THE Department of Bridge of the Ministry of Construction is carrying out the construction of Thanlwin Bridge (Takaw) on the Meiktila-Taunggyi-Kengtung-Tachilek road, in Kunhing Township, Loilem District, Shan State (South) and now the foundation work has been completed.

The construction of the new bridge's substructure is scheduled to be completed by the end of April 2022, according to Deputy Director U Thant Zin who is in charge of the bridge construction project, which is estimated to cost K26,350 million.

Oxygen plant construction in Homalin completed 30%

THE construction of oxygen plant was completed 30 per cent near Department of progress of Border Areas and National Races, in Homalin township, in Hkamti district, Sagaing region, said U Thein Zaw, chairman of Homalin Township Administration Body.

The construction of the oxygen plant was started on 31 July 2021 and the project has been completed 30 per cent so far.

“The construction was started on 31 July. The foundation of the project is finished. The concrete pillars are erected. Earlier, we expected that the construction project will take only one month. But the project wasn't completed due to the unexpected rain. Hopefully, the project will be finished on 15 September,” said U Thein Zaw.

The total cost of the project is estimated to be about K25 or K40 million. The machines, which will be able to produce about 40 40-litre oxygen cylinders, will cost K68 million.

“Homalin township currently receives only 12 oxygen cylinders a day. Sometimes, the township could produce the 20 oxygen cylinders by running day and night due to the high demand for oxygen in town” he added.

Oxygen is the key to saving lives. Some people have died because they had to struggle to breathe and no oxygen was available.

The construction of the oxygen plant was led by the Sayadaw from Homalin Township. Then, the oxygen plant implementation committee was formed together with the township administration, relevant departments and residents.

“People also donated cash to establishment of the oxygen plants in Homalin township. Upon completion of the project, it can fulfil the oxygen requirement in the township. Now, we have to bring the oxygen from Pauk township due to the high demand for oxygen in town,” said U Thein Zaw.

Homalin township has reported a total of 1,632 cases with 80 deaths and 1,501 recoveries as of 28 August 2021. — Lulay/GNLM

Don't stop but march forward to fight COVID-19

THE Union government and authorities of regions and states are joining hands with the people in battling the COVID-19 to decline a half down of infection rate against this August.

The infection rate of COVID-19 accounted for 40.82 per cent on 23 July and 40.07 per cent on 25 July. It was the first stage to reduce the infection rate in August. On 29 August, 3,166 persons of 29,127 persons were approved as the positive patients in medical examination, accounting for just 10.87 per cent. It was satisfactory for plunging the infection rate into less than 20 per cent that the government expected. Such success was based on the harmonious cooperation of the people and management of organizations.

To be able to reduce the infection rate of the pandemic, the government contacted the friendship countries as well as neighbouring countries for buying the anti-COVID-19 vaccines and medical equipment to vaccinate the people in time.

Moreover, the already arrived anti-COVID-19 are distributed to regions and states by military aircraft and vehicles without delay. Local ethnic people from Kachin, Shan, Kayah and Mon states and Taninthayi Region working in China, Lao and Thailand returned home but they did not inform the local authorities about their return to the home via border gates. After arriving at home, they suffered from the impacts of COVID-19. That is why officials at different levels need to provide necessary medical examinations and protection for those returnees in order to plunge the infection rate of COVID-19 in border areas as well as the whole country.

For the time being, efforts are being made to prevent and control the spreading of variant COVID-19 virus not only in border areas but also in regions and states including Nay Pyi Taw Council Area by systematically vaccinating the local people.

Since early August this year, the government set an aim to ensure a half down of COVID-19 infection rate in August. In the coming months, the country should strive for applying the united tripartite strength of health personnel, local people and authorities in fighting against COVID-19 under the health restrictions.

Another Side Effect of COVID-19: Plastic Waste

By Shoon Lei Win

IT is undeniable that the coronavirus disease has turned the world into a chaotic place, which infected nearly 198 million people and killed more than 4 million. The disposable face masks, gloves, hand sanitizer bottles and other personal protective equipment (PPE) have become essential to protect ourselves and communities from virus transmission. With the escalating need to contain the spread of the virus, the use of these protective tools has mounted and so does the increase of waste production. Experts estimated that every month, we are using and disposing of roughly 129 billion face masks and 65 billion gloves globally. And every minute, we are throwing away 3 million face masks.

To add fuel to the flame, strict lockdowns and banning consumers from dining in at restaurants have pushed consumers to order meals and groceries online

People walk in a street in Tokyo. According to environmentalists, Japanese coasts and waters have witnessed an apparent increase in the number of disposable masks recently. PHOTO: AFP resulting in a surge of disposable packaging. Our reliance on food-delivery services and online shopping platforms has become a new normal for all of us. We are buying more plastic wrapped items because we are scared of getting infected. Plastics are light and easily thrown away.

Plastic pollution has already been threatening our planet before the outbreak of the pandemic.

Globally, we are producing over 380 million tonnes of plastic every year and this has been exacerbated by the wake of COVID-19. We are using plastic bags, food containers, bottles and other clinical materials 50% more than usual. Clinical waste like face masks and gloves are not recyclable in the most municipal system. These plastics will remain in the environment for up to 450 years until they turn into invisible microplastics.

Inevitably, a lot of medical and plastic waste is ending up in roads, landfills, choking our waterways, polluting our oceans and killing marine life. According to the estimation of Ocean Asia, as many as 1.56 billion face masks have entered the oceans in the year 2020. But such predictions will be further aggravated by the excessive use and consumption of single-use plastics including medical plastics and masks.

Take a walk, and you will see a face mask on the ground. No one wants to touch which has covered someone's potentially virus-laden breath. It will stand still until it is blown away. Used face masks can be hazardous and easily transmit the virus to garbage collectors, if not dispose of with utmost care. Thus, individual needs to change their habits and discard with proper packaging. Without question, lockdowns and strict quarantine measures have also weakened the recycling activities and waste management regulations. Clearly, we cannot reduce plastic use immediately, but we can take our own clean and reusable food containers to the restaurant. Moreover, washable cloth masks and regular handwashing with soap and water are more effective than plastic gloves and face masks.

So, to conclude, we must not turn the blind eye to plastic pollution. Each and every one of us must act now to create a healthier and more beautiful planet for all.

Glaxo, SK bioscience start final trial of Covid jab

The vaccine is facing a Phase 3 clinical trial to assess its "safety and immunogenicity" when compared with AstraZeneca's Covid vaccine.

B RITISH drugs giant GlaxoSmithKline and South Korean peer SK bioscience have begun final stage trials of a Covid-19 jab after positive early results, they announced Tuesday.

The vaccine is facing a Phase 3 clinical trial to assess its "safety and immunogenicity" when compared with AstraZeneca's Covid vaccine, the two companies said in a joint statement.

GSK is still trailing in the wake of Anglo-Swedish rival AstraZeneca, which rapidly developed a successful jab alongside Oxford University despite having little prior experience in vaccine development.

The new jab

The new jab combines SK bioscience's Covid vaccine candidate GBP510 with Glaxo's pandemic adjuvant that bolsters the immune response.

"The advance to Phase 3 study follows positive interim Phase 1/2 data which showed that all participants who received the adjuvanted vaccine candidate developed strong neutralizing antibody responses," the pair said Tuesday.

Those responses demonstrated a rate of seroconversion — or production of antibodies — of 100 per cent, they added.

No safety concerns have so far been identified in the study.

The vaccine is then expected to be supplied via COVAX — the distributor backed by the World Health Organization and the Gavi vaccine alliance — subject to positive results and regulatory approvals.

"While many countries have made good progress with vaccination, there remains a need for accessible and affordable COVID-19 vaccines to ensure equitable access and to protect people across the world," said GSK chief global health officer Thomas Breuer.

"We are pleased to contribute with GSK's pandemic adjuvant and to be working with SK to deliver the vaccine at scale via COVAX if it is approved."

Results from the Phase 3 trial, which will enrol 4,000 participants from various nations, are expected in the first half of next year.

The first Phase 3 study

This will be the first Phase 3 study to compare outcomes of two different Covid-19 vaccine candidates.

SK has received funding from the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Initiative and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation to help it develop a low-cost jab.

"Taking this important step towards overcoming the global pandemic situation, SK and GSK will bring our technical expertise together for the development of an adjuvanted protein-based vaccine candidate, GBP510," noted SK chief executive Jaeyong Ahn.

Glaxo is also working with French pharmaceutical giant Sanofi on final Phase 3 tests of a different Covid vaccine, which they hope to launch by the end of this year.

Phase 2 trials of that jab have already showed a strong immune response after a single shot in participants who had previously contracted the coronavirus.

GSK is also working on another two separate vaccine projects, one with Canada's Medicago and another with Germany's CureVac.

Border trade tops nearly $8.8 bln this FY

TRADE between Myanmar and its four neighbouring countries has reached nearly US$8.8 billion in the first ten months of this financial year to date, down over $930 million compared with the same period last year, according to the Ministry of Commerce.

From 1 October to 20 August of the 2020-21FY, the total border trade value amounted to $8.790 billion. This year border trade dropped by over $930 million, compared to the same period of last FY when it amounted to $9.713 billion, the ministry's figures said.

Myanmar shares borders with China, Thailand, India and Bangladesh. During the period, the country's export via land borders earned over $5.81

Myanmar has opened 18

border trade camps. The country conducts border trade with neighbouring China through

Muse, Lwejel, Kampaiti, Chinshwehaw and Kengtung, with Thailand via Tachilek, Myawady, Kawthoung, Myeik, Hteekhee, Mawtaung and Meisei border checkpoints, with Bangladesh via Sittway and Maungtau, and with India through Tamu and Reed border crossings, respectively.

Myanmar mainly exports agricultural products, animal products, marine products, minerals, forest products, manufactured goods and other commodities, while capital goods, intermediate goods and consumer goods are imported to the country.

During the over 10 months of this FY, the total external trade value was only $25.7 billion, down 16 per cent from the same period last year, according to the Ministry of Commerce. — ACM/GNLM

MYANMAR migrant workers are returning from China as they have trouble with their living conditions due to factory and shop closures caused by the pandemic in Ruili and Kyalgaung.

More than 5,300 Myanmar migrant workers have returned from China via the Nandaw border checkpoint in the last 27 days after they faced employment difficulties during the lockdown period in Ruili.

The Myanmar migrant workers returned to their country as they faced difficulty staying in China while the factories and shops from Ruili and Kyalgaung were halted after the pandemic resurgence.

The authorities from both countries coordinated the return of Myanmar workers. Myanmar started accepting its workers back on 16 July. So far, the authorities have re-accepted a total of 7,526 Myanmar workers from 26 July to 26 August.

Some of Myanmar-China border checkpoints have still halted amid a recent surge in case of COVID-19 infection, said an official from the Muse Rice Wholesale Centre.

Two remaining border checkpoints in Muse — Kyinsankyawt and Pangsai (Wamting), which is one of the main border trading posts for Myanmar-China border trade, were closed starting from 8 July at 1:30 pm.

The Muse border, which is the mainstay of Myanmar-China border trade, is connected with Nandawphyu, Hsinphyu, Man Wein, Kyinsankyawt-Wamting and Pangsai-Wamting checkpoints.

Long bean growers earn daily income in Kyaukse

THE long bean growers are earning daily income in Kyaukse township, Mandalay region.

The growers from Kyaukse township are cultivating paddy, peanut, sesame, sunflower, black bean, onion, green gram, chilli, banana and cotton. They also grow various flowers and vegetables next to the river, creek and on farmlands.

Regarding the growth of long beans, it is a crop that does not require a great deal of manpower. But the growers need to take care of the long bean daily because it is a favourite plant of leaf beetles and pods. If it is necessary, the growers should spray the pesticide. The long bean cultivation also requires irrigation water.

“The long bean is a vegetable that is harvested every other day and sold back in the market. The price of long beans varies every single day. Now, the bean fetches K800 per viss. The long bean traders are demanding daily the long beans from the growers. That is the reason why the farmers from Kyaukse township are growing the long bean on a manageable scale,” said Daw Aye Yu San, a local long bean grower from Tada Lae village.

In the harvesting season, it can yield over 30 visses of long beans. The bamboo poles that are used in the growing of long beans can be used for up to four years once purchased. Now, the local growers are happy, making a profit by selling the long beans.

Furthermore, as per the 2020 rice price data, the price of staple rice usually increases in the rainy season. Consequently, the price gain is expected during the monsoon season of this year.

Additionally, the restriction measures to contain the spread of COVID-19 and natural disasters affected the prices. The price is expected to remain bullish in the coming months. – NN/GNLM

Sugar price spikes up on low stockpile

THE price of sugar has been in the bull market since April-end, on account of the low stockpile and Kyat weakening against the US dollar in the local forex market.

The sugar fetches K1,650-1,750 per viss (a viss equals 1.6 kg or 3.6 pounds) at present, whereas it was priced only K1,200 at the end of April. After the sugar cane off-season, the price is gradually increasing in the domestic market, according to the Mandalay wholesale market.

Last year, the low demand forced some sugarcane growers to turn to other crops for cultivation.

The sugarcane growers are expecting a high of K50,000 per tonne next season.

The stock of sugar has become lesser. Additionally, sugar import is rarely found in the meantime. Sugar price has surprisingly risen this year in the international market. The domestic sugar market also sees the price rise accordingly, the Sugar and Cane Related Products Association stated.

Sugarcane covered 438,420 acres in the country last year from 2019-2020. Myanmar's sugar production was reduced by about 100,000 tonnes this year, the Agriculture Department stated.

Myanmar produced about 450,000 tonnes of sugar from 440,000 acres of sugarcane plantations in the 2014-2015 financial year, over 390,000 tonnes from 390,000 acres in the 2015-2016FY, over 370,000 tonnes from 400,000 acres in the 2016-2017FY, over 500,000 tonnes from 400,000 acres in the 2017-2018FY, and 500,000 tonnes from 500,000 acres in the 2018-2019FY.

Sugar cane prices were pegged at over K50,000 per ton in the 2015-2016FY, K45,000 in the 2016-2017FY, K41,500 in the 2017-2018FY, K38,000-40,000 in the 2018-2019FY and K40,000 in the last FY2019-2020, according to the news released online by the Ministry of Commerce. – Ko Khant/GNLM

Sri Lanka on Tuesday declared a state of emergency over food shortages as private banks ran out of foreign exchange to finance imports.

With the country suffering a hard-hitting economic crisis, President Gotabaya Rajapaksa said he ordered emergency regulations to counter the hoarding of sugar, rice and other essential foods.

Rajapaksa has named a top army officer as "Commissioner General of Essential Services to coordinate the supply of paddy, rice, sugar and other consumer goods".

The move followed sharp price rises for sugar, rice, onions and potatoes, while long queues have formed outside stores because of shortages of milk powder, kerosene oil and cooking gas.—AFP ■

Economist
expects US job growth in August to slow down
amid Delta surge

US job growth in August is expected to slow down amid a Delta variant-fuelled COVID-19 surge, Diane Swonk, chief economist at Grant Thornton, a major accounting firm, said Monday.

Payroll employment is expected to rise by 675,000 in August after reaching 943,000 in July, Swonk said in a blog, noting that new jobs in public education likely drove employment in August as schools and universities "scrambled to reopen shuttered facilities."

The economist, however, noted that some schools have been forced to quarantine or return to online after opening, and most of those closures occurred after the survey week for the August payroll data.

"A surge in infections triggered by the Delta variant is expected to slow the pace of hiring in leisure and hospitality," she said. Credit card data, for example, show that spending at restaurants stalled in late July and August when infections surged.—Xinhua ■

THAILAND'S finance minister and industry minister on Monday expressed their confidence on the government's easing of lockdown measures starting from Wednesday, noting that this will help the economy normalize gradually.

Finance Minister Arkhom Termpittayapaisith said the easing of restrictions on retail and dining are necessary to revive the economy.

"We are seeing a stabilizing trend of new COVID-19 cases. If the tight lockdown still continues, we expect the economy to shrink sharply. Easing restrictions for retail and restaurant businesses will help people to get back on their feet," Arkhom said in an interview with local media. He added that as the pandemic is still ongoing, the easing must be carried out gradually in a safe and careful manner.

Meanwhile, Industry Minister Suriya Jungrungreangkit also believed that the lockdown easing would be a positive factor for the manufacturing sector.

"The government is working closely with factory owners in order to control the infections through various measures. Positive trend of the country's vaccine roll-out and further easing of restrictions will support the overall recovery of manufacturing activities," Suriya said.

According to the Office of Industrial Economics (OIE), Thailand's manufacturing production index (MPI) in July increased by 5.12 per cent year-on-year for the fifth consecutive month. Japan's Asakawa re-elected ADB chief, vows to help pandemic recovery

THE Asian Development Bank said Tuesday its president, Masatsugu Asakawa, was re-elected for a second term.

"My vision for the upcoming term is for ADB to serve as the premier development institution for Asia and the Pacific as it supports its developing member countries in recovering from the coronavirus disease pandemic," Asakawa, 63, was quoted as saying in an ADB release.

Asakawa, who served as Japan's vice finance minister for international affairs until July 2019, will begin his new term running for five years on Nov. 24, the Manila-based institution said.

Asakawa assumed the post of the bank's 10th president in January last year to serve the remaining term of his predecessor Takehiko Nakao, who stepped down that month after leading the ADB since April 2013.

In April, he announced his intention to run for re-election and Japanese Finance Minister Taro Aso immediately expressed his support. "President Asakawa has shown excellent leadership since his inauguration in January 2020 and offered speedy and strong supports to counter the spread of the novel coronavirus infections," Aso said in a statement Tuesday. "His re-election resulted from the high evaluation of these previous accomplishments," Aso added.

German inflation edges up to 3.9% in August

German consumer price inflation remained at euro-era high levels in August. PHOTO: INA FASSBENDER / AFP

GERMAN consumer price inflation remained at euro-era high levels in August, preliminary data showed on Thursday, climbing slightly to 3.9 per cent on the back of one-off effects related to the coronavirus pandemic.

The end of a VAT holiday introduced by the German government to mitigate the impact of pandemic lockdowns on the economy and the rise in the price of oil explained some of the increase, according to federal statistics agency Destatis.

The August 12-month inflation figure was 0.1 percentage point higher than in the previous month, and the highest value in Europe's top economy since December 1993, when it came in at 4.3 per cent.

"The current increase is likely to remain temporary," said Christine Volk, chief economist at public lender KfW. A return to inflation under the European Central Bank's (ECB) two per cent target was likely, she said, but warned that persistent shortages in key components, such as computer chips, could "impact on consumers' wallets, as companies are likely to pass on the higher costs at least partially".

The ECB recently raised its inflation target to two per cent, and said it would tolerate temporary over- or undershooting of the target before stepping in. Policymakers at the Frankfurt institution will meet next week to discuss their next moves.—AFP ■

Japan's unemployment rate decreases to 2.8 pct in July, falling for 2nd consecutive month

JAPAN'S unemployment rate decreased to 2.8 per cent in July, down for the second consecutive month, despite a resurgence of COVID-19 infections caused many regions to enter or extend emergency measures that limited business activities, government data showed Tuesday.

The seasonally adjusted jobless rate fell 0.1 percentage point from 2.9 per cent in June, according to the Ministry of Internal Affairs and Communications (MIC) said. However, the level is still higher than the 2.4 per cent logged in February last year, when the Japanese economy had yet to experience major fallout from the COVID-19 pandemic.

According to separate data from the Ministry of Health, Labour and Welfare, the job availability ratio in July increased to 1.15 from 1.13 in the previous month, up for the second month in a row, meaning that there were 115 job openings for every 100 job seekers. The ratio had risen 0.04 point in June.

Due to a surge of new infections driven by the highly contagious Delta variant, the Japanese government declared the latest COVID-19 state of emergency for Tokyo in mid-July, only three weeks from the end of the third emergency for the capital.

Adding to the capital, Okinawa was also under a state of emergency during July. The southern island prefecture's virus emergency was declared in late May.

S. Korea set to ban app payment monopolies in world first SOUTH Korean MPs were expected to ban Apple and Google from forcing app developers to use the tech giants' payment systems on Tuesday, effectively declaring their lucrative App Store and Play Store monopolies illegal.

A bill set for a vote in the national assembly would make the South the first major economy to pass legislation on the issue, in a move that could set a precedent for other jurisdictions around the world.

In the United States three senators this month introduced a bill to loosen the tech firms' grip on their stores, while in Europe lawmakers are debating legislation that could force Apple to bring in alternatives to the App Store. The South Korean measure comes as Apple and Google face global criticism for charging up to 30 per cent commission on app sales and requiring their own payment systems be used that collect a share of the transactions.

The Korean law — locally dubbed the "Anti-Google Law" — will offer users a choice of app payment providers, allowing them to bypass charges set by the store owner.—AFP ■

Eurozone inflation leaps to 3.0%, highest in decade

Europeans are paying more for everything as data shows inflation has hit its highest level in a decade. PHOTO: AFP/FILE

EUROZONE inflation surged to three per cent in August, according to official data released Tuesday, as widespread shortages, rising energy costs and one-off effects sent consumer prices in Europe sharply higher. The rise takes the rate a full percentage point higher than the ECB's target of two per cent and to a level last reached in November 2011, though economists insist the hike is linked to effects of the coronavirus pandemic and will be short-lived. The August inflation rate was mainly pushed higher by a 15.4 per cent rise in energy prices, which compared to a 14.3 per cent rise a month earlier. Jack Allen-Reynolds, senior economist at Capital Economics, said that inflation in the 19-member eurozone could rise "even further in the coming months."—AFP ■

NEWS IN BRIEF

French consumer spending slumps, prices jump

Spending by French consumers is falling while inflation is accelerating, data showed Tuesday, adding to concerns about the strength of the economic recovery as the pandemic drags on. Household consumption fell by 2.2 per cent in July from the previous month after a modest monthly rise in June, the national statistics agency INSEE said in a regular report.

The data, which correct for inflation and seasonal variations, found a 2.9-per-cent drop in spending on food and a 2.7-per-cent drop on manufactured goods.

Decreased spending on clothing and durable goods wiped out gains registered the previous month.

Spending on energy, meanwhile, rose by 1.0 per cent.

A separate report by INSEE found that a surge in energy prices played a role in the acceleration of 12-month inflation to 1.9 per cent in August from 1.2 per cent in July.—AFP ■

Kuwait aims to transform 'tyre graveyard' into new city

KUWAIT on Sunday announced plans to transform what was once a mammoth "tyre graveyard" to a new residential city.

The 2-square-kilometre (0.7-square-mile) dump in the north of the oil-rich Gulf country was where tyres went to die — a total of more than 40 million at the end.

Seventeen years of tyre dumping and three massive fires between 2012 and 2020 sparked environmental concerns, prompting the authorities to shut it down for good.

After Afghanistan, Biden stakes presidency on domestic battles

THIS has been a miserable summer for Joe Biden but with the last troops out of Afghanistan the Democrat will now hope to relaunch his struggling presidency back home.

From the initial chaos in which Afghans tried clinging to departing US planes, to last Thursday's deaths of 13 US service members in a suicide bombing, the evacuation from Taliban-controlled Kabul has been ugly and traumatic.

How much it has hurt Biden politically is the question ricocheting around the White House, Congress and a divided nation.

A longtime former senator and two-term vice-president, Biden long boasted of his foreign policy expertise. With close allies like Britain upset over the abrupt Afghan pullout and China mocking US policy from the sidelines, those claims are now tarnished.

Some Republicans have demanded impeachment and government resignations.

Right-wing media, such as the hugely popular Fox News, is pushing the image of 78-year-old Biden as incapable of coping in a crisis. Even usually more friendly outlets like CNN have turned hard on the president's performance in Afghanistan.

Many analysts, however, think that Americans' traditional disinterest in what happens beyond their borders will spare Biden longterm consequences.—AFP ■

Taliban takeover spurs old fears among ex-Soviet neighbours

THE Taliban's takeover of Afghanistan has brought back bad memories to the country's ex-Soviet neighbours, who fear a jihadist threat and a refugee crisis. While the Islamist militants have never vied for territory beyond Afghanistan, their reign some two decades ago still wrought uncertainty in neighbouring Central Asia.

Now the region's governments are steeling themselves against instability spilling over into their territory once again while locals are preparing for new neighbours at home.

"If refugees come we will give them our home and our salt and bread," said Abdualziz Mukhamadjanov, a 26-year-old businessman in the city of Termez in southern Uzbekistan near the Afghan border.

"What else can you do?"

That sentiment is not shared by Russia, a longstanding force in the region, which has urged

Central Asia to refuse Western requests to shelter Afghans. Refugees have nonetheless arrived in Uzbekistan, though the government has said that it is only allowing them to pass through.

On 20 August it said it had assisted the westward evacuation of nearly 2,000 people — mostly European citizens working in the country and some Afghans — via the capital Tashkent's airport.

It also said it had returned 150 Afghans following talks with the Taliban to guarantee their security. Still, reports have circulated of large numbers of refugees crossing into Uzbekistan over the Amu Darya river using makeshift rafts, and an Afghan embassy staffer told AFP that a coronavirus centre in Termez was housing up to 1,500 people.—AFP ■

China tightens measures to prevent online gaming addiction among minors

CHINA'S National Press and Publication Administration (NPPA) has released a notice on preventing minors from becoming addicted to online games.

Online game providers can only offer one-hour services to minors from 8 pm to 9 pm on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, as well as on official holidays, according to the document made public on Monday.

It also urged the strict implementation of real-name registration and logins, saying that online game providers must not provide any form of game service to users who fail to register and log in using their real identifications.

Press and publication administrations at all levels have been asked to supervise the implementation of related measures and deal with companies that fail to put measures in place.

Minors' addiction to online games has drawn much attention from the society, an official with the NPPA said, adding that the newly-released notice is meant for minors who are still in the developmental stage physically and mentally, and have poor self-control.—Xinhua ■

Bank robbers strap hostages to cars during deadly raid

HEAVILY armed gangsters strapped hostages to their getaway cars after robbing two banks in Brazil, in a rampage that left three people dead, police and reports said Monday.

Using explosives, drones and heavy weapons, the assailants took over downtown streets in the southeastern city of Aracatuba, home to some 200,000 people.

After robbing two banks, they made their escape by strapping hostages to the roofs and hoods of moving cars, according to shocking images broadcast by local news channels.—AFP ■

US drone strike wiped out Kabul family, brother says

WHEN Ezmarai Ahmadi returned home from work on Sunday evening in Kabul, the usual gaggle of squealing children were waiting to greet him -- his sons and daughters, and a slew of nieces and nephews.

He pulled his white sedan into the driveway of a modest house in Kwaja Burga, a densely populated neighbourhood in the northwest of the Afghan capital, and handed the keys to his eldest son to park.

Youngsters piled into the vehicle -- pretending the parking routine was an adventure -- while Ezmarai watched from the side.

Then out of the blue Afghan sky, a missile came screeching down -- striking the car with a terrible force and obliterating the lives of 10 people in an instant.—AFP ■

Japan seeks record defence budget with spending for new technologies

JAPAN'S Defence Ministry on Tuesday requested a 5.4 trillion yen ($49 billion) budget for fiscal 2022, aiming to accelerate enhancement of capabilities in new domains and promote the development of new technologies to deal with China's growing military presence.

The request would exceed a record 5.3 trillion yen allocated in the initial budget for fiscal 2021 started in April, rising for the tenth consecutive year. It does not include outlays linked to hosting U.S. military bases, which have been about 200 billion yen annually.

The ministry said it also left out the cost of upgrading 70

F-15 fighter jets. It aims to install Lockheed Martin's air-to-surface standoff missile and will continue negotiations with the United States to decrease the estimated total cost of 398.0 billion yen.

It ramped up research and development expenditures, up 114.1 billion yen to a record 325.7 billion yen, for potentially game-changing technologies, such as crewless aircraft using artificial intelligence, to support next-generation fighter jets, while continuing enhancement of capabilities in such new domains as outer space and cyberspace.

The request for such spending will include systems for the electromagnetic spectrum to shoot down drones and other aerial threats with high-energy lasers or microwaves.

The ministry asked for 130.0 billion yen to acquire more F-35 advanced stealth fighter jets and 10.2 billion yen for small and mid-sized transport ships to support remote island defence operations in the country's southwest.

Such islands include the Japanese-controlled, Beijing-claimed Senkaku Islands, which China calls Diaoyu, in the East China Sea. Missile units will be placed on Ishigaki Island to strengthen defence capabilities around the country's southwest chain of islands, the ministry said.—Kyodo ■

U.S. completes troop withdrawal from Afghanistan to end 20-year war

THE U.S. administration of President Joe Biden said Monday it has completed the withdrawal of its troops from Afghanistan, bringing an end to two decades of war triggered by the terror attacks of 11 Sept. 2001, on American soil.

While the troop removal itself has been widely supported by the public, the cost of the U.S. pullout has been high as the move made way for the Taliban's return to power for the first time in about 20 years and resulted in chaotic and deadly evacuation efforts for Americans and Afghans who worked alongside the United States. "Now, our 20-year military presence in Afghanistan has ended," Biden said in a statement, referring to the withdrawal that came just ahead of his self-imposed deadline on Tuesday.

The U.S. military said the last C-17 aircraft lifted off from the international airport in Kabul at 11:59 pm local time. A Taliban spokesman declared "complete independence," saying that the last U.S. soldier has left Kabul airport, according to Al Jazeera TV.

Biden said he will address the nation on his decision to end the U.S. military presence in Afghanistan on Tuesday, while pledging that the United States will continue to lead coordination with other countries to ensure safe passage for any Americans, Afghans or foreign nationals who want to get out of the war-torn country. The U.S. retreat from Afghanistan, meanwhile, leaves concerns over the possibility of Afghanistan becoming once again a safe haven for terrorists as well as the potential for severe erosion of civil liberties under the rule of the Taliban, known for oppressing women during its former rule.—Kyodo ■

Stalin-era mass graves unearthed

THE remains of up to 20,000 people have been found in Ukraine's southern city of Odesa as excavations continue at a site believed to be a mass grave of victims of Stalin's Terror, historians said Monday.

According to various estimates, the bones of between 5,000 and 20,000 people lie in the ground, making it one of the largest mass graves unearthed in Ukraine so far.

They were discovered this month close to Odessa airport after exploratory works started as part of expansion plans.

As of today, 29 graves have been discovered. The bodies lie in several layers," local historian Oleksandr Babych told journalists at the site which until recently was a garbage dump.

"Already we can clearly see at least five layers", he said.

Historians believe that these people were executed in the 1930s, the time known as Stalin's Great Terror.

Archaeologist Tetyana Samoylova, a chief consultant at the site, highlighted the "cynicism" with which the sentences were carried out.

"They dug out pits in the garbage and threw these people in or shot them dead as they were standing there," Samoylova said. "And then they covered them with the same garbage," she added, standing next to the dozens of graves marked by red tape.—AFP ■

Taliban parade in Kabul airport after US leave

Taliban spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid (C, with shawl) led a group of officials onto the runway of Kabul airport after the US withdrawal.

HOURS after the final foreign forces flew out of Afghanistan, Taliban leaders walked victorious through the airport, flanked by guards dressed in special forces combat kit inspecting destroyed US helicopters.

Taliban spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid led a group of officials onto the runway, his usual stoic expression replaced by broad grin.

The Taliban's so-called "Badri 313" special forces unit posed for pictures, brandishing US rifles and flying the group's white flag.

Once one of the most secure sites in Afghanistan, the airport's passenger terminal was trashed.

Empty bullet casings littered floor near all the entrances.

After the Taliban entered the capital on August 15, the airport was surrounded by vast crowds trying to get their way onto an evacuation flight -- but many more were blocked by a ring of Taliban checkpoints.

On Tuesday, all checkpoints, bar one, had been removed from the road leading to the airport.

The mood had changed too.

Italy's Kean joins Juventus after Ronaldo exit

MOISE Kean will be the final piece of Juventus' post-Cristiano Ronaldo attack after the Italy forward completed his move from Everton on Tuesday.

Kean, 21, returns to the club where he began his professional career as an academy graduate on a two-year loan which will then turn into a permanent sale for a reported fee of 20 million euros ($23.6 million), subject to certain conditions being met.

"Moise is back and he joins us on loan," Juventus said on its Twitter account.

Juventus announced the move while also officially confirming the departure of five-time Ballon d'Or winner Ronaldo, who will join his former club Manchester United.

Juve sold Kean to Everton in the summer of 2019 after excelling in his breakthrough season in Serie A but he failed to impress in England and last season was loaned to Paris Saint-Germain.

He scored 17 times in 41 appearances for the star-studded French side, who lost their Ligue 1 title to Lille and were knocked out of the Champions League by Manchester City.

On Friday Kean was called up to the Italy squad after missing out on Euro 2020, won by Roberto Mancini's impressive Azzurri last month.—AFP ■

Evacuated Afghan athlete makes debut at Tokyo Paralympics

AFGHAN athlete Hossain Rasouli competed in a long jump event on Tuesday at the Tokyo Paralympics after recently being evacuated from his home country, now under the control of the Taliban. He became the first athlete representing Afghanistan to take part in the Tokyo Paralympics, a feat that looked impossible when it appeared the country's team would be unable to travel safely to Japan to be part of the world's largest sporting event for people with disabilities, which started a week ago. Rasouli, 26, who arrived in Tokyo three days ago, competed in the men's T47 long jump and finished last of the 13 jumpers who took part with a best leap of 4.46 metres.

He was originally scheduled to compete in the men's T47 100 metres but arrived too late. It was the first time he competed in long jump at a major meet, according to the International Paralympic Committee.

Rasouli lost his left forearm when a Taliban-laid landmine exploded when he was farming in 2013. When he was introduced on large screens at the National Stadium before the jump event, he raised his right arm and smiled at the camera, but he did not speak to the press after competing.—Kyodo News ■
