-time snapshot of the job market.

They reflect the pace of layoffs and indicate whether companies are hiring. The four-week average of claims, a less volatile measure, rose by 2,000 to 456,000.

Greece: Suspect package returned, destroyed

ATHENS, 5 Nov — Bomb disposal experts destroyed a suspicious package returned by the French embassy Thursday to a delivery service in central Athens, following a spate of mail bombings that targeted embassies and European leaders.

Police said the latest package contained a small amount of explosives and was destroyed by controlled explosion. They said an erroneous return address on the package was for the Greek Orthodox Church. In Paris, French Foreign Ministry spokesman Bernard Valero confirmed the suspect package was returned by the embassy in Athens. Valero said the "conditions" by which it reached the embassy appeared suspicious but did not elaborate.

Police were also inspecting packages Thursday at a private delivery company's sorting office outside Athens. The latest incidents occurred despite a large-scale operation involving police, the post office and private mail companies to re-examine thousands of parcels.

Spanish authorities inspect 10-year-old mom's home

MADRID, 5 Nov — Spanish authorities say social workers have inspected the home of a 10-year-old Romanian girl who gave birth last week to determine whether her baby is being properly cared for. Authorities in the small southern city of Lebrija also arranged a doctor's appointment to make sure the young mother and infant are doing well.

In a statement Thursday, city officials said they are investigating when the pregnant child arrived in Spain and why she had not seen a doctor in Lebrija before showing up last week at a hospital to give birth. The birth shocked Spaniards and created an international sensation.

Authorities did not give details about the modest apartment where the 10-year-old girl is living with her mother, but the mayor of Lebrija was quoted as calling it "humble." — Internet

Struck gas line caused Boston home blast

BOSTON, 5 Nov — A utility official says a home in Boston exploded after construction crews accidentally struck a natural gas line.

Homeowner Michael Burns told reporters that no one was home Wednesday morning when the blast occurred. There were no reports of injuries, but people in about 40 homes in the neighbourhood were ordered to evacuate.

NStar spokeswoman Caroline Allen says the explosion happened after a contractor for the Boston Water and Sewer Commission who was installing a water main at an intersection in the Hyde Park neighbourhood hit the gas line. Gas was released into the home, which was flattened. There were no visible flames but a plume of smoke rose from the wreckage. — Internet Deutsche Telekom reaffirmed its underlying operating profit target for 2010 thanks in part to stronger domestic revenues and reported a 7.9-percent rise in quarterly net profit to 1.035 billion euros (1.46 billion dollars).

The group said it would make an adjusted core operating profit of 20 billion euros for the year as a whole, but its shares fell sharply in midday trading. — Internet

Sharp to launch two 3D Android Handsets

TOKYO, 5 Nov — How do you feel about the idea of a 3D display on a phone? Having to wear a pair of special glasses to be able to enjoy 3D content on a mobile phone doesn't sound very practical, but Sharp has a solution in the way of two glasses-free 3D Android handsets.

Bearing the names Galapagos 003SH and 005SH, both handsets sport 1GHz Snapdragon CPUs, Android 2.2, and a 3.8-inch 3D-capable display with 800 x 480 pixel resolution. The main difference between the two phones is the full QWERTY keyboard on the 005SH, but 003SH makes up for it with a slightly better camera, a 9.6 megapixel model capable of recording 720p video, while 005SH sports a (still formidable) 8-megapixel camera.

With 3D currently being all the rage in the world of video entertainment, the technology will inevitably start spilling into the world of smartphones, which - in today's world of handsets with large touch screens - are just as much mobile entertainment platforms as they are phones. While we don't know much about the 3D capabilities of Sharp's upcoming devices, a glasses-free 3D display sounds like the right path in the context of smartphones. — Internet

Redknapp tells rivals to keep hands off Bale

LONDON, 5 NOV—Harry Redknapp warned Europe's top clubs to keep their hands off Gareth Bale after the Tottenham winger underlined his growing reputation by inspiring a 3-1 win over Inter Milan in the Champions League.

Although Rafael van der Vaart, Peter Crouch and Roman Pavlyuchenko scored the goals that killed off the European champions at White Hart Lane on Tuesday, it was a formidable display from Bale that laid the groundwork for a night to remember for the north London club.

Bale had served emphatic notice of his prodigious talent by scoring a hat-trick in Spurs' 4-3 defeat against Inter in the San Siro two weeks ago, but Rafael Benitez's team clearly hadn't heeded the warning.

Soldado brace sets up Valencia's Rangers romp

Valencia's forward Roberto Soldado (R) celebrates his goal with Valencia's forward Ariz Aduriz.—INTERNET

MADRID, 5 NOV—Spain forward Roberto Soldado scored a brace as Valencia defeated Rangers 3-0 at the Mestalla Stadium on Tuesday to boost their chances of reaching the knockout stage of the Champions League.

Soldado, a 10-million-euro summer signing from Getafe, scored his first Champions League goals for Valencia on 32 and 69 minutes with Tino Costa adding a late third to inflict a first defeat of the season on Walter Smith's side.

"I am happy with the goals and an important Champions League win for us," said Soldado. "This (playing in the Champions League) is one of the big reasons I signed for Valencia.—Internet

Tiger Woods has one last chance for PGA Tour win

SHANGHAI, 5 NOV—No longer No 1 in the world, Tiger Woods said on Wednesday that hasn't changed how he sees himself or what he's trying to do at the HSBC Championships.

"I come to the event to win the event," Woods said. "I haven't won an event in about a year. I've gone through periods like this before in the past. In order to become No 1 in the world, I've won golf tournaments. It's something I haven't done, and it's a matter of going out there and competing and winning."

Tennis ace Djokovic cruises as Serbs savour future Cup final

BASEL, 5 NOV—Holder Novak Djokovic led the way with a 6-4, 6-2 defeat of recent training partner Ernests Gulbis as the bulk of Serbia's Davis Cup squad made it to the second round of the Swiss Indoors on Tuesday.

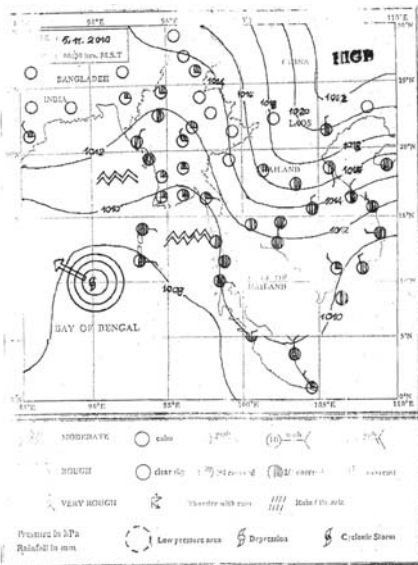

World number three Djokovic had practised last week in Geneva with the Latvian, with whom he grew up at tennis school in Munich, and used the fresh experience on court to roll to victory, his third of four in their series.

Gulbis was broken in the final game and ended his exit with a double-fault after 71 minutes and four breaks of serve.

US astronaut Scott Kelly, crew member of the mission to the International Space Station, ISS.

Astronauts cast early ballots from space station

CAPE CANAVERAL, 5 Nov—Red states. Blue states. And now voting from a weightless state.

The three Americans orbiting the planet on Election Day have cast their ballots.

Space station astronaut Scott Kelly voted Sunday via a secure e-mail system. Douglas Wheelock and Shannon Walker also voted recently 200-plus-miles up. Kelly said Tuesday it was an “honour and a privilege” to vote from the International Space Station.

As for the six shuttle astronauts headed soon to the space station, they voted back home in Houston before heading to NASA’s Florida launch site last week. Discovery is scheduled to lift off Wednesday.

Texas legislators passed a bill in 1997 allowing astronauts to vote from orbit. Space station residents have taken advantage of that many times since.

Plans underway to build international-standard football stadium in National Sports Park Complex (Mandalay) project to host Sea Games, Asian Games Secretary-1 holds discussions on implementation of the project

NAY PYI TAW, 5 Nov—Secretary-1 of the State Peace and Development Council Chairman of Myanmar National Olympic Council Thiha Thura U Tin Aung Myint Oo held a discussion about construction of an international-standard football stadium in National Sports Park Complex (Mandalay) project in Mandalay Region this morning.

The Secretary-1 together with Maj-Gen Myint Soe of the Ministry of Defence, Deputy Minister for Construction U Tint Swe and officials left here and arrived at Football Academy in Chanayethazan Township of Mandalay. They were welcomed by Chairman of Mandalay Region Peace and Development Council Commander of Central Command Brig-Gen Ye Aung, Minister for Sports Thura U Aye Myint, Mandalay Mayor U Phone Zaw Han and officials.

The sports minister explained that in accord with the instruction of the NOC to uplift the national sports, a project to construct the National Sports Park Complex (Mandalay) in upper Myanmar was drawn. A plot covering 184.94 acres of land between Thazin and Ngushewah streets, between 68th and 73rd streets in Chanmyathazi Township of Mandalay was chosen to construct the complex. Sports and Physical Education Institute (Mandalay) was opened on 50-acre plot of that ground in 2002.
