POLITICAL

Slogans

The bottom of each front page continues to bear the slogan: Emergence of the State Constitution is the duty of all citizens of Myanmar Naing-Ngan

The top of each back page has since May 30, 1996 had a new boxed-in "slogan": People's Desire

- * Oppose those relying on external elements, acting as stooges, holding negative views.
- * Oppose those trying to jeopardize stability of the State and progress of the nation.
- * Oppose foreign nations interfering in internal affairs of the State.
- * $\,\,$ Crush all internal and external destructive elements as the common enemy.

Religious Slogans: Since August 1991, each issue has included a changing Pali religious slogan at the top of each front page:

Oct. 1-31: Panditanan ca sevana, to associate with the wise; this is the way to auspiciousness.

The Twelve Objectives: Since July 6, 1995, each issue of NLM has listed the Four Political, Four Economic, and Four Social Objectives of the State Law and Order Restoration Council, generally on the front page [for texts, see January 1996 issue].

Political Articles

[Including, as appropriate, editorials]

Oct. 1-3: What is Aung San Suu Kyi? Whither goest she? by Pe Kan Naung. [Cont. (63) Aung San Suu Kyi's confidante U Kyi Maung "is a person who can shameless twist the history" and who was a friend and admirer of Galon U Saw (who assassinated Aung San). In fact, there was a plot against U Saw, to foil his scheming with British Governor Sir Dorman Smith to block independence. Now, U Kyi Maung is using Aung San Suu Kyi in an effort to bring down the Government.

[(64) Foreign contacts with NLD. Subversive pamphlets sent in by NLD Expatriate Group. US involvement: "During the early part of 1995, absconding Myanmar students led by Dr. Tint Swe and Chin students from Manipur and Mizoram, together totalling about a hundred attended lectures on Methods of Political Defiance, conducted by instructors who are US citizens. After July in the latter part of 1995, while some members of the NLD expatriate group led by Dr. Tint Swe were infiltrating the country from the western side of Myanmar, insurgent camps in Thai territory on the east were also being reactivated. After the collapse of KNU headquarters at Manerplaw, Robert Helvey with Bruce Jenkins and Michael Mitchell, all three of them US citizens, arrived at the KNU-held territory, Hit Ka Ba Lei around May 1996 and reorganized the remnants of the ABSDF and other opposition groups and made arrangements for them to attend political defiance training courses. After that from 19 to 23 August, they were said to have conducted such a training course for members of the KNU, CRDB, ABSDF, NCGUB, NLD (expatriate) group and the NDF at the KNU Hti Ka Ba Lei camp. It is said that around 30 people attended the course.

["Out of these three US citizens, Robert Helvey at one time served as Defence and Army Attache at the Embassy of the United States of America in Yangon, Myanmar. Bruce Jenkins is an administration officer dealing with financial matters at the Albert Einstein Institute of America. Michael Mitchell who is a member of the IRI (International Republication Institute) on the other hand arrived in Yangon in April 1996 and met Daw Aung San Suu Kyi for the first time.... Mitchell made another visit to Yangon from 15 to 20 August and on 18 August he went to see Daw Aung San Suu Kyi at her home...."

[(65) September press briefing. "Accusing foreign entrepreneurs who come to Myanmar to make investments and to do trade as immoral is really too serious.... It should be noted that these dignified entrepreneurs can file law suits against Daw Aung San Suu Kyi in retaliation for her accusations." Since her release from restriction, she "has been one getting more rights than what an ordinary citizen has a right to enjoy and one who has been going round in the vicious circle of folly." The true reason Aung San Suu Kyi "has become alienated to Myanmar culture for so long and is so rude," is that she "was not brought up under the care of her two Myanmar parents." In summary, "if it is to be analysed what Aung San Suu Kyi is, it will show as follows:

- -- Aung San Suu Kyi according to Buddhist culture and tradition and as heir apparent is a bad daughter who had not fulfilled her obligations towards her parents;
- -- Aung San Suu Kyi is a woman with an extreme pride much more than a true woman should possess and went after fame with a vain glory [sic] and is a selfish person;
- -- Aung San Suu Kyi is a person who fails to understand the gratitude she owes the State and is evil educated person like an ogre;
- -- She is a woman who places in the fore her own popularity rather than the affairs of the State and the race, a person without rationality and crazed with power;
- -- Aung San Suu Kyi has chosen a foreigner who is not of own race and blood as her spouse and has given birth to two sons of mixed blood and automatically come under the influence of a foreigner and is like a person walking blindly, happy with receiving letters which give her instructions and advice to act according to the bidding of a foreign country."

["She easily got the leadership of a party which is that of a spoilt class of people in Myanmar.... Only when she came to Myanmar to engage in politics could her spouse, a professor, who could only afford to ride a bicycle in Oxford can now go in a car of latest model. They have accumulated millions of dollars. Even though Myanmar may be set aflame and burnt down to ashes due to her doings, she has nothing to worry. Arrangements have been made for her to live in best of luxury in England. After earning the dollars doing democracy shore-job in Myanmar for eight years, she can now spend the rest of her life without exhausting her money....

["If she goes back with her own awareness to her permanent address which she loves greatly, pines for and boasts about it (15 Park Town Oxford, London [sic]), then it would be the straightest path of her journey home. If she continues to go on like this in Myanmar, then her history would become ruder and ruder and ultimately she will sink deeper into the quagmire as the common enemy of the entire people. What is Aung San Suu Kyi?... Whither goest Aung San Suu Kyi?... The day she herself can discern it will be the day she will be the most free. (Concluded)."]

Oct. 1: Not that naive, by Byatti. [Cont. (2) "The United States has gone so far as attempting to introduce laws on Myanmar, interfering in the internal affairs and intimidating her in breach of ethics to be observed in international relations. This has been welcomed by members of the so-called NCGUB of neo-expatriates. Although the mass of Myanmar people have turned out against the interference of the United States...the NLD group, Aung San Suu Kyi, who has kept NLD under her control, and a group of her followers and advisers ignore the public and national interests being harmed. Instead, they are carrying out synchronized activities to create favourable conditions for the United States.... Dangers to Myanmar's races, territory, government, and sovereignty listed. "The danger of the acts of local and joint-venture axe-handles led by Aung San Suu Kyi who get loose with their reliance on outside powers and those of the Charge d'Affaires and an official of the American Embassy need no exaggeration. Action can be taken against Aung San Suu Kyi and her followers according to existing laws and order having the force of law [sic]. What is important is that those who are engaged in dangerous acts must cease such acts. If national interest is harmed they will certainly be punished by the people."]

Oct. 4: If we were to refer to Bogyoke..., by Pe Kan Kaung. ["Even though she was born of Bogyoke Aung San and Daw Khin Kyi, it is lamentable for Aung San Suu Kyi who is not only fading her father's noble attributes but also using him under pretext of democracy as manipulated from abroad."]

Oct. 5: The bitter pill is no longer potent, by Byatti. [Daw Aung San Suu Kyi line no longer works. "The Sayamagyi's bitter pill is no longer potent."]

Oct. 10: Thirty-five years of the Non-Aligned Movement, by U Pe Kin - Ambassador (Rtd.). [History, by a retired Ambassador. "The Non-aligned movement may rest assured of Myanmar's continued and unflinching support of its principles in all circumstances."]

Oct. 11: East is East, West is West, by Byatti. ["What the axe-handles and expatriates expected was that Myanmar would waver and be flustered by the American President's move. It seems that the American President's move was a respite for Madame Aris Suu Kyi but in fact it had reverse effect..." Myanmar is not Somalia, Haiti, or Bosnia, and "will never be an American-style democracy."]

Oct. 13: Stand firm Aung Moung, by Maung Thwe Thant. [Review of good relations between Myanmar and America for over a century, until they were poisoned by Mrs. Michael Aris. Lies spread on BBC and VOA are not heard in their homelands, since "BBC programme could not be tuned in England" and the US Congress "has prohibited the American people from listening to overseas broadcasts by VOA.... The prohibition aims at preventing their citizens concerned from listening to false news." US also trying to punish Cuba and Libya by interfering in their affairs. "Well-known artiste Myanmar theatre the late Mingala U Aung Moung used to encourage Myanmar people who were participating in anti-imperialist and independence movement by crying the catch phrase 'Stand firm Aung Moung'. He did so while performing on the stage.... I, therefore, conclude this article by repeating U Aung Moung's clarion call: Stand firm Aung Moung!"]

Oct. 13-14: A wrong move and one could lose the game--, by Byatti. [(1) The real causes of the problems between Myanmar and America are (a) "a group of local-made servitude share-holder axehandles holding negative views" and (b) "new and old expatriates abroad and degenerative elements that have lost purity of genealogy." They should be aware that "'the dance of dinosaurs'" is over and that "the emergence of a new world pattern is inevitable." Though Brazil and India are coming up, current great powers are China, US, Europe and Russia. Japan cannot become a world superpower because the US and China don't want it. Islam would have to unite. But sophisticated weapons are spreading, and "the poor men's bomb, too, is within reach of almost every country." (2) Most likely development is a joint effort by Russia, Europe, and the US "attempt to keep China at bay." Since Russia has its own preoccupations, "America and Europe may collaborate and dominate the world economy." Though American prisons are worse than Myanmar ones (viz: chaining female prisoners and assigning them to hard labour in Arizona), "Mrs. Michael Aris and axhandle gangsters accompanying her ...cling to and rely on the care of American and Europe.... Perhaps Daw Swa Gyai, "the gang sayamagyi who picks and chooses to read only English language newspapers... did not dare to speak out that such ugly excesses on female convicts as in America do not exist in our country and that it must be duly acknowledged?" If she were in America, she would see the homeless, the beggars, in Washington.

["In a study of the stratum of degenerative elements who are hurting themselves in their efforts to appease their masters, one will find they are all the likes of Mrs. Michael Aris. They got married to white, red or multi-coloured foreigners and naturalized, thereby losing purity of genealogy. Maureen Aung Thwin of marred genealogy who was wont to appear on CNN news, for instance, has been away from the motherland of Myanmar since she was about ten years old. She got married with an American citizen and was naturalised in the US about 20 years ago. Such a one of marred genealogy has no right to say anything about Myanmar and there is no reason to believe what she says.

["In fact, Maureen Aung Thwin is not doing any service with genuine goodwill towards Myanmar. She is posing as a democracy activist because she finds it easy living with something tasty to chew. For Maureen Aung Thwin and new and old expatriates in the US, the Soros Foundation is like a bank from which they can take money out and spend it and swindle it at will. The foundation is known to be an NGO with noble objectives. It is based in the US. It is meant for aiding social and education sectors of the small developing nations.

["It is distressing to learn that the foundation is at the mercy of deception and concoctions by new and old expatriate gang members from Myanmar for their own gain. Maureen Aung Thwin was the strongest in her approach to that foundation than other new and old expatriates. She has been able to take the money out of the foundation using her womanly wiles and guiles in addition to the pretext of democracy and human rights.

["Out of the dollars which she had so obtained, she stole some for her and provided the paltry remainder to the remnant armed groups; she then gave them various incentives and instigated them to have her way. She paved her way with dollars in her approach to some US Senators. She shared those dollars with fellow new and old expatriates who were less fortunate. The name of the foundation which was established to serve the interests of the human race got tarnished by the crooks and democracy awaras. Its objectives came to naught...."

We cannot and do not, however, concur in the tone of the remarks, or many of the statements, made in the passages above concerning Maureen Aung-Thwin. -- HCMacD.}

["Some sub-standard US Congressmen who have been lobbied by dollars obtained through mischievous means then blindly echoed the voice of expatriates because of the might of the dollar.

["Here, the most modern news gathering machinery of the US which is at the top in the world has gone wrong. One can say that the Myanmar democracy virus, which is more dangerous than computer virus, has infected it...."

[Mrs. Michael Aris "is a hindrance or an obstruction" to progress. She has "prevented, through devious means, the flow into the country of foreign assistance. Similarly, she stopped international assistance. She also obstructed the visit of tourists..." She even blocked the delivery of vaccines for the children of Myanmar. "However, she has accepted with delight dollars coming in for various reasons for her personal use. She enjoys life in comfort taking the best food. She has bought a car and sent her two sons to school abroad. She has granted democracy pension to her head-of-the-house nat. A study of these facts makes obvious how rude, aggressive, morally petty and lowly she is

["With the passage of time, diplomatic circles in Myanmar...have come to know her fouls one after another after dealing with her first thinking highly of her, and have begun to realize her situation. Being diplomats, they have not spoken out, though.

["If the new US Charge d'Affaires who will soon arrive and discharge his duty were someone who is interested in psychiatry or who has some knowledge about the nature of psychiatry, he will find an easy answer to which ywathuma is responsible for the state of Myanmar-American relations within minutes after he has talked with her....

["Concerning the ambitious plans of Mrs. Michael Aris....she must be careful she will lose the game if she makes a wrong move."]

Oct. 17: It is not directed at anyone, by Professor Seikphwa. [Discussion of neurosis and insanity in Western societies; people with mental disorders are not always aware of it, if they are in an equally disordered society, "under the name of a political party." "What I would like to present in conclusion is the fact that authorities concerned have of late curbed that society's undisciplined, disorderly, reckless deeds, committed as they thought fit, and their right to assemble every week. Those in the leadership and their stooges, as their mental outlet has been blocked as such, may be writing from a kind of 'nervous breakdown' within such a short period.... Such processes are not different from 'neurosis' commonly seen in psychiatric units.... This analysis is not directed at anyone but please understand and forgive me if there is a coincidence."]

Oct. 19: Good company and good discourse, by Dr. Win May. [Virtues of the Symposium on Socio-Economic Matters Contributing Towards National Solidarity, sponsored by the Office of Strategic Studies of the Ministry of Defence -- a gathering of "the intelligentsia of both today and yesterday." The Chief of the Office of Strategic Studies, Lt-Gen. Kyin Nyunt opened the meeting. The keynote address was by Dr. Khin Maung Nyunt, who "held the audience's attention with the geographic, genealogical and historical factors, the richness of natural resources as well as the social and cultural traditions of our motherland." U Myat Thein and Daw Khin Thein Yi gave "a conceptual and analytical framework of reference" on market economics. Daw Selda Maung discussed privatization. Dr. Tun Shin analyzed "law regarding socio-economic factors contributing towards national solidarity." On Day 2, U Myo Nyunt discussed "the role of the education sector and its contribution towards national solidarity." Dr. Hla Myint discussed the role of the health sector. U Nyunt Han described Myanmar's "valuable cultural heritage," and there was discussion of "the need for proper systems of recording, reporting, restoration and dating"; despite the Convention on the Return of Stolen Cultural Property, "a lot of Myanmar's cultural heritage was still in the museums of other countries." The second day highlight was the presentation by Col. Kyaw Thein, who held the audience "spell-bound" with his account of the "return to the legal fold of the armed groups of various national races," and his experiences during the negotiations. Col. Kyaw Win discussed the "factors leading to the success of these sensitive negotiations." Lt-Col. Thein Han discussed development projects in the border areas. The symposium was a great success.]

Foreign Articles About Myanmar

Oct. 22: Asians Have Reasons to Look Askance at Nobel Peace Prizes, by Philip Bowring (from International Herald Tribune (European Edition), of Oct. 15, 1996). [As administered by the Norwegian parliament, the Nobel Peace Prize reflects a Nordic view, which congratulates Western relievers of suffering, but rewards non-Westerners for opposing their Governments — as in the cases of the Dalai Lama, Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, and now the two East Timorese recipients.]

Information Committee Briefing

Oct. 1: The third monthly news briefing was held by the Information Committee, in the presence of various officials, foreign media representatives, and foreign embassy personnel. Minister for Information Maj-Gen. Aye Kyaw said the meeting would deal with two topics: anti-drug measures taken since 1988, and a clarification on the SLORC stand on stability of the state, community peace and tranquillity, and prevalence of law and order.

[Anti-drug activities]

Joint Secretary Police Col. Ngwe Soe Tun of the Central Committee for Drug Abuse Control said Myanmar drug control policy had three aspects: supply reduction, law enforcement and demand reduction.

Finding alternative means of livelihood for border peoples who have long grown opium, in areas where the Government has only recently gained access, "takes time and patience." The Ministry for Progress of Border Areas and National Races and Development Affairs was especially created to deal with the problem. It is the government policy to make drug eradication and prevention "a national duty" and to "gradually eliminate poppy cultivation by promoting the standard of living of the national races."

Supply: "Myanmar, as part of the Golden Triangle, is being censured for producing over 2000 tons of opium annually. These figures are based on estimates obtained from satellite photos. We too have our ground based figures. Arguing about the different figures will be counter-productive. We are willing to cooperate with any country to obtain the correct base line data."

Enforcement: The Myanmar Police Force has 18 anti-narcotic units, of which 13 were established since 1988. Laws have been passed and strengthened. "Some blame is being placed on law enforcement agencies, with accusations of decrease in anti-narcotics activities, even though more heroin was coming out of the country. Nearly everybody knows about clandestine refineries at the borders from where heroin is directly trafficked to the international market. Domestic seizures are mostly those that were meant for local demand. Tightening of interdiction can result in the lessoning [sic] of traffic." Precursor chemicals are not produced in Myanmar, but are "illegally imported from the neighbouring countries." Over 1000 gallons a year are seized.

"The significant fact that the MTA [Khun Sa's group] had unconditionally surrendered is a factor that can cause the decrease of the opium crop this coming season. The whole of the Homaing area is now occupied by the Tatmadaw. The Kokang leadership is also under change. Phone Kyar Shin is now the current new leader and the Tatmadaw is helping in carrying out administrative duties and we are optimistic that opium production will be decreased in the coming season."

Demand reduction: "The 1993 Drug Law requires the voluntary registration of addicts.... To date there have been 56,847 registered addicts of which 62% are opium addicts, 29% are heroin addicts and 9% are addicted to other drugs." There are six major drug treatment centres: Yangon, Mandalay, Myitkyina, Taunggyi, Lashio, and Kengtung, all giving 10-week treatments. There are 8 rehabilitation centres: Yangon, Mandalay, Phekhon, Namlat, Kengtung, Lashio, Myitkyina, and Wettigan, with 12-36 week vocational training courses.

International cooperation: Survey of international agreements signed by Myanmar, and anti-drug cooperation with its neighbours. The US had cooperated in opium yield surveys in 1993 and 1995, and the US DEA carried out some raids.

"The US President, in his notification 96-12 on March of this year, announced that Myanmar did not cooperate fully in the implementation of the objectives of the 1988 UN Convention because of which it was eligible for aid from the US. This one-sided announcement by the US blindly ignored Myanmar's anti-narcotic efforts. It was not a balanced approach nor was it a fair one Corruption in drug-related matters are not condoned. [Since 1993] 51 has been dismissed for corruption and 39 demoted, making up a total of 90.... By notifying the world of his determination, Mr. Clinton had done a misdeed, breaking up the spirit of cooperation between countries that are resolved to fight the drug menace.... In conclusion, may I point out the fact that Myanmar is carrying on the uphill fight against drug abuse with its own resources"

Col. Kyaw Thein, Head of the Office of Strategic Studies of the Ministry of Defence "clarified the stand" of the SLORC on stability issues:

[Banning of NLD Congress]

"For stability of the State, community peace and tranquillity, security authorities curbed a bid by the National League for Democracy to hold a meeting with a gathering of people from 27 to 29 September 1996. In this context, I will elaborate for your information.

"On 27 and 28 September, security authorities called in temporarily for questioning some persons from the National League for Democracy in Yangon and some townships who were going to assemble for the Congress. There were altogether 159 persons -- 136 in Yangon and 23 in other townships. All of them were accommodated at guest houses temporarily. While I brief you now, some are now on their way back to their homes from those guest houses. Assembly of people at Daw Suu Kyi's house on University Avenue and at the party's office on Shwegondine Road for the purpose of holding the Congress was restricted.

"On 28 September morning, the signboard of the National League for Democracy office on Shwegondine Road in Bahan Township was found to have been taken down and put away and the office closed. There are various rumours on this. The fact is that the landlord who leased the building for opening the NLD office asked the party officials a few months ago for the return of the house, for the contract had expired and the owner felt much disturbed due to gathering of about 300 persons in the office on 28 September arranging to hold the Congress and therefore had taken the building back.

"The bid to hold the Congress from 27 to 29 September as arranged by some NLD leaders has also been reported in the papers. It is evident that they timed it to lead Government into difficulties internally and abroad even though they gave the excuse that it would be on an intra-party and democracy agenda. The worst was arranging to hold a mass meeting in contravention of the existing laws, rules and orders. Preventive measures were thus taken, so as not to allow untoward acts resulting in street riots, with the people coming to the usual roadside talks on Saturday, 28 September and Sunday, 29 September. It is evident that the speeches and acts of some party leaders like Daw Suu Kyi, U Tin Oo and U Kyi Maung were meant to lead to direct confrontation with the Government. This can be seen in the speeches and acts after the restraining order imposed on Daw Suu Kyi was lifted.

[Activities of Daw Aung San Suu Kyi]

"Since lifting of the restraining order on Daw Suu Kyi on 10 July 1995, it is found that Press Conferences had been held 13 times, inviting foreign correspondents. Meetings with foreign correspondents individually or in groups took place at her residence almost all the time.

She was said to be driving toward dialogue between her and the State Law and Order Restoration Council. However, at her first Press Conference she threatened 'dialogue or utter devastation'. A study of Press Conferences and what she was talking about would show that Daw Suu Kyi suggested lawlessness and instability in Myanmar might also cause instability in the entire South-East Asian region, that Myanmar enjoyed no basic human rights, that Myanmar could not be a country that would support ASEAN, that youths working for national economy lacked adequate education, that the economy is out of shape, that it is not the time to provide economic assistance and that entrepreneurs should not invest due to inflation thereby forcing the Government to face a tight economic situation.

"In connection with the National Convention, she said that it would not serve the interest of the nation, nor contributed to emergence of the Constitution, that there is no evidence that the public have trust in the Convention, and there was no need to take so much time to write the Constitution, etc. with intent to jeopardize the Government's political objective and cause foreign misunderstanding.

"The State Law and Order Restoration Council strives to safeguard its prestige with correct policy in international relations. The Government maintains friendly relations with neighbours and is cooperating with the nations in Asia-Pacific region for regional peace and stability. The nations in the region welcome these efforts. Daw Suu Kyi who does not desire such good international relations wrote to the leaders in the region, urging them to isolate Myanmar, not to provide support and not to invest, stating her unrealistic one-sided opinion.

"Since November 1995, Daw Suu Kyi has been writing the column Letter from Burma series of articles in the Mainichi Shimbun. To date, she has written 42 such articles. She touched upon topics to make foreigners, who have not been to Myanmar, have a low opinion of the Myanmar people and misunderstand the Government. In some articles. In some articles, she exaggerated that Myanmars are too poor to have proper breakfast and had to drink congee water instead, that living standard is so low, that NLD members are being suppressed, that though Myanmars are famous for their hospitality, they do not wish to receive visitors now, so on and so forth. In fact, Daw Suu Kyi only belongs to one political party in Myanmar. It should be considered whether it is proper for journalists to publish the articles of a mere political activist. What is worse is that broadcasting and disseminating of roadside talks on Saturdays and Sundays by foreign radios amount to destabilization of Myanmar. Even if not intentioned, it still constitutes aiding and abetting a lone political party in Myanmar. [Her bank accounts]

"Daw Suu Kyi has opened an account at the Myanma Foreign Trade Bank. Mainichi Shimbun of Japan remitted money, said to be honoraria for her articles, nine times. The remittances total US $17,000. Misuzu Shobo Ltd. of Japan also remitted money twice, US $4,054.80, said to be for publishing a Japanese translation of her talks. Prior to the remittances from Japan, La Hayle Books Ltd. and Lattaule Bookshop had sent money, over US $3,700, through Barclays Bank of Britain. As you know, some countries conferred awards, including the Nobel Prize, on her for various reasons. So, there is also certain accumulation of money presented for these awards and it needs no special mention. Nevertheless, these case awards have not appeared in Daw Suu Kyi's accounts.

["Political defiance" courses]

"If the situation is reviewed, it is obvious that organizations of some big countries are providing money for obvious reasons to enable Daw Suu Kyi to base in Myanmar and to finance her political movement. As Daw Suu Kyi has received all these privileges and awards, it can be said that she has already overstepped in the Myanmar political arena. Moreover, Daw Suu Kyi's continued opposition to the Government is also for the expatriates to make a living and thus they are pushing themselves into the political arena. It is a point to ponder. The best option, for them is to choose a path considered most suited to the people of Myanmar. At the previous Press briefing, I explained NLD expatriates were opening political defiance courses on Thai and Indian borders. Some argue Political defiance is non-violent politics. Is it against the law?" A review of Gene Sharp's political defiance book used as a manual in these courses will show various means to cause disruption of stability and peace. The publication carries methods to cause disintegration of our Tatmadaw (Armed Forces) which is the mainstay of national security, to cause the administrative machinery to grind to a halt and the Government to plunge into chaos and to cause disruption of internal peace and stability.

"The subject of setting up a democratic nation in discipline is not found in Gene Sharp's book. Instead, his methods are oriented toward emergence of disorder. Although it is said these methods are for the cause of democracy, they are actually the methods to grab power from the Government. They are similar to the methods adopted by the BCP. They are the methods to create difficulties for the Government and topple it. It is found that they do not weigh the possible consequences such as the reign of anarchy in the country and the hardship of the people. Organizations such as Soros Foundation, International Republican [sic] Institute, Burmese Border Consortium and Albert Einstein Institute provided monetary assistance to the expatriates to enable them in their activities against the Government. The expatriates thrive on these funds and they also employed some foreign firms lobbying to get the international community to bring pressure to bear on the Myanmar Government. Internally, Daw Suu Kyi and her group are also opposing the Government on various pretexts and causing difficulties, also enabling the expatriates to continue their stand and move.

"What I have just presented will point to a situation in which Daw Suu Kyi and her companions, synchronous with the expatriates, are trying to cause tight situation for the State Law and Order Restoration Council and to eventually bring about direct confrontation between the people and the Government with pressure brought on it from two directions, internal and external. It is found that foreign radio and publications refer to Daw Suu Kyi as opposition leader. Daw Suu Kyi's actions have gone beyond the limits of an opposition leader and she is actually holding a hostile attitude toward the State Law and Order Restoration Council. Big nations of the West bloc are coaxing her by flattery. Indeed, the State Law and Order Restoration Council is a government discharging a historic duty. There is no need for any opposition group. All that is necessary is cooperation for traversing a period of peaceful political transition.

"Some persons of Daw Suu Kyi's NLD are resorting to various means to create misleading impressions on the Government by implying that it is a government that does not desire democracy and that suppresses people desiring democracy. We are informed of their spread of news and propaganda campaigns through media services of the West bloc, which are biased, and their writing letters to other nations with great reliance [sic]. What is actually needed is to understand the stand of the State Law and Order Restoration Council. It is a government taking responsibility for a transitional period. Its main duty is peaceful transition. The allegation that those desiring democracy are being suppressed is meant to attract attention and obtain help from powerful democracies. It is a false and frivolous allegation. The State Law and Order Restoration Council is a government bringing democracy into practice. It is a government establishing a multiparty democracy system for peaceful transition. Every person in Myanmar desires democracy. The reason is that Myanmar has never been depleted of democracy. In the AFPFL era there was parliamentary democracy. In the Lanzin Party era, there was socialist democracy. Democracy had flourished under the respective programme. Currently, the State Law and Order Restoration Council Government is seeing to a political transition directed toward multiparty democracy. The Government, responsible for this period, will proceed within the bounds of laws, rules and regulations. Deterrent action will be taken against any person or organization not adhering to rules and laws promulgated by the Government and for any act to oppose and deter projects and objectives of the Government. It is meaningless to shout at the top of their voice that those desiring democracy are being suppressed. Stability of the State and rule of law are of primary importance today. The Government must curb and prevent any act that could jeopardize objectives of the nation. So, what the NLD planned to do from 27 to 29 September had to be curbed." [Questions and Answers]

Questions were then taken from journalists present:

U Maung Maung of Ji Ji News Agency asked about activities of US Embassy officials. Director-General U Khin Maung Win of the Political Department "said the Charge d'Affaires of the US Embassy in y U Khin Maung Win of the Political Department "said the Charge d'Affaires of the US Embassy in Yangon Ms. Marilyn Meyers came and saw him on 24 September; she spoke among other things about the meeting that was going to be held by the NLD from 27 to 29 September; she remarked that the NLD should be allowed to hold the meeting without any disturbance; moreover, she also intimated that if any action was taken against the NLD or the holding of the meeting it would have negative implications." He said he had responded "that we cannot but regard such statements as being interference in our internal affairs, that we have laid down out own policies, we have chosen the right path and we will not be deviated by any pressure or intimidation from abroad. If any action oversteps the bounds of the Vienna Convention, we will have to see to taking appropriate action as a sovereign and independent nation and because of our integrity."

U Hla Htwe of Nihon Keizai Shimbun asked whether action had been taken against any foreign diplomats. Deputy Minister for Foreign Affairs U Nyunt Swe responded that the Ministry "has not taken action against any foreign diplomat so far.... Although it had been implied that it is interference in our internal affairs, for the sake of good bilateral relations no action has, to date, been planned against the meeting that took place, and the words said by Ms. Meyers."

U Sein Win of Kyodo News Agency asked about diplomatic behaviour and the Vienna Convention. Col. Kyaw Thein said that: "Concerning diplomats going to meet politicians to understand political situation in the country it is understandable for the government that diplomats go to meet with politicians in order to know the political situation in the country. But what happened is that a flurry of visits and return visits between diplomats, especially Western diplomats, and Aung San Suu Kyi have been made 137 times since lifting of the restraining order on Daw Suu Kyi. It is understandable that, to know the political situation, you can go and meet the politicians once or twice. But more than a hundred times, I think it cannot be termed as routine diplomatic visit for study of local situation. It is very obviously strange for Daw Aung San Suu Kyi why she met the Western diplomats so many times and why she did not meet the other Asian diplomats also."

In response to a question by Robert Horn of Associated Press, Col. Kyaw Thein said: "I think the government has repeatedly stated that holding these kind of weekend meetings are violating the existing laws. So I think, for the future, I don't know what lies ahead, but action will be taken against anybody who violates the existing laws.... We know our own internal situation and when we think that it is time to act what we act will be acting on that [sic]."

In response to a question by Deborah Charles of Reuters, he said that "nearly 400 persons were taken in temporarily during the night of 27th September inside Yangon Division...in a bid to prevent crimes likely to harm law and peace and tranquillity of the State. We were informed that this was just temporary."

In response to a further question from Robert Horn of Associated Press, he "said action would be taken against those who had breached the existing laws depending on the extent of their violations."

In response to a question from Simon Long of the Economist Magazine, he said the proceedings of the ASEAN meeting had not been communicated officially. "We have the commitment to join whatever is fit in this region and we have not set a deadline when to join ASEAN and it is left to people who had invited us...to our neighbours who had invited us to decide when we should join...."

In response to a question from Seth Mydans of the New York Times, he said that Aung San Suu Kyi "is free to go where she wants." U Khun Sa "is now under the supervision of our law enforcement officials. Right now he is not doing any sort of business in Yangon or elsewhere inside the country."

In response to a question from Ken Hayashi of Kyodo News, National Convention Convening Commission member U Thaung Nyunt said that "at the coming session of the National Convention, delegates will have to discuss the subjects relating to power-sharing, that is sharing of power relating to legislature, executive and judiciary between the central and Regions and States." The Commission is preparing the resumption of the National Convention and "will announce the date in due course." [photos of exhibits on anti-drug activities] (NLM 10/2)

US Proclamation Rejected

- Oct. 4: Ministry of Foreign Affairs Announcement No. 1/96 of Oct. 4, headlined "Myanmar categorically rejects entire US Presidential Proclamation. It can only be considered attempt to interfere in Myanmar internal affairs. Myanmar compelled to issue visa restrictions for certain categories of US citizens", reads [full text]:
- 1. In keeping with the National Policy of the Three Main National Causes and with a view to achieving the National Goal of a peaceful, prosperous, modern and developed State, the State Law and Order Restoration Council is vigorously implementing the political, economic and social objectives for the progress and welfare of the people.
- (a) The State Law and Order Restoration Council is systematically undertaking measures for a smooth transition to a multi-party democratic State in accordance with the country's historical background, culture, customs, values and traditions as well as with the objective conditions of the nation.
- (b) The National Convention formed with representatives from the 8-strata is being held for the emergence of the State Constitution which is essential for the country. Significant progress has been achieved in this regard. The National Convention is the forum for dialogue among the representatives of the entire spectrum of the society and also symbolizes the will of the people.
- (c) Because of the priority accorded and the relentless efforts undertaken by the State Law and Order Restoration Council for national reconciliation, (15) armed-groups and the MTA led by U Khun Sa had already returned to the legal fold and Myanmar Naing-Ngan is enjoying peace, tranquillity as never before in its modern history.
- (d) Similarly, sound economic foundations for the sustained and rapid growth of the State economy have been laid down based on the market-oriented economic system.
- (e) Prevalence of law and order and community peace and tranquillity are essential in creating these favourable conditions in the State. The Government of the Union of Myanmar therefore has taken measures towards this end and will continue to do so in future. In Myanmar, legal action is taken only on those who transgress the law. No legal action has been taken on anyone on the grounds of his or her political conviction. There are no political prisoners in Myanmar.
- 2. The United States, disregarding the true situation in the nation, is giving undue and unwarranted pressures on Myanmar. In this respect, the Government of the Union of Myanmar deeply regrets the decision of the United States Administration to impose visa restrictions on certain Myanmar nationals. Such an action negatively affects the existing bilateral relations. The Proclamation issued by the US President on 3 October 1996, can only be considered as an attempt to interfere in the internal affairs of the Union of Myanmar and as a means of giving pressure.

- 3. The Proclamation of the US President alleges that Myanmar continues to detain significant numbers of duly elected members of parliament, NLD activists and other persons attempting to promote democratic changes in Myanmar; failed to enter into serious dialogue with the democratic opposition and representatives of the country's ethnic minorities; failed to move toward achieving national reconciliation; and failed to meet internationally recognized standards of human rights. These allegations, however, are not in conformity with the true situation and the progress achieved in the country as mentioned in Paragraph (1), sub-paras (a) to (e) and also ignore the positive political, economic and social developments taking place in the country. The Government of the Union of Myanmar, as such, categorically rejects the entire Presidential Proclamation.
- 4. Under the circumstances, although the Government of the Union of Myanmar wishes to have closer relations with the United States, it is compelled to issue visa restrictions for certain categories of US citizens. Except as required by treaty obligations and officials and other supporting staff assigned to the US mission in Myanmar, the issuance of all types of visas has been suspended to United States citizens specified hereinunder:
- (a) Persons who formulate or implement policies that impede the process of smooth transition to a multi-party democratic State in the Union of Myanmar and members of their families;
- (b) Any other persons whom the Government of the Union of Myanmar deems to have acted or to be acting in a manner detrimental to the interests of the State, including persons interfering in the internal affairs of Myanmar and/or inciting political agitations and disturbances and members of their families.
- 5. The Ministry for Foreign Affairs shall determine the persons who fall within this visa restriction.
- $\,$ 6. This announcement becomes effective on the date of its issuance.
- 7. The Government of the Union of Myanmar in its national interests may waive temporarily or permanently the restrictions mentioned in Paragraph (4) above. Yangon

Dated: 4 October 1996

In a Press Conference, by Director-General U Khin Maung Win of the Foreign Ministry Political Department, reiterated the statements contained in the Foreign Ministry Announcement, noting that those detained for questioning were being sent home and expressing regret at US ignorance of the true situation. UN Day Message

Oct. 24: Message from Senior General Than Shwe, Chairman of the State Law and Order Restoration Council on the occasion of the Fifty-first Anniversary of the United Nations Day [full text]:

"We mark today the fifty-first anniversary of the United Nations. The occasion which we commemorate each year presents an opportunity to view its achievements in our pursuit of international peace and security, and to envision its future to meet new challenges facing mankind. The United Nations symbolizes the common aspirations shared by the international community as reflected in the purposes and principles of the Charter.

"In the past half a century of its history the United Nations has taken manifold initiatives in all areas of its activities -- political, social and economic. It has endeavoured significantly for the preservation of international peace and security. It has facilitated the process for decolonization by forging opportunities for exploited and dominated peoples into statehoods. It has also made notable contributions to promote the economic and social advancement of all peoples.

"As the United Nations begins the sixth decade of its existence, it would be most opportune to rededicate ourselves to achieving a world where principles of sovereignty, territorial integrity, independence, sovereignty equality and non-interference in internal affairs of states are respected. The Charter of the United Nations is the legal and moral foundation of international relations and is still valid to chart the way for peace and progress of mankind. In maintaining and promoting international peace and security, it is essential for member countries to scrupulously respect, both in words as well as in deeds, to refrain from interference in one another's internal affairs.

"International cooperation should be based on respect for nationally determined goals and priorities laid down for the economic and social development of each nation. The right of each nation state to develop itself and to cooperate with each other on the basis of equality and mutual benefit as envisaged in the Charter should be recognized. We also firmly believe that the development should be recognized as the foremost and far-reaching task of our time. Development is the most secure basis for peace. But much to our despair, the world is still witnessing the widening gap and inequities between the developed and the less fortunate developing countries. Development depends on national endeavour as well as on the international economic environment. Strengthening of international economic cooperation with a global approach is most needed to support member nations in their efforts for economic and social development.

"The year 1996 is the International Year for the Eradication of Poverty. In the Declaration and Programme of action of the World Summit for Social Development, Heads of State and senior leaders from over 180 countries acknowledged the worsening problem of global poverty and pledged to take action to combat it. We share the Secretary General's view that at its core, development must be about improvement of human well-being, removal of hunger, disease and ignorance; and productive employment for all and that its first goal must be to end poverty and satisfy the priority needs of all peoples in a way that can be productively sustained over future generations.

"On the solemn fifty-first anniversary of the United Nations, we must reaffirm our confidence in the United Nations Charter as well as re-dedicate our utmost efforts for lasting global peace and security, international law and order, international cooperation for accelerated development in developing countries and strive to ensure that all nations can live in peace and harmony with one another.'

Armed Forces Day Preparations

Oct. 18: The Leading Committee for Holding the 52nd Armed Forces Day Ceremony held its second meeting, and was addressed by its Chairman, Lt-Gen. Tin Oo, Chief of the Bureau of Special Operations and Chief of Staff (Army):

"After the cold war, the balance of power was upset; and the only super power left, the West bloc, is imposing the patterns they wan all over the world, bullying others using direct force, exerting control through puppets, employing agitative propaganda, etc. He said they even used the Nobel Peace Prize as an instrument for political agitation... Some big countries are waging multi-dimensional war politically, economically, diplomatically, psychologically and militarily, profusely using the term 'The New World Order', to bully small countries, he said. Ye, knowingly, some persons who think highly of the 'step-father' are shamelessly obeying the dictates of neo-colonialists without consideration for the nation, the people, the students, in their craving for power and dollars not worth a bit compared with the interests of the country and the people...."

The Objectives of the 52nd Anniversary Armed Forces Day are:

- -- To strive with might and main for realization of the State's political, economic and social objectives;
- -- To strive together with the people for emergence of a peaceful, pleasant and developed modern nation;
- -- To join hands with the people and resolutely crush destructive internal and external elements attempting to jeopardize stability of the State and progress of the nation;
- -- To participate and contribute actively to the national political leadership role in future;
- -- To build a dynamic modern Tatmadaw of high calibre to be able to safeguard Our Three Main National Causes. (NLM 10/19)

Traditional Arts

Oct. 3: The Fourth Myanma Traditional Performing Arts Competitions opened, and was addressed by SLORC Secretary-1 Lt-Gen. Khin Nyunt, who reviewed the antiquity of Myanmar culture, colonial efforts to destroy it, and current efforts by "some colonialist big power countries" to make Myanmar "accept and adopt Western ideas, ways and norms" and their schemes "to penetrate with infusion of Western cultures and customs." At the same time, "a circle of axe-handles subservient to colonialism are rearing their heads today, on the pretext of 'democracy and human rights,' extolling Western cultures and ideas to make people think highly of them, while misrepresenting Myanmar people's own cultural ways as though they were backward." This is why the SLORC "has been striving to bring out and keep up national culture and national characteristics with national outlook," by such events as the competitions. (NLM 10/4)

Oct. 17: The Competitions ended, "sponsored by the State with the six lofty aims, namely,

- to revitalize patriotism among citizens including youths;
- -- to revitalize Myanma traditional culture and fine arts;
- -- to revive Myanma music, Myanma dance and Myanma national pride;

- $\,$ -- to revitalize genuine Myanma traditional culture and fine arts [sic];
- -- to contribute towards moral development of youth mass, and
- -- to protect against the influence of Western culture." (NLM 10/18)
