Tatmadaw always at the service of people

The Passing out Parade of the 114th Intake of the Defence Services (Army) Officers Training School was held at the parade ground in Bahtoo Tatmyo on 8 April, with an address by Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services General Min Aung Hlaing.

In his address, the Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services said, "The Armed Forces must obey military and civic rules, regulations and laws more strictly. Every battalion and Tatmadawman will be trained to be equipped with five basic skills."

Today, the Tatmadaw is being built as a strong, capable and modern patriotic one. The Tatmadaw is being equipped with the military capability, the organizational capability and the administrative capability to become reliable one for the State and be respected by the international community.

Myanmar, being a Union, is home to various national races. All the national races are residing in the nation in unity and amity through thick and thin by forging the Union Spirit. The Tatmadaw formed with the beloved sons of the national races are discharging duties in their respective regions to serve the interest of the national people as part of efforts to forge the Union Spirit.

The Tatmadaw side by side with the national people safeguarded the country against internal and external destructive elements both in the independence struggles and in the post-independence period. It also thwarted the attempts to drive a wedge among the national brethren living in friendship and amity. The Tatmadaw averted the attempt of super powers to hegemonize the country as well. Moreover, the Tatmadaw is discharging State defence duty, training duty and public welfare task as three main tasks.

In building a strong, capable, modern and patriotic Tatmadaw which will reflect the dignity of the State, and safeguard the peaceful, modern and developed nation, the Tatmadawmen are the major human resources. The Tatmadawmen including the graduate officers are to try their best for continuously serving the interests of the State and the people in accord with the noble and fine traditions of the Tatmadaw.

security forces subject women to harassment, humiliation and sexual abuses in addition to depriving them of freedom of movement and access to work, hospitals and colleges.

Unemployment crisis spreads in Iraqi

Unemployment fuels crime, and since 2003 Iraq's job market has been struggling to cope from the ravages of war. It's a problem that can only deteriorate as inflation bites and the cost of living rises. It is worth mentioning that the increasing number of the unemployed since 2003 has increased the rate of crime too. With the lack of job opportunities, jobless youngsters with high ambitions would do anything for money.

NASA, Europe redraw Mars mission plan

GREENBELT, 9 April—US and European space planners say they're looking at flying just one rover to Mars in 2018 instead of the tandem mission of two rovers originally planned.

In the original proposal, one rover would have investigated below the surface with a drill while the other collected interesting rocks for later return to Earth, the BBC reported Thursday.

Cost concerns have prompted NASA and the European Space Agency to consider combining these roles into a single vehicle.

The modified proposal was discussed between the partners in California and subsequently received broad support from ESA member states in a meeting Thursday.

The new rover would be larger than either of the vehicles in the original concept, known as ExoMars (ESA) and Max-C (NASA).

One proposal is that the new vehicle would be built in Europe and carry a mix of European and US instruments while NASA would provide the launch rocket and a "mothership" to carry it to Mars.

Asteroid shadows Earth's orbit

ARMAGH, 9 April—British scientists say Earth has a celestial follower, an asteroid discovered moving in roughly the same orbit our planet occupies.

However, worries about a collision are unnecessary, researchers at the Armagh Observatory in the United Kingdom said in an article in the Monthly Notices of the Royal Astronomical Society.

Computer models reveal that for the foreseeable future the asteroid, 2010 S016, will stay at least 12 million miles away from Earth, AAAS Science-Mag.org reported Friday.

The asteroid, which is probably between 200 and 400 yards across, moves in a horseshoe-shaped path that sometimes carries it to the far side of the sun.

Its orbit has been stable for at least 250,000 years, the models reveal, and will likely remain so for at least 200,000 years into the future.—Internet

YouTube adds stage for live events

SAN FRANCISCO, 9 April—YouTube on Friday added a stage for live events as the world's leading video-sharing website continued its effort to woo viewers away from television programming.

YouTube Live launched online at youtube.com/live, letting people subscribe to watch shows or events streamed by the Google-owned operation's partners.

A "Digitour" performance by top YouTube musicians was scheduled for live streaming at 7:00 pm (0200 GMT Saturday).

YouTube planned to gradually roll out a test version of a platform that would allow established video contributors with accounts in good standing to stream their own real-time shows.

YouTube has live-streamed concerts, sporting events and interviews in the past on an intermittent basis.

The Live platform would make real-time programming a standard part of the service.

"The goal is to provide thousands of partners with the capability to live stream from their channels in the months ahead," product manager Joshua Siegel and product marketing manager Christopher Hamilton said in a blog post.

More than two billion videos are viewed daily at YouTube, which has been gradually modifying its service to get people to spend more time at the website and less time staring at television screens.

Software helps disabled use computer mouse

SEATTLE, 9 April—US computer scientists say a free software programme can help people with motor disabilities who have trouble using a computer mouse.

The Pointing Magnifier, developed by researchers at the University of Washington, combines a large area cursor with visual and motor magnification, reducing need for fine, precise pointing, a university release said Friday.

Running on Windows, the software replaces the normal cursor with a large, circular cursor the user places over the target area of the screen and then clicks. The Pointing Magnifier then magnifies everything under that circular area until it fills the screen, making even tiny targets large. The user then clicks with a point cursor inside that magnified area, acquiring the target.

Although the Pointing Magnifier requires two clicks, it's much easier to use than a conventional mouse, which can require many clicks for someone with a motor disability to connect with a small target.

"It's less expensive to create computer solutions for people who have disabilities if you focus on software rather than specialized hardware, and software is usually easier to procure than hardware," said Jacob O Wobbrock, an assistant professor in the university's Information School.

Health Tip: Storing breast milk

Expressed breast milk can be frozen for later use. The Nemours Foundation says it's important to use sterile bottles or hard plastic cups with tight caps, or "nursing bags" that are specially designed to store breast milk.

The containers should be labeled with the date they were frozen. And fresh milk should never be added to milk previously stored. The foundation adds these suggestions:

- * When filling the container, leave about an inch of room to allow the milk to expand as it freezes.
- * If you store the milk in a freezer compartment within a refrigerator, it can be stored for as long as two weeks.
- * When storing in a self-contained freezer, you can store breast milk for as long as four months at 0 degrees Fahrenheit.
- * Store the milk at the back of the freezer, rather than in the door where it may occasionally begin to thaw.
- * Don't refreeze breast milk that has been thawed. Use it within 24 hours of thawing and refrigerating.

Vegetarian diet linked to lower cataract risk

NEW YORK, 9 April—Eating less meat and more vegetables is tied to a lower risk of cataracts, a British study says.

In a large dietary survey that followed people for as long as 15 years, researchers found that about three in 50 meat eaters had cataracts, compared to about two in 50 vegans and vegetarians.

The results translated to a 30 to 40 percent lower cataract risk among vegetarians and vegans compared with the biggest meat eaters. "People who don't eat meat have a significantly lower risk of developing cataracts," said Naomi Allen, an epidemiologist at the UK's University of Oxford who coauthored the study.

A cataract occurs when the lens of the eye becomes cloudy, blurring vision. They're more common in older people, and more than half of Americans either have cataracts by the time they're 80 or have had surgery for them, according to the National Eye Institute.

The British findings do not mean that people should necessarily become vegetarians to avoid getting cataracts, Allen told Reuters Health.

The study does not prove that eating meat promotes cataracts. Eating a lot of vegetables might be protective, for instance - some past research has linked certain nutrients in plant foods to a lowered risk of cataracts.

Nissan makes temporary production cuts in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, 9 April—Nissan Motor Co plans to close for up to 15 days its two assembly plants in Mexico because of a shortage of parts from Japan after the 11 March earthquake and tsunami, the company said.

The Japanese auto maker on Friday said its plant in Aguascalientes would suspend activities from 11-26 April, while the plant in Cuernavaca would stop work between 18-24 April.

The reductions will mean 12,500 fewer vehicles produced, the company said, adding that it hopes to make up for the reduction later in the year.

About eight percent of the parts used in Mexico come from Japan. Toyota, General Motors and Chrysler also have announced production cutbacks in North America as because of the shortage of parts from Japan.—Internet

Banks to post profits, but loan growth elusive

CHARLOTTE, 9 April.—Investors looking for loan growth and surging revenues at the biggest US banks, including Citigroup Inc (CN) are likely to be disappointed by first-quarter earnings.

Banks have been generating most of their profits in recent quarters from dipping into money they previously set aside to cover bad loans.

Those reserve reductions make sense if credit losses are stabilizing, which seems to be the case.

But banks cannot reduce their loan loss reserves forever and at this point profit growth must come from making more money from loans and generating more fees, analysts said.

Boosting interest income from loans is tough when the interest rates at which banks lend are so low and loan demand is still tepid. Fee income, meanwhile, is being threatened by future regulatory changes.

"The revenue line will be key, that's what most investors will be focusing on," said Jason Ware, senior equities analyst at Albion Financial Group. The Salt Lake City-based wealth manager oversees $650 million in client assets.

"The question everyone has is 'Where does the top line go from here?'" he said.

Google seals ITA deal but antitrust review looms

WASHINGTON, 9 April—The Justice Department approved Google Inc's purchase of ITA Software with stiff conditions on Friday, and left the door open to a larger probe into whether Google manipulates search results to hurt rivals.

The decision, which allows Google to expand into the online travel market, comes as new CEO Larry Page revamped the company's management structure in a bid to accelerate efforts in social networking, mobile and other key businesses.

The Justice Department blessed Google's $700 million deal with the ticketing software company. Google promised to license the software for five years, to continue to upgrade it, and to establish firewalls to protect ITA clients' intellectual property.

The ITA buy is part of an acquisition and hiring spree as Google aims to ensure its online services stay on top as Internet surfers go mobile and turn to services like the wildly popular Facebook.

Now, US antitrust regulators will turn to the question of whether to open a formal antitrust probe into allegations that Google, the world's No 1 Internet search engine, manipulates search results, a source told Reuters on Friday.—Reuters

Somali pirates free Greek supertanker

ATHENS, 9 April—Greek authorities said Friday that Somali pirates released a Greek-flagged supertanker captured two months ago off the coast of Oman, while the EU's anti-piracy force say another ship in the same region was hijacked.

The EU Naval Force said that at least 10 pirates boarded the German-owned MV Susan on Friday off East Africa only 35 miles (55 kilometers) south of Oman's coast. The vessel was heading to Sudan from Mumbai, India.

The ship had a crew of 10 — six Filipinos and four Ukrainians.

Meanwhile, Greece's Merchant Marine Ministry said that according to the shipowning company, the Irene SL and its 25-member crew had been released unharmed and the ship was heading to the port of Durban in South Africa.

It did not say whether a ransom had been paid.

Somali pirates had captured the ship and its cargo of 266,000 tons of crude oil on 9 Feb, about 230 miles (370 kilometers) east of Oman.

Boeing 737s around the world face new scrutiny

PHOENIX, 9 April—The crown prince of Thailand has one. So do the presidents of Peru and Chile. The Chinese Air Force relies on it, as do airlines in Russia, Indonesia, Australia and Romania.

The Boeing 737 is a workhorse of international aviation. And the accident in which the roof of a Southwest Airlines jet ripped open 34,000 feet over Arizona has brought scrutiny to the hundreds of older-model 737s around the world that could be similarly vulnerable because of tiny, hard-to-find stress fractures in the aluminum skin.

The planes will now be subjected to repeated examinations as the problem revealed by the fuselage crack on the Southwest flight resonates through the world's 737 fleet for years to come.

Many of their owners are now giving the planes a closer look after what happened 1 April in Arizona when a 5-foot section of the fuselage tore apart and forced pilots to make an emergency landing at a desert military base.

Light-headed passengers were banged around the cabin and had to quickly put on overhead oxygen masks as pilots made a rapid descent.

The incident has forced airlines and governments around the world to take swift action.

The governments of Japan, Indonesia, South Korea and others ordered airlines to beef up inspections. Scandinavian airline SAS is performing similar checks on some of its 737s.

US corn reserves expected to fall to 15-year low

ST LOUIS, 9 April—Rising demand for corn from ethanol producers is pushing US reserves to the lowest point in 15 years, a trend that could lead to higher grain and food prices this year.

The Agriculture Department on Friday left its estimate for corn reserves unchanged from the previous month. The reserves are projected to fall to 675 million bushels in late August, when the harvest begins, or roughly 5 percent of all corn consumed in the United States. That would be the lowest surplus level since 1996.

The limited supply is chiefly because of increasing demand from ethanol makers, which rose 1 percent to 5 billion bushels. That's about 40 percent of the total crop.

But the increase didn't alter the agency's overall estimate, mostly because livestock producers are expected to scale back their corn purchases. The Agriculture Department estimated that demand from livestock producers fell 1 percent to 5.15 billion bushels.

Crops prices rose about 1 percent to $7.67 during morning trading, shortly after the report was released. The price of soybean rose 1 percent to $13.80 a bushel. Wheat was virtually unchanged at $7.76 a bushel.

Nitrite, perhaps in milk, kills three Chinese children

BEIJING, 9 April—Official media say three children have died from nitrite poisoning after drinking milk from two dairies in northwestern China. Thirty-five others, mostly children, were sickened and are being treated.

The website of Pingliang News, a City government newspaper in Gansu Province, said Friday one of the patients is in critical condition.

It said the dairies have been sealed off while their managers are investigated.

A staffer surnamed Huang at the City's news office says authorities have asked food and health experts to determine the source of the nitrite.

In 2008, six children died and hundreds of thousands were sickened after drinking milk containing melamine, which raises nitrogen levels, making milk appear richer in protein.

MATAMOROS, 9 April—Pablo Cote dialed his father's cell phone for 24 hours after he failed to return from a business trip to San Fernando, a town near the US border where the body count from 10 mass graves rose to 72 on Friday.

Finally a strange man answered: "Stop bothering me. He doesn't have this phone anymore. If you keep bothering me, you'll see what happens."

Though he had yet to identify the body, Cote said his father's driver's license was recovered in one of the graves as people across Mexico contacted authorities in search of the disappeared, including dozens who vanished from buses as they crossed the same part of northern Mexico headed to the United States. Federal authorities said they are holding 14 people — 12 men and two women — as suspects in the second mass killing in violent Tamaulipas state, the scene of a massacre of 72 migrants last August.

The federal Attorney General's Office said there was evidence that most of the suspects belonged to the Zetas drug gang, the same group blamed for the August massacre.—Internet

Massive pumps heading to damaged reactors in Japan

One of the world's largest concrete boom pumps, from Putzmeister America, is loaded onto a Russian Antonov An-124 cargo jet at the Los Angeles International Airport on 8 April, 2011.
INTERNET

ATLANTA, 9 April — A massive Russian cargo plane roared into Atlanta on Friday to pick up one of the world's largest concrete pumps, which has been retrofitted to pour water on a Japanese nuclear power plant stricken by an earthquake and tsunami.

The 190,000-pound pump designed by Wisconsin-based Putzmeister America Inc comes mounted on a 26-wheel truck. Its extendable boom can reach more than 200 feet, and can be operated two miles away by remote control, making it possible to shoot water into hard-to-reach places at the Fukushima Dai-ichi nuclear power plant in Japan. If necessary, the pump could also entomb a damaged nuclear reactor in concrete. After a 1986 disaster, Putzmeister sent 11 pumps to pour concrete over parts of the Chernobyl nuclear plant in Ukraine.

"Our whole company feels hopeful that our equipment can be used to make a difference in helping solve the problem," Putzmeister America CEO Dave Adams said while watching the plane arrive.

Japanese authorities have struggled to cool the plant's reactors after a 11 March earthquake and tsunami knocked out its backup cooling systems. The facility has been rocked by explosions, spewed radiation and may have suffered a partial meltdown of its nuclear fuel.—Internet

BP buys part of Mississippi Gulf barrier island

HOUSTON, 9 April — Oil giant BP has closed a deal to buy part of the Mississippi Gulf barrier island for the purpose of expediting cleanup of the islands after the BP oil spill, local media reported Friday.

BP bought a section of Cat Island last week from the Boddie family, which owns a large area of the island, and the price of the purchase was not revealed, according to local TV channel WLOX. "The purchase of this section of Cat Island is in keeping with BP's commitment to preserve and protect the environment, ecology, and historical significance of the Mississippi barrier islands for future generations," the company said in a statement obtained by WLOX.

BP spokesman Ray Melick also told the newspaper The Sun Herald that the purchase will help it expedite cleanup of the islands in the wake of the BP oil spill.

Toshiba 'could decommission Japan reactors'

TOKYO, 9 April — Reactor maker Toshiba has told the government it could decommission four stricken units at Japan's crippled nuclear plant in around 10 years, a report said.

The time frame is around two-thirds of that needed to dismantle the Three Mile Island nuclear plant in the United States after a 1979 incident in which part of a reactor core melted.

The company, one of two that makes reactors in Japan, submitted the proposal to Tokyo Electric Power (TEP-CO), the operator of the radiation-leaking Fukushima plant, and to the government, news agency Kyodo reported, citing unnamed sources.

Toshiba believes it can use expertise gained by its US subsidiary, Westinghouse Electric, in the aftermath of the Three Mile Island accident to hasten the process at Fukushima, Kyodo said.

"According to the proposal, it will take about 10 years to remove the fuel rods in the containers and the spent nuclear fuel rods in the storage pools from the four reactors, to demolish various facilities there and to improve soil conditions," Kyodo said.

Colorado police pepper-spray misbehaving boy, 8

DENVER, 9 April—The staff at the Colorado elementary school said no one could calm 8-year-old Aidan Elliott.

He had just thrown a

TV and chairs and was now trying to use a cart to bust through a door to an office where teachers had taken some young students for safety.

They called the police. The officers found him with a foot-long piece of wood trim with a knife-like point in one hand and a cardboard box in the other. "Come get me, f—," he said.

When they couldn't calm him down, one squirted Aidan with pepper spray. He blocked it with the cardboard box.

A second squirt hit the youngster in the side of the head, and down he went, according to an account of the 22 Feb standoff in a police report first obtained by KUSA-TV.

Aidan and his mother went on national talk shows on Wednesday to say using pepper spray on an unruly 8-year-old was too much.

Police and officials at Glennon Heights Elementary in Lake-wood, Colo, say it could've been worse.—Xinhua

In the battle of the pets, cat delivers knockout blow with a punch to a nosy pug

CANBERRA, 9 April — It's the age-old fight: Which is better? Cats or dogs? Well, if you're a cat person it would appear you've backed the winning team, as a video doing the rounds on the web shows a feline with a powerful left hook. A cat and a dog are cosied up on a cushion when the pup gently noses the cat, since nicknamed Tyson for reasons that will become clear.

Tyson doesn't like it so he takes a swipe. He follows up with another slap to the dog's face before delivering the knockout blow, sending the poor dog flying. The clip, which has its own soundtrack and sound effects, has racked up several hundred thousand views on YouTube and was shown on a Japanese TV show. TV in Japan is notorious for strange ideas and bizarre games in its quest for constant entertainment.

Shopping 'may improve health'

LONDON, 9 April — Shopping prolongs life, at least for the over 65s in Taipei, according to research. Even after adjusting for factors like physical and mental infirmity, men and women who shopped daily lived longer than those who shunned retail therapy, say scientists. Shopping may provide companionship, exercise and an opportunity to maintain a healthy diet, they report in the Journal of Epidemiology & Community Health.

A leading UK expert said the findings "made sense" since shopping involves physical activity, social interaction and keeping mentally active. In the study, published online in the academic journal, researchers led by Dr Yu-Hung Chang of the Institute of Population Health Sciences, Taipei, studied nearly 2,000 men and women aged 65 and over who lived in their own homes.—Internet

NEW YORK, 9 April — New York's Bronx Zoo has found a name for the cobra that escaped from her pen and was discovered six days later: Mia. The name, selected in a public poll, is identical to the American acronym used to refer to soldiers "missing in action".

The 20in (50cm) adolescent Egyptian cobra was discovered in good health in the zoo's reptile house last week. The zoo's reptile exhibit is to be reopened on Saturday, when Mia will make her first public appearance. Runners-up in the name stakes included Subira, Amaunet, Cleopatra and Agnes.

New warning on Arctic ice melt

LONDON, 9 April — Scientists who predicted a few years ago that Arctic summers could be ice-free by 2013 now say summer ice will probably be gone within this decade. The original prediction, made in 2007, gained Wieslaw Maslowski's team a deal of criticism from some of their peers. Now they are working with a new computer model — compiled partly in response to those criticisms — that produces a "best guess" date of 2016.

Their work was unveiled at the European Geosciences Union (EGU) annual meeting. The new model is designed to replicate real-world interactions, or "couplings", between the Arctic ocean, the atmosphere, the ice and rivers carrying freshwater into the sea. "In the past... we were just extrapolating into the future assuming that trends might persist as we've seen in recent times," said Dr Maslowski, who works at Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, California. "Now we're trying to be more systematic, and we've developed a regional Arctic climate model that's very similar to the global climate models participating in Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) assessments," he told BBC News.—Internet

Drinking over the limit 'raises cancer risk'

LONDON, 9 April — Drinking more than a pint of beer a day can substantially increase the risk of some cancers, research shows. A large Europe-wide study in the British Medical Journal found that one-in-10 of all cancers in men and one-in-33 of all cancers in women are caused by past or current alcohol intake. For alcohol-related cancers, one-in-three in men and one-in-20 in women are caused by any excessive drinking.

The Department of Health said it was taking action to target drinking. Cancer charities say people should limit their drinking to lower the risk. The study calculated that in 2008, current and past drinking habits were responsible for about 13,000 cases of alcohol-related cancer in the UK, out of a total of 304,000 cancer cases. Previous research has shown a link between alcohol consumption and cancers of the oesophagus, liver, bowel and female breast. When alcohol is broken down by the body it produces a chemical which can damage DNA, increasing the chance of developing cancer. This research found that individuals who drank more than two standard drinks a day for men and one drink a day for women were particularly at risk. A standard drink contains about 12g of alcohol, which is equivalent to a 125ml glass of wine or a half pint of beer.—Internet

Need a toilet urgently? Unfold one in a minute

The French have been credited with inventing the bidet and popularising pissoirs or public urinals, and now they can add the biodegradable and portable toilet to their name. Frenchman Laurent Helewa designed the lightweight, easy to construct and carry toilet after Hurricane Katrina, when thousands of displaced people were crammed into a stadium for a week, with hardly any access to facilities. "It's a taboo subject, but necessary in case of natural disasters," he told AFP at the annual International Exhibition of Inventions in Geneva, pointing to the earthquakes in Japan and Haiti that displaced tens of thousands of people. "The first problem is to have access to a toilet. Because if not, people will do their business wherever, and you end up with epidemics such as cholera," said Helewa, who is a doctor. Weighing about two kilogrammes (4.4 pounds), his invention is essentially a piece of cardboard that folds into a boxed seat in a minute, and comes with plastic bags that each contain an absorbent pad to soak up liquids. Helewa, who gamely climbed atop a sample, claimed that the heavy-duty version is able to withstand a weight of 200 kg and usage of 20 hours a day, after it was tested by four armies. The French invention is among more than 1,000 creations showcased by inventors from 45 countries at this week's inventions fair in Geneva.

Deer, goose make unlikely pair in Buffalo cemetery

An unusual springtime friendship between a deer and a nesting goose appears to have blossomed inside a cemetery in Buffalo, NY. For the past week or so, the deer has been standing near an urn where the goose has taken up residence, positioning itself between the urn and any passing car or foot traffic. Craig Cygan noticed the unlikely pair during his regular patrols with his goose-chasing border collies. He says there is no mate around the goose and he believes the deer has taken over the job of protecting the nest.

Cornell University wildlife expert Paul Curtis says deer and geese usually don't pay any attention to each other. Forest Lawn Cemetery officials are trying to arrange for a webcam so the curious can check in on the nest.

Bob Dylan set for first-ever Vietnam show

INTERNET

HANOI, 9 April—Legendary American musician Bob Dylan, whose songs became anthems of the 1960s anti-Vietnam War era, blows into Ho Chi Minh City on Sunday for his first-ever concert in the communist nation.

While the symbolism is stark for members of the West's ageing "counter-culture" generation, many in youthful Vietnam have never heard of the man who wrote "Blowin' in the Wind" and other songs of protest and struggle.

"I don't know who he is," said Tran Trung Duc, 21, a Hanoi IT student.

Dylan's music helped to shape a Western generation that was in conflict with authority.

But about half of Vietnam's population is under the age of 30 with no memory of the years of war with the United States.

"They don't have any political connection with the era in which Bob Dylan became famous," said Chuck Searcy, a Vietnam War veteran who has lived in the country since 1995.

Dylan will play in Vietnam's largest and most-westernised city, the former Saigon, as part of an Asia-Pacific tour marking 50 years since his first major performance on 11 April, 1961.

Slowly but surely, television seen moving to 3D

CANNES, 9 April—Three-dimensional television is growing at a slower than expected pace, but industry experts remain optimistic that it will reshape the way the world watches the small screen.

The number of 3D TV channels will break the 100-channel barrier by 2014, according to market research group In-Stat, with sports, the arts, big music events and movies set to spearhead growth.

"When we said three years ago that 3D would be a success, people criticized us," said Vincent Teulade, a Paris-based technology and media consultant at PriceWaterhouseCoopers, at the MIPTV trade show that ended Thursday.

"But 3D has arrived and it is known by the mass market."

Between 50 to 70 percent of Hollywood's box office income now comes from 3D movies, thanks in part to the higher ticket prices charged by cinemas to view them, Teulade noted.—Internet

Man Utd march on as Fulham beaten

Manchester United's striker Dimitar Berbatov (C) scores the opening goal of their English Premier League football match against Fulham at Old Trafford in Manchester. Manchester United won 2-0. INTERNET

MANCHESTER, 9 April— Manchester United moved to within touching distance of a record 19th league title after a 2-0 win over Fulham at Old Trafford on Saturday.

Dimitar Berbatov opened the scoring in the 12th minute with his 22nd goal of the season before Antonio Valencia made it 2-0 as United opened up a 10-point lead at the top of the table after an eighth win in 11 league games.

Rio Ferdinand was not involved in the 16 while keeper Edwin van der Sar, Javier Hernandez and Michael Carrick were among the substitutes.

Fulham has lost on all seven visits to Old Trafford since their last victory at the venue in 2003, but the mid-table visitors quickly settled as they twice tested United's stand-in keeper Tomasz Kuszczak in the opening exchanges. The Polish stopper kept out Gael Kakuta's 20-yard drive in the opening minute before Kuszczak made an even smarter save to deny Moussa Dembele in the sixth minute.

United had not had an effort on goal when Bobby Zamora was presented with a great opportunity to give Fulham the lead after the ball deflected into his path inside the United penalty area.

However, the England international was unable to keep his composure and lashed the eighth minute effort high and wide when he should have at least tested the keeper.

It was to prove a costly miss. Four minutes later United were ahead as Berbatov demonstrated why he is the Premier League's top scorer. There was certainly a touch of good fortune as replays showed the striker may have been off side, but there was no disputing the fact that Berbatov finished well from eight-yards after collecting a pass from the lively Nani.

No 1 Wozniacki rallies to win in 3 sets

CHARLESTON, 9 April— Yanina Wickmayer found out for herself why top-ranked Caroline Wozniacki keeps advancing at the Family Circle Cup. "In every match, she finds a way to get out of it and beat her opponent," Wickmayer said. "That's most important." Wozniacki rallied from a first-set loss and 4-2 down in the final set to defeat Wickmayer 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 on Friday to move into the semifinals.

It was another tight match for Wozniacki, who needed to two tiebreakers a day earlier to beat Barbora Zahlavova Strycova. In this one, Wickmayer looked like the steadier player, winning points with deep forehands and pushing Wozniacki all over the court. Wickmayer kept the pressure on in the second set as she took a 3-1 lead against the Dane.—INTERNET

West Ham's Cole accused of improper tweets

LONDON, 9 April — West Ham striker Carlton Cole has been accused of improper conduct by England's Football Association on Friday for tweets about Ghana fans made during England's exhibition. The Football Association said Cole has until Wednesday to respond to the charge.

Around 20,000 Ghana fans were in Wembley Stadium for the 1-1 draw on 29 March.

Cole wrote on Twitter during the game: "Immigration has surrounded the wembley premises! I knew it was a trap! Hahahaha. The only way to get out safely is to wear an England jersey and paint your face w/ the St George's flag!" Cole, who is black, apologized and tweeted: "It was a joke & its not even racist." Cole was not involved in the match.

He made the last of seven England appearances in March 2010.

Edwards again wins Nationwide race at Texas

FORT WORTH, 9 April— Carl Edwards knew Kyle Busch was charging hard. What he almost didn't see was the car that would change the Nationwide race at Texas Motor Speedway. Edwards and Busch were running 1-2 on lap 88 when Tim Schendel's car blew a right front tire and shot up the track, basically splitting the front-runners. He barely scraped the back of Edwards' car, but was right in front of Busch, who had nowhere to go and hit him full force.

"Just sheer luck of timing, the car ended up missing us and caught him instead," Edwards said.—INTERNET

Japan's Nishikori routs Fish in Houston

HOUSTON, 9 April — Rising Japanese star Kei Nishikori demolished American number one Mardy Fish 6-3, 6-2 in the quarter-finals of the US Clay Court Championship.

The 21-year-old Nishikori on Friday did not face a single break point in the match as he ousted the top seed from the tournament in stunning fashion. Nishikori will face Pablo Cuevas of Uruguay in Saturday's semi-finals. Cuevas beat third-seeded Guillermo Garcia-Lopez 1-6, 7-6 (7/4), 6-3.

World number 61 Nishikori hit one ace and five double faults but won 96 percent of first serve points in his first career meeting against Fish.

"I was hitting good returns," Nishikori said. "That's one of the things I did great today. I played good enough to beat him and played good clay court tennis." "I don't think he played great today, he was missing a lot," Nishikori added.

Magnificent Uppatasanti Pagoda for public obeisance

Article: Tin Htwe (MNA); Photos: Tin Soe (Myanma Alin)

Uppatasanti Pagoda was magnificently built with contributions of the government and the people to enable Nay Pyi Taw to have characteristics of capital and the Myanmar and global people to have cumulative meritorious deeds. It is a replica of Shwedagon Pagoda in 325 feet in height for public obeisance in Nay Pyi Taw.

Uppatasanti Pagoda was built on Uppatasanti Hill, two miles and four furlongs northwest of Pinyinman Township of Nay Pyi Taw District. The venue for the pagoda was chosen under the Ovada of Monywa Bawdi Tahtaung Sayadaw Agga Maha Saddharmajotika Bhadanta Narada and Agga Maha Saddhamma Jotikadhaja Bhaddanta Saddiya of Ponnya Neinmitayama Shwethuwun Monastery of Thingangyun Township.

Six relics of Gotama Buddha conveyed from India, one tooth relic each from Sri Lanka and China were enshrined at the pagoda.

The pagoda is located at an altitude of 519.761 feet on 157.19 acres of land. The ground breaking (See page 10)
