Water poured at Bo trees across the nation on Fullmoon Day of Kason

NAY PYI TAW, 17 May—Today, Fullmoon Day of Kason (Buddha Day), is of religious significance for Buddhists across the world.

A ceremony to pour water at Bo tree marking the Buddha Day was held at the Bo tree in the precinct of Uppatasanti Pagoda in Nay Pyi Taw this morning.

It was attended by Chairman of Nay Pyi Taw Council U Thein Nyunt, Union Minister for Religious Affairs Thura U Myint Maung, the secretary of Nay Pyi Taw Council and religious associations.

They sprinkled scented water at Bo tree and the religious association poured water at the Bo tree.

Devotees and pilgrims paid homage to Buddha images in the cave of the pagoda, made meritorious deeds and kept Sabbaths at the religious edifices.

Water pouring ceremony at Bo tree was also held at Dhatucaya (Datpaungsu) Pagoda in Bawgathiri Ward in Zabuthiri Township.

Likewise, pagodas, stupas and religious edifices were packed with local people who offered fruits, flowers, water, oil lights to the Buddha images and performed meritorious deeds.

Similar ceremonies took place at Lawka-marazein Pagoda and Phayakoehsu Pagoda in Pyinmana of Nay Pyi Taw District today.

Chairman of Township Sangha Nayaka Committee Manaung Monastery Sayadaw Ganthavaçaka Pandita Bhaddanta Pandava and members of the Sangha together with pilgrims participated in the water pouring ceremony at Bo tree for the 33th time of its kind.

Phayakoehsu Pagoda in Pyinnama was held this evening. The local people traditionally poured water at Maha Bo tree in the precinct of the pagoda and performed meritorious deeds.

The 28th water pouring ceremony at Bo tree was held at Shwedagon Pagoda at its southeast corner this morning. Before the ceremony, Sayadaws consecrated the Bo tree and then those present poured water.

Election sub-commissions to be formed with competent members

NAY PYI TAW, 17 May—Chairman of the Union Election Commission U Tin Aye and members of Sagaing Region/District/Monywa Township sub-Commissions held a work coordination meeting at Hluttaw Hall of Sagaing Region yesterday morning.

The UEC chairman delivered an introductory speech.

Chairman of Sagaing Region Election Sub-Commission U Tin Oo gave an account of the functions of the commission. Sagaing, Monywa, Shwebo, Katha, Kalay, Tamu, Mawlaik and Hkamti district sub-commissions, the secretary of Naga Self-Administered Zone Sub-Commission and the chairman of Monywa Township sub-commission reported on their tasks in the 2010 Multiparty Democracy General Election, participation of sub-commissions at all levels, returning officers and members of poll stations, the holding of free and fair elections, and arrangements for forthcoming by-election.

In his address, the UEC chairman said that sub-commissions at all levels are responsible for holding free and fair elections in line with the laws and rules to enable the public to select reliable candidates. So, sub-commissions at different levels should consider themselves to be important organizations, he said. Members of Ward/Village sub-commissions, returning officers and members of poll stations are to be self-motivated and dynamic with good performance. A meeting, paper-reading session, and course are to be conducted once every month, he noted, adding that necessary equipment is to be installed in advance.—MNA

Admire, preserve cultural heritage

Convincing archaeological evidences reveal that Myanmar people have been living in the land later known as Myanmar from time immemorial.

Myanmar saw civilization aeons ago. Soon after ancient residents developed into national races, the land witnessed civilization in various sectors. The artefacts discovered across the nation indicate that our forefathers were of high cultural standard.

As to cultural heritage, Myanmar excavate archaeological sites, do archaeological research and preserve cultural and archaeological artefacts and edifices. Now, palaces of Myanmar monarchs and archaeological sites are being excavated and stone plaques and palm-leaf manuscripts and paper parchments are kept well.

Varieties of objects on cultural heritage and artefacts are on display in museums, thus showing that Myanmar are a people of well preserving and promoting national prestige and integrity.

The people are under a bounden duty to preserve cultural heritage. To keep objects on cultural heritage in museums alone is not enough in the process. Therefore, the people are to enhance their sense of admiring and preserving cultural heritage forever.

NATO incursion into Pakistan wounds two troops

MIRANSHAH, 17 May— A NATO helicopter from Afghanistan intruded into Pakistan's North Waziristan region on Tuesday, wounding two troops, local intelligence officials said, adding to tensions between Islamabad and the West. "It happened early morning," a Pakistani intelligence official in the region, who declined to be identified, told Reuters. "The helicopter hit a Pakistani check post on the border in the Datta Khel area."

Another intelligence official said several Pakistani helicopters took off from Miranshah, the main town in North Waziristan, toward the site of the attack. The purpose of the Pakistani mobilization was unclear.

The Pakistani military was immediately unavailable for comment.

Lieutenant-Commander Colette Murphy, a spokeswoman for the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF), said in Kabul that the coalition was aware of the reports and looking into them, but had no immediate comment.

Iraqi police officer, civilian killed in violence

BAGHDAD, 17 May— A police officer and a civilian were killed and another three were wounded in Baghdad and Iraq's eastern province of Diyala on Tuesday, the police said.

In Baghdad, gunmen using silenced weapons shot dead Colonel Jassim Mohammed of the Interior Ministry's investigation department in the southwestern district of al-Amil, an Interior Ministry source told Xinhua on condition of anonymity.

The attack is seen as part of a wave of assassinations by militias and gangs against Iraqi security members, officials and civilians. The attackers' tactics varied from suicide bombings, gunfire by silenced weapons and sticky bombs attached to vehicles. In Diyala province, the police found a body of a man in his 60s riddled with bullets and dumped on a road in the town of Buhruz, south of the provincial capital city of Baquba, some 65 km northeast of Baghdad, a source from the provincial operations command told Xinhua on condition of anonymity. In a separate incident, three people from one family were wounded in a makeshift bomb explosion at an orchard in al-Othmaniyah area, some 15 km southwest of Baquba, the source said.

Challenges remain in Afghanistan

BEIJING, 17 May—The Afghan army and the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force have made progress in fighting insurgents but challenges remain.

Lt General David Rodriguez, Commander of ISAF Joint Command said Afghan and coalition forces have made an impact against many of the insurgents' support bases and weakened the enemy's effectiveness.

But he noted that the Taliban-led insurgency would intensify this summer. Meanwhile, the Deputy Chief of Staff at IJC, said that the violence in Afghanistan is becoming much more isolated than it was in previous years.

Currently, more than 140 thousand foreign troops, including nearly 100 thousand Americans, are deployed in Afghanistan. Late last month, the Taliban declared the start of a spring offensive against the Afghan army and NATO-led international forces.—Internet

Four NATO soldiers killed in IED blast in S Afghanistan

KABUL, 17 May— Four soldiers with the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) were killed on Monday in Improvised Explosive Device (IED) blast in Afghanistan's restive southern region, the military alliance said on Tuesday.

However, the brief statement released by ISAF here did not reveal the nationalities of the victims, saying it is ISAF policy to defer casualty identification procedures to the relevant national authorities.

Troops mainly from US, Britain, Canada and Australia have been stationed in the southern region within the framework of ISAF to fight Taliban militants there. The southern Afghan Provinces, the hotbed of Taliban, have been experiencing increasing militancy over the past couples of years despite continued military operations since mid last year.

Over 170 NATO soldiers, most of them Americans, have been killed in Afghanistan since beginning this year.—Xinhua

US drone attacks kill 15 in Pakistan's North Waziristan Agency

PESHAWAR, 17 May—At least 15 people were killed in two separate United States- led drone attacks in Pakistan's North Waziristan Agency on Monday.

The first attack at a house in the Khesro village killed nine suspected militants and destroyed the house completely, The Nation reports. Sources said that the house belonged to the militants.

In an another strike, a US drone fired two missiles at a moving vehicle in Miranshah, killing five travellers. It was a fifth drone attack in May that caused civilian losses.

The unmanned drone strikes are carried out by the US on reportedly "high value targets" in Pakistan but the Central Intelligence Agency has never officially acknowledged the programme.

US officials have defended the strikes as a vital tool in combating terrorism but critics point out that the bombings have caused massive civilian losses.

S Korea picks sites for $4.7bn science belt

SEOUL, 17 May— South Korea on Monday announced sites for its $4.76 billion “science belt” designed to help Asia’s fourth-largest economy take the lead in cutting-edge technologies. Daedeok district in the city of Daejeon will be the main base for the development, said Education, Science and Technology Minister Lee Ju-Ho. The government plans to inject 5.2 trillion won ($4.76 billion) into the project to build scientific infrastructure by 2017.

Daedeok will have key research facilities such as the National Basic Science Institute and a particle accelerator, used for research into the composition of matter.

The institute is expected to control 50 “site laboratories” manned by up to 3,000 scientists who will carry out research in various fields. Half will be in Daejeon and nearby areas, with the rest split among other cities. Daedeok will become a global hub for basic scientific research, minister Lee said, and help South Korea become a world technology leader. “I hope the science belt will contribute to the promotion of science and become the future of our nation,” Lee told aides, according to his office.—Internet

Greenhouse may expand ocean dead zones and cause mass extinction: Australian scientists

CANBERRA, 17 May— Greenhouse gases may expand ‘ocean dead zones’ and could cause a mass extinction of marine life, Australian scientists warned on Tuesday.

An Australian research team analyzed ocean rocks back from 85 million years ago from the Late Cretaceous Period, which experienced greenhouse conditions similar to those predicted in 2050.

Within the ancient rocks, drilled from ocean beds off the western coast of Africa, the researchers found huge amounts of marine life buried within deoxygenated layers.—Xinhua

Researchers detect early lung cancer through gene expression changes in nasal cells

LOS ANGELES, 17 May— Using a simple, minimally invasive technique to analyze cells from the interior of the nose, researchers have detected lung cancer in its earliest stage.

For the study, the researchers at the Boston University Medical Centre collected nasal epithelial cells from thirty three smokers who were undergoing medically-indicated bronchoscopies for suspicion of lung cancer, according to the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) on Sunday.

Of these patients, 11 were found to have benign disease and 22 had lung cancer. Brushings were taken from the right or left nostril and profiled on microarrays, a process that allows researchers to study gene expression changes.

The researchers identified 170 genes that were differentially expressed between patients with and without lung cancer. They also found that genes linked to colon cancer and adenocarcinoma, as well as genes that trigger cell division and blood vessel growth, were expressed more heavily in patients with cancer. Genes involved in tumor suppression were also expressed at lower levels in these patients.—Internet

Health Tip: Pregnant women must protect against toxoplasmosis

Toxoplasmosis is a parasitic infection that, if acquired by a pregnant woman, can threaten the fetus.

The American Academy of Pediatrics suggests how to reduce a woman's risk of acquiring toxoplasmosis during pregnancy:

- * Ask someone else to clean the cat's litter box each day.
- * If you must clean the litter box yourself, wear gloves and carefully wash your hands when you're finished.
- * Always wash hands with soap and water after exposure to unwashed vegetables, raw meat, soil or sand.
- * Don't eat undercooked meat.
- * Freeze meat for a few days before you cook it. This will greatly reduce the chances of infection.
- * Carefully clean with hot water and soap all knives and cutting boards after using them.
- * Wash or peel vegetables and fruits before eating them.
- * Don't drink untreated water, particularly when visiting another country.

New TMX takeover proposal eyes foreign expansion

TORONTO, 17 May—A proposal by a group of Canadian banks and pension funds to take over the operator of the Toronto Stock Exchange offers cost savings and opportunities for international growth, the group said on Monday.

A consortium calling itself the Maple Group Acquisition Corp is proposing a C$3.6 billion ($3.7 billion) deal to buy TMX Group, aiming to derail a $3 billion friendly bid for the exchange operator by the London Stock Exchange. Shares of TMX were up 6.01 percent at C$44.26 early on Monday afternoon on the Toronto Stock Exchange. "It presents a clear path to creating additional value by optimizing the balance sheet, margin expansion, improved multiple potential and the ability to pursue international growth opportunities," said Luc Bertrand, the vice-chairman of National Bank of Canada, one of the banks involved in the proposal. "There is huge value creation opportunity here, so at the end of the day the re-rating or increased valuation of the combined group will certainly allow the group to consider opportunities elsewhere," he said.—Internet

Analysts had expected the British firm to post a cautious outlook after recent weak trading updates from rivals, but instead Vodafone said it was gaining or holding market share in most of its major markets and leading the switch to higher tariff smartphones.

The group also posted a strong performance in its key emerging markets of India and South Africa and said the more stable economies in northern Europe had offset weakness in southern Europe.

Vodafone Chief Executive Vittorio Colao said the group also expected to pull further ahead in coming years as customers opt for the firm's superior network to access the Internet through phones such as Apple's iPhone while on the go.—Internet

SanDisk to buy SSD developer Pliant for 327 mln USD

SAN FRANCISCO, 17 May— Flash memory chip maker SanDisk announced Monday that it will acquire Pliant Technology, a leading developer of enterprise solid state drive (SSD), for about 327 million US dollars in cash plus equity-based incentives.

The acquisition could give SanDisk a boost in the enterprise storage market. Unlike traditional hard drives storing data on magnetic disks, SSDs keep information on faster flash memory chips.

Pliant said in a news release that it uses multilevel-cell (MLC) NAND in enterprise SSDs, making the drives more affordable for a broad adoption.

According to market research predictions provided by SanDisk, the enterprise SSD market is projected to reach 4.2 billion dollars in 2015, up from 994 million dollars in 2010, fueled by the expanding use of MLC NAND technology.

"We believe that the combination of Pliant's innovative technology and enterprise-level system expertise with SanDisk's high-quality, large-scale MLC memory production is a winning value proposition for customers," SanDisk CEO Sanjay Mehrotra said in a statement.

Chicago corn hikes most in a week as wet weather threatens to cut crop yield

CHICAGO, 17 May—Chicago corn on Monday witnessed the biggest rise in a week, as market expected that US wet weather would delay spring planting and threatened the crop yield. Wheat also rebounded from earlier weakness. But soybeans further declined amid expectation that soybeans would gain acres.

The most active corn contract for July delivery hiked 15.5 US cents, or 2.27 percent, to close at 6.975 US dollars per bushel. July wheat climbed 8.75 cents, or 1.2 percent, to 7.365 dollars per bushel. July soybean declined three cents, or 0.23 percent, to 13.265 dollars per bushel.

Rain in parts of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio was twice the normal amount in the past month, according to weather forecast. Floods are even swamping fields in the Mississippi River delta area.

As a result, the planting of crops was delayed. The US Department of Agriculture (USDA) recently said that corn seeding advanced at half of last year's pace as of May 8, and soybean and spring-wheat sowing also were behind. Besides, market hearsay went that China may have bought near one million metric tons of old corn crop, which also helped drive corn higher. Meanwhile, European wheat growing areas failed to receive as much rain as anticipated in the weekend, which also threatened the global wheat supply and helped buoy the price.

However, the soybeans market carried weak sentiment into Monday, as a lack of significant concerns for late plantings and expectation that soybeans will gain acres if weather remains wet in the northern plains helped to spark the sell-off in the market.

Argentina to hold presidential elections on 23 Oct

BUENOS, 17 May—Argentina on Monday announced the official dates for the country's general elections to be held later this year.

General elections will be held on 23 Oct while primary elections will be held on 14 Aug, the national gazette said.

If a second round of voting is needed to determine the outcome in Argentina's presidential elections, that will be held on 20 Nov. Current Argentine President Cristina Fernandez has already announced she is seeking re-election for the period 2011-2015.

Half of the South American country's members of parliament are also up for re-election along with senators for eight provinces, including Buenos Aires, Formosa, Jujuy, La Rioja, Misiones, San Juan, San Luis and Santa Cruz.

According to the National Election Chamber (CNE), Argentina has a total of 28.7 million registered voters out of the country's population of 40 million people.

Parties that don't meet the requirement for getting at least 1.5 percent of the total votes in the 14 August primary elections will be disqualified for participation in the legislative and presidential elections in October.—Xinhua

Colombian police captures two Venezuelans linked to drug lord Makled

BOGOTA, 17 May—Two Venezuelans who are believed to be linked to the Venezuelan-Swedish drug lord Walid Makled have been arrested in Colombia, police in the South American country said Monday.

The two Venezuelans, Victor Rafael Reales and Alvaro Luis Ospino, were arrested in an operation on Saturday in an exclusive area of Barranquilla, capital of the northern Colombian province of Santander, Colombia's National Police said in a statement.

The capture came less than a week after Colombian authorities extradited the alleged drug trafficker Walid Makled to Venezuela following a request by Venezuela's President Hugo Chavez. Police said the operation leading to the capture of the two Venezuelans was successful "thanks to the management of intelligence sources and surveillance technology" and cooperation with Venezuelan authorities, the police said.

Reales and Ospino are wanted for their alleged involvement in the 2009 murders of a veterinarian and a journalist who had testified as part of prosecutors' evidence against Makled.

Makled, who was detained in Colombia last August, was extradited to Caracas last Monday to face a variety of charges that include murder, drug trafficking, money laundering and acts of corruption.—Xinhua

Canadian wildfire forces Alberta town to evacuate

SLAVELAKE, 17 May— Wildfires that blazed through a northern Canadian town forced the evacuation of nearly 7,000 people.

Slave Lake Mayor Karina Pillay-Kinne said Monday that nearly one-third of the buildings were destroyed after strong winds suddenly turned the flames on the town.

All residents were ordered to leave Sunday afternoon, but evacuation proved difficult as smoke and fast-moving flames blocked some of the highways.

Some residents fled to a town 130 kilometers (80 miles) away. No deaths or injuries have been reported but rescue officials were knocking on doors to ensure that everyone ordered out had gone and no one was left behind.

Alberta Municipal Affairs said 95 percent of the town was empty and only essential or firefighting staff remained. Alberta cabinet minister Thomas Lukaszuk said it was the largest single-day displacement of people in the province's history.—Internet

Building collapses in Ark, killing young girl

MORRILTON, 17 May—A cosmetic store and a bridal boutique that was undergoing renovations collapsed in central Arkansas on Monday, killing a 2-year-old girl and injuring at least six other people.

Dozens of firefighters sifted through the wreckage left from the two-storey brick building hours after rescuers pulled Alissa Jones' body from the rubble and accounted for everyone else trapped inside, authorities said.

Investigators were trying to determine whether ongoing construction at one of the ground-level stores, which sold wedding gowns, was to blame for the collapse about 50 miles northwest of Little Rock. Authorities had not declared an official cause by Monday evening.

"We don't know how or why they collapsed," said Brandon Baker, the director of emergency management in Conway County. "We just know it was fast." Of the 10 people inside the building, Baker said one died and four others were injured. Conway County coroner Richard Neal identified the girl as Alissa Jones and said one of her relatives was among the injured.

But a local hospital confirmed six people were treated. Christy Hockaday, chief executive of St Vincent Morrilton, said five of the six were released and the remaining person was in good condition.

Vietnam to boost nuclear power infrastructure

HANOI, 17 May—Vietnam Atomic Energy Department (VAED) and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) held a seminar here on Monday to discuss measures to fulfill the master plan for building Vietnam's nuclear power infrastructure for the 2011-2015 period, according to Vietnam News Agency on Tuesday.

Vietnam placed focus on human resource development, completion of legal bases, conduction of feasibility studies and preparation for necessary conditions for nuclear power infrastructure, Vietnamese Deputy Minister of Science and Technology Le Dinh Tien addressed the meeting.

Tien spoke highly of IAEA's support to Vietnam in developing nuclear power infrastructure via technical assistance projects. He said delegates' contributions will help Vietnam design and conduct a training program on nuclear technology.

During the 5-day seminar, participants discussed measures to fulfill the master plan for building national nuclear power infrastructure for the 2011-2015 period, and human resource development for the nuclear power industry. IAEA and Vietnamese experts will also discuss the completion of a national project on nuclear power information popularization until 2020 for the Vietnamese Prime Minister to approve. Vietnam plans to build the first nuclear power plant in central Ninh Thuan province with a total investment of 3.5 billion US dollars, which is expected to operate during 2017-2020 with a capacity of 2,000 MW. By 2020, Vietnam will have a shortage of 65 billion KWh of electricity. Together with imports, the plant will help in reducing the shortage, VAED reported.—Xinhua

Recordings recovered from crashed Air France jet

One of the two flight recorders of the Air France flight 447, which crashed in 2009, is displayed to reporters during a press conference at the French investigators' headquarters in Le Bourget, near Paris, on 12 May, 2011.

INTERNET

PARIS, 17 May—French investigators said Monday they have recovered all the flight data and cockpit voice recordings from the recorders of an Air France jet found in the Atlantic depths nearly two years after it crashed.

The recorders were located by underwater robots and hoisted up from depths of nearly 4,000 meters earlier this month, in one of the most expensive and complicated air crash investigations in history.

The cause of the crash is unclear, and investigators and victims' families are hoping the recorders will shed light on what sent Air France Flight 447 into the sea 1 June, 2009, en route from Rio de Janeiro to Paris. All 228 people aboard were killed. The French air accident investigation agency BEA said Monday that an inter-national team down-loaded the material from the "black box" voice and data recorders over the weekend.—Internet

UK women over 35 years read pirated e-books!

LONDON, 17 May—A new survey has discovered a new breed of pirates taking over the Internet - women over the age of 35. It found that these book-loving women are the main culprits behind a surge in illegal download of e-books.

The rise in popularity of gadgets such as the Kindle and iPad has seen the popularity of e-books soar. A fifth of Britons now read them. In the poll, more than a third of those who own tablet computers admitted they had illegally downloaded an e-book. And a quarter of them planned to carry on doing so. The majority of those reading pirated e-books are women over the age of 35. But only five percent of them know about the Digital Economy Act which bans piracy, according to the study by Entertainment Media Research for law firm Wiggin.

Fifty-nine percent of those polled said people who download and read pirated e-books should not be punished. Instead the websites that allow the illegal downloads should be blocked, they said.

"Internet piracy among women has always been a rarity but the popularity of e-books looks to have changed that," the Daily Express quoted Alexander Ross, a partner at Wiggin, as saying.—Internet

Fukushima No1 rods "completely melted"

BEIJING, 17 May—The operator of the Fukushima Nuclear plant, TEPCO, says it's trying to determine whether the facility was actually damaged by the earthquake on March 11th, rather than the resulting tsunami. TEPCO also says fuel rods in the facility's number one reactor have completely melted down.

A spokesman for TEPCO has outlined a new analysis of the crisis. A review of data suggests the number 1 reactor's fuel rods were fully exposed within five hours of the quake, causing them to heat rapidly. By the next morning - just 16 hours later - the rods had largely melted down. If the new data analysis is correct, it means the facility was mainly damaged by the quake itself - not the resulting tsunami, as previously thought.

The No 2 and No 3 reactors are thought to have gone through a similar process, but with only 30 percent damage to their fuel rods. TEPCO has now decided to send a new team inside the plant to check the accuracy of the findings.

In response, Prime Minister Naoto Kan told Japan's parliament that the company will release an updated timetable for resolving the crisis on Tuesday. But Kan said stabilization of the reactors would still be limited to within six to nine months.

The new findings come as Japan on Friday ordered residents outside the established thirty-kilometer exclusion zone to leave their homes. Around 8-thousand people are to be relocated by the end of the month.

Salvadoran police investigate plane crash killing two Chinese

SANSALVADOR, 17 May— El Salvador's National Civil Police (PNC) on Monday were investigating the crash of a small plane that killed the pilot and two Chinese nationals in a region close to the capital. The reason for the crash remained a mystery as the YS 300 ED aircraft had undertaken a test flight, said the PNC. It crashed minutes after taking off from the Ilopango airfield some 10 km east of San Salvador Sunday afternoon.

"There was nothing out of order," said Alirio Serrano from El Salvador's Civil Aviation authority.

The two Chinese, Li Guoliang, 58, and Yu Wenkai, 42, were in Salvador on business on behalf of a Chinese aircraft company from Wuxi, China's eastern Jiangsu province. They died alongside the pilot Yaron Degani, a Salvadoran of Israeli origin. Degani, 56, had lived in El Salvador for over 20 years where he had funded the Pulsar Group, a company which has specialized in the manufacturing of a variety of spare parts for small airplanes since 2005 and has recently participated in a bidding to supply aircraft to the Salvadoran Armed Forces.

Serrano told local press that the plane had gone to an altitude of about 500 feet and crashed about 500 meters from the landing strip. "Local air traffic controllers said they heard a noise and then a shout."—Xinhua

Passenger saves bus as Swedish driver has heart attack

Quick action by the head of a Canadian choir touring Sweden narrowly averted an accident when the driver of their tour bus suffered a heart attack at full speed, Swedish media reported Monday.

About five minutes into the University of Manitoba choir's journey from Stockholm's Arlanda Airport towards the town of Sundsvall, about 350 kilometres (200 miles) north of the capital, the bus starting swerving uncontrollably on the highway.

At that point, choir leader Elroy Friesen noticed the driver had fallen over the wheel, he told the local paper, Sundsvall Tidning.

"I threw myself forward and put the gear stick in what I thought was neutral. Then I hit the brakes," he said.

The bus eventually stopped, and none of the 32 passengers were hurt.

Passengers then pulled the driver out of the bus, with one choir member performing resuscitation and giving him mouth to mouth.

An ambulance arrived shortly after and he survived.

US makes mistake on visa lottery, must redraw

The US State Department on Friday said it mistakenly told more than 22,000 people that they had won a special US visa lottery due to a computer glitch, and that the drawing would have to be redone.

The news dashes the hopes of those who believed they were eligible for the next step in obtaining one of the coveted "green card" lottery visas and gives a second, if remote, chance to the rest of the 19.6 million people who had applied. Because of a computer programming error, 90 percent of the winners were selected from the first two days of applications rather than from the entire 30-day registration period.

"We sincerely regret any inconvenience or disappointment this problem might have caused," David Donahue, the State Department official who oversees the programme, told reporters.

He said that the problem had been fixed and the results of the new drawing from among the same 19.6 million people who applied were expected to be available around 15 July. Under the Diversity Immigrant Visa Programme, the US government makes available some 50,000 visas each year drawn randomly to people who come from countries with low rates of immigration to the United States.

The lottery gives the winners the opportunity to immigrate without having a family member or an employer sponsor them — the typical route to a US "green card" denoting permanent residency. Donahue said the US government wrote the malfunctioning computer program. Another US official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said no one will be disciplined for the error.

Shakira gives Venezuela's Chavez signed, red guitar

CARACAS, 17 May—Colombian pop star Shakira has given Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez an autographed electric guitar that is painted red, the colour of the leader's socialist political movement.

The Grammy award winner and songwriter sent him the instrument after visiting the South American country in March, Chavez said on Sunday and thanked her for the gift.

"I was practicing last night, looking for the pluggs. It's electric, a very modern guitar and I'm not used to it," Chavez said during a phone call to a state TV station. "I was singing some songs, old ones, a Mexican one." Known for his informal style, Chavez often belts out Latin American folk songs during political rallies and speeches.

"How am I going to practice 'Waka-Waka' with this swollen foot?" Chavez asked when an official suggested he sing Shakira's hit song for last year's World Cup. He ended the call singing a bolero, a slow Latin American song.

LA rapper M-Bone killed in drive-by shooting

LOS ANGELES, 17 May—Los Angeles rapper M-Bone, a member of the group Cali Swag District, was killed in what appeared to be a drive-by shooting, police and celebrity news sites said on Monday.

Police said a man was shot while outside a liquor store in the Inglewood area on Los Angeles on Sunday night and pronounced dead at a nearby hospital. Website TMZ.com identified him as rapper M-Bone, whose real name is Montae Talbert. M-Bone was a member of hip-hop group Cali Swag District who

Blackburn manager on drink driving charge

LONDON, 17 May— Blackburn manager Steve Kean has been charged with drink driving after failing a breath test hours after his team's 1-1 draw on Saturday which handed the title to Manchester United, a report said. The under-pressure boss was travelling along the M6 in northwest England when he was pulled over by Cheshire police and will now appear before Crewe magistrates' court on 7 June, according to a Press Association report.

The agency quoted a Cheshire police spokesman as saying: "At 8:50 pm on Saturday 14 May, Cheshire officers stopped a Mercedes car on the M6 southbound carriageway, between Junction 19 and 18." "The driver, a 43-year-old man, provided a positive breath test," the spokesman confirmed. Despite the impressive draw with the newly crowned Premier League champions, Rovers remain embroiled in a relegation dogfight with one match of the season remaining.— Internet

Bayern in talks with FA Cup winner Jerome Boateng

BERLIN, 17 May—German giants Bayern Munich confirmed on Monday that they were in talks to buy German international defender Jerome Boateng from FA Cup winners Manchester City.

According to Tuesday's edition of Bild, the 22-year-old — who has only been at City for a season — would cost 12.5 million euros ($17.8m), which is what the English club paid Hamburg to sign him last year. Bayern are reportedly unwilling to offer more than 8m euros.

Bild claim Boateng, who impressed at last year's World Cup finals, where Germany finished third, will sign a four-year contract with Bayern, who have had a disappointing season, failing to defend their league and cup titles. "Negotiations are underway," Bayern's incoming coach Jupp Heynckes told Bild.

Licka jeopardises Lyon's Champions League push

PARIS, 7 May—A scorching half-volley by Czech midfielder Mario Licka earned Brest a 1-1 draw at home to Lyon on Monday that damaged the visitors' hopes of securing Champions League qualification.

Third-placed Lyon, humiliated 4-0 by Auxerre in their previous outing, were bidding to pull four points clear of nearest rivals Paris Saint-Germain.

They were only able to extend their advantage by two points, however, meaning that beaten French Cup finalists PSG can assume pole position in the race for a Champions League place if they win at Bordeaux on Wednesday.

Failure to secure third place would mean Claude Puel's side miss out on a place in Europe's premier cup competition after 12 successive participations.

Top Italian football clubs reflect on failures

ROME, 17 May—While a lot of attention has been focussed this Serie A season on the surprisingly positive campaigns of Napoli, Lazio and Udinese, there are three other teams whose failures have been just as notable.

While the other three were surpassing expectations and battling for a place in next season's Champions League, Juventus, Roma and Sampdoria have been the big losers this term. And each one has staked their claim for the biggest of the under-achievers.

First there is Roma who finished second last year, missing out on the title by two points, paying dearly for a home defeat to Samp four matches from the end of the season. They began this term with high hopes of going one further and strengthened with the signings of forward Marco Borriello from AC Milan and midfielder Simplicio from Palermo.— Internet

Djokovic emulates Nadal in qualifying for ATP Finals

PARIS, 17 May—Unstoppable Serbian Novak Djokovic on Monday became only the second player since 1990 to qualify for the season-ending ATP World Tour Finals before the French Open.

The 23-year-old world number two sealed his place in the finals after beating world number one Rafael Nadal in last Sunday's Rome Masters to extend his unbeaten run this year to 37 matches. Djokovic's last loss came in the semi-finals of the Finals last year, to former world number one Roger Federer.

He will be competing in the Finals for a fifth successive year, which has seen him win the title once, in 2008.— Internet

Tiger says he's still aiming to be at US Open

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, 17 May—Tiger Woods says he didn't do any more damage to his left leg at The Players Championship and expects to play the US Open next month.

Woods made it only nine holes last week at The Players — his shortest tournament ever — when he withdrew after nine holes because of what he described as a chain reaction of pain from his left knee to left Achilles and tightening in his calf. He shot 42 on the front nine.

On his website on Monday, Woods said he irritated the knee and Achilles without making them worse. He said doctors have advised rest, cold water therapy and soft tissue treatment, which he said he already had been receiving.— Internet

Maradona named coach at Dubai's Al-Wasl

DUBAI, 17 May— Argentina legend Diego Maradona is to take over as coach next season at Dubai's Al-Wasl, the club announced on Monday. "Al-Wasl Sports Club is proud to announce the appointment of Diego Armando Maradona as head coach of Al-Wasl Football Club, in a momentous development that will see the football legend lead the team for the next two seasons," the club said in a statement.

The 50-year-old Maradona was manager of the Argentina national side at last year's World Cup in South Africa, but was sacked after they lost 4-0 to Germany in the quarter-finals. His name had been mentioned in connection with several coaching jobs since then, notably in the English Premier League and in Iran, but nothing came of these speculations.— Internet shortened opening stage of the Tour of California.

The 23-year-old Swift on Monday stormed into the lead, emerging from a large sprint pack to finish the 124 kilometers (76.7 miles) in two hours, 47 minutes and 12 seconds.

It was the fifth win of the season for Swift, who competes for Team Sky.

Slovakia's Sagan, of Liquigas-Cannondale, finished right behind Swift in second and Aussie Matthew Goss, of HTC-Highroad, was third.

Monday's second stage was run on a shortened course because of snow and chilly temperatures which wiped out Sunday's planned first of the eight-stage event in the Lake Tahoe area.

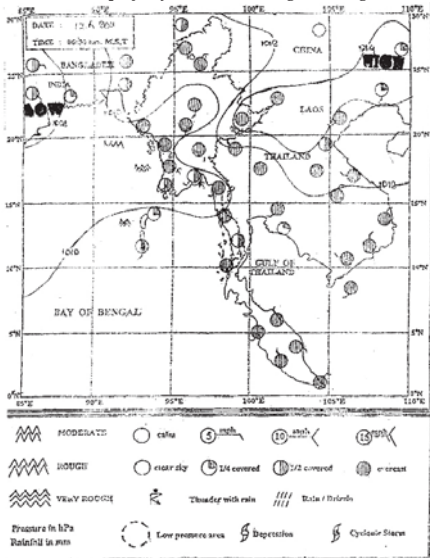

Swift goes into the third stage with a four-second cushion over Sagan and a six-second lead over Goss.

NFL, players start another day of mediation

MINNEAPOLIS, 17 May—NFL owners and players and their legal counsel have returned to court for another round of mediation.

Commissioner Roger Goodell arrived Tuesday morning with other league leaders, and other owners entered the courthouse in separate small groups. Linebacker Mike Vrabel showed up shortly before attorneys for the players.

This is the sixth day of talks with US Magistrate Judge Arthur Boylan. After a series of stinging rebukes in court, the NFL has a significant, favorable ruling in hand. The same three-judge panel that sided with the league to keep the lockout in place will hear arguments next month on the legality of the NFL's first work stoppage in

Emergence of a modern developed nation calls for harmonious physical and intellectual development

Pakokku Literary and Scholarship Award ceremony held

NAY PYI TAW, 17 May—The Pakokku Literary and Scholarship Award ceremony (2010), established by Pakokku U Ohn Pe, was held at Pyithaya Hall in Pakokku, Pakokku District, Magway Region, yesterday morning.

The ceremony was attended by Union Minister for Information and for Culture U Kyaw Hsan, Union Minister at the President Office U Soe Maung, Magway Region Minister for Education and Health U Aung Kyaw Min, departmental officials, the chairman and CEC members of Myanmar Writers and Journalists Association, members of Pakokku U Ohn Pe Library Committee, Pakokku Literary Award Fund Supervisory Committee and social organizations and local people.

First, Union Minister for Information and for Culture U Kyaw Hsan delivered an opening speech. He said that like the State presenting literary awards every year, the presenting of private literary awards, including Pakokku Literary Award, is actually helping the people to widen their scope of knowledge. Emergence of a modern developed nation calls for harmonious physical and intellectual development.

The aim of presenting such literary awards is in a way to serve the interests of not only an individual or an organization but also the entire national people. So, the award-winning writers are urged to continue producing fine literary works and organize the people to cultivate a constant habit of reading and cooperate in the efforts for promoting public knowledge. Again, the award-winning students are to continue to work hard to become the brilliant ones who can serve the best interests of the nation and the people.
