We can stand tall with our military prowess!

We do not need to explain that we can stand tall if our military is strong. It is of crucial importance to have military prowess, powerful arms and ammunition, political influence and prosperity. Military power and political power are primary factors.

MoHS calls for added-momentum in COVID-19 control operations

UNION MINISTER for Health and Sports Dr Thet Khaing Win presided over a coordination meeting to accelerate the momentum in COVID-19 prevention, control and treatment activities yesterday.

During the meeting, the Union Minister said the people should follow the orders, notifications and requests of the ministry during the long public holidays. The respective regions/states health officials also need to cooperate with the regions/states administration councils to break the Chain of Transmission.

He then discussed oxygen production rate, mapping for oxygen needs under the coordination of central officials, proper medical treatment for emergency patients, duties of health workers to follow Infection Prevention and Control Guideline, exact name lists for COVID-19 vaccines and issuance of COVID-19 vaccination record cards. He also stressed the need to apply the experience received in the first, second and third COVID-19 wave in medical services in the future. Then, the respective regions and state health officials coordinated the discussion and the Union Minister instructed the necessary things. – MNA

“Although the vehicles pass through the old Bailey bridge, they have to wait for other vehicles coming from another direction as it is a one-lane bridge. The Yangon-Sittway Road plays a key role in the trade flows of Rakhine State. Therefore, we construct the new two-lane bridge near the old one-lane bridge to provide proper transportation and facilitate the trade flows for the people,” he continued.

The Myaung Bway bridge is a truss bridge with PC Girder and floor trusses. The bridge contains a Bored Pile foundation with four truss chambers (60 feet each) and five PC Girder (100 feet each). It is 740 feet (225.54 metres) long. The width of the bridge is 28 feet and it includes 3 feet pedestrian walkway. The water clearance of the bridge is 85 feet in width and 21 feet in height. Its maximum load capacity will be 60 tonnes, according to the Bridge Special Team (7).

The Bored Pile construction for A1, A2, P1, P2, P7 and P8, Pile Cap, Shaft, Abutment and Cross Beam were completed in the 2019-2020FY and currently, the operations for P, P4 and P5 are conducted with the budget of the 2020-2021FY. They will complete soon and the Bored Pile construction for P6 will start, said U Min Khine.

The old 740 feet long Bailey Bridge can accommodate only 20 tonnes and the vehicles have to await other ones coming from different directions, and it causes delays in trade flow sectors. Therefore, the government arranged to build a new bridge. The bridge project was launched on 1 October 2018 and it will be operational in the 2022-2023FY, according to the Ministry of Construction.—Pwint Thitsar/ GNLM

Over 100 COVID-19 patients recover every day at Inya COVID centre

THE Inya centre in Yangon provides treatment for COVID-19 disease, and there is an urgent need for liquid oxygen donors despite the oxygen supply by the Government.

The 550-bedded Inya COVID-19 centre has a total of 48 rooms that are equipped with oxygen pipelines. If the rooms can be facilitated with the liquid oxygen-supplied vehicles for replenishment, the difficulties patients face at present will be solved.

Today, the closest people to help patients are members of the charities, some of whom are infected and need help to get oxygen supply from the factory. Hence, oxygen donation can effectively support the healthcare providers, volunteers and patients.

More than 100 patients are reportedly recovering every day at the Inya Centre and Oxygen donors are needed because the liquid oxygen can be used all at once to save patients' lives, according to 63-year-old Thant Zin from the Zamani Myanmar charity, who was allowed to return home after recovering from the COVID-19 disease.

Although the Government is providing the required oxygen to hospitals and COVID centres, there are deaths due to the shortage of oxygen in the Inya COVID centre where hundreds of patients need supplemental oxygen every day.

The liquid oxygen tank connected to the central bar converts the fluid from liquid to gas, providing clean oxygen and preventing lung damage. The Government has also provided the imported 12 oxygen vehicles to hospitals and COVID centres. Some donors are importing the liquid oxygen vehicles from Thailand which contain 25 metric tonnes of liquid oxygen worth 24 million kyats per vehicle and can be used for 2,000 people for two weeks.

In the current oxygen need, the price of an oxygen cylinder rises to K250,000 from K150,000, due to the unnecessary storage of oxygen by the people. Since anxiety is not the answer to the current health problems, avoiding over-storage of oxygen and medication unnecessarily can help those who are suffering from overcoming the COVID-19 third wave.

People are also facing difficulties to buy paracetamols and oral rehydration salts due to the shortage of medicines. U Thant Zin added if UMFCCI and BPI cooperate to provide necessary medicines to the COVID Centres, the current basic medicine problem could be solved. — Kanu/GNLM

The companies will continue their import processes in the coming holidays, officials said.

For the quick and easy import of COVID-19 protective equipment, the Ministry of Economy and Trade is carrying out regular import and export activities at border trade checkpoints during the public holidays from 17 to 25 July 2021 that are designated as public holidays. — MNA

Development of Human Resources

IT is of vital importance that the development of human resources contributes towards the development of the State. We need to inevitably implement the uplift of education so as to generate plenty of educated personnel resources. Nowadays, schools are reopening though teachers are teaching amidst formidable hardships due to the CDM staff and opposite groups. Remaining schools are yet to reopen.

Govt continues importing oxygen tanks

AS the country needs oxygen supplies in COVID-19 control operations, the officials make efforts to produce oxygen from the government and Tatmadaw-owned oxygen plants, private-owned oxygen plants and import oxygen-related products with the donations of donors. One 26-metric ton tanker carrying liquid oxygen ordered from the foreign countries to use in public hospitals and COVID-19 centres of Mandalay Region arrived yesterday. It was welcomed by region Administration Council Chairman U Maung Ko, Commander of Central Command Maj-Gen Ko Ko Oo and other officials. Then, the Chairman of Public Health and Fund Rising Committee of Urban Development transferred the tanker to the Superintendent of Mandalay General Hospital. The Tatmadaw, Ministry of Health and Sports, Regional Administration Council and donors worked together in ordering the liquid oxygen and they will systematically distribute oxygen to the hospitals and the patients in need of oxygen. The further liquid oxygen will arrive in the country very soon. Moreover, the government permitted the private entrepreneurs to import medical supplies via border trade camps to conduct COVID-19 prevention, control and treatment activities. Therefore, 2,785 oxygen cylinders (40 litres) imported by a private company arrived at the Chinshwehaw border camp in northern Shan State. Similarly, 50 oxygen cylinders (60 litres), 789 cylinders (40 litres), 70 cylinders (20 litres) and 104 cylinders (10 litres) were imported using the cash contribution of well-wishers were received via the Myawady border trade camp. The oxygen cylinders will be distributed to Yangon, Bago and Mandalay regions. — MNA

Cooperation work enhanced to import medicines, medical supplies via land border

THE Muse District Administration Team, Department of Trade and Department of Foreign Affairs of Shweli Township directly work together to import the medicines and medical equipment for COVID-19 prevention via Muse 105 Mile Trade Zone from China, according to the Ministry of Commerce. “The Chinese side has closed the camps due to COVID-19 pandemic. But, the notification of the Chinese government did not mention the protective gears and medical supplies for COVID-19. Therefore, they allow exiting currently and we permit the entry. We communicate with the head of the department of foreign affairs in Shweli. Some donors apply for the imports,” said U Maung Maung Lwin, deputy director of Muse 105 Mile Trade Zone. A 26-tonne liquid oxygen tank imported by Public Health Department and Fund Rising Committee for Mandalay Urban Development arrived in the country via the Kyin San Kyaut border crossing on 16 July, according to the trade zone. Moreover, the Muse 105 Trade Zone offers One-Stop Service (OSS) without any holidays for fast importation of COVID-19 protective gears and medicines, according to the Ministry of Commerce. “We offer One-Stop Services by cooperating with the department concerned at Muse 105 Mile Trade Zone. All the departments are also cooperating to make imports and exports smoother in a timely manner,” said Deputy Director U Maung Maung Lwin. The Ministry of Commerce works together with the ministry concerned in importing the medicines and medical supplies for COVID-19. The ministry will also carry out the services in the public holidays as usual as per the SOP. — Than Min Aung (MNA)/GNLM

Dancing Ladies Ginger flowers grown well in Pindaya Township

PADEIN Ngo flowers (dancing ladies ginger) are grown commercially in Pindaya, Danu Self-Administered Zone, southern Shan State, and are now in full bloom, said local farmers.

The flower is called Padein Ngo in the Burmese language because the flower is so simple and beautiful that it is combined with branches so that a florist cannot even carve the flower-shaped flower.

Mi Mi Khaing, a flower grower, said that she received K100 per flower last year and K1,000 for a bouquet of ten flowers.

The flower is harvested and sold for three months: July to September, she added.

“The dancing ladies ginger flower is a type of egg, with 15 to 20 seedlings per egg. When the harvested flowers run out in the month of Thidingyut (October), the eggs are left in the ground and kept as a species for the next year.

“The seeds of the flower are being sold at K1,500 per pound, and the flower is very suitable to grow on a farm privately and commercially as it provides extra income for a family,” said the flower grower Mi Mi Khaing. — Moe Moe Htwe/ GNLM

Remove hatred to build prosperous society

MORE than 130 ethnic nationals have been living in Myanmar by sharing the future since time immemorial. They all are giving a helping hand to each other as well as one another whenever they face challenges.

In the past, kings of city-states across the nation fought against each other to enjoy the taste of victory but they did not have any reasons. The battles and wars brought uncountable losses. A large number of soldiers on both sides in addition to the people from both city-states died in action. The wars born grievance in the hearts of losers. These were undesirable scenes of the wars.

Nonetheless, they could show united strength whenever the country faced the invasion of other countries. The armed forces of Myanmar formed with various ethnic nationalities made utmost efforts in driving out the colonialists and Fascists with the sacrifice of lives and blood in the fine tradition. They showed off their loyalty to the State.

Sometimes, siblings in a family having diverse ideas and attitudes may meet disputes as family problems. All family members know the root causes of the problems. So, they have the best ways and means to solve such problems and they have the right to solve such problems because they are members of the family. The family does not need any person outside the family for solving their problems. On the other hand, the outsiders do not have the right to solve the family problems. Everybody needs to consider the problems at the levels from the family to the national. Firstly, all the ethnic people should remove the hatred and doubts from their hearts before holding the dialogues to solve the problems. Only when everybody holds up the win-win situation, will the problems meet the solutions. If all ethnic nationals seek the solutions for the problems, they can easily shape a prosperous nation.

Every family sets an aim each to enjoy prosperity. Likewise, every nation set an aim each to have prosperity. In fact, the way to a prosperous nation is very short, smooth and straight. All the ethnic nationals should choose such a way to march into prosperity. If they set aside the hatred, they will see the best way to a prosperous nation.

Act now to provide COVID-19 vaccines for all: ECOSOC President

The ECOSOC President urged the international community to combat rising poverty and hunger through measures that include social protection and relief programmes. Greater access to advanced technologies and innovations, particularly digital technologies, is another priority, as they are vital to achieving the SDGs and climate goals.

ENSURING COVID-19 vaccines for all will be critical if the world is to defeat the pandemic, the President of the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC), Muneer Akram, said on Friday in his address to the closing of its high-level segment.

ECOSOC is one of the six main organs of the UN, and the pandemic is unfolding during its 75th anniversary.

Reflecting on the past year, Mr. Akram recalled how the Council responded to the crisis, and climate and development challenges, including through drawing attention to the special needs of the world's least developed nations.

He urged countries to build on convergence and consensus achieved to confront major tasks ahead, starting with ensuring everyone, everywhere, is protected against the virus.

"Universal and affordable access to COVID-19 vaccines is essential to defeat the virus and to revive global trade, investment and growth. We have agreed on what needs to be done. We must now do it," he said.

Keep climate finance commitment

ECOSOC promotes collective action for a sustainable world.

The meeting was held one day after the conclusion of its annual High Level Political Forum (HLPF) to review progress towards achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

Developing countries will need $4.3 trillion to recover from the triple crises and to realize the 17 goals by 2030.

Mr. Akram welcomed plans to create $650 billion in Special Drawing Rights (SDRs), a type of reserve foreign asset developed by the International Monetary Fund (IMF), among other debt relief initiatives.

On climate change, he highlighted the critical need for developed countries to fulfill their commitment to provide $100 billion annually in climate finance.

"Scaled-up investment in sustainable infrastructure, an estimated requirement of $1 trillion per year, is essential also for

Fight hunger and poverty

The ECOSOC President urged the international community to combat rising poverty and hunger through measures that include social protection and relief programmes.

Greater access to advanced technologies and innovations, particularly digital technologies, is another priority, as they are vital to achieving the SDGs and climate goals.

Mr Akram also stressed the need to mobilize the political will to address structural and systemic barriers to equitable growth and development, namely unequal financial, tax and trade regimes.

'Deeply negative impact' of COVID pandemic, reverses SDG progress

For many developing nations, "the pandemic is still raging, people are still dying at unacceptably high levels and economies are in dire straits", Ms Mohammed said.

CLOSING a key international development forum on Thursday, the deputy UN chief observed that a year of "immense challenges" has reversed progress on meeting the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

After eight "solid days" of deliberations at the High-Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development (HLPF), Amina Mohammed attributed the COVID pandemic to "a reversal of SDG progress in some areas, and delayed action on many of the major transitions required to meet our 2030 goals".

She said the pandemic has had a "deeply negative impact" on health and well-being; employment, businesses, incomes, education; and human rights, with "a particularly damaging effect on women and girls".

Building on emergency actions

Throughout the Forum, during which nine Global Goals and 47 Voluntary National Review outcomes were examined in depth, many participants observed that some of the measures put in place during the pandemic could provide a foundation for SDG progress.

Ms. Mohammed gave the examples of digital learning, which could help to transform education more broadly, along with building on critical fiscal support many countries had provided to their economy, jobs and people.

"Governments should now consider whether some of these measures can be integrated into comprehensive social protection systems", said the UN official.

Recover, restart

Recovery efforts can be designed both to restart economies and accelerate SDG implementation.

Ms. Mohammed said that stimulus packages and Special Drawing Rights for foreign exchange reserves, can be leveraged to advance gender equality, boost investment in education, health and social protection. They could also be used to accelerate climate change mitigation and generate decent jobs.

But there can be no pandemic recovery without "international solidarity and cooperation", including through climate finance and financing for development, she added.

Pandemic 'still raging'

For many developing nations, "the pandemic is still raging, people are still dying at unacceptably high levels and economies are in dire straits", Ms Mohammed said.

"We must support these countries in their response to the COVID-19 pandemic and in recovering better to accelerate SDG implementation", she underscored.

While this applies "first and foremost" to ensuring universal access to lifesaving vaccines, she stressed that it also extends to delivering "a financial lifeline" for those States faced with major debt pressures as well as for mobilizing resources, technology, know-how and part-

I say what I see:

By Oung Moun Moun

AFTER I had read the news article: Pacific islands Wallis and Futuna branded Covid-free on The Global New Light of Myanmar the other day, I tapped my fingers on computer keyboards browsing through the google search to find out where the islands were. It's officially named the Territory of the Wallis and Futuna that is a French remote island just with a population of 11,500. They have declared themselves Covid-free as they have had no cases at all since 1 April.

A total of 5,497 new cases has been reported so far in Myanmar, accordingly to the Ministry of Health and Sports. There have been 224,226 Covid-positive patients and the fatalities reached 4,769, the ministry data further vindicated. So sad! The pathogen causes patients oxygen deficiency in their blood. You see! People are now adamantly grabbing oxygen cylinders from wherever they can get. Some are donating oxygen to fill in different sorts of cylinders — 40 litres, 10 litres and so on.

I had also read one of the encouraging news stories that two bowlers with a capacity of 20 metric tons of liquid oxygen each arrived in Yangon the other day. Those are the first batch of 26 similar tankers of liquid oxygen purchased from foreign countries. The amount of 20 tonnes can fill in approximately over 3,000 40-litre oxygen cylinders. We hope for a sense of relief among people in dire need of oxygen for severe patients of their loved ones. Apart from oxygen, we all need to be very (very) careful to protect ourselves and thereby prevent from the disease others.

I do wish all Myanmar people good health and wealth.

Biden, Xi join APEC talks on pandemic response

PACIFIC Rim leaders including US President Joe Biden and Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping began virtual talks Friday to discuss urgent joint action against the Covid-19 pandemic and resulting economic crisis.

The unprecedented online talks involving heads of state from the 21-nation Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) group was called at short notice by New Zealand Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern.

Ardern is scheduled to host the annual summit of APEC leaders in November but said the extraordinary circumstances created by Covid-19 meant some issues needed immediate attention.

to get APEC leaders together to discuss how we get our region through the health crisis and accelerate economic recovery,” she said ahead of the meeting, which began at 11 pm (1100 GMT).

Ardern said better cross-border cooperation was needed as the world battles fast-spreading virus variants and an economic shock not seen since World War II.

“Responding collectively is vital to accelerate the economic recovery for the region,” she said.

The White House said in the lead-up to the talks that the United States intended to serve “as an arsenal of vaccines for the region”.

US officials also said it would be Biden’s first chance to meet many of the APEC leaders since he took office, allowing him to underline Washington’s broad goal for “a free and open Indo-Pacific”.

APEC nations collectively account for 60 per cent of global GDP, with Russian President Vladimir Putin, Japanese Prime Minister Yoshihide Suga and Australia’s Scott Morrison among those attending the virtual meeting.

But most attention will be on whether Biden and Xi can set aside the rivalries of an increasingly fraught US-China relationship to cooperate on Ardern’s agenda.

Washington has accused Beijing of lacking transparency about the origins of the pandemic, adding to existing tensions on issues such as trade tariffs and the treatment of Uyghurs in Xinjiang.

Ardern has signalled she wants greater powers for the World Health Organization, as well as the establishment of cross-border systems to rapidly identify and respond to future pandemics. — AFP ■

All 18 on missing Russian plane found alive in ‘miracle’

RUSSIAN officials hailed a “miracle” on Friday (July 16) after a passenger plane made an emergency landing in a Siberian field and all 18 people on board emerged, suffering only cuts and bruises.

The An-28 plane, operated by Siberian Light Aviation (SiLA), was flying from the town of Kedrov to Tomsk when communication was lost, Governor Sergei Zhvachkin’s office said.

The emergencies ministry announced later that the plane had been found, apparently after making a “hard landing”, and that survivors had been spotted.

The aviation agency said the plane had been found 155 kilometres from the airstrip in Tomsk.

Mr Zhvachkin’s office announced that everyone on board, including three crew, were alive and that medics had “recorded mainly bruises and abrasions”.

“We all believed in a miracle. And thanks to the professionalism of the pilots, it came true: everyone is alive,” the governor said.

Images circling on social media showed the plane flipped upside down with dirt inside the cabin and its nose destroyed.

Mr Zhvachkin said that all of the passengers and crew would be taken to the regional capital Tomsk, where they would be examined by doctors.

The Interfax news agency cited a local official as saying that six passengers refused to take a helicopter from the crash site to Tomsk and would be travelling instead by minibus. — AFP ■

A Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer with Reuters news agency was killed Friday covering fighting between Afghan security forces and the Taliban near a border crossing with Pakistan, the media outlet reported, citing an army commander.

Afghan forces were fighting to retake Spin Boldak when Danish Siddiqui and a senior officer were killed in Taliban crossfire, the commander told Reuters.

The agency reported Siddiqui, an Indian national, had been embedded with Afghan special forces in the former Taliban bastion of Kandahar this week.

“We are urgently seeking more information, working with authorities in the region,” Reuters president Michael Friedenberg and editor-in-chief Alessandra Galloni said in a statement.

“Danish was an outstanding journalist, a devoted husband and father, and a much-loved colleague. Our thoughts are with his family at this terrible time.”

Reuters said Siddiqui, 38, had earlier reported being wounded in the arm by shrapnel while covering the fighting. — AFP ■

S.African township becomes ‘racial’ flashpoint in Rainbow Nation

ARMED residents kept warm by the fire while guarding a roadblock outside a township that has become a flashpoint between black South Africans and counterparts of Indian origin.

Since looting erupted in South Africa on July 9, many neighbourhoods have mobilized to defend homes, businesses and infrastructure against looters.

But in Phoenix, a suburb of the city of Durban in Kwa-Zulu-Natal (KZN) province, the unrest has spiralled into confrontation among two ethnic groups in the so-called Rainbow Nation.

Twenty people there have died, Police Minister Bheki Cele said on Thursday, in some of the worst violence since the end of white-minority rule in 1994.

Young men of South Asian heritage brandished handguns and machetes at their checkpoint, where they said they deterred troublemakers. But the group has been accused of racism and mistreatment — of wrongly barring individuals from the area simply for being black — and others have been criticized for vigilante justice.

“We are not racist,” insisted Karim Loven, the head of a local policing forum. — AFP ■

Diplomats from 48 countries oppose politicization of COVID-19 origin-tracing

PERMANENT representatives of 48 countries to the United Nations Office at Geneva (UNOG) on Thursday addressed to World Health Organization (WHO) Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, and voiced their support to advance the study of origins of SARS-CoV-2 globally and opposed the politicization of the origin-tracing.

The diplomats highlighted that COVID-19 is a common enemy of mankind, and it can only be defeated by solidarity and cooperation of the international community.

Cooperation on the study of origins of the SARS-CoV-2 is an important aspect of the fight against the COVID-19 pandemic, they said in the letter. "As provided in the resolution WHA 73.1 entitled COVID-19 response, the purpose of the origin-tracing is to identify the zoonotic source of the virus and the route of introduction to the human population, including the possible role of intermediate hosts."

The diplomats stressed that the study of origins is "a matter of science, and should be conducted around the world by scientists."

"Origin-tracing shall not be politicized," they said. "Otherwise the global cooperation on the study of origins will be hindered, and the global anti-pandemic efforts will be jeopardized."

The diplomats also welcomed the publication of the Joint Report of the WHO-convened global study of origins of SARS-CoV-2 and appreciated the hard work of the scientists of the joint experts group, stressing that the global study on origin-tracing "should be based on and guided by this scientific report".

They called on the WHO Secretariat, in accordance with the relevant resolutions of the World Health Assembly (WHA), to cooperate with member states to advance the study of origins around the world, and take effective measures to prevent political factors from interfering with the study process.— Xinhua ■

COVID-19 deaths in Africa surge more than 40% over previous week

AFRICA has recorded a 43% week-on-week rise in COVID-19 deaths, as hospital admissions increase rapidly and countries face shortages in oxygen and intensive care beds.

Fatalities increased to 6,273 in the week ending on 11 July 2021 from 4,384 deaths in the previous week. Africa is now less than 1% shy of the weekly peak reached in January when 6,294 deaths were recorded. Namibia, South Africa, Tunisia, Uganda and Zambia accounted for 83% of the new deaths recorded in the past week. The continent's case fatality rate, which is the proportion of deaths among confirmed cases, currently stands at 2.6% against the global average of 2.2%.

COVID-19 cases have risen for eight straight weeks, topping 6 million on 13 July 2021. Over the past month, Africa recorded an additional 1 million cases. This is the shortest time it's taken so far to add 1 million cases. Comparatively, it took around three months to move from 4 million to 5 million cases. This COVID-19 surge is the fastest the continent has seen.

The surge is driven by public fatigue with key health measures and an increased spread of variants. To date, the Delta variant, which is currently the most transmissible of all variants, has been detected in 21 African countries, while the Alpha variant is in 35 countries and Beta in 30.

"Deaths have climbed steeply for the past five weeks.

This is a clear warning sign that hospitals in the most impacted countries are reaching a breaking point," said Dr Matshidiso Moeti, World Health Organization (WHO) Regional Director for Africa. "Under-resourced health systems in countries are facing dire shortages of the health workers, supplies, equipment and infrastructure needed to provide care to severely ill COVID-19 patients.

Hospital admissions in around 10 countries have increased rapidly and at least six countries are facing shortages of intensive care unit beds. Demand for medical oxygen has spiked and is now estimated to be 50% higher than at the same time in 2020, yet supply has not kept up. — WHO ■

Homes raided in probe of former UK Health Secretary Hancock's COVID-19 breach leak

UK regulators raided two homes Thursday as part of a probe into how politically explosive security camera footage showing former Health Secretary Matt Hancock kissing an aide in his office was leaked to a newspaper.

A still image of the footage, published on the front page of The Sun tabloid last month, led Hancock to admit he broke government coronavirus restrictions while having an affair with the advisor and to resign from the government.

Several weeks on from the controversy, the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO), a media and data regulator, confirmed it was investigating an alleged data breach over how the image was accessed.

The ICO said private contractor Emcor Group, which manages the Department of Health and Social Care's closed-circuit TV services, had "submitted a breach report".

The report alleges "images were taken from the DHSC CCTV system without consent" it added.

"As part of the investigation, ICO teams searched two residential properties in the south of England on Thursday 15 July 2021."

"Personal computer equipment and electronic devices were seized as part of the operation."

Steve Eckersley, director of investigations at the regulator, said: "It's vital that all people, including employees and visitors to public buildings, have trust and confidence in the protection of their personal data captured by CCTV. — AFP ■

Paytm's expected $2.2bn IPO fuels India market

DIGITAL payments pioneer Paytm on Friday took a major step towards launching India's biggest initial public offering, telling regulators that it would seek to sell $2.2 billion in shares. The offering is the latest in a wave of IPOs in India, with food delivery firm Zomato this week raising $1.3 billion.

Paytm is backed by the Ant Group of Chinese tycoon Jack Ma, which holds a nearly 30 per cent stake, along with Masayoshi Son's Softbank Vision Fund, Berkshire Hathaway and other high-profile investors.

Founder and chief executive Vijay Shekhar Sharma, who has a net worth of $2.3 billion according to Forbes, holds just under 10 per cent of the company. As a part of the IPO, Paytm will issue fresh shares worth 83 billion rupees and sell an equal amount of shares through a sale offer, according to its prospectus filed with Indian regulators. — AFP ■

Stocks sag on concerns about Covid, global growth

GLOBAL stocks mostly fell Friday as worries about rising Covid-19 cases and their effect on global growth weighed on sentiment, pushing Wall Street into the red for the week.

After data showed an unexpected rise in US retail sales, Wall Street pushed higher at the open. But markets soon tumbled into the red and losses grew as the day progressed.

Analysts pointed to profit taking as a factor in Friday's session and throughout the week following records earlier in the month.

Investors are "continuing to trim winning positions" as they await more clarity on the course of the economy, said Briefing.com analyst Patrick O'Hare. The broad-based S&P 500 ended down 0.8 per cent at 4,327.16, taking its weekly losses to around one percent.—AFP ■

APEC leaders vow to accelerate equitable access to COVID-19 vaccines

LEADERS from 21 Pacific-Rim economies including Japan, the United States and China pledged on Friday to beef up the availability of COVID-19 vaccines to tackle the coronavirus pandemic and to provide the necessary ongoing support for their economies to recover.

"We will only overcome this health emergency by accelerating equitable access to safe, effective, quality-assured and affordable COVID-19 vaccines," the leaders of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum said in a statement issued after their informal virtual summit.

Emphasizing the role of extensive immunization as a global public good, they also vowed to "redouble our efforts to expand

Foreign luxury cars see brisk sales in Japan amid pandemic

FOREIGN luxury cars priced at more than 10 million yen ($90,830) in Japan are becoming popular among wealthy people who cannot travel abroad amid the coronavirus pandemic and who are willing to spend money on the back of higher global share prices.

Domestic sales of luxury foreign-brand vehicles such as Italy's Ferrari and Britain's Bentley hit record highs in June since 1988, when comparable data became available, industry data showed.

The trend clearly contrasts with worsening living conditions for some people, including part-time and nonregular workers, as the spread of the coronavirus dealt a blow to employment in the service and other business sectors.

Sales of foreign-made luxury passenger cars priced at 10 million yen or more surged 60.9 per cent to 3,336 units in June from a year earlier, exceeding the previous year's level every month since the beginning of this year, according to the Japan Automobile Importers Association.

Sales in 2020 were also solid, increasing 0.5 per cent from the previous year to 22,712 units, even though the economy was significantly damaged by the coronavirus pandemic.

Last month, sales of Ferrari jumped 80.6 per cent from a year earlier to 121 units, while those of Bentley expanded 23.9 per cent to 83 units. Sales of Germany's BMW Alpina more than tripled from a year earlier, while those of Britain's Aston Martin more than doubled and Britain's Land Rover climbed 90.1 per cent, all of them logging their highest sales for June, according to the association. — Kyodo News ■

US warns of 'growing risks' for business in Hong Kong

THE United States on Friday warned its business community of growing risks of operating in Hong Kong following a clampdown by China in the major financial hub.

In a long-awaited advisory that has already been denounced by China, US government agencies led by the State Department told entrepreneurs that they face particular risks from the imposition a year ago of a draconian new security law.

The advisory said there were "growing risks" that "could adversely affect businesses and individuals operating in Hong Kong."

"As a result of these changes, they should be aware of potential reputational, regulatory, financial and, in certain instances, legal risks associated with their Hong Kong operations," it said.

The advisory acknowledged that Hong Kong, a former British colony handed back to China in 1997, "retains many economic distinctions" from the mainland including stronger protections of intellectual property.

But it pointed to a changing climate under the national security law including the arrest of one US citizen -- John Clancey, a prominent human rights lawyer.

Teeth gritted, Spain tourism rides 'Covid rollercoaster'

THE prospects for Spain's tourism sector are getting bleaker, with European reservations slowing over soaring Covid cases, but industry figures hope the summer won't resemble the catastrophe of 2020.

The Exceltur tourism association said this week that it had seen a sudden slowdown in reservations after the French and German governments urged their citizens to avoid Spain, which has seen a recent surge in infections.

"Bookings were going well but have slowed down, especially from France," Jorge Marichal, head of the Spanish Confederation of Hotels and Tourist Accommodation (CEHAT), told Spain's RTVE public broadcaster.

"The situation changes very quickly and within hours. The whole summer will be the same — a roller-coaster ride in which we will have to make decisions as we go along."

The season started on a positive note: bookings at seaside hotels — which in April and May were 80 per cent lower than in 2019 — improved in June, meaning the figure was only 60 per cent below the same period two years ago, Exceltur said.

At the start of July, the government restated its aim of drawing 45 million visitors this year, around half the number in 2019.

Before the pandemic hit in spring 2020, Spain was the world's second-most popular tourist destination after France, and the sector accounted for around 12 per cent of the economy.

But the situation has deteriorated rapidly following a mass outbreak among students celebrating in the Balearic Islands that quickly spread across the country.

On 8 July, France warned its nationals against travelling to Spain or Portugal on holiday because of a spike in Covid-19 cases caused by the highly-contagious Delta variant.

The move sparked outrage across the Pyrenees although France's top diplomat later modified the warning, saying only that vaccination was a must before travelling to Spain.

Germany also declared all of Spain to be a risk area last week, including its two popular archipelagos — the Canary Islands in the Atlantic and the Balearic Isles in the Mediterranean. — AFP ■

Ford recalls 775,000 Explorer SUVs

Ford recalled 775,000 Explorer sport utility vehicles built between 2013 and 2017, an earlier generation than this model, which was unveiled in 2019. PHOTO: AFP/FILE

FORD announced Friday it is recalling about 775,000 Explorer vehicles due to a problem in the rear of the car that can reduce steering control and increase crash risk.

The automaker will address a joint issue in the popular sport utility vehicle that can lead to a fractured "toe link" in the back of the auto, the company said in a press release.

"Affected vehicles may experience a clunk noise, unusual handling, or a misaligned rear wheel," Ford said. A fracture "significantly diminishes steering control, increasing the risk of a crash," the company.

More than 85 per cent of the affected autos are in North America, with the rest coming from China and other international markets. — AFP ■

US sees surprise retail sales increase in June

AGAINST expectations, US retail sales rose in June, the Commerce Department said Friday, with shoppers stepping up purchases at department stores and electronics outlets as pandemic business restrictions ease.

Sales rose 0.6 per cent last month to $621.3 billion, beating forecasts for a decline after they fell by a downwardly revised 1.7 per cent in May, the data said.

Sales jumped the most at department stores, electronics and appliance retailers and clothing outlets, as well as at gas stations, likely a consequence of rising oil prices and an increase in domestic travel.

Motor vehicle and parts dealers, however, saw a two per cent fall in sales amid soaring used car prices and a shortage of semiconductors that's forced some manufacturers to idle assembly lines.

"Core" retail sales excluding gas stations and the auto sector rose 1.1 per cent. "To see core sales rising so strongly in June is a positive sign that consumers feel confident and are still cash-rich, in aggregate," said Ian Shepherdson of Pantheon Macroeconomics.

Government stimulus payments combined with an easing of Covid-19 business restrictions has pushed retail sales higher in recent months, though the growth has been uneven. Gas stations saw sales rise 2.5 per cent, electronics and appliance stores 3.3 per cent and general merchandise stores climbed 1.9 per cent — within which department stores grew 5.9 per cent. — AFP ■

THE funeral for Haiti's slain president Jovenel Moise will take place on July 23, officials said Friday, as the troubled nation's first democratically elected leader Jean-Bertrand Aristide arrived home after receiving medical care in Cuba.

The state funeral services will take place in Cap-Haitien, a historic city in the north of Haiti, which has slid dangerously toward disorder since Moise was gunned down in his home in the early hours of July 7.

Biden says social media misinformation on Covid 'killing people'

PRESIDENT Joe Biden said Friday that social media disinformation about Covid-19 and vaccinations is "killing people".

"They're killing people. The only pandemic we have is among the unvaccinated. And they're killing people," he told reporters at the White House as he left for a weekend at the presidential retreat in Camp David.

The White House is turning up the pressure on social media companies, especially Facebook, to weed out what officials say is widely spread disinformation on coronavirus vaccinations.

According to US health officials, a current spike in Covid-19 deaths and illnesses around the country is almost exclusively hitting people who remain unvaccinated.

"There is a clear message that is coming through: this is becoming a pandemic of the unvaccinated," Centres for Disease Control and Prevention director Rochelle Walensky told reporters on Friday.

Many of those refusing vaccinations, despite the ease of availability throughout the United States, have said they do not trust the shots.—AFP ■

Pilgrims head to Mecca for 2nd pandemic hajj

PILGRIMS will begin to arrive in the Muslim holy city of Mecca on Saturday for the second downsized hajj staged during the coronavirus pandemic with only fully vaccinated residents permitted to participate. The kingdom seeks to repeat last year's success that saw no virus outbreak during the five-day ritual but nonetheless caused resentment among Muslims abroad.

It is allowing 60,000 residents of Saudi Arabia to participate through a lottery, higher than in 2020 but drastically lower than in normal times. Religious rites will begin on Sunday.

Among the chosen ones was Ameen, a 58-year-old Indian oil contractor based in the eastern city of Dammam, who was picked for the ritual along with his wife and three adult children.

"We are overjoyed," said Ameen, who only gave his first name.

"So many of our friends and relatives were rejected," he told AFP.

In 2019, some 2.5 million Muslims from around the world participated in the annual hajj -- a key pillar of Islam that is a must for able-bodied Muslims at least once in their lifetime.

Earlier this month, the hajj ministry said it was working on the "highest levels of health precautions" in light of the pandemic and the emergence of new variants.—AFP ■

Two charged in plot to attack Democratic HQ in California

TWO men with extremist militia links have been charged with amassing an arsenal of guns and pipe bombs to attack the California headquarters of the Democratic Party, the US Justice Department said Friday.

Ian Benjamin Rogers, 45, and Jarrod Copeland, 37, began planning the attack on the Sacramento headquarters shortly after Republican president Donald Trump's loss to Joe Biden in the November 3 election last year, according to the indictment unsealed in San Francisco federal court.

Their plan gained pace

after the January 6 Trump-inspired insurrection at the US Capitol in Washington, which temporarily halted the certification of Biden's election victory.

"I want to blow up a Democrat building bad," Rogers told Copeland in a message.

In their messages Rogers and Copeland expressed hopes of igniting a "revolution" with their attack.

"After the 20th we go to war," Rogers wrote to Copeland, referring to the January 20th inauguration of Biden as president.

The Justice Department unveiled an expanded indictment against the two, after having first charged Rogers alone in January.—AFP ■

In Los Angeles, 'tiny homes' spring up for homeless people

Los Angeles has established several "tiny home villages", including this one in the Tarzana neighbourhood, to help the homeless. PHOTO: AFP

IN a parking lot in Los Angeles, a village of miniature prefab houses has sprung up, one of several sites in America's second-largest city where so-called "tiny homes" are being put up to help the homeless get back on their feet.

The City of Angels has a large homeless population, second only to New York. Tens of thousands live rough -- their tents, and their distress, are plain for any resident or visitor to see.

In the Tarzana neighborhood, 76 tiny homes paid for by the city have been erected. Each is 64 square feet (six square meters), and is equipped with two beds and shelving as well as air conditioning and heating.

Each one costs $6,500 and can be set up in just 90 minutes. Toilets and showers are shared, and state-of-the-art washing machines face large, bright orange tables under umbrellas. The set-up feels a bit like a campground.

Zuri-Kinshasa Maria Terry, 46, has just moved into the Tarzana development. The former stripper says she ended up on the streets a year ago, after two weeks in intensive care because she had contracted Covid-19, and waited two months for the tiny home village to open.—AFP ■

Domestic politics tie Biden's hands on Cuba

HOPES that President Joe Biden would ease draconian trade and travel restrictions with Cuba laid down by his predecessor are caught hostage to domestic politics and the vocal Cuban-American community opposed to Havana, analysts say.

Biden was vice-president when Barack Obama thawed relations with the Caribbean country in 2014, reopening diplomatic missions, cutting back a decades-old embargo, permitting US tourists to visit and imports from the communist-controlled island.

But the support inside the United States for last week's anti-government protests across Cuba, and the tight math surrounding Biden's Democrats' control of Congress, explain why he has not reversed the extreme punitive measures against Havana put in place by president Donald Trump over the past four years.

Ahead of the presidential election last year, Biden said he would reverse Trump's policies. But pressed on Thursday about whether he would ease the US embargo, Biden demurred.

"Cuba is unfortunately a failed state, and (is) repressing their citizens," he told reporters.

"There are a number of things that we would consider doing to help the people of Cuba, but it would require a different circumstance or a guarantee that they would not be taken advantage of by the government." 'Challenge the regime'

Kabul, Taliban negotiators to meet in Qatar as Afghan fighting rages

REPRESENTATIVES of the Afghan government and the Taliban were due to meet in Doha for talks on Saturday as violence rages in the country while foreign forces finalize their withdrawal.

The two sides have been meeting on and off for months in the Qatari capital but the talks have lost momentum as the insurgents have made battlefield gains.

Several high-ranking officials including former president Hamid Karzai and former chief executive Abdullah Abdullah were heading to Doha on Friday afternoon.

"The high level delegation is here to talk to both sides, guide them and support the (government) negotiating team in terms of speeding up the talks and have progress," said Najia Anwari, the spokeswoman for the Afghan government negotiating team in Doha.

"We expect that it (will) speed the talks and... in a short time, both sides will reach a result and we will witness a durable and dignified peace in Afghanistan," she told AFP. — AFP ■

Cyprus says police patrol boat warned off by Turkish coastguard

CYPRriot police said the Turkish coastguard fired warning shots at one of its vessels patrolling for undocumented migrants off the island's north coast on Friday, as tensions mount ahead of a visit by the Turkish president to the breakaway north.

The Cyprus government said it was preparing a protest to the United Nations over the incident, which it said was the first of its kind.

But a Turkish diplomatic source denied that either the Turkish or the Turkish Cypriot coastguard had fired on any Greek Cypriot vessel.

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan is due in the breakaway north of the island next week to mark the anniversary of Turkey's 1974 invasion, a visit Greek Cypriots see as inflammatory with reunification talks in limbo.

The Cypriot police vessel spotted the Turkish coastguard some 11 nautical miles from the small fishing port of Kato Pyrgos, just west of the UN-patrolled armistice line separating government-held territory from the north, the Cyprus News Agency reported. — AFP ■

Belarus opposition leader to meet White House officials next week

EXILED Belarusian opposition leader Svetlana Tikhonovskaya will meet with White House officials during her US visit next week, an administration official said Friday.

Mass anti-government demonstrations broke out in Belarus in August 2020 after President Alexander Lukashenko, who has ruled Belarus with an iron grip for nearly three decades, claimed a sixth term in power.

Tikhonovskaya, until then a stay-at-home mom, ran in place of her detained husband and claimed to have easily won but allegations of fraud mushroomed and Lukashenko declared himself the winner. Tikhonovskaya was forced to choose exile and now lives in Lithuania. — AFP ■

Biden to host Iraqi PM at White House on July 26

PRESIDENT Joe Biden will welcome Iraqi Prime Minister Mustafa al-Kadhemi to the White House this month, his office said Friday.

The 26 July meeting will "highlight the strategic partnership between the United States and Iraq," the White House said in a statement.

Kadhemi and US envoy Brett McGurk discussed the withdrawal of troops from Iraq Thursday in Baghdad.

Some 3,500 foreign troops are still on Iraqi territory, including 2,500 Americans, who have been posted to help fight the Islamic State group since 2014.

In Washington, Kadhemi is expected to push for a concrete timetable of American troop withdrawal. The implementation of their departure could take years.

Iraq, long an arena for bitter rivalry between the US and Iran despite their shared enmity towards IS, has seen growing numbers of rocket and drone attacks on American targets in recent months. — AFP ■

Italy's president honours Euro 2020 winners

ITALY'S president Sergio Mattarella has conferred 'Order of Merit of the Italian Republic' honours on coach Roberto Mancini and his Euro 2020 winning football team.

The honours were "a sign of recognition of the sporting values and national spirit that animated the Italian victory at the European championship," a statement from the Italian residential palace said on Friday.

Mancini and Italian FA president Gabriele Gravina were conferred with the honour of 'Grand Officer of the Republic' with team manager Gabriele Orioli and head of delegation Gianluca Vialli receiving 'Commander of the Republic' awards.

Captain Giorgio Chiellini was named an 'Officer' and along with all the team were given the honour of 'Cavaliere' (Knights).

Kane 'our player' says new Spurs boss Nuno

TOTTENHAM manager Nuno Espirito Santo issued a hands off warning to clubs interested in Harry Kane on Friday amid speculation over the England captain's future.

Kane is reportedly keen to leave his boyhood club this summer in the search for the first silverware of his career. Despite Kane's efforts in winning the Premier League Golden Boot last season, Spurs have missed out on Champions League football for the second consecutive season.

And England's heartbreaking Euro 2020 final defeat to Italy on penalties means the 27-year-old is still yet to win a major trophy in his career for club or country.

Premier League champions Manchester City have been strongly linked with a move for Kane as they look to replace all-time top goalscorer Sergio Aguero, who has moved to Barcelona on a free transfer.

But former Wolves boss Nuno, who was appointed as Jose Mourinho's successor, is expecting his prized asset to return to Tottenham for pre-season training after a short break following his efforts at the European Championship. — AFP ■

Women's football goes pro in Japan

AS global interest in women's football approaches fever pitch, former champions Japan are eyeing a return to glory with the country's first professional league for female players.

A decade since winning the 2011 Women's World Cup, Japan has fallen behind, even as the sport becomes more popular and lucrative elsewhere.

But the new league's organizers hope it will bring prestige and fresh talent to Japanese clubs when it kicks off in September, tapping into growing enthusiasm across the region ahead of the 2023 World Cup in Australia and New Zealand.

"We had a sense of urgency, as we felt that Japan would be left behind globally if it didn't go pro now," said Kikuko Okajima, chair of the WE League — short for Women Empowerment.

"We're in the middle of a pandemic, but we decided not to delay the tournament and to launch the pro-league," she told AFP.

Japan is currently 10th in the FIFA women's rankings, behind several European teams and the number-one US side, who were led to victory at the last World Cup by star winger Megan Rapinoe.

The national team — nicknamed "Nadeshiko" after a pink flower that symbolises femininity in Japan — won silver at the London 2012 Olympics but failed to qualify for Rio, and its chances of a medal this summer on home turf are slim. — AFP ■
