Fire-hit Yadanapon Market to reopen soon: MCDC

TWO days after the Yadanapon Market was damaged in a fire, officials announced yesterday that the market would be reopened soon.

A team led by Mandalay's Deputy Mayor yesterday inspected the market's first floor, which was engulfed by a fire on the night of 17 January. About half of the 150 shops on the first floor were damaged in the fire.

"We have inspected the durability of the building. Now, arrangements are being made by the Mandalay City Development Committee to reopen the market soon," said U Ye Mon, Deputy Mayor of Mandalay.

"Now, engineers are inspecting the market. It could take about four days to complete the checks. When their report comes out, we will arrange the reopening," he added. Shop owners were allowed to enter their shops yesterday so they could check their property.

Smoke from soundproof rooms that caught fire on the first floor had slowed firefighters as they tried to put out the blaze.

Diamond Plaza, which is located next to the Yadanapon Market, has also been closed for an electrical inspection, and it will reopen after the inspection is completed, according to the MCDC.

Myanmar-Thailand business matching event held in Myeik

IN a bid to strengthen trade relations between Myanmar and Thailand, a business matching event was held at the Pearl Laguna Resort in Myeik District of Taninthayi Region.

The matching event was jointly organized by the Prachuap-Myeik Trading and Investment Promotion Association (PMTA) and the Myeik District Chambers of Commerce and Industry (MCCD).

PMTA president Mr. Weera gave the welcoming speech at the event. Afterwards, MCCD officials and businessmen from the two countries discussed matters concerning trade relations at the Mawtaung border gate, the banking system in Prachuap and Myeik, permits for Thai citizens opening bank accounts in Myanmar, and the formation of a working group comprising ten representatives each from Myanmar and Thailand to promote trade. They also talked about the healthcare sector, tourism, and SME development. Later, they exchanged commemorative presents. About 100 PMTA members attended the business matching event. Border trade through Myeik gate was estimated at US$52.9 million in the past three months of the 2019-2020 fiscal year compared with $68.7 million registered in the year-ago period. —Myeik IPRD

Exports through Muse gate up $430 mln as of 10 Jan

THE value of Sino-Myanmar trade through the Muse gate jumped to US$1.6 billion between 1 October and 10 January in the current financial year, an increase of $520.34 million compared to the corresponding period of the previous fiscal, according to the Ministry of Commerce.

Both exports and imports increased over the past three months of the current fiscal. While exports through the Muse gate rose considerably, crossing $1 billion, imports were valued at $554 million.

Muse is an important border gate in Myanmar and handles 50 per cent of the total border trade, in terms of volume. But, at times, it has witnessed a sharp drop in trade on account of China clamping down on illegal goods, resulting in a halt in trade of agricultural products.

In December, a change in China's import policy led to a decline in border exports of rice, sugar, corn, rubber, and live cattle compared with the year-ago period. In the month of December, Myanmar exported 30,000 tons of rice worth $21 million; 30,000 tons of sugar worth $19 million; over 70,000 tons of corn, valued at $15 million; 9,000 tons of rubber worth $11 million; and 53,700 heads of live cattle worth $64 million.

Meanwhile, the border exports of natural gas, rough jade stones, sesame seeds, fishery products, and watermelons and muskmelons were higher compared to the year-ago period. In the month of December, Myanmar exported natural gas worth $206.88 million, rough jade stones worth $85 million, sesame seeds worth $6.8 million, fishery products worth $3.9 million, and watermelon and muskmelon valued at $1.2 million.

During Chinese premier Xi Jinping's recent visit to Myanmar, Myanmar and China signed MoUs on Local Cooperation under the Framework for Joint Building of the China-Myanmar Economic Corridor (CMEC) between the Yunnan Province of China and the Mandalay Region of Myanmar, Protocol on Plant Inspection and Quarantine Requirements for Exporting Rice From Myanmar to China, Protocol for Heat Processed Cocoons to be imported from Myanmar to China, Protocol on Quarantine Health Requirements for Slaughter Bovine to be Exported from Myanmar to China, Exchange Letter for the Project of Agricultural Product Quality Control Centre, Establishment of the Working Group for the Promotion of Smooth Trade between the Ministry of Commerce of Myanmar and the Ministry of Commerce of China, and many other agreements.

Following the MoUs between Myanmar and China, bilateral trade will grow, said a market observer.

Myanmar exports rice, sugar, pulses, sesame seeds, corn, dried tea leaves, fishery products, minerals, and animal products to China, while it imports agricultural machinery, electrical appliances, iron and steel-related materials, raw industrial goods, and consumer goods from the neighboring country. —GNLM

Domestic investments touch K638 bln, $119 mln in current fiscal

DOMESTIC investments by Myanmar citizens, including expansion of capital by existing enterprises, reached K638 billion and US$119 million as of 14 January in the current financial year, according to a press release issued by the Myanmar Investment Commission (MIC).

Between 1 October and 14 January in the current fiscal, 26 local enterprises were allowed to invest in various sectors, with an estimated capital of over K549 billion and $102.36 million.

Domestic investments flowed into the real estate, manufacturing, hotels and tourism, construction, industrial estate, energy, mining, livestock and fisheries, agriculture, and other services sectors, according to figures from the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration.

To simplify the verification process of investment projects, the Myanmar Investment Law allows the region and state Investment Committees to endorse local and foreign proposals, where the initial investment does not exceed K6 billion, or $5 million.

While some projects no longer need MIC approval, businesses that are strategic to the government require a permit from the commission. In addition, those businesses that have large capital investments exceeding $5 million and that may have a possible impact on the environment and the local community need to be approved by the DICA proposal assessment team.

With a fast-track way to set up a business in Myanmar having been introduced, investors can apply to the MIC or the state and regional investment committees for getting investment proposals endorsed, depending on the business type.—GNLM

Over 7,800 commercial vehicles imported through Muse gate in Oct-Dec

A total of 7,871 commercial vehicles, worth an estimated US$47.228 million, have been imported between October and December in the current financial year through the Muse 105th border zone, according to news released online by the Ministry of Commerce.

During the October-December period, 705 light trucks, 1,149 brand new dumper trucks, 213 express buses, 295 prime mover heads, 195 wheel-loaders/excavators, 736 trawlergy, 4,578 three-wheeled motorcycles were imported through the Muse gate.

The value of vehicle imports at the Muse gate stood at $151.615 million in the 2018-2019FY, $87.437 million in the 2018 mini-budget period, and $325.366 million in the 2017-2018FY, as per data from the Commerce Ministry.

Imports of commercial vehicles and machinery have been permitted through sea ports and three border gates — Muse, Myawady, and Tachilek.

“Starting from 1 January, imports of commercial vehicles on a company license are not allowed. Importers are required to operate a car showroom in line with the prescribed rules and regulations. However, the new policy can pose difficulties for traders conducting business on a manageable scale,” said importers.

A one-stop service has been provided at Muse gate for vehicle inspection and taxation.

Under the 2020 vehicle import policy, passenger vehicles such as mini-buses, city buses, express buses, and commercial trucks manufactured in 2016 and later can be imported. Heavy equipment that cannot be driven on public roads such as excavators, bulldozers, wheel loaders, and tower cranes are allowed to be brought into the country as long as they are 15 years old or less.—GNLM

Japan to extend provisional certification for graduate care workers

TOKYO — Japan's welfare ministry plans to extend special transitional measures to fiscal 2026 that grant graduates of elderly care courses provisional certification without the need to pass a national exam, as part of efforts to alleviate a labor shortage in the sector, ministry sources said Sunday.

Officials hope that extending the measures, which were originally scheduled to end in fiscal 2021 through March 2022, will encourage an increasing number of foreigners to work in Japan after graduating from universities and vocational schools that train elderly care workers, the sources said.

The Ministry of Health, Labor and Welfare will submit a bill on the matter to the ordinary parliamentary session set to convene Monday.

With Japan expected to face a shortage of around 340,000 care workers by 2025, when the minimum age of the baby boomer generation will be 75, the government is pinning its hopes on the workplace-ready skills of graduates from training schools.

Ruling party lawmakers as well as related groups have expressed concern that the number of foreigners applying for elderly care courses will drop if the national exam is made compulsory. Others, however, argue passing the exam is essential to ensuring the quality of care. —Kyodo ■

Taal volcano in Philippines continues to spew ash

MANILA — Philippine authorities said Saturday that weak emissions continue to be observed from a volcano near the capital Manila that erupted last weekend.

The Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology said Taal Volcano remains at alert level 4, the second-highest warning, as a hazardous explosive eruption is still possible.

The volcano, located 60 kilometers from Manila on the island of Luzon, suddenly erupted on Sunday morning, sending ash up as high as 15 km into the air. Since then, the ash plumes have generally been under 1,000 meters high.

The number of evacuees from affected areas has surged to more than 160,000, more than doubling in recent days following the implementation of a lockdown in nearby municipalities, according to local media.

Based on data provided by the Provincial Disaster Risk Reduction Management Council on Saturday, 37,355 families or 162,728 individuals were staying in evacuation centers, according to the Philippine Star. Health management is likely to become an issue as their displacement continues.

According to the Department of Agriculture, it is estimated that damage to agricultural crops such as rice and maize has amounted to over 3 billion pesos (approximately $58.9 million) due to the effects of ash fall.

Uganda's Prime Minister Ruhakana Rugunda, who was the chief guest at the launch, said government supports the development of new technology provided it will solve people's challenges and make life easier and affordable.

He was optimistic that technologies like 5G will have an impact on the economic development of the country. New study finds why men are more cancer prone

WASHINGTON — While several health studies have indicated that men are at a higher risk of developing cancer as compared to women, a recent study finds the reason behind higher susceptibility towards this deadly disease.

The study has pinpointed the loss of function in certain genes of the sex-determining Y chromosome as a key factor that puts men at higher risk of cancer.

In the study that was published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, scientists used data from 9,000 individuals and studied Y-chromosome gene function in patients with various types of cancer.

The findings showed that cancer risk increases with loss of function of six key Y-chromosome genes in various types of cells.

"Recent studies have shown that complete loss of the Y chromosome, which is essential to foetal sex differentiation, occurs, with ageing, in the cells of some men," commented Juan Ramon Gonzalez, coordinator of the study and head of the Bioinformatics Group in Genetic Epidemiology at ISGlobal.

"Although the loss of the Y chromosome has previously been associated with a higher incidence of cancer, the causes of this association are poorly understood."

These six Y-chromosome genes are involved in cell-cycle regulation, the failure of which can lead to tumour development.— ANI ■

UK looks to offshore wind for green energy transition

LONDON — Britain, a global leader in offshore wind energy, plans to make the sector one of the pillars of its transition to carbon neutrality in the coming decades.

The country aims to quadruple its offshore electricity production capacity by 2030 by utilising the windswept North Sea and a favourable policy environment.

"It's more conducive to build offshore in the UK than anywhere else in Europe," said James Brabben, of Cornwall Insight energy consultancy.

"There's quite a consensus of support around offshore wind from the public and politics," he told AFP.

Prime Minister Boris Johnson's government, returned to power with a thumping majority last month, pledged in its election manifesto to increase power from offshore wind from 10 to 40 gigawatts this decade.

It wants Britain to be carbon neutral by 2050, with onshore wind, solar, hydro and biomass also set to contribute to its energy mix.

The country already produces almost 40 percent of its electricity from renewable sources, according to figures published last week for the third quarter of 2019.

SpaceX to simulate astronaut ejection in final test

WASHINGTON — SpaceX will on Sunday simulate its emergency abort system on an unmanned spacecraft, the last major test before it plans to send NASA astronauts to the International Space Station.

The space company of entrepreneur Elon Musk, under contract with NASA, will launch its Crew Dragon capsule from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida between 8:00 am (1300 GMT) and 2:00 pm.

This test will check the capsule's ability to reliably carry crew to safety in the event of an emergency on ascent.

One minute and 24 seconds after takeoff, at an altitude of approximately 12 miles (19 kilometers) above the Atlantic, the Crew Dragon will trigger a planned ejection from the Falcon 9 rocket carrying it into the atmosphere.

The capsule's descent into the water will be slowed by parachutes, while the Falcon 9 is expected to break up.

The rocket could explode and possibly create "a fireball of some kind", said Benji Reed, director of crew mission management for SpaceX, at a press conference on Friday.

Originally scheduled for Saturday, the test was pushed back due to high winds and rough seas in the ditching area.

The success of this test is essential for SpaceX and for NASA, which urgently needs to certify a spacecraft to transport its astronauts to the ISS this year.

Since 2011, the United States has been obliged to have its astronauts travel on Russia's Soyuz rockets, the only available spacecraft since the retirement of the American shuttles.

Improving health through schools

THE Myanmar Global School-based School Health Surveys were conducted twice — in 2007 and then in 2016. The surveys showed overall health behavior and risk factors across spectrums of health in students aged 13-15 years, ranging from dietary behaviors, hygiene, mental health, physical activity, alcohol and tobacco use, to protective factors, knowledge about HIV infection and AIDS, and violence and unintentional injuries.

Generally, students scored well on personal hygiene, including hand-washing before and after meals, as well as after using the toilet, and teeth brushing. The percentage of students who reported they rarely washed hands or cleaned teeth was very low.

A political and financial commitment to the nationwide school health program would bring huge improvements to child health and education, improving the lives of millions of school-aged children.

The number of students who directly engaged in risk behaviors was also low. However, they were exposed to second-hand tobacco smoke in their environment. Regarding physical activity and dietary behavior, most students were at risk of becoming overweight, as most students were not physically active and did not consume fruits and vegetables on a regular basis.

When it comes to the school health program, approaches to the program in regions and states need to be pragmatic, with setting of priorities, drawing of timelines, and adoption of tasks.

To ensure strong linkages between responsible departments, tasks for the departments should be clearly laid down.

Generally, the School Health Division of the Department of Public Health is responsible for planning and implementation of the school health program in Myanmar. Its state or region directors are also responsible for school health program activities in their states and regions.

But, success cannot be achieved without active participation from school heads, teachers, and parents. As they get increasingly involved in their child's education, parents should support child health and well-being and encourage children to be fit.

A political and financial commitment to the nationwide school health program would bring huge improvements to child health and education, improving the lives of millions of school-aged children.

Such a commitment would ensure minimum standards of school-based health services and a safe environment.

In addition to multi-sectoral collaboration, human resource mobilization and improved teacher and health provider training is required to turn the teaching workforce into low-cost champions of basic child health.

Geopark: The Relationship between Mt. Tuyin and Bagan Kingdom

Than Htun (Myanmar Geosciences Society)

THERE were also tamarind trees along the space taken up by this long line of people to provide shelter from the sun and the tree must have been larger enough to give necessary shade (Dr. Ma Tin Win, 2009). There have been some scholars who maintain that there is no evidence to claim that the Shwezigon was built of stone or that this pagoda is the meritorious deed of King Anawrahta. For many years although history books mentioned that the Shwezigon was built by King Anawrahta the issue remained unsolved for there was no definite knowledge about it. Most history texts also said that Anawrahta did not live long enough to see the completion of his work of merit and that he died after three of the terraces had been built and the relics just enshrined. It remained an open question for thousands of years due to lack of evidence. However, when a violent earthquake occurred in Bagan and its environs on 8th July 1975, its tremors revealed hidden historical evidence.

Due to the intensity of the tremors large chunks of concrete as well as gold were dislodged and it was then discovered that the great pagoda had been built entirely of stone bricks from the base, and right up to the level of the decorative inverted lotus and spreading lotus encircling it. In renovating the pagoda after the earthquake the authorities left a two foot square space uncovered at the base on the south-eastern side of the pagoda as indubitable evidence that it had been built of stone bricks. The bricks in the space uncovered had been so skillfully that it is impossible to insert even a pin between two bricks.

Kyaukgu U-min Cave

The cave was built of bricks and rocks and was thus called the Kyaukgu U-min (Rock Cave Tunnel). This is one of the three structures of Bagan built with rocks. Another one was the Sekku Taik near Myakan that can no longer be found today and the third is the Nan Hpaya still standing prominently today. Kyaukgu U-min is therefore one of the more prominent grotto pagodas of Bagan.

There are three terraces in Kyaukgu U-min. Facing the gully, a huge Holy Image with a spacious prayer hall sits facing the entrance archway. At the back of the Image are tunnels. The lower storey of the front part of the structure was built of rocks and the upper storey built of bricks. On the inside wall of the upper storey are niches where there probably were Holy Images originally. The Kyaukgu U-min is located in a peaceful and quiet area suitable used as a recluse for ascetics. Venerable monks had therefore dwelled there since the days of Bagan Period. The place still is very suitable for those who want to meditate (Paragu, 2013).

The Nan Hpaya

When King Anawrahta waged battle against the kingdom of Thaton and he brought back King Manuha to Bagan as captive and kept him under restraint. The Nan Hpaya was built for worship in the locale of King Manuha's residence, hence the name, Nan Hpaya or Palace Pagoda. It could be ascertained that the location of the Nan Hpaya is actually the place where Manuha was held captive, then the king's residence and the Manuha Temple built by him is just within hailing distance. Some historians maintain that Nan Hpaya was also built by King Manuha. It would appear that Manuha had been permitted freedom to certain extent, for not only was he able to build the Manuha Temple, he was also able to build a rather palatial pagoda for worship in the area of his residence. There is a kind of throne room in the Nan Hpaya. Some historians however, are of the opinion that Nan Hpaya was built not by Manuha but by his grandson, Naga Thaman. But some others contend that Naga Thaman was great grandson and not the grandson of King Manuha as some had claimed (Paragu, 2013).

The Nan Hpaya's foundation their entire walls lined with stone bricks. One is the Nan Hpaya and the other is the Kyaukgu U-min (Stone Cave temple). You will gaze upon with wonder the marvelous stone sculpture of the Bagan Era.

These stone sculptures have withstood the assault of the elements continuously for 890 years, thus attesting to the artistic excellent of Bagan era stone sculpture. Here again is squarish in design and is a vaulted temple with the façade of the main prayer chamber facing east. Due to its personalized architectural design it differs greatly from that of the other stupas and temples. The exterior walls are entirely lined with stone bricks. In Bagan, there now remain only two temples with could be seen the best samples of stone sculpture of which the most fascinating are the four large pillars. These stone pillars had been built with arches and on each of the sixteen sides of these pillars had been sculptured the four-faced Brahma holding triangular Kanoke flowers and lotus blooms (Paragu, 2013).

Dammayangyi Pagoda is the most intriguing and interesting of all the pagodas in the Bagan vicinity. From which ever direction one looks, there is the Dammayangyi looming up towards the sky.

Lokananda chedi

Furthermore, after the author review the construction of Lokananda chedi it is mentioned that the footprint of the Buddha in stone now seen at the Bagan Museum was found on the platform of the Lokananda chedi. The lower part of Lokananda chedi is built of sandstone and the upper level of bricks. There are so many fascinating and interesting facts and features of Bagan that in writing about it one has to be extra careful not to inadvertently leave out what is important.

Dammayangyi

Dammayangyi Pagoda is the most intriguing and interesting of all the pagodas in the Bagan vicinity. From which ever direction one looks, there is the Dammayangyi looming up towards the sky. It is certainly the largest pagoda in the whole of Bagan. Originally there were two ambulatory corridors around the central square block of the building but the entire inner corridor has been filled up with bricks, and the entrance and archways from the outer to the inner corridor have for some unknown reason, been sealed off with bricks. The author excitedly observed left and right sides of the arch wall has been laid three (8inch x 1ft x1ft) pale green sandstone bricks on both sides which are about 6ft high. Those sandstones are identical to the sandstone bricks of Shwezigon Pagoda. Therefore, it is reasonable to assume that the Tuyin Taung sandstone was used for many buildings and pagodas during Bagan Dynasty before or after building Shwezigon Temple. The relationship between mother Earth and human beings are inevitable since prehistoric days and it is eternal relationship between man and Earth.

Ri Yong Ho replaced as N. Korea's top diplomat: report

BEIJING — North Korean Foreign Minister Ri Yong Ho, a career diplomat, has been replaced, North Korea-focused news site NK News reported Sunday, possibly signaling a shift in the country's dealings with Washington and Seoul.

Ri, who served as North Korea's top diplomat since 2016, has been succeeded by Ri Son Gwon, head of the Committee for Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland, a state agency in charge of handling inter-Korean affairs, the report said, citing multiple unnamed sources in Pyongyang.

Ri Yong Ho did not appear in a group photo of top officials of the ruling Workers' Party of Korea following a meeting of its Central Committee at the end of last year, sparking questions about his status. Some speculated whether he was dismissed over the ongoing deadlock in denuclearization negotiations between North Korea and the United States.

North Korean ambassadors including those to China and the United Nations have in recent days returned to Pyongyang, possibly for a meeting of the country's senior diplomatic corps following the change at the top of the ministry.

Heavy snow hampers search for missing S. Korean, Nepal trekkers

Helicopters were sent out on Saturday to rescue about 200 people stranded around Annapurna and other nearby mountains after the avalanche. PHOTO: AFP

KATHMANDU — Avalanches, heavy snow and poor visibility hampered the search Sunday for four South Koreans and three Nepalis caught in an avalanche in the popular Annapurna region of the Himalayas, officials said

Relatives of the missing Koreans have arrived in Kathmandu alongside several officials sent by Seoul to help with the emergency rescue efforts, Ang Dorjee Sherpa of the Korean Alpine Federation told AFP.

The missing group was near the Annapurna base camp around 3,230 metres (10,600 feet) above sea level when the avalanche struck after heavy snowfall on Friday. "Our team reached the area but could not proceed with their search because of more avalanches. We are exploring ways to move the operation forward," said Mira Acharya from Nepal's tourism department.

Rescuers were working with Korean officials to deploy drones in the search on Monday, said Dilip Gurung of the tourism management committee in Chhomrong, which lies on the trekking route.

"It is difficult for people to go.

We will try to fly drones to help find something," Gurung said.

Helicopters were sent out on Saturday to rescue about 200 people stranded around Annapurna and other nearby mountains after the incident. Guesthouses and the trekking route were blanketed in a thick layer of snow.

"The snow was very deep and it took us more than double the time to dig through and walk," said Jeevan Dahal, a guide who was rescued by helicopter.

"We saw the avalanche-hit area from the helicopter. Everything was white."—AFP

Helicopters, drones help ease China's travel pressure

GUANGZHOU -- Helicopters and drones are lending a helping hand in easing transportation pressure during China's annual travel rush.

To help guarantee smooth journeys, transportation authorities have begun using drones and helicopters to patrol expressways in the cities of Guangzhou, Zhaoqing and Shaoguan in southern China's Guangdong Province.

The vehicles can track traffic accidents quickly and help assist rescue workers to avoid traffic jams, according to transportation police in Guangdong.

Authorities estimated that about 3 billion trips will be made during this year's 40-day "chunyun," or Spring Festival travel rush from Jan. 10 to Feb. 18, according to the National Development and Reform Commission.—Xinhua

China reports 17 new cases of mystery virus

BEIJING — China reported 17 new cases of the mysterious SARS-like virus on Sunday, including three people in serious condition, heightening fears ahead of China's Lunar New Year holiday when hundreds of millions of people move around the country.

The new coronavirus strain has caused alarm because of its connection to Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome, which killed nearly 650 people across mainland China and Hong Kong in 2002-2003.

Of the 17 new cases in the central city of Wuhan — believed to be the epicentre of the outbreak — three were described as "severe", of which two patients were too critical to be moved, authorities said.

Those infected range from 30 to 79 years old.

The virus has now infected 62 people in Wuhan, city authorities said, with eight in a severe condition, 19 recovered and discharged from hospital, and the rest in isolation receiving treatment.

Two people have died so far from the virus, including a 69-year-old man on Wednesday after the disease caused pulmonary tuberculosis and damaged multiple organ functions.

Authorities said they had begun "optimised" testing of pneumonia cases across the city to identify those infected, and would begin "detection work... towards suspected cases in the city" as a next step, as well as carrying out "sampling tests".—AFP

Russian activists take aim at Putin in march against repression

MOSCOW —More than a thousand opposition activists of various stripes marched in central Moscow on Sunday after President Vladimir Putin proposed re-drafting the constitution, unleashing political upheaval.

Protesters – mostly young anti-fascist activists – chanted “Revolution” and “No to dictatorship” and some carried copies of the constitution.

The annual sanctioned march was called to commemorate the memory of lawyer Stanislav Markelov and journalist Anastasia Baburova who were gunned down in Moscow by ultra-nationalists in 2009.

A number of independent local deputies including Yulia Galyamin and opposition-minded Russians joined the march, carrying copies of the constitution and chanting “Putin leave!”.

Several people including a protester who carried a placard urging Putin to quit power were detained by police.

More than 1,400 people took part in the march, said the White Counter group which monitors political protests.

The march took place after Putin stunned the nation on Wednesday proposing sweeping amendments to the constitution, the first major changes to the country’s basic law since it was adopted under Boris Yeltsin in 1993.

The move triggered the resignation of his government.

Many observers have said Putin’s proposals are designed to ensure his grip on power after he leaves the Kremlin and his critics have accused him of orchestrating a “constitutional coup”.—AFP ■

Bodies of Ukrainian victims of downed plane repatriated from Iran

Relatives and colleagues attend a tribute ceremony and react in front of the flag-draped coffins of the 11 Ukrainians who died in a plane mistakenly shot down by Iran during a spike in tensions with Washington. PHOTO: AFP

KIEV The flag-draped coffins of the 11 Ukrainians who died in a plane mistakenly shot down by Iran during a spike in tensions with Washington arrived in Kiev on Sunday.

President Volodymyr Zelensky, Prime Minister Oleksiy Goncharuk and other officials attended the solemn ceremony at Kiev’s Boryspil airport to see caskets with the remains of the downed plane’s nine Ukrainian flight crew and two passengers being removed from the aircraft.

Ukraine International Airlines staff, some in tears, stood on the tarmac clutching flowers, according to live video footage.

The airline staff and relatives formed two lines to make a corridor through which the honour guard carried the caskets draped in the yellow-and-blue flag of Ukraine.

Some men fell to one knee to honor the victims.

The honour guard also held flags of the countries whose citizens perished in the crash.

The Kiev-bound UIA Boeing 737, crashed shortly after taking off from Tehran on January 8, killing all 176 people on board, mostly Iranian and Canadian citizens.

The caskets were to remain for a while at the airport terminal so that relatives and members of the airline could say their last goodbyes.

The funerals are expected to be held on Monday.

The Boeing crashed shortly after Iran launched missiles at US forces in Iraq in response to the killing of top Iranian general Qasem Soleimani in a US drone strike in Baghdad on January 3.

Tehran admitted it had mistakenly shot down the plane several days later.—AFP ■

World powers seek elusive Libya peace in Berlin talks

BERLIN—World leaders gathered in Berlin on Sunday to make a fresh push for peace in Libya, in a desperate bid to stop the conflict-wracked nation from turning into a “second Syria”.

Chancellor Angela Merkel will be joined by the presidents of Russia, Turkey and France and other world leaders for talks from around 2:00 pm (1300 GMT) held under the auspices of the United Nations.

The summit’s main goal is to get foreign powers wielding influence in the region to stop interfering in the war – be it through weapons, troops or financing.

Leaders of both warring factions – strongman Khalifa Haftar and the head of Tripoli’s UN-recognised government Fayeze al-Sarraj – are also expected at what is the first such gathering since 2018.

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan on Sunday said the summit could be “an important step on the way to cementing the ceasefire and a political solution” in Libya.

But pro-Haftar forces upped the ante ahead of the talks by blocking oil exports at Libya’s key ports, crippling the country’s main income source in protest at Turkey’s decision to send troops to shore up Sarraj’s Tripoli-based Government of National Accord (GNA).

The move underlined the devastating impact of foreign influence in the crisis, in which Sarraj’s GNA is backed by Turkey and Qatar while Haftar has the support of Russia, Egypt and the United Arab Emirates.—AFP ■

China launches new system for credit records

BEIJING—China's central bank on Sunday launched a new system to better disclose credit records of both individuals and enterprises.

The new system will provide more details of the credit status in a better format, such as co-borrowing records and loan repayment records, according to the People's Bank of China (PBOC).

The system update, reflecting recent developments in financial technologies, came in response to increased public demand for more effective credit information and service improvement, said the PBOC.

Other details to be added to the individual's credit report include employment status, nationality and credit agreement information. For enterprises, inquirers will obtain further information like revolving overdraft and late payments.

The new system has also intensified the management and protection of user identity and information transmission to ensure information security, said the PBOC. China first launched its credit record system in 2006. By the end of 2019, the system had kept records for more than 1 billion individuals and 28.34 million enterprises and organizations. Some 2.5 billion inquiries have been conducted with the system so far, according to the central bank.—Xinhua

US crop futures mixed in week of trade deals

CHICAGO —Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT) crop futures ended this past week mixed as the United States signed or passed important deals with its key trading partners including China, Canada and Mexico.

The most active corn contract for March delivery was up 3.5 cents, or 0.9 percent week on week, to close at 3.8925 U.S. dollars per bushel. March wheat was up 6 cents, or 1.1 percent, to settle at 5.705 dollars per bushel. March soybeans were down 16.25 cents, or 1.71 percent, to close at 9.2975 dollars per bushel.

China and the United States signed their long-awaited phase-one economic and trade agreement in Washington on Wednesday. The U.S. Senate on Thursday passed a sweeping economic pact with Canada and Mexico following House approval in December 2019.

Market participants generally expect that the China-U.S. trade deal will significantly increase U.S. crop sales to China.

Yet CBOT crop futures failed to post further gains immediately after the signing ceremony. Some analysts said the big event was already priced in.

According to CBOT data, Chicago soybean futures gained some 70 cents in the previous six weeks. A double-digit plunge on Wednesday in soybean prices offered a chance for bargain hunters.

“We’re at the bottom end of the range, which I think might represent a decent buying opportunity,” said Oliver Sloup, vice president of Blue Line Futures.

Some others cited competition from South American crops, expressing doubts about the scale of the Chinese purchases of U.S. soybeans, especially when new crop supply from Brazil becomes available in February.—Xinhua

Lotte Group founder Shin Kyuk Ho dies

SEOUL — Shin Kyuk Ho, the founder of Lotte Group, one of South Korea's biggest and best-known conglomerates, died Sunday, Yonhap News Agency reported. He was 99, according to the report.

Shin, whose Japanese name is Takeo Shigemitsu, was born in South Korea and moved to Japan in the early 1940s when the Korean Peninsula was under Japanese colonial rule.

After World War II, he started manufacturing cosmetics in Tokyo, and went on to found Lotte in Tokyo in 1948 as a chewing gum maker and distributor. It later expanded into South Korea.

The company now makes confectionary and operates hotels, golf links and restaurants as well as professional baseball teams in Japan and South Korea.

In Japan, he became chairman of Lotte Holdings Co. in 2009, effectively leaving the front lines of management. In 2015, he became the company's honorary president.

While Yonhap reported his age as 99, Lotte said in an obituary he was a year younger, while his family registry put his age at 97.—Kyodo News

Law on compulsory receipts sets Germans grumbling

BERLIN— In January it became law in Germany that retailers must print a receipt for every last transaction in a bid to fight tax evasion, but shopkeepers, customers and industry groups are already bucking against the scheme.

“Small shops’ cash registers already have electronic chips that tax officials can read any time. Why should we go back to the old system?” asked Christian Koch, owner of Hammett, a specialist crime novel shop in Berlin.

“It’s a pain, of the 50 tickets I print each day I’ll throw 49 straight in the bin,” he added.

Even bakers selling rolls for a few dozen euro cents each must now print a receipt for every transaction—even when their customer doesn’t want one.

With their high numbers of small sales each day now generating reams of unwanted documentation, bakeries and snack stands are especially outraged by the change in the law.

“I’ve already emptied this once,” said a worker at Frankfurt sausage stand “Best Worscht in Town”, pointing to a bin overflowing with discarded slips of paper during the busy lunch hour trade.

Tax evasion

Obligatory receipts were voted through in 2016, but the law slipped under the public radar until shortly before it came into effect on January 1.

Economy Minister Peter Altmaier asked Finance Minister Olaf Scholz to give up on the plans, especially because receipts printed on thermal paper cannot be recycled.

Since then, retailers’ federation HDE has also written to Scholz, asking him to exempt businesses that issue more than 500 receipts per day on average.

“That’s one receipt per minute for a shop open nine hours a day,” the group said in the document, seen by AFP.

Until now Scholz has resisted all such calls, saying the fight against tax evasion—estimated at around 10 billion euros by tax officials—must include preventing shops and restaurants from failing to record transactions properly.

“I don’t think small shops are really trying to get out of paying their taxes,” said Sarah, a shopper at Hammett.

“They should worry more about people like Amazon, make them pay their taxes in Germany,” she added.—AFP

A trending travel destination in Northern Myanmar

By Kyaw Htike Soe

THE years-long armed conflicts, poor infrastructure and transportation network, and fewer investments have impeded Kachin State's development. Kachin State is famed for its abundant natural resources such as gold, timber, amber and jade. In addition, Kachin State has many unspoiled tourist attraction spots such as Mt Hkakaborazi, which are the only snow-capped mountains to be found in Southeast Asia and the Indawgyi Lake, one of the largest inland lakes in Southeast Asia.

With its mix of culture, history, and undamaged natural beauty, Kachin State can become one of Myanmar's top emerging tourist destinations. Local visitors are allowed to freely travel to Myitsonne, the confluence of May Kha and Malikha Rivers, the snow-capped mountains in Putao Township, the Hukaung tiger sanctuary in Tanai Township, and Lido Road built in the Second World War. The Indawgyi Lake is famous for the Shwe Myintzu Pagoda and it takes four hours from Myitkyina to Indawgyi by car. The Indawgyi area is being conserved with the help of a German development partner, and majority of foreign visitors come from Germany, said an administrator of the In-dawgyi Wildlife Sanctuary. Two towns and 33 villages are located within the Indawgyi area, which was designated an ASEAN Heritage Park in 2013, a Ramsar Site in 2016, and a Biosphere Reserve in 2017.

Over 10,000 international travelers visited the Indawgyi Lake in Mohnyin Township in 2019, according to the figure from the Indawgyi Wetland Education Centre. The tourists enjoy boat rides in the lake, trek the mountain near the lake, and observe bird species and monkeys, and traditional customs of indigenous people, said an official from the Indawgyi Wetland Education Center. Meanwhile, tourist arrivals to Kachin State declined to 12,000 in 2019, a sharp drop in numbers of tourists visiting Myanmar's northernmost state. But the number of Chinese visitors who came to Kachin State through the land borders with border passes is skyrocketing. Chinese tourists who visited Kachin State by using border passes rose to around 165,000 in 2019.

Despite the number of Chinese travelers to Kachin State is on the rise significantly, there is a lot of room for improvement of tourism industry. "Kachin State is a very promising area for the businessmen who want to operate tourism industry. Kachin

State has plenty of natural resources including fantastic natural scenery, social status and traditional culture of the ethnic people. If tourism industry is developed in Kachin State, there will be more job opportunities for local people inevitably," said an official who declined to be identified from the Directorate of Hotels and Tourism. He continued that the DHT has been conducting hotel service training courses in Kachin State due to its potential tourism industry development. The DHT turned out roughly 1,000 trainees during the period from January 2016 to November 2019, creating many job opportunities for local people.

The DHT also conducts language proficiency courses and basic tour guide training courses for human resource development. In addition, the local government is attempting its utmost to woo more tourists to the area by organizing invitational sports events and showcasing natural sceneries and traditional food. At the same time, the local government has been creating new destinations and ecotourism for globetrotters. Local authorities are exerting efforts to further expand travel routes and promote ecotourism industry in Kachin State. Tourists travel to Kachin State to enjoy the natural scenery of riverbed villages, visit elephant camps and observe living style of marine workers. The local government is very interested in promoting the ecotourism and community-based tourism in the area.

The number of hotels in Kachin State has increased to 29 with a capacity of 860 rooms in 2018 from 26 with a capacity of 714 rooms in 2017. There are five hotels under construction in Kachin State, according to the DHT. More than 24,000 tourists visited in 2018, an increase of the number of globetrotters over 10,000 compared with the same period previous year. Nearly 109,000 travelers including 13,563 foreigners visited Kachin State in 2017 whereas 103,972 visitors including 24,421 globetrotters traveled to the area in 2016. ■ ■ ■

Myanmar National League: Yangon leads post 3-1 win over Zwegapin

YANGON United is now leading the Myanmar National League with a 3-1 victory over Zwegapin United yesterday at the Yangon United Sports Complex.

Zwegapin United, on its part, put up a tough fight and managed a draw result against Yangon United in the first half.

Yangon United was in attack mode from the kick-off, with the help of strikers Than Paing and Emmanuel.

Yangon missed the leading goal at 11 minutes when a header from Than Paing, off an assist from Kaung Htet Soe, went over the goal post.

Zwegapin United scored their opening goal at 18 minutes when Emerson delivered a free kick, and the ball landed directly in the net.

Zwegapin United got a penalty, but Yassan feinted to take a penalty kick, and it was not allowed as a goal by the referee.

At 38 minutes, Yangon United expatriate player Emmanuel equalized the goal, and the score changed to 1-1.

In the second half, Yangon United substituted Aung Kyaw Naing and Kyi Lin in the place of Than Paing and Kaung Htet Soe, and that make the team midfield more active.

Yangon United was awarded a penalty at 80 minutes, but Mg Mg Lwin's kick landed the ball to the right post of the keeper and bounced back. Meanwhile, Aung Kyaw Naing kicked the ball towards the goal, but it was blocked by the keeper. Then, Yangon's Mg Mg Lwin used the best opportunity to turn it into a second goal.

Again, just before the match ended, Yangon United's Emmanuel scored the third or winning goal against Zwegapin United, giving his team a 3-1 victory.—Lynn Thit (Tgi)

Myanmar defender Kyaw Thu Tun undergoes surgery

DEFENDER of the Myanmar U-22 national football team and Magwe FC., Kyaw Thu Tun, underwent surgery for an ankle injury yesterday at Thonburi Hospital in Bangkok.

His operation was successful and he will be discharged from the hospital soon, according to the Myanmar Football Federation.

"He is feeling well. He had an operation and was administered an anesthetic. He will be discharged from the hospital soon. Now, a plaster cloth wrap has been placed on his ankle. It will be removed in two weeks," said the MFF doctor who accompanied the Myanmar defender.

Kyaw Thu Tun was injured during a friendly match between the Myanmar U-22 team and the Nepal U-23 team in Qatar in October, 2019. The young defender will undertake light training after resting for one and a half months, and will resume normal training after three months of the operation, according to the Myanmar Football Federation.

"My operation was successful. After the operation, I'm okay. My doctor said that after three months, I can join my team for training," Kyaw Thu Tun said.—Lynn Thit (Tgi)

Benjamin Mendy expects Manchester City to enjoy a strong second half of the season. PHOTO: AFP

Title is gone but Man City can still thrive, says Mendy

LONDON—Benjamin Mendy is adamant Manchester City can still enjoy a successful season despite their failure to defend the Premier League title.

Pep Guardiola's side are trailing well behind Liverpool after Saturday's 2-2 draw with Crystal Palace dealt another blow to their faint hopes of catching the runaway leaders.

Hampered by injuries, City have been unable to match the consistency of their past two title-winning seasons.

Guardiola accepted last month his side could no longer catch Liverpool, but City defender Mendy knows there are still three other trophies to play for, including the Champions League, which his team have never won.

City hold a 3-1 League Cup semi-final first leg lead against Manchester United, host Fulham in the FA Cup fourth round next weekend and are due to play Real Madrid in the Champions League last 16.

"When you start the league you try to win, to do your best and you have to say the truth, which is that Liverpool have done very, very well and are a good, strong team - everybody can see that," Mendy said.

"We deal well with it. When another team is doing well you can't be upset or angry. This is the truth, no one can complain. So in our dressing room we try to focus on us. "All the people say Man City are finished. They can say what they want, we will just keep focusing on us, play our football, win the games, to fight until the league is finished.

"We have seen other teams who have won the title have not reached the Champions League the season after — they were in the Europa League.— AFP ■
