medicines in regions and states because some shops sell the stocks at higher prices and close the sales with storage of medicines to be shortages. The government allows the import of necessary medicines without any restrictions. Medicines must be distributed to the people as quickly as possible.

It is necessary to decide whether the patients who arrive at the hospitals are needed to be admitted depending on their health conditions. Treatment must be given to needy persons without fail. Systematic arrangements must be made for oxygen production, importation and supply.

With regard to vaccination, easing tension and preparedness for natural disasters, the Senior General said: “Infection rate is down but it is not to rest assured. Vaccines must be given to people as quickly as possible. It is necessary to help the assigned persons for vaccination. Furthermore, as the pharmacy shops close the sales due to fear and the authorities are to organize them to open the sales of medicines at fair prices under the management with a conscience. In addition, preparations must be made for natural disasters. If natural disasters happened in a place in the past, preparatory tasks should be undertaken to reduce loss and damage when the disaster actually happens. In fact, disasters cannot be banned, so we need to consider the best way to have the least loss and damage.”

The participants discussed plans to transport patients to respective centres depending on the medical tests, the extension of confirmed patient centres, the start of vaccination, smooth import of medicines and oxygen, issuance of pension and salaries, and soonest taking out of medicines from the ports to distribute them to the people at fair prices.

In his address, the Senior General said it is necessary to contact India to soonest get the imported vaccines and continue further import of vaccines from other countries. At present, officials are to supervise the prevention of power outages for continuously supplying oxygen to the patients.

In his additional speech, the Senior General said, “I’d like to emphasize Yangon Region where the death rate is the highest. Its population density is the highest. The statistics in our hand showed the second-largest death rate was in Mandalay Region. But you all do not need to be worried but you

The Senior General stressed the need to avoid interruption of commodity flow and trading among the townships while taking preventive measures of possible natural disasters.

It is necessary to decide whether the patients who arrive at the hospitals are needed to be admitted depending on their health conditions. Treatment must be given to needy persons without fail. Systematic arrangements must be made for oxygen production, importation and supply.

all need to take more care of the disease. As the density is high, oxygen must be given to the patients. So, people say the hospitals such as Yangon General Hospital and Nay Pyi Taw General Hospital are crowded. So, we open the quarantine centres, positive patient centres and treatment centres where medical doctors must be assigned. If necessary, treatment centres must be extended in Yangon and Mandalay regions. On the other hand, medical staff must be assigned there in real-time. It is necessary to immediately make decisions for the extension of centres and the assignment of staff.

Regarding the import of medicines, it is necessary to produce the basic household medicines at home. Encouragement must be given to the production of quality and high potent medicines at industrial zones and factories.

The Senior General stressed the need to avoid interruption of commodity flow and trading among the townships while taking preventive measures of possible natural disasters. — MNA

Civil servants in Nay Pyi Taw receive Covid-19 vaccines

UNION-LEVEL department staff and Nay Pyi Taw-level staff in Nay Pyi Taw Council Area yesterday received Covid-19 vaccines named Sinopharm at No. (3) Basic Education High School, Pobbathiri Township in Nay Pyi Taw.

The Covid-19 vaccination started in the morning and was carried out by healthcare workers from 1000-bed Military Hospital No. 2, Nay Pyi Taw and five groups of 500 Union-level staff and 1,000 Nay Pyi Taw-level staff received vaccinations.

“I’m just happy to be vaccinated against the Covid-19 virus at a time when the outbreak is on the rise. People who have not been vaccinated are also encouraged to get vaccinated.

If we want to protect ourselves and our families, we need to be vaccinated. Once the disease is decreased, it will be able to improve the health, education and socio-economic life of people. We also hope that more Covid-19 vaccines will arrive in Myanmar soon,” said a staff member who came to inject the vaccination.

“We have been happy to hear that the Covid-19 vaccine will be given to us. I also reminded the staff around me to get vaccinated regularly. When the vaccine started today, everyone was brought in. I hope my family will get vaccinated soon. I hope the remaining people could get the vaccines as soon as possible. I plan to travel with my family one day when the world is free of epidemics. I think getting vaccinated today is a step in the right direction for my dream. We urge all people to be vaccinated as soon as possible,” said Daw Swe Win, a staff member.

Before being administered with the Covid-19 vaccines (Sinopharm), healthcare workers took body temperature measurements and blood pressure measurements. Vaccines were given only when the blood and body pressure plus health condition is normal, healthcare officials said.

Next, staff from the administration departments, healthcare departments and education departments carried out cleaning works throughout the school compound. —Aung Thant/GNLM

Virtual coord meeting held to make voices of volunteers heard

A virtual coordination meeting to discuss Covid-19 disease prevention and control was held yesterday to identify the requirements of volunteers involved in the response process.

Union Minister for Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement Dr Thet Thet Khine, Deputy Minister U Aung Tun Khaing, Permanent Secretary and Director-General, Deputy Directors-General, volunteers working on the frontlines amid pandemic in Yangon Region and representatives from 14 charitable organizations attended the online meeting.

First, the Union Minister said that Yangon Region is densely populated and difficult to travel and thus thanked the charitable organizations for taking care of the public health at the risk of their lives.

“Mainly in the relevant townships, we would like to know the current situation of the charitable organizations on the ground as we want to know what is going on in the communities and what problems they are facing. Reporting to the relevant authorities and providing immediate assistance is also crucial,” the Union Minister added.

The Deputy Minister also called on the people to participate in the upcoming vaccination programmes as the charitable organizations are in contact with the people.

“We must work together to prevent and respond to the epidemics. In doing so, we want a network to be formed more effectively. We will take note of the submissions from the charitable representatives and submit them to the higher authorities,” the Deputy Minister continued.

Next, requirements for the volunteers including the role of volunteers plus accommodation and assistance for healthcare workers were also discussed.

Having identity cards for the volunteers, arranging PPE suits and food, solving transportation issues by having sufficient fuel for ambulances, having oxygen tanks in ambulances and providing vehicles for bringing liquid oxygen for covid-19 centres were also discussed.

Officials also focused on the volunteering network and suggestions on how to work as a team on the ground to solve the human resources problem especially for healthcare workers.

After that the Union Minister said that the presentations were very similar to the discussions between the charitable organizations and volunteers on 2 and 21 July.

“We will cooperate with the relevant departments after submitting guidance to the relevant committees regarding the requirements.

“At the national level, the Central Committee for Protection, Control and Health Care is chaired by the Chairman of the State Administration Council while the Control and Emergency Response Committee is headed by the Vice-Chairman of the State Administration Council.

“Medical reports are focal points for the Ministry of Health and Sports. To listen to the voices of volunteers and to present and integrate their needs is important.

“General Administration Departments are implementing ground security, censorship cards, foodstuffs, PPEs, health protection equipment, and motor oil in each township.

“Therefore, I wish the philanthropic brothers and sisters to cooperate closely with their respective General Administration Departments,” the Union Minister added. —MNA

3. In addition, voter lists in each township, scrutiny of the ballot papers and the voting conditions were as follows: -
- (a) The former Union Election Commission (UEC) appointed those who wish to be appointed by the region or state chief ministers as chairpersons and members of the sub-commissions.
- (b) Under the directives of the Union Government Office, a support group was formed and led by the region or state chief ministers to complete the voter lists and due to the group, there were two- or three-times duplication of voter lists.
- (c) There was mass inclusion of people without citizenship cards in the voter lists as well as there were voters in the voter lists two or three times with the same national identification card.
- (d) Following the directive issued by the former UEC to allow advance voting for voters aged 60 and above since 29-10-2020 prior to the election day, members of the NLD party victory team visited the houses during the advance voting.
- (e) Duplication of voter lists and mass inclusion of voters without a national identification card occurred because the previous UEC announced the advancing of those who couldn't return home due to the COVID-19 pandemic on 8-10-2020 and 11-10-2020.
- (f) Voters who do not have a citizenship card were allowed to cast their ballots at the polling stations with the voter IDs after the previous UEC issued a directive to enable voters who do not have a citizenship card to cast their ballots, which did not comply with the respective Hluttaw Election Laws.
- (g) With regard to the ballot papers used in polling stations used on the election day, ballots without the UEC logo were considered valid.
- (h) A large number of voter list errors in polling stations was not accidental but deliberate acts.
- (i) The NLD party also interfered in each election process including collecting voter lists, election campaigns, advance voting process and voting processes on the election day with their power.
- (j) The NLD party misused administrative power and the COVID-19 rules and regulations in electoral activities, including the campaigning of other political parties and Hluttaw Representatives to grab the State Power.
- (k) As the Multiparty Democracy General Election held on 8 November 2020 was not in compliance with the Constitution of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar, Union Election Commission Law and respective Hluttaw Election Law, in addition to the fact that it was found that the election was not free and fair, the results of the 8 November election was annulled.

Myanmar's agriculture sector is the backbone of the country's economy and it contributes to over 30 per cent of Gross Domestic Products.

FOLLOWING the closure of warehouses and commodity depots in each township triggered by the COVID-19 threat, the pulses trade is on the verge of suspension.

The domestic bean market is positively related to the law of supply and demand. The price depends on the buyers and sellers. There is no official set price, the traders stressed.

Some traders do price negotiation over the call as the warehouses and the wholesale centres are temporarily closed. Sometimes, they experience difficulties, said a trader.

As the COVID-19 infections are spiking in Myanmar, agricultural exports to China through border posts also came to an abrupt stop, resulting in the price slip in green gram, sesame and peanut.

Nonetheless, the prices of black beans and pigeon beans remain high on the back of strong demand by India. However, the pulses trading in the domestic market is nearly halted in the meantime.

More than 1.66 million tonnes of various pulses and beans were exported to foreign markets between 1 October and 9 July of the current financial year 2020-2021, with the estimated value of US$1.29 billion, the Commerce Ministry's data indicated.

Myanmar's agriculture sector is the backbone of the country's economy and it contributes to over 30 per cent of Gross Domestic Products. The country primarily cultivates paddy, corn, cotton, sugarcane, various pulses and beans. Its second-largest production is the pulses and beans, counting for 33 per cent of agricultural products and covering 20 per cent of growing acres. Among them, black gram, pigeon peas and green grams constitute 72 per cent of bean acreage. Other beans including peanut, chickpea, soybean, black-eyed beans, butter bean and rice bean are also grown in the country. – Mon Mon/GNLM

Sino-Myanmar bilateral trade exceeds US$6 bln in seven months

THE value of Myanmar's trade with China through maritime and sea trade channels amounted to over US$6.13 billion in the seven months (October-April) of the 2020-2021 Financial Year, including $3.18 billion worth of exports and $2.95 billion for import, according to data released by the Ministry of Commerce.

Myanmar primarily exports agro products to China through land borders. However, trading in agricultural products is frequently halted on account of China clamping down on illegal trade in border crossings. Furthermore, China has been stepping up border control measures to contain the spread of the COVID-19 since April-end, hindering the border trade. At present, China has banned all the border posts in wake of the COVID surge in Myanmar.

In a bid to lower trade barriers and offer relief to Myanmar traders through the border trade channel, the Ministry of Commerce, the related departments and the stakeholders have been negotiating with China counterparts.

The value of bilateral trade with China stood at $12 billion in the 2019-2020FY, $11.36 billion in the 2018-2019 FY, $6 billion in the past mini-budget period, $11.78 billion in the 2017-2018 financial year and $10.8 billion in the 2016-2017 FY respectively.

Rice, various types of peas, sesame seeds, corn, fruits and vegetables, dried tea leaves, fishery products, rubber, minerals and animal products are exported to China, whereas machinery, plastic raw materials, consumer products and electronic tools flow into Myanmar. – KH/GNLM

Everybody lives in conscience in COVID-19 infectious world

THE variant COVID-19 pandemic is still imposing threats on the global people while killing one after another. At present, some 200 million global people are infected by the disease, and more than four million people lost their lives. The infection rate is ten more times than in the past, and the death rate, three more per cent. Hence, all Myanmar people need to take special care of the infection.

Among Southeast Asian countries, Indonesia is top with infection rate. The remaining countries also face increasing infection and death rates. In fact, the infection rate and death rate are still high in developing countries because vaccination coverage reached just one per cent. The countries with declining infection rates are based on high vaccination coverage. Although vaccines can affect disease prevention to some extent, primarily, individuals need to have preventive measures with a conscience.

That is why everybody needs to protect their mouths, noses and eyes, which are the entrance of the disease. They all have to wash their hands often. Take an adequate distance among them. Take care of your health conditions, too.

Anyone suffering from scentlessness, weakness and diarrhoea need to receive a medical checkup at nearby health units. As COVID-19 is a disease affecting the respiratory tracks, patients can suffer from suffocation. Normally, everybody must have 92-95 points of oxygen. If they face declining oxygen under 90 points, it is necessary to take care of it specially.

AstraZeneca Scouring For Vaccines To Supply To SEA

Drugmaker AstraZeneca said Saturday it was searching its supply chain to find more doses of its COVID-19 vaccine for Southeast Asia, which is facing its most serious outbreak yet of the virus.

THE statement from the Anglo-Swedish company - which produces its vaccine in Thailand for use domestically and in neighbouring countries - comes in the wake of a supply shortage which has sparked heavy criticism of Thai Premier Prayut Chan-o-cha's administration.

Under the terms of AstraZeneca's agreement with Thai authorities, 180 million doses are due for production, one-third destined for the Thai market and the rest to be exported.

By the end of July AstraZeneca will have delivered 11.3 million doses for Thailand, according to James Teague, AstraZeneca's representative in the country.

Exports have still not begun, even as the region faces a particularly virulent wave of COVID-19.

"We are delivering in the fastest possible timeframe, however, given the gravity of the Delta variant, we are leaving no stone unturned to accelerate supply further still," Teague said in an "open letter to the people of Thailand".

"We are also scouring the 20+ supply chains in our worldwide manufacturing network to find additional vaccines for Southeast Asia, including Thailand."

But "a global supply crunch" for COVID-19 vaccines and a shortage of the materials required to make them made it difficult to provide a specific timeframe, he added.

Bioscience, a firm owned by King Maha Vajiralongkorn that has no track record of producing vaccines. It set out to produce vaccines for nine countries including Indonesia, the Philippines, Malaysia, as well as Thailand. Mounting Anger

Siam Bioscience has not commented on reports of insufficient production or late delivery.

But Thailand has been forced to change its vaccine strategy by importing millions of doses of Chinese vaccines.

Anger is mounting, with just five per cent of Thailand's 70 million residents fully vaccinated.

Most Thais avoid talking about it openly because of harsh lese majeste laws that make it illegal to criticize the monarch. Those that do face between three and 15 years in prison.

Former opposition leader and billionaire Thanathorn Juangroongruangkit has already been accused under the law after he said the vaccination policy was too dependent on Siam Bioscience.

Do vaccinated people need to go back to masking?

With the Delta variant pushing US Covid cases back up, fully vaccinated people are wondering whether they need to start masking indoors again.

COVID vaccines remain extremely effective against the worst outcomes of the disease -- hospitalization and death -- and breakthrough infections remain uncommon.

But experts told AFP that one size doesn't fit all, and people should consider factors like community transmission, personal risk levels, and their own risk tolerance to help decide what's right for them.

Risk low for vaccinated

The Centres for Disease Control and Prevention dropped its mask guidance for vaccinated people in May.

At the time, cases were plummeting and the administration of President Joe Biden was keen to declare a return to normal on the back of a vaccination campaign that was still going strong.

On Thursday the country registered more than 50,000 cases, a surge driven by the now overwhelmingly dominant Delta variant, the most contagious strain to date, and centred in low-vaccination regions.

Crucially, however, the rise in cases has been largely decoupled from hospitalizations and deaths.

With 80 per cent of seniors fully vaccinated, average daily deaths remain in the 200s -- much lower than the more than 3,500 deaths per day seen in the worst wave over winter.

More than 97 per cent of hospitalizations are among the unvaccinated, CDC director Rochelle Walensky said last week, while 99.5 per cent of people dying were unvaccinated, Surgeon

General Vivek Murthy said last weekend.

Walensky defended the unchanged mask guidance Thursday, stressing the agency has always said communities and individuals should consider local conditions.

"If you're in an area that has a high case rate and low rates of vaccination where Delta cases are rising, you should certainly be wearing a mask if you are unvaccinated," she said.

"If you are vaccinated, you get exceptional protection from the vaccines. But you have the opportunity to make the personal choice to add extra layers of protection if you so choose."

Why local conditions matter

Joseph Allen, an associate professor at Harvard's TH Chan School of Public Health, said he supported the CDC's view.

While the World Health Organization has urged fully vaccinated people to continue to wear masks, that is in light of the global situation where just 13.4 per cent of the world population is fully vaccinated.

"I just don't think we're at the phase in the US and other highly vaccinated countries where this top-down blanket guidance makes sense anymore," he told AFP.

"For me, the goal is and has always been with all the vaccines to prevent severe disease, and death, and that's exactly what they do really well."

As far as breakthrough infections go, a recent study of a US prison found 27 positive cases from 2,380 vaccinated individuals, or 1.1 per cent. All were asymptomatic and detected through routine screening.

Research shows that asymptomatic people are less likely to transmit, while people who develop symptoms are supposed to self-isolate.

Still, the greater the community prevalence of the virus, the more likely such breakthroughs become.

People's personal risk levels vary by their age and underlying conditions, some people may have high risk people at home they want to protect, while some just have lower risk tolerance.

On and off ramps

The divergence in case levels across the country closely correlates with vaccination rates, and parts of Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana and Florida are currently experiencing the worst spikes.

Celine Gounder, an infectious disease physician and epidemiologist, compared the situation prior to Delta surges to driving your car in your own neighbourhood, while the current scenario is closer to driving on a race car track.

"When you're driving around in your neighbourhood, a seatbelt is enough," she told AFP, with the seatbelt representing a vaccine.

"But if you're driving on a NASCAR race track, in addition to seatbelts, those drivers also have helmets, they have airbags," she added, emphasizing that masks add an additional layer of protection.

Even without the CDC, some parts of the country, like Los Angeles County and Philadelphia, have reinstated mask guidance.

Monica Gandhi, an infectious disease doctor at UC San Francisco told AFP she has been advocating for statistical benchmarks, "as the back and forth is very frustrating for people."

She suggests tying mask mandates to the local hospitalization rate -- a more reliable measure of disease prevalence than cases -- and, along with other experts, has proposed fewer than five cases per 100,000 as the threshold for resuming normal activity.

rarily closed down for seven days starting from 26 July, according to the meeting outcome of the COVID-19 control and emergency response committee.

Big protests mark global anger at Covid restrictions

MORE than 100,000 people protested in Australia, France, Italy and Greece on Saturday, sparking clashes with police as they railed against Covid-19 measures and government sanctions against the unvaccinated aimed at prodding more people into getting jabs.

Dozens of protesters were arrested after an unauthorized march in Sydney, with the city's police minister branding those who took part as "morons".

Organizers had dubbed the protest a "freedom" rally. Attendees carried signs and banners reading "Wake up Australia" and "Drain the Swamp".

In France, where police deployed teargas and water cannon against some protesters, an estimated 160,000 took to the streets in nationwide protests against President Emmanuel Macron's health pass that will drastically curtail access to restaurants and public spaces for unvaccinated people.

'Don't touch our children'

"Freedom, freedom", chanted demonstrators in France, carrying placards denouncing "Macron, Tyrant", "Big Pharma shackles freedom" or saying "No to the pass of shame".

The demonstrations highlight the conflict globally between people caught between the advice of the World Health Organization and other public health agencies and the need to earn a living -- or simply to return to a pre-pandemic lifestyle.

In Indonesia and the UK, governments have pressed ahead with easing of restrictions even in the face of surging.

Meanwhile, around 5,000 people demonstrated in Athens, carrying placards touting slogans such as, "Don't touch our children", according to an AFP journalist at the scene.

And in Italy protesters gathered in Rome to demonstrate against a mandatory "green pass" for indoor dining and entertainment. Earlier in Sydney, demonstrators pelted officers

Indian capital allows further relaxation of COVID-19 restrictions

AUTHORITIES in Delhi Saturday allowed further relaxation of COVID-19 restrictions across the Indian capital region, saying that from July 26 metro and buses will run at full capacity, while cinemas will reopen at half capacity.

The order issued by Delhi Disaster Management Authority (DDMA) said bars will also be allowed to reopen with 50 per cent of the seating capacity from noon to 10:00 pm.

As per the order, all shops will be permitted to function on all days of the week without any distinction of essential and non-essential goods and services between 10:00 am and 8:00 pm.

The gathering limit at wedding ceremonies and funerals has also been increased from 50 to 100.

"It has been observed that the number of COVID-19 patients and the positivity rate has declined considerably and the overall situation has improved," the DDMA order said, adding that due caution, however, has to be maintained for "consolidating the whole process of COVID-19 management".

The relaxations in restrictions have come amid a dip in the COVID-19 cases in the national capital. The city recorded 58 fresh COVID-19 cases and one death due to the disease during the past 24 hours, officials said Saturday morning. — Xinhua ■

Donations seek to save Tunisia from Covid catastrophe

WITH Tunisia's health system close to collapse after being overwhelmed by a surge of Covid-19 cases, other countries and even individuals have stepped in to stem the crisis.

European and Gulf nations, Tunisians abroad and ordinary citizens have organized equipment and vaccine donations that are now helping to battle the pandemic.

The small North African nation of 12 million people had been struggling to come up with the necessary vaccine doses even before Covid-19 really began to hit hard.

Now more than three million doses, most of them donated, have been sent, with the number set to reach five million by mid-August, the health ministry says.

China and the United Arab Emirates have each supplied 500,000 doses, while neighbouring Algeria gave 250,000.

Jean-Baptiste Lemoyne at the French ministry for Europe and foreign affairs told AFP that France this week alone sent more than one million AstraZeneca and Janssen doses, enough to vaccinate "a tenth of the adult population".

But either because of sluggish diplomatic efforts by Tunisia or the global shortage of doses, vaccines have arrived late.

Tunisia has received just a sixth of the number of doses promised under the Covax programme, set up to ensure a fairer distribution of Covid-19 vaccines to lower-income countries.

It now has one of the world's highest coronavirus death rates.

According to an AFP count on Wednesday based on official reports, Tunisia recorded 1.4 daily deaths per 100,000 population over the previous seven days, placing it second-worst globally on this metric after Namibia. — AFP ■

COVID-19 vaccination for children likely to start by September

DIRECTOR of India's premier health institute All India Institute of Medical Sciences in New Delhi, Randeep Guleria, Saturday said the country is likely to start vaccinating children by September.

Guleria made the remarks during an interview with a local television news channel NDTV, saying it will be an important move to break the chain of transmission.

"I think Zydus has already done the trials in children and they're waiting for the emergency authorization. The Bharat Biotech's Covaxin trials should be over by August or September, and by that time we should get the approval. Pfizer vaccine has been already approved by the FDA. Hopefully, by September, we should start vaccinating children, and that will be a big boost as far as breaking the chain of transmission is concerned," Guleria told the news channel.

According to India's federal health ministry, so far 427 million doses of COVID-19 vaccines have been administered across the country.

The ministry, however, does not give the population-wise break up of how many have received a single dose and how many were given the required two doses.

At present India is vaccinating population above 18 years of age. — AFP ■

ISRAEL'S environmental protection ministry has announced its decision to delay implementation of a draft oil transport deal with the United Arab Emirates, freezing a project that has angered environmentalists.

The deal, which followed the establishment of diplomatic ties between the UAE and Israel last year, would see Gulf oil shipped by tanker to the Red Sea port of Eilat, then piped through Israel, mainland to the Mediterranean port of Ashkelon, from where it would be shipped, in Europe.

The oil deal, involving the Israeli state-owned Europe-Asia Pipeline Company (EAPC) and an Israeli-UAE company called MED-RED Land Bridge Ltd, has not been launched.

Portugal's economic recovery must have "an eye to the future": PM

Portuguese Prime Minister Antonio Costa said on Sunday that the country's economic recovery after the pandemic crisis will be done "with an eye to the future."

"For this reason, the two great engines of this recovery are to face two major challenges that lie ahead — the climate transition and the digital transition," he said in a speech in the city of Coimbra, central Portugal.

What's more, he said, the country has an "ambitious programme" to ensure decent housing for the poorest, as well as "affordable housing for the middle class, in particular the new generations and students who need to move to attend university".

The Portuguese head of government referred to an expected investment of 2.75 billion euros (3.24 billion US dollar) foreseen in the Recovery and Resilience Plan (PRR) for the "immediate revival of the economy," as well as "solving a structural problem in the country," which is housing.

"If we want to keep the new generations among us, we have to ensure conditions so that the new generations can have autonomy in life and live among us. We have to create conditions for the new generations to become autonomous and to be able to build the family they want to build," Costa said. — Xinhua ■

Israel launches direct flights to Morocco after normalization

THE first direct commercial flights between Israel and Morocco landed in Marrakesh on Sunday, more than seven months after the countries normalized diplomatic relations in a US-brokered deal.

Passengers from Tel Aviv arrived on an Israir flight early on Sunday afternoon to be met with dates, cakes and mint tea at a welcoming ceremony organized in their honour.

"I am originally from Marrakesh. I've come back here around 30 times but this time, the trip has a special flavour — it's as if it were the first time!" an emotional Pinhas Moyal told AFP from the tarmac, his mask and bag in the colours of the Moroccan flag.

"This is a historic moment, this flight can only strengthen the bridge between Israel and Morocco," said Benjamin Ron, a tour guide hoping to bring in other Israelis in the future.

Israir spokeswoman Tali Leibovitz told AFP that two to three flights per week were planned on the route.

A second flight, by the Israeli national carrier El Al, landed in Marrakesh later in the day.

El Al said it plans five flights per week to Marrakesh and Casablanca.

Iceland, home to world's most expensive feather treasure

ON a remote island in Breidafjörður Bay off the west coast of Iceland, a thousand-year-old harvest takes place — the hunt for elusive eiderdown, used to make some of the world's best duvets and quilts.

The handpicked down sells for thousands of euros (dollars) a kilo, catering to those looking for exclusive products.

Every summer, nearly 400 Icelandic farmers comb through hollow surfaces in the rock, on the sand or in the tall grass to unearth a few handfuls of the grey feathers of this polar duck.

From May onwards, the eider comes to nest in sparsely populated marine landscapes around much of Iceland's coast where there is seaweed to feed its ducklings.

"When there are eggs, we only take a part of the down. And when the eider has already left the nest, we take everything," Erla Fridriksdottir, head of King Eider, one of the country's main exporters, told AFP.

The eider, a sea duck from the subarctic oceans, leaves a trail behind consisting of a natural treasure: one of the warmest natural fibres on the planet, both light and highly insulating.

The female, with her dark brown plumage with black stripes — similar to that of a mallard but slightly larger — releases the down from her breast and lines her nest with it to insulate it during incubation.

Meticulous cleaning

About 60 nests are needed to produce one kilo of down — a quilt needs between 600 and 1,600 grams, depending on the quality chosen.

Worldwide, the annual harvest of eiderdown is no more than four tonnes, three quarters of which comes from Iceland, by far the world's largest producer, ahead of Canada and other countries bordering the Arctic. There are five Icelandic companies exporting eiderdown, according to the Eider Farming Association, but around 15 companies in total involved in some capacity in its production. — AFP ■

Yuan becomes No.3 global currency: report

THE internationalization of Chinese yuan accelerated in 2020 despite the ravaging global pandemic and the US government's containment of China's growth. Experts predict there exists great room for the currency's further internationalization, calling for convenient flows of the yuan and expansion of cross border investment avenues.

The yuan internationalization index reached 5.02 at the end of 2020, a sharp increase of 54.2 per cent from the previous year, making it No.3 among international currencies. The rate exceeded the internationalization levels of the yen and pound, according to the 2021 RMB Internationalization Report released by the International Monetary Institute (IMI) under Renmin University of China on Saturday.

The growth was mainly driven by the steady recovery of the Chinese economy, opening-up of the financial sector, stable monetary policy and stepped-up international currency cooperation, said

Gaza suffers from stagnation in car trading amid Israel's import ban

PALESTINIAN traders and citizens of the besieged Gaza Strip complain of a "fatal stagnation" in the car trading amid an import ban.

The Israeli authorities have prevented the entry of imported cars into the strip for nearly three months and show no prospect of lifting the ban. Munib Abu Sido, an owner of a car import and export company in Gaza City, told Xinhua that he has never experienced such bad conditions during his 30 years in the business. "I used to import at least 20 or 30 cars per day through the Erez crossing (like other auto traders), and most of them have been sold to customers before arriving," the 54-year-old father of five said.

"As you can see, my showroom now contains only 10 cars. I have failed to sell any of them for months," he added. What's worse, he has been forced to pay storage fees to the Israeli authorities for 40 cars, with approximately 5 U.S. dollars for each of them per day.

Meanwhile, vehicle prices have been witnessing a significant increase since imported cars were not allowed to enter the coastal enclave, which makes demand far exceed supply. The price of modern type cars in Gaza has on average hiked between 3,000 to 15,000 dollars, according to the traders. Alaa Badwan, an owner of another car import and export company in Gaza, told Xinhua that the COVID-19 pandemic was another reason for the rapid rise in car prices in Gaza. "Many car manufacturers, especially the Korean ones, stopped the production for more than a year because of the COVID-19 pandemic," he said, adding that the cost of transportation has also gone up.—Xinhua ■

Most Asian markets fall as traders struggle to track Wall St record

MARKETS in Asia mostly fell Monday morning, led by Hong Kong after Beijing at the weekend further cracked down on China's tech firms, while education companies were hammered as the government unveiled sweeping reforms of the sector.

The broad losses across the region came as traders continued to fret over the fast spread of the Delta coronavirus variant, which has sent infections spiking and forced some governments to reimpose economically painful lockdowns or other containment measures. The selling extended from Friday, despite a strong lead from Wall Street, where all three main indexes ended at record highs with the Dow ending above 35,000 for the first time.

Investors have a packed agenda of possible market-moving events this week including the Federal Reserve's latest policy meeting, US economic growth data, and earnings from some of the world's biggest firms such as Apple and Amazon.—AFP ■

Moldova's lavender flourishes after post-Soviet decline

YOUNG couples and families pose for glamour shots as the sun lowers over Alexei Cazac's sprawling field of lavender outside the capital of Moldova.

"Once, in the first year the lavender was blooming, we came and the entire field was just filled with people," the 40-year-old farmer tells AFP on a recent visit.

"It's like the set of a photo shoot. We didn't plan it this way," he says.

Cazac, who planted his first bushels in 2015, is among a growing cohort of farmers in Moldova fuelling a resurgence in the aromatic herb, whose cultivation collapsed along with the Soviet Union.

The comeback in the small country bordering Romania has garnered attention not just from locals hungry for likes on social media, but also from global cosmetic firms headquartered in western Europe. — AFP ■

A month after Florida Surfside building collapse, recovery mission nears end

THE search for victims of the Florida apartment building collapse a month ago Saturday is drawing to a close, as rescue teams halted work at the site of the disaster that killed at least 97 people.

"It's hard to believe that a month has now passed since perhaps the greatest tragedy in our community's history," Miami-Dade County Mayor Daniella Levine Cava said on Twitter on Saturday.

"While the site of the collapse was confined to the size of just one block in a close-knit city, its reverberation has been felt far beyond our county, touching lives all over the world," she added in a video posted on social media.

Rescue workers ended their search on Friday for victims at the site of the Champaign Towers South, a 12-storey beachfront building that partially collapsed overnight on June 24. — AFP ■

Five cultural sites in Saudi Arabia, Europe inscribed on UNESCO's world heritage list

FIVE cultural sites in Saudi Arabia and Europe have been inscribed on the world heritage list, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) announced on Saturday. The decision was made during the UNESCO World Heritage Committee's 44th session held online and chaired from Fuzhou, China.

Hima Cultural Area in an arid, mountainous area of southwest Saudi Arabia won the status as it contains a substantial collection of rock art images depicting hunting, fauna, flora and lifestyles in a cultural continuity of 7,000 years, said UNESCO in a press release.

Travellers and armies camping on the site left a wealth of rock inscriptions and petroglyphs through the ages and until the late 20th century, most of which are preserved in pristine condition. The transnational site, "The Great Spa Towns of Europe," comprises 11 towns located in seven European countries — Austria, Belgium, the Czech Republic, France, Germany, Italy and the United Kingdom. — Xinhua ■

Greece's first underwater museum opens ancient world to dive tourists

EMERGING from the crystal-clear turquoise waters of the Aegean Sea, Hans-Juergen Fercher has just returned from his fourth dive to where mounds of 2,500-year-old wine pots mark the site of an ancient shipwreck — and Greece's first underwater museum.

"This is a combination of diving and archaeological diving. It's diving into history," says the 48-year-old psychiatrist after pulling himself onto the deck of the Triton dive boat.

"It makes it special and unique."

The museum beneath the waves at Peristera, a rocky outcrop off the island of Alonissos, opened in 2020, though the site has been largely mothballed until now due to Covid-19 restrictions.

As Greece opens up its vital tourism industry, the site offers an example of a new and more sustainable source of revenue.

Divers like Fercher and Danish wine-cellar maker, Lisette Fredelund, are willing to pay 95 euros ($110) a dive — about 50 per cent more than the cost of a regular recreational scuba outing — for a guided tour of a site once the preserve of professional archaeologists.

"It was just amazing," said Fredelund. "I was just, while we were down there, trying to imagine what it had been like being on a vessel transporting wine."

More to come

Frenchman's Tokyo hunger strike over 'abducted' kids in third week

A Frenchman on hunger strike in Tokyo seeking access to his children said an appeal from President Emmanuel Macron to Japan's leader had "changed nothing", as his protest entered its third week.

Vincent Fichot, 39, says his two children were abducted by their Japanese mother, and he has been on hunger strike since July 10 in a bid to be reunited with his family.

For two weeks, the former finance worker — who has lived in Japan for 15 years — has sat night and day outside a train station near the Olympic Stadium, where the opening ceremony for the virus-postponed Tokyo Games was held on Friday.

Macron, who attended the ceremony with Paris set to host the next Olympics in 2024, held talks Saturday with Japanese Prime Minister Yoshihide Suga.

During their meeting, Macron brought up Fichot's "extremely tragic situation", according to the French president's office, which called the issue a "priority".

Joint custody of children in cases of divorce or separation does not exist legally in Japan, where parental abductions are common and often tolerated by local authorities.

Beijing urges Washington to stop 'demonizing' China as US official visits

BEIJING urged Washington to stop "demonizing" China on Monday as rancor marked the start of talks with the highest-level US envoy to visit under President Joe Biden's administration.

Deputy Secretary of State Wendy Sherman's visit to the northern city of Tianjin is the first major meeting between the world's leading economies since March discussions in Anchorage between the countries' top diplomats collapsed into mudslinging.

Sherman's trip aims to seek "guardrails" as ties continue to deteriorate on a range of issues from cybersecurity and tech supremacy to human rights in Hong Kong and Xinjiang.

"The hope may be that by demonizing China, the US could somehow... blame China for its own structural problems," Chinese Vice-Foreign Minister Xie Feng told Sherman, in a readout issued by China's foreign ministry early Monday.

"We urge the United States to change its highly misguided mindset and dangerous policy," the statement quoted Xie as saying, adding that Washington views China as an "imagined enemy".

Xie also described relations as at a "stalemate" and facing "serious difficulties". — AFP ■

Democrats tap Republican Trump critic for US Capitol riot probe

US House Speaker Nancy Pelosi on Sunday named an outspoken Republican critic of former president Donald Trump to join the committee probing the January 6 US Capitol insurrection, two days ahead of its first hearings.

The top Democrat in Congress announced the appointment of Representative Adam Kinzinger, who voted to impeach Trump over the riot, in a statement hailing the "great patriotism" he would bring to the panel's mission "to find the facts and protect our democracy".

Hundreds of Trump's supporters, many associated with ultra-nationalist and white supremacist groups, stormed the US legislature six months ago to halt President Joe Biden's confirmation.

They had been egged on by Trump, whose fiery speech earlier that day falsely claiming election fraud was the culmination of months of baseless claims about a contest he lost fairly to Biden. — AFP ■

Man accused of trying to kill Mali president dies in custody

A man accused of trying to kill Mali's military strongman Assimi Goita, the figure behind two coups in less than a year, has died in custody, the government said on Sunday.

The suspect, whose identity has not been revealed, had been taken into custody following the assassination attempt at Bamako's Grand Mosque on Tuesday.

"During investigations... his health deteriorated" and he was then hospitalised, but "unfortunately, he has died," the government said in a statement.

It added that an autopsy had been immediately ordered to determine the cause of death. A man armed with a knife lunged at Goita after prayers for Eid al-Adha on Tuesday, according to an AFP reporter at the scene. — AFP ■

French parliament adopts vaccine passports law despite protests

Over 160,000 people protested on Saturday against the health pass, with demonstrators brandishing slogans including "vaccines: fake freedom". PHOTO: AFP

FRANCE'S parliament voted against Covid-19 on Sunday, after a compromise between lawmakers from the upper and lower houses.

The breakthrough in talks came a day after France was again shaken by protests against the rules that saw over 160,000 rally and dozens arrested.

President Emmanuel Macron last week ordered that the health pass -- proof of full vaccination or a negative test -- would be required for the French to visit venues such as cinemas or nightclubs.

The announcement was a move by Macron to make vaccinations the top weapon against Covid-19 as new variants emerge, essentially requiring people to become vaccinated if they want to continue daily routines.

Those changes were implemented by decree, but parliament has been engaged in a marathon session since Tuesday debating whether to extend them.

Vaccine passports have encountered fierce opposition from some, who believe they erode civil liberties.

The ruling party has faced a tough task pushing the legislation through parliament. Pro-Macron MPs control the National Assembly, but the Senate -- the upper house -- is dominated by the opposition right.

The Senate had approved the legislation but added numerous amendments that the government feared risked limiting its impact. — AFP ■

Tunisian president suspends parliament, dismisses PM

TUNISIAN President Kais Saied announced Sunday the suspension of parliament and dismissal of Prime Minister Hichem Mechichi following a day of protests against the ruling party, which condemned the move as a "coup d'etat".

Earlier Sunday, thousands of Tunisians had marched in several cities protesting against the Islamist-inspired Ennahdha party, criticizing what they said were government failures in the North African nation and a crippling coronavirus surge.

After Saied announced parliament's suspension following an emergency meeting at his palace, the sounds of car horns and fireworks filled the streets.

In Tunis, hundreds defied a coronavirus curfew to congregate on the capital's roads.

"Finally some good decisions!" Maher, celebrating in the city's northwest, told AFP.

Thirty-something Nahla, brandishing a Tunisian flag, was jubilant. "These are courageous decisions — Saied is unblocking Tunisia," she told AFP. "This is the president we love!"

Since Saied was elected president in 2019, he has been locked in a showdown with Mechichi and parliament speaker Rached Ghannouchi, a rivalry that has blocked ministerial appointments and diverted resources from tackling Tunisia's many economic and social problems.

'Imminent danger'

"We are navigating the most delicate moments in the history of Tunisia," Saied said Sunday. He said the constitution did not allow for the dissolution of parliament, but did allow him to suspend it, citing Article 80 which permits it in case of "imminent danger". — AFP ■

MYANMAR squad will make preparations depending on the fixtures of the ASEAN Suzuki Cup scheduled for later this year.

The ASEAN Football Federation will hold the 2020 ASEAN Suzuki Cup, which was postponed last year due to its inability to host it, from 5 December 2021 to 1 January 2022.

The group stage draw ceremony for the tournament is scheduled for 10 August, but the ASEAN Football Federation is renegotiating with its members to postpone the event as the Covid-19 epidemic continues to rise in Southeast Asia.

The ASEAN Football Confederation (AFC) has recently announced that the 2018 format of the tournament will be played in four groups of two teams each. Group matches, semi-finals and finals will be played at home and abroad. The tourney will be held in the form of Centralized Venues, with one or two host countries selected amidst the pandemic situation, officials said. The ASEAN Football Federation is planning to cancel most of the competitions scheduled for this year due to the pandemic but it's trying to host the ASEAN Suzuki Cup.

The Myanmar national team has paused training after the remnants of the 2022 World Cup and 2023 Asian Cup Second Round qualifiers in the middle of the year and will be able to set the training date only after the match date for the Suzuki Cup is confirmed, according to the football officials.

'Immortal' Peaty makes British history by defending Olympic swimming crown

ADAM Peaty labelled his achievement in becoming the first British swimmer to defend an Olympic title an "immortal moment" after claiming gold in the 100m breaststroke on Monday.

Peaty lived up to his billing as the overwhelming favourite by powering to the line in 57.37 seconds, ahead of Dutchman Arno Kamminga (58.00), the only other swimmer besides Peaty to ever go under 58 seconds. Italy's Nicolò Martinenghi took bronze in 58.33.

It is now seven years since Peaty was last beaten in the event, a run that includes his gold medal in Rio in 2016, when he broke the world record in the heats and then again in the final.

"It doesn't matter what happens, these moments are immortal," Peaty said after his latest Olympic triumph. "I will take these moments for the rest of my life." Peaty has broken the world record five times in total and also won the 100m breaststroke at the past three world championships.

"I believe I've been given a gift and that's why in the last 25 metres I can find something no one else has got," he said. "I don't want this gift to be wasted."
