Friendship and harmony have been further consolidated

The geographical features of our country, which include high mountain ranges and major rivers that flow from the north to the south, make transportation difficult and impeded interactions among the national peoples. Moreover, under colonialism, they were subject to many years of systematic divide-and-rule practices. The national peoples become suspicious of one another, prompting our leaders to make strenuous efforts during the struggle for independence so that the central Myanmar and the mountainous regions could gain independence together.

In the post-independence period, suspicions toward one another intensified, giving rise to multi-coloured insurgencies across the country.

So, during the time when the Tatmadaw has assumed the responsibilities of the State, east-west and north-south networks of motor roads, railroads and airports have been built. With improved transportation and communication, friendship and harmony among the national peoples have been further consolidated and progress has been achieved in the economic, health and education sectors of the states.

Boost production of all crops

Myanmar's sown acreage of crops stands at more than 57 million. With over 16 million acres of monsoon paddy and over three million acres of summer paddy, the nation produces over 1500 million baskets of paddy a year. The nation also stands at the top list of green gram, pigeon pea and black gram exporting countries.

Myanmar is now making a great stride in economic growth with agriculture as the base. More than 200 dams and sluice gates have been built across the nation for supply of sufficient irrigation water.

So far, the acreage of irrigated farmlands has reached over two million. Outputs of grain crops such as paddy, wheat and corn, edible oil crops such as sesame, groundnut and sunflower and industrial raw crops such as cotton, jute and sugarcane are on the increase due to favourable conditions and supply of irrigation water.

It has yet to make sustained efforts to boost production of crops, especially highly saleable ones. In a bid to boost agricultural production, it is needed to collect data and statistics exactly, such as sown acreage and harvested acreage of crops, per acre yield, and total outputs.

Related service personnel are responsible for fulfilling requirements of the agricultural development in the regions where their offices are based. In particular, they have to provide advanced methods and agricultural assistance for boosting per acre yields of crops.

Now, assistance of advanced agricultural methods is rendered constantly. Farmers have to work harder than ever in all aspects, making good use of good agricultural foundations to help transform the nation into an agro-based industrialized nation.

Carnival in flames: fire destroys samba warehouses

RIO DE JANEIRO, 8 Feb—Rio de Janeiro's world-famed Carnival went up in flames Monday for thousands of people who spent nearly a year preparing for the spectacular event.

Seamstresses, set designers and musicians watched in tears as firefighters struggled to control a blaze that raged through warehouses holding many of the elaborate costumes and floats they had assembled for this year's samba parade.

With just a month left before the 6 March start of the competition, there is no way to fully replace them. "Do you know what it feels like to work all day, into the night, to make this happen, and then this?" asked Graziela Goncalves Carvalho, a seamstress with Uniao da Ilha do Governador, one of the groups that appeared to have suffered heavy losses. "It's over. There's nothing. This Carnival is over for us." Three hours after the fire, 120 firefighters had controlled the flames that appeared to have severely damaged warehouses belonging to three of the samba organizations that compete in the two-day parade, as well as Independent League of Samba Groups that organizes the event, according to Dimas de Almeida Neto, spokesman for Rio's fire department.—Internet

Russia, US must go on with work of arms reduction

Moscow, 8 Feb—After the new strategic arms reduction treaty (START) came into force, efforts on the further reduction of strategic arms between Russia and the United States must be continued, a Russian official said on Monday.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Sergei Ryabkov hailed the new START treaty as a "new good start" in Russian-US relations, saying the two country "should keep the momentum and move further with this positive agenda." However, Ryabkov warned that although the two countries have taken "an important step" to strengthen the nuclear nonproliferation regime, Russia would still consider its fulfillment of the new START if the United States keeps mounting missile defence.

"If the United States increases the size and quality of missile defence individually or together with NATO partners, a question will arise whether Russia should further comply with the treaty or other measures, including military-technical measures, would be necessary in response to the new situation," Ryabkov said.—Xinhua

Suicide bomb in south Afghanistan kills interpreter

Afghan policemen keep watch at the site of an incident in Kandahar Province on 7 Feb, 2011.—INTERNET

Kandahar provincial police chief Mohammad Mujahid told Reuters that the interpreter was killed when a teenage suicide bomber blew himself up near a group of US soldiers and Afghan officials. Violence in Afghanistan is at its worst since the overthrow of the Taleban in 2001, with civilian and military casualties hitting record levels in 2010.

US and NATO-led forces say they have made significant gains in the violent provinces of Kandahar and Helmand on Afghanistan's southern border with Pakistan, but attacks are still frequent and the militancy appears to be spreading to previously peaceful areas of the north and west.—Reuters

KANDAHAR, 8 Feb—A suicide bomber killed an Afghan interpreter working for US forces in an attack on a customs office in Afghanistan's southern Kandahar Province Monday, police said.

The bomber appeared to target US troops meeting Afghan customs officials at the compound near the main city in Kandahar Province, the heartland of the Taleban-led insurgency.

The NATO-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) said one person was killed and five wounded, including two ISAF service members.

Rumsfeld admits 'possible' Iraq troop mistakes

WASHINGTON, 8 Feb—Former defence secretary Donald Rumsfeld releases his new memoir Tuesday, as he concedes his Iraq troop decisions may have been wrong while sparing no criticism of former colleagues.

In "Known and Unknown," Rumsfeld defends his handling of the war and recounts his government career serving Republican presidents from Richard Nixon to George W Bush.

The former defence secretary was reluctant to endorse Bush's assessment that the decision to draw down US troops shortly after the 2003 invasion of Iraq was "the most important failure in the execution of the war."

"I don't have enough confidence to say that that's right. I think that it's possible," Rumsfeld told ABC News anchor Diane Sawyer.—Internet

225 rescued in Indonesian ferry fire

The outline of a ferry is seen on the horizon close to Jakarta. More than 200 passengers have been rescued from an Indonesian ferry that caught fire early Tuesday close to the country's capital, the transport ministry said.—INTERNET

JAKARTA, 8 Feb—More than 200 passengers have been rescued from an Indonesian ferry that caught fire early Tuesday off the coast of the country's capital, Jakarta, the transport ministry said.

The ferry, which was travelling to Batam island, south of Singapore, was 26 kilometres (16 miles) north of Jakarta when the blaze broke out at 3:35 am (2035 GMT Monday), ministry spokesman Bambang Ervan said.

The fire was extinguished about 90 minutes later, he added.

"All 225 passengers on board the Selvia were rescued," Ervan said, adding the government has launched an investigation into the cause of the fire. A passenger who was travelling with her young son told local television she was asleep when an explosion occurred.

"I was woken up by a loud explosion at about 3:00 am and I heard people saying that the engine has blown up," Kurnia said.

"I saw thick smoke and rushed to find a life jacket. I then felt that the the ship started to tilt to the left."

The incident came after nearly 30 people were killed earlier this month when a ferry with more than 400 people on board caught fire.—Internet

Iraqi army officer killed in bomb attack in Baghdad

BAGHDAD, 8 Feb— A senior Iraqi army officer was killed and four people wounded in twin roadside bomb explosions in Baghdad on Tuesday, an Interior Ministry source said.

Staff Brigadier General Ehsan Ali Mohammed from the Defence Ministry was killed when a roadside bomb detonated outside his home in Baghdad's western al-Ghazaliyah District while he was leaving for work, the source told Xinhua on condition of anonymity. Later, another roadside bomb went off at the scene when Iraqi security forces and civilians gathered at the site of the first blast, wounding two policemen, a soldier and a civilian, the source said. The latest attacks are part of a wave of assassinations by militant groups against Iraqi security members and civilians.

Science

UK's ancient secrets may be buried with old bones

LONDON, 8 Feb—Top British archaeologists are urging the government to rethink a law requiring human remains be reburied, warning it risks undermining years of research into the island's ancient peoples and study of their DNA.

The row stems from the reinterpretation of a law introduced in 2008 by the Ministry of Justice. The rule states human bones discovered in England and Wales since that time, regardless of their age, must be re-interred after two years.

In a letter to Justice Secretary Kenneth Clarke, 40 academics complained experts would have too little time to study the remains and that reburial would result in the needless destruction of immensely valuable material.

Important sites that will be affected include Stonehenge and a Viking mass burial pit near Weymouth on the south coast.

Many archaeologists believe secrets about ancient tribes and early humans in Britain could be lost to science forever if the rule is applied. Thousands of sites could be affected in the future, they say.

"Britain risks losing its leading role in archaeology, a decline that will be observed by a mystified international scientific community," the letter said.

Pandas weren't always vegetarians

MALAGA, 8 Feb—The giant panda, a well-known vegetarian, may have given up eating meat more recently than previously believed, Spanish researchers say.

Researchers have long thought pandas' ancestors began switching from meat to bamboo 7 million years ago and were strictly vegetarians by 2 million years ago.

However, a new study suggests some old habits die hard, NewScientist.com reported Monday.

Researchers at the University of Malaga in Spain compared the skulls of the living giant panda with two extinct panda species: a pygmy panda, Ailuropoda microta, which roamed the Earth 2 million years ago, and the 100,000-year-old Ailuropoda baconi.

They also analyzed the skulls of 171 living bear species that don't eat bamboo.

From comparison of the skulls the researchers were able to make determinations about their likely dietary preferences.

The skulls of the living pandas and Ailuropoda baconi were so similar both likely chewed the same food: bamboo.

But the 2 million-year-old pygmy panda hadn't completed the adaptation, its skull suggesting it probably had a weaker bite than today's giant panda that would not have been able to break thick bamboo stems, so it may have supplemented its vegetarian diet with meat.

So while a genetic study has suggested the giant panda lineage lost the capacity to taste flesh 4.2 million years ago, at least one ancestor seemed to have had a hard time kicking the carnivorous habit.

Apple may go all-digital on software sales

CUPERTINO, 8 Feb—US technology giant Apple is considering making better use of its retail space by dropping boxed-software sales, company observers said.

MacRumors reported software sales could be handled only at the Mac App Store, freeing up shelf space in retail stores for iPhones and computers, which have a higher profit margin.

AppleInsider said Monday several popular software options, such as iWork and iLife, were available as downloads, but some, such as Microsoft Office and Adobe Photoshop, are not yet sold at the Mac App Store.

Apple listed "Software, Service and Other Sales" as its second-smallest revenue-generator in its fiscal fourth quarter for 2011, taking in $786 million in sales. iPad sales in the same quarter created $4.6 billion in revenue, although the iPad is less than a year old, AppleInsider said.—Internet

Cellphone security threats rise sharply

LONDON, 8 Feb—Cellphone security threats rose sharply last year as a proliferation of Internet-enabled mobile devices like smartphones and tablets provided new opportunities for cybercriminals, security software maker McAfee (MFE.N) said.

In its fourth-quarter threat report, released on Tuesday, McAfee said the number of pieces of new cellphone malware it found in 2010 rose 46 percent over 2009's level. "As more users access the Internet from an ever-expanding pool of devices — computer, tablet, smartphone or Internet TV — web-based threats will continue to grow in size and sophistication," it said.

McAfee, which is being bought by Intel (INTC.O) for $7.68 billion, said it expected PDF and Flash maker Adobe (ADBE.O) to remain a favourite of cybercriminals this year, after it overtook Microsoft (MSFT.O) in popularity as a target in 2010.

It attributed the trend to Adobe's greater popularity in mobile devices and non-Microsoft environments, coupled with the ongoing widespread use of PDF document files to convey malware.

Binge drinking a rural problem, too

NUREMBERG, 8 Feb—Binge drinking is often considered an urban problem, but German researchers say binge drinking in rural areas is more of a problem than previously thought.

Dr Carolin Donath of the Psychiatric University Clinic Erlangen in Nuremberg examined the drinking patterns of more than 44,000 teens ages 15 and 16 in Germany.

The study, published in the journal BMC Public Health, found more than 93 percent of the young people from the countryside and more than 86 percent of those from urban areas had tried alcohol.

Of the adolescents who had drunk alcohol in the last month, 78 percent from rural areas and 74 percent from cities said they had five or more drinks at one time.

"Whilst there is awareness of the problems of binge drinking in towns and cities, this study demonstrates that both drinking and binge drinking are as much of a problem for rural teenagers," Donath says in a statement.—Internet

Benefits to exercising outdoors

EXETER, (England), 8 Feb—There are unique benefits to exercising or physical activity outdoors, researchers in Britain say.

A systematic review by a team at the Peninsula College of Medicine and Dentistry — run in partnership with the University of Exeter and the University of Plymouth — and colleagues analyzed existing studies including 11 randomized and non-randomized control trials incorporating information from 833 adults.

The study, published in the journal Environmental Science and Technology, found that most studies showed an improvement in mental well-being compared with exercising indoors.

Exercising in natural environments is associated with greater feelings of revitalization, increased energy and positive engagement, together with decreases in tension, confusion, anger and depression. The study participants also reported greater enjoyment and satisfaction with outdoor activity and stated that they were more likely to repeat the activity at a later date, the study says.

The euro drifted back from a two-week low plumed after surprising weak German industrial orders data, but fading expectations of a near-term eurozone interest rate rise stopped the single currency pushing higher.

Market players in Tokyo said better-than-expected earnings reports from US and Japanese companies have accelerated a shift

Dollar ends flat, as does gold

NEW YORK, 8 Feb—Gold prices were flat Monday in New York, adding 90 cents to $1,349.90 per troy ounce, as the dollar started strong, then faded as the day progressed. Equities on Wall Street posted gains as March contract crude oil on the New York Mercantile Exchange lost $1.77 to $87.26 per barrel.

Germany announced factory orders in December fell 3.4 percent, which gave the dollar strength relative to the euro. By late afternoon, however, the dollar index was down 0.1 percent. The euro fell to $1.3583 from Friday's $1.359. Against the yen, the dollar rose to 82.3 yen from Friday's 82.2 yen.

The dollar was mixed in Europe and mostly lower in Asia. In India, the dollar fell to 45.32 rupee from 45.579 rupee. The US dollar dropped to 7.7827 Hong Kong dollars from 7.787 HKD. The dollar fell to 1,102 South Korean won from 1,113.96 won.

SEOUL, 8 Feb—The South Korean navy's dramatic raid on Somali pirates who hijacked a ship will be made into an action film, a Seoul movie producer said Tuesday.

Navy commandos rescued the Samho Jewelry, an 11,500-ton freighter hijacked in the Arabian Sea, and its 21 crew — including eight South Koreans — in a dramatic pre-dawn raid.

Five pirates were killed in the 21 January operation. The South Korean captain was wounded but none of the other crew members was injured.

During the much-praised mission, the navy captured five pirates who were later flown to South Korea to face possible trial.

The upcoming movie will resemble "Saving Private Ryan", a Hollywood epic about a group of World War II US soldiers going behind enemy lines to rescue a paratrooper, said a spokesman for production house Christmas Entertainment.

"This is such dramatic, perfect material for a movie," said the spokesman, adding production will cost about 20 billion won ($18 million). He said the story will largely centre on members of the UDT/SEAL units who staged the rescue.—Internet

Hong Kong holiday gives young lovers ring of confidence

BEIJING, 8 Feb— Beijing bank clerk Liu Chang, 26, and her fiancé, Gao Shan, 28, are counting the cost of young love — skyrocketing housing prices and the cost of their once-in-a-lifetime wedding ceremony.

"We are tightening our belts after paying a 600,000-yuan down payment on a 70-square-metre home with the help of our parents, and the wedding ceremony will cost at least 30,000 yuan," says Liu.

So why did they splash out on a week-long holiday in Hong Kong and Macao just a few months before their big day?

Doing the sums, they reckon they saved 4,000 yuan (608 US dollars) by buying their wedding rings in Hong Kong, where the absence of sales tax and a strengthening yuan, the Chinese currency, are drawing a rising tide of young mainland lovebirds.

"At any jewelry store in the Causeway Bay shopping centre, you can see swarms of young Chinese tourists like us," says Liu.

"We used the money

we saved having a week-long holiday, taking in the sights of Hong Kong and Macao," says Liu.

The value of the yuan, or renminbi, has risen steadily against the Hong Kong dollar, which is pegged to the US dollar, from about 1 to 0.93 in 1997 to the current 1 to 1.18.

The company would develop its Nanosemantics artificial intelligence (AI) project in China, opening a research and development centre there this spring, co-owner Natalia Kasperskaya said. Eight million dollars out of the funding would be invested by a local Chinese partner, whose name Kasperskaya declined to reveal. "The Chinese AI market is empty so far, so we have ambitious plans for the introduction and development of our technology," she said. The number of people using the Internet in China rose to 457 million by the end of 2010, up 73.3 million from a year earlier, meaning more than a third of the Chinese population is online, according to the China Internet Network Information Centre (CNNIC).—Xinhua

Cultivate patriotic spirit correctly

Tun Lin Latt

National brethren United we stand

Everyone considers that they have a great love of their countries. And everyone hates to be considered to lack patriotic spirit. Then, what should be set as a yardstick to judge whether a person is patriotic or not?

In the course of the nation's history, there are many patriotic heroes who have sacrificed their lives and property in national interests, aspired by their patriotism, whereas there are many traitors harming national interests.

For instance, while marching by water along the Ayeyawady River to occupy Yadanabon royal city, British colonialists asked a national traitor Ba Than to be sitting on the head of the warship to disguise himself as Prince Shwe Gyobu to avoid defensive attacks to be launched by Myanmar patriots. In the time of the British rule also, there were many national people who turned traitors to the nation to curry favour with the colonialists, and so were many national people in the time of Fascists.

If a citizen wants to prove that he really loves his motherland, he has to put his words of patriotism into practice. Some are up in arms under the pretext of national unity, national reconciliation, national consolidation and national integration. However, in practice, all they are doing is just to harm national integration.

In the parliamentary democracy period, some Shan chieftains demanded federal system, taking advantage of the defects of Panglong Agreement, which could lead to national disintegration. Therefore, the Tatmadaw had to take over State power in 1962. Later, that attracted a demand that the nation practise real union system. Many considered that the demand was not much different from federal system.

Now, some groups are very loud to hold second Panglong Conference or 21st century Panglong Conference. What for? They should notice that the objective conditions of the nation now in the 21st century are different from that while first Panglong Conference was on its way in the 20th century.

First Panglong Conference was aimed at helping both highlands and mainland regain independence together from the British government, breaking up the British colonialists' intention of granting only mainland independence, setting aside highlands.

Now, there have emerged Pyithu Hluttaw, Amyotha Hluttaw, and Region/State Hluttaws according to the constitution. National races have been bestowed the right to submit their affairs to hluttaws for discussion.

Panglong Agreement is designed to help the whole country, states and mainland, achieve independence through consolidated unity of national races, and to address issues of internal affairs without alien intervention, living in harmony with Union Spirit.

In the Union of Myanmar, a multiethnic country, every national race wants to stand as a national race, and enjoy rights and development equally with other counterparts.

The 2008 constitution of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar gives guarantee to fulfil all these aspirations of national races.

Regarding rights of a national race, Article (3) of the constitution says "The State is where multi-national races collectively reside". And Article (355) says "Every citizen shall have the

In connection with equal rights of all national races, Article (34) says "Every citizen is equally entitled to freedom of conscience and the right to freely profess and practise religion subject to public order, morality or health and to the other provisions of this constitution".

Article (370) says "Every citizen has, in accord with the law, the right to conduct business freely in the Union, for national economic development". So, it grants equitable development of all national races. Article 22 (c) says "The State shall assist to promote socio-economic development including education, health, economy, transport and communication, so forth, of less-development national races." That indicates that the State gives high priority to the interests of national races.

The constitution prescribes hluttaws of five self-administered zones and one self-administered division in addition to seven Regions, seven States, of the Union of Myanmar. They have the rights to exercise legislative, judicial and executive powers respectively. Moreover, except respective national races, any other national race whose population constitutes 0.1 percent or above of the population of the Union will have the right to elect a representative to deal with the affairs of the national race concerned. So, all national races will have the rights to decide their future.

Colonialists exercised the divide-and-rule policy to undermine the unity of national races with the intention of extending their colonial rule over Myanmar. Now, external elements who are anxious to put Myanmar under their political control are resorting to all possible ways and means to sow doubt and hatred among national races.

National races have to value and develop their own races, languages, literatures, traditions and cultures, but keep off extremes.

Colourful Chin State

The State Peace and Development Council made greater efforts than ever before to ensure significant development of the whole Union in its bid to remedy the issue that the nation has lagged behind others countries in development. The government has been strengthening national unity by narrowing gaps among the national races and generating equitable development of highlands and plains.

To have equitable development in the regions which lagged behind, the government implemented development programme across the country. Like other Regions and States, Chin State has achieved progress in all aspect. Chin State sees significant progress, compared with the olden days. Due to the government's genuine goodwill, Chin State is gaining development momentum along with other States and Regions, as evidenced by a comparison of the present condition with the past.

Sudan makes preparations for next world capital

JUBA, 8 Feb — The mud-hut town of Juba has earned a promotion to world capital later this year. Only Southern Sudan needs far more than its own currency and a national anthem: Most of the roads here are dirt and even aid workers live in shipping containers. In a little more than five months, Southern Sudan is slated to become the world's newest country. Final results from last month's independence referendum announced on Monday show that 98.6 percent of the ballots cast were for secession from Sudan's north.

Juba is oil-rich but lacks the embassies and skyscrapers of other world capitals. There was only a mile or two of pavement here just a year ago, and the local archives are stored in a tent. Many, though, see great potential, and are excitedly looking forward to controlling their own destiny.

SCOTTSDALE, 8 Feb — Packers fan Mark Wilson celebrated a big victory of his own on a playing field about as close to frozen tundra as it gets on the PGA Tour.

A self-described cheesehead from Menomonee Falls, Wis., Wilson won the frost-delayed Phoenix Open on Monday for his second victory in three starts this year, holing a 9-foot birdie putt on the second hole of a playoff with Jason Dufner.

"I'm just enjoying the ride here and that's just kind of the way I'm going to look at the year here, just ride this train as long as I can," Wilson said.

After playing until dark Sunday and fulfilling some parental duties, he was able to watch only a few minutes of the Super Bowl.

"I had to wash Lane's face and put his jammies on, and I had to eat, too," Wilson said. "The chaos, with two little kids running around — I like the chaos; it's a good distraction. But at that time, I want to at least get to watch the last 15 minutes of this game. This doesn't happen every year, the Packers in the Super Bowl.

"Luckily, my son, after we played Candy Land in the middle of the fourth quarter, he said, 'OK, the last two minutes we can watch it together.' So we watched that last stand, and I was happy that they somehow pulled it off."

Delays for frost and frozen turf the first four days forced the Monday finish.—Internet

Rooney set for new court battle with former agents

LONDON, 8 Feb — Wayne Rooney will face a new court battle after his former agents were given leave to appeal over a £4.3-million ($6.6-million) claim they have brought against the Manchester United and England striker.

A judge ruled at Manchester Mercantile Court in July last year that the agreement between sports management firm Proactive and Rooney for a 20 percent commission for a number of deals was unenforceable.

The judge added that the eight-year contract Rooney signed as a young Everton player was "an unreasonable restraint" of his trade when the Football Association recommended a maximum of two years.

But appeal judge Lord Justice Alan Ward said Monday that Proactive did have a prospect of success in its arguments over Rooney's contract.

Malaga keeper sidelined for rest of season

Malaga keeper Sergio Asenjo

MADRID, 8 Feb — Malaga keeper Sergio Asenjo will require surgery on a right knee injury he picked up during a weekend league match and will miss the rest of the season, the Spanish club said on Monday.

Medical tests carried out on the 21-year-old confirmed a tear on the ligament of his right knee and he will undergo surgery later this week, it said in a statement.

"The recovery period is estimated at some six to eight months," the club said.

Asenjo was carried off the pitch after just eight minutes of his side's goalless draw against Sevilla on Sunday after his right boot got caught in the turf of the pitch at Sevilla's Sanchez Pizjuan stadium.

The Spain Under-21 international was replaced by substitute keeper Francesc Arnau.

Ricco in hospital after taken ill in training

ROME, 8 Feb — Italian cyclist Riccardo Ricco has been hospitalised after he was taken ill during training, Italian news agency ANSA reported late Monday.

The Vacansoleil racer was first reported to be in a critical condition but later reports said he was making progress.

ANSA said that "his state of health, critical to start off with - according to the Nuovo Ospedale Civile Sant'Agostino Estense di Baggiovara clinic - has improved," but the report reserved any judgement on further progress. Rubinho Ricco, the racer's father, said he had suffered a "kidney failure" after a Sunday training session amid reports he could be suffering from kidney stones.

He added his son was conscious and talking while the hospital said it would update the racer's news Tuesday afternoon.

McClaren sacked by Wolfsburg

BERLIN, 8 Feb — Ex-England coach Steve McClaren was on Monday sacked by Bundesliga side Wolfsburg after just seven months in charge with his side just one point off from the relegation zone.

The 49-year-old became the first English manager to coach in the Bundesliga last August, but McClaren has been dismissed in the wake of Saturday's 1-0 defeat at Hannover, when he criticised star player Diego for missing a penalty.

McClaren's co-trainer Pierre Littbarski will take over as caretaker coach.

Ex-England coach Steve McClaren

"We were no longer sure that we could work with Steve McClaren until the end of the season with some stability," said director of sport Dieter Hoernes in a statement.

"We have tried to make things work for as long as possible, but we have lost faith that we can bring success."—Internet

Walcott glad of belated Capello backing

LONDON, 8 Feb — Theo Walcott revealed on Monday he had been inspired by Fabio Capello's admission that leaving the Arsenal winger out of his squad for last year's World Cup in South Africa had been a "mistake".

Walcott finds himself back in the fold ahead of the first England match of 2011, a friendly away to Denmark, and he is set to be in the starting XI in Copenhagen on Wednesday.

As for Capello conceding he'd made an error in Walcott's case, the 21-year-old Gunners flyer told a news conference at England's hotel on Monday: "It's a nice quote and that's helped me out so much this season, it's shown that the manager's taken responsibility for what he did.

"I had a good pre-season and started the season brightly, it's always nice when the manager's got faith in you - even though I didn't go to the World Cup."—Internet

Chelsea's Cech picked as top 2010 Czech player

PRAGUE, 8 Feb — Chelsea goalkeeper Petr Cech became the Czech footballer of the year 2010 at a ceremony in Prague on Monday, winning the trophy for the third consecutive time and for the fourth time overall.

"I'll never grow tired of this, it's a great honour," said the 28-year-old Cech, with 78 appearances for the Czech national team, after being picked by players, coaches, officials and journalists.

"I'm glad my work has been valued as excellent, and I believe this is not the last time I'm here," added Cech, who won ahead of Arsenal midfielder Tomas Rosicky and Atletico Madrid defender Tomas Ujfalusi.

The ceremony was held two days before the 80th birthday of Czech midfielder Josef Masopust, the 1962 Ballon D'Or winner and playmaker of the Czechoslovak team that made it to the final of the World Cup in Chile in the same year.—Internet

Peru discovers gold and silver beds

LIMA, 8 Feb—Peruvian Energy and Mining Ministry (MEM) on Monday reported the discovery of large gold and silver beds in the north of the Peruvian Andes, in Cajamarca region, some 850 kilometres northeast to Lima, the country's capital.

According to a MEM statement the gold bed is of 1.34 million ounces and the silver one of 33.3 million ounces.

The statement was published in the context of the 7th International Congress of Exploration "ProExplo 2011" being hosted in Lima with the attendance of geologists from all the world and executives from companies specialized on the location of new beds.

The MEM said that the discovered gold bed could be of even 6 kilometres long and more than 400 metres deep.

This gold-silver bed is located between the two main gold beds already being exploited.—Xinhua
