Preserve potency of traditional medicines to win greater public trust

Vice-President Dr Sai Mauk Kham visits University of Nursing (Mandalay), University of Traditional Medicine

NAY PYI TAW, 28 July—Vice-President of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar Dr Sai Mauk Kham, accompanied by the Union Ministers, the Chief Minister of Mandalay Region, deputy ministers and departmental heads, visited University of Nursing (Mandalay) in Chanmyathazi Township of Mandalay at 7.30 am yesterday.

The Vice-President viewed learning of students at the library, the Internet room, the basic health nursing department and skill lab and lecture hall. Rector Dr Daw Marlar Win conducted him around the university.

At the hall of the university, the rector reported on conducting the training courses at the university, strength of staff, number of students, lecture halls and staff quarters. Principal Daw San Win of Nursing Training School (Mandalay) reported on facts about the training school. Deputy Minister for Health Dr Win Myint gave a supplementary report.

After hearing the reports, the Vice-President attended to the needs and looked into staff quarters and buildings in the compound of the

PERSPECTIVES

For better health

Fulfillment of health care infrastructures for children is effective effort in nurturing the new generation children to be physical and mental healthy and fit outstanding citizens on whom the State can rely in the future nation.

A ceremony to inaugurate the 550-bed Children's Hospital (Mandalay) was held in Chanayethazan Township of Mandalay in Mandalay Region on 25 July. Vice-President of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar Dr Sai Mauk Kham attended the gala ceremony and formally unveiled the plaque of the facility.

Children from Upper Myanmar and surrounding townships of Mandalay have now easy access to better health care services at Children's Hospital (550-bed) upgraded from former 300-bed Children's Hospital of Mandalay. The already-opened facility was renovated by Eden Group of Companies.

As over 60 per cent of the people in Myanmar are mothers and children, it is necessary to emphasize maternal and child health care services across the Union in drawing health plan.

So far, Mandalay Region has been facilitated with 14 specialist hospitals, three teaching specialist hospitals, two 300-bed hospitals, three 200-bed hospitals, six 100-bed hospitals, 14 50-bed hospitals, 14 25-bed hospitals and 48 16-bed hospitals, totalling 104. As part of efforts to fulfill the requirements of health sector in border areas with opening of hospitals and rural health centres and appointments of health staff, the Ministry of Health has inaugurated 100 border hospitals and 83 sub-township hospitals, totalling 938 up to 2011.

Health and fitness of all citizens and development of human resources play an important role in building a modern and developed nation. As such, the government is providing health care services to the people across the Union.

Health staff members are to give health care to the people with goodwill at already opened 550-bed Children's Hospital (Mandalay) and other hospitals on which the people can rely. Likewise, the people on their part are to participate in sanitation and durability tasks of the facilities.

MANILA, 28 July—Tropical storm Nock-ten (local name: Juaning) damaged 17.17 million pesos (about 407,664 US dollars) worth of Philippine crops, according to initial report filed Thursday by the agriculture department.

Nock-ten, which triggered flash floods, destroyed 2,977 hectares of farmland planted with rice, damaging 10.83 million pesos (257,183 US dollars) worth of unmilled rice.

A total of 612 metric tons of fruits and vegetables and 11 tons of corn were also destroyed.

Agriculture Undersecretary Joel Rudinas said the effect of the losses is negligible, but he expects the losses to climb after the regional officials complete their survey of areas battered by the storm.—Xinhua

S Korean cargo plane crashes

SEOUL, 28 July—An Asiana Airline cargo plane with two crew on board crashed Thursday into the sea off South Korea's Jeju island.

The Jeju Coast Guard said its patrol boat found debris of the Boeing-747 aircraft operated by South Korea's second-largest flagship carrier in the sea about 170 kilometres west of Jeju city.

The plane took off from Incheon International Airport at 3:05 am (local time) and was heading for Shanghai's Pudong airport.

An official from the Ministry of Land, Transport and Maritime Affairs said in a Press briefing that the plane was believed to have caught fire in flight, but the exact cause of the crash could not be confirmed until the recovery of its flight data recorder.

He said the pilot told air traffic controllers in Shanghai that fire had broken out in the hold and that the plane was trying to make its way to Jeju airport.

The plane was carrying 58 tons of cargo, including semiconductors, machine parts and 0.4 ton of inflammable materials.

Five coast guard patrol boats and one helicopter are searching the area for the two crew including the captain, 52, and first officer, 44.

Air Canada plane forced to return to Australia

SYDNEY, 28 July—An Air Canada flight was forced to return to Sydney airport on Thursday after crew members saw smoke coming from an oven in the galley, an airline official said.

No one on Flight AC34 was injured in the incident, which forced the pilot to dump fuel before safely landing the plane in Sydney, said Jeannie Foster, Air Canada's general manager for Australia and New Zealand.

"There was smoke seen by a crew member in an oven so the captain made the right decision and decided to come back to Sydney to check it out as a safety precaution," Foster told The Associated Press. "They had to dump fuel because it's a very heavy airplane with 15 hours worth of fuel to get to Canada."

Foster denied earlier reports of a fire breaking out on board.

"There was no fire at all," she said.

There was no damage to the Boeing 777 and no smoke entered the cabin, Foster said. Engineers were on board trying to determine the cause of the smoke.

The flight, which was bound for Vancouver and Toronto, was carrying 264 passengers. Foster said the airline was hoping the plane would be able to resume its journey later Thursday after engineers completed their checks.

Australian air safety investigators said they were awaiting a report from Air Canada before commenting on the incident.—Internet

Suicide bombing kills 12 outside bank in Iraq

BAGHDAD, 28 July—A suicide bomber on Thursday struck an Iraqi bank in Saddam Hussein's hometown where policemen were picking up their paychecks, killing 12 and wounding 30 people, officials said.

The midmorning blast was the fourth major attack this year on Iraqi security forces in the northern City of Tikrit, a former hotbed for Sunni insurgents bent on targeting the government and exposing the country's instability.

Salahuddin Provincial spokesman Mohammed al-Asi said the explosion went off outside the state-run Rafidain bank where policemen were picking up their monthly pay. It wasn't known how many policemen were among the dead and wounded.

Television footage of the blast showed a huge white mushroom cloud over the two-story bank, followed by thick black smoke. A car parked nearby was on fire, and firefighters struggled to douse the flames. Iraqi security forces sealed off the area.

Another provincial spokesman, Ali Abdul-Rahman, said at least 12 people were killed and 30 wounded.

'Follow-the-leader' asteroid discovered

PASADENA, 28 July—Astronomers studying data from an orbiting NASA observatory say they've discovered the first known "Trojan" asteroid orbiting the sun in the Earth's orbit. Trojans are asteroids that share an orbit with a planet near stable points in front of or behind the planet, but can never collide with it as they maintain their leading or following position, a NASA release said.

Neptune, Mars and Jupiter and two of Saturn's moons share their orbits in our solar system with Trojans. Scientists had long predicted Earth should have Trojans, but they have proven difficult to find because they are relatively small and would appear near the sun from Earth's point of view.

"These asteroids dwell mostly in the daylight, making them very hard to see," said Martin Connors of Athabasca University in Canada, lead author of a new paper on the discovery using data from NASA's Wide-field Infrared Survey Explorer. "But we finally found one, because the object has an unusual orbit that takes it farther away from the sun than what is typical for Trojans. WISE was a game-changer, giving us a point of view difficult to have at Earth's surface." The researchers' hunt through the WISE data resulted in two Trojan candidates, and one known as 2010 TK7 was confirmed as an Earth Trojan after follow-up observations with the Canada-France-Hawaii Telescope on Mauna Kea in Hawaii. The asteroid is about 1,000 feet in diameter and is about 50 million miles from Earth.

"It's as though Earth is playing follow the leader," said Amy Mainzer of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif. "Earth always is chasing this asteroid around."—Internet

Space station to plunge into ocean at end in 2020

Moscow, 28 July—A Russian space official said Wednesday that once the mammoth International Space Station is no longer needed it will be sent into the Pacific Ocean.

It's a plan that's long been in the works and is a step to avoid the station becoming dangerous space junk. It was supposed to plunge into the ocean as early as 2015.

The US recently extended its life until at least 2020, and there's been talk of keeping it going even longer.

Vitaly Davydov, deputy head of the Russian space agency, said the orbiting outpost will be destroyed in a controlled descent to Earth "so that there is no space junk left behind."

Russia sank its Mir space station in the Pacific in 2001 after 15 years in operation. Skylab, America's first space station, fell from orbit in 1979 after six years in space.

The International Space Station is the biggest orbiting outpost ever built and can sometimes be seen from the Earth with the naked eye. It's now big enough for six residents.

It now consists of more than a dozen modules built by the US, Russia, Canada, Japan and the European Space Agency.

College Humor among first 3-D video offerings on Nintendo 3DS

NEW YORK, 28 July—Late last week, Nintendo Video service officially launched on the Nintendo 3DS, allowing users to start downloading and watching exclusive videos on the handheld gaming device.

Now, just a few days later, the first crop of 3-D video has become available through the service, and it includes some choice segments from one of the Internet's most popular comedy sites.

The animated short "Dinosaur Office" from CollegeHumor.com was one of several 3-D videos that became available recently, which also saw the arrival of more 2-D video via the Nintendo Video service and the recently launched Netflix on 3DS.

According to CNN, College Humor has

Nintendo also indicated that 3-D videos from rock groups OK Go and Foster the People are also expected to arrive on the 3DS soon.

While sales of the Nintendo's 3-D gaming device haven't exactly met with the company's expectations, the company appears to be betting that development of more games and other services that take advantage of the system's unique capabilities will pay off in the long run.—Internet

Sony announces super-thin DSC-TX55 digital camera with OLED touch screen

WASHINGTON, 28 July—Sony just announced the newest model in its Cyber-shot DSC-T series of digital cameras. The Cyber-Shot DSC-TX55 is a high-end, 16-megapixel snapshot camera with several notable features.

The DSC-TX55 can capture both 16-megapixel still photos and 1080i/60 video. More interestingly, the camera can take 12-megapixel photos while taking 1080i/60 video, a seldom-seen feature.

It packs a 5x optical zoom lens into its 12.2mm-thick frame, less than half an inch thick not counting the sliding lens cover. Because it's so small, the DSC-TX55 can only accept the "micro" varieties of flash memory: Memory Stick Micro or microSD/SDHC cards. The back of the DSX-TX500 features a 3.3-inch OLED touch screen, through which the camera's multiple scene modes can be selected.

The DSC-TX55 comes with several unique modes, including a 3D Still Image mode that captures a simulated 3D picture by taking multiple photos, and an Intelligent Sweep Panorama with High Resolution mode that can record a 42.9-megapixel panorama shot by automatically stitching multiple photos together.

The Sony Cyber-shot DSC-TX55 will retail for $350 when it ships in September, and will be available in silver, black, red, and violet versions.

Mexican papayas sicken 99 in US

AUSTIN, 28 July—Mexican papayas tainted with salmonella have sickened 99 people in the United States, the Centres for Disease Control and Prevention said on Tuesday.

No deaths have been reported but the outbreak spans 23 states and health authorities warned people not to eat fresh, whole papayas imported from Mexico by Agromed Produce of McAllen, Texas.

“Consumers should not eat recalled papayas, and restaurant and food service operators should not serve them,” said the CDC.

Brand papayas sold prior to 23 July because they could be contaminated.

The first cases in the salmonella agona outbreak arose in January and have continued to be reported through mid-July, the CDC said.

Twenty-five of the 99 illnesses have been in Texas, the worst hit US state. In Mexico, the Agriculture Ministry said Tuesday that it was too soon to know if the Mexican papayas in question were the source of the illness.

US and Mexican authorities “are carrying out an investigation in both countries to determine the source of the outbreak of salmonella” so it is not time for any conclusive comment on cause, said Enrique Sanchez, who heads up Mexico’s food safety agency.

“For now, Mexican papayas cannot be named as the source of the illness,” Sanchez said. Salmonella poisoning usually causes diarrhea, fever, and stomach pains within 12 to 72 hours of eating, and symptoms can last up to a week.

Most people recover without treatment, but people with weak immune systems, the elderly and the very young could be at risk if the infection spreads to the bloodstream.

Human brains wired to empathize, study finds

NEW YORK, 28 July—A person’s brain works hard to empathize or understand what it’s like to walk in other people’s shoes, no matter how different they may be, a new study indicates. Researchers from the University of Southern California found people automatically attempt to empathize — even with those who are physically very different. To do that, however, people must use two separate regions of their brain.

In a paper, published online by Cerebral Cortex, USC researchers found that empathy between two people who can relate to each other more directly relies primarily on the intuitive, sensory-motor parts of the brain. A person who empathizes with someone who is very different or with whom they cannot directly relate, however, depends more on the rationalizing part of the brain.

In conducting the study, USC researchers showed videos of hands, feet and a mouth doing “tasks” to a woman who was born without arms or legs, as well as 13 typically developed women. The participants were also shown videos of injections being given on certain parts of the body. As they watched the videos, the women’s brains were scanned. Researchers compared those scans to pinpoint sources of empathy.

The researchers found that when the woman without limbs watched videos of tasks being performed using body parts that she did not have, the sensory-motor areas of her brain were still strongly engaged. The researchers noted, however, even without limbs, the woman was able to perform some of these tasks herself by improvising with the body parts she did have. If the action was impossible for her however, another set of brain regions involved in deductive reasoning were also activated, the study pointed out.—Internet

Israel offers Intel $295 million to expand

TEL AVIV, 28 July—Israel has approved a one billion shekel ($295 million, 204 million euro) grant to Intel to help underwrite an expansion in its local operations, the finance and trade ministers said on Wednesday.

The ministers “decided to approve in principle giving a grant to Intel of about one billion shekels toward the investment in two of the company’s plants in Israel,” a joint statement said.

The grant would cover around 20 percent of the total price tag for the plan to double the size of Intel’s existing chip plant in the southern town of Kiryat Gat and open a new factory in the north of the country.

The Intel logo is displayed outside of an Intel office in California 2010.—INTERNET

The company would also enjoy tax breaks. Receipt of the full grant would be conditional on Intel hiring an additional 1,500 workers in Kiryat Gat and 600-1,000 employees in the northern facility.

Funding will be spread over a 10-year period from 2014, and the exact amount will be contingent on the number of new workers hired.

Intel opened its doors in Israel in 1974. Its Web site describes it as the country’s largest private-sector employer, with 6,600 workers.

SEOUL, 28 July—South Korea’s Daewoo Shipbuilding and Marine Engineering said Thursday its second-quarter net profit fell 3.6 percent due to foreign-currency losses as a result of the strong won.

The world’s number three shipbuilder by sales said in a statement that its net profit for the three months ended 30 June declined to 170.1 billion won ($162 million) from 176.5 billion won a year earlier.

Sales rose 13 percent to 3.178 trillion won from 2.823 trillion won.

Operating profit more than tripled to 339.9 billion won in the April-June quarter from 106.9 billion won a year earlier.

Orders for high-end ships such as container carriers and liquefied natural gas carriers helped boost the operating profit, said company spokesman Yoon Yo-Han.

Daewoo Shipbuilding achieved 65 percent of its annual order target of $11 billion in the first six months.

KINSHASA, 28 July—Civilians in the eastern Democratic Republic of Congo are bearing the brunt of a surge in activity by the marauding former Ugandan rebels, Oxfam said in a report.

Communities in the remote region are already among the most isolated

The UK-based charity has been conducting annual assessments on the protection of civilians in the region since 2007 but was only able to carry out a comprehensive study in Lord's Resistance Army (LRA)-affected areas for the first time this year.

"Small groups of hungry fighters constantly on the move continue to viciously target the most isolated and forgotten populations," report said on Thursday, entitled "We are entirely exploitable".

MANILA, 28 July—Tropical storm Nock-ten dumped heavy rains across mountainous regions of the northern Philippines on Thursday, raising fears of more fatalities as the death toll rose to 35, with 25 missing.

Nock-ten, which slammed into the east of the country on Tuesday, had claimed 35 lives, with another 25 people unaccounted for, according to Ramos.

The latest recorded fatalities, two policemen and two government workers, were buried by a landslide in the north on Wednesday, Ramos told AFP.

LOS ANGELES, 28 July—A Union Pacific freight train hauling about 14 chemical cars derailed on Wednesday in a desert town north of Los Angeles, prompting the evacuation of at least 100 homes, but the railroad said the overturned tankers were all empty.

There was no fire, and no injuries or damage to surrounding buildings were reported from the wreck, which occurred along a stretch of track in the rural community of Littlerock, about 35 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

With no obvious sign of a collision or obstruction on the track, authorities said they had no immediate explanation for the accident.

California wildfire burns through heavy brush

LOS COYOTES INDIAN RESERVATION, 28 July—Higher temperatures and lower humidity challenged firefighters battling a 21-square-mile California wildfire that churned through steep, rugged terrain in northeast San Diego County.

The six-day-old fire burned to the east and northwest, with the most active flames on the northwestern portion of the blaze, an area thick with vegetation and no known history of fire, said Mike Smith, of the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection.

Firefighters have surrounded 45 percent of the 13,700-acre fire that started Thursday on the Los Coyotes Indian reservation. There is no estimate on full containment, Smith said. The blaze was not expected to threaten any structures or populated areas. But firefighters faced temperatures hovering around 100 degrees and low humidity and changing winds that could send smoke into

'Evil' Australian hacker faces 49 charges

SYDNEY, 28 July—A man who used the online nickname "Evil" has been charged with hacking attacks that police Wednesday alleged could have caused considerable damage to Australia's national infrastructure. The 25-year-old unemployed truck driver, who had been unable to find a job in information technology, faces 49 charges after a six-month investigation into his online activities. They include hacking into the systems of Platform Networks, one of the 13 service providers for the National Broadband Network (NBN), the largest infrastructure project in Australia's history.

Potentially, customers could have lost their services, depending on the security back-up they had in place. "While Platform Networks had strong cyber security measures in place, even the best security systems are only as strong as the weakest link," said Neil Gaughan, the federal police's High Tech Crime Operations manager.—Internet

WASHINGTON, 28 July—The District of Columbia Department of Health (DOH) in the US announced Tuesday that it has positively identified the West Nile Virus in mosquito samples in the District. This is the first time this summer the West Nile Virus has been identified in the US capital. "Residents should take caution as mosquitoes have the potential to transmit West Nile Virus to humans, and it is important for residents to take the necessary steps to avoid contracting the virus," DOH said in a statement.

Mosquitoes with West Nile Virus found in US capital

West Nile Virus is mainly an infection of birds, but on occasions an infected mosquito may spread it to humans.

The virus is not transmitted directly from birds to humans and the risk of infection is low.

In human infections, the virus generally causes no symptoms, or may cause mild flu-like symptoms.

Storms hit Western Australia's southwest

SYDNEY, 28 July—Wind gusts have torn roofing from houses, uprooted trees, and brought down power-lines as storms hit the southwest region of Western Australia (WA) overnight, local media reported on Thursday.

The southwest town of Waroona in WA has been the worst hit with at least two houses losing large parts of their roofs and downed power-lines causing power cuts, the Australian Associated Press (AAP) reported. Storms also hit the Perth metropolitan area overnight and State Emergency Service (SES) workers responded to more than 60 calls for help in the city and the south.

WA's Fire and Emergency Services Association (FESA) said SES volunteers were making temporary repairs to homes, fixing roof damage, removing fallen trees from fences and sandbagging areas in danger of flooding.—Xinhua

Crocodile caught in Siberian lake

ABAKAN, 28 July—A rescue team in the Russian republic of Khakassia said they caught a 6 1/2-foot crocodile spotted floating in a lake.

Yury Stolbun, head of the rescue group, said Wednesday a tour group in a catamaran spotted the crocodile floating in the water and initially thought it was a log. RIA Novosti reported Wednesday.

"Suddenly the log started blinking and paddling with its legs," Stolbun said.

Stolbun said the croc belongs to a man who offers tourists the chance to be photographed with the reptile.

"Something distracted the owner and the crocodile escaped into the lake," Stolbun said.

7.9 tons of cocaine seized off Caribbean coast

BOGOTA, 28 July—Authorities from Colombia, the United States, Honduras and Panama have seized at least 7.9 tons of cocaine off the Caribbean coast, Columbian National Navy said Tuesday.

In an operation, a US-flagged vessel was intercepted in San Blas Islands of Panama. A total of 3,454 kg of cocaine was seized when the ship was sailing from Cartagena in Colombia to Colon in Panama, said a navy source.

Two people, one Spaniard and one Colombian, were on board, added the source. In another operation, a semi-submersible with about 4.5 tons of cocaine aboard was intercepted in international waters.

The ship was spotted by a US maritime patrol aircraft. The four Colombians and a Honduran on board tried to go underwater to escape when they saw law enforcement authorities, the navy said. The navy attributed the success of the operations to exchanges of information among relevant countries in line with maritime agreements.

Personal data of some 35 M hacked in S Korea

SEOUL, 28 July—Personal information on some 35 million users of Nate and Cyworld, a portal site and a web community site operated by SK Communications in South Korea, was hacked by outside sources, local media reported Thursday. SK Communications, a unit of the country's conglomerate SK Group, said on Thursday that it suffered a leakage of users' personal information on 26 July.

Nate is the country's third-largest portal behind Naver and Daum. Cyworld is the country's biggest social network service with its users up to 33 million. The exact scale of the hacking, which SK Communications said seems to be related to a malicious virus attack from China, is yet to be figured, but information such as names, mobile phone numbers, email addresses and identification numbers is confirmed to have been leaked.—Xinhua gave an account of turning out traditional medicine practitioners from the university. After attending to the needs, the Vice-President delivered an address, saying that the university has so far turned out nearly 800 traditional medicine graduates and they are discharging duties at Department of Traditional Medicine, hospitals and clinics. In giving health care services to the people, the traditional medicine practitioners are to make smooth relations with the patients with goodwill and loving-kindness in line with the ethics.

The traditional medicine has been flourishing in Myanmar for a long time. Likewise, both China and India are giving priority to flourishing of their traditional medicines on a wider scale. In blending the medicine, traditional medicine practitioners are to take care of medicines' potent not to be lost with firm evidences to be able to win the trust of people.

As part of efforts to undertake rural development, health care services are being provided to 70 per cent of rural people with the western medicine but the ratio of population to the doctors and nurses are unbalance. Therefore, effective treatment can be given to the grassroots level in rural areas with the use of traditional medicines. Thus, it is necessary to distribute sufficient traditional medicines in boxes to the rural areas. And it is necessary to conduct short-term courses of traditional medicines to the enthusiasts of rural people and assigned them to be traditional medicine practitioners.

In conclusion, the Vice-President stressed the need for the university to realize the continuous teaching system for giving effective treatments to the people.

Next, the Vice-President visited the traditional medicine museum, library and e-library at the main lecture hall of the university.

After inspecting cultivation of herbal plants to be used for respective diseases at the model herbal garden and growing of medicinal plants for six major diseases at the lecture hall, the Vice-President urged those present to provide medical treatment to the patients with the use of traditional medicine in comparison with western medicines so as to win the greater trusts of the people.

The Vice-President and party left Mandalay by air and arrived back here in the afternoon.

Apart from that, the village has self-help power generators and is lush and green with various species

U Wai Lwin said that they never expected to enjoy such rapid development of their village even in their wildest dream; that the village had a basic education primary school and a daycare nursery, and the new village, a monastic education primary school, a bridge under construction, a main road, a broken-brick road, new housing estates, tube-wells, and water purifiers; and that their village had enjoyed far better living conditions than that in the pre-Nargis period.

A village elder U Thein Soe said that previously, their region had a large area of mangrove swamps, and enjoyed temperate climate patterns; that but local people cut down mangrove trees indiscriminately firewood and to make charcoal, to the detriment of the climate patterns; that learning lessons from those events, local people had grown a large number of trees along the coast for three years, and the region had become lush and green again. According to our firsthand knowledge, the village is making a quick recovery from the cyclone.

$12 M ransom sought for French kidnapped in Yemen

PARIS, 28 July— Three French aid workers who were kidnapped in southeastern Yemen are held by Al-Qaeda members who are seeking a $12 million ransom for their release, tribal sources said on Wednesday.

"The kidnapers are Al-Qaeda members and are demanding a ransom of $12 million," one of the tribal sources said.

The account could not be independently verified. Al-Qaeda has not claimed responsibility for the kidnappings.

Security officials in Hadramawt province, where the three aid workers were kidnapped, said that they had succeeded in identifying the kidnappers and that they belonged to "an extremist group," without naming the organization.

And security officials in Sanaa said they had no knowledge of ransom demands, but that they had information that the three French nationals are "in good health."

"We do not have this information," French foreign ministry spokesman Bernard Valero said when asked about the tribesmen's claims.

Seattle man accused in 1957 murder back in Illinois

CHICAGO, 28 July— A Seattle man accused of killing a young Chicago-area girl five decades ago was back in Illinois on Wednesday as investigators exhumed the child's remains in search of forensic evidence to help convict him.

Jack McCullough, 71, a former police officer in Washington state, last week waived his right to challenge extradition. He was in custody in Illinois by Wednesday afternoon, said Monique Bond, the chief spokesman for Illinois State Police. McCullough's return came as investigators were unearthing the remains of 7-year-old Maria Ridulph in Sycamore, Illinois, not far from where she disappeared in 1957. Ridulph's remains were found the following year more than 100 miles away.

10 children rescued from Haitian human smugglers

SANTO DOMINGO, 28 July— Authorities in the Dominican Republic have rescued 10 children smuggled from Haiti, the Special Terrestrial Border Security Unit (Cesfront) said Wednesday.

Cesfront officials said a Haitian citizen who had transported the children aged between 4 and 9 had managed to escape after noticing the presence of soldiers in the Province of Dajabon bordering Haiti.

According to the children's testimony, they came from Haitian capital Port-au-Prince as well as the City of Cabo Haiti where their parents entrusted them to a man and a woman who smuggled them to Dominican Republic.

The special border unit said the children's final destination was supposed to be Santiago City where they are going to earn a living for their traffickers as child beggars on the street along with other Haitian children.—Xinhua

Arson determined to be cause of San Diego Co fire

LOS COYOTES INDIAN RESERVATION, 28 July— Investigators determined that arson caused a wildfire that has burned more than 21 square miles of grass, brush and timber in northeastern San Diego County, the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection said Wednesday.

No further details on the cause would be released until the investigation into the week-old blaze was completed, the agency said in a statement.

The fire slowed its advance Wednesday into the backcountry, but hot weather and low humidity still posed a challenge for firefighters trying to surround it.

The fire was 65 percent contained after burning 14,100 acres on the Los Coyotes Indian Reservation and Anza Borrego Desert State Park. No homes were threatened.

Japan widens ban on radioactive beef

TOKYO, 28 July—Japan widened a ban on beef shipments to a second tsunami-hit region on Thursday, citing elevated radiation levels in the meat of animals because of the ongoing Fukushima nuclear crisis.

Almost 3,000 cattle feared contaminated with caesium have been shipped nationwide and slaughtered after the animals were fed rice straw exposed to fallout from the more than four-month-old nuclear crisis.

After banning sales of cattle from Fukushima Prefecture last week, the government extended the order to neighbouring Miyagi Prefecture, where at least six contaminated animals have been identified.

The new order was announced by Chief Cabinet Secretary Yukio Edano.

Lion with paralyzed legs dies in Brazil

SAO PAULO, 28 July—Ariel, a paralyzed male lion whose fight to walk again became the focus of an Internet fundraising campaign and captured wide media attention in Brazil, died Wednesday, his owner said. On the lion's Facebook page, owner Raquel Borges said: "Our beloved Ariel is gone. This is the saddest day of my life." Further details were not immediately available.

The Facebook page created by Borges was "liked" by more than 62,500 people. The lion's death made headlines on Brazil's biggest news portals and was a top worldwide trending item on Twitter. Borges said earlier this month that the $11,500 needed every month to pay for Ariel's treatment was coming from donations from the people who clicked the "like" button on the Facebook page and another website dedicated to him.

Veterinarian Livia Pereira who cared for Ariel recently had said that for unknown reasons, the lion's white blood cells attacked healthy cells due to a degenerative disease affecting the medulla, a portion of the brain stem involved in motor functions. The 3-year-old, 310-pound (140-kilogram) lion started limping one day last year after spending hours leaping and chasing balloons. ## Britain bans two misleading makeup ads

LONDON, 28 July—Britain's advertising standards council banned two makeup advertisements featuring actress Julia Roberts and model Christy Turlington on Wednesday, ruling the ads — which used digitally altered photographs — were misleading.

The Advertising Standards Authority found that the airbrushed images used by L'Oreal in magazine ad campaigns exaggerated the results women could expect from using the beauty products.

The watchdog said the ads could no longer be used.

The decision was seen as a step forward in an ongoing campaign to limit the retouching of photos in beauty-related ads in Britain.

"We really welcome this," said Susan Ringwood, chief executive of Beat, which campaigns to combat eating disorders. "It highlights one of the main issues, that these hyper-perfect versions of beauty are undermining people's confidence because they are beyond what's achievable. It's unrealistic in a way that's really damaging to vulnerable young people and effects all of us."

The advertising standards council, which is now allowed to consider the social impact of the ads as a criteria on whether they are acceptable, acted after a complaint from a lawmaker, Jo Swinson, who praised the decision to ban the images.—Internet

Tropical storm Nock-ten to hit south China on Friday

BEIJING, 28 July—China's flood control authority on Thursday launched an emergency response for tropical storm Nock-ten, which is expected to land at the country's southern coastal regions on Friday night or Saturday morning.

Nock-ten, which killed at least 31 people in the Philippines, is the eighth storm and the most powerful one to hit China so far this year. It will make landfall over the coastal regions of western Guangdong and eastern Hainan Province, the State Flood Control and Drought Relief Headquarters (SFDH) said.

As of 10 am Thursday, the centre of the storm was 600 kilometers southeast off Hainan's Wenchang City, packing winds up to 82.8 km per hour. The storm will continue to move northward at a speed of 20 km per hour, it said.

The storm may bring heavy downpours to Hainan and other regions in south China over the next three days, it forecast.—Xinhua

Japanese women have world's longest life expectancy

BEIJING, 28 July—Japanese women remained to be the world's longest-living last year, though their average life expectancy fell slightly to 86.39 years, according to media reports Thursday. The fall of 0.05 years was the first decline in five years, falling from a record 86.44 registered in 2009.

"Last year's heat wave probably led to an increase in deaths resulting from heat stroke and heart trouble," said a Japanese government official. Among countries and regions in the world, Japan ranked first for women's longevity, followed by Hong Kong at 85.9 years and France at 84.8 years.

The average life expectancy of Japanese men hit a new high for the fifth straight year in 2010, rising 0.05 to 79.64 years. Japan ranked fourth in men's longevity after Hong Kong at 80.0 years, Switzerland at 79.8 years and Israel at 79.7 years.—Xinhua

26,000 fishing boats return to port as south china braces for tropical storm

BEIJING, 28 July—More than 26,000 fishing boats in southern-most China's Hainan province have returned to port as the island braces for tropical storm Nock-Ten.

The Hainan provincial government said in a statement that it has ordered all fishing boats to return to port. The government has also ordered authorities to ensure the safety of all reservoirs and to evacuate people living in low-lying regions and downstream of dangerous reservoirs.

Authorities in Guangdong province have also ordered fishing ships off its southwestern coasts to return to port and emergency rescue workers to prepare to conduct disaster relief efforts.

Nock-Ten, which has strengthened to a severe tropical storm and may strengthen further into a typhoon, is expected to make landfall over the coastal regions from Sanya in Hainan to Zhanjiang in Guangdong, according to the national Meteorological Centre.

Nock-Ten, which has killed at least 31 people in the Philippines, is the eighth storm and the most powerful one to hit China so far this year.

As of 5 pm Thursday, the storm's Centre was 440 km southeast off Hainan's Wenchang City, packing winds up to 90 km per hour, the National Meteorological Centre said.

Hyundai Motor 2Q profit rises 37 percent

SEOUL, 28 July—Hyundai Motor's net profit rose 37 percent in the second quarter amid higher revenue and global vehicle sales.

Hyundai, South Korea's largest automaker, earned 2.31 trillion won ($2.2 billion) in the three months ended 30 June, according to a regulatory filing Thursday. It earned 1.68 trillion won the same period last year.

Sales revenue during the period rose 19 percent to 20.1 trillion won from 16.9 trillion won a year earlier. Hyundai Motor Co said separately that vehicle sales in the first six months of the year increased 11 percent to 1.96 million. It did not provide a breakdown for the second quarter. But subtracting first-quarter sales from that figure shows that sales for the period totaled 1.04 million.

The second-quarter profit was the latest in a string of strong results for Hyundai, which has benefited from its overseas factories and sales operations.

Hyundai has pursued an aggressive overseas expansion and has plants in China, India, the United States, the Czech Republic, Turkey and Russia. It is building one in Brazil. The Hyundai Motor Group, which includes South Korea's Kia Motors Corp, is the world's fifth-largest automotive group.—Internet

Mexican police find 18 bodies in clandestine grave

MONTERREY, 28 July—Police found 18 bodies in a clandestine grave in a northern Mexican town where several hidden burial pits have been discovered in the past year, authorities said Wednesday.

Shepherds came across two decomposing bodies near a dirt road late Tuesday in the town of Juarez and alerted police, said a Nuevo Leon state police investigator who spoke on condition of anonymity because he is not authorized to talk about the case.

Another 16 bodies were buried underneath, the officer said. He said the bodies were badly decomposed and had been buried for at least a month. Last month, police found two separate pits containing human remains in Juarez, a town near the industrial City of Monterrey. Last year, soldiers found 51 bodies buried at an isolated ranch in the same town.

BEIJING, 28 July—China's pork prices dropped 0.2 percent for the week ending 24 July from the previous week, the Ministry of Commerce (MOC) said on Tuesday. The previous week-on-week drop occurred in the week ending April 10 with a 0.1-percent decline, according to reports listed on the MOC website.

High pork prices have become a big concern for the nation as the consumer price index, the main gauge of inflation, shot up to a three-year high of 6.4 percent last month, driven by surging food prices.

Data from the National Bureau of Statistics showed pork prices in June surged 57.1 percent year-on-year.

Anderson Japanese Gardens aim for tranquility

ROCKFORD, 28 July—Japanese gardens are about inspiring and soothing the soul. And you don't have to be a gardening expert or Zen Buddhist to appreciate all they have to offer — the beauty, the tranquility, even the Zen.

Anderson Japanese Gardens, a 12-acre wonderland of landscaping and design, is regarded as one of the top Japanese gardens in North America, along with ones in Portland, Ore, and Delray Beach, Fla.

Most every day, diverse groups of visitors can be seen strolling through the site: hospice patients, cancer survivors, people practicing yoga and tai chi, brush painting classes, Red Hat women, grief counselors, church congregations holding services and just plain tourists.

Reflecting a design that originated in 12th-century Japan, the gardens contain a large pond, a five-story waterfall, a granite pagoda, curving bridges over boulder-strewn streams, and well-manicured plants and trees leaning toward the water. They attract about 40,000 visitors a year in this city 80 miles northwest of Chicago.—Internet

Girl gets charity wish met after death in crash

SEATTLE, 28 July—In honor of her 9th birthday, Rachel Beckwith asked friends and family to donate money to bring clean water to an African village. Rachel was close to meeting her goal of raising $300 when she died last week after a car accident.

In her memory, strangers have now made her dream come true many times over.

By Wednesday afternoon, some 10,000 people had donated more than $400,000 to "charity: water" in Rachel's honor, many in gifts of $9 each. On a website set up by Rachel and her mother before her birthday, she explained the inspiration for her project.

"I found out that millions of people don't live to see their 5th birthday. And why? Because they didn't have access to clean, safe water so I'm celebrating my birthday like never before," she wrote. "I'm asking from everyone I know to donate to my campaign instead of gifts for my birthday.—Internet

Depression rates higher in wealthy countries, study finds

WASHINGTON, 28 July—A new study published 25 July reveals that major depression is on the rise around the world and is more likely to hit those living in high-income countries than poorer ones.

The new study tracked depression rates across 18 countries, noting that the average lifetime occurrence of depression in 10 affluent countries was 14.6 percent, with much higher depression rates in France (21 percent) and the US (19.2 percent). For those living in higher-income countries, the average age that depression is likely to strike is between 25 and 26 years old, according to the researchers. Based on the study, here are the percentages of people who either have experienced or will experience depression during their lifetimes:

As part of a World Health Organization study, major depressive episodes were evaluated by trained surveyors giving in-person interviews with more than 89,037 people in 18 countries, making this the first study to assess depression with standardized surveys, said the researchers.—Internet

Amazon ranks ad-supported Kindle 3G top-selling

BEIJING, 28 July—Amazon.com's e-book reader Kindle 3G with special offers is now the company's top-selling e-book device, according to media reports on Wednesday.

Amazon revealed in its quarterly earnings report that the ad-supported version costs 139 US dollars, 50 dollars cheaper than the comparable Kindle 3G, and costs the same as a Kindle with Wi-Fi connectivity.

The advertisements will appear only in screensavers (which appear when the reader is in an idle state) and at the bottom of the home screen, so they don't interrupt readers.

"Since AT&T agreed to sponsor screensavers, Kindle 3G with Special Offers is now our bestselling Kindle device," Amazon's Press release said.

Russian swindler used old Brazilian cash

Russian police said they arrested a man who made expensive purchases by passing outdated Brazilian currency off as euros.

Kursk police said the man, whose name was not released, used cruzados, Brazilian currency in circulation from 1986 to 1989, to buy fur coats, household appliances and other goods from people who posted ads in newspapers, RIA Novosti reported Wednesday.

Investigators said the man claimed the cruzados were euros.

“Ten Kursk residents notified the police. The total damage is worth 200,000 rubles [about $7,300].

But police believe more people could have suffered from the swindler’s actions,” police said in a statement.

Police said the man could face up to five years in prison for his actions.

Toronto offers height-loving daredevils new thrills

Daredevils in red jumpsuits can teeter around the outside edge of Canada’s tallest structure next month as the CN Tower opens a new attraction for thrill-seekers and those wanting to overcome fear.

Modelled on similar attractions in Auckland, New Zealand, and Macau, China, the C$3.5 million (2.2 million pounds) EdgeWalk is an adrenaline filled excursion around an open-mesh metal walkway almost a quarter of a mile above the ground.

There’s no guard rail and no hand holds, just an uninterrupted view of the Toronto skyline and a through-the-mesh view of the ground, 1,168 feet (356 metres) beneath your feet.

Man attempted own hernia surgery

Police in California said a 63-year-old man is recovering after his apparently tried to use a butter knife to remove a hernia from his own stomach. Glendale police said they responded to a call from the man’s wife and arrived at his home Monday to find him naked on an outside lounge chair with the handle of a 6-inch butter knife protruding from his stomach, the Glendale News Press reported Tuesday.

Sgt Tom Lorenz said the man, whose name was not released, pulled the knife out while waiting for paramedics and shoved a lit cigarette into the wound.

The man’s wife told police he had become frustrated by his protruding hernia and attempted to cut it out of his own stomach.

Airman injured when toilet explodes

A Royal Australian Air Force member is being treated for severe burns after a portable toilet exploded while he was lighting a cigarette.

A spokeswoman for the Department of Community Safety said the airman was participating in the Australia-United States joint military exercise Talisman Sabre 2011 when the toilet exploded at about 9:30 am Monday, the Sydney Morning Herald reported.

“It’s believed he was lighting a cigarette at the time,” the spokeswoman said. The man, whose name was not released, was taken to Rockhampton Hospital to receive treatment for third-degree burns to his head, face, arms, chest and airways. Authorities said the incident is being investigated.

Cage to star in film about Alaska serial killer

ANCHORAGE, 28 July—The hunt for Alaska’s most infamous serial murderer is about to get the Hollywood treatment.

Academy Award-winning actor Nicolas Cage will star in “Frozen Ground,” a movie detailing the police investigation of serial killer Robert Hansen, Variety reported Wednesday. He will play an Alaska State Trooper who investigated the murders.

Filming is scheduled to start in Anchorage on 10 Oct, a second major production filmed in Alaska in the last year. Filming wrapped up last fall on Drew Barrymore’s “Everybody Loves Whales.” Emmett Furla Films is financing the $27 million Cage project and producing with Amber Entertainment, Variety reported. Messages left for both by The Associated Press weren’t immediately returned Wednesday.

Hansen, who got the nickname “the Butcher Baker,” was convicted in 1984 after confessing to killing 17 women and raping another 30 in a 12-year span.

He received a 461 year sentence and is incarcerated at a state prison in Seward.

Bieber helping Texas kids orphaned in crash

HOUSTON, 28 July—Celebrities including Justin Bieber, Ellen DeGeneres and Britney Spears are spreading the word about a campaign to help three Houston children seriously injured and orphaned by a deadly car accident earlier this month.

Bieber and other celebrities encouraged their fans via Twitter and Facebook on Wednesday to donate to the “Show Your Hearts” campaign. The money raised from the campaign, which began Wednesday, will go to a trust fund set up to care for the children.

The 2 July accident in West Texas killed the children’s parents and paralyzed 8-year-old Aaron and 9-year-old Peter, who are now being treated in Chicago. Their 6-year-old sister was also injured.

The Houston Rockets on Wednesday also announced a campaign to raise money for the children.

victory over the MLS All Stars on Wednesday night.

Anderson, Dimitar Berbatov and Danny Welbeck also scored for the reigning English Premier League champions, who have outscored their opponents 18-2 in winning the opening four games on their US tour.

Sir Alex Ferguson's powerhouse will wrap up its preseason tour in Washington on Saturday against FC Barcelona in a rematch of the Champions League final which the Spanish team won 3-1. Then it's back to England for the Community Shield game and then start of another season the following week.

The final score might have been a little misleading because David Beckham and his MLS buddies had a couple of good shots at goal, but make no mistake—Manchester United was far superior in the game at Red Bull Arena that drew a sellout crowd of 26,760.

The MLS even looked good for about 18 minutes with Beckham, who starred for the Reds in his prime, having a great chance in the seventh minute, only to see his 25-yard drive slide wide of the goal.

Rooney though gave the Manchester United faithful in the mixed crowd — half for Man, half for the MLS squad— something to cheer about in the 20th minute on a great tic-tac-toe play.

Tiger Airways says Australian domestic flights could resume on 5 Aug

SINGAPORE, 28 July—The domestic flights of Tiger Airways Australia could resume from Aug. 5, its parent company Tiger Airways Holdings said in a statement on Thursday.

The airline said that it has been working constructively with the Civil Aviation Safety Authority of Australia (CASA) to address the concerns it had raised, and that it is confident it can comply with the conditions set by the authority.

The company said it expects to resume services in the near future.

The flight schedules and the recommencement o sales will be “made at the appropriate time,” it added.

The CASA suspended the domestic flights of Tiger Airways in Australia on 1 July as a result of breaching security rules. An investigation has been going on for about a month now. The authority set out a set of formal conditions that the airline must comply with in order for its flights to resume.

Tiger said it will automatically refund all passengers who have booked to fly with the airline between 1 to 4 Aug.

A court hearing due on Thursday on the suspension issue was adjourned till 1 Aug.—Xinhua
