Plane skids off runway in Istanbul, breaks into three

ISTANBUL — A plane carrying 177 people skidded off the runway at an Istanbul airport and split into three after landing in rough weather on Wednesday.

Officials said no-one had lost their lives in the accident, but dozens of people were injured.

Live images broadcast on Turkish television showed several people climbing through a large crack in the plane and escaping on one of the wings at the rear of the aircraft.

The Boeing 737 operated by Turkish low-cost carrier Pegasus Airlines had flown into Istanbul's Sabiha Gokcen airport from the Aegean port city of Izmir in very wet weather, NTV broadcaster reported.

Fifty-two people were injured and taken to hospital, Istanbul governor Ali Yerlikaya said on Twitter.

“Efforts to evacuate those affected continue,” he added.

Turkish television NTV showed images of the badly damaged plane and a fire inside, which was later put out by firefighters. The plane had 171 passengers on board and six crew members, the governor said.

Turkish media said there were 12 children among the passengers.

- 'Strong landing' -

Turhan said there were no deaths, and that the majority of passengers were able to get off the plane themselves.

Some passengers were believed to be stuck inside the aircraft but local media reported that emergency workers are currently helping them.

After darkness fell, television footage showed dozens of rescue workers in high-visibility jackets surrounding the plane with flashlights.

Some sprayed water jets onto the severed body of the aircraft, while others could be seen climbing up onto the plane to comb through the cabin.

Turhan said the plane broke after a “strong landing,” according to NTV. Prior to the accident, there had been very strong winds and rain. Several firefighters and health workers were sent to the scene, state news agency Anadolu reported.

Planes were being redirected to Istanbul's main airport from Sabiha Gokcen, NTV said.

The Istanbul public prosecutor has launched an investigation into the incident. The plane had landed at the airport at 1518 GMT, the private DHA news agency reported.—AFP

Seven killed, 21 injured in 25 traffic mishaps in Jan

SEVEN people were killed and 21 others injured in 25 accidents on the Yangon-Mandalay Highway in the month of January, according to the Highway Traffic Police.

The number of accidents in January showed a significant decline compared to the year-ago period.

Reckless driving, over-speeding, defective vehicles, and flat tires were identified as the main causes of accidents on the highway.

A total of 108 persons were killed and 1,019 injured in 514 accidents on the Yangon-Mandalay Highway last year.

Although the total number of traffic accidents has de-

IN the month of January, 196,836 shares worth around K1.25 billion were traded on the Yangon Stock Exchange, according to the monthly report of the YSX. Currently, shares of five listed companies are being traded on the exchange.

The five companies listed on the exchange are: First Myanmar Investment (FMI), Myanmar Thilawa SEZ Holdings (MTSH), Myanmar Citizens Bank (MCB), First Private Bank (FPB), and TMH Telecom Public Co. Ltd.

Last month, the price per share closed at K11,500 for FMI, K4,000 for MTSH, K8,400 for MCB, K23,000 for FPB, and K2,850 for TMH on the exchange.

A total of 2.4 million shares worth K13.39 billion were traded on the Yangon Stock Exchange (YSX) in 2019, a significant increase compared to the previous year, according to the annual report released by the exchange.

The YSX was launched four years ago to improve the private business sector. It disseminates rules and regulations regarding the stock exchange and knowledge of share trading through stock investment seminars.

In 2018, the exchange increased the stock trade matching time from two to four per day. In addition, it held a promotional event for investors in order to increase the number of new investors and encourage existing investors to trade more actively by offering financial reviews and information on the future prospects of YSX-listed companies.

The YSX has also sought the government's support to get more public companies to participate in the stock market and to help more institutional investors, such as financing companies, investment banks, and insurance companies, to emerge.

In 2016, shares of only three companies were traded on the YSX — FMI, MTSH, and MCB. One more public company, FPB, was listed on the exchange in 2017. TMH debuted on the exchange in 2018.

More than 2.5 million shares of three listed companies were traded on the YSX in 2016, and their value was estimated at K70 billion. In 2017, despite an increase in the stock trading volume to 2.6 million shares, the trade value was only K22 billion. In 2018, 2.3 million shares of five companies, worth K11.5 billion, were traded on the exchange, according to the annual report of the YSX. — Htet Myat

Myanmar exports over 1 mln tons of rice worth $300 mln as of 17 Jan

THE volume of rice and broken rice exported between 1 October and 17 January in the current financial year is estimated at over 1.04 million metric tons, worth $300.36 million, according to an announcement from the Myanmar Rice Federation (MRF).

In the current financial year, Myanmar has shipped rice to 56 foreign markets. China is the main buyer of Myanmar rice, followed by Madagascar and the Philippines. Guinea is the fourth-largest and Mozambique the fifth-largest buyer of Myanmar rice. The European Union countries account for 12.4 per cent of rice exports, while 39 per cent of rice grown in Myanmar goes to African countries.

Meanwhile, Myanmar has exported broken rice mostly to Indonesia, followed by Senegal, Belgium, Guinea, and the Netherlands. Broken rice has been placed in 45 foreign markets.

In the current financial year, border trade has dropped, and currently, it accounts for just 14.4 per cent of the total rice exports, while maritime trade constitutes 85.59 per cent.

Rice exports through the border gates have earned an estimated $39.6 million, whereas maritime trade has generated an income of $260.7 million, data from the Commerce Ministry shows.

Additionally, the prices of low-quality rice varieties Ngasein and Aemahta are rising in the market. The prices increased by K10,000 per 100 baskets during the week ended 17 January. Similarly, the price of quality rice varieties Myaungmya Pawsan and Shwebo Pawsan was up K30,000 per 100 baskets, according to the local market.

Myanmar shipped 3.6 million tons of rice in the 2017-2018 fiscal year, which was an all-time record in rice exports. The export volume plunged to 2.29 million metric tons, worth $691 million, in the 2018-2019FY. — GNLM

Intensify preparations to prevent spread of coronavirus

THE number of deaths and infections from coronavirus is on the rise in China with no signs of a slowdown. The situation calls for speedy efforts for the prevention of coronavirus infection in Myanmar.

As the viral infection has been recorded mostly in Asia and the ASEAN countries, we should increase surveillance — which has played an important role in the prevention of coronavirus — at international airports and border gates.

The new coronavirus's incubation period (the time it takes for people infected with the virus to start showing symptoms) is assumed to be about 14 days. Symptoms to watch for include fever, cough, shortness of breath, trouble breathing, body aches, sore throat, or vomiting and diarrhea.

Those who may have been exposed to the illness need to monitor themselves for 14 days. Hence, from the outbreak point of view, the incubation period can be considered crucial. Though no infections have been reported yet in Myanmar, the health authorities and the general public must remain on the alert as the viral infection spreads quickly. Those who have close contact with patients under medical supervision need to be monitored closely, too.

Meanwhile, we need to be wary of inaccurate information on social media about the coronavirus infection. We must take care to check facts with their original source and other official sources in China, and curb the spread of misinformation.

Although there are no coronavirus infections in Myanmar at present, we must not forget that the incubation period for the virus is about two weeks.

To prevent the respiratory viral infection, all suggestions are being welcomed, but the decision must come after all suggestions are considered. In case any patients who are being monitored currently test positive for the virus, we must be prepared to give effective treatment to them by learning about therapies being provided in China and other countries.

We must approach the prevention of the coronavirus infection from public health, epidemic, laboratory, and treatment points of view and consider the geographical situation with neighboring China and other ASEAN countries affected by the virus.

It is the duty of the health authorities, government departments, and people to make more efforts towards the prevention of the coronavirus infection.

Xi stresses law-based infection prevention, control

New outbreak death toll nears 500, as confirmed cases pass 24,500, with majority of infections and deaths in China.

PRESIDENT Xi Jinping on Wednesday called for greater legislative, law enforcement, judicial and law observance efforts to strengthen the capacity to carry out law-based infection prevention and control.

Xi, also general secretary of the Communist Party of China (CPC) Central Committee and chairman of the Central Military Commission, made the statement when presiding over the third meeting of the Commission for Overall Law-based Governance of the CPC Central Committee. Xi is the head of the commission.

Members of the Standing Committee of the Political Bureau of the CPC Central Committee Li Keqiang, Li Zhanshu and Wang Huning, who are deputy heads of the commission, attended the meeting.

Documents including the commission's guidelines on practicing law-based infection prevention and control of pneumonia caused by the novel coronavirus were adopted at the meeting.

While addressing the meeting, Xi said the infection prevention and control is at a critical moment and stressed the utmost importance of carrying out the work in a law-based, scientific and orderly manner.

Xi spoke of the need to improve legislation related to epidemic prevention and control, strengthen the building of supporting institutions and improve punishment procedures.

Laws and regulations on epidemic prevention and control and emergency response must be strictly enforced, risk assessment be improved and decisions be made prudently and in accordance with the law, Xi said.

He also stressed strict enforcement of law on prevention and control of infectious diseases and the regulation regarding its implementation, laws on wildlife protection and animal quarantine, as well as the regulation on public health emergency response.

Xi called for a severe crackdown on illegal activities and crimes ranging from resisting epidemic prevention and control efforts, assaulting medical workers, manufacturing and selling fake products, to rumor-mongering that undermines epidemic prevention and control efforts.

Donations and receiving donations should be carried out according to the law, Xi stressed, noting that all donated funds and goods should be used for epidemic prevention and control in a timely manner.

Xi also stressed timely and accurate release of the epidemic information in accordance with the law, as well as strengthened public legal education and legal services related to the epidemic prevention and control.

Xi told Party committees and governments at all levels to improve law-based governance through coping with major emergencies.

The meeting stressed implementing judicial reforms, strengthening rule of law in rural areas and reforming the system of administrative reconsideration.

Chinese socialist rule of law is the most basic, stable and reliable guarantee to the governance of systems, said the meeting, adding that law-based governance should be advanced to boost the role of rule of law in modernizing China's system and capacity for governance.

$675 million to fund the plan for the next three months," WHO chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said at a news conference in Geneva.

The WHO says there is a "window of opportunity" to stop the deadly new coronavirus becoming a broader global crisis.

Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said the steps China took to fight the virus at its epicentre were a good way of stopping its spread.

The praise comes as Chinese officials have been widely criticised for their initial handling of the outbreak.

On Tuesday alone, nearly 4,000 new cases were confirmed in the country.

The death toll has now risen to 490, an increase of 65 deaths in mainland China in one day, the latest figures from the country's Nation Health Commission (NHC) said. All the new fatalities were in Hubei province, the centre of the outbreak.

Some 200 people, including Chinese and other foreign family members of Japanese nationals, are expected to board the plane when it returns from Wuhan. Many of them reside in parts of Hubei Province outside of Wuhan, the provincial capital.

Some 200 people, including Chinese and other foreign family members of Japanese nationals, are expected to board the plane when it returns from Wuhan. Many of them reside in parts of Hubei Province outside of Wuhan, the provincial capital.

Confirmed cases in Hong Kong grew to 21, including one who died Tuesday and two who remain in critical condition.

Japan to send a fourth charter flight to Wuhan

Japan will send a fourth charter flight to Wuhan, the Chinese city at the center of a deadly coronavirus outbreak, on Thursday to evacuate its citizens, Foreign Minister Toshimitsu Motegi said Wednesday.

Here are the latest updates: China coordinates resources to ensure mask supplies

China has actively coordinated resources under a joint prevention and control mechanism to address the shortage of masks amid the novel coronavirus outbreak, an official said Wednesday.

Hao Fuqing, an official with the National Development and Reform Commission, told a press conference held in Beijing that efforts have been made to support production resumption by enterprises to improve production capacity and increase supply.

As of Monday, daily production of masks exceeded 14.8 million by factories in 22 provincial-level regions, up 3.1 percent from the previous day, Hao said.

The output of masks has shown a continuous upward trend in general, especially medical N95 masks, which are urgently needed on the front lines of the battle against the epidemic, according to Hao.

As long as they are meeting standards, enterprises can go full steam ahead in production without worrying about the surplus, which will be purchased and kept in reserve by the government after the epidemic, Hao stressed.

Nine arrested in Greenpeace protest at BP in London

LONDON — British police arrested nine Greenpeace campaigners on Wednesday who blockaded BP's London headquarters with solar panels and oil barrels to mark the new boss's first day at the energy giant.

The Metropolitan Police said the arrests were made outside the firm's building in St James' Square, central London, as part of a "proportionate policing plan".

They were detained for aggravated trespass, highway obstruction and conspiracy to commit a public nuisance.

Around 100 activists launched the afternoon protest over BP's impact on climate change, locking themselves to dirty oil barrels and unloading 500 solar panels at the site.

The campaign group said they were promptly met by a "40-strong, heavy-handed police presence" but had managed "to peacefully block all six office doors around the building, preventing staff from entering".

BP said it temporarily closed the office as a precaution.

New chief executive Bernard Looney, who spent his first day in the role visiting employees in Germany, "understands the frustration and anger of protesters in London", the company said.

"He shares their deep concern about climate change and will set out his low carbon ambition for the company next week.

"He hopes that what he has to say then will give people a sense that we get it and are very serious about working to address the problem."

UK regulator bans Ryanair's 'misleading' green adverts

LONDON — A British regulator on Wednesday banned advertisements by Ryanair that gave "misleading" claims over the Irish airline's "low" level of carbon emissions — a move welcomed by environmental campaigners.

The Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) ruled that the no-frills airline's September radio, television and print advertisements broke the UK regulator's rules on environmental claims and on misleading consumers.

Ryanair boasted that it "has the lowest carbon emissions of any major airline".

ASA said it had called on Ryanair "to ensure that when making environmental claims, they held adequate evidence to substantiate them and to ensure that the basis of those claims were made clear".

In reaction, Ryanair said it was "disappointed and surprised" and maintained that it is the "greenest" airline in Europe — adding that it had successfully run the same advertisement in ten European nations.

Environmental pressure group Transport & Environment slammed Ryanair for so-called greenwashing — a term used by critics to describe corporate efforts to mislead consumers to believe a company's products or practices are more environmentally sound or friendly.

"Ryanair should stop greenwashing and start doing something to tackle its sky-high emissions," said the campaign group's aviation manager Jo Dardenne.—AFP ■

African swine fever kills hundreds of pigs in Bali

BALI — Hundreds of pigs have died from African swine fever in Bali, authorities said Wednesday, marking the Indonesian holiday island's first recorded outbreak and after the virus claimed some 30,000 hogs in Sumatra.

Ida Bagus Wisnuardhana, Bali's agriculture and food security agency chief, said nearly 900 pigs succumbed to swine fever since mid-December.

"The results are positive for African swine fever," Ida told reporters, referring to tests performed on the dead animals.

The string of deaths had appeared to stop over the past week, Wisnuardhana said, adding Bali would go ahead with a pork festival on Friday in a bid to ease concerns over the outbreak.

The announcement comes after Indonesia said this week it would temporarily ban some livestock imports from China over fears about the coronavirus, which has killed almost 500 people in China, where it originated.

In December, Indonesian officials said tens of thousands of pigs died from African swine fever in North Sumatra province.

While Indonesia is the world's most populous Muslim nation — and eating pork is forbidden by the Koran — the country also boasts a small Christian majority in North Sumatra and Bali is a Hindu island whose signature dish is roast pig.

Swine fever cannot be transmitted to humans, but it is almost 100 percent fatal in pigs and has devastated swine herds in China and elsewhere in Asia.—AFP ■

US working with drug firm on new coronavirus treatment

WASHINGTON — The United States is working with a pharmaceutical company to develop a treatment for the 2019 Novel Coronavirus, using a class of drug that has boosted survival rates among Ebola patients, officials said Tuesday.

The partnership between the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and Regeneron will develop monoclonal antibodies to fight the infection, a different line of treatment to the antiretrovirals and flu drugs that have also emerged as possible defenses against the disease.

Nearly 500 people have died as a result of the virus since it emerged in a Chinese live seafood and wild animal market at the end of last year.

"Emerging infectious diseases can present serious threats to our nation's health security," said Rick Bright, an official at the HHS.

"Working as public-private partners like we have with Regeneron since 2014, we can move rapidly to respond to new global health threats."

Top Democrat Pelosi rips up Trump speech

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Nancy Pelosi ripped up her copy of Donald Trump's State of the Union address Tuesday, in a pointed political gesture after listening tight-lipped to the president tout his achievements to Congress.

The tension between Trump and his Democratic nemesis was palpable from the outset, as Pelosi extended her extended her hand for a handshake — and the president failed to return the favor.

Seated in silence behind the president in the House of Representatives, Pelosi frowned, repeatedly shook her head and smiled disbelievably until he finished speaking and Republicans erupted in applause — at which point she rose and very visibly tore up the papers in front of her.

Asked afterwards by a reporter to give a reason for her gesture, Pelosi replied: "Because it was the courteous thing to do, considering the alternatives."

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi tears up President Donald Trump's speech after he delivers the State of the Union address. PHOTO: AFP

And in a follow-up tweet, the 79-year-old Pelosi said Democrats would "never stop extending the hand of friendship to get the job done."

Trump was impeached by the Democratic-controlled House six weeks ago, and the flashpoint with Pelosi comes one day before the US Senate is all but certain to vote to acquit him on charges of abuse of power and obstruction of justice.

During the impeachment crisis, Trump, 73, has repeatedly assailed the speaker for her impeachment "hoax," branding her "nervous Nancy" and "crazy Nancy" on Twitter.

Pelosi's gesture capped a night where the country's bitter political divide was on full display, as Trump's address earned a triumphant reception from the Republican half of Congress — but sullen silence, boos and jeers from the Democrats present. — AFP ■

Campaigning reaches crescendo as parties hold rallies across Indian capital to woo voters

NEW DELHI — Campaigning for upcoming local elections here in the Indian capital reached a crescendo on Wednesday as different political parties are trying hard to woo voters to their side.

Thursday will mark the last day of campaigning for the elections in the city.

Almost all the top leaders of contesting parties like Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) and Congress are addressing roadshows, public meetings and rallies, besides making door to door campaigns in the city seeking support from voters.

Last week witnessed some acrimonious speeches from the BJP leaders while canvassing for votes, following which the Election Commission of India barred them for a brief time from addressing election rallies.

On Tuesday Indian

Prime Minister and BJP leader Narendra Modi, Congress leaders Rahul and Priyanka Gandhi addressed election rallies in the capital.

During the city's previous elections held in 2015, AAP swept polls and registered a landslide victory by winning 67 of 70 seats. The BJP won just three, while as India's grand old Congress party failed to win even a single seat.

In Alibaba's hometown, a grim message: 'don't go out'

HANGZHOU — A loudspeaker broadcast ominous instructions across the deserted streets of Hangzhou, the eastern Chinese city that is home to e-commerce giant Alibaba: "Please don't go out, don't go out, don't go out!"

Hangzhou is famous for being where tech tycoon Jack Ma founded his online shopping business in an apartment two decades ago, a one hour journey on a bullet train from Shanghai.

But as large parts of China come to a standstill in a bid to end the spread of the deadly novel coronavirus, green fences and "no entry" signs blocked streets near the headquarters of one of the world's most valuable companies. Alibaba's headquarters are inside one of three Hangzhou districts where some three million people were told this week that only one person per household would be allowed outside every two days, to buy necessities.

Italy's three-wheeled newsagent revs up against crisis

MILAN — Every morning, the instantly recognisable whirr of Andrea Carbini's three-wheeler fills this Milan square, where he throws open his mobile newsagent's doors for a news-hungry and largely elderly clientele.

"Corriere della Sera!" "That's two euros, have a nice day, see you tomorrow!" says Carbini, with the cheerfulness of newspaper sellers of yesteryear.

He promises a customer to put aside a newspaper, to find a certain book, he asks for news about the family.

There is so much demand that the yellow and white Ape (Bee) three-wheeled van will be late for its next rendez-vous in another nearby piazza.

"I come every day. The newspaper kiosk closed in July and fortunately the Ape has been coming for a month," Maria Ricciardi, 77, told AFP. "I don't like the Internet. It may be necessary, but real culture is in books and newspapers."

Since the local kiosk closed, "I've had to go for a long walk" to get a paper, notes 72-year-old Maria Malzani.

She and her typographer husband, who have always read newspapers, say the initiative is "fabulous". Carbini, 52, came up with the mobile newsagent's idea to counter the disappearance of newsstands. "Ten years ago there were still 650 in Milan, now there are only 450," says Diego Aversa of the Cisl trade union, pointing out that many are "just about surviving" thanks to the sale of public transport tickets or snacks.—AFP ■

For now, Carbini has only one route, stopping in four neighbourhoods where newspaper kiosks have recently closed. PHOTO: AFP

India ranks as second largest steel producer of crude steel: Pradhan

NEW DELHI — India now ranks as the second-largest producer of crude steel after China, Union Minister Dharmendra Pradhan said on Wednesday.

India's crude steel production in 2018 was at 109.3 million tonnes, up by 7.7 per cent from 101.5 million tonnes in 2017. This moved up to 111.2 million tonnes in 2019, Pradhan told the Rajya Sabha in a written reply quoting data from the World Steel Association.

On the other hand, Japan ranks third globally with 104.3 million tonnes of crude steel production in 2018 and 99.3 million tonnes in 2019.

In contrast, China remains number one with 920 million tonnes of production in 2018 and 996.3 million tonnes in 2019. The United States and South Korea rank fourth and fifth respectively.

Pradhan said the government does not set any annual targets for steel production as it is a deregulated sector. "The decision on the quantity of steel production is taken by individual companies based on commercial considerations and market requirements," he said.—ANI ■

NEWS In BRIEF

Climate takes centre stage at Siemens shareholder meet

MUNICH — Under fire from climate protesters over his company's part in a massive coal mine project, Siemens chief executive Joe Kaeser hammered home the group's green credentials at its annual general meeting Wednesday.

Siemens "did not see the whole picture correctly and in time" when agreeing to supply rail signalling equipment to the planned Carmichael mine in Australia, Kaeser told shareholders in Munich, as the chants of activists outside could be heard.

Kaeser said the company would make one billion euros ($1.1 billion) available between now and 2025 to identify and reduce greenhouse emissions in its supply chains. But he complained about the company being the focus of "agitation", warning demonstrators and activists that "protest alone offers no solutions". "Those who persist in rejecting dialogue and cooperation on solutions lose the moral right to discredit" companies and leaders who are taking climate action, Kaeser said.—AFP ■

Bank of Thailand cuts rates to record low on coronavirus concerns

BANGKOK — Thailand's central bank on Wednesday cut its key interest rate to a record low, as concerns mount over the impact of the coronavirus epidemic.

Bank of Thailand Monetary Policy Committee members unanimously decided to lower the benchmark rate by 0.25 percentage point to 1 percent, the lowest since the committee was instituted in 2008. The central bank said a more accommodative monetary policy stance is warranted to alleviate the negative impact of the coronavirus, the delayed enactment of the annual budget expenditure act and a prolonged drought. The rate cut is the first this year and follows two cuts last year. Titanun Malikamas, assistant governor of the Bank of Thailand, said the move would support liquidity provision and debt restructuring for businesses and households severely affected by the economic slowdown.—Kyodo News ■

Trump set for Senate acquittal in boost to reelection campaign

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump was set to win acquittal from impeachment in the Senate on Wednesday, hours after his partisan State of the Union speech triggered unprecedented protests from Democrats in a seething display of US political divisions.

The Democratic-led House of Representatives impeached Trump for abuse of office and obstructing Congress back in December, after weeks of investigations into his alleged corruption.

But far from being forced from office like Richard Nixon, Trump is set to see himself declared not guilty by his Republican party majority in the Senate.

The finale to the trial won't mean an end to Democratic-led investigations, but it gives Trump momentum in his bid to win another four years after a tumultuous, scandal-filled first term.

Although he has never got approval ratings over 50 per cent during his presidency, this most polarizing of politicians was able to celebrate a personal best on the eve of the impeachment verdict — 49 per cent, according to Gallup.

With a ferociously loyal right-wing base packing his frequent rallies around the country, Trump thinks he has enough strength to win.

And he got more encouragement when the fractured Democratic party messed up its first battle in the primary season, held in Iowa, with results being held back for a full day due to technical glitches.

Political war

America's pre-election divisions were on excruciating display in Congress during Trump's annual State of the Union late Tuesday.

After an address of one hour and 18 minutes, filled with Trump's boasts and claims of a "great American comeback," the Democratic speaker of the House, Nancy Pelosi, ripped up her copy of the speech live on television.— AFP ■

Buttigieg takes lead in chaotic Iowa vote, Sanders second

Democratic presidential candidate Pete Buttigieg claimed victory in Iowa although full results have not yet been released. PHOTO: AFP

DES MOINES, IOWA — Democratic White House candidate Pete Buttigieg seized a shock lead in the chaotic Iowa caucuses, closely trailed by leftist senator Bernie Sanders, according to partial returns released on Tuesday after an embarrassing delay in reporting the results.

Progressive standard-bearer Elizabeth Warren was in third place followed by Joe Biden, a disappointing showing for the former vice president who has claimed he is best positioned to defeat Donald Trump in November. Buttigieg, the 38-year-old former mayor of South Bend, Indiana, who has been battling Biden for the moderate wing of the party, hailed what he called an "astonishing victory" in the mid-western farm state which kicks off the presidential nominating process.

"I have never been more confident in our campaign, in our team, and in the vision that brought to us this point," Buttigieg told ecstatic supporters in New Hampshire, which holds the next nominating contest on 11 February. With polls still mixed on whether Americans would be comfortable with an openly gay president, Buttigieg also made a rare, though implicit, reference to his sexuality — and the added significance it gave the Iowa outcome. "It validates for a kid, somewhere in a community, wondering if he belongs, or she belongs, or they belong in their own family, that if you believe in yourself and your country there's a lot backing up that belief," he said with a catch in his voice. According to the partial results, Buttigieg, unknown nationally a year ago, leads with 26.8 per cent followed by Sanders, the 78-year-old self-described democratic socialist, with 25.2 per cent, followed by Senator Warren with 18.4 per cent, and Biden with 15.4 per cent. The centrist senator from Minnesota Amy Klobuchar was in fifth place on 12.6 per cent, with 71 per cent of the precincts reporting.— AFP ■

US deploys new type of nuclear weapon seen as key to countering Russia

WASHINGTON — The US military has deployed a new low-yield submarine-launched nuclear weapon, something that the Pentagon is viewing as critical to counter the threat posed by Russia's arsenal of smaller tactical missiles.

Several former high-ranking administration officials, however, said that the new weapons may increase the potential for confrontation, CNN reported. "The US Navy has fielded the W76-2 low-yield submarine-launched ballistic missile warhead," John Rood, the under secretary of defence for policy, said in a statement on Tuesday (local time).

The new nuclear weapon is a modification of the pre-existing W-76 warhead, which is used to arm submarine launched Trident II (D-5) missiles, so the new weapon does not add to the total number of nuclear weapons in the US stockpile.

The nuclear launch codes and nuclear options in the so-called football for the President have now been updated to reflect this weapon, a US official confirmed to CNN.

The new warheads were first produced in February of last year.

The less powerful weapon was invoked in the Nuclear Posture Review 2018 of the Trump government, warning that opponents could believe they could use a smaller nuclear weapon against the US or their allies without fear that the US would have nuclear retribution would launch because American weapons are disproportionately more destructive.

Russia is believed to maintain a large stockpile of "tactical" nuclear weapons, which are less powerful and destructive than those possessed by the US.— ANI

Women's football Olympic qualifiers rescheduled again amid Team China quarantine

SYDNEY —Football Federation Australia (FFA) confirmed on Wednesday that the Olympic women's football qualifying Group B matches have been rescheduled for a second time, as the Chinese team are being quarantined in Brisbane until February 5 amid concerns over the coronavirus outbreak.

According to the new schedule, the four matchdays of Group B, which features China, Australia, Chinese Taipei and Thailand, were set to be February 3, 6, 9 and 12. The FFA said that the final three matchdays will now all be postponed for one day following Chinese Taipei's 1-0 victory over Thailand on Monday.

When Team China's quarantine ends on Wednesday, the Steel Roses will play their first group match against Thailand on February 7, and then take on Chinese Taipei and Australia on February 10 and February 13 respectively.

FFA Chief Executive Officer James Johnson said that the delay would now be actioned after a period of positive negotiations and goodwill among all stakeholders including FIFA, the Asian Football Federation (AFC) and the Chinese Football Association (CFA).

"Over the past few days we have been engaged in positive and ultimately fruitful discussions with numerous organizations and clubs with interests in these qualifiers," Johnson explained.

"This outcome will ensure that there are three full days between matchdays three and four, guaranteeing that the health and safety of all participating players is put first, which is a priority for FFA," he added.

Group B matches were originally set to be held in Wuhan, the epicenter of the 2019-nCoV virus outbreak. The tournament was moved to Sydney on January 26 in a joint decision by the AFC and the CFA.

The 32 members of the Chinese team arrived in Brisbane last Wednesday and have been placed in a week-long isolation in their hotel by local authorities since their arrival, due to the fact they trained in Wuhan until January 22, before the epidemic worsened and the city was locked down.—Xinhua ■
