Perform meritorious deeds on Fullmoon Day of Tabaung

Today is Fullmoon Day of Tabaung, the twelfth and last month of the Myanmar calendar. Tabaung falls between the cold season and the hot season.

Religiously, Fullmoon Day of Tabaung is celebrated as a day on which the Buddha set out to return home. At the time, the Buddha was delivering a sermon to lay people from Inga and Magadha at Veluwun Monastery of Rajagjo. King Suddhodhana, the Buddha's father, sent his ten ministers to Rajagjo to invite the Buddha. Kaludayi Minister led the journey and became an Ahrat after hearing the Buddha's sermons. Then, Ahrat Kaludayi supplicated to the Buddha for an itinerary to Kapilawut, reciting 64 verses that portrayed the pleasant month of Tabaung and convincing the Buddha that it was time to return to his birth place, the Kapilawut Court, as a token of repaying parental gratitude. It was Fullmoon Day of Tabaung in 103 RE.

On the First Waning of Tabaung, the Buddha made a 60-day journey to Kapilawut.

Today, the people perform meritorious deeds such as holding Buddha Pujaniya at pagodas, reciting Pathhana, offering alms to members of the Sangha, and offering provisions at auspicious time in Tabaung.

On the auspicious occasion of the Fullmoon Day of Tabaung, Buddhist people are exhorted to constantly do meritorious deeds, contemplating the Supreme Attributes of the Buddha.

Brit Army to get supergun to counter Taliban snipers

LONDON, 18 March—The British Army is testing rifles fitted with a "gunfire locator" pod which uses sonar to calculate an enemy's position within 1.3 seconds in order to counter Taliban snipers in Afghanistan. The device described as an militants sniper's worst nightmare is set to save hundreds of lives. And to field test the technology soldiers of 3 Para offered themselves as targets last weekend to draw out sniper fire.

The hi-tech pod detects the muzzle blast sound made as a bullet is fired, then tracks the wave made as it moves through the air, The Sun reports.

The device, which uses the same motion sensor technology as in the Nintendo Wii, shows the range and elevation of the sniper on a clock face screen, enabling a soldier to fire back instantly and with accuracy almost the equal of a missile system. The SAS and front line troops will be the first to receive the pods - designed by Middlesex-based Ultra Electronics. The firm's Colin Howard said: "It enables you to run away in the right direction or take cover. You can also return fire accurately. We need to save lives, and you do that by knowing where the enemy is." Engineer Trevor Wood said the sensor was developed after bringing sonar technology up from underwater.—Internet

One dead as H1N1 virus returns to Venezuela

CARACAS, 18 March—At least one person has died from a resurgence of the Influenza A (H1N1) virus in Venezuela that infected 12 other people, Health Minister Eugenia Sader said on Thursday.

Sader said only one of those who tested positive had been hospitalised, with the others treating the disease at home.

Authorities emphasised that the latest outbreak was a far cry from the 2009 global H1N1 flu pandemic, which killed 114 Venezuelans.

Sader said the disease may have been brought in by one of the 160,000 tourists who flocked to the western state of Merida, near the Colombian border, for a bull-fighting festival.

Radiation in decline near troubled Fukushima nuke plant following water-dousing measures

An aerial view taken from a helicopter from Japan's Self-Defence Force shows damage to the No 4 reactor at the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power complex in this handout taken on 16 March, 2011 and released on 17 March, 2011.—INTERNET

TOKYO, 18 March—Radiation has seen a steady decline near the damaged Fukushima No 1 nuclear power plant following water-dousing measures taken Thursday, said the Nuclear and Industrial Safety Agency Friday.

According to Measurements taken by the agency around 1.1 km west of the plant's No 2 reactor, hourly radiation dose stood at 279.4 microsievert at 5 am Friday, down from 309 and 292 microsievert around the time when the Self-Defence Forces (SDF) shot water at the reactor to cool down the overheating spent fuel storage pool.

Agency officials said that they will work to restore electricity for No 1 and No 2 reactors Friday, and for No 3, No 4 reactors Sunday, to chill down the malfunctioned reactors and overheating storage pools.

The storage pools at the power station lost their cooling function after the colossal quake and tsunami hit northeastern and eastern Japan on 11 March. It is also no longer possible to monitor the water level and temperature of the pools of the four reactors.

On Thursday morning two SDF CH-47 helicopters dumped water in turn on the damaged No 3 reactor, followed by five fire and rescue trucks equipped with high-pressure water cannons shooting around 30 tons of water at the reactor later in the day.

Japan says water drops will continue

BEIJING, 18 March—Japan's nuclear crisis was triggered by the devastating earthquake last week. Emergency workers have air-dropped water over the Fukushima Dai-ichi Nuclear Plant's Number 3 Reactor, and similar efforts will continue on Friday.

Four of the Fukus-hima plant's six reactors have seen fires, explo-sions, damage to the structures housing the reactor cores, partial meltdowns or rising temperatures in the pools.

Japan is doing its best to cool the nuclear fuel rods to avoid further radiation. The main task aims at cooling the number 3 reactor. Two Japanese military helicopters began dum-ping seawater on it Thursday morning.

About 30 tons of water have been dropped. Special police units equipped with water cannons, however, could not reach the targets from safe distances and had to pull back.

The plant's owner, Tokyo Electric Power Corporation, says it believes SOME progress has been made in stabilizing radiation levels.

Meanwhile, engineers have also been trying to run power from the main grid, to start up pumps needed to cool the overheated reactor cores.

The company says to complete an emergency power cable is the first step towards recovery.

But there may be bad news too.

US officials, warn Unit 4 is seriously at risk. Washington says all the water has gone from the reactor's spent fuel pool and anyone close to it faces radiation.

Executives at the Fukushima nuclear plant have a different opinion, saying they believe the rods in that pool are covered with water. But an official from Japan's nuclear safety agency later moved closer to the US position.—Xinhua

Power plant stable, but may deteriorate

BEIJING, 18 March—A senior advisor to the IAEA Director General says the situation at Japan's quake-crippled nuclear power plant is stable, but it may deteriorate.

Graham Andrew said, "So, concerning the current situation, at the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant, the situation remains serious, but there's been no significant worsening since yesterday. The current situation at units one, two and three, whose cores have suffered damage, appears to be relatively stable.

Seawater is being injected into all three units, using fire exting-uishing hoses, but the containment pressures are fluctuating. Unit four, in particular, remains a major safety concern: no information is available on the level of water in the spend fuel pond, no water temperature indication from the unit four spent fuel pond has been received since 14th March, when the temperature was 84 degrees Centigrade."

Constant rain hampers recovery efforts in Australia's Queensland

BRISBANE, 18 March—Constant rain in north Queensland of Australia has severely hampered the recovery efforts after tropical Cyclone Yasi and damaged the morale of victims and volunteers, the head of Queensland's Flood Recovery Taskforce said on Friday.

Australian army Major General Mick Slater, who is in charge of the reconstruction of north Queensland following major floods and Yasi, said disaster zones were not being resurrected or attended to as quickly as first hoped due to bad weather.

"Immediately following the cyclone, the military, the emergency services and community volunteers from across the affected region came together and worked really well," Slater told Australia's national prime TV, Channel Nine's Today Show.

"But people are starting to feel fatigued and the lack of progress because of the continuing rain in some areas is starting to get people's spirits down," Slater said. He said Prince William's arrival on the weekend in north Queensland, as part of his visit to the disaster affected areas in Australia, will suffice to reinvigorate the spirits of locals who are still suffering from the Queensland's worst disaster.

China's peaceful development opportunity for world

LONDON, 18 March—China's peaceful development is win-win to others and it's a blessing and opportunity to the whole world, Chinese ambassador to Britain Liu Xiaoming said here Thursday. The thinking and the direction of China's development for the next five years can be seen at its 12th Five Year Plan which boils down into two key terms "scientific development" and "peaceful development," Liu said in a speech delivered at the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

"China's future has never been so closely linked to that of the rest of the world and it's scientific development calls for international cooperation and a peaceful environment," the ambassador said. "China's peaceful development is open, cooperative and win-win to others," Liu emphasized. "It is a blessing and opportunity to the world. The more developed China becomes, the greater its contribution to the world will be."

Liu pointed out as China has become the world's largest exporter and manufacturer and has attracted over 700 billion US dollars of foreign investment over the past decade, and that China's peaceful development is an engine and opportunity for world economic growth.

Taking China's active involvement in UN peacekeeping missions and its efforts to facilitate the Six-Party Talks as examples, Liu said China's peaceful development has proved to be a strong force for world peace and stability.

Liu urged his audience to reject stereotyped thinking, try to hear, to see and to understand China with an open mind, and seize opportunities presented by China's development.

Home prices in China continued to rise in February

BEIJING, 18 March—Home prices in most major Chinese cities continued to rise month on month in February despite government efforts to cool the property market, according to the National Bureau of Statistics (NBS) Friday.

Month-on-month price declines of new commercial homes were reported only in eight cities out of the NBS' statistical pool of 70 major Chinese cities, prices stood unchanged in six cities, while 56 other cities posted monthly price gains.

As for resold housing units, home prices continued to increase in 50 major cities in February from January, only four cities reported second-hand home price declines month on month in February, according to data released by the NBS on its website.

On a year-on-year basis, prices of new homes rose in 68 out of the 70 major Chinese cities.

In the national capital Beijing where the municipal government raised the down payment requirement and banned third-home purchases, new home prices rose 0.4 percent in February from January, and 6.8 percent year on year.

Chocolate seen as ancient trade offering

PHILADELPHIA, 18 March—Chocolate may have been a driving factor in extensive trade between ancient northern and southern societies in the Americas, US researchers say.

Scientists say Pueblo people living in what's now the US Southwest drank a cacao-based beverage that was probably imported from Mesoamerican cultures in southern Mexico or Central America, ScienceNews.org reported Thursday.

Pueblo groups and subsequent Southwest societies traded turquoise for Mesoamerican cacao for about five centuries, from around 900 to 1400, archaeologist Dorothy Washburn of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia theorizes. A chemical analysis of Pueblo vessels suggests large numbers of people throughout Pueblo society consumed cacao, from low-ranking farmers to elite residents of a multistorey pueblo, she said.

"Since cacao was consumed by both Pueblo elites and non-elites, active trading for cacao must have occurred with Mesoamerican states," Washburn said. Evidence of cacao drinking by Pueblo people surprised many archaeologists who have long assumed that cultures of the Southwest and Mesoamerica had minimal contact.—Internet

Injured camel euthanized at Miami zoo

MIAMI, 18 March—Officials at Zoo Miami say a camel was euthanized after being injured in an incident involving an escaped Indian Guar, a type of wild cattle. The elderly female dromedary camel was euthanized Wednesday because of pre-existing conditions that were made worse when she panicked and fell after the escaped Guar jumped into the camel exhibit last week, WFOR-TV, Miami, reported.

The 14-year-old camel was able to stand up after the fall, but it became apparent there was severe muscular and joint damage that became worse during the last few days, zoo spokesman Ron Magill said. In its final 24 hours the animal was completely unable to remain on its feet, he said.

The camel had already been under treatment for leg and joint problems associated with advanced age, zoo workers said.

The escaped Guar was out of its exhibit for about a half hour but never ventured into any public areas. Zoo officials said a compromised area in the rear moat of the Guar exhibit allowed the animal to breach the barrier.

Modifications were being made to prevent similar incidents, they said.—Internet

Toshiba LCD plant out, Lenovo frets about supplies

TOKYO, 18 March—Toshiba Corp said an assembly line in Japan making small liquid crystal displays would be closed for a month, and PC maker Lenovo Group Ltd voiced worries over parts, highlighting the threat to global supply chains from Japan's devastating earthquake.

Hitachi Ltd also said production of small LCDs will be halted at its factory near Tokyo for a month as it deals with damage and power outages stemming from last week's 9.0 magnitude earthquake.

The closures are the latest in a series of plant shutdowns by Japanese companies following the earthquake, tsunami and subsequent nuclear fallout threat, which threaten supplies of everything from semiconductors to car parts to manufacturers across the globe.

Any lengthy disruptions to regional production networks could spill over into global supply chains, potentially putting a dent in corporate profits and economic growth more broadly — worries over which have been reflected in falls in global share prices.

Toshiba's assembly line at a plant near Tokyo making LCDs for smartphones and other devices will be closed to repair sensitive equipment knocked out of alignment by the quake, a Toshiba spokeswoman said on Thursday.

Child, teen heart screening may cut deaths

PHILADELPHIA, 18 March—US researchers found in a pilot study screening detects potentially serious heart conditions in healthy children that can result in sudden cardiac arrest.

Study leader Dr Victoria L Vetter, a pediatric cardiologist at The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, said the preliminary results suggest a relatively low-cost screening — a 10-minute electrocardiogram — might help identify children who are at risk for sudden cardiac arrest.

"In the United States, the current American Heart Association guidelines recommend screening only competitive athletes, not all children, using history and physical examination alone," Vetter said in a statement.

In Italy and Japan, which have compulsory screening of all athletes or schoolchildren, researchers found adding the ECG to the history and physical increases the likelihood of detecting children at risk for sudden cardiac arrest.

The researchers evaluated 400 healthy subjects ages 5-19 who were screened using a medical family history questionnaire, a physical examination, an ECG and an echocardiogram. The study, published in the American Heart Journal, identified previously undiagnosed cardiac abnormalities in 23 subjects, and hypertension in an additional 20, with 10 of the 400 subjects with serious cardiac conditions not detected by primary care physicians.

"Using ECG outperformed the history and physical examination and found previously unidentified potentially serious abnormalities that would not have been identified by history and physical examination alone," the study authors said.

US inflation rate hits 0.5% in February

NEW YORK, 18 March —US prices rose 0.5% in February compared with the previous month, as food and fuel prices continued to exert pressure on the economy.

The change, higher than the 0.4% seen in January, was the fastest monthly rate of increase in nearly two years.

The core rate of inflation, which strips out food and energy costs, rose by 0.2% — the same as in January. Consumer Price Index inflation hit an annual

2.1%, up from 1.6% in the year to January, the Labour Department said.

Food price inflation was a key driver of the increase. Food costs went up by 0.6% month-on-month, the most in two-and-a-half years. Petrol prices rose even faster, up 4.7%. But apart from those two categories, price rises were more muted. —Internet

Huge lobster saved from the pot

One of the biggest and oldest lobsters ever caught in Britain has been saved from the pot and will live out the rest of its long life in an aquarium.

The massive crustacean measures close to one metre (3 feet) in length and weighs more than 4 kg (9 lb).

"He's a fantastic specimen and by his size alone he has got to be at least 50 years old," said Lindsay Holloway of the Blue Reef aquarium in Portsmouth, where the lobster now lives.

"He is an amazing creature and it's quite an achievement to have reached such an impressive age," he added. The lobster was caught in around 14 feet of water by a compassionate angler fishing for sole in Bracklesham Bay, off the coast of West Sussex.

Lobsters are among the planet's oldest inhabitants with fossil remains found dating back more than 100 million years. They are also extremely long-lived with some reaching ages of over 80 years.

The aquarium said the heaviest recorded crustacean is an Atlantic lobster nicknamed Mike who was caught in 1934 and tipped the scales at an awesome 19 kg.

Californian sea lion star Miller dies at 30

The Aquarium of the Pacific in Southern California announced Wednesday that Miller, one of its most famous sea lion performers, has died. He was 30 years old.

Miller died of natural causes, the aquarium said. In the wild, sea lions often live to between 15 and 17 years, while those living in captivity can reach up to 30 years in age.

He was the fifth oldest male sea lion in any zoological institution and had "retired" last year to a behind-the-scenes area at the Long Beach-based aquarium for health and safety reasons last year.

Born in the wild in 1981, Miller was rescued from a beach in San Diego by a marine rehabilitation facility. Deemed not to be a candidate for release back into the ocean, the animal was then adopted and trained for a career as a performing sea lion at Southern California amusement parks.

At 18 years of age, Miller came to Aquarium of the Pacific in September 1998 as an already-seasoned performer for the facility's daily seal and sea lion shows and for visitors to meet during up-close animal encounters. The star's 29th birthday in July 2009 was reported live by a local television news crew during a special presentation.

Woman arrested for DUI scolding police for parking

A US woman was arrested for drunken driving in Westminster, Colorado, after she drove up to a suspected DUI traffic collision and complained to officers about how they parked their patrol cars, media reported on Thursday. The crash happened Sunday at the intersection of West 99th and 100th avenues in Westminster. Katherine Morse, 48, decided to pull up and stop at about 5:15 pm while officers were investigating a DUI-related crash.

"Katherine Morse thought it was a terrible place for officers to conduct a traffic stop, so she herself stopped to check on the drunk driver she thought had been pulled over," says Westminster police spokesman Trevor Materasso.

Fall in audience to see Spanish films

MADRID, 18 March—The year 2010 saw a sharp decline in the number of spectators going to see films in Spain's cinemas, according to figures published this week. The Spanish Ministry of Culture made public figures that Spanish films brought in earnings of 80,277,621 euros (112,600,000 US dollars) and had 12,928,363 viewers in cinemas in 2010 in comparison with earnings of 104,367,061 (146,500,000 dollars) in 2009, when 17,480,282 people went to see a Spanish film in the cinema.

The figures are better than expected. It had been predicted that the earnings for the year would be closer to 69 million euros, but there was still a loss of over 4 million spectators in 2010. Video piracy and the increased popularity of seeing films on the internet are two factors for the decline in cinema audiences. The former president of the Spanish Film Academy, Alex de la Iglesia, recognised that factor in his speech in the prestigious Goya Awards last month.—Xinhua

Wenger confirms shock Lehmann return

LONDON, 18 March — Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger confirmed on Thursday that goalkeeper Jens Lehmann is set to re-join the club until the end of the season. Lehmann, 41, has been a free agent since retiring in 2010 after two years with German club Stuttgart. Manuel Almunia is currently Arsenal's only fit senior goalkeeper because of injuries to Wojciech Szczesny, Lukasz Fabianski and Vito Mannone. "Lehmann is training with us and will sign for the rest of the season," said Wenger. "We have no cover in the Premier League, so that is why I decided to bring Jens back. He has not signed, but a contract has been agreed."

Lehmann made 199 appearances for Arsenal between 2003 and 2008. The former Germany international won the Premier League title in 2004, as well as the FA Cup in 2005, but left the club in 2008 after losing his place to Almunia. Should he sign in time, Lehmann could be named in Arsenal's squad for the Premier League trip to West Bromwich Albion on Saturday. Rebels Evra and Ribery get France recalls

PARIS, 18 March — Two of France's World Cup rebels Patrice Evra and Franck Ribery were called up for international duty on Thursday for the first time since a troubled 2010 World Cup saw them hit with sanctions. Coach Laurent Blanc named former captain Evra and Bayern Munich winger Ribery in the 23-man squad to face Luxembourg away in a Euro 2012 qualifier on March 25 and a friendly with Croatia in Paris four days later.

Highly-rated left-back Evra has now served a five-match ban for his leading role in a World Cup training ground strike. Senior squad member Ribery picked up a three-match ban for his role in the strike, but his absence was prolonged by injury. Blanc had described Ribery as "indispensable",

Abidal surgery completed 'without incident'

France defender Eric Abidal

MADRID, 18 March — Barcelona's French defender Eric Abidal underwent surgery "without incident" on Thursday to remove a liver tumour, the defending Spanish champions said.

Doctors at Barcelona's Hospital Clinic managed to remove the entire tumour during the operation, which lasted around three hours, it said in a statement posted on its website.

"Depending on how he evolves, the player may be discharged from hospital in approximately one week. In accordance with the specific wishes of the player, the club demands the maximum respect for his privacy at this moment," it said.

The tumour was removed by laparoscopy, an increasingly popular type of surgery in which doctors make a few small incisions, compared with traditional surgery, in which they make one long cut to enter the body.

Unbeaten Lucian Bute

Unbeaten Bute defends title against Ulsterman

MONTREAL, 18 March — Unbeaten Lucian Bute will make the seventh defence of his International Boxing Federation super middleweight crown against Brian Magee of Northern Ireland on Saturday in a showdown of southpaw stars. Bute, a Romanian-born fighter based in Montreal, is 27-0 with 22 knockouts and has stopped foes inside the distance in six of his past seven starts dating to his 2007 title-claiming victory over Colombia's Alejandro Berrio.

It will be only the second time in his career that Bute, 31, has walked into the ring against a fellow left-hander and the first time since 2007, but the hometown idol is not worried. "We had left-handed sparring partners and watched a lot of video on Magee," Bute said. "He's experienced. He is very aggressive and he can punch. I can't underestimate him. I'm ready for a long, tough fight."

Magee, 34-3 with one drawn and 24 knockouts, is the former European champion in the weight class. The 35-year-old Ulsterman is on a 10-fight unbeaten run and has not lost since being stopped by Britain's Carl Froch in 2006.— Internet

Casey takes the early lead in Tampa

PALM HARBOR, 18 March — Paul Casey changed his schedule leading up the Masters, and it's starting to look like a good move.

Once the fog lifted, Casey played bogey-free on the tough Copperhead course at Innisbrook on Thursday for a 7-under 64 to take the lead among the early starters at the Transitions Championship.

"The state of my game is going in the right direction," Casey said.

Casey made back-to-back birdies late in his round to surge past Nick Watney, who is coming off the biggest win of his career last week in the World Golf Championship at Doral.

Watney had seven birdies in 12 holes before missing a few greens toward the end of his round and settling for a 66.

Wozniacki, Sharapova reach semis at Indian Wells

INDIAN WELLS, 18 March — Top seed Caroline Wozniacki, whose opponent pulled out with a painful injury, eased into the Indian Wells semifinals where she was joined by Maria Sharapova. Wozniacki, of Denmark, was ahead 3-0 when Victoria Azarenka packed it in after taking a lengthy medical timeout to receive treatment for an injury to the left side of her hip.

The eighth seed Azarenka suffered the setback just 10 minutes into the match on the second point of the third game while stretching to try and return a shot. World number one Wozniacki, who is good friends with Azarenka, said she was sorry to have to win that way.

Sharapova won her quarter-final despite committing 13 double faults and winning just 27 percent of her second-serve points.

Neither player could hold serve at the start of the deciding set but then Sharapova found a spark in the sixth game to hold serve for the first time in the set and level the score at 3-3. Sharapova also won the next three games to take the match.
