Nurture youths to become brilliant ones

Nowadays, all the countries throughout the world are trying to become modern and developed by applying their technological, financial and natural resources as well as human resources in all aspects.

Innovative measures and capability of qualified human resources are the main factors in achievement of developed nations. So, in shaping the future nation, it is necessary to nurture the new generation youths to become reliable ones for the State.

Myanmar is gaining sound foundations in political, economic and social sectors. It is our duty to build more infrastructures and create more opportunities through the power of national education. At present, the 30-year long-term national education promotion plan is under implementation.

Efforts are being made for every citizen to have easy access to basic education. Urban and rural areas are enjoying the learning opportunity on equal terms. Local youths in various regions have the opportunity to learn vocational education of their choice. Basic education schools are striving for emergence of the centres that will contribute to development of the regions.

Education does not stop in the classroom but influences day-to-day routine of the people. Teachers are to nurture students not only to become the educated but also to be outstanding persons in the human society.

Teachers out of their goodwill are to teach new generation youths to become qualified human resources. It is necessary to equip the youths with the spirit to adore and value traditional culture and customs, and nationalistic spirit. In consequence, the outstanding youths who can strive for development of human society will emerge in the new nation continuously.

Pentagon report says Afghan violence at record high

WASHINGTON, 24 Nov—The US Defence Department on Tuesday said violence in Afghanistan was at an all-time high since the nine-year-old war started, and progress made by the NATO-led forces there were limited. The assessment was made in a congressionally mandated report. It said combat incidents in Afghanistan from 1 April to 30 Sept were up 300 percent comparing with 2007 figures. It also noted a 55 percent rise over the previous quarter in “kinetic events,” including direct and indirect fire, surface-to-air fire and exploded, found or cleared roadside bombs.

The report attributes the rise to the increase in coalition and Afghan forces and their expansion into new areas, a dramatically accelerated pace of operations and a spike in incidents during the September parliamentary elections. US President Barack Obama ordered the deployment of 30,000 additional troops to Afghanistan late last year, but even with the new troops influx, the Pentagon report found progress across Afghanistan “uneven,” with only modest gains in security, governance and development in key areas. The report indicated the number of Afghans rating their security situation as “bad” is the highest since the nationwide survey began in September 2008.—Xinhua

Air strikes kill 20 Taliban insurgents in S Afghanistan

KABUL, 24 Nov—Two separate air strikes left 20 Taliban insurgents including eight militant commanders dead in Afghanistan’s southern restive Helmand Province, a statement of provincial administration released to media on Tuesday said.

“Several Taliban fighters had gathered in a house in Kajaki District on Sunday but international forces targeted the location by air strike that resulted in killing of Mullah Abdul Qauom Tandar a Taliban shadowy governor for Sangin District and two more commanders namely Mullah Khan Muhammad and Mullah Yunas along with 13 armed insurgents,” the statement said.—Xinhua

Explosion wounds six civilians in Afghanistan

KHOST, 24 Nov—Six civilians were injured as an explosive device went off in eastern Paktika Province 130 km away from capital Kabul on Monday, spokesman for provincial administration said Tuesday.

“The blast took place in Panda Khil village of Khirkot District yesterday as a result six innocent civilians including four children were injured,” Mukhlis Afghan told Xinhua.

Similar incident in the neighbouring Paktia Province left four civilians dead and injured two others on the same day Monday.

Civilians have been largely bearing the brunt of conflicts and militancy in Afghanistan as over 1,300 innocent non-combatants have been killed in the first six months of the year, according to officials.

Two NATO helicopters violate Pakistan’s air space

ISLAMABAD, 24 Nov — Two NATO helicopters violated Pakistan’s air space Tuesday night by flying into the country’s territorial space in the northwest tribal agency along the Pakistan-Afghanistan border area, reported local Urdu TV channel DAWN.

According to the report, the NATO helicopters flew about 400 yards into Pakistan and then flew back to Afghanistan. But Geo News, another local Urdu TV channel, reported that explosions were heard during the violation by the NATO helicopters.

Pakistani officials have neither confirmed nor denied the violation of the country’s territorial air space rights by the NATO helicopters.

It is not the first time that NATO helicopters fighting in the neighboring Afghanistan have violated the Pakistan’s territory air space. Not long ago, some NATO helicopters fired at some suspected militants’ hideouts on the Pakistani side by flying across the border from Afghanistan, killing two or three Pakistani border troops.—Xinhua

INTERNET

PARIS, 24 Nov—Scientists unveiled on Wednesday a gossamer, ghostly creature discovered in the deepest reaches of the ocean between Indonesia and the Philippines.

The squidworm, up to 9.4 centimetres (3.7 inches) in length, is far more elegant than its name would suggest.

Swimming upright, it navigates by moving two body-length rows of thin, paddle-shaped protrusions that cascade like dominoes.

Ten tentacles as long or longer than its body stick out of its head, along with six pairs of curved nuchal organs that allow the squidworm to taste and smell underwater.

Using a remotely operated submersible, a trio of marine biologists led by Karen Osborn of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in California found the previously unknown animals in the Celebes Sea at a depth of 2.8 kilometres (1.7 miles).

Imported trees deliver deadly mushrooms

VANCOUVER, 24 Nov—The roots of decorative trees being imported from East Asia have introduced the most poisonous mushroom to humans in Vancouver, British Columbia, experts say. The fungal growths known as death cap mushrooms are showing up increasingly in the coastal western province after latching onto the roots of hornbeam trees, which are planted to beautify city streets, the Vancouver Sun reported. Mushroom expert Paul Kroeger, also the vice-president of the Vancouver Mycological Society, told the newspaper the mushrooms first showed up in the city of Mission in 1997 and he has personally seen numerous other clusters of them around hornbeam trunks in Vancouver.

"It is the most deadly mushroom in the world," he said.

"They take down more people every year than any other mushroom." If eaten, the mushrooms cause stomach pains, vomiting and diarrhea, and after several days, can lead to jaundice and complete liver and kidney failure with fatal results, he said.

Statistics show 42 people were poisoned in the United States by the death cap variety of mushroom last year and three died.

He warned people who enjoy eating wild mushrooms to be careful, as the death cap variety strongly resembles the paddy straw mushroom that is commonly eaten in Southeast Asia, the newspaper said.

US funds study of flying snakes

WASHINGTON, 24 Nov—The US Department of Defence is funding research to discover how species of Asian snakes are able to glide long distances through the air, researchers say.

Researchers at Virginia Tech are studying how snakes of the genus Chrysopelea, found in Southeast Asia, India and southern China, glide without the benefit of any wings or wing like parts, The Washington Post reported Monday. The snakes undulate from side to side, almost as if slithering through the air, to glide from the tops of 200-foot tall trees to land almost 800 feet away.

"Basically they become one long wing," John Socha, a Virginia Tech researcher who has studied and filmed the snake in Asia, says. "The snake is very active in the air, and you can kind of envision it as having multiple segments that become multiple wings," he says. "The leading edge becomes the trailer and then the trailer become the leading edge."

The National Geographic Society initially sponsored Socha's research, but his most recent work and paper were funded by the Defence Advanced Research Projects Agency.—Internet

Acer unveils range of tablets

NEW YORK, 24 Nov—Acer Inc, the world's No 2 PC manufacturer, unveiled a range of tablet computers to help it compete with Apple Inc's iPad, wading into the fast growing market.

The tablet computer market is becoming crowded as more companies produce the new devices, which fall between traditional PCs and smartphones.

Chief Executive Gianfranco Lanci announced at a news conference in New York on Tuesday that the tablets would have 5-, 7-, and 10-inch screens, running on Google's Android software. A second 10-inch tablet will run on Microsoft's Windows.

The company said the WiFi-only models of the tablets would come out in April 2011, while the third-generation (3G)-capable models would arrive about a month later. The 5-inch tablet doubles as a smartphone.

Separately Tuesday, Acer's rival Dell Inc announced a new tablet that runs on Microsoft's Windows software. Acer, based in Taipei, said it was in talks with US phone carriers for 3G connectivity for its tablets.

No prices had been set for the devices, the company added.

TSA App tries to ease air travel pain

NEW YORK, 24 Nov—It won't save you from "enhanced patdowns," but an iPhone app from the TSA tries to ease the pain of air travel by offering guidance on prohibited items, security wait times and packing tips.

Called My TSA, short for Transportation Security Administration, the free app lets users fill in the blank to ask if they can bring various objects through the airport security checkpoint.

The app also lists wait times for security lines for US airports, as submitted by users, shown either as a map or a list. Users can also search for specific airports. A recent check for "pie" yielded five results, showing that under the TSA's rules solid pies can be either checked or carried on, though they may be subject to additional screening. "Turkey" was not found.

Facebook makes people more social

NEW YORK, 24 Nov—Contrary to common belief social media websites such as Facebook do not weaken personal ties, they strengthen them in unique ways for different age groups, according to a new study.

The rapid spread of Facebook, which has more than 500 million users worldwide, has prompted concerns about its negative effects, but researchers at the University of Texas have reached a different conclusion. "Our findings suggest that Facebook is not supplanting face-to-face interactions between friends, family and colleagues," said S Craig Watkins, an associate professor of radio, TV and film who headed the research team. "In fact, we believe there is sufficient evidence that social media afford opportunities for new expressions of friendship, intimacy and community."

The researchers questioned 900 college students and recent graduates about how and with whom they interact on Facebook.

More than 60 percent of Facebook users said posting status updates was among the most popular activities, followed by 60 percent who wrote comments on their profile and 49 percent who posted messages and comments to friends.

The researchers also found that although about the same number of men and women use Facebook, they do so in different ways. "Facebook brings all our different networks and social scenes together. We present ourselves in different ways, whether to friends, co-workers, or family," Watkins said.

Children who get ear infections often end up in a lot of pain and discomfort.

The American Academy of Family Physicians offers these treatment suggestions:

- * If the cause is bacterial, your pediatrician may prescribe an antibiotic. This type of drug will have no effect if the cause is viral.
- * Offer your child a pain reliever, such as acetaminophen or ibuprofen. Never give a child aspirin.
- * The pediatrician may prescribe ear drops to help relieve pain.

Health ins firms to spend more on care

WASHINGTON, 24 Nov—New US regulations require health insurance companies to spend 80 percent to 85 percent of premiums directly for patients and not overhead, officials said.

Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius says the regulation, known as the “medical loss ratio” provision of the Affordable Care Act, said healthcare reform requires insurance companies publicly report how they spend premium dollars beginning in 2011.

“These new rules are an important step to hold insurance companies accountable and increase value for consumers,” Sebelius said in a statement.

Many insurance companies spend a big chunk of consumers’ premium dollars on administrative costs such as executive salaries, overhead and marketing as well as profits, Sebelius said.

Consumers will receive more value for their premium dollar because insurance companies will be required to spend 80 percent to 85 percent of premium dollars on actual medical care and healthcare quality improvement, not administrative costs, Sebelius said.

Insurance companies that do not comply will be required to provide a rebate to their customers beginning in 2012, Sebelius said.

Health officials estimate up to 9 million Americans could be eligible for rebates starting in 2012 worth up to $1.4 billion — with an average rebate per person of about $164 in the individual market, Sebelius added.

Exercise may help prevent Alzheimer's

MILWAUKEE, 24 Nov—Those at high risk for Alzheimer's disease need to exercise, researchers at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee advise.

J Carson Smith says physical activity promotes changes in the brain that may help protect against cognitive decline, especially in those individuals who carry a high-risk gene for Alzheimer's disease.

“Our study suggests that if you are at genetic risk for Alzheimer's disease, the benefits of exercise to your brain function might be even greater than for those who do not have that genetic risk,” Smith says in a statement.

Functional magnetic resonance imaging indicated greater brain activation in exercising individuals at genetic risk for Alzheimer's disease — especially in memory-related regions of the brain — than those who exercised but were not gene carriers for the disease.

Smith and colleagues compared brain activation in four separate groups of healthy 65- to 85-years-olds. High risk individuals were those carrying the apolipoprotein E-epsilon4 allele. Smith noted evidence already associated physical activity with maintaining lifelong cognitive function. However, most of this research has been done with healthy people, without any consideration of their Alzheimer's risk level, Smith says.—Internet

Kinder Morgan files for IPO of up to $1.5 billion

Richard D Kinder, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Kinder Morgan Energy Partners LP addresses the Reuters Energy Summit in Houston. INTERNET

NEW YORK, 24 Nov—Carlyle-backed pipeline company Kinder Morgan Inc, which was taken private in a $14.6 billion management buyout in 2007, on Tuesday filed with US regulators for an initial public offering of up to $1.5 billion.

It is the latest in a string of private equity-backed portfolio companies to move to go public, such as Carlyle-backed government consulting firm Booz Allen Hamilton (BAH.N).

The window for private equity IPO exits was shut during the financial crisis but cracked open late last year. Private equity firms have a large number of companies to sell in coming years as they look to profit from buyouts done during the boom years of the last decade.

However, some have run into problems; such as Harrah's Entertainment Inc, which pulled a planned $500 million offering on Friday, citing difficult market conditions.

Some potential private equity-backed IPOs which have already filed, such as retailer Toys R Us Inc, may sit it out until next year. Investors historically have been more critical of private equity-backed companies, which typically have higher debt. Kinder Morgan, backed by Carlyle Group (CYL.UL) and Goldman Sachs Group Inc's (GS.N) buyout fund, said all of the common stock in the offering will be sold by existing investors, including Carlyle, Goldman, Highstar Capital and Riverstone Holdings.

Kinder Morgan said it would not receive any proceeds from the offering.

Goldman Sachs and Barclays Capital (BARC.L) are joint book-running managers for the offering.

Reuters reported in July that the pipeline company was preparing for the offering, citing a source familiar with the matter.—Internet

Treasury gets $11.7 billion from GM stock sale

WASHINGTON, 24 Nov—The Treasury Department says it has received $11.7 billion from the sale of 358.5 million shares of General Motors stock. Treasury announced that the net proceeds from the GM stock sold last week were delivered on Tuesday. Treasury officials said that the government could receive an additional $1.8 billion assuming the underwriters exercise options to purchase an additional 53.8 million shares of GM common stock within 30 days of the initial stock offering. The government put $49.5 billion into GM as part of its bailout of the giant automaker.

In addition, Treasury said it will receive another $2.1 billion from GM when the automaker repurchases preferred stock that was issued under the government's $700 billion Troubled Asset Relief Program. That sale is supposed to take place in December.

The $11.7 billion in net proceeds represented the amount the government received after subtracting fees paid to the banks which handled the initial public offering.—Internet

Russia to spend two bln dollars for space clean-up

Every year, the near-Earth space becomes more and more densely populated with used satellites and their debris, said the company.

“The corporation promised to clean up the space in ten years by collecting about 600 defunct satellites on the same geosynchronous orbit and sinking them into the ocean subsequently,” said Victor Sinyavsky from the company as quoted by the Interfax news agency.

The Quanshui Wetlands near downtown Dalian is threatened by property development.—INTERNET

BEIJING, 24 Nov—A patch of wetlands that lies on the route of migratory birds, near downtown Dalian, is slowly being eaten up by property development.

Zhang Xiaomin reports Xu Weiwei is a deeply worried man. And the object of his worry is the estuary wetlands near downtown Dalian, in Northeast China's Liaoning Province. "Every winter, tens of thousands of birds stop over at the mouth of the Quanshui River on their migratory route. But now, property development is devouring their resting space," says 38 year old Xu, an accountant who started a volunteers' initiative to protect the Quanshui Wetlands in 2008.

Fewer birds now stop at the once quiet wetlands, shrouded in the dust and noise kicked up by heavy trucks carrying stones to reclaim land from the sea, Xu tells China Daily.

He is strongly against the reclamation, saying wetlands are natural filters that must be protected.

They remove pollutants from water and help control floods, offer breeding and nesting areas for wildlife, and serve as migration corridors for birds, he says.

"This is an important rest area for migrating birds. They can find food here during their migration. If destroyed, the birds will have to change their migration routes," Xu continues.

Few residents in Dalian know this place, however.

Electricity fraud drastically increases in Havana

HAVANA, 24 Nov — The Cuban Capital has reported a drastic increase in electricity fraud this year, a municipal government official said on Tuesday.

More than 5,800 cases of electricity fraud have been detected in Havana in the first ten months of this year, greatly exceeding the number of over 100 cases discovered in the same period of the previous year, said Inaudis Mora, director of the Electric Union in Havana.

Under a law signed by the Council of Ministers, the violators are punished with fines of 500 pesos (20 US dollars), with their electricity supply cut off 72 hours.

If the offender relapses, the fine is 1,000 pesos (40 dollars) and a longer period of service suspension. A permanent file for electricity fraud will be opened against the offender.

According to Rolando Hernandez, an expert from the electricity company of Havana, more than 11 million megawatt-hours of electricity were recovered after the exposure of the violations.

Havana consumes a quarter of the country's energy, while the residential sector uses 50 percent of that proportion.

German economy expands 0.7% in Q3

FRANKFURT, 24 Nov—

Private and public consumption, gross investments and exports drove the continued upturn of the German economy, a detailed breakdown of the data released by the Federal Statistics Office (Destatis) showed Tuesday, adding to evidence that the economy entered the next stage of atypical recovery with increasingly self-sustainable growth.

The gross domestic product (GDP) in the third quarter of 2010 was 0.7 percent higher upon price, seasonal and calendar adjustment than in the second quarter and 3.9 percent higher on a year-to-year basis, confirming the preliminary estimate published by Destatis on 12 Nov.

Destatis reported that the economic growth was based on both domestic and foreign demand.

Domestic uses accounted for the larger share in GDP growth in the reference quarter. Household final consumption expenditure rose 0.4 percent and government final consumption expenditure increased by 1.1 percent. Gross investments grew by 1.3 percent. Foreign trade supported the upswing of the economy in the third quarter.

EU inspectors criticize Naples for new waste crisis

ROME, 24 Nov— The European Union (EU) officials on Tuesday criticized Naples' mismanagement of the waste emergency saying that the crisis had reached the same levels as in 2008.

"Two years later, the situation has changed very little," said Pia Bucella, head of the European Commission's Civil Protection body, during an inspection of the city.

Her team of EU inspectors visited several waste dumps and incinerators around Naples, urging local authorities to do more in tackling the emergency.

As over 3,000 tons of rubbish are piling on Naples' streets, Bucella complained of a lack of strategy in waste treatment and management, calling for urgent measures aimed at boosting differentiated waste disposal methods.

"Naples is covered with rubbish and it still doesn't have a plan for recycling," said Bucella.

In March the European Court of Justice ruled that the Italian state was to blame for the 2008 crisis and ordered the regional authorities to adopt effective waste management measures.—Xinhua

Sharing my elation...

Dr Win Naing

I am used to getting up at about 5 am as I walk along with my father every morning. However, the other day, I woke up at about 3 am. I could not get back to sleep. It was on 7 November 2010. Maybe, I got excited about having the opportunity to cast a ballot on the day of elections held for the first time in more than 20 years or on the day that would open a new page in Myanmar's history.

At about 6 am, I together with family members left home to cast our votes in the polling station concerned. Initially, I thought that we would be the first to vote as it was very early in the morning. But I knew I was mistaken about it only when I got to the polling station. There were a lot of people lining up. Happily, I put ticks distinctly in the boxes next to the candidates, who I thought were capable of serving the interests of our nation and people and those from our own constituency.

The US and some EU countries alike did not come to the situation they are in within a day, a month or a year. They know best how long they took and how they had to try. It would be wrong if they measured the situation of Myanmar, which is in its initial stage, with their yardstick.

I went to Japan in 1980 for further studies and obtained a PhD from Chiba University in 1989. Without pursuing my career in information technology, I worked as a personal assistant of a member of Japanese House of Representatives. Actually, I worked under a member of the House of Representatives, who became the finance minister and a member of the House of Counsellors, who became the deputy minister of defence. I think I worked in the political cycle of Japan for more than 20 years. I had to do my best for the members of those houses I was working for to win the many elections held in Japan. I also studied lots of polling stations there. Yet, it was the first time for me to get to the polling station of Myanmar, my native country, only on 7 November.

According to my experience, Myanmar's elections were free and fair as I had witnessed the volunteer staff of the polling station inspecting the right names of voters and giving out the ballot papers, the voters voting for the candidates they liked through the secret ballot system, having the ballot boxes sealed systematically and granting no permission to take photos and use mobile phones at the polling stations in order not to disturb the voters.

After the elections, I happened to read local journals and browse the foreign websites and blogs interested in Myanmar affairs. It is found that local journals and magazines have been able to express freely to a certain extent regarding the subject of politics. I feel that in comparison with the situations in 1988 and 1990, both the journalists and the people of today have freedom of speech to a certain degree, even it is not 100 percent. The people were able to speak out in the interviews carried in the private journals, saying that which party they liked, why they liked it and which party they voted for. The journals on their part carried those interviews in the framework of law.

During the elections, I had a chance to be familiar with a candidate, who upheld the motto "A hluttaw candidate is not a privileged one, but the servant of the people." He won the election getting more than 26000 votes. One of his opponents got over 1000 votes and the other, less than 10000. The three candidates respectfully vied for their ideologies with the aim of seeking the public interest. Their votes did not fall from the sky. Simultaneously counting the votes cast at the polling stations and the advance ballots was indeed fair and just. The value of an advance ballot is equivalent to that of a ballot from the polling station. They all came from the hearts of the voters.

I have seen in a local journal the remarks of some candidates who lost in the election. They remarked: "It is not strange to lose in politics. I am sorry for those favoring me because we could do nothing for them. We gained experience. We have both losers and winners in our party. Our party still has the right to exist next five years. During the period, we have to continue to work for the wellbeing of the people. We are satisfied. All the votes got were fair. In this very important time, we thank all the people for their support." Anyhow, we should respect and value both the losers and winners of the elections.

Japan's Mainichi Daily issued on 10

November carried the comments of the Thai Prime Minister as saying that a single election in 2010 cannot change the situation of Myanmar overnight; that it will have to take time; that as a neighbouring nation, Thailand will deal with the new government emerging from the elections in an open and constructive way.

An official from Vietnam who is taking the chairmanship of ASEAN, also made a comment in the same issue, saying that the 2010 elections are the first and important step towards democracy in Myanmar.

While the neighbouring countries that understand Myanmar well are saying positively about the 2010 elections, the US and some EU countries are shaming the elections in a negative way. It is regrettable that some foreign websites interested in Myanmar affairs are highlighting such criticisms on the net.

The US and some EU countries alike did not come to the situation they are in within a day, a month or a year. They know best how long they took and how they had to try. It would be wrong if they measured the situation of Myanmar, which is in its initial stage, with their yardstick.

I respect every candidate, regardless of which party they come from, holding the motto "Myanmar is Myanmar. Myanmar is the country of Myanmar citizens." I am elated by the motto.

I am also delighted to know the candidates who competed each other in the elections with mutual respect for their stances and capabilities.

I am also happy to have cast a ballot like others on 7 November on which the free and fair elections took place although the people of Myanmar have less experience in voting than the international community.

I share my elation with friends of mine at home and abroad.

Families to pay respects to Cambodia crush victims

PHNOM PENH, 24 Nov—Grieving families in Cambodia were due to pay their last respects on Wednesday to relatives among the nearly 380 victims killed in a massive stampede at a water festival in the capital. The annual three-day celebration ended in tragedy on Monday, with survivors recalling scenes of fear and panic as crowds surged on an overcrowded bridge, crushing and trampling people underfoot.

Relatives were left with a harrowing search through hospitals and makeshift morgues in the capital Phnom Penh, desperate for news of the missing.

Many were faced with the heartbreak of identifying the bodies of their loved ones.

Hundreds of families are set to hold funerals for the victims in the coming days amid a national outpouring of grief. Prime Minister Hun Sen described the disaster as Cambodia's worst tragedy since the Khmer Rouge's 1975-1979 reign of terror, which left up to a quarter of the population dead. He declared a national day of mourning on Thursday.

FDIC says list of 'problem' banks grows in Q3

WASHINGTON, 24 Nov—The number of banks on the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp's "problem" list grew over the summer, even as the industry posted solid net income and fewer loans soured. The number of troubled banks rose to 860 in the July-September quarter from 829 in the previous quarter. That's the most since 1993, during the savings and loan crisis.

The FDIC also said banks earned $14.5 billion during the third quarter.

That was a decrease from the previous quarter's result of $21.4 billion.

The FDIC said earnings fell because Bank of America Corp took a one-time hit of $10.4 billion. That was because of new limits on debit card swipe fees that retailers pay to banks. The industry's third-quarter results were well above the $2 billion that banks earned a year earlier. Banks constricted lending more modestly in the third quarter, reducing total loans and leases by $6.8 billion.—Internet

Soldiers accused of breaking into a Colorado medical marijuana dispensary and then accidentally locking themselves inside told police they planned to destroy the marijuana — not smoke or sell it. The Gazette in Colorado Springs reports a police affidavit says two of the three Fort Carson soldiers told officers they were trying to steal the marijuana so they could get rid of it.

Police say the three were arrested Saturday on second degree burglary charges after they accidentally locked themselves in the Colorado Springs dispensary during a burglary attempt.

Officers say they were on an unrelated call at a nearby business around 2 am when they heard someone banging on glass inside the dispensary.

The soldiers are 23-year old Pfc Darius Thomas, 22 year old Pvt Cory Young and 22-year-old Pfc Ramone Hollins. It was unknown Thursday if any of them had an attorney.

'Ugly Betty' actor killed mom with sword

NEW YORK, 24 Nov—An actor who once had a small part on "Ugly Betty" was charged Tuesday with stabbing his mother to death with a 3-foot sword in her home after a fight, police said.

Officers responding to a call of a family dispute found 55-year-old Yannick Brea kneeling in the bathroom of her Brooklyn apartment at about 2:20 am. She had cuts to her head and was pronounced dead at the scene, Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly said. "In a bedroom was her son with a 3-foot sword," Kelly said.

The son, Michael Brea, 31, was arrested on charges of murder and criminal possession of a weapon. He was undergoing a psychiatric evaluation at Kings County Hospital, and police didn't know if he had an attorney. No phone number was listed at the address provided by police.

Apple sells two million Beatles songs in first week on iTunes

SAN FRANCISCO, 24 Nov—More than 450,000 Beatles albums and two million individual songs were sold worldwide in the first week after the band's music went on sale on Apple Inc's iTunes online music store, US media reported on Tuesday.

In the United States, Beatles album sales totaled 119,000 units while individual digital track sales reached 1.4 million, the Billboard magazine reported on its website, citing industry sources. The best selling Beatles album in the US was "Abbey Road" and best-selling song was "Here Comes the Sun," the report said.

The Beatles catalog was available for purchase and download on iTunes for the first time on 16 Nov, ending years of negotiations between Apple, Beatles' recording label EMI and the band's management company.

Roma down Bayern after stunning comeback in Champions League

ROME, 24 Nov—Roma are on the brink of the Champions League knockout stages after coming back from a 2-0 half-time deficit to down Bayern Munich 3-2 in a thriller at the Stadio Olimpico here on Tuesday.

Hot-shot Mario Gomez took his tally to 14 goals in his last 10 games as the Germans appeared to be cruising at the break.

But Marco Borriello, Danielle De Rossi and a late Francesco Totti penalty completed a remarkable and unlikely turnaround.

The 3-2 defeat still ensured Bayern won the group as only Roma can draw level with them on points in Group E but the Germans have the better head-to-head record.—Internet

Milan edge Auxerre to reach last 16

AUXERRE, 24 Nov—AC Milan booked their place in the Champions League knockout phase after goals from Zlatan Ibrahimovic and Ronaldinho earned them a 2-0 win at an obdurate Auxerre on Tuesday.

The French side were unbeaten in their eight previous matches and they had created the match's most clear-cut chances until Ibrahimovic rifled home the winner in the 64th minute.

Laboured Arsenal must wait after Braga loss

BRAGA, 24 Nov—Arsene Wenger opted for pragmatism rather than panache on Tuesday and paid the price as his Arsenal side lost 2-0 in Braga to leave in doubt a berth in the last 16 of the Champions League.

Arsenal are hoping to reach the knockout phase for the 11th consecutive season, but they did their cause no good at all in shipping two late goals to a side they had thumped 6-0 on home turf.

Their discomfort was music to the ears of Ukraine's Shakhtar

Hendrick Motorsports shuffles lineup for three teams

CHARLOTTE, 24 Nov—Hendrick Motorsports made sweeping changes to its organization Tuesday, shuffling the lineup for every team except five-time defending champion Jimmie Johnson.

A crew chief change for slumping Dale Earnhardt Jr was not unexpected, but nobody predicted the stunning swap team owner Rick Hendrick ordered just two days after celebrating the organization's record 10th Cup championship.

Earnhardt, who has just one win through three seasons with HMS, now will be paired with crew chief Steve Letarte. He will move into the building that Letarte shares with Johnson and crew chief Chad Knaus.

Four time NASCAR champion Jeff Gordon will move out of that shop to work with crew chief Alan Gustafson. That team will be partnered with crew chief Lance McGrew and Mark Martin.

Ancelotti warning after Chelsea scrape win

LONDON, 24 Nov—Chelsea boss Carlo Ancelotti warned his side would struggle to win the Champions League if there was any repeat of their lacklustre first half performance in a 2-1 win over MSK Zilina.

Chelsea were forced to come from behind after conceding a shock early goal to the Slovakian minnows, second-half goals from Daniel Sturridge and Florent Malouda eventually clinching first place in Group F for Ancelotti's men.

The win came as welcome relief to Chelsea, who had suffered a traumatic week after consecutive Premier League defeats and lingering uncertainty about the popular Ancelotti's future at the club.

Ancelotti however insisted his side could forget about lifting the Champions League at Wembley next May if they reproduced the dismal form of the opening 45 minutes at Stamford Bridge on Tuesday.

Marseille sparkle to reach Champions League last 16

MOSCOW, 24 Nov—French champions Marseille qualified for the last 16 of the Champions League here on Tuesday with a convincing 3-0 victory over nine-time Russian champions Spartak Moscow.

Goals by French internationals Mathieu Valbuena and Loic Remy and one from Brazilian Brandao saw the 1993 champions through to the knockout stage with one match to spare.

The hosts finished the match with 10 men as Welliton was sent off in the 63rd minute for pushing over Souleymane Diawara.

While both sides can finish on the same total of points, Marseille would progress by virtue of a better head-to-head record between the two teams as they were beaten 1-0 in the reverse fixture in September.

It is the first time in 11 years that Marseille have reached the latter stages of the competition — a fact that surprised coach Didier Deschamps.—Internet

Ronaldo scores double as Real outclass Ajax

AMSTERDAM, 24 Nov—A double from Cristiano Ronaldo formed the centrepiece of a masterclass by Real Madrid here on Tuesday as they eased to a 4-0 away win over Dutch side Ajax in their Champions League Group G clash.

The Portuguese star scored twice in the second-half after first-half goals by Karim Benzema and a stunning effort by Alvaro Arbeloa had put them in cruise control mode the only blot on their evening were two late sendings off of World Cup winning duo Xabi Alonso and Sergi Ramos.

Ajax coach Martin Jol had gone for broke in his line-up with three strikers - including Uruguayan Luis Suarez despite his being punished by the club for a biting incident at the weekend and two attacking midfielder.

A caddie gives playing one last shot

JACKSONVILLE, 24 Nov—Brett Waldman received his share of quizzical looks at the second stage of Q-school because he had no reason to be there. He caddies for Camilo Villegas, who won the Honda Classic and earned over $3 million this year. Except that Waldman wasn't working. He was playing.

And even though his own clubs have been collecting dust, he's playing well enough that he might not be a caddie much longer. Waldman shot a 68 in the final round at the TPC Craig Ranch outside Dallas last week and made it through yet another stage of PGA Tour qualifying. He is one of only nine players still alive after starting this improbable journey by having to go through prequalifying.

2010 Mid-year Myanmar Gems Emporium bustling with gem merchants

Article: Tin Htwe (MNA); Photos: Ko Htwe & Htein Nan Naw

Gem merchants visiting Mandalay Gems Center at 2010 Mid-year Myanmar Gems Emporium.

Beginning 17 November, local and foreign gem merchants are jostling for buying and viewing jade, jewellery and pearls at the 2010 Mid-year Myanmar Gems Emporium which is being held for the first time in Nay Pyi Taw, at Mani Yadana Jade Hall near the Gems Museum (Nay Pyi Taw).

Although the sales of pearl and jewellery lots have completed, most of the gem merchants are viewing and purchasing jade lots. As such, the emporium is still alive with activities of gem merchants. The local and foreign gem merchants daily leave hotels for Mani Yadana Jade Hall where the emporium is being held by chartered express bus and saloon. At 8 am, the gem merchants can be seen among jade lots.

At the Mid-year Myanmar Gems Emporium 2010, Myanmar Pearls Enterprise and local pearl companies sold 237 lots of pearls—207 lots of pearl through tender system and 30 lots through competitive bidding system on 18 and 19 November.

Likewise, Myanmar Gem Enterprise and local jewellery companies sold 31 lots of jewellery—seven (See page 10)

INSIDE The US and some EU countries alike did not come to the situation they are in within a day, a month or a year. They know best how long they took and how they had to try. It would be wrong if they measured the situation of Myanmar, which is in its initial stage, with their yardstick.
