Take part in National Sanitation Week activities

Good health is a great blessing. We can only survive and work to the best of our ability only if we are fit and healthy. We can enjoy happiness through good health.

National Sanitation Week (2011) has been designated from 21 to 27 May. Clean environment means clean hands, clean water, hygienic food and clean toilet.

According to the motto, 'Good health comes from clean hands,' hands are of utmost importance to the human body. We touch things that may be infested with germs with our hands. So, we should eat our food only after washing and cleaning our hands. The hands dealing with materials can cause a person to develop an infectious disease.

It is very important to use clean water for keeping healthy. Impure water and unhygienic food can cause contagious diseases such as diarrhoea, dysentery, typhoid and food poisoning.

In keeping the environment clean, use of fly-proof toilets is necessary. Use of latrines without fly-proof can lead to an unhealthy environment and cause infectious diseases.

Overall, all the people are urged to participate in the activities of National Sanitation Week so that they can keep their personal hygiene and the environment clean. By cultivating healthy habits, they will enjoy a happy and healthy family life.

ISLAMABAD, 21 May—Pakistani authorities Saturday suspended supplies to the foreign troops in neighbouring Afghanistan hours after a blast at separate incidents late Friday night at Landikotal, a main town in Khyber region and the borer point of Torkham.

When locals gathered around the tanker at Landikotal to acquire the leaked oil, the tanker blew up due to gas pressure, killing 16 persons there. Pakistan suspended supplies to nearly 160,000 US-led NATO troops after the incident, officials in the region said.

Witnesses said that hundreds of NATO supplies trucks were stranded on the main Pakistan-Afghan highway after the blockade. Xinhua

Afghanistan: Kabul hospital hit by suicide bomber

KABUL, 21 May—A suicide bomb attack on a hospital in the Afghan capital, Kabul, has left six people dead and 23 wounded.

The bomber detonated his device in a tent in the grounds of Charsad Bestar Hospital where medical students were eating lunch.

The hospital treats Afghan military personnel and is in a heavily fortified part of the city, yards from the US embassy and international forces HQ.

The Taliban said they had carried out the attack.

Eyewitness Mohammad Hakim, who was selling fruit from a cart near the hospital, said: "It was a big explosion. I fell to the ground."

There were fears that a second suicide bomber had got into the hospital, and staff were told to lock themselves in their rooms while soldiers searched the building, but no-one has been found.—Internet

In the northern city of Mosul, a roadside bomb detonated while some policemen were defusing it, leaving two policemen dead and eight others injured, local police source told Xinhua on condition of anonymity.

Later in the day, a police colonel was killed by unidentified gunmen who used weapons with silencers in the Bayaa area southwest of the capital.

Two intelligent agents were also attacked by gunmen using silenced weapons in Harithaya area west of Baghdad, a police source said. Both of them survived the attack but were left wounded. Xinhua

Rescuers work near the boat sank site in Binh Duong province of Vietnam on 21 May, 2011. four Chinese people were reported missing and feared dead after a double-decker tour boat sank on Friday night in southern Vietnam, Chinese consul-general in Vietnam's southern Ho Chi Minh City Xu Mingliang told Xinhua Saturday. And, the total missing number reached 16.—XINHUA

HANOI, 21 May—Fourteen bodies were found by 02:30 pm local time on Saturday from the boat accident on Saigon River, southern Vietnam, and among them two were confirmed Chinese, according to VNexpress. At 01:00 pm local time, the body of a 3-year-old Chinese boy, Guo Hongda, was found. Two minutes later, a body of another Chinese girl was found, VNexpress said.

Guo Liangcai, father of the dead boy, said his family has 12 people attending the birthday party on the boat on Friday night, including his mother-in-law, his two younger brothers, his wife and two children, including Guo Hongda. Only Guo was safe from the boat sink. Guo said that he held the birthday party for his son, Guo Hongda, and invited people from his company.

Out-of-control barges on Mississippi hit bridge

*In this aerial photo provided by the US Coast Guard, water from the swollen Mississippi River flows through the Morganza spillway into the Atchafalaya Basin, on 20 May, 2010, over Louisiana. BATON ROUGE, 21 May—Barges broke free from a towboat and the swift Mississippi River current carried them into a bridge as America's busiest inland waterway became even more challenging to traverse. The Coast Guard shut down a 5-mile stretch of the river until they could make sure the area was safe.

Three barges carrying corn sank and another was taking on water after the vessels got out of control Friday. No injuries were reported and the Coast Guard said there was no damage to the levees, but the scene was clear evidence of how challenging the bloated river has become to navigate.

Six days earlier, the area was closed for hours after 25 barges under tow broke loose, and at least two of them hit the bridge. Travis Morace has been running boats on the Mississippi for two decades, witnessing all of the mighty river's many moods. He's seen it calm and smooth as a newly paved road and endured jarring rides filled with treacherous twists and bumps.—Internet

Four killed in US drone strike in NW Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, 21 May—At least four people were killed as US drones fired two missiles at a vehicle in the Miranshah area of North Waziristan in northwest Pakistan Friday evening, reported local Urdu TV channel Duniya.

Friday's US drone strike is the 31st of its kind in Pakistan since 2011.

Since this year, at least 225 people have reportedly been killed in such strikes, most of which were launched in North Waziristan, a place believed to be a stronghold of militants along the Pakistan-Afghanistan border area.—Xinhua

Damaged shuttle tile to get closer look: NASA

This NASA photo obtained shows the Endeavour as it began the nine-minute Rendezvous Pitch Maneuver, or 'backflip,' on its last visit to the International Space Station on 18 May. NASA plans to go ahead with a focused inspection of a heat shield tile that was damaged during the shuttle Endeavour's ascent into orbit, the US space agency said on Friday.

INTERNET

WASHINGTON, 21 May—NASA plans to take a closer look Saturday at a damaged heat shield tile on the underbelly of the space shuttle Endeavour, but mission managers downplayed the inspection as no cause for concern.

After mission managers closely examined seven chipped tiles on the underside of the orbiter, they decided that just one needs a focused inspection, according to deputy shuttle programme manager Leroy Cain.

"There is nothing alarming here and we are really not concerned. We are doing what we understand and know that we need to go do in these scenarios," Cain said. Astronauts will maneuver the shuttle's robotic arm to get a better view of the area with a digital camera and laser.

The chunks were likely gouged out by errant foam or ice, and may be repaired by astronauts during a spacewalk if needed.

"This is one that we feel pretty confident that we are going to be able to clear it once we get some higher fidelity data," Cain said.

The shuttle Columbia disintegrated in 2003 during its fiery re-entry toward Earth after its heat shield was damaged by a piece of foam that broke off the external fuel tank during launch, weakening the shuttle's protective cover.

NASA has taken care to closely examine the shuttle's heat shield after liftoff ever since.

Endeavour blasted off on its final mission Monday with six astronauts on board — five Americans and one Italian — and docked at the ISS on Wednesday in the second to last mission ever by an American space shuttle.

The US program is set to end after the launch of Atlantis, set for 8 July.

The Endeavour mission is being commanded by astronaut Mark Kelly, the husband of US Representative Gabrielle Giffords, who is recovering after being shot in the head at a January political meeting with local voters.—Internet

Tunis scientific exhibit to showcase Saharan dinosaurs

TUNIS, 21 May—The Tunis Science City will host on 24 May a scientific exhibit on Saharan dinosaurs, the official press agency TAP reported on Friday.

The exhibit which will kick start on 24 May, aims at showcasing the country's rich geological heritage.

Through an elaborate, robotized sound and light re-enactment of the epoch when dinosaurs ruled the world, the exhibit will give life to the Carcharodontosaurus, the Spinosaurus and the Iguanodon some 65 million years after their extinction.

The first dinosaur fossils were discovered in southern Tunisia in 1951.

Since then, the region has become a privileged destination for paleontologists and geologists.

In March, a team composed of Tunisian and Italian scientists discovered the intact skeleton of a 15-meter dinosaur believed to have lived some 110 million years ago.

The fossil was found near Tataouine, some 450 km south of the capital.

In 2010, fossils of large footprints of both herbivore and carnivore dinosaurs were discovered in Chenini, near Tataouine.

Antivirus for Mac: It's Time

Students use a multi-touch computer in a digital classroom presentation in Hanover on 1 March, 2010.—INTERNET

NEW YORK, 21 May—For years, Mac owners have laughed at the frantic efforts of their PC neighbours to fend off attack by viruses, Trojans, rootkits, and other malware. Given that PCs are a vastly greater segment of the market, it's cost-effective for the bad guys to concentrate on PC attacks. And yes, it's true that Apple's operating system is tougher to crack than Windows. But the days of Mac complacency may be ending. First, some threats are completely platform-independent. If a phishing email can fool you into entering your credit card data on a fraudulent site, it doesn't matter if you're running Windows, Mac OS, Linux, or DR-DOS. You're hosed.

In addition, some of the bad guys have ventured into the Mac realm, creating Mac-specific attacks like the recent MAC Defender. Delivered via poisoned search engine results, this bogus application claims to protect users, but actually harms them. It opens porn Web pages at intervals and convinces gullible users that they're infected. Naturally the only "cure" is to register MAC Defender.

In addition, some Macs run Windows as well as Mac OS X, a volatile combination. A Mac running Windows is vulnerable to the innumerable Windows-based attacks already swarming the Web.

We haven't yet observed any true surge in viruses, Trojans, or other active malware targeting the Mac, but it couldn't hurt to be prepared. Many of the major security vendors offer Mac products; some offer combined protection for Mac OS X and Windows running on the Mac. And a few will scan the URLs you visit to help fend off phishing attacks.

Students: Buy Windows 7 PC, get free Xbox

WASHINGTON, 21 May—You have the mini-fridge, the flat screen, a DVD player, and maybe a tablet. What else does your dorm room need? How about a free Xbox 360 when you buy a Windows 7 PC? Starting 22 May, students who spend more than $699 on a Windows 7 PC will get a Xbox 360 4GB console. You can buy any kind of PC, though Microsoft recommended the Dell Inspiron 14r or the Samsung Series 9. You'll need a .edu email address to buy online; if you want to purchase in person, bring a student ID.

Microsoft said the deal will run until 3 September or until supplies last. "While a Windows 7 PC is perfect for staying connected to your social networks, surfing the web, gaming and streaming videos, music and more, when you add the power of Xbox 360, you've got a world of entertainment at your fingertips," Microsoft said in a blog post. Hopefully those new Xbox 360s won't encounter the same problem that some game console owners encountered recently. Microsoft said Thursday that it is replacing an undisclosed number of older Xbox 360 consoles because of a disc issue tied to the console's ability to block counterfeit games.

The problem is certainly not as dire as the hack that took down rival Sony's PlayStation Network for weeks, though Microsoft experienced its own, minor issue with its Xbox Live service on Friday night.—Internet

Wolbachia bacteria kill mosquito that spreads malaria!

WASHINGTON, 21 May — Researchers at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health have found that Wolbachia bacteria, which infect many insects including mosquitoes, reduce parasite levels and kill the mosquito that spreads malaria.

Wolbachia do not naturally infect Anopheles mosquitoes, which are the type that spreads malaria to humans.

But the researchers after artificial infection with different Wolbachia strains found that it can significantly reduce levels of the human malaria parasite, Plasmodium falciparum, in the mosquito, Anopheles gambiae.

The investigators also determined that one of the Wolbachia strains rapidly killed the mosquito after it fed on blood. According to the researchers, Wolbachia could potentially be used as part of a strategy to control malaria if stable infections can be established in Anopheles.

“This is the first time anyone has shown that Wolbachia infections can reduce levels of the human malaria parasite (Plasmodium falciparum) in Anopheles mosquitoes,” said Jason Rasgon, senior author of the study. For the study, Rasgon and his colleagues infected Anopheles gambiae mosquitoes with two different Wolbachia strains (wMelPop and wAlbB).

After infection, Wolbachia disseminated widely in the mosquitoes and infected diverse tissues and organs.

Yoga, Tai Chi and acupuncture help in reducing chronic pain

WASHINGTON, 21 May—A research has indicated that meditative exercise forms such as yoga, Tai Chi, and ancient health practices such as acupuncture helps in reducing chronic pain.

Other complementary and alternative health practices including meditation and relaxation techniques, manual therapies such as massage and spinal manipulation also show promise for contributing to the management of pain.

“Much of health care involves helping people find solutions for tough problems like pain. I think all physicians are well aware of how difficult it is to manage chronic pain patients,” said Josephine Briggs, director of the National Centre for Complementary and Alternative Medicine at the National Institutes of Health.

“For example, with back pain we see that large numbers of patients are turning to these approaches with the hope of decreasing discomfort, improving function and quality-of-life, and minimizing side effects of pharmacologic treatments,” added Briggs. The research was presented at the Annual Scientific Meeting of the American Pain Society.

Toyota has 45 days supply in US

DETROIT, 21 May—Toyota Motor Corp told its US dealers this week that the company had 45 days of inventory and was working hard to get the word out that it was “open for business.”

In a letter obtained by Reuters, US Toyota brand sales chief Bob Carter told dealers the company was in a “healthy position” as it moved toward a full production schedule.

The company recently announced that eight of its North American-built models, including the Camry and Corolla, would return to 100 percent production in June. “This is well ahead of our previously announced timeline of November/December,” Carter said in the letter.

The earthquake that rocked northeastern Japan on 11 March forced Toyota and other Japanese automakers to cut output at home and abroad as they struggled to secure vital auto parts.

The subsequent nuclear disaster and power shortages further complicated problems. But Toyota has moved to restore production more quickly than many analysts expected. In the letter, Carter reiterated that the automaker’s US production would be 70 percent of normal volume in June, up from 30 percent in May.

Toyota forecast a full return to production for all models and factory lines by November or December. At 45 days, Toyota’s current inventory levels is just five days less than its May 2010 inventory level of 50 days.

PARIS, 21 May—Top global steelmaker ArcelorMittal announced Friday a CAN$2.1 billion ($2.2 billion, 725 million euro) investment to expand iron ore production in the Canadian Province of Quebec that will create 8,000 jobs.

“The investment will allow ArcelorMittal Mines Canada to increase its annual production of iron ore concentrate from 14 million tonnes to 24 million tonnes by 2013,” the company said in a statement.

The plan involves expansion of ArcelorMittal’s Mont-Wright mining complex and additional construction at Port-Cartier, and is subject to environmental and other regulatory approvals.

“The scheme represents a total investment of CAN$2.1 billion dollars that will create 8,000 jobs during construction and more than 900 permanent jobs once completed,” added ArcelorMittal.

“ArcelorMittal Mines Canada is a flagship mining asset for the Group, which offers considerable opportunity for expansion,” said Peter Kukielski, ArcelorMittal’s head for mining and a member of the company’s executive board.

“We have already announced our intention to grow our iron ore production to 100 million tonnes by 2015 and this expansion forms an important part of that,” he added.—Internet

MEXICO CITY, 21 May—Mexican federal police captured a leading member of the Gulf drug cartel Friday at what appeared to have been his birthday party, authorities said.

Gilberto Barragan Balderas "is considered one of the main leaders of the Gulf Cartel" and is the subject of a $5 million reward by the US Drug Enforcement Administration, said Ramon Pequeno, head of anti-drug operations for the federal police.

Barragan Balderas was allegedly in charge of the cartel's operations in Miguel Aleman, across the border from Roma, Texas. Police captured him at a party at a ranch near another border city, Reynosa, which is across from McAllen, Texas.

Police said the party was apparently in honour of Barragan Balderas' 19 May birthday. Two alleged associates were also arrested in the raid, which also netted an assault rifle and three pistols.

No formal charges had been filed against any of the suspects.

Barragan Balderas, 41, is wanted on drug trafficking charges in the United States under a 2008 indictment.

Fire at Australian factory ignites gallons of oil

MELBOURNE, 21 May—Firefighters have brought a massive fire at a Melbourne petrochemical factory under control after it ignited tens of thousands of gallons (liters) of mineral oil. The blaze started Thursday on the outskirts of the Australian city, setting off explosions and sending massive fire balls into the air. The Australian Broadcasting Corp says it raced through 130,000 gallons (500,000 liters) of mineral oil. Firefighters feared at one point that it would reach massive drums holding motor oil. Country Fire Authority spokesman Gerard Scholten said Friday that they were continuing to hose down those tanks to keep the fire from restarting there. ## China calls for attacking Somali pirate bases

BEIJING, 21 May—China's military is urging land attacks on Somali pirate strongholds in a bold call signaling the armed forces' growing assertiveness. China's navy has taken part in anti-piracy patrols in the Gulf of Aden since December 2008, but the government has not advocated direct attacks on land areas from which pirates operate.

However, at a news conference in Washington on Wednesday, Gen Chen Bingde said he believes land bases must be attacked in order for counter-piracy campaigns to be effective.

The US and other countries taking part in the patrols have steered clear of land attacks for fear of becoming mired in ongoing campaigns in Somalia — a lawless nation where 18 US servicemen were killed in the capital, Mogadishu, in 1993.

Two killed in explosion at China electronics plant

BEIJING, 21 May—Two people died in an explosion at a factory in southwestern China belonging to electronics maker Foxconn Technology Group, a company official and state media reported. Foxconn spokesman Edmund Ding told reporters Saturday that a fire caused by Friday's explosion had been quickly put out and that operations at the factory in Chengdu would not be affected. The company, which generally shies away from publicity, is the world's biggest contract manufacturer, making iPads and iPhones for Apple Inc. and other consumer electronics for companies including Sony Corp and Hewlett-

Aside from the deaths, the official Xinhua News Agency said another 16 people were injured in the explosion.

Last year, Foxconn scrambled to improve conditions at its plants after a string of worker suicides. The company's factories in China employ more than 920,000 people.

Indonesian mountaineering team reaches top of Qomolangma

JAKARTA, 21 May — A four-strong mountaineering team from Indonesia on Friday raised the national flag on top of Mount Qomolangma in Nepal to mark the National Awakening Day, the Jakarta Post reported on Saturday.

"All four team members have reached the summit of the world's tallest mountain," said Julius Mario, the manager of the team which is running an Indonesia 7 Summits Expedition campaign, from the base camp. Mt Qomolangma was the sixth mountain the team climbed before it completes the final phase of an expedition to conquer the seven highest summits in the world next year.

The first member of the team to reach the peak of Mt Qomolangma was Broery Andrew Sihombing, a 22-year-old mountaineer.

He reached the 8,848-meter peak at 5:22 am local time with a guide from Mountain Experience, Hiroyuki Kuraoka, and a Sherpa guide, Pemba Nuru.

"Broery reached the summit after a seven-hour climb from Camp 4," Julius said in a release.

The team began their ascent on 10 May when they left base camp for Camp 1, taking the Southeast Ridge route on the Nepal side.

They continued their journey to Camp 2 on 11 May and stayed for two days.—Xinhua

MILWAUKEE, 21 May—Seven bald eagles found poisoned and near death in April at a northern Wisconsin landfill are fully recovered and ready to be released back into the wild, a woman who helped nurse them back to health, Marge Gibson, said on Friday.

Authorities from the Fish and Wildlife Service are investigating the accidental poisoning that left one of the birds dead.

Seven of the large birds were found comatose and close to death at an Eagle River, Wisconsin-area landfill on 9 April after ingesting an undisclosed substance from a plastic container.

Gibson and her helpers from Gibson's Raptor Education Centre were summoned from Antigo, Wisconsin, about 90 minutes away, to rescue the eagles. Their release back into the wild is imminent, she said.

Photos of Beatles' 1st US concert to be auctioned

NEW YORK, 21 May—It was 1964. Beatlemania ruled. Two days after their momentous debut on "The Ed Sullivan Show," the Fab Four boarded a train from New York for Washington, DC, for their first US concert. An enterprising 18-year-old Mike Mitchell was there, a press pass in hand, shooting photographs just feet away and even jumping onto the stage for the group's brief pre-concert press call.

Forty-seven years later, Mitchell has made 50 silver gelatin prints from his negatives of the event and the Beatles' 3 Sept, 1964, performance at the Baltimore Civic Centre. He's offering them for sale at Christie's New York auction house on 20 July.

The total pre-sale estimate is $100,000; the images will be sold individually. Mitchell laughs when he describes the scene at the indoor arena that night — not only of screaming fans but also of his unrestricted access to the stage. No cordoned-off media pens, no tight security. "It was a long time ago. Things weren't that way then," the 65-year-old said in a telephone interview from Washington, where he lives and works as an art photographer. "It was as low-tech as the concert itself. The concert was in a sports venue and the sound system was the sound system of a sports venue."—Internet

1,500 Jaguar cars to be recalled in China

BEIJING, 21 May—Jaguar Cars Ltd, a British luxury car manufacturer, would recall 1,552 cars sold in China due to steering flaws, quality control authorities said.

The recall - starting 6 June - involves 1,550 XF automobiles manufactured between September 2009 and March 2010, and two XK cars produced between August 2009 and March 2010, Xinhua reported citing a statement from the General Administration of Quality Supervision, Inspection and Quarantine.

The antiseptic plating of the steering power oil pipe was below design standards and the pipes might be corroded, resulting in possible steering problems or even overheating, the statement said.

Jaguar Land Rover Auto Trade (Shanghai) Co Ltd. will notify consumers that they are entitled to free checks and repairs, it said.

A hotline has also been opened to customers for consultation.—Internet

Italian diver sets record with 13 underwater loops powered by two dolphins

TORVAIANICA, (Italy), 21 May—Simone Arrigoni of Italy has set an apnea diving record by completing 13 underwater loops, pushed by two dolphins named Paco and Marco, at a marine centre in Torvaianica, Italy.

Arrigoni broke his own record by completing the circuits, or 'voltas' as he calls them, in one minute and 53 seconds using the dynamic apnea technique, which involves holding your breath.

His previous record was of 12 'voltas' in one minute 42 seconds.

'Voltas' is a Portuguese term used by the diver to define the circles that he constructs as he is pushed along by the dolphins.

The task is made more difficult as it requires absolute synchronisation with the animals.

And the dolphins are required to surface at least twice during the test in order to breathe, while the diver remains under the surface in a fixed position.

"The trainers at Zoomarine have taught to me to listen to the dolphins and that they converse with each other in order to correct the position during the test," The Daily Mail quoted Arrigoni, as saying.—Internet

More Indonesians heading to universities in China

JAKARTA, 21 May—More Indonesians are heading to universities in China, and the trend is expected to continue as more Chinese universities offer English-medium courses - eliminating the need for Mandarin-language proficiency.

Cost is another reason why more Indonesians choose China instead of traditional destinations like Australia, Europe and the United States. Helen Lim is among thousands of young Indonesians who are taking Mandarin-language classes in Jakarta. They are preparing to study in China. And some - like Ms Lim - are taking post-graduate courses to tap on the Middle Kingdom's growing economic clout. Ms Lim said: "We all know about China's economic explosion. That is the reason why I plan to study there; get their knowledge and apply it in Indonesia."

Another Indonesian student, Recky Andrianus, said: "My father's business is Tour and Travel. Automatically, language is very important." Others like Belinda Ma see this as an opportunity to pursue a career in world's second biggest economy.

She said: "I might stay."

The majority of Indonesian Chinese do not speak Mandarin or any of the Chinese-dialects - a consequence of a decades-long anti-Chinese policy imposed during President Suharto's rule.

The policy was abandoned in 2002, following political reform in Indonesia.

Mangrove swamps in Delta under...

Indeed, a mangrove is a gifted tree, whose benefits are very huge. About 85 % of the victims of Thayawchaung Village survived the natural disaster due to white mangroves in Kadonkani Forest Reserve, so did the majority of the survivors of enormous tidal waves, holding tight the mangroves in Byonehmwe and Maimahla islands. Myanmar is not far from the epicenter of the strong earthquake that triggered very powerful tidal waves in the India Ocean in 2004, but the death toll was amazingly low because of the protection of the mangrove forests, whereas the coastal areas of Somali, which is very far from the epicenter, were hit hard and suffered wholesale death and destruction. A y e y a w a d y Delta is not the only area mangrove forests have protected against tidal waves many times. According to a FAO report, a village with a population of over 1700 in Tamil Nadul State was resistant to tsunami tidal waves owing to mangrove forests. Despite being very close to the epicenter of the powerful earthquake, Simeuleu Island in Indonesia suffered only remarkably low death toll due to the mangrove forests around it. Direct and indirect benefits human beings get from mangrove forests are so many. Nonetheless, mangrove forests or natural heroes are deteriorating in consequence of man activities. Long ago, Myanmar stood as one of the 15 countries with most mangrove forests in the world and at that time, the area of mangrove swamps of Myanmar made up about 4% of the global mangrove swamp areas. According to the satellite photos taken in 2007, 74% of the Myanmar's mangrove swamps had been degraded. Ayeyawady Region has nine forest reserves including mangrove swamps: in Labutta, Mawlamyinegyun and Bogale townships. Now, the number of forest reserves in Ayeyawady Region has been reduced to only six — in Labutta and Bogale townships on account of cutting down mangroves indiscriminately, encroachment of people into forest reserves, extensive cultivation of rice, and breeding prawns.

The Forest Department of the Ministry of Forestry was conserving and regenerating mangrove forests in cooperation with related departments and organizations, international organizations, and social organizations. To make things worse, the nation encountered the cyclone "Nargis" that destroyed some mangrove forests. The Forest Department collected a census of mangrove forests in Bogale, Pyapon and Labutta townships and started regeneration of devastated mangrove swamps. In addition, the department, Japan International Cooperation Agency, the Forest Resources and Environmental Development Association and other social organizations are working together to regenerate ravaged areas, and setting up mangrove forests and forest reserves in the Delta. They also built four storm shelters in the project area to raise public awareness about environmental degradation. So, ravaged mangrove swamps in the Delta will return to normal soon. Residents are urged to work more closely with the Forest Department in conserving mangrove forests.

China, S Korea leaders tour devastated Japan region

NATORI, 21 May—The leaders of China and South Korea, in Japan for a weekend summit, toured Japan's devastated north Saturday to show their support for earthquake and tsunami recovery efforts.

South Korean President Lee Myung-bak arrived in Sendai city late Saturday morning and immediately headed to devastated nearby areas, offering a wreath of flowers and a silent prayer.

Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao arrived later and followed a similar schedule. The two leaders were to meet with Japanese Prime Minister Naoto Kan in Fukushima City and return to Tokyo for a banquet before summit talks on Sunday.

The 11 March earthquake and tsunami left more than 24,000 people dead or missing and sparked an ongoing crisis at the Fukushima Dai-ichi nuclear power plant. China and South Korea have been critical of Japan's response to the nuclear crisis, particularly about the release of radiation into the ocean.

Japan hopes the visit by the two leaders will help smooth over concerns. The summit was expected to focus on the nuclear crisis and ways for each country to help Japan's recovery.

Tokyo had reportedly wanted to formally start the summit in Fukushima, but that plan had to be scrapped because of logistical issues. Fukushima City is about 40 miles (60 kilometers) from the crippled nuclear plant.

After placing the flowers in a rubble-covered neighbourhood, Lee said South Korea would do all it can to help Japan.

Russia tests nuclear missile amid war of words with US

Moscow, 21 May—Russia conducted its second intercontinental ballistic missile test in less than a month on Friday as it stepped up its campaign against a US-backed interceptor system for Europe.

News reports said the Sineva missile was launched from a Russian submarine in the Barents Sea and later successfully hit its target on the opposite side of the country on the Kamchatka Peninsula.

"The launch was conducted from a submerged position," defence ministry spokesman Igor Konashenkov told Russian news agencies. "The warheads hit the test range on schedule," he added. The Sineva submarine-launched missile is one of the most recent additions to Russia's nuclear arsenal and was only fully tested for the first time in 2008.

Each missile carries up to 10 warheads and has a range of more than 11,000 kilometres (6,800 miles). It was the second submerged missile launch conducted by Russia since 26 April.

Russia occasionally tests its heavy nuclear missiles as it upgrades outdated models with new features and capabilities.

But the tests are also often seen as a show of force that coincide with diplomatic tensions with the West. Russia had scaled back its testing programme as it negotiated a new nuclear disarmament treaty with the United States that went into effect after nearly a decade of tortuous negotiations earlier this year.

Footballer takes legal action on Twitter

LONDON, 21 May—A Premier League footballer is taking legal action to force Twitter to give the details of users who broke a gagging order granting him anonymity over an alleged affair, his lawyers have said.

The married player had earlier obtained an order from a judge banning publication of his identity over an alleged sexual relationship with a female contestant on the reality television show 'Big Brother'.

"An application has been made to obtain limited information concerning the unlawful use of Twitter by a small number of individuals who may have breached a court order," his law firm, Schillings, said in a statement on Friday.

The player is not identified in the court documents. A spokesman for US-based Twitter said: "We're not able to comment."

Earlier this month a Twitter user published the names of several British celebrities who have allegedly obtained anonymised injunctions or so-called super-injunctions which prevent even the mention of the order itself.

A long-awaited judicial report on Friday said that the gagging orders should only be granted where strictly necessary and that media who may be silenced by such bans should also be informed beforehand.

But senior judge David Neuberger also urged lawmakers to think twice before using their right of unrestricted freedom of speech in parliament to undermine them. On Thursday, a member of the House of Lords revealed that Fred Goodwin, the former boss of the bailed-out Royal Bank of Scotland, had won an injunction banning publication of details of an alleged affair with a colleague.—Internet

UN chief "strongly condemns" attack on mission in Sudan

UNITED NATIONS, 21 May—UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon has expressed concern over a Thursday attack on a UN convoy in the disputed Abyei area on the border between the north and south Sudan, his spokesperson Martin Nesirky said in a statement released here Friday.

"The secretary-general strongly condemns the attack against an UNMIS (UN Mission in Sudan) escort convoy on 19 May, 2011 in Abyei," said the statement. "At the time of the attack, the convoy was escorting 200 troops of Joint Integrated Units (JIUs) of the Sudan Armed Forces, as part of the deployment plan agreed to by the parties."

The statement said Ban viewed the attack in the contested, oil-rich Sudanese region of Abyei as a violation of both the agreements on security in the region, and as a crime committed against the UN.

"The attack was not only a serious breach of agreements between the parties, but also a criminal act against the United Nations," the statement said. "The secretary-general calls on the parties to immediately investigate the incident and ensure those accountable are brought to justice."

Shanghai Futures Exchange expected to launch silver futures this year

SHANGHAI, 21 May—The Shanghai Futures Exchange (SHFE), China's biggest commodities market, is expected to launch silver futures by the end of this year, the head of the SHFE said Saturday.

The statement was made by Yang Maijun, general manager of the SHFE, on the sidelines of the Lujiazui Forum in Shanghai, an annual gathering of China's top financial officials and economists. Yang also stressed the importance of introducing crude oil futures in China, noting that about 55 percent of China's crude oil has to be imported and that this percentage is likely to increase in the future.

"Developing crude oil futures has a bearing on national energy security and economic security, and the SHFE hopes to step up its efforts to launch crude oil futures," he said. WASHINGTON, 21 May—Three Somali men pleaded guilty Friday to piracy charges related to the hijacking of a yacht off the coast of Oman in February that left four Americans dead.

Mohamud Hirs Issa Ali, 32, and Mohamud Salad Ali, 35, and Ali Abdi Mohamed, 35, pleaded guilty in a federal court in the eastern state of Virginia, according to US prosecutors. The owners of the yacht Quest, Jean and Scott Adams, were Christian missionaries based in California who were sailing around the world at the time of the

The two men "acknowledged in connection with their pleas that they served as leaders of the piracy operation," prosecutors said in a statement.

LOS ANGELES, 21 May—An American woman is being questioned in California for allegedly trying to sell a moon rock for $1.7m (£1.05m). The woman, whose identity has not been revealed, was held in a sting operation when she showed the rock to a NASA investigator in Lake Elsinore. Moon rocks are considered national treasure in the United States and their sale is illegal.

The rock was recovered but NASA investigators have not yet determined whether it is genuine. The sting operation had been planned for several months and took place at a restaurant. Gail Robinson, NASA's deputy inspector general, told the Los Angeles Times: "It's possible this is a moon rock, but it has to be tested first."

It quoted Ms Robinson as saying the woman was in custody but had not been formally arrested. Many hundreds of kilograms of rock were collected from NASA missions to the Moon, mainly during the Apollo 15, 16 and 17 missions. Hundreds were handed out as gifts to foreign nations and US states, and scores of those remain unaccounted for.

Mammals' large brains evolved for smell

LONDON, 21 May—A highly developed sense of smell kick-started the development of mammals' big brains. Scientists used very high-resolution scanning to study the skulls of two of the earliest known mammal species. Comparing the shape of their brain cases to those of slightly earlier animals, or "pre-mammals", revealed that the first brain

The researchers scanned the fossilised skulls of tiny, very early mammals.—INTERNET areas to over-develop were those associated with the sense of smell.

The findings are published in Science. An improved sense of smell may have allowed our tiny, furry ancestors to hunt at night. The researchers were able to create 3D images of prehistoric animals' brains using the latest computed tomography, or CT, scanning methods. "Before CT, one had to break open a fossil to get to the internal anatomy," explained Professor Timothy Rowe from the University of Texas at Austin, one of the researchers involved in the study.

Robber removes hood, shows face to cameras

Authorities said they got a clear picture of an Ohio bank robbery suspect's face when he complied with the facility's "no hats, no hoods" policy. FBI Special Agent Harry Trombitas said the man, described as a white male appearing to be in his 20s, was waiting in line at the PNC Bank on South Hamilton Road in Columbus about 4 pm Monday when a bank employee told him he would have to take off his hood, which was concealing most of his face. The Columbus Dispatch reported Thursday.

Trombitas said the man complied, allowing security cameras to get clear photos of his face before he got to the front of the line and handed a note to a teller demanding money and saying he had a gun. The robber, estimated to be about 5-foot-5, fled with an undisclosed amount of cash.

Teacup poodle chases bear up a tree

A Washington state man said his teacup poodle chased an approximately 200-pound black bear up a tree in his back yard. Robert Carroll of the Rose Hill neighbourhood in Kirkland said he ran outside when his 21-year-old daughter shouted there was a bear in the back yard about 9:30 am Tuesday and he watched as the family poodle, Shmoopy, charged the bruin and chased it up a tree, the Kirkland Reporter reported Wednesday. "The bear was really startled — I was not too worried about the dog at the time," Carroll said. "I was only thinking, bear in yard! Rose Hill? I have seen coyotes and deer in this neighbourhood, but not in a million years did I ever think seeing a bear in this neighbourhood was possible." Carroll said he clapped his hands at the bear and it jumped from the tree into a neighbour's yard.

Alicia Ames, who has lived about a mile from Rose Hill Junior High for 12 years, said she spotted a bear that may have been the same animal about 6 am Tuesday. She said her dogs barked at the bear, and it climbed her fence and fled the area. Ames said it was the first time she had heard of a bear being in the area.

Family finds $45,000 in new home — then returns it

When Josh Ferrin closed on his family's first home, he never thought he'd make the discovery of a lifetime — then give it back.

Ferrin picked up the keys earlier this week and decided to check out the house in the Salt Lake City suburb of Bountiful.

He was excited to finally have a place his family could call their own.

As he walked into the garage, a piece of cloth that clung to an attic door caught his eye. He opened the hatch and climbed up the ladder, then pulled out a metal box that looked like a World War II ammunition case.

Bees snarl operations at Philippine airport

Swarms of bees mysteriously appeared at several air bridges at the Philippines main international airport on Thursday, briefly interrupting the boarding of passengers, an airport spokeswoman said.

The bees swarmed around the control panels of six air bridges, the mobile corridors that connect the aircraft to the terminal, preventing the operators from using the equipment, said airport media officer Consuelo Bungag.

"What we did was use the vacuum cleaners to clear them out of the control panels. We also resorted to manual swatting to hasten the process," she said. Passengers on two domestic flights were forced to board their flights using mobile stairs because of the insects, said Bungag. Airport authorities are working with the quarantine bureau to find out where the bees could have come from, she added.

Singer Doherty back in jail

LONDON, 21 May—British rock star Pete Doherty was back behind bars on Friday after being given a six-month jail sentence for pleading guilty to possession of cocaine. Judge David Radford told the 32-year-old former singer of The Libertines that he had an "appalling record" of committing offences. But Doherty showed no emotion as he was sentenced at Snaresbrook Crown Court in London. Doherty was arrested in January last year by police investigating the death of heiress Robyn Whitehead, who was making a documentary about Doherty when she died of a suspected overdose.

Doherty, a previous boyfriend of British supermodel Kate Moss, has twice been jailed before and has repeatedly admitted possessing drugs.

He had been due to give a sold-out concert in Glasgow on Friday, but a spokesman for the Barrowland venue said the gig was now postponed.

Prosecutors said last week that Doherty would not face criminal charges over the death of a partygoer who fell from a balcony shortly after the pair had a row at a London party in December 2006.—Internet

Star-studded Cannes AIDS gala raises record funds

CANNES, 21 May—A star-studded AIDS fundraising gala on the sidelines of the Cannes Film Festival raised a record-breaking seven million euros (over $10 million), organizers said Friday.

Thursday night's event for the American AIDS research foundation amFAR, attended by Monaco's Prince Albert II and his bride-to-be Charlene Wittstock and a galaxy of other celebrities, is the biggest of its kind in Europe.

A portrait of the late Elizabeth Taylor, who founded the event, looked down on the over 800 revellers at the five-star Eden Roc hotel in Cap d'Antibes, including Cannes jury members Robert De Niro, Uma Thurman and Jude Law.

Eccentric road movie with Penn wows at Cannes

US actor Sean Penn poses during the photocall of "This Must Be The Place" presented in competition at the 64th Cannes Film Festival.

CANNES, 21 May—A risk-taking road movie starring Sean Penn as an ageing 1980s pop star in search of his father's Nazi tormentor emerged as a front-runner Friday as the Cannes competition wound down.

"This Must Be The Place", named for the Talking Heads song recently covered by Arcade Fire, both of which feature in the film, is the latest Cannes contender by Italian iconoclast Paolo Sorrentino.

Bearing a strong resemblance to The Cure's frontman Robert Smith in a black fright wig and red lipstick, Penn plays Cheyenne, a washed-up pop singer who refuses to grow up. His closest friend is a teenage fellow Goth played by Eve Hewson, the daughter of U2's Bono.

Living out his retirement in luxury in Ireland with his devoted fire-fighter wife (Frances McDormand), Cheyenne receives news that his estranged father in New York is ailing. Upon arriving at his home, the son discovers his father was obsessed with seeking revenge against a guard who humiliated him while he was a prisoner at Auschwitz.—Internet

Denilson eyes Arsenal exit

LONDON, 21 May—Arsenal midfielder Denilson is determined to leave the club after enduring another trophyless season with the Gunners, it was reported on Friday. The 23-year-old Brazilian joined Arsenal from Sao Paulo in 2006, and has become increasingly frustrated at the club's failure to challenge for silverware in the five years since his move. Denilson told The Sun he has already met Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger and informed him of his decision to leave.

"I've simply been to see (manager) Arsene Wenger and told him how I felt - and he has agreed to let me go," Denilson said. "This has been the worst season of my life and I am so upset, so frustrated. I am a winner and I came here to win trophies but I've been here for five years and won nothing. "A footballer's career is over very quickly so it is time to move on.—Internet

Indy drivers gear up for wild qualifying weekend

INDIANAPOLIS, 21 May—IndyCar drivers can't afford to make a mistake on Saturday.

Otherwise, they might not get a second shot at the coveted Indianapolis 500 pole.

With more than three dozen driver-car combinations lining up for two days of qualifications and rain in the forecast both days, drivers will have to take their best shot on their first, and perhaps, only attempt at the top qualifying spot.

"You might only get one run," said Scott Dixon, who won the 500 from the pole in 2008. "So you're really going to have to focus on preparing yourself well, making sure that your first run is a good one. With 40 cars trying to qualify, it's going to be a complete mess." That would certainly fit with this month's theme.—Internet

David Toms watches his tee shot on the 17th hole during the second round at the Colonial golf tournament in Fort Worth, Texas, on Friday.—INTERNET

Another 62 gives Toms 7-stroke lead at Colonial

FORT WORTH, 21 May—David Toms has gone from a disappointing playoff loss to matching the PGA Tour scoring record for the first 36 holes of a tournament. Toms shot his second straight 8-under 62 at Colonial on Friday to open a seven-stroke lead. Coming off a playoff loss on Sunday to K J Choi in The Players Championship, the 44-year-old Toms tied the mark of 124 set by Pat Perez in the 2009 Bob Hope Classic. Perez had rounds of 61 and 63.

Already off to another impressive start before a 2 1/2-hour weather delay in the middle of his second round, Toms took full advantage after heavy rain softened the Colonial course and the wind stopped. On the eight holes he completed when play resumed, he had four birdies — and came up just short of two more.

Heat, Bulls expect another physical test in Game 3

MIAMI, 21 May—They were bloodied, bruised and battered. Just about everyone had icepacks strapped to various regions of their bodies, and many all but limped toward the bus out of the arena. That was the Miami scene after Game 2 of the Eastern Conference finals. Imagine what the losing team must have felt like. The East finals resume with Game 3 in Miami on Sunday night, when the Heat host the Chicago Bulls with a 2-1 series lead at stake. Nearly 96 hours will have passed without a game by tip-off and both sides likely could use the rest after such a physical Game 2, when Miami knotted the series with an 85-75 win.
