Our aim should be to arrive at an encouraging situation

BY keeping these goals in view, we will be making practical implementations for process, design and inclusiveness of all stakeholders in the upcoming five years. We will make strenuous efforts with increased momentum on 'the New Peace Architecture' in the post-2020 which balances representation and effectiveness and allows thorough negotiations among the main stakeholders; a review process which has been widely discussed from all points of view; thus it would enable subject matter and management support groups, political parties, CSOs, and the people to join in and participate.

The year 2022 will be the 'Diamond Anniversary' or the '75th Anniversary' of the Panglong Agreement. In this year our aim should be to arrive at an encouraging situation where we can see clearly and distinctly in front of us a clear path for us to march towards the goal of our Union; I wish to state that we would be making exerted efforts by using this as our "New Peace Architecture" in the post-2020 period.

The Union Minister said his Ministry is making efforts to generate more electricity from all available sources from the country, including imported LNG, as the electricity demand increased and, the Ahlone LNG to Power Combined Cycle Power Plant project, invested by TTCL Co., Ltd is one of the three major projects that the Ministry issued Notice to Proceed (NTP) to companies.

The Ahlone LNG project was launched in 2018 and TTCL Co., Ltd carried out the feasibility study, environmental impact assessment, LNG feasibility and gas pipelines, including land ownership for the project during the two-year preparation period.

The Union Minister added the coordination with companies and all stakeholders for the PPA contract due to the nature of the project that is different from other conventional projects.

According to the schedule in the PPA contract, TTCL Company will need to complete the commercial operation of the project within the next three years. The company has extensive experience in Japan with LNG power generation and the construction of an inland LNG Terminal and Regasification Unit.

This is the first long-term LNG project in Myanmar using inland LNG Terminal and Regasification Unit, and it is a reliable project due to its stable LNG supply. With the use of Combined Cycle Technology, electricity generation can be improved, and the environmental impacts can be minimized. Upon successful completion of this project, according to the PPA, it will be able to supply and distribute electricity to the Yangon Region, especially to provide more stable electricity.—MNA

Mandalay tour operators preparing for new destinations in post-COVID-19

U Myo Ye, Chairman of the Myanmar Tourism Entrepreneurs Association (Mandalay Zone), said that preparations for new tour destinations are underway to revitalize tourism in Mandalay Region, in line with the New Normal in the post-COVID-19 period.

Before the COVID-19 period, international tourists visiting Myanmar visited Mandalay, Mingun, PyinOoLwin, Sagaing, Monywa, Pakokku, Bagan and townships in Shan State.

At present, plans are being made to develop new tourist destinations in order to provide more options for tourists as well as to prevent the influx of tourists to the same tourist destinations in the post-COVID-19 era.

“After the COVID-19 period, the tourism industry will have to work with COVID-19 in a new normal way, and plans are underway to draw up new itineraries to suit this situation,” he said.

Currently, Mya Kan Thar lake located in Pyu Kan village, TadaU Township, about 16 miles from Mandalay, is being planned to develop a new bird-watching destination. The lake is home to many wintering birds during the winter.

“If the regional authority allows it, service will be provided in line with the New Normal to bird watchers and families to be able to rest comfortably,” he continued.

According to him, there will also be new dolphin watching trips and new tourist destinations in Nawngkhio Township and the areas along the Dotthawadi River which are connected to Mandalay Region.

With the improvement of the disease situation, digital marketing system will be used to attract and revitalize the tourism market depending on the number of international tourists allowed to enter to Myanmar.—Min Htet Aung (Man Sub-Printing house)

Tackling farmland issues needs speed

WITH the aim of boosting economic development in the country and to create job opportunities for landless citizens by using the vacant, fallow and virgin lands for agriculture, animal husbandry, mining and other legal businesses, the region and state governments, including the Nay Pyi Taw Council have permitted use of farmlands for other purposes, in accordance with Section 30 of the Farmland Law.

When the processes for scrutinizing the applications in some regions and states were reviewed, it was found that there were delays in some processes exceeding the period allowed by the law.

Hence, to make the government objective a success, officials concerned are advised to seek ways for tackling challenges they are facing to ensure that there are no unnecessary delays in the processes and no hindrances to private businesses and investors.

Meanwhile, those who fail to follow the law which allows a six month period to start their projects on the land will face actions under the law.

The rules for the Law Amending the 2012 Farmland Law are being amended, and actions would be taken against those who are using the farmlands in contravention of the Farmland Law.

Besides, we would like to add a word of caution here — carving out plots for housing on farmlands and their sale is in contravention of the Farmland Law, and the situation on the ground today demands effective action against such practices.

The rules for the Law Amending the 2012 Farmland Law are being amended, and actions would be taken against those who are using the farmlands in contravention of the Farmland Law.

As the central farmland management committee is stepping up efforts to bring about sustainable livelihoods and the development of the country through proper land management and utilization, the regional farmland management committees are urged to expose the projects which fail to start within the six-month window granted by the law and those who fail to complete by the deadline.

The law will take its course without fear or favour in this regard.

In the past, using farmland for other purposes was a common practice in Myanmar. To effectively prevent the illegal distribution of farmland, corruption must be rooted out.

As the Union Government is committed to justice and fairness, the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation; Ministry of Home Affairs; and other related municipal organizations should cooperate to ensure the regulations and procedures under the law are followed.

There is no doubt that our country is taking steps towards better land governance; therefore policies and processes to ensure that our land resources are well managed in a sustainable manner need to be fine-tuned. Furthermore, institutions in this area need to be upgraded for maximum effectiveness and efficiency.

THE INDEPENDENT PANEL FOR PANDEMIC PREPAREDNESS AND RESPONSE

WHO pandemic review panel highlights effective multilateralism in COVID-19 response

A latest interim report by the Independent Panel for Pandemic Preparedness and Response highlighted effective multilateralism in the preparation and response to the COVID-19 crisis, saying that the consequences of this pandemic remind the world of how important effective multilateralism is.

"GEOPOLITICAL tensions have impacted on the response, and the resulting pandemic has given us many interlinked reasons to re-think and reset the way in which the international system and countries prepare and respond to global health threats," said the Panel's co-chair Ellen Johnson Sirleaf.

The Independent Panel's new report, available in six UN official languages, was issued late Monday night and will be discussed at the on-going World Health Organization (WHO) Executive Board meeting.

The Independent Panel was established by the WHO Director-General and its mandate is to review experience gained and lessons learned from the WHO-coordinated international response to COVID-19.

Its final report is scheduled for the World Health Assembly in May of this year.

According to the interim report released Monday, the Panel found that member states have high expectations of the WHO but have left it underpowered to do that job.

"The WHO is expected to validate reports of disease outbreaks for their pandemic potential and, deploy support and containment resources, but its powers and funding to carry out its functions are limited," said Sirleaf.

The Panel said even when WHO declared a Public Health Emergency of International Concern in January of 2020, the loudest alarm possible under the International Health Regulations, many countries took minimal action internally and internationally to prevent the spread of COVID-19.

The Panel also found that the international system for alert and response is not fit for purpose — it seems to come from an earlier analogue era and needs to be brought into the digital age.

The Panel also expressed deep concern over the continued significant rises in the numbers of COVID-19 cases and deaths, saying that since Jan. 1 of 2021, the world is recording an average of almost 12,500 daily deaths.

The Independent Panel comprises 13 members, including co-chairs Helen Clark, former Prime Minister of New Zealand, and Sirleaf, former President of Liberia.

THE GLOBAL VACCINATION CAMPAIGN BEGINS

Covid-19 vaccines: 40 million doses worldwide

MORE THAN 40 million doses of the Covid-19 vaccines have been given around the world according to an AFP count Monday, with Israel topping the global table.

At least 60 countries or territories, representing 61 per cent of the global population, have launched vaccination campaigns.

But nine out of 10 doses have taken place in only 11 countries.

Israel is by far leading the mass vaccination race in proportion to its population: 2.43 million vaccines have been given to 2.12 million people, or nearly a quarter of the population.

Some 3.6 per cent of Israelis have already received the second dose.

The country secured a huge stock of Pfizer jabs partly by pledging to share impact data quickly with the company.

Britain tops Europe The US leads the way in terms of volume, giving 12.28 million jabs to 10.60 million people (3.2 percent of the population), ahead of China (more than 10 million doses).

In Europe the UK is leading, having been the first in the region to begin its inoculation campaign at the start of December.

So far it has administered 4.31 million doses to 3.86 million people (5.7 per cent of the population).

Next are Italy (1.15 million doses) and Germany (1.05 million).

European Union countries in total have administered more than 5 million doses to some 1.2 per cent of citizens.

Denmark is leading in the bloc with 2.9 per cent of its citizens already receiving one dose.

Seven vaccines There are currently seven vaccines circulating around the world, all designed to be given in two doses.

The vaccines developed by Pfizer-BioNTech (US-German) and Moderna (US) are dominant in North America, Europe, Israel and the Gulf.

Britain's AstraZeneca-Oxford is used in much of the UK and India, with the latter also using a vaccine produced by its pharmaceutical firm Bharat Biotech.

Russia's Sputnik V vaccine has been rolled out in Russia, Argentina, Belarus and Serbia.

China's Sinopharm jabs are being administered in China, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, the Seychelles and Jordan, while Indonesia and Turkey are using China's Sinovac vaccine.

Global total At least 40,062,725 vaccines have been administered, according to data collected by AFP based on official sources on Monday at 1030 GMT.

This figure is undoubtedly an underestimate since China, the US and Russia have not updated their data in recent days.

INDIA IS GEARING UP FOR COVID-19 VACCINATION DRIVE

India's jumbo-sized vaccine rollout in numbers

INDIA begins one of the world's biggest coronavirus vaccination programmes on Saturday, hoping to end a pandemic that has killed 150,000 people in the country and torpedoed the economy.

300 million people Over the coming months, India aims to inoculate around a quarter of the population, or 300 million people. They include healthcare workers, people aged over 50 and those at high risk.

On the first day, around 300,000 people will be vaccinated at 3,000 centres. About 150,000 staff in 700 districts have been trained to administer jabs and keep records.

The government aims to manage the entire process digitally with its own app, CoWIN, which will link every vaccine dose to its recipient.

45,000 fridges (and one bike) India has four "mega depots" to take delivery of the vaccines and transport them to state distribution hubs in temperature-controlled vans, keeping the doses colder than 8 degrees Celsius (46.4 Fahrenheit).

A total of 29,000 cold-chain points, 240 walk-in coolers, 70 walk-in freezers, 45,000 ice-lined refrigerators, 41,000 deep freezers and 300 solar fridges are at the ready.

These will be needed once the Indian summer arrives in the coming months.

In one recent practice run in a rural area, a consignment of dummy vaccines was photographed being delivered by bicycle.

Three seconds To stop any of the vials being stolen and being sold on India's large drugs black market, authorities are taking no chances, with armed police guarding every truck. CCTVs are in place at warehouses with entry subject to fingerprint authentication. Automated data loggers will monitor storage temperature and transfer messages every three seconds to a central unit, according to the Times of India.— SOURCE: AFP

Pinlaung corns fetching high price under opium substitution

QUALITY corn from Pinlaung Township in the Pa-O Self-Administered Zone of southern Shan State produced under opium substitution projects is offered high price.

The Ministry of Border Affairs, head of PaO Self-Administered Zone and Mae Fah Luang Foundation implemented opium poppy substitution projects. It aimed to generate K4 million income in minimum per year for each household of local growers. The infrastructure such as utilities, water supply and transport, and agriculture and livestock were also conducted.

“CP Company provided corn seeds and fertilizer with zero interest and also disseminated know-hows of quality corn cultivations. Furthermore, they also share harvesting methods to improve corn standards. The corn procurement department also offered high price to increase the growers’ benefits,” said U Khun

Yee Thant, CP Company’s procurement department manager.

Corn has grasped both the foreign market and local market shares. The corn growers have grown this year compared to the previous year as it is the reliable crop. Therefore, growers need to use systematic harvesting methods, he urged.

“To generate an income of K4 million in minimum for each household, the public and private partners are working together for sustainable crop substitution programme, and I believe it will come to fruition in a certain period,” said U Khun Saw Aung, representative of Shan State constituency.

The corns are normally priced the highest of K370 per viss (a viss equals 1.6 kg), while CP Company purchases the quality corns produced under crop substitution program at K405 per viss.

“I am thankful for the development project. It provided corn seeds, fertilizer and growing and harvesting methods. Besides, they offered K30 per viss higher than other buyers. We will continue our corn cultivation next year as well,” said a grower Khun Tun Kyi from Phayaphyu village.

Mae Fah Luang Foundation from Thailand provided corn seeds, fertilizer, growing methods and harvesting methods to 500 growers from 17 villages in Mwaypyin, Lwemaw, Pinkhin and Pawin village-tracts of Pinlaung Township, which is opium poppy substitution project area.—Khun Aung (Naungtayar)

Fish available at mobile markets in regions, states to boost local fish consumption

By Nyein Nyein

IN a bid to promote local fish consumption amid a slump in foreign demand triggered by the coronavirus pandemic, fishery products are sold through mobile market trucks in regions and states, said U Myo Aung, director of the Cooperative Department.

The Cooperative Department sells fish without taking any profit in regions and states, in cooperation with the Fisheries Department, Myanmar Fisheries Federation (MFF) and the cooperatives.

“This move is to remedy the drop in foreign exports and local fish consumption amid the COVID-19 crisis. Normally, Myanmar ships fishery products to over 54 foreign countries. The pandemic affected fish exports. Moreover, local fish consumption showed a drop to 65 per cent in December 2020 owing to the closure of the restaurants, hotels, festivities, wedding and donation events and transportation difficulties,” U Myo Aung affirmed.

Additionally, it aimed to offer fish at a low price to the consumers, he added.

“For instance, the fish worth of K5,000 per viss (a viss equals 1.6kg) in the wholesale market is priced above K10,000 per viss in the retail market. The Cooperative Department has spread its distribution networks to offer the fish at a fair price to the people,” he elaborated.

Besides mobile market trucks, the traders can buy the fish through the Cooperative Department. Over the past two weeks, about 1,500 visses of mrigal carp, tilapia, perch, pangasius and other fish are sent to the regions and states, generating K50 million. The MFF also affirmed that the federation could provide fishery products when necessary for the mobile market scheme in regions and states.

“The federation is selling both the wild-caught and farm-raised fish in wholesale markets. Either the Commerce Ministry or Cooperative Departments can buy the fish at a wholesale price any time. We are ready to supply the fish products across the country,” U Win Kyaing said.

The fishery products can be available at a fair price for the low-income people as well, he continued.

U Win Kyaing ensured that “the federation can supply the plenty of fish of any size at a fair price. They can buy the fish via the wholesale market at any time to expand the fish market. The federation will participate in this.

Both salt and fresh water fish can be daily purchased as necessary at Kyimyintdine Sanpya Fishmarket and Shwe Padauk Fishmarket in Yangon Region.

The consumers in lower Myanmar regions; Ayeyawady, Yangon, Taninthayi and Mon and Rakhine, states highly demand the fish and fish production also has risen. Nevertheless, people in central and upper Myanmar regions, where there is small fish production, have less fish consumption. Therefore, the fish are required to be sent to those regions, said U Win Kyaing.

The breeders are floundering due to the COVID-19 impacts and decrease in price. Typically, Myanmar has daily consumption of about 600,000 visses of farmed fish. The local fish consumption plunged to 60-65 per cent during the COVID-19 pandemic. Additionally, fishery exports to the second-largest buyer China, the closure of border trade with the primary buyer Thailand in Hteekhee and Mawtaung areas and 50 per cent drop in fish prices harm the fishery exports.

The federation expects to reach fishery export target of US$1 billion in the current Financial Year 2020-2021. Nevertheless, the fishery exports touched a low of $258.9 million between 1 October 2020 and 8 January 2021, which plunged from $282.85 million registered a year-ago period. The figures reflected a decrease of $23.883 million over the Q1 of the current FY compared with the last FY2019-2020, the Ministry of Commerce’s data showed.

External trade falls by $2.4 bln as of 8 Jan

MYANMAR’S external trade between 1 October and 8 January in the current financial year 2020-2021 touched a low of US$8.23 billion, a sharp drop of $2.437 billion compared with the corresponding period of the FY2019-2020, according to the Ministry of Commerce.

According to data released by the ministry during the same period in the previous FY, trade stood at $8.2 billion.

Over the Q1, Myanmar’s export was worth over $4 billion, which plunged from $5.16 billion registered a year-ago period. Meanwhile, the country’s import was valued $4.228 billion, showing a decrease of $1.27 billion compared with the last FY.

Both sea trade and border trade dropped amid the coronavirus impacts. The neighbouring countries tightened border security and limited the trading time to contain the spread of the virus. Pandemic-induced container shortage pushed up the freight rates to almost triple in Myanmar, causing delays for traders.

Myanmar exports agricultural products, animal products, minerals, forest products, and finished industrial goods while importing capital goods, raw industrial materials, and consumer goods.

The country’s export sector relies more on the agricultural and manufacturing sectors. The government is trying to reduce the trade deficit by screening luxury import items and boosting exports.

Under the National Planning Law for the financial year 2020-2021, Myanmar intends to reach an export target at US$16 billion and import at $18 billion.

The Ministry of Commerce is focusing on reducing the trade deficit, export promotion and market diversification. Since 2011, the Ministry of Commerce has adhered to its reform policy. A series of moves to liberalize and open the economy have been introduced through policy development to improve the trade environment. — GNLM

Biden facing 'competing crises' as he takes office

The United States faces a number of 'competing crises' as Joe Biden takes office as president. PHOTO: AFP/FILE

A raging pandemic. An economic crisis. A nation divided. Deep racial wounds.

Joe Biden has his work cut out for him as he prepares to be sworn in as the 46th president of the United States on Wednesday.

"What's unique for Biden is not so much the fact of crisis, it's the number of competing crises," said Mary Stuckey, a communications professor at Penn State University. Perhaps the biggest is the coronavirus pandemic, which has left some 400,000 Americans dead.

"We have 4,000 Americans dying of Covid every day," said David Farber, a history professor at the University of Kansas. "And the federal rollout of the vaccine has been a disaster."

"So I think that's front and centre, and he's going to try to keep his mind focused on that."

Biden has outlined a multi-pronged plan to combat the pandemic that includes expanded testing and contact tracing and vaccinating 100 million Americans in his first 100 days in the White House.

A Rescue Plan

But the coronavirus pandemic cannot consume all of the attention of the 78-year-old Biden, the oldest man ever to take the oath as president.

Not many American presidents have been met with an economic situation such as Biden is inheriting, although a few of his predecessors faced even worse.

"In 1933, Franklin Roosevelt walked into the White House with 25 per cent unemployment, the stock market having dropped nearly 90 per cent and people not able to get their money out of the bank," Farber said.

TEETERING GOVERNMENT

Italian PM pleads for Senate support ahead of confidence vote

ITALIAN Prime Minister Giuseppe Conte pleaded for lawmakers' support on Tuesday as his teetering government faced a confidence vote while it struggles to battle the coronavirus pandemic.

The ruling coalition has been on the brink of collapse since former premier Matteo Renzi withdrew his Italia Viva party last week, depriving Conte of his majority in the upper chamber.

Conte, who since 2018 has headed two politically divergent governments, is desperately seeking the backing of opposition lawmakers to allow his coalition to stay in power.

"We are calling on all political forces, and also parliamentarians, who have Italy's destiny at heart to help us restart as quickly as possible," he told the upper chamber.

The prime minister has repeatedly warned of the danger of leaving Italy rudderless in the middle of a pandemic that has claimed more than 82,000 lives and devastated the economy.

His government won a first confidence vote late Monday in the lower house, but faces a tougher task persuading the Senate, where it lost its majority following Italia Viva's defection.

In a twist, Renzi's party said it would abstain, making it easier for the government to win the vote on Tuesday evening -- but the crisis risks being merely delayed.

Conte was widely expected to take around 155 votes in the 321-seat chamber -- saving the day, but with only enough support to keep going as a minority government.

VIOLENT YOUTH PROTESTS

Tunisia arrests over 600, deploys troops after riots

TUNISIAN authorities have arrested more than 600 people and deployed troops after a third consecutive night of riots, mostly by young people in working-class districts of several cities.

The unrest came despite a nationwide coronavirus pandemic lockdown declared last Thursday - the day that also marked 10 years since demonstrators forced dictator Zine El Abidine Ben Ali's fall from power. Interior ministry spokesman Khaled Hayouni said 632 people had been arrested, notably "groups of people between the ages of 15, 20 and 25 who burned tyres and bins to block the movement of security forces".

The social unrest comes at a time of economic crisis, worsened by the pandemic, that has sparked rapid inflation and high youth unemployment and led many people to leave the North African country.

Some of those arrested had lobbed stones at police and clashed with security forces, leaving two policemen wounded, said Hayouni.

PLANNED PARDONS

Trump mulling pardons on last full day in power

PRESIDENT Donald Trump began his final full day in the White House Tuesday with a long list of possible pardons to dish out before snubbing his successor Joe Biden's inauguration and leaving for Florida.

On Wednesday at noon, Biden will be sworn in and the Trump presidency will end, turning the page on some of the most disruptive, divisive years the United States has seen since the 1960s.

Biden, a veteran Democratic senator who also served as vice president to Barack Obama, was set to travel to Washington on Tuesday with his wife Dr Jill Biden from their hometown of Wilmington, Delaware.

Together with incoming vice president Kamala Harris -- the first woman ever to hold the job -- Biden was due to deliver an evening address on the Covid-19 crisis, from the Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool.

By contrast, Trump has remained uncharacteristically silent as the clock ticks down to his departure to a new life in his Mar-a-Lago golf club residence in Palm Beach.

Banned by Twitter for his stream of inflammatory messages and misinformation, he has largely stopped communicating with the nation. He has also yet to congratulate Biden or invite him for the traditional pre-inauguration cup of tea in the Oval Office.

Instead, Trump has spent his time meeting with a dwindling circle of loyalists who backed him during a doomed, two-month effort to overturn the results of the November election.

That effort culminated on January 6 with Trump encouraging a crowd to march on Congress.

Keidanren sees pay hikes across board as “unrealistic” amid pandemic

JAPAN'S most powerful business lobby Keidanren said Tuesday that it views basic pay increases across all sectors as “unrealistic” in annual wage talks, as the coronavirus pandemic has hit some firms and industries harder than others.

In guidelines for corporate managers who will engage in wage negotiations with labour unions over the coming months, the lobby, also known as the Japan Business Federation, said companies should be given more leeway this year regarding whether to raise wages, citing the worsening business environment due to the spread of the novel coronavirus.

The Japanese Trade Union Confederation, the country's largest labour organization known as Rengo, is set to demand a hike of around 2 per cent in basic pay in forthcoming management-labour wage talks, but the coronavirus pandemic has made the outlook uncertain for businesses.

Underscoring that the pandemic's impact on each company or sector differs, Keidanren said it would be difficult for firms that have seen business deteriorate to raise basic pay and their priority would be on continuing to operate and maintaining jobs.

For those companies benefiting from increased earnings, a base pay hike should be “an option”, according to the guidelines.

NEW DIRECTIVE

EU regulator to clear Boeing 737 MAX flights next week

THE European Union Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) plans to clear the Boeing 737 MAX to fly again next week, 22 months after the plane was grounded following two fatal crashes.

“For us, the MAX will be able to fly again starting next week,” after publication of a directive, EASA director Patrick Ky said in a video conference.

“We have reached the point where our four main demands have been fulfilled,” Ky said during the conference, organized by the German association of aviation journalists.

The MAX was grounded in March 2019 after two crashes that together killed 346 people – the 2018 Lion Air disaster in Indonesia and an Ethiopian Airlines crash the following year.

Investigators said a main cause of both crashes was a faulty flight handling system known as the Maneuvering Characteristics Augmentation System, or MCAS.

Meant to keep the plane from stalling as it ascends, the automated system instead forced the nose of the plane downward. The findings plunged Boeing into crisis, with more than 650 orders for the 737 MAX cancelled since last year.

NEWS IN BRIEF

BIG GAINS

Investors eye recovery as most markets rise, Yellen in focus OPTIMISM about the global economic recovery and vaccine rollouts trumped ongoing concerns about soaring virus infections Tuesday with most Asian markets clocking up big gains.

Traders were also awaiting the Senate confirmation hearing for US Treasury secretary pick Janet Yellen, which is expected to give lawmakers a chance to go over Joe Biden's huge stimulus proposal. US markets were closed

Monday for a public holiday, but regional investors were mostly in buoyant mood as they prepared for the new president to take office Tuesday with most Asian markets promising a vaccination blitz and a drive to kick-start the economy.

Hong Kong piled on more than three per cent at one point, having jumped one per cent on Monday, to levels not seen since May 2019 thanks to an inflow of cash from mainland China. The Hang Seng later pared the rally.— SOURCE: AFP

Myanmar's first textile-based industrial zone to be established in Sagaing

EASTERN Development International (Myanmar) and Dongzhan Textile Group, a Chinese company, are set to jointly develop a textile industrial cluster worth over US$371 million in Sagaing Region. The two companies will work with the private sector on all stages of construction of the project, making it the first textile-based industrial zone in Myanmar.

The project is designed to include two phases: construction of factories and the installation of machinery in those factories. Phase 1 will include the construction of 12 new garment related factories, knitting fabric factories, dyeing and printing factories, and down and feather factories; and residential buildings for employees. Eight of these factories will be located at No.3 Textile Factory Branch (Sagaing) while the remaining four factories, including a waste water treatment system, thermal power plant, will be set up at No. 3 Textile Factory (Sagaing). Phase 2 will include the construction of five garment related factories, embroidery factory, carton factory, and polyester wadding factory.

An international textile supermarket will also be created in Sagaing. The project is proposed to be operational for an initial term of 20 years. Following the expiration of its initial 20-year term, it could be extended twice for a further term of five years for each renewal. The project is scheduled to begin in the financial year 2020-2021 and is expected to be completed in the financial year 2029-2030. It will also benefit stakeholders across the textile value chain (small and medium-sized enterprises, employees, fashion designers) by making available locally produced raw materials for textile and garment sectors, and creating entrepreneurial opportunities.

It is anticipated that the imported volume of raw materials across the textile value chain will be reduced, and export earnings using locally-produced raw materials will be increased. Establishment of a textile-based industry cluster will reduce transportation cost; using a common infrastructure, resource and labour pool advantage; and speed up the learning process leading to internationally competitive and commercially sustainable textile industry. The garment industry in Myanmar has grown significantly over the past five years. Myanmar's garment exports have been increasing yearly, especially since 2013, when the EU granted goods from the Southeast Asian country preferential access to its market.

Myanmar is also implementing the National Export Strategy (NES), under which there will be measures like the transition of cut-make-pack (CMP) garment system into free-on-board (FOB) system, adoption of bonded warehouse system and establishment of special textile and garment zone for boosting export. Myanmar launched a national level textile policy with the help of German global development organization GIZ to promote the country's textile industry, attract investment by inviting foreign trade partners, build the necessary

Your 2021 Resolution - Better equip yourself with financial knowledge

WHILE 2020 has been an extraordinary year, it's worth taking a retrospective look at how the decisions that were made during this year determine the outcome of our current situation. COVID-19 has been a real test of our resilience. It's more important than ever to take a prudent approach when it comes to family finance. Taking a careful look at how your family earn, spend, and save will allow you to become better at budgeting over the next year and beyond when the pandemic is over.

Through our Practical Money Skills website (myanmar.practicalmoneyskills.com), Visa Myanmar provides essential financial knowledge in the local language to increase public awareness on the importance of personal and household finances, as well as providing interactive tools to help people better understand how every decision they make can meaningfully contribute to their financial security in the long term.

Here are four useful tips, dubbed the '4$', that every household should consider when it comes to managing household finance.

1. Save before you spend

Saving is for every family. It is less of how much you earn but more of what you allocate for savings. If you spend more than what you make, you'll soon end up in debt. As a rule, every household should set a clear goal of saving at least 10% of their monthly income aside for rainy days ahead. Each household may want to tailor their saving goals according to unique needs. You can find out how much exactly your family should save each month here.

Ten per cent of monthly income may seem like a little sum of money. But if you hold on to it wisely, it can grow substantially over time. With Myanmar Central Bank's policy interest rate currently at 7% per annum, and minimum bank deposit interest rate at 5%, you can let the compound interest work its wonder. You can also apply for auto direct debit service with your bank to let the bank transfer 10% of monthly income from your payroll/salary account to the savings account on the same date on each month. See for yourself how small amount of monthly savings can go a long way by calculating how much your money can grow over the years here.

2. Scan and record

Recording every expense real-time or every day will help you see the difference between necessary and unnecessary spending. Many smartphone apps let you scan the receipts and break down your daily spending into categories such as grocery, dining out, luxury items, unexpected expenses, etc. As a result, you can track your expenses over time and see which expense you can cut to reach your savings goal.

Keeping a written or digital record of your expenses is a crucial step towards lifelong financial security. With 2021 fast approaching, perhaps you can put 'keep tabs on every expense' as one of your New Year's resolutions. And when you finally get a better grasp of your own spending habit, check out Practical Money Skills website which guides you towards the next step to help you reach your saving goals - whether you're a student saving for education, first-jobber, a parent with children, or planning towards your retirement.

3. Set up a budget for each family member

Household finance can be fun for the whole family. If you're a parent in charge, you can 'gamify' this by setting a daily or weekly allowance for each family member, and see if they can stick to that budget with some extra savings left at the end. You may reward your kids with extra piggy bank savings in the same amount that they can save.

If you have young children at home, it's a good idea to acquaint them with money basics from an early age and equip them with financial literacy for the future. Visa Myanmar provides an e-book that teaches children and young adults about the basics of earning, saving and budgeting through easy-to-understand content. Get the e-book "Your Money, Your Future: A Practical Money Guide for Students" (in Myanmar language) here.

4. Shop smart

Your family have worked hard for every kyat you earned, and you should make the most out of it by spending more wisely. Many retailers in Myanmar are offering promotions through their affiliation programs with banks or credit card companies. It's worth asking the shopkeeper or cashier if they have special discounts for the debit or credit card you have. Some banks also offer reward points every time you spend on your card, and you can turn those rewards into cash-back credit towards your next purchase. Using card payment is also more secure and convenient than carrying cash, and you don't need to withdraw money from bank branches or ATMs or have to deal with changes.

If you're thinking about going cashless or are curious how credit card works, including different types of credit cards and major benefits of switching to digital payments, you can learn more about credit card basics and how to spend smartly and responsibly here.

With these '4S' tips of managing household finance, Visa Myanmar believes that greater financial knowledge can empower Myanmar household to better manage their money and improve their quality of life. We aim to offer interactive tools and educational resources to help everyone become better at navigating major life events in order to build a stronger financial future at every stage in their life. We make these resources available online for free in the Myanmar language at myanmar.practicalmoneyskills.com.—GNLM infrastructure and reduce imports. At present, some garment factories shut down due to lack of raw material, and thousands of workers became unemployed.

Some garment factories in Myanmar have reduced working hours and cut jobs, and some factories have not received orders from abroad amid the ongoing coronavirus pandemic. Myanmar's CMP garment sector earns about US$300 million, annually and the country will get US$3 billion if it can manage to shift from the CMP system to the free-on-board (FOB) system. Myanmar's manufacturing sector is largely dependent on the CMP garment and textile exports. The total export earnings from Myanmar's garment and textile industry are expected to reach US$10 billion by 2024, according to the Myanmar Garment Entrepreneurs Association. The CMP garment sector contributes to over 20 per cent to the country's exports.

Thousands of Myanmar people are employed in garment, textile, footwear and accessories factories across the country. Additional tens of thousands indirectly work in the industry through logistics and transport services. Myanmar earned some US$850 million from CMP garment exports in the financial year 2015-2016, US$2 billion in FY2016-2017, US$2.5 billion in FY2017-2018, US$4.6 billion in FY 2018-2019 and US$4.28 billion in FY2019-2020.

Mandzukic joins AC Milan on short-term deal

MILAN— Serie A leaders AC Milan announced on Tuesday the arrival of former Croatia striker Mario Mandzukic on a six-month contract.

Free agent Mandzukic, 34, who retired from international football after losing the 2018 World Cup final, returns to the Italian top-flight after four years with Juventus.

Mandzukic left Juve for Al-Duhail in 2019 but departed the Qatari side by mutual consent last July.

“The club and the striker have agreed on a deal until the end of the current season with an option to extend the contract for the next one,” Milan said.

Coach Stefano Pioli said the transfer underlined the 18-time league champions’ aspirations.

“I’m happy, he’s an extra arm in attack. The club is ambitious again, the arrival of Mandzukic goes in that direction,” Pioli said after Monday’s win at Cagliari which allowed his outfit to retain top spot.

Ex-Sweden forward Zlatan Ibrahimovic will compete with Mandzukic for a starting spot in the side.

“We will be two to scare the opposition. Now the most difficult matches start, with more players, the coach will be able to make changes,” he said after the victory.

Guardiola delighted by Dias impact at Man City

LONDON — Pep Guardiola hailed the transformative impact of Ruben Dias after the Portugal centre-back helped turn Manchester City into the meanest defence in the Premier League.

Dias arrived from Benfica in a 68 million euro (£62 million, $79 million) deal two days after City were thrashed 5-2 at home by Leicester in their second game of the season.

The 23-year-old has started all 15 league games since then and City have kept nine clean sheets to close to within two points of leaders Manchester United, with a game in hand.

“It has been massive” said Guardiola on Dias’ leadership.

“He has the ability to live every single action during 95 minutes on what he has to do and helping his mates - the full-backs, the holding midfielders - being always concentrated.

“It is not easy to find that in someone who is 23-years-old.”

Dias has struck up a formidable partnership with John Stones at the heart of the City defence, conceding just once in 10 games when they have started together.

“We knew the quality they had on the pitch, we knew a little bit their personality, but we have been impressed at the consistency to be ready mentally and physically to play every three days,” added Guardiola.—AFP ■

Atletico to appeal again after FIFA confirm Trippier 10-week ban

An extended absence for Kieran Trippier would be a huge blow for Atletico. PHOTO: MADRID PIERRE-PHILIPPE MARCOU/ AFP/FILE

MADRID — Atletico Madrid will appeal to the Court of Arbitration for Sport (CAS) after Kieran Trippier’s 10-week ban for breaching betting rules was upheld by FIFA on Monday.

Atletico will request Trippier’s suspension is again put on hold while the appeal is being heard, raising the possibility of the defender again returning to action.

As it stands, Trippier is banned until February 28 and is due to miss eight La Liga fixtures, as well as Atletico’s first leg at home to Chelsea in the Champions League last 16.

FIFA said in a statement on Monday the suspension handed to Trippier by the English Football Association (FA) applies worldwide.

But Atletico will now submit a fresh appeal to CAS, according to a club source, and request Trippier’s ban is again put on hold again until it is completed.

Trippier was able to play for Atletico against Sevilla last week after the English FA had failed to delay enforcing his ban until the result of Atletico’s appeal to FIFA was known.

FIFA said in a statement on Monday: “The FIFA Appeal Committee has dismissed the appeal lodged by the club Atletico Madrid in a case concerning the player Kieran Trippier.

“As a consequence, the decision of the FIFA Disciplinary Committee passed on 23 December 2020 is confirmed, extending sanctions imposed on the player by the English FA to have worldwide effect.”

An extended absence for Trippier would be a huge blow to Atletico Madrid, who sit four points clear at the top of La Liga, with two games in hand over their closest rivals Real Madrid.—AFP ■

Maguire hails Man Utd progress but says there is room to improve

LONDON — Manchester United captain Harry Maguire hailed the huge progress the Red Devils have made in his 18 months at the club but said much more improvement was needed to deliver major trophies.

United extended their unbeaten league run to 12 matches and their away record to 16 without defeat with a 0-0 draw at Liverpool on Sunday to remain top of the Premier League.

A mammoth 33 points divided the sides last season as Liverpool romped to their first league title in 30 years.

However, a much tighter fight for the title is in store this season, with just five points separating the top six.

“You can see how much we have improved since I’ve been here,” said Maguire, who joined for a world-record fee for a defender from Leicester in August 2019.

“As a team we are on the up but there is loads of improvement we need to make, and make a lot more progress to get to where we want to be.

“We wanted to win the game but we keep the momentum going of not losing, especially away from home.”

Top four, not title race, the priority for Lampard at Chelsea

LONDON — Frank Lampard believes Chelsea’s priority is to get back into the Premier League top four after a barren run rather than targeting the title.

However, the former England midfielder is hopeful the Blues fortunes can change for the better as quickly as they have deteriorated over the past month.

Chelsea eased back up to seventh thanks to just their second win in seven league games at 10-man Fulham on Saturday.

However, they briefly topped the table in early December on the back of a 17-game unbeaten run.

In a season when every side has had their struggles adapting to empty stadiums and a congested fixture list, just five points separate the top six.—AFP ■
