PBANRDA Minister inspects Maubin-Twantay Road Project

NAY PYI TAW, 2 March—Minister for Progress of Border Areas and National Races and Development Affairs U Thein Nyunt on 27 February inspected Maubin-Twantay Roundabout being built by the Development Affairs Department near Twantay Bridge on Yangon (Hlinethaya)-Twantay Road, arrangements for tarring the road at mile post No. (26/7), tasks for expansion of approach roads to Takahle Bridge at mile post No (25), and the building of the 18 feet wide tarred road from Khattiya Bridge at mile post No (13/2) to mile post No (5/1).

The one mile and three furlongs long and 10 feet wide gravel road was built with the fund of the Development Affairs Department by Maubin Township Development Affairs Committee in 2010-2011. Thanks to the newly-built facility, local people of Lay-einzu, Kukkozu, Kanyin Thonbin, Tartabaw and Thayetngu villages have easy access to Maubin-Twantay Road at any time, and local products can be transported to Yangon through Maubin-Twantay-Yangon (Hlinethaya) Road in a short time.

The minister attended the ceremony to hand over Toe Marlar building of the basic education high school in Lay-einzu Village, Maubin Township.

The inauguration Yeywa Hydropower Plant, a showcase for skills of national experts, was held on a grand scale on 15 December 2010. The scenic natural beauty adds the glory of the RCC dam and the giant hydropower plant to form an eye-catching view.

Now, Yeywa Hydropower Plant operates at full capacity, generating 790 megawatts of electricity. The project took nearly a decade from 2001-2002 to 2010. Its generator (1) was put into service on 24 February 2010; generator (2), on 16 July 2010; generator (3), on 16 October 2010; and generator (4), on 15 December 2010.

Dokhtawady Bridge (Yeywa) was constructed to carry mountains of construction materials and so many units of heavy machinery for Yeywa Hydropower Project.

The plant lies on the Myitnge River (Dokhtawady River) near Yeyaman Village, 31 miles southeast of Mandalay. The project was undertaken by Construction (2) of the Hydropower Department under the Ministry of Electric Power (1).

Building the plant was a great technological challenge, calling for a massive investment. The first-ever RCC (Roller Compacted Concrete Technology) Dam in Myanmar was constructed with about 1500 staff from the Ministry of Electric Power (1) and 12,000 staff from local and foreign companies, thus ensuring technical transfer.

PERSPECTIVES

Peasantry to participate in democratization

Myanmar is a land of crops as it is blessed with all favourable conditions for agricultural farming. The agricultural sector contributes largely to national economic growth. The 2nd of March was designated as Peasants Day to honour the peasantry dedicating themselves to agricultural farming.

The message sent by Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council Senior General Than Shwe on the occasion of Peasants Day says, "The State Peace and Development Council is trying its utmost to transform the Republic of the Union of Myanmar into a modern and developed discipline-flourishing democratic nation. At the core of the achievement of the lofty goal lies better socio-economic life of the people. To meet this national goal calls for improving the agricultural farming, the major business of the people, with all seriousness."

Today, the government is harnessing land and water sources to the best of its ability for development of the agricultural sector. In addition, highland farmlands are being transformed from slash and burn system to terrace farming. It is also encouraging use of advanced agricultural methods, high-yield strains of crops, fertilizers and farm machinery. So, farmland utilization is improving considerably.

To supply sufficient irrigation water essential for improvement of agriculture, the government so far has constructed 233 dams across the nation that benefit over 2 million acres of farmlands. And over 300 river water pumping stations irrigate some 500,000 acres of agricultural farms.

Owing to all-round assistance rendered by the government, farmers are on a position to grow crops with mixed- and multiple-cropping patterns the whole year. The nation's paddy output has toughed about 1500 million baskets now.

Agricultural development has improved the socio-economic status of the peasantry. Therefore, farmers, a strong force of the nation, on their part have to participate in building a democratic nation, working harder to boost production of crops especially paddy.

India tries to get Indian hostages on board hijacked cargo ship released

NEW DELHI, 2 March—India has said that it's trying to secure release of six Indian sailors on board an Egyptian cargo ship hijacked last August in the Gulf of Aden by Somali pirates who have reportedly demanded a ransom of 4 million US dollars.

Indian Foreign Secretary Nirupama Rao said that the Director General of Shipping was pursuing all such cases of Indians being taken hostage by Somali pirates.

"Owner of MV Suez, owned by an Egyptian company, had promised to take action to free hostages but nothing was done. The DG Shipping continues his efforts," Rao wrote in "Twitter" late Tuesday night.

Meanwhile, Indian TV channel Times Now reported that the Somali pirates on board the hijacked ship have demanded 4 million US dollars for the release of the Indian hostages and a week's deadline has been given in this regard.

"Our demand is ransom money. We want 4 million US dollars. Last time we called the company we demanded the ransom. He (owner) told us he did not want the ship or the crew. One week is the maximum time," one of the pirates told the channel.—Xinhua

NATO force investigates new Afghan casualty claim

KABUL, 2 March—The NATO-led force in Afghanistan said on Tuesday it was investigating new reports by Afghan officials that its troops may have killed up to nine children during an attack on insurgents in the country's volatile east.

Civilian casualties caused by NATO-led and Afghan forces hunting insurgents have become a great source of friction between the Afghan Government and its Western backers, although UN figures show that insurgents are responsible for more than three-quarters of civilian deaths and injuries.

The NATO-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) said it was looking into the latest allegations after an attack by insurgents on one of its bases in the Darreh-Ye Pesh District of Kunar Province near the Pakistan border. It said troops returned fire after two rocket attacks on the base, using small arms and "aerial fire" and later became aware of the civilian casualty claims when contacted by the media. Afghan officials would join the investigation, it said.

"We take civilian casualty allegations very seriously. We are here to protect the people of Afghanistan," ISAF spokesman Colonel Charles Toplikar said in a statement. Earlier, Kunar police chief Khalilullah Zaiee said nine children aged under 14 had been killed in the town of Mano Gai in Darreh Ye-Pesh when a coalition aircraft responded to the rocket attacks on the ISAF forward operating base.

14 girl students injured in grenade attack in N-W Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, 2 March— Unidentified armed men on Tuesday threw hand grenades at a girls college in northwest Pakistan, injuring 14 students, police said.

Police officer Jehanzeb Khan said that the incident took place on the outskirts of Mardan, a city some 200 kilometres northwest of Capital Islamabad.

Khan said that unidentified men riding a motorbike threw two hand grenades inside the Girls Degree College and fled. The injured girls were transferred to a hospital in the area. Doctors said the injured are in stable condition.

No group claimed responsibility for the attack. Taliban militants have carried out attacks on schools, especially girls schools, in the tribal regions and northwest in their campaign against the government. They are against girl's education.

This is the first time that a girls college was attacked in day time when it was open. Taliban usually attack schools in the night time.

"An International Security Assistance Force service member died following an insurgent attack in southern Afghanistan today," said the statement.

However, the statement did not reveal the nationality and position of the victim by saying it is ISAF policy to defer casualty identification procedures to the relevant national authorities.

Troops mainly from the United States, Britain, Canada and Australia have been stationed in the southern region within the framework of ISAF to fight Taleban militants.

Scientists book commercial spaceflights

BOULDER, 2 March—A Colorado research institute says it has booked tickets with two commercial spaceflight companies to take its scientists into suborbital space to work.

The Southwest Research Institute has purchased two tickets from Virgin Galactic for flights aboard its SpaceShipTwo commercial spaceliner and reserved six more, SPACE.com reported Monday.

The agreement, worth a total of about $1.6 million, is the first ticket sale by Virgin Galactic specifically aimed at flying scientists into suborbital space.

The agreement will allow researchers to use

SpaceShipTwo as a flying laboratory for experiments in weightlessness, biology, astronomy and climate research, officials said.

“We’ve already designed and built three experiments to fly on these flights,” SwRI scientist Alan Stern said.

The first passenger flights of SpaceShipTwo could occur by 2012, Virgin Galactic officials have said.

California-based spaceflight company XCOR Aerospace says it has also signed an agreement with SwRI to take institute scientists and their experiments on six flights in its two-seat Lynx vehicle.—Internet

Europe approves weather satellite plan

BRUSSELS, 2 March—Europe will go ahead with a $4.7 billion plan to build a next-generation weather satellite system, as participating nations say they’ve agreed to the financing. Eumetsat, the international agency charged with looking after Europe’s Meteosat weather satellites, said Friday all participating nations had agreed to the programme, the BBC reported.

The new system should guarantee European access to space-acquired meteorological data until at least the late 2030s, Eumetsat officials said. Full approval came after a decision by Belgium’s caretaker government to support the project financially. The country has been without a ruling administration since a general election in June, and was unable to commit the necessary funds a meeting of the 26-nation Eumetsat organization in December.

The caretaker government has indicated Belgium will honour its commitments. “It was not an easy process and the overall financial situation in Europe certainly did not help but I am very pleased to see that all member states have now approved a vital programme which will assure the future of Eumetsat’s geostationary observations over Europe, Africa and the Atlantic Ocean over the next few decades,” he said.—Internet

Turtles, fishing collide in Indian State

NEW DELHI, 2 March—Endangered sea turtles are being killed off eastern India’s Orissa State by vessels ignoring a fishing ban in a large turtle sanctuary, environmentalists say.

Government officials say “no more than 800” turtles have been killed since November but animal activists claim almost 5,000 of the tiny olive ridley turtles have died, Inter Press Service reported Monday.

Environmental and wildlife protection is a major concern in India’s coastal states but so is creating a sustainable livelihood for poor inhabitants of the region, officials say.

“We are all for the safety of turtles but the interests of the fishermen must also be kept in mind,” said Narayan Halidar, president of the Orissa Traditional Fish Workers’ Union.

Cell phones expose younger Chinese children to Internet

BEIJING, 2 March—As cell phones provide a more convenient and inconspicuous alternative to net surfing, Chinese minors are obtaining access to the Internet at a much younger age, triggering concerns about their healthy development, according to a recent survey.

The survey, released Monday and focusing on Chinese minors’ use of mobile phones and the Internet, documented how nearly 60 percent of the respondents got access to the Internet for the first time when they were below 10 years old.

The survey, which lasted more than half a year, was conducted mainly among students aged between 10 and 18 years in 106 middle and elementary schools across the country. Some parents and teachers also participated in the survey.

Further, some 1.9 percent had contact with the Internet at or below 3 years old. This small fraction of Internet experiences usually resulted from being alongside with their net surfing parents, most of whom are of the 80’s generation. But the survey warned that such passive net surfing experiences might gradually lead to children’s active Internet use.

According to the survey, about 46.6 percent of the minors surveyed owned a mobile phone and 39.5 percent used it to go online.

The results show that most of the children use cell phones to chat, read blogs, play games and search for information on the Internet.—Internet

Google tries to resolve email service problem

SAN FRANCISCO, 2 March—Google said on Monday that it is continuing to investigate a problem with its Gmail service, which reportedly caused some users’ emails being all erased.

The issue popped up over the weekend as users reported on online forums that they had lost emails and other information within their Gmail accounts.

Google confirmed the problem Sunday on the company’s website that provides status reports of its Apps services, initially saying that the issue affected less than 0.29 percent of Gmail users.

It then twice revised downward estimates of the number of users affected to 0.08 percent and then to 0.02 percent.

“Access has been restored for one third of the affected users,”

Google said in a latest notice Monday morning, adding that the remaining accounts are being restored on an ongoing basis.

Surgery can aid breasts, but not forever

DALLAS, 2 March—There are several plastic surgery options to enhance a woman's breasts, but no surgery permanently counters the effects of gravity, a US plastic surgeon says. Dr Michel Saint-Cyr, who specializes in breast procedures at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Centre in Dallas, says pregnancy, nursing and the force of gravity take their toll over the years on a woman's breasts.

As skin loses its elasticity, the breasts often lose their shape and firmness and begin to sag, Saint-Cyr says.

"Whether restoring or enhancing the female breasts, the key to breast surgery is to improve symmetry while enhancing the natural breast contour and shape," Saint-Cyr says in a statement. "It is important to have a board-certified plastic surgeon evaluate your breast tissue, skin elasticity and chest-wall dimensions to determine what procedures and options will work best." Breast lift — mastopexy — can raise and reshape sagging breasts, though no surgery can permanently counter the effects of gravity, while breast implants also can be inserted in conjunction with mastopexy to help increase firmness and size, Saint-Cyr says.—Internet

Employers often ignore healthcare benefits

ANN ARBOR, 2 March—Employers should focus more on value, improved health and increased work productivity than just the expense of insurance premiums, US researchers say.

Dr A Mark Fendrick — co-director of the University of Michigan Centre for Value-Based Insurance Design Centre — and Thomas Parry and Kimberly Jinnett, both of the Integrated Benefits Institute, say employers, as healthcare insurance consumers, should understand the full value of improved health, improved workforce productivity, and the cost of lost time and medical costs when determining healthcare investment.

"Employers can contribute greatly to the transformation of the health system by focusing on value and not simply on financing and who pays," Fendrick says in a statement. "It is imperative that we move beyond the current paradigm of exclusively measuring medical offsets, and include measurement of the effects in increased productivity that accompanies improvements in health."

BEIJING, 2 March—Shanghai is ranked top in terms of comprehensive economic competitiveness among all China's Provinces and municipalities, according to a survey released on Monday by the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences.

It is followed by Beijing and Jiangsu Province.

The finding highlights Shanghai's better infrastructure and great potential despite recent moderation in the city's economic growth rate, said Li Maoyu, a Changjiang Securities Co analyst. "The established infrastructure and the great policy support to build Shanghai into a global financial centre are the city's strength in economic development," Li said.

Shanghai's gross domestic product expanded 9.9 percent from a year earlier to 1.68 trillion yuan (256 billion US dollar) in 2010, the third consecutive year below the national average, which was 10.3 percent last year.—Xinhua

Japan's monetary base up 5.6% year-on-year in February

TOKYO, 2 March—The monetary base in Japan rose 5.6 percent in February from a year earlier, rising for the 30th consecutive month from a 5.5 percent annual increase booked in the previous month, the Bank of Japan (BOJ) said in a report on Wednesday.

The average daily balance of the monetary base stood at 101.0039 trillion yen (1.23 trillion US dollars), with the current account deposit balance expanding 23.3 percent after increasing 24.5 percent in January, the central bank said.

The bank's data also showed reserve balances rose by 19.7 percent in the recording period.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, however, the monetary base dipped 2.1 percent on year in February to 100.906 trillion yen, following a 9.9 contraction on year logged in the previous month, coming in at 101.08 trillion yen, the BOJ noted.

Banknotes in circulation were up 2.4 percent on year, although coins in circulation declined an annual 0.1 percent in February from a year earlier, the central banks's data showed.

Japan's monetary base refers to the amount of currency that is either circulated in the hands of people living in Japan or in domestic commercial bank deposits held in the central bank's reserves.—Xinhua

Ex-Apple employee pleads guilty in kickback scheme

SAN FRANCISCO, 2 March—A former Apple Inc employee pleaded guilty to multiple criminal counts after being accused of taking kickbacks from Asian suppliers.

Paul Devine, who worked at the iPhone maker as a global supply manager, was accused of using his position to pass confidential information to help suppliers negotiate favorable contracts with Apple. He worked there from 2005 until 2010.

Apple launched an internal investigation last year and found a cache of emails between Devine and the suppliers, according to a civil lawsuit the company filed against Devine. US prosecutors then obtained an indictment on 23 counts in August.

Devine pleaded guilty on Monday to wire fraud, conspiracy and money laundering in a San Jose federal court, the US Attorney's office announced. He also agreed to forfeit about $2.28 million in money and property.

"Mr Devine is a good man who made a mistake, and now he's trying to make amends," his attorney Raphael Goldman said on Monday.

A spokesman for the US Attorney's office in San Francisco declined to comment further.

China more energy efficient

BEIJING, 2 March—China's energy efficiency improved by a bigger margin in 2010 partly because local governments shut down some industrial capacity to meet year-end targets.

The energy intensity, or energy use per unit of the nation's gross domestic product, fell 4.1 percent last year, the National Bureau of Statistics said Monday. It declined 3.61 percent in 2009.

The National Development and Reform Commission, China's top economic planner, said last month that energy intensity fell 19.06 percent in the five years ending 2010 but the drop was slightly short of the government target of a 20 percent cut during the period.

Though energy intensity fell last year, total energy used rose 5.9 percent to 3.25 billion tons of coal equivalent, the bureau said. Coal consumption gained 5.3 percent, crude oil demand rose 12.9 percent, and gas consumption jumped 18.2 percent.

The energy intensity was poor in 2009 because the massive state stimulus package, introduced to cope with the global financial crisis, boosted energy use. The intensity even rose 3.2 percent in the first quarter of last year, endangering the government's effort to trim energy use to meet the 20 percent goal.

Fish may eat through its skin

BEIJING, 2 March—Scientists found Pacific hagfishes can be fed through their skins and gills as well as their guts, according to a study published in "Proceedings of the Royal Society B: Biological Sciences" on Wednesday.

By removing a bit of skin from the fish into the amino acids' solution, the researchers found the skin can make the nutrient concentration of its "inner" side increase and eventually stay at some certain level while the concentration outside was keeping increasing.

This character proved hagfish's skin could actively intake nutrient, said fish physiologist Chris M Wood of McMaster University in Hamilton, Canada.

This additional ability may help hagfish to survive over the difficult period without enough food, according to the lead researcher Chris Glover from the University of Canterbury in New Zealand and Bamfield Marine Sciences Centre.

Google, Khosla back weather insurance startup

LOS ANGELES, 2 March—Silicon Valley venture capitalist Vinod Khosla and Google Ventures have invested $42 million in a start-up run by former Google employees, which helps insure farmers against losses from increasingly volatile global weather.

Khosla Ventures and Google Ventures join Allen & Co, NEA and other investors in WeatherBill, whose team of software engineers and climatologists collates weather data from various sources, then sells insurance based on statistical analysis.

WeatherBill founded by ex-Google employees David Friedberg and Siraj Khaliq argues that the $3 trillion in annual global agriculture production is increasingly at risk from wild and unpredictable weather fluctuations.

The year 2010, during which extreme weather caused devastating floods in Pakistan, China and Australia and a heatwave in Russia, was the warmest on record alongside 1998 and 2005, the United Nations says.

A UN panel of climate change experts says weather is likely to become more extreme in the 21st century, affecting everything from food to water supplies, because of a build-up of heat-trapping gases from human use of fossil fuels.

"More than 90 percent of crop losses are due to unexpected weather and climate change is increasing the frequency of extreme weather events," CEO Friedberg said in a statement.—Reuters

Patients say pain prevalent in hospitals

UPPSALA, 2 March—Sixty-five percent of patients in Swedish hospitals say they had experienced pain during a 24-hour period before they were asked about it, researchers found.

Lead author Dr. Barbro Wadensten, associate professor at Uppsala University, Sweden, studied 759 patients ages 6 weeks to 95 years, with parents completing the surveys for younger children. The average age of the patients was 59, and 52 percent were female.

The study, scheduled to be published in the March issue of the Journal of Clinical Nursing, found 42 percent of those who had said they have experienced pain in the past 24 hours rated their pain as more than seven out of 10, with 10 was the worst pain imaginable.

Although eight out of 10 patients had been asked about their pain levels by staff, less than half of those had been asked to rate their pain on a numeric scale, the study says.

Build capacity in public interests

Kyei Sin Tha

In the morning of 30 January 2011, to be exact: at 9.30 am, Yangon International Airport was amidst the mist, but it was not shrouded.

Among the passengers onboard TG-304 of Thai Airways was a Myanmar delegation to the Republic of India that would visit governmental departments in New Delhi, Jaipur and Agra. The delegation led by Member U Soe Oo of the Civil Service Selection and Training Board was composed of 17 mid level public officers from the State Peace and Development Council Office, the Prime Minister's Office, the Ministry of Health, the Ministry of Information, the Ministry of Cooperatives, the Ministry of Culture, the Civil Service Selection and Training Board, the Central Institute of Civil Service (Phaunggyi), the Central Institute of Civil Service (Upper Myanmar), the University for Development of National Races, and Mandalay City Development Committee.

Our airplane landed Thuwunnabumi International Airport in Thailand at 11.15 am the local time. The Myanmar delegation was welcomed there by members of Myanmar Embassy to Thailand led by Military Attache Colonel Win Maung. We were temporarily accommodated at VIP-1 lounge of the airport, and were hosted a lunch at an airport restaurant.

We took a connecting flight by TG-315 at 8.45pm the same day and arrived at India Gandhi International Airport of the Republic of India at 1.15 pm the local time. At the airport, we received a welcome from staff members of Myanmar Embassy to India led by Charge d Affaires ai U Ba Hla Aye. We were given a lift to the Indian Institute of Public Administration (IIPA) where we would stay during our visit.

Our tour started on 31 January. It was my very first trip to India, so what I saw were all strange to me. At the outset, the itinerary brought up to the Indian Institute of Public Administration where Capacity Building Programme for civil services of the Myanmar delegation was conducted from 31 January to 4 February.

In addition, we had an opportunity to visit the Foreign Service Institute where we were briefed on constitution, academic matters, training programmes and functions of the institution by the officials. They also held a tea party for us. Then, we went sightseeing in downtown New Delhi under the arrangements of the Myanmar Embassy to India.

We called on Secretary Mr Uban Tripathi of the Union Public Service Commission of India at 9.15 am the following day. The secretary extended greetings to the Myanmar delegation.

The Myanmar delegation leader in his part said that he would like to express their sincere appreciation to the Government of India, particularly Indian Institute of Public Administration for hosting this first "Capacity Building Programme for officers of the Myanmar Civil Services from 31 January to 4 February; that he also thanked their sponsor "the Sasakawa Peace Foundation of Japan; that the programme was the result of IIPA of India and Myanmar's Civil Service Selection and Training Board (CSSTB), visioned and initiated by His Excellency U Kyaw Thu, the Chairman of CSSTB, who came here and discussed facts about the programme with the leadership of the Civil Service Institutions of India a few months ago; that the group led by himself was a total of 18, chosen out of 60 officials, who took part in the similar training programme in Myanmar in November 2010; that he believed that all of them would gain learning and understanding of the function of UPSC, as he found much interest in main functions of UPSC; that he knew that UPSC role was very important in terms of selecting public service personnel; that when he arrived back to his country, he would share and extend the knowledge he had gained from UPSC and other institutions; and that he wished the hosts all happiness and prosperity.

At 1.30 pm, the Myanmar delegation left New Delhi to Jaipur. Along the way, we enjoyed the scenes of natural beauty which were added to by lush and green paddy fields and mustard plantations, the project to upgrade the highway to a six-lane facility, organizational set-up of the new town, cameral carts, tamed elephants, and traditional businesses of residents.

We got to the State Institute of Public Administration in Jaipur designated as one of the world archaeological cities. We met Professor Mr Asha Singh at the institute who extended greetings to the Myanmar delegation.

We could not wait to visit two historic sites, Ambar Palace and Ambar Fort in Jaipur on 2 February. After our breakfast, we enjoyed Indian archaeological works in the two sites.

At 8.15 am on 3 February, we proceeded to Agra and visited Taj Mahal and Agra Fort. At 4.15 pm, we left for New Delhi and arrived at the Indian Institute of Public Administration at 9.30 pm.

On the morning of 4 February, the Myanmar Embassy arranged another package tour for the Myanmar delegation. That time, we visited Indian Gate and Red Fort in New Delhi. New Delhi is very large and populous with grand buildings throughout the capital, whose systematic housings and natural forests contribute to environmental conservation.

At 8.30 pm, the Indian Institute of Public Administration host a lovely dinner to us. Before dinner, Director Rakesh Hooja of the institute extended greetings to us. The Myanmar delegation leader in his part said that the programme had been for five days from 31 January to 4 February; that they had covered a lot both in important subjects relating to public services as well as geographical sites; that they visited the State Institute of Public Administration in Jaipur, the Union Public Service Commission, and Taj Mahal in Agra; that they felt the warm welcome and kind hospitality of different public service institutions of India during their trip; that they would like to thank Dr Rakesh Hooja for his kind coordination and Professor Sujata Singh for her good management and coordination along the trip, despite her usual busy schedules; and that they also thanked Mr Vajay Sharma for the assistance along the trip.

He went on to say that he thanked Sasakawa Peace Foundation of Japan for its sponsorship for the invaluable trip; that they also met Dr Agrawal, the Chairman of UPSC, and Dean of Foreign Service Institute where they exchanged views of interests; that in the following week, on their return to the Capital, they would brief their Chairman of CSSTB U Kyaw Thu on their experience and learning from that trip; that they would share the programme with other members of CSSTB; that it was the first programme of mid level public officers of Myanmar visiting India; that if there would be such programme in the future, they could benefit it as according to need base and other requirements; that on behalf of the group, he would like to thank all of the hosts and hoped to see them again.

At 1.15 am on 5 February, we left Indira Gandhi International Airport by TG-316 and arrived at Thuwunnabumi International Airport in Bangkok at 6.30 am. There, we were welcomed by staff of Myanmar Embassy to Thailand and conveyed to the Mya Buddha Institute. Then, Ambassador U Aung Thein hosted us a lunch at the Byroke Sky Hotel, which is the highest of its kind in the capital.

We went back home by TG-305. We felt all relaxed and refreshed just as we saw Yangon International Airport.

During the seven-day trip, we had to work to a very tight schedule. Apart from subjects, we compared notes for capacity building with officials from Indian institutes, and learnt a lot.

In reality, our trip was very beneficial to us. We had to learn and hold discussions at every site we had visited in India. Throughout the visit, we were exhausted, but we gained invaluable experiences and knowledge.

Now, the nation is being built into a modern, developed discipline-flourishing democratic one. So, the people especially civil servants have to build their capacity. Only then will the people enjoy higher socio-economic status. And the nation will enjoy greater development. We have done a lot, but have yet to work a lot. Civil servants of us have to continue working hard with a sense of duty. Now, the people can visualize the future of the nation which is marching towards a new system. All with positive attitude and correct concept have noticed that our country has a prosperous future ahead of it.

Guns stolen from Spanish army base

MADRID, 2 March — Rifles and handguns have been stolen from an army base in Spain's southwestern city of Badajoz, military officials said.

The robbery took place after midnight Sunday at the General Menacho Base arsenal. The sounding of an alarm brought security personnel rushing to the scene, where they discovered that weapons were missing. No one was, however, found inside the facility.

Officials said the evidence indicates organised-crime groups were behind the robbery.

The same base had earlier seen the attempted stealing of an automatic teller machine (ATM) from the bank branch located on the premises. The robbers tried to use a military armed transport vehicle to drag it away. But they were surprised by soldiers on guard duty and ran off.

The General Menacho Base is the headquarters of the 11th Mechanised Infantry Brigade.

Carrefour bomb extortionist jailed in southwest China

KUNMING, 2 March — A man who planted a bomb to extort money from a southwest China outlet of French retail giant Carrefour has been sentenced to seven years in prison.

Yue Jinwei, 31, was convicted of placing explosives in one Carrefour store and demanding 300,000 yuan (45,630 US dollars) on 19 June last year, according to the written judgment handed down Tuesday at the Panlong District Court in Kunming, capital of Yunnan Province.

Police arrested him that evening.

The Lingyun Law Firm, which represented Yue in the case, received the verdict Wednesday and faxed it to Xinhua. Yue told Carrefour in his extortion demand that he had placed explosive devices in three of the chain's stores in Kunming, which led to the emergency evacuations of customers and staff.

Realizing the gravity of the situation, Yue called Carrefour later in the day to abort the extortion bid. Although the extortion was abandoned, Yue's behavior had a huge social impact and caused much disruption, and he deserved imprisonment, the court ruled. A spokesman for the law office said the sentence was "a little heavier than expected" and they would talk with Yue about an appeal to a higher court.—Xinhua

SEOUL, 2 March—South Korea's Daewoo Shipbuilding and Marine Engineering said on Wednesday it has won a 1.2 trillion won ($1.06 billion) order to build two drill ships for Norway's Aker Drilling.

Daewoo said in a statement it will deliver the two vessels by late 2013 and has an option to build two more.

Japan's Nikkei 225 stock average was down

1.6 percent to 10,578.4, while South Korea's Kospi slipped 0.35 percent to 1,932.5. Australia's S&P/ASX 200 was off 0.8 percent, and shares in New Zealand were also lower.

The falls came after big drops in the US, where the Dow Jones industrial average lost 1.4 percent to 12,058.02, and the broader Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 1.6 to 1,306.33.

Paris' fall-winter 2011-12 read-to-wear shows began on Tuesday, but the surprise sacking of Dior's longtime designer John Galliano stole their thunder.

Word of Galliano's firing landed as Aganovich presented a fresh, offbeat debut runway show — but many in the crowd were transfixed by the news on their Blackberrys, and got distracted from the blue-themed collection.

"It's a tsunami," Dana Thomas, a veteran fashion critic and author of luxury industry expose "Deluxe: How Luxury Lost its Luster," said after the news broke.

Four rare Javan rhinos photographed in Indonesia

Four of the world's most rare rhinoceroses were captured by camera traps installed in an Indonesian national park, an environmental group said Monday. The footage from movement-triggered hidden cameras showed two mother Javan rhinos and two calves in Ujung Kulon National Park in November and December last year, said a release from the WWF-Indonesia.

Javan rhinos are one of the world's most endangered species with an estimated population of no more than 50 in Ujung Kulon. A few others live in Vietnam's Cat Tien National Park.

"This is good news to ensure that the population is viable," said Adhi Hariyadi, WWF project leader in the park.

The first "video trap" footage recorded in November showed a mother and calf, identified later as a male, walking steadily toward the camera. Several more videos of the family were obtained later.

In December, another 30-second video showed a larger calf with its mother. It was later identified as a female about a year old.

A homeless man in southeast Michigan says a woman accidentally gave him a gold ring laced with diamonds when she handed him a handful of change.

Michael Secaur tells The Oakland Press that he was panhandling at an intersection in Pontiac on Monday when a woman pulled up in a vehicle and handed him some money. He says the ring was among some coins, and that he thinks she "did an oops."

Secaur says he would recognize the woman if he saw her again.

He says he quickly dismissed a plan to pawn the ring. The owner of a shelter where Secaur often stays has locked it in a safety deposit box.

Secaur says he has lived on the streets of Pontiac for nearly two years.

Hoping for an on-screen comeback

Actress Lindsay Lohan. INTERNET

NEW YORK, 2 March— Lindsay Lohan says she wants to be identified with great films in the future, not the personal problems that have stalled her career in recent years. "I don't want that to be what I'm known for anymore — the tabloid stuff," she said Tuesday on the syndicated magazine show "Extra."

The troubled starlet acknowledged that her comeback won't be easy.

"There's going to be a lot of steps that I have to go through to kind of prove myself again," she said. In the latest of her off-screen woes, Lohan is charged with the theft of a $2,500 necklace from an upscale jewelry store. She has pleaded not guilty to that felony charge, which she did not discuss in the interview.

Brazilian filmmaker to direct "Robocop" remake

LOS ANGELES, 2 March—Jose Padilha, the director of the violent Brazilian "Elite Squad" cop movies, is in talks to direct a remake of "Robocop."

The 1987 original, directed by Paul Verhoeven, featured a cop who is brought back from the brink of death in the form of a cyborg with no memories of his prior life. It spawned two sequels.

The remake is a big priority at the newly reconstituted MGM, which met with directors last week. Others on the list included Robert Rodriguez and David Slade ("The Twilight Saga: Eclipse") — with Padilha emerging a top cop. No screenwriter is attached yet.

"Robocop" could act as the Hollywood debut for Padilha, whom the town has been high on since he directed 2007's "Elite Squad," a Berlin Film Festival winner set on the mean streets of Rio de Janeiro. The film was distributed domestically by the Weinstein Co. His 2010 follow-up is the highest-grossing film in Brazil's box office history, surpassing even Hollywood fare. It played at Sundance in January but has yet to secure a domestic deal.

Padilha was attached at one stage to direct "The Sigma Protocol," an adaptation of a Robert Ludlum novel, but has since moved on.

Euro 2012 a crucial boost for Polish clubs

business experts see the Euro 2012 host nation as fertile turf.

Lech's defeat last Thursday by Portugal's Sporting Braga in the Europa League round of 32 snuffed out Polish hopes in this season's continental competitions.

With 38 million people and a long footballing tradition, Poland have been serious under-achievers at club level, especially in recent years.

Legia Warsaw made it to the 1991 Cup Winners' Cup semi-finals and the 1996 Champions League quarter-finals.

But the days when the likes of Gornik Zabrze could reach a final — they lost the 1970 Cup Winners' Cup to England's Manchester City — are long gone.—Internet

Lampard slows United's title charge

LONDON, 2 March—Frank Lampard breathed fresh life into the Premier League title race as the Chelsea midfielder's controversial late penalty clinched a 2-1 victory over leaders Manchester United on Tuesday.

Lampard's dramatic winner came after referee Martin Atkinson ruled that United defender Chris Smalling had brought down Chelsea substitute Yuri Zhirkov with 10 minutes to go at Stamford Bridge.

It was a hammer blow for United, who suffered just their second league defeat this season despite taking the lead through Wayne Rooney's first-half strike.

Brazilian defender David Luiz equalised with his first goal for Chelsea soon after half-time and Lampard sealed the points before captain Nemanja Vidic was sent off for a second booking in stoppage time.—Internet

L'Equipe alleged that Kombouare criticised Edel for the error as the two men made their way towards the home changing room. Internet

Apple set to unveil new iPad, with or without Jobs

SAN FRANCISCO, 2 March—More than a year after igniting the tablet computing craze, Apple Inc prepares to unveil the second version of its blockbuster iPad on Wednesday — possibly minus lead showman Steve Jobs.

Plenty has changed over the course of the year. The iPad became a bona fide smash, essentially creating the tablet category and triggering a wave of me-too products that are just starting to hit the market. Now, as rivals Motorola and Research in Motion race to catch up, Apple itself is going through a transformation.

There is as much speculation about whether iconic Chief Executive Jobs will take the stage at Wednesday's event in San Francisco as there is about the new device. Jobs traditionally launches major products with a pizzazz and style that reflect his eye for detail and design. But he took indefinite medical leave last month and Apple has not given details of the cancer survivor's medical condition.

His absence is bound to spark a fresh round of speculation on his condition. And his presence will be scrutinized equally closely for any signals on his health.

Many in Silicon Valley and on Wall Street doubt he will return to the company he co-founded in 1976.

In his absence, it is a good bet that Tim Cook, the company's operations chief and Jobs' heir apparent, or marketing head Phil Schiller, will lead Wednesday's show.

If Cook does appear, investors will scrutinize his performance.—Reuters
