Fight against narcotic drugs on a collaborative basis

Myanmar is carrying out poppy-substitute cultivation and livestock breeding tasks in order to reduce and eliminate drug production, drug trafficking and drug abuse.

Educative campaigns are being launched so that young people who are leaders of the future can know the consequences of narcotic drugs and will not lead to the wrong way because of drug abuse.

The youth must be active and dynamic as well as healthy and intelligent. So, organizational measures are to be taken for them in order not to fall prey to drugs.

Western nations with science and technological superiority intentionally spread drug production techniques and equipment to developing countries.

When it comes to the cooperation with the international community, Myanmar is implementing drug eradication tasks by signing agreements with the regional countries and the neighbouring nations in the sub-region.

Aside from drug eradication and preventive tasks, other necessary measures are also being taken for treatment, rehabilitation, education as it is important to eliminate drug abuse.

Since narcotic drugs pose a grave threat to the entire mankind, all the people are urged to take part in the efforts for drug prevention and elimination.

BAGHDAD, 6 May—A suicide car bomb attack on the Iraqi police in south of Baghdad on Thursday killed 25 and wounded another 75, a local police source told Xinhua. "Our latest reports put the toll from the suicide car bombing in the city of Hillah at 25 and 75 wounded," the source from Hillah police told Xinhua on condition of anonymity.

Susilo says to work toward a more equitable ASEAN

JAKARTA, 6 May—Indonesian President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono said Thursday one of the country's priorities as ASEAN Chair is to make the regional body more equitable and inclusive.

Speaking at the first ASEAN-EU business summit, the Indonesian President said the nation has a vision for ASEAN, that is to ensure "we narrow the development gap between ASEAN economies." Economic disparity between member countries has been regarded as one of the biggest hurdles for the body's effort to integrate Yudhoyono noted that building infrastructure and connectivity within ASEAN countries would help reduce disparities. "I believe infrastructure building and connectivity is not just about efficiency but also about reducing disparities," he said, adding that it will also offer opportunities for investment.

Aside from narrowing development gap, Yudhoyono said Indonesia will also work to strengthen ASEAN coordination for macro-economic policy and address issues such as food and energy security challenges, climate change and consolidation of various trade agreements.

MEMPHIS, 6 May—Parts of the Mississippi Delta are beginning to flood, sending white-tail deer and wild pigs swimming to dry land, submerging yacht clubs and closing casino boats, and compelling residents to flee from their homes.

The sliver of land in northwest Mississippi, home to hardship and bluesman Muddy Waters, is in the crosshairs of the slowly surging river, just like many other areas along the banks of the big river.

To points much farther north, thousands face the decision of whether to stay or go as high water kept on rolling down the Mississippi and its tributaries, threatening to soak communities over the next week or two. The flooding is already breaking high-water records that have stood since the 1930s.—Internet

HARBIN, 6 May—A forest fire in northeast China's Heilongjiang Province was extinguished early Friday morning after an all-day effort by 5,000 firefighters, local authorities said Friday.

The fire, which occurred in Jiayin County in the city of Yichun, was put out by the firefighters despite obstacles such as the area's strong winds, said an official with the city's forest fire control headquarters.

The firefighters are still keeping a close eye on the burned area to rule out any possible fire hazards, he said. The fire, which stretched about 500 metres into the forest, ignited Thursday morning. Police are still investigating the cause of the fire.—Xinhua

US drone attack kills 15 in Pakistan tribal area

PESHAWAR, 6 May—The US carried out its first drone attack in Pakistan since Osama bin Laden's death in an American raid this week, killing 15 people in a hail of missiles near the Afghan border Friday, Pakistani intelligence officials said.

The strike targeted a vehicle suspected of carrying foreign militants in the North Waziristan tribal area, an al-Qaeda and Taliban stronghold that has been subject to frequent missile attacks, said the officials, speaking on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to talk to the media.

The aircraft fired eight missiles at the vehicle as it drove near a roadside restaurant, killing at least 15 people, including foreign militants, said the officials. At least one civilian died when the missiles damaged the restaurant and a nearby home, they said.

It was unclear whether intelligence gleaned from the US commando raid that killed bin Laden on Monday played a part in the drone strike. Drone attacks are extremely unpopular in Pakistan, and the most recent attack could further increase tensions between the US and Pakistan that have spiked in the wake of bin Laden's death.

Many US officials have expressed skepticism of claims by Pakistani officials that they didn't know where bin Laden was hiding even though he was found in a compound in the army town of Abbottabad, only about a two hours' drive from the capital.

Cosmic snake star pattern now slithering across night sky

LONDON, 6 May—A giant celestial snake is slithering into view in our current night sky this spring.

We can look to the south to trace it during the early evening hours. In fact, the snake is one of the most extensive of all star patterns: the long and mostly faint constellation of Hydra, the female water snake.

Interestingly, there is also a much shorter, male snake bearing the name Hydrus that is visible only in Southern Hemisphere skies.

This sky map of the Hydra constellation shows where to look in the southern sky to spot the cosmic snake.

Arctic warming could raise oceans 5 feet

OSLO, 6 May—Arctic warming, occurring twice as fast as the global average, could raise sea levels more than 5 feet in 90 years, an official multinational study forecast.

The Arctic Monitoring and Assessment Programme forecast — for the international Arctic Council of eight arctic rim countries, including the United States — predicted sea levels would rise 2.75 times more than the top figure of the landmark 2007 UN. Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, which forecast of 7 to 23 inches by the end of the century.

“Global sea level is projected to rise 0.9 to 1.6 metres [3 feet to 5 feet 3 inches] by 2100, and the loss from arctic glaciers, ice caps and the Greenland Ice Sheet will make a substantial contribution to this,” the AMAP report said ahead of a 12 May meeting in Greenland of Arctic Council nations Canada,

The Greenland Ice Sheet is the second-largest body of ice after the Antarctic Ice Sheet covering more than 660,000 square miles, or roughly 80 percent of Greenland. If it were to melt totally, its frozen water would push up global sea levels 24 feet, a 2001 study indicated.

The reason for the accelerated melting and seal-level rise is a phenomenon, or mechanism, called “feedbacks,” the study said.—Internet

Scientists unlock genetic secret to happiness

LONDON, 6 May — Scientists have identified the 5-HTT strand of DNA as the “happiness gene”. The gene helps nerve cells recycle the chemical serotonin, which is known to be linked to mood and depression. It comes in “long” and “short” versions. Individuals who inherit two copies of the “long” variant, one from each parent, tend to be more content than those with other combinations, the study showed. The least happy were people born with two versions of the “short” gene.

Behavioural economist Jan-Emmanuel De Neve, from the London School of Economics and Political Science, who led the research, said: “It has long been suspected that this gene plays a role in mental health but this is the first study to show that it is instrumental in shaping our individual happiness levels.”

Sony lets loose pair of Xperia Mini smartphones

TOKYO, 6 May—Sony’s gaming division may be working tirelessly to sew up the loose ends of its PlayStation Network, but Sony Ericsson, the company’s smartphone branch, is having no such woes. Today they unveiled a pair of brand new Android smartphones to join the company’s Xperia handset line. The Xperia Mini and Xperia Mini Pro bring a decidedly diminutive touch to Sony’s handset offerings — much like the Veer has done for HP.

Both the standard Mini and Mini Pro will run Android 2.3 Gingerbread right out of the gate, a notable feature considering much of the Android market is still using version 2.2 Froyo. The phones sport 3” touch displays, 720p HD video recording capability, integrated Facebook features, and Sony’s DLNA connection technology that allows users to toss media from the phone to compatible Bravia TVs.

The Pro model ups the ante and adds slide-out “Smart Keyboard” which automatically predicts what you want to use it for. For example, if you’re surfing the web and slide open the keyboard the cursor automatically jumps to the search or address bar. No word on a specific launch date was given, but Sony expects to release the new pair in the fall.—Internet

Pandora adds comedy to Internet radio line-up

OAKLAND, 6 May—US Internet radio darling Pandora has added comedy to its line-up of stations that listeners can personalize to their tastes. “We’re excited to say that we are officially in the business of telling jokes,” Pandora founder Tim Westergren said in a blog post online Wednesday. “As with music, we hope that the Comedy Genome Project will let people enjoy comedy they know as well as discover new talent that they love.”

Pandora comedy stations can be customized by genre or comedian, with the service using feedback on what prompts guffaws or gags to fine tune offerings to individual preferences. A team of professional comedians divided thousands of routines by hundreds of comics into categories such as “odd juxtaposition” stiches with openings like “A horse walks into a bar...” Another category was “extensive vamping.” “Adding comedians to the mix has been one of the top requests from our listeners,” Westergren said.—Internet

Global 3D TV market to grow 5-fold in 2011

SEOUL, 6 May—The global 3D television market will grow more than 5-fold to account for 11 percent of flat-screen TV sales this year, as prices fall sharply and manufacturers add the function as an add-on feature, research firm IHS iSuppli predicted on Friday.

It projected 3D TV shipments would rise to 23.4 million units this year from last year’s 4.2 million units, gaining further to 159 million units in 2015. By that time, iSuppli said, 3D TVs would account for more than half of global flat-panel shipments.

TV manufacturers, led by South Korea’s Samsung Electronics, LG Electronics Inc and Japan’s Sony Corp are hoping high-end models such as 3D help them arrest razor-thin margins amid intensifying competition with low-cost producers in the commoditized flat-screen TV market.

Another research firm, DisplaySearch, also forecast last week that 3D TVs will rise to more than 50 percent of revenues and hit the 100-million unit sales mark by 2014.

By technology, active shutter-glass (SG) type sets, the current industry standard, will gradually give way to passive film patterned retarder (FPR) types and fall below 50 percent of the overall 3D market by 2015, iSuppli said.

The shift can be a big threat to top TV maker Samsung, which is aggressively pushing for SG technology and has been embroiled in a growing war of words this year with hometown rival LG Electronics and its panel supplier LG Display.

LG Group is making a big bet on FPR technology to stake out a bigger claim in the global 3D market, currently dominated by SG-type sets made by first such as Samsung and Sony.—Reuters

Surgery better for younger prostate patients

WASHINGTON, 6 May —Surgery appears to be a better treatment option for early prostate cancer than “watchful waiting,” particularly for younger patients, according to a Swedish study published Thursday.

In the first clinical trial examining the impact of surgically removing the prostate gland, the team followed 347 randomly chosen patients for the procedure, and closely watched 348 others, according to the study in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The assessment of the nearly 700 men, who averaged 65 years when diagnosed, found that after 15 years, 48 percent of the men in the surgical group died, compared with 58 percent in the closely watched group. For the surgical group, 16 percent died of the prostate cancer, compared to 23 percent for those being watched.

The risk of cancer spreading “beyond the prostate gland was 12 percent lower for those who received surgery.”

The study found that the younger men in the study, those aged around

65 — benefited most from surgery, while going under the knife presented fewer benefits for older patients. “Not everybody benefits from surgery, so individual risks and potential gains have to be assessed on the basis of age, other illnesses, tumour type and patient preferences,” cautioned Anna Bill-Axelsson, chief physician at the Department of Surgical Sciences at Sweden’s Uppsala University.—Internet

Family eating together helps kids’ weight control

BEIJING, 6 May—Children who regularly have meals with their families tend to enjoy better health and have a considerably lower risk of obesity, an article in Monday’s issue of Pediatrics said.

The article said researchers have examined the findings of 17 studies on child nutrition and eating patterns involving over 182,000 kids, including teenagers.

The results show children and adolescents who share at least three family meals per week are more likely to be a healthy weight and less likely to have disordered eating than those who shared mealtimes less frequently.

The children are also 20 percent less likely to eat junk food, 35 percent less likely to have eating problems like skipping meals or bingeing, and 24 percent more likely to eat vegetables and other healthy food.

Child obesity has become a more and more serious health problem around the world, and the researchers encourage parents to share meals with their children more frequently.

“It’s important for parents to know what they can do, especially with obesity and eating habits,” said study lead author Amber Hammons, a postdoctoral research associate at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.—Xinhua

Health Tip: Could your child be constipated?

Children may become constipated from a practice experts call “stool withholding” — deliberately not going to the bathroom because of embarrassment, fear of an unpleasant experience, or the desire not to interrupt playtime. The National Digestive Diseases Information Clearinghouse says parents should be aware of these warning signs that a child may be constipated:

- * Having infrequent bowel movements.
- * Displaying posture indicating the child is holding in a stool, including squeezing the buttocks or rocking back and forth.
- * Complaining of pain or cramping in the belly.
- * Having difficulty passing stools.
- * Passing stools that are large, dry or hard.

Morocco arrests three Marrakesh cafe bomb suspects

RABAT, 6 May—Morocco arrested three people over a bomb attack on a cafe in the tourist city of Marrakesh last week that killed 16 people, and said the chief suspect showed "loyalty" to al Qaeda. The three suspects were all Moroccans, the official news agency quoted the Interior Ministry as saying. Most of the bomb victims were foreign holiday-makers, including eight French people.

The ministry said the chief suspect, who was "well-versed in jihadi ideology and shows loyalty to al Qaeda," had built and planted two bombs in the cafe, not one as previously believed.

The 28 April blasts were the first such attack in Morocco since coordinated suicide bombings in the commercial capital, Casablanca, in 2003, and added to the challenges facing King Mohammed at a time when he is trying to prevent uprisings breaking out in Morocco similar to those elsewhere in the Arab world.

The Interior Ministry said the chief suspect had previously tried to fight alongside militants in Russia's turbulent Chechnya republic and in Iraq.

It said he built two remotely detonated bombs using instructions downloaded from the Internet, then dressed like a tourist and planted them in a cafe overlooking Marrakesh's Jamaa el-Fna square.

The bombs ripped through the cafe, which is often packed with tourists.

Coleman guilty of killing family

WATERLOO, 6 May—The former head of security for Joyce Meyer Ministries was convicted in Illinois of killing his wife and sons Thursday, the second anniversary of their deaths.

Chris Coleman hung his head as the three verdicts of first-degree murder were read, the Belleville News-Democrat reported. As he was led out of the courthouse, about 200 people gathered there cheered the guilty finding.

Coleman said he was working out at a gym when someone broke into his house in Columbia, strangled his wife, Sheri, and their sons, Gavin and Garrett. The killer also left messages on the walls.

Prosecutors said Coleman prepared for the killings for months by sending threatening messages purporting to be from someone wanting to close down the Joyce Meyer Ministry. They said

Coleman had been having an affair with his wife's close friend and wanted to be able to marry her without a divorce, which might have cost him his job with the televangelist. The penalty phase was scheduled to begin Friday. Illinois recently abolished the death penalty so it is likely to be a symbolic exercise.

"If there was ever a case the death penalty, it would be for a father who killed his wife and two young sons," Ed Parkinson, the prosecutor, said.

Sheri Coleman's family refiled a lawsuit Wednesday seeking damages from Joyce Meyer Ministry. Relatives claim in court papers the ministry should have known Coleman was behind the campaign of threats and warned Sheri she was at risk, the St Louis Post-Dispatch reported.—Internet

Chrysler to close refinancing deal by 24 May

MILAN, 6 May— US carmaker Chrysler is planning to close a deal to refinance $7.5 billion of government debt by 24 May, according to details of Chrysler's offering memorandum to the banks published on Thursday by newspaper Il Sole 24 Ore.

The restructuring of debt Chrysler owns to the US and Canadian governments will let it save $200 million a year, chief executive Sergio Marchionne told a gathering of bankers in New York, according to several Italian newspapers.

Last year Chrysler paid $1.2 billion in interest on bailout money received from the governments in 2009. The deal will comprise a credit line for $1.5 billion, eight- and 10-year bonds worth $2.5 billion and $3.5 billion of guaranteed six-year notes aimed at institutional investors, Il Sole 24 Ore said, citing the Chrysler document.

The Big Three US automaker plans to close the deal by 24 May, according to the document. The debt repayment paves the way for Italian group Fiat to hike its 30 percent stake in Chrysler by another 16 percent. Fiat, Italy's biggest carmaker and part of the country's top industrial group, aims to add another 5 percent before the end of 2011 to acquire full control of Chrysler.

Chrysler Group is in no rush to go public, Marchionne, who is also chief executive of Fiat, said on Wednesday, adding the US automaker "technically" did not need to raise equity. Fiat shares were up 1.1 percent at 7.255 euros at 0732 GMT, twice the rise in the STOXX Europe 600 autos index.—Reuters

Kraft tempers outlook on Starbucks loss

NEW YORK, 6 May—Kraft Foods Inc (KFT.N) reported a better-than-expected first-quarter profit on Thursday, helped by price increases, and said it likely will raise some prices even more this year.

The maker of Cadbury chocolate bars, Oreo cookies and Velveeta cheese also lowered its full-year forecast to reflect the loss of its contract to distribute Starbucks (SBUX.O) coffee in US supermarkets.

Excluding the Starbucks loss and costs related selling Gevalia coffee in its place, Kraft said its outlook for the rest of the year was unchanged.

The first-quarter results included a benefit from commodity hedges, which somewhat insulated Kraft from recent price volatility. The benefit should reverse in coming quarters, Kraft said, as the hedges roll off — a situation that could pressure margins.

Customers are seen at a Starbucks coffee store which displays their old logo in Paris on 8 March, 2011.—INTERNET

"Costs continue to go up, and so those pressures aren't abating," said Morningstar analyst Erin Lash. "(Kraft) operated through the first quarter relatively well, but there's still several impending headwinds that could offset this trajectory."

Rival food maker Sara Lee Corp (SLE.N) cut its full-year forecast earlier on Thursday after price increases hurt sales volume.

"We are optimistic about the ability of our brands to withstand the increased prices given the investments we've made in them, but we are somewhat cautious given the challenging economic environment," Kraft Chief Executive Irene Rosenfeld told Reuters.

Hepatitis C linked to more drug use

ATLANTA, 6 May—Increased US drug use may account for an increase in hepatitis C virus among adolescents and young adults in Massachusetts, federal health officials say.

Public health officials from Massachusetts and the US Centres for Disease Control and Prevention did an analysis of the state's data that finds although overall declines in HCV infection occurred nationwide and in Massachusetts since the early 1990s, an increase among those ages 15-24 was observed in the state from 2002 to 2009.

The report, published in the CDC's Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, found increases in rates of newly reported HCV infection among youth in urban, suburban and rural communities across the state — occurring primarily among white non-Hispanics of both genders.

"Injection drug use was the most common risk factor for HCV transmission and this is consistent with other data suggesting drug use in this population has increased in the state, as well as in other parts of the country," the report said. "The findings underscore the need for enhanced surveillance of HCV infection and intensified prevention efforts targeting adolescents and young adults, particularly those who engage in injection drug use." Federal health officials said they are working with state and local health departments to determine whether similar trends are occurring in other parts of the country.—Internet

$80K motorbike stolen in US found in Philippines

MANILA, 6 May— An $80,000 motorcycle stolen in Texas last year from Hollywood screenwriter Skip Woods has been recovered in the southern Philippines, officials said Thursday.

US Ambassador to Mexico sets date to depart

MEXICO CITY, 6 May— US Ambassador Carlos Pascual will leave Mexico by 18 May as a result of his resignation two months ago amid furor over leaked diplomatic cables that angered the Mexican government.

Pascual will take a job on that date as Secretary of State Hillary Clinton’s special envoy and coordinator for international energy affairs, US Embassy spokesman Alex Featherstone said Thursday night.

“One of his first tasks will be designing a new Bureau for Energy Resources that will integrate energy security with the conduct of US foreign policy,” Featherstone wrote in a message announcing the plans.

Featherstone said

John D Feeley, the embassy’s deputy chief of mission, will take over as the embassy’s charge d’affaires until a new ambassador is nominated by President Barack Obama and confirmed by the US Senate and accepted by the Mexican government, Featherstone said, describing that as “a long process.”

Clinton announced Pascual’s request to resign as ambassador in March. She did not cite a specific reason, but Mexican President Felipe Calderon had publicly criticized a cable written by Pascual and divulged by the WikiLeaks website.

Africa loses $12 bln a year to malaria

CAPE TOWN, 6 May— Malaria costs Africa $12 billion (eight million euros) a year in lost productivity, an expense that businesses can reduce by investing in prevention schemes, said a study released on Thursday.

“Malaria is bad for business. The disease is responsible for decreased productivity, employee absenteeism and increased health care spending and can negatively impact a company’s reputation,” said the report by the Roll Back Malaria campaign.

“This heavy burden has serious impacts on businesses and economies, costing the African continent $12 billion annually in lost productivity,” it said.

The report, presented at the World Economic Forum for Africa in Cape Town, analysed economic impact of malaria prevention and programmes at three companies, which cut overall medical spending in company clinics and reduced absenteeism.

“For these companies, investing in malaria prevention and control for workers and their dependants was cost effective, resulting in increasing their bottom line, producing an estimated rate of return of 28 percent under very conservative assumptions,” the study said.

Malaria hurts local economies by reducing workers’ ability to save, while straining public health budgets and reducing tax revenues.

About 90 percent of malaria deaths each year occur in Africa and 92 percent of those are children aged under five.

S Korea’s oldest nuclear reactor to resume operation

SEOUL, 6 May— South Korea’s oldest nuclear reactor will resume operation following an extensive safety checkup, the science ministry here said Friday.

The Kori reactor, which began operation in 1978 in South Korea’s southeastern coastal town of Gori, was shut down in April due to malfunction of electric circuits and underwent an inspection amid safety concerns following Japan’s nuclear debacle unleashed by an earthquake and tsunami in March.

With the government green light, the Korea Hydro & Nuclear Power Co, an operator of the 33-year-old Kori reactor, is expected to soon resume power generation, local reports said.

The government, meanwhile, also plans to spend some 1 trillion won (922 million US dollars) for the next five years on improving safety of all 21 atomic power reactors in the country.

Under the current government blueprint, South Korea will continue running the nation’s oldest reactor through 2017.

Illegal mining kills three, injures dozens in Ghana

ACCRA, 6 May— Three illegal gold miners died in an explosion at a mine site at Kenyase in Ghana's central Bono Ahafo region, about 400 km north of the capital Accra, a local source told Xinhua on Friday.

An electric plant which was used by the illegal miners developed a fault at dawn and caught fire which ignited explosives at the site, killing the three instantly and leaving dozens of others with various degrees of injury.

Families of the injured rushed to the scene to take them to a nearby hospital for treatment.

Local reports said a number of young Ghanaians had previously died in illegal mining activities in abandoned mine shafts, which mostly caved in on them, burying them alive.—Xinhua

Three-legged Jack crowned top dog

LONDON, 6 May — A three-legged sheepdog has been crowned farm dog of the year. Ian and Ruth Rees from Mid Wales entered Jack into the canine competition after the National Farmers Union (NFU) challenged members to send in a picture and 150 words explaining why their dog should win the prize.

Three-legged Jack took the top accolade, throughout England and Wales, after his owners wrote about how he had suffered a serious leg injury last year. Despite having an amputation he made a miraculous recovery and continues to work on the couple's farm in Powys.

Crashes top cause of groundworkers deaths

ATLANTA, 6 May— One in every 30 US occupational fatalities from traumatic injuries between 2003 and 2008 occurred in grounds maintenance workers, health officials say.

The Centres for Disease Control and Prevention's Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report says 1,142 grounds maintenance workers died from job-related injuries from 2003 to 2008.

"While fatalities

among Hispanics or Latinos were not disproportionately higher than deaths among non-Hispanics or Latinos, most of the deaths among Hispanics or Latinos — five out of every six — had been born outside the United States and Hispanic or Latino workers who died were nine years younger, on average, than non-Hispanic or Latino workers who died," the report said. "Transportation incidents and tree work were leading causes for the fatalities yet many deaths resulted from falls, electrocutions and drownings."

Enforcement of regulations, outreach and training are vital for preventing such deaths, including culturally meaningful safety training for Hispanic or Latino workers who comprise much of the grounds maintenance workforce, federal officials say.

This handout picture taken in April 2011 shows actors rehearsing a scene of the "Aquaria Palaoa" underwater opera at the Stadtbad Neukoelln public swimming pool in Berlin.

Berlin swimming pool hosts underwater opera

A specially composed opera with a difference premiered in a Berlin swimming pool this week, with singers performing in and out and even under the water.

"Aquaria Palaoa" is the brainchild of Claudia Herr, a champion swimmer in her youth before turning to singing, who plays the lead role, diving into the Stadtbad Neukoelln pool in her green evening dress.

With the help of oxygen tanks strapped to her back, Herr sings underwater, with the whale-like sounds she produces transmitted onto speakers situated around the swimming pool with the help of special microphones.

Her voice and those of other singers — who also sing underwater but without oxygen tanks — are mixed with sounds recorded 100 metres (330 feet) under an ice shelf in Antarctica. The orchestra stays dry, seated around the pool. The opera tells the story of a young woman looking for the elixir of eternal youth.

Guinness Records: Smokey the cat is really loud

It's official: Smokey the cat has roared her way into Guinness World Records having achieved the loudest purr by a domestic cat.

Guinness said Thursday the gray-and-white tabby earned her place with record-setting 67.7 decibels. In a video on the cat's website, the 12-year-old, ordinary-size feline purrs with a sound akin to the cooing of an angry dove.

Smokey first rose to prominence in February, when her owner, Ruth Adams, ran a local competition for the most powerful purr. A community college recorded the purr and submitted it to Guinness.

Guinness says the loudest animal sounds are the low-frequency pulses made by blue whales and fin whales when they communicate with each other — sounds that reach 188 decibels. By comparison, a lawnmower is 90 decibels.

15-year-old headed for Harvard

A New Jersey 15-year-old who was accepted to six of the seven Ivy League schools said she has chosen Harvard University in Massachusetts.

Saheela Ibraheem of Piscataway said she applied to a total of 14 schools because she did not know how officials would react to applications from a 15-year-old high school senior, The (Newark, NJ) Star-Ledger reported Wednesday.

"It's the age thing. I wanted to make sure I had options," the senior at Wardlaw-Hartridge School in Edison said.

Ibraheem said her sole rejection letter came from Yale University and her parents believe her age was to blame. The student said she was told she won't be the youngest freshman at Harvard.

You could say his fingerprints — all 12 of them — were all over the crime. An accused drug-trafficker was nabbed by police in Brazil's southern state of Santa Catarina after they confirmed his identity through the betrayal of a rare birth defect: six fingers on each hand.

"We had indications that it was him, but because he presented his brother's papers as identification we had no proof," police commissioner Enio de Oliveira Matos told Globo's news website G1. "Given this peculiarity, we requested information from the Institute of Identification in the state of Parana, where he was born, and

Schwarzenegger might 'Cry Macho' as film return

LOS ANGELES, 6 May—Arnold Schwarzenegger has added another project on his to-do list as he returns to Hollywood after serving as California governor.

Schwarzenegger spokesman Alan Mendelsohn said Thursday that the actor plans to star in the drama "Cry Macho" for Academy Award-winning producer Albert Ruddy ("The Godfather," "Million Dollar Baby").

It's one of several projects Schwarzenegger has in the works, including a "Terminator" tale and the crime saga "The Last Stand."

Mendelsohn said the timing has not yet been worked out among the various projects, so it's not certain which might be Schwarzenegger's first big-screen film after leaving the governor's office in January.—INTERNET

'Home Alone' home priced at $2.4m

CHICAGO, 6 May—The 14-room Illinois mansion featured in the 1990 Macaulay Culkin comedy "Home Alone" is being sold for $2.4 million, the Chicago Tribune reported Thursday.

John and Cynthia Abendshien bought the house in 1988 for $875,000. They told the newspaper they decided to sell it because their children are grown and they don't need as much space.

"The $2.4 million isn't just because of its cinematic history," the Tribune quoted the home's listing agent, Marissa Hopkins of Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage, as saying. "It really is a residential masterpiece."

The 4,250 square-foot, red-brick house in

Braga set up all-Portuguese Europa final with Porto

PARIS, 6 May — Unheralded Sporting Braga edged domestic rivals Benfica 1-0 in a nerve-jangling semi-final second leg on Thursday to set up an all-Portuguese Europa League final with league champions FC Porto. Braga's success saw the club from northern Portugal advance on away goals after a 2-2 aggregate draw and thwarted neutrals' hopes of a clash between traditional rivals Porto and Benfica in the final in Dublin on 18 May.

Domingos Paciencia's side, runners-up to Benfica in last season's Portuguese championship, will be appearing in their first ever European final. In stark contrast, two-time European champions Porto are bidding to complete a treble, having already sewn up the Portuguese league title and reached the final of the Portuguese Cup on 22 May.— Internet

Inter captain says United can win Champions League

ROME, 6 May — Manchester United are capable of beating Barcelona to win the Champions League, according to Inter Milan captain Javier Zanetti. The Argentine lifted the trophy last season after his side, under Jose Mourinho, dethroned the then reigning champions Barca in the semi-finals. Barcelona beat United in the 2009 final in Rome, thus deposing the English champions who had beaten Chelsea in Moscow the year before.

"I think the Manchester side of this year could take revenge for the Champions League final lost in Rome," he told reporters. "But it's not an easy task given that Barcelona are certainly the team that plays the best football in the world." Turning his attentions to his own team, Zanetti insisted this season has not been a complete write-off. Last year Inter won an unprecedented treble in Italian football but their Champions League defence came to and at the quarter-final stage in a humiliating 7-3 aggregate defeat to Schalke 04, themselves thrashed 6-1 by United in the semis. — Internet

Lens' 18-year-old defender Raphael Varane

LENS, 6 May — Lens' 18-year-old defender Raphael Varane, a reported target for Manchester United, said on Thursday that he was yet to make a decision about his future. "I'm not worrying myself about this subject," said Varane, who will sit exams for his French baccalaureat this year. "I know that I'm being followed but, for the time being, I've made no decision. I've not even discussed this with the president (Gervais Martel) yet."

Manny Pacquiao camp stresses need for patience in Mosley bout

LAS VEGAS, 6 May — Manny Pacquiao's trainer Freddie Roach has one nagging concern ahead of the Filipino's WBO welterweight title defense against Shane Mosley on Saturday. While eight-times world champion Pacquiao has been installed as an odds-on favorite by Las Vegas bookmakers for the scheduled 12-round bout, Roach believes his fighter's strategy during the first five rounds will be decisive.

"If Manny makes the mistake of attacking Shane without setting it up first, he will walk into a counter-shot," Roach told reporters at the MGM Grand on Thursday. "That's my biggest concern. "When Shane is on the ropes trying to set up the counter-shot, Manny knows the move to make. He does it

FIFA investigates match-fixing claims

LONDON, 6 May — Football's ruling body FIFA is investigating claims that over 300 matches on three continents were influenced by match-fixers, according to The Daily Telegraph. FIFA suspects match officials were paid as little as $10,000 to help engineer specific results in international friendly matches and European club games, netting fixers hundreds of millions of dollars on Asian betting markets. ## Djokovic equals Lendl mark, Murray, Wozniacki crash

MADRID, 6 May — Novak Djokovic equalled Ivan Lendl's 1986 record of a 29-0 winning start to a season when he reached the Madrid Masters quarter-finals. The Serb second seed on Thursday cruised to a 6-1, 6-2 thrashing of Spaniard Guillermo Garcia-Lopez which took less than an hour to extend his overall winning streak to 31, stretching back to the two Davis Cup final singles he won in December. Top-seeded holder Rafael Nadal went through to the last eight without lifting a racquet as opponent Juan Martin Del Potro retired before their third round match with hip pain.

Thomaz Bellucci profited from his first meeting with Scot fourth seed Andy Murray, securing a 6-4, 6-2 win in 90 minutes. Murray's temper boiled over with the seed warned for audible obscenities from early on in the proceedings as Bellucci won the last four games to advance to the last eight. But the British player wasn't too downhearted with his form.

In the women's event, world number one Caroline Wozniacki lost to Germany's Julia Goerges for the second time in little more than a week while French Open champion Francesca Schiavone and Roland Garros runner-up Samantha Stosur also went out. Goerges, who saw off Wozniacki in the Stuttgart final last week, enjoyed a 6-4, 1-6, 6-3 win and next plays Russian Anastasia Pavlyuchenkova, who upset Stosur 7-6 (7/4), 6-3.

Holyfield faces Nielsen, hopes for another title

COPENHAGEN, 6 May — At the age of 48, Evander Holyfield won't give up on his hopes of regaining the world heavyweight title. The former undisputed champion resumes his longshot quest Saturday when he takes on Denmark's 46-year-old Brian Nielsen in a non-

In his last ring appearance, Holyfield was cut above the left eye by an accidental head butt in his fight with Sherman

Williams in January. The bout was ruled a no-contest. This time, trainer Tommy Brooks predicts Holyfield will beat Nielsen in two rounds. "I think Evander is in a much better shape than (Nielsen) is in and we're going to take advantage of that," Brooks said. —Internet
