Thanatpin Township in Bago Region grows rice, peas and edible oil crops on a commercial scale. Under the arrangements by Manager U Ye Ko Ko of Thanatpin Township Myanmar Agriculture

Service, we visited the paddy field of U San Shwe Oo.

U San Shwe Oo said that he grew summer paddy for 29 acres; that paddy was at harvest at the age of 160 days; that the paddy strain he chose was Manawthukha; that using farm machinery saved time and money but boosted production of paddy; that paddy per acre yield was 95 to 100 baskets; that farmers were getting on with farming as the prevailing price of a basket of paddy was around 350,000 kyats; and that the chief minister of Bago Region toured summer paddy fields.

We noticed that they used combine harvesters in reaping paddy. A combine harvester can

Shape drug free society

Narcotic drugs are harmful not only to addicts but also to their society. Drug abuse causes economic and social losses and tarnishes the society.

The number of drug addicts abusing opium, heroin, opium oil, opium liquid, marijuana and others are increasing day by day across the world. Likewise, stimulant tablets made of chemical precursors are spreading throughout the world. Narcotic drugs and stimulant tablets are a dangerous threat to rich or poor countries as well as large and small regions.

Especially, various kinds of narcotic drugs are dangerously spreading among the youths. As narcotic drugs are serious a problem caused by users, producers and traffickers, all the countries and regions are placing emphasis on eradication them.

Myanmar is carrying out narcotic drug elimination tasks in cooperation with the people. The narcotic drug eradication 15-year plan is being implemented in leaps and bounds to accomplish it during the period from 1999 to 2014.

Thanks to cooperation of the local people, the government has achieved success in drug eradication tasks. Momentum is being added in destruction of poppy plantations and combating of drug trafficking. In April, as opium, heroin, opium oil, low-grade opium, marijuana and stimulant tablets were seized across the nation, action was taken against 459 culprits under law.

Although narcotic drug eradication tasks are being carried out across the world, various kinds of narcotic drugs and stimulant tablets are threatening the human beings till now. Therefore, all the people are to join hands with the government in effectively eradicating narcotic drugs to be able to shape a drug free society.

Bombs destroy police station in Iraq, one dead

SULAIMANIYAH, 19 May—Iraqi officials say a pair of bombs at a police headquarters in the northern Iraqi City of Kirkuk have killed at least 25 person and wounded some 70 others.

The Thursday morning explosions targeted the main police station in central Kirkuk, which collapsed in the blasts.

Kirkuk police spokesman Brig Gen Sarhat Qadir said victims were being pulled from the rubble, and the casualty count was expected to rise.

Police chief Maj Gen Jamal Taher put the initial casualty count at one dead and five injured.

Kirkuk is 180 miles (290 kilometres) north of Baghdad and has been an ethnic flashpoint for years among Kurds, Arabs and Turkomen who each claim the oil-rich city as their own.

Threat of terrorist attack on Australia's airport is a hoax

MELBOURNE, 19 May—Victoria police Inspector Tony Ryan on Thursday said the threat against Australia's Melbourne Airport was a hoax.

A letter warning of an attack at Tullamarine and Avalon Airports in Melbourne of Australia was earlier sent to authorities and media outlets. The threat detailed weapons that would be used.

According to inspector Ryan, police attended the airport after they have received the letter.

"It was a terrorist threat, but after investigation the police, Australian Federal Police (AFP) and the airport decided it was a hoax," Ryan told reporters in Melbourne on Thursday.

Victoria Police also described the threat as "non genuine".

The Victoria Police's statement said there is no credible information to suggest there was any strength behind the threat made at this stage, and the matter is now subject to an ongoing joint investigation by Victoria Police and the AFP.

KABUL, 19 May—Afghan and NATO-led forces had killed over 60 militant during three-day military operation in Faryab Province, some 425 km northwest of capital city of Kabul, the military alliance said on Thursday.

"Afghan and International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) killed more than 60 militant during clearing operations in Qiasar District, Faryab Province in a three-day operation which began Friday," said a statement released by NATO-led ISAF here.

According to the statement, the combined force cleared the area around Ghuchghar Village after receiving reports of militant activities.

"In the ensuing engagements, the combined force reported destroying 23 motorcycles used by militant, several rocket propelled grenades, machine guns, numerous assault rifles and accompanying ammunition."

Afghan and NATO officials often use the world "militant" for referring to Taliban militants.

However, the militant group who announced on 30 April to start spring offensive against Afghan and NATO-led international forces have yet to make comments.

China to launch more Beidou navigation satellites by 2012

SHANGHAI, 19 May—China will launch some eight Beidou navigation satellites by 2012, a leading navigation satellite expert said here on Wednesday.

China has sent eight Beidou satellites into orbit, as the latest was launched in April this year, said Ran Chengqi, director of China Satellite Navigation System management office. He made the remarks at the second China satellite navigation academic annual meeting. Beidou satellite navigation system will finish comprehensive tests as of October 2011 and have the capacity to provide "preliminary" services for most parts of China, Ran said.

By 2020, about 35 satellites will form Beidou's global satellite navigation system, Ran added. Ran forecast China's satellite navigation sector would see about 400 billion yuan (61.84 billion US dollars) in annual output value by 2020.—Xinhua

Japan's auto venture SIM-DRIVE's prototype model of the electric vehicle SIM-LEI, which is expecting to go on sale in 2013, is unveiled in Tokyo.—INTERNET

Japanese electric car 'goes 300km' on single charge

TOKYO, 19 May—Japanese developers have unveiled an electric car they said Wednesday can travel more than 300 kilometres before its battery runs flat.

Electric vehicle specialist SIM-Drive, which hopes to take the car to market by 2013 but gave no projected cost, said its four-seater "SIM-LEI" had motors inside each wheel and a super-light frame, allowing for 333 kilometres (207 miles) of motoring on one charge in a test.

Its designers say they hope the prototype, a joint project among 34 organizations including Mitsubishi Motors and engineering firm IHI, will be sold to car manufacturers for mass production.

Automakers such as Nissan, which launched its all-electric Leaf last year with a 160-kilometre range, are gambling that electric cars with zero tailpipe emissions will catch on and, some time in the future, start to drive traditional petrol-guzzlers off the road.

Electric cars still face key hurdles such as costly batteries and the lack of conveniently-located recharging points, which limits their operating radius.—Internet

US backs need for smallpox stockpile

A scientist manipulates a pathogenic virus.—INTERNET

GENEVA, 19 May—The United States backed up Tuesday its long-held position on the need to preserve samples of smallpox, saying keeping a stockpile of the virus counters the threat of germ warfare.

“We are concerned that the smallpox virus still exists outside the official laboratories and could be released intentionally or used as a virus weapon,” US Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius told the World Health Organization’s 64th assembly.

“The WHO on review on the smallpox research programme concluded definitely that additional research is needed to protect public health if this occurred,” she added.

Currently only the United States and Russia maintain the last strains of the virus which was eradicated in the 1980s. For over two decades the WHO’s 193 member states have been at a deadlock on the need to preserve the samples. The WHO, the public health arm of the United Nations, has studied a proposal seeking to extend by another five years the use of smallpox samples for research, Sebelius said.

“But let me be clear, we are committed to the eventual destruction of the virus stocks,” she added.—Internet

Everyone forgets things now and then, and remembering everything naturally becomes more difficult as you get older.

But certain types of memory loss may indicate something much more serious. The American Academy of Family Physicians says the following warning signs should not be ignored:

- * Suddenly forgetting things much more frequently than you once did.
- * Having difficulty remembering tasks you have performed many times.
- * Having trouble learning how to do new things.
- * Telling the same stories or saying the same phrases repeatedly in a conversation.
- * Having problems dealing with money or making decisions.
- * Having difficulty keeping track of daily events.—Internet

Kid acetaminophen label changes

WASHINGTON, 19 May— Pediatric doses of acetaminophen — Tylenol — should be based on a child’s weight first, then age, a US Food and Drug Administration advisory panel advises.

The FDA advisory panel also recommends that infant acetaminophen should be labelled only for fever reduction in children age 2 and under, but labels may recommend acetaminophen for both fever and pain in children age 2 and older, WebMD reported.

The panel also advises the FDA to:

- Require infant acetaminophen bottles have instructions for children ages 6 months to 2 years. Current labels warn parents of the danger of fever in children age 2 and under and instruct them to call a doctor.
- Require liquid acetaminophen manufacturers to make it harder for children to take an accidental overdose.
- Require liquid acetaminophen bottles to be accompanied with measuring devices clearly marked in milliliters.
- Require all pill forms of acetaminophen for children to come in the same concentration.—Internet

GM to build first electric motor plant in US

CHICAGO, 19 May— The General Motors Co (GM) on Tuesday announced its plan to build an electric motor plant near Baltimore, Maryland, the first such plant dedicated to making key components for vehicle electrification in the United States.

The plant is scheduled to open in 2013. “We believe the future of sustainable transportation is electrically driven vehicles and this facility will help us maintain a leadership position within this category,” said Mike Robinson, GM vice president in charge of environment and safety policy.

GM has dedicated 269.5 million US dollars to the building of the plant. Besides, GM said that the plant will be powered in part by a 1.23-megawatt rooftop solar array, which is expected to generate nine percent of its annual energy consumption and save approximately 330,000 dollars during the life of the project. GM said last week it plans to invest two billion dollars into 17 US facilities nationwide over the next few years.

Dollar down as commodities and global stocks rise

SINGAPORE, 19 May—The dollar slipped on Thursday with funds sensing a rally this month is ending and expectations increasing that commodity prices have resumed an uptrend, pushing up equities in Asia’s energy and materials sectors.

Investors have been struggling to find a common theme in financial markets after two routs in commodities over the past two weeks led to a reduction of risky assets in portfolios. Economic data out of the United States and China also sent mixed signals.

Some investors latched on to a rise in US 10-year yields from a low for the year hit overnight because Federal Reserve officials expressed worries about inflation ahead of the expiration of a $600 billion bond purchase programme next month. A rebound in the S&P 500 index from a one-month low also played a role. A slide in Treasury futures suggested more weakness was in store for US bonds. Higher US yields supported the dollar briefly

At the paddy field of U San Shwe Oo, U Ye Ko Ko explained that their township could exceed the target of 28,750 acres of paddy by 30 acres that summer; that they used such paddy strains as Manawthukha, Hsinthwelat, Theehtatyin, Yadana Aung and Yar (2); that the objectives of the Myanma Agriculture Service were to help boost production of crops, to disseminate advanced agricultural methods, and to provide high-yield strains of crops; that the staff supervised the growing of crops in the township; that the summer paddy fields were irrigated by Bago-Sittoung Canal, whose section in Thanatpin Township was 14 miles and four furlongs long; that the canal was supported water from Moeyungyi Lake; and that the irrigated water was enough for cultivation of summer paddy.

It was very heartening to see that farmers were harvesting paddy fields with combine harvesters and weighting paddy. Indeed, farmers take part in the drive for food security of the nation.

During the trip, we were tired under the glare of the sun, but it was worth observing thriving summer paddy fields.

Pyi Myanmar Farm Machinery Factory...

The factory is the pride of Kyaiklat as it makes huge contribution towards the nation's economy and mechanized farming.

Proprietor U Zaw Min Oo (a) Ko Kyar Kat said that he took over the family business from his father in 1998-1999; that they yearly produced 20 to 30 paddy threshers, about 100 power-tillers and about 200 water pumps, apart from many types of farm machines and wrought ironworks; that they had received an order from Htoo Company for 200 sets of farm machinery wheels; and that they made 15 sets of farm machinery wheels a year for the showroom of the Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation at 9th Mile in Yangon.

When asked about the feedback from the users, he said that their works were economical for farmers; that then, farmers used farm machinery in ploughing fields, growing crops and winnowing and threshing grains, so their goods were in demand; that their goods were cheap but effective; that they could pay taxes to the government regularly; that they were getting well on with their business and could regularly make donations to social occasions and funeral services; that their family business had entered 20 years; and that they were trying hard for greater success in their business.

Whale tangled off Western Australia

BEIJING, 19 May—A humpback whale has become entangled in ropes off the coast of Western Australia. Footage shows the 11-meter whale moving through the water with ropes from a crayfish pot wrapped around its body.

Officials from the state's Department of Environment and Untangling the whale could be a difficult operation, as divers cannot be used. A small boat will pull alongside the mammal so workers can reach the ropes.

Australian air force grounds all PC-9 planes after crash

CANBERRA, 19 May—The Australian Defence Force's entire fleet of PC-9 aircraft has been grounded since Thursday, following a crash at East Sale Air Force Base in Victoria.

Two pilots, a qualified flying instructor and a trainee instructor, ejected from their plane moments before it went down one kilometre short of the runway on late Wednesday.

The Defence Department suspected engine failure is to be blamed and has grounded all 60 PC-9 planes during investigation.

According to Australian Aviation Magazine Deputy Editor Andrew McLaughlin, the PC-9 is a single-engine training aircraft, and they have been in service for more than 20 years.

It is the third incident and second grounding involving the turbo-prop trainers this year.

In February, the engine in a training plane caught fire at Royal Australian Air Force (RAAF) Base Pearce, just north of Perth.

Last month, two landing gear doors fell off one of the planes near Heyfield in Eastern Victoria.

Retired Air Vice Marshal and RAAF Association president Roxley McLennan said the groundings do not necessarily mean there are serious safety concerns with the PC-9s.

"Safety is always paramount," he told ABC News on Thursday.

"The pause, if you like, in operations is generally a result of wanting to be absolutely sure that the problem is understood and risks associated with it are probably understood and that people are protected."

The Air Force said the PC-9s will not fly again until it can guarantee the safety.—Xinhua

Germany to cut troops by one fifth

BERLIN, 19 May—Germany will cut its size of armed forces by nearly one fifth in the next six to eight years, Defence Minister Thomas de Maiziere said on Wednesday.

De Maiziere said the number of armed forces will be shed between 175,000 and 185,000.

Troops will be cut by 45,000, while civilian positions will be reduced by 21,000 to 55,000.

Troops deployed oversees will increase from the current 7,000 to 10,000.

The goal of the reform was to make German army more financially sustainable and more effective for international mission through streamlining structure and reducing bureaucracy, de Maiziere said.

However, sending troops abroad was not popular for German public.

In March, Merkel's government abstained from joining in NATO's military operations against Libya.

Though the whole reform will be implemented within the next six to eight years, he said the major reform will take place over the next two years.

De Maiziere's predecessor, Karl-Theodor zu Guttenberg started the reform process last year, which has abolished conscription for German Army.

‘Planker’ in coma in Australia

BRISBANE, 19 May—A man was in a coma Thursday after falling off a car reportedly while “planking” as three others were charged for taking part in the Internet craze on the roof of a moving vehicle.

Simon Hallam, 20, may never recover from horrific head injuries after falling heavily onto the road from a fast-moving car as he attempt to “plank”, according to local reports, although other media said he was “car surfing”.

The “planking” craze involves someone lying flat on their stomach with their arms against their bodies in unusual and sometimes dangerous situations, with photos of their exploits posted on social media sites.

The fad has gone viral in Australia over the last week, but claimed a life on Sunday when a man died in Brisbane after plummeting to his death while attempting to “plank” on a seventh-storey balcony.

Hallam’s father, Terry, told the Brisbane Courier-Mail that what happened to his son was a strong warning to others thinking about joining the craze.

“The Internet and Facebook, they’re just dreadful things they encourage this sort of behaviour among the young ones,” he said.

“And young ones don’t think about the consequences of their actions, they think it’s fun, so they do it with little thought for what could happen—like this.”

Separately, Queensland police charged three men in their 20s with public nuisance for “planking” on the roof of a moving car.

Toowoomba District Acting Inspector Jim Fenton said he was in disbelief.

“We would question their level of intelligence and due regard to self-preservation,” he told reporters.

Indonesia, ROK ink nine MoUs on economic coop, investment

JAKARTA, 19 May—The governments of Indonesia and South Korea on Wednesday signed nine memorandum of understandings (MoUs) related economic cooperation and investment, the Jakarta Post reported here on Thursday.

Speaking after the signing, Coordinating Minister for the Economy Hatta Rajasa said that the business partnership agreements could make Indonesia as South Korea’s main overseas investment hub in the world. The MoUs signed by the two countries’ senior government officials and business representatives cover partnership agreements in the fields of technology, textiles, machinery, maritime, aerospace, defence and solar photovoltaic, and among others.

The MoUs include hydroelectric power plant projects in Lampung Province, shipyard collaboration between Daewoo Shipbuilding and Marine Engineering and PT Dok & Perkapalan Kodja Bahari to build projects for vessels and offshore facilities. “We would like to see Indonesia becoming the main destination for South Korea’s investment.

In this light, we seek to broaden our trade and investment ties with South Korea,” Hatta said in his opening remarks at the meeting.

South Korea is currently the sixth largest investor in Indonesia, with cumulative investment of 3.35 billion US dollars over the last 10 years — excluding investments in the oil and gas and banking sectors — covering around 1,400 projects.

Astronomers find planets wandering without orbits

BEIJING, 19 May—Astronomers have found potential planets wander through a slice of the Milky Way galaxy instead of being anchored to a host star, according to a study published in the British science journal Nature on Wednesday.

In a two-year scan of the cosmos, 10 planets with roughly the mass of Jupiter, the largest planet of our Solar System, have been found at such enormous distances from the nearest star. Some of them could be said to float freely through the Milky Way. Scientists believe planets are formed when disks of dust that orbit stars form clumps, so that these clumps — the planets — remain in orbit. Maybe the newfound objects started out that way, but then got tossed out of orbit or into distant orbits by the gravitational tugs of larger planets, the researchers suggest.

The work suggests that such a tossing-out process is quite common, said one author of the new study, physicist David Bennett of the University of Notre Dame. The new planets were found in a search that looked for objects ranging between 10 and 500 astronomical units (AU) from a star.—Xinhua

Coffee 'cuts prostate cancer risk' US study suggests

NEW YORK, 19 May—Coffee has been linked to a reduced risk of dying from prostate cancer in a study of nearly 50,000 US men. Those who drank six or more cups a day were found to be 20% less likely to develop any form of the disease — which is the most common cancer in men.

They were also 60% less likely to develop an aggressive form which can spread to other parts of the body. But charities say the evidence, reported

Could coffee contain an anti-cancer agent?

INTERNET in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, is still unclear. They do not recommend that men take up coffee drinking in the hope of preventing prostate cancer.

The study looked at about 48,000 men in the US who work as health professionals. Every four years between 1986 and 2006, they were asked to report their average daily intake of coffee. During this 20-year period, 5,035 of the men were diagnosed with prostate cancer, including 642 fatal cases. No difference was seen between caffeinated and decaffeinated coffee, suggesting caffeine itself was not the cause.

US jobless rate to remain high by end of 2012

WASHINGTON, 19 May—Although the US labour market was improving gradually, the nation's jobless rate was projected to remain high at the end of 2012, the US Federal Reserve said on Wednesday.

The Central Bank predicted that the US unemployment rate might stay at an elevated range between 8.4 percent and 8.7 percent this year, according to minutes released on Wednesday at a Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) meeting held in April.

Members of the FOMC, the Fed's interest rate policy making body, forecast that the nation's unemployment might still hover at a stubbornly high level between 7.6 percent and 7.9 percent in 2012.—MNA/Xinhua

Russia arrests man who ate human liver with potatoes

Russian police said on Tuesday they had detained a man who was caught eating an acquaintance's liver.

Police tracked down the suspect after a trail of severed body parts including limbs and a head were found across Moscow.

"When the police came to arrest the suspect, he was eating a human liver with potatoes," a police spokeswoman for the Moscow's western

US sues Starbucks for firing dwarf from barista job

The US government is suing Starbucks Coffee Company for firing a barista in El Paso because she is a dwarf. When the employee asked for a stool or small stepladder to perform her job, Starbucks denied the request and fired her that same day, claiming that she could be a danger to customers and workers, according to the US Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The commission, which filed the lawsuit on Monday, said that Starbucks violated federal law by denying a reasonable accommodation to the employee, who was hired in July 2009 and was fired after three days of training. "Starbucks has become a virtual icon of modern American culture, appealing to an incredibly diverse customer base," Robert Canino, a commission lawyer in Dallas, said in a statement. "We'd hope that when considering hiring a person with a disability, Starbucks would choose to enhance its brand with the mark of equal opportunity and access." Starbucks did not immediately respond to a request for comment on Tuesday.

Lady Gaga's mum 'used to cut her hair as she slept'

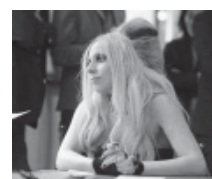

WASHINGTON, 19 May—Lady Gaga has revealed that her mother used to cut her long locks while she was sleeping.

The singer has said that her new single 'Hair' is about how her parents tried to change her look after she dressed up to go out, without realizing how important your haircut is as part of your personality.

"When I was young my mom and dad used to ask me to not leave the house dressed a certain way and asked me to change my hair," Contactmusic quoted Gaga as telling UK radio station KISS.

"My mom would even cut my hair when I was asleep because I had

Peter Andre losing his looks

LONDON, 19 May — Singer Peter Andre says he is losing his looks as he is ageing. "I don't think I ever look really horrible, but I am noticing a few lines here and there. I'm Mediterranean, tanned and not as good as I was," he told Heat magazine. But Andre is not afraid to show off his body, reports contact-music.com. "Have I ever been skinny dipping? Yes, many times. The last time was at home in Cyprus. I've done it jumping off cliffs."

Stoke's Pulis latest manager to get Webb warning

LONDON, 19 May — Stoke City manager Tony Pulis became the latest Premier League boss to be censured for making complimentary comments about World Cup final referee Tony Pulis when he was warned as to his future conduct by the Football Association (FA) on Wednesday. Pulis joined Manchester United manager Sir Alex Ferguson and Chelsea's Carlo Ancelotti in contravening FA regulations prohibiting any comment whatsoever regarding referees by bosses in the build-up to matches.

Pulis said of Webb: "He's as good as there is."

What makes him special is that little bit of an aura he has about him." A statement read: "The FA has today (Wednesday) warned Tony Pulis as to his future conduct. "The Stoke City manager's warning relates to his pre-match media comments prior to the FA Cup semi-final against Bolton Wanderers on 17 April."

What next for Macheda after Sampdoria flop?

Manchester United's Italian forward Federico Macheda

ROME, 19 May—Two seasons ago Federico Macheda was the new darling of the Stretford End and seemed on the verge of becoming the next great Manchester United striker. Making his debut as a substitute for Nani in a crucial Premier League match against Aston Villa with United trailing 2-1, he scored an injury-time winner and the Red Devils went on to win the title.

Macheda was just 17 at the time but already seemed to have the big-game mentality the sport's top-level players possess. But two years on and Macheda, although still only a teenager, seems to be stuck in limbo. When he arrived at United he was behind Wayne Rooney, Dimitar Berbatov and Carlos Tevez in the pecking order.

Tevez left but Michael Owen was brought in and Macheda was still at best fourth-choice striker, although with Danny Welbeck and Mame Biram Diouf also on the club's books, there was no certainty of that.—Internet

Lucic wins battle of former tennis prodigies

STRASBOURG, 19 May—Croatia's Mirjana Lucic won the battle of the former prodigies beating Australia's Jelena Dokic in straight sets to reach her first quarter-finals in 12 years at the WTA Strasbourg Open on Wednesday. The 29-year-old US-based player, who had to come through the qualifiers here this week, eased past Dokic 6-2, 6-2 in their

Lille all but French champions after victory over Sochaux

PARIS, 19 May — Lille effectively sealed victory in the French league title race after a 53rd-minute goal from Gervinho yielded a laboured but vital 1-0 victory at home to Sochaux on Wednesday. Rudi Garcia's side, who beat Paris Saint-Germain 1-0 in Saturday's French Cup final to end a 56-year trophy drought, were dominant throughout but their inability to put the game to bed made for a nervy finale.

The win puts Lille six points clear of second-placed Marseille with two games to play, and their +31 goal difference is eight goals better than their nearest rivals'.

Inzaghi signs new deal but Pirlo leaving Milan

ROME, 19 May — Veteran forward Filippo Inzaghi on Wednesday signed a new one-year contract with AC Milan tying him to the club until the end of next season when he will be 38. But midfield playmaker Andrea Pirlo revealed that he would be leaving the champions Milan after 10 years. "I'm here to say goodbye," Pirlo told reporters when he arrived at the club's headquarters in Milan. "After 10 unforgettable years I want to thank the club and the fans for their affection."

He said the decision to part company was mutual but that he had yet to decide on his next destination. "I haven't yet spoken to Juventus and we (with Milan) didn't speak of any offers," he added. "It was already in my mind to leave, it was a mutual decision." Pirlo, who turns 32 on Thursday, joined the club in 2001 after three years at cross-town rivals Inter Milan.—Internet

Porto win Europa League title

DUBLIN, 19 May — Porto manager Andre Villas-Boas insists it would cost Europe's super-powers a fortune to break up his Europa League winners. Villas-Boas and several of Porto's squad will be highly prized after a triumphant campaign reached a new high with a 1-0 victory over Braga in the Europa League final on Wednesday. Colombia striker Falcao scored the winner with a superb header on the stroke of half-time at the Aviva Stadium in Dublin as Porto added Europe's second tier trophy to the Portuguese title they won without losing a single match.

At just 33, Villas-Boas is the youngest coach to Evergreen Lehmann ready to play on

Veteran ex-Germany goalkeeper Jens Lehmann

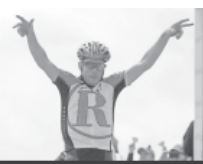

BERLIN, 19 May—Veteran ex-Germany goalkeeper Jens Lehmann said Wednesday he could yet play on for Premier League giants Arsenal next season, even though he will turn 42 in November. Lehmann retired at the end of last season, but while helping out the north London club while studying for his coaching licence, he was persuaded by former team Arsenal to step in last March as they went through an injury crisis.

Manager Arsene Wenger offered Lehmann a short-term contract until the end of the season and he made a single Premier League appearance for the Gunners in the 3-1 win at Blackpool in April. But he told German daily Bild he is prepared to extend his come-back by playing on for a further year. "It was not really a comeback, but more of a last resort - actually more of a hobby," said the former Schalke, Dortmund and Stuttgart shot-stopper.

Chris Horner seizes Tour of California lead

Chris Horner of the US

SAN JOSE, 19 May—American Chris Horner captured stage four with a dynamic uphill ride to seize the overall lead at the Tour of California. The 39-year-old RadioShack team rider finished 10th in the Tour de France as the top American in 2010. He took the yellow jersey Wednesday by finishing the 132 kilometre (82 mile) Livermore-to-San Jose stage in three hours, 27 minutes and 51 seconds.

Luxembourg's Andy Schleck, of Leopard-Trek, finished runner-up one minute and 15 seconds adrift of Horner. Schleck placed second at the 2009 and 2010 Tour de France. Third was Aussie Rory Sutherland, of United Healthcare. Horner now leads the eight-day event by 1:15 over American teammate Levi Leipheimer. At last year's Tour of California, Horner placed fourth. American Tom Danielson, of Garmin-Cervelo, is third overall, 1:22 behind.

China sets up first 7 national ocean parks

BEIJING, 19 May—China's State Oceanic Administration (SOA) announced Thursday that the country has named its first seven national ocean parks to ensure sound ecological environment and sustainable development for coastal tourism. The seven parks are sprawled along China's coastal areas, with two in Guangdong, two in Shandong, and one in Guangxi, Fujian and Jiangsu, respectively, SOA spokesman Li Haiqing said at a Press Conference.

According to the SOA, the largest park covers an area of 51,455 hectares and is located in Lianyungang, Jiangsu Province. The SOA also announced the expansion and improvement of five national special marine reserves in eastern Shandong Province.
