State budget must be spent on actually beneficial ...

In its tenure, the government is striving for ensuring political stability while overcoming the challenges in the third wave of COVID-19 happening across the world. The third wave of the pandemic started in Myanmar in June and July. Thanks to the diligence and perseverance of the leaders and the cooperation of the people amid the difficulties, success has been achieved to some extent.

The infection rate of the COVID-19 pandemic is still high. Indonesia among ASEAN countries faces the highest infection rate, followed by the Philippines. Myanmar stands the sixth position among ASEAN countries, having more than 417,000 infected persons and 15,985 dead persons till 6 September. In early July, the infection rate reached 40 per cent. So, the government strived for a half down of infection, and now, the infection rate hits just 10 per cent. Despite the declining infection rate, it should not be careless as the pandemic does not totally disappear now. As the boat race example given by late General Aung San, as unacceptable proud may derail from the achievement, Union ministers and region/state chief ministers should place special emphasis on supervising the tasks.

The main drive of a country is political, economic and Efforts must be made for increasing the per-acre yield of cotton to be able to cut the import volume of cotton. The Senior General said he has stressed the need to narrow the development gap between urban and rural areas with the wish to ensure equal development of all areas. All ministries need to comprehensively consider the measures of all over the country for fulfilling the requirements.

defence might. The powerful countries across the world have political might, military might and economic might. It is necessary to strive for having the political might. Some countries are powerful in their military and economy. The institutions need to strive for the political and defence of the countries. The economic drive is actually beneficial to the State economy. It is necessary to overcome the challenges of COVID-19 and ensure political stability for the improvement of the State economy.

Only when people are healthy can they work and learn. The existence of COVID-19 will affect the health of the people. Schools were closed for about two months. When the schools open, students will have learning opportunities. Continuous learning will have an improvement in the education sector, so emphasis must be placed on academic matters for the students. Management has been made not to delay the import of vaccines and medicines for COVID-19 and other necessary drugs.

Myanmar's main products come out from agricultural and livestock farms. Production of natural resources is under limitation. So, all need to systematically carry out agriculture and livestock farms. Many agro-based countries are striving for ensuring smooth food supplies and earning incomes. Myanmar needs to operate agriculture and livestock tasks to earn foreign exchange via the global market. The country grows some 15 million acres of monsoon and two million acres of summer paddy which would be sufficient for a 55 million population with much surplus of paddy to be exported to foreign countries. As per-acre yield does not reach 100 baskets of paddy, the export volume of rice does not meet the expectation. Chief ministers of regions and states need to supervise the cultivation of paddy in their respective areas.

Moreover, it is necessary to ensure edible oil sufficiency. Oil palm plants are grown in Taninthayi Region whereas edible oil crops are grown in Mandalay, Sagaing, Magway and Ayeyawady regions and Shan State. Efforts must be made for increasing the per-acre yield of cotton to be able to cut the import volume of cotton. The Senior General said he has stressed the need to narrow the development gap between urban and rural areas with the wish to ensure equal development of all areas. All ministries need to comprehensively consider the measures of all over the country for fulfilling the requirements.

The Union ministers sought the approvals for their reports.

In his response to the reports, the Senior General said the suspension of State-owned factories causes loss for the country. As such, it is necessary to consider the availability of raw materials and inputs and market share in order to resume the State-owned factories suspended for various reasons and produce quality products. Officials need to urge all personnel to consciously use the State-owned equipment in order to avoid waste and loss. Staff housings must be built to complete on the schedules.

In his concluding speech, the Senior General noted that more than 2.1 million doses of the COVID-19 vaccine have been injected for the first time and over 2.6 million for the second time. A total of 10 million units of anti-COVID-19 vaccines will arrive in Myanmar in the coming October and four more million in November. Arrangements are being made to purchase more vaccines.

The government spent US$169 million on the purchase of anti-COVID-19 vaccine and other medical equipment and K566 billion on repairing hospitals and clinics, COVID centres and social organizations. Moreover, more than 500,000 USD was spent on general measures. The government is ready to spend the fund on the prevention of COVID-19 and officials need to efficiently use them.

Although some ethnic armed organizations broke the agreement of NCA for various reasons, the government arranges vaccination for these organizations under the rights of the citizen. Anyone should not be left in COVID-19 vaccination. Arrangements are being made to vaccinate the people from ethnic armed organization areas in addition to those from Rakhine State. Such a move does not depend on political trends but the national cause without ism and personal cult. It is an effort to enable all the people to participate in the endeavours of State prosperity.

Myanmar is a sovereign nation. Some persons and organizations turn a blind eye to the country for its international relations in line with the State prestige. Officials from regions and states sharing borders with foreign countries need to do anything in line with the international charters and agreements in border relations with the prestige and integrity of the State. It is necessary to avoid the acts of discredit the State prestige and integrity. All officials need to improve the respective sectors for the uplift of the State integrity. The State budget must be spent on actually beneficial projects but reduced on unnecessary measures through thrifty ways. —MNA

The institutions need to strive for the political and defence of the countries. The economic drive is actually beneficial to the State economy. It is necessary to overcome the challenges of COVID-19 and ensure political stability for the improvement of the State economy.

Statement to appreciate teachers' efforts

TEACHERS are honoured as part of the Five Infinite Venerables, and the manner of paying respect to the teachers can be only seen in Myanmar as a tradition. The teachers teach their pupils based on their goodwill like their own children and dutifully serve a teacher's duties. They must train their pupils and students in the best discipline. They see that they grasp their lessons well. They instruct them in the arts and sciences, they provide for their safety in every quarter, and they introduce them to their friends and associates.

As the COVID-19 infection rate is controlled to a certain extent, the basic education high, middle and primary schools under the Department of Basic Education have reopened across nation for the 2021-2022 academic year starting 1 June.

Those who want to seek good sake of one party, political extremist NLD members and supporters, NUG, CRPH and PDF committed arson attacks at the schools using mines, homemade bombs and grenades to fail the teaching processes, and threatened the teachers in addition to the incitements, social punishment and threats against education staff to join CDM while the officials made preparations for the reopening of schools and during the current teaching period. Their doings left some casualties, and the State Administration Council has expressed its deepest condolences and sympathy to the victims' families.

The SAC also appreciates the concerted efforts of teachers, who understand two virtues, Hiri — shame at doing evil — and Otappa—fear of the results of doing evil —for teaching the new generations of the country amid such difficulties and challenges.

The security forces will take extraordinary measures to ensure the safety of teachers who are making efforts in the academic sector for the next generations in order to promote the education qualification. The people should keep security awareness and cooperate with the security members in community peace and peaceful learning of children.

Start preparations to show rowing skills in traditional boat races

MYANMAR is a country teeming with water sources such as creeks and rivers in its nature. In consequence, most of the Myanmar people are skilful in livelihoods related to water sources.

Since time immemorial, Myanmar forefathers have been using small and large boats for transportation from one place to another. They used creeks and rivers as their transport ways. They earned income from trading goods with the people along both banks of creeks and rivers. Till today, everybody can see towns and villages were established on both banks of Ayeyawady, Chindwin, Thanlwin, Sittoung, Laymyo and Kaladan rivers.

In fact, Myanmar's traditional boat races held across the nation have turned out the skillfully selected rowers for the national squad which bagged a lot of gold, silver and bronze medals in the international contests for the State.

Myanmar lunar calendar which generally falls in September when the weather is generally fine.

Most of the rural people can suspend their farming works during the period and join the races enthusiastically. At present, these boat races are basic for taking exercises so as to take part in the internationally traditional boat races. In fact, Myanmar's traditional boat races held across the nation have turned out the skillfully selected rowers for the national squad which bagged a lot of gold, silver and bronze medals in the international contests for the State.

Currently, the climatic condition is fine. Now is in September. Myanmar people not only in urban lands but in rural areas are keen to take part in the traditional boat races mostly held in the countryside, which will be attractive to the international tourists and local travellers.

European tourists boost sector, but can't top Americans, Asians

Tourism-dependent Greece hosted more than two million visitors in July and August.

EUROPEAN travellers helped plug a gap left by Asian and North American tourists stranded at home by the pandemic, staving off a total washout this year for Europe's hospitality industry. But many Brits stayed at home.

After a disastrous 2020 tourism season, the sector had banked on vaccination campaigns and the easing of travel restrictions to see brighter days this summer.

While European visitors might have shored up numbers, the recovery was patchy with tourists spending in different places, on different things — and not with the same largesse as the big-spending Chinese or Americans.

Fears over suddenly changing Covid travel restrictions and — for the UK, especially — the cost of mandatory Covid-19 tests have also driven the disruption to travel patterns this summer.

Tourism-dependent Greece hosted more than two million visitors in July and August — “something we haven't seen since 2019,” said Haris Theocharis, the tourism minister until a cabinet reshuffle in late August.

Napolean, the owner of a bar in Athen's Plaka tourist hot-spot, said he had exceeded his targets

Visitors through the Promenade des Anglais in Nice... but, Les Anglais didn't make it this year. PHOTO: AFP

“by more than 50 per cent” this summer.

But at the nearby Byron Hotel, co-manager Zimi Mistiopoulos said they only had 10 days of full occupancy. Two years ago, there wasn't a room to be had all season, he said.

“Even if the tourists were there, they didn't buy that much,” said Dimitris Papachristodoulou, owner of several souvenir shops, lamenting the loss of Americans and Chinese, “who consume the most”.

Not quite there

Those groups were also absent from Italy, where the Hotel Cosmopolita in the heart of Rome has had “an average of three or five occupied rooms out of 82”, said Walter Pecoraro, the owner and president of the hoteliers' association of Lazio, the capital region.

“Roman tourism is 80 per cent foreign, 80 per cent of which are Americans and Asians,” he told AFP. According to the association, 600 hotels out of 1,200 in Rome were open this summer, with average occupancy at only 30-35 per cent.

Spain, the world's second-largest tourist destination behind France in 2019, welcomed 4.4 million visitors in July, 78 per cent up on a year earlier, national statistics institute data show.

But that's a far cry from the 9.9 million in pre-pandemic 2019.

The Mediterranean coast was the most favoured destination: establishments in Catalonia recorded an occupancy rate close to 95 per cent in August.

The French were Spain's top visitors, with 874,000 vacationing there, ahead of the Germans (707,000) and the British (555,000).

Brits, in pre-Covid times the largest contingent, this year largely opted to stay at home.

Bookings are “running at a fraction of a normal year with the main barriers to travel being concerns about the traffic light system” of colour-coded restrictions and the cost of tests, the British federation of travel agents said.

Those who decided to go anyway opted mainly for the islands of Spain and Greece.

“What stands out this summer is that very few destinations were open,” said Ana Domenech, France director of booking site lastminute.com.

“Greece was clearly the new destination of the summer, with 79 per cent more travellers than in 2019,” she said.

Holiday at home

In fact, more than 450,000 French made their way to Greece this year.

But as with the UK, people travelling within their own countries also created “a beautiful summer” for the domestic industry, said Sebastien Manceau, an expert in tourism at the Roland Berger consulting firm.

Of the 37 million French people who went on holiday this summer, 85 per cent stayed in the country, according to Jean-Baptiste Lemoyne, junior minister for tourism. “As the weather was capricious, some regions suffered, such as Brittany and Normandy”, to the benefit of the south of France, Manceau said.

At Les Sableres campsite in Vieux-Boucau, on the southwest coast, the 500 pitches were full from mid-July to the end of August, and up to 150 requests per day had to be turned down.

“We returned to the levels of 2019, if not better”, the site's director, Herve Labarthe, said.

And the foreigners have returned — at least from within Europe: Belgians, Dutch, Germans.

“But we still don't have the British,” Manceau said.

The Abdala and Soberana vaccines are being given to children aged between 2-11.

CUBA on Monday became the first country in the world to vaccinate children from the age of two against COVID-19, using home-grown jabs not recognized by the World Health Organization.

The communist island of 11.2 million people aims to inoculate all its children before reopening the schools that have been closed for the most part since March 2020.

The new school year started on Monday, but from home via television programmes, as most Cuban homes do not have internet access. Having completed clinical trials on minors with its Abdala and Soberana vaccines, Cuba kicked off its inoculation campaign for children on Friday, starting with those 12 and older.

On Monday, it started distributing jabs in the 2-11 age group in the central province of Cienfuegos.

Several other countries in the world are vaccinating children from the age of 12, and some are conducting trials in younger kids.

Countries such as China, the United Arab Emirates and Venezuela have announced they plan to vaccinate younger children, but Cuba is the first to do so.

Chile on Monday approved the Chinese Sinovac vaccines for children between six and 12.

The Cuban vaccines, the first developed in Latin America, have not undergone international, scientific peer review. They are based on recombinant protein technology — the same used by the United States' Novavax and France's Sanofi jabs also awaiting WHO approval.

Unlike many other shots in use, recombinant vaccines do not require extreme refrigeration.

The majority of schools in Cuba have been closed since March 2020, reopening for a few weeks at the end of last year before closing again in January. The government has announced schools will reopen gradually, in October and November, but only after all children have been vaccinated. UN agency UNICEF has called for schools worldwide to reopen as soon as possible, as “the long-term costs of closures are too high and hard to justify.”

Myanmar pharmaceutical imports top $397.46 mln in nine months

THE import value of Myanmar pharmaceutical products was estimated at US$397.46 million in the nine months (October-June) of the current financial year 2020-2021, according to Myanmar Customs Department.

Myanmar imports 90 per cent of medicine and medical products through foreign markets, the Myanmar Chambers of Commerce for Pharmaceutical & Medical Device (MC-CPMD) stated.

India is the main supplier for Myanmar. Also, it is imported by Bangladesh, China, Germany, Indonesia, Japan, the Republic of Korea, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, China (Taipei), Thailand, the US and Viet Nam.

Most commonly prescribed drugs are available in the market. Only some are out of stock for now. At present, pharmaceutical import is regularly flowing. However, the prices of pharmaceuticals were up by 5 to 10 per cent owing to the Kyat depreciation in the local forex market. The COVID-19 related medical devices including surgical masks and pulse oximeters are highly demanded in the country amid the COVID-19 surging cases, a market observer said.

The Trade Department granted a temporary import licence exemption for 92 HS code lines up to three months starting from 1 September, in a bid to facilitate the trade during the COVID-19 crisis.

The Ministry of Commerce also cut the red tape for imports of some pharmaceuticals which have been imported.

The Republic of the Union of Myanmar Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry (UMFCCI) is accelerating its effort to facilitate the inflow of essential medicines in the devastating time of the COVID-19 crisis, along with the related committees, departments concerned, traders and entrepreneurs.

The federation formed a task force on 25 July 2021,

Domestic gold price sets fresh record high up to K1.8 mln per tical

THE price of pure gold metal reached an all-time high of K1,800,000 per tical (0.578 ounces, or 0.016 kilogrammes), according to Yangon Region Gold Entrepreneurs Association (YGEA).

The spikes in the gold market are attributed to political development, high demand in the domestic gold market, shortage of raw gold metals, the price gain in the international market and the Kyat depreciation.

The global gold price stood at only US$1,816 per ounce at the present time, while the US dollar exchange rate is worth above K1,800.

On 12 May, the gold hit a peak of K1,709,000 per tical and the current rate hit the highest in history.

As a result of this, YGEA urged its members to regulate trade in order to deal with market volatility.

To regulate unsustainable rally in the domestic gold market, the association called for the members to make the gold transaction with only immediate payment, avoid the verbal transactions over calls and halt trading outside the Yangon region, according to YGEA.

In January 2021, the gold price was ranged between the minimum of K1,316,000 per tical (28 January) and the maximum of K1,336,000 per tical (6 January). It reached an all-time high of K1,410,000 per tical on 3 February and hit the minium of K1,340,000 per tical on 2 February. In March, the rate fluctuated between the highest of K1,391,000 (25 March) and the lowest of K1,302,000 (4 March). The price was registered the highest of K1,455,000 (30 April) and the lowest of K1,389,000 (1 April). The price reached an all-time highest of K1,709,000 (12 May) and the lowest of K1,447,000 in May. The price moved in the maximum of K1,575,500 (11 June) and the minimum of K1,543,000 (19 June). Last month, it fluctuated between K1,562,300 (26 Jul) and K1,587,000 (K1,587,000), the gold traders said.

According to gold traders, the local gold reached the lowest level of K1,310,500 (2 September) and the highest level of K1,314,000 (1 September). In October, the rate ranged between K1,307,800 (30 October) and K1,316,500 (21 October). The rate fluctuated between the highest of K1,317,000 (9 November) and the lowest of K1,270,000 (30 November). In December, the pure yellow metal priced moved in the range of 1,280,000 (1 December) and 1,332,000 (28 December).

With global gold prices on the uptick, the domestic price hit fresh highs in 2019, reaching K1,000,000 per tical between 17 January and 21 February, crossing K1,100,000 (22 June to 5 August), climbing to over 1,200,000 (7 August-4 September), and then reaching a record high of K1,300,000 on 5 September 2019. — NN/GNLM

UK pledges £5.4 bn for pandemic-hit state healthcare

THE UK government on Monday announced £5.4 billion (6.3 billion euros, $7.5 billion) in extra funding for the state-funded healthcare system to treat virus cases and clear a massive backlog in routine operations.

Prime Minister Boris Johnson and health minister Sajid Javid announced the extra cash, to be handed out over the next six months, saying it would help “manage the immediate pressures of the pandemic”.

The state-funded National Health Service, or NHS, has struggled to cope with soaring virus rates and has diverted medics away from their usual specializations to help treat Covid-19 patients, leading to long waiting lists for operations and treatment.

The largest part of the extra funding, £2.8 billion is allocated to virus-related costs such as enhanced infection control measures, the government said, while £1 billion will help tackle the backlog in other treatment and operations.

Johnson acknowledged that “treating Covid patients has created huge backlogs” and said the money would go “straight to the frontline” to provide treatments that patients “aren’t getting quickly enough.”

Javid said the waiting lists would get worse before they get better due to more people coming forward for treatment following relaxation of virus restrictions.

The health ministry predicted the waiting list for routine operations such as hip replacements and cataract removal could soar to 13 million.

The extra funding announced is only for England while other regions will receive up to £1 billion this and next year.

The UK’s total virus cases rose to 7.02 million on Monday.

The announcement comes as the government is also proposing a hike in a tax on earnings to help pay for care homes for older people, many of whom currently have to meet these costs privately.—Xinhua ■

UK: Over 7m cases since start of pandemic

The UK has recorded more than seven million COVID cases since the start of the pandemic, according to the latest data.

The COVID crisis has placed what has sometimes seemed like an intolerable burden upon the health service and inflicted terrible losses upon a care sector that bore the brunt of the initial outbreak.

On Monday, the government announced a £5.4bn boost to help the NHS deal with both COVID and the backlog in non-COVID treatments over the coming months.—AFP ■

Japan: Third person dies after taking contaminated Moderna jab

A third man has died following injection from a contaminated batch of Moderna vaccines, although authorities say no link has yet been found to the vaccine.

The Japanese health ministry reported that the 9 year old died the day after receiving his second shot, in mid-August. Aside from a buckwheat allergy, he had no known underlying health conditions. The shot came from one of three contaminated batches that has subsequently been found to contain fragments of stainless steel. On 26 August, all affected 1.63m doses were withdrawn.—AFP ■

Vietnam jails man for five years for spreading Covid

A Vietnamese man has been sentenced to five years in jail for spreading Covid-19 after he breached home quarantine rules.

Le Van Tri was convicted of “spreading dangerous infectious diseases to other people” after he travelled to his home province Ca Mau from coronavirus hotspot Ho Chi Minh City in July, according to a report on the website of the provincial People’s Court.

The 28-year old was accused of breaching a 21-day home quarantine regulation in the southern province, which had a lower case rate than Ho Chi Minh City, and he tested positive for Covid-19 on 7 July.

“Tri’s breach of the home medical quarantine regulation led to many people becoming infected with Covid-19 and one person died on 7 August 2021,” according to the court report.

State media said eight people became infected because of Tri.

After keeping case numbers low last year, Vietnam is now dealing with its most serious Covid-19 outbreak so far, with nearly 540,000 infections and more than 13,000 deaths recorded.—AFP ■

Cuba to relax pandemic restrictions for incoming travellers

CUBA is set to relax pandemic border control measures for international passengers starting 15 November, the island’s Ministry of Tourism (Mintur) announced Monday on its website.

“The Caribbean nation will relax COVID-19 hygiene and sanitary protocols for incoming travellers,” the ministry said, adding new measures will focus on monitoring symptomatic patients and temperature checks.

Cuba will no longer demand a PCR test upon arrival and COVID-19 vaccination certificates issued abroad will be accepted by customs authorities, Mintur said.

Additionally, the domestic tourism market will gradually re-open depending on the evolution of the pandemic in each region.

The decision to spur international tourism was made on the grounds that “more than 90 per cent of the country’s population is expected to be fully vaccinated by November,” the ministry said.

Cuba on Monday registered 7,230 new confirmed cases of the novel coronavirus and 85 related deaths in 24 hours, bringing the national total to 696,904 cases and 5,788 deaths, respectively.

The island resumed scheduled commercial flights in November 2020, when Havana’s Jose Marti International Airport restarted operations after having been closed for more than seven months due to the pandemic.

At present, international passengers who arrive on the island are required to quarantine either at hotel facilities allocated by the government or isolation centers. In pre-pandemic times, the tourism industry in the Caribbean nation accounted for more than 10 per cent of Cuba’s hard currency earnings.

Texas zoo vaccinates animals

THE San Antonio zoo says it’s preparing to vaccinate its first group of animals since the pandemic started. But they insist it’s just a precaution.

“Some of the primates and gorillas at other institutions have had Covid,” says Dr Rob Coke, senior director of veterinarian care at the zoo.

He says that even though some animals have shown only mild Covid symptoms when they’ve contracted the disease, the zoo wants to make sure its animals are as safe as possible:

“Luckily, none of them have passed away from it, but they do get ill. We want to make sure we try to prevent that type of illness.”—AFP ■

Merkel's record mixed as she takes wheel at last IAA show

No German leader's diary would be complete without a visit to the venerable IAA motor show, which welcomes Angela Merkel on Tuesday for the last time in her chancellorship.

But the biennial celebration of all things auto-related is mired in controversy this year as Germany struggles to adapt its flagship industry to the electric and digital revolution.

Merkel, who is quitting politics after an election on 26 September, has been a regular at the show over her 16 years in power — even earning the sobriquet the “car chancellor” for her efforts to shield German carmakers from tougher EU pollution rules.

The German leader will give a speech when the fair opens to trade visitors on Tuesday in Munich, a new location as part of efforts to rebrand itself as a “mobility fair” with a spotlight on electric cars.

But there is little chance of the chancellor herself arriving in an electric vehicle, since they make up only 2.4 per cent of the government's 25,000-strong fleet, according to official figures from January.

The figure rises to 5.6 per cent when taking into account hybrids and cars that run on clean fuels.

Even so, it is a stark reflection of the blind spots in state support for the German automotive industry, which has received billions of euros in funding in recent years but without any meaningful focus on clean mobility.

'Depressing and incomprehensible'

The 2015 “dieselgate” scandal spelled the beginning of the end for diesel. That was when Germany's biggest carmaker Volkswagen admitted to fitting 11 million vehicles with illegal emissions-cheating devices.

China trade enjoys forecast-beating surge in August

CHINA'S exports and imports enjoyed forecast-beating growth in August, with data on Tuesday showing overseas demand for cars, electronics and consumer goods surged as a domestic coronavirus outbreak was brought to heel.

The figures follow a recent spate of weak numbers that had suggested the recovery in the world's second-biggest economy was flattening owing to a spike in the Delta variant that has forced some countries to impose containment measures and hit consumer sentiment.

They also came despite the shutdown of a major port caused by the virus outbreak, which observers had expected to hit shipments.

EL Salvador on Tuesday becomes the first country in the world to accept bitcoin as legal tender, despite widespread domestic skepticism and international warnings of risks for consumers.

UK awaits fallout from end of jobs support scheme

The British government's furlough scheme that has supported millions of private-sector jobs during the pandemic is close to ending, a move that risks a spike in unemployment according to economists.

Experts, however, do not expect sectors seriously affected by a shortage of staff owing to the virus outbreak and Brexit — such as road haulage — to necessarily benefit from the bigger pool of available workers.

“The furlough scheme has played a key role — protecting nearly 12 million jobs over the last 18 months,” the Treasury told AFP in a statement ahead of the multi-billion-pound programme finishing at the end of September. With the UK economy in recovery mode thanks to the lifting of lockdown restrictions at home and abroad, Britain's unemployment rate stands at 4.7 per cent, down from a pandemic peak of 5.2 per cent at the end of last year. But the UK already has more than one million job vacancies despite the furlough scheme supporting jobs at a cost of almost £70 billion ($95 billion, 82 billion euros).

“It is certainly possible, if not likely, that there will be a temporary fall in employment and rise in unemployment in October,” noted Paul Dales, chief UK economist at Capital Economics research group.—AFP ■

Climate change fuelling surge in property insurance: Swiss Re

CLIMATE change will help propel a threefold surge in property insurance premiums over the coming two decades, according to a study published on Monday by Swiss Re.

More frequent and stronger weather events, rising seas and wildfires driven by man-made changes to the world's climate will see demand for insurance protection for buildings and infrastructure grow faster than other segments of the industry, it said.

That trend will reinforce long-term shifts driven by urbanization and rising wealth in emerging economies, the company said in a report for the annual Rendezvous September reinsurance industry gathering in Zurich.

Swiss Re, which provides insurance for other insurance companies, set out to forecast the major trends driving the sector until 2040.

According to its study, while premiums in property and casualty reinsurance combined will more than double to $4.3 trillion (3.6 trillion euros), those for property alone are set to almost triple.

At $1.3 trillion in 2040, property-related premiums will account for 29 per cent of all premiums collected, up from about 25 per cent in 2020, it said.—AFP ■

Japan business lobby urges to exempt quarantine for inoculated travellers

JAPAN'S largest business lobby, known as Keidanren, on Monday urged the Japanese government to promptly consider exempting overseas arrivals who are fully vaccinated against COVID-19 from quarantine and cutting the current quarantine period of 14 days to less than 10 days, local media reported Monday. Masakazu Tokura, the head of the Japan Business Federation, submitted the proposals to Japanese Prime Minister

Yoshihide Suga, believing that once the recent surge in COVID-19 infections was mitigated, the government should proactively take steps to restart economic and social activities. In addition, the business lobby suggested that the treatment of COVID-19 patients should not be limited to designated hospitals and clinics, and that drugstores should be allowed to sell simple antigen test kits approved by the health ministry.—Xinhua ■

VW's electric push 'can't go any faster', says CEO

VOLKSWAGEN chief executive Herbert Diess said Monday it was "impossible" for the German car giant's electric transformation to happen any faster, but he accused Angela Merkel's government of holding back change with generous diesel subsidies.

In an interview with AFP and the Financial Times at the IAA motor show in Munich, Diess said the VW group "was

"Can we do it faster? No, it's impossible," said Diess. "Because this transition is so complicated, requires so much investment" and capacity building, he said, from battery cell production to new factories.

Nobel laureate Stiglitz says global tax plan should aim higher

NOBEL economics prize laureate Joseph Stiglitz praised international backing for a global tax on corporations but said the minimum rate agreed by governments to battle "the dark side of globalisation" remains too low. More than 130 nations have supported a plan to introduce a tax floor of at least 15 per cent aimed at preventing countries from competing to offer the lowest rates in order to attract multinationals seeking to minimise their tax bills. "It's a fantastic initiative," Stiglitz told AFP on the sidelines of the Ambrosetti Forum, an economics conference next to the scenic Lake Como in Cernobbio, Italy. "The system of multinationals' taxation, which is over 100 years old, is not suited for a 21st century globalized economy," he said.—AFP ■

Guinea junta stands by business commitments, vows 'union' government

The colonel behind a putsch in Guinea promised investors on Monday that business deals would not be affected by the country's latest coup and vowed to form a "government of national union" to oversee a political transition.

In a speech the day after his men arrested the 83-year-old president, opening a new chapter in Guinea's long history of turmoil, Colonel Mamady Doumbouya also declared there would be no "witch hunt" against members of the former government.

Doumbouya, with an eye to the mining industry that is the backbone of the economy, said "activities in the country are continuing as normal."

Guinea will "uphold all its undertakings (and) mining agreements," he promised, stressing "its commitment to give favourable treatment to foreign investment in the country."

Doumbouya was wearing a military uniform as he addressed former ministers and institutional leaders who had been summoned to hear him speak.

He also said "a consultation" would be launched that would "set down the broad parameters" of political transition.

"A government of national union will be established to steer the transition," he said, but gave no details about how long the consultation or the handover would last.—AFP ■

Japanese lawmaker Akimoto given 4-yr jail term over casino graft

A Japanese lawmaker was sentenced Tuesday to four years in prison and ordered to pay fines of about 7.6 million yen ($69,000) in a bribery case linked to the government's project to build casino resorts.

The Tokyo District Court ruled that former ruling Liberal Democratic Party member Tsukasa Akimoto was guilty of receiving bribes worth 7.6 million yen between September 2017 and February 2018 from a Chinese gambling operator aiming to enter Japan's casino market.

Akimoto, 49, was also found guilty of offering money to two former advisers to the Chinese firm 500.com in exchange for giving false court testimony favourable to him between June and July last year, when the House of Representatives lawmaker was released on bail.

It is rare that an incumbent lawmaker is given a prison sentence without suspension.

"Statements of those who admitted to providing cash were fully credible as they were strongly supported by objective evidence," Presiding Judge Toshihiko Niwa said, dismissing Akimoto's claim of innocence.

The judge also recognized Akimoto took the initiative in organizing false court testimony, saying his action was an "unprecedented obstruction of justice."—Kyodo ■

Afghan universities deserted as Taliban impose new rules

Usually, campus corridors at Gharjistan University in Kabul on the first day of term would be packed full of students, but on 6 September there was a strikingly low turnout. PHOTO: AFP

UNIVERSITIES in Kabul were almost empty on the first day of the Afghan school year, as professors and students wrestled with the Taliban's restrictive new rules for the classroom.

The Taliban have promised a softer rule than during their first stint in power from 1996-2001, when women's freedoms in Afghanistan were sharply curtailed and they were banned from higher education.

This time, the hardline Islamist group have said women will be allowed to go to private universities under the new regime, but they face tough restrictions on their clothing and movement.

Women can only attend class if they wear an abaya — a flowing robe — and a niqab — a face veil with a small window to see through — and are separated from men, the Taliban said.

"Our students don't accept this and we will have to close the university," said Noor Ali Rahmani, the director of Gharjistan University in Kabul, on an almost empty campus on Monday.—AFP ■

South Korea successfully launches homegrown SLBM: report

SOUTH KOREA has test-fired a homegrown submarine-launched ballistic missile, a report said Tuesday, as it seeks to build up its forces to defend itself from the nuclear-armed North.

Pyongyang has long sought to develop submarine-launched ballistic missile (SLBM) technology, and showed off four such devices at a military parade overseen by leader Kim Jong Un in January, with state media

KCNA calling them “the world’s most powerful weapon”.

But while North Korea has released pictures of underwater launches, most recently in 2019, analysts believe that was from a fixed platform or submersible barge, rather than a submarine.

South Korea’s Agency for Defence Development last week carried out underwater ejection tests of the SLBM from a new, locally developed 3,000-tonne class submarine fitted with six vertical launching tubes, Yonhap reported, citing unnamed military sources.

The SLBM is believed to be a variant of the country’s Hyunmoo-2B ballistic missile, with a range of around 500 kilometres (310 miles), and will be mass produced for deployment after another round of tests, it added.

Bolsonaro issues decree limiting social media moderation

BRAZILIAN President Jair Bolsonaro issued a decree Monday that changes the rules of content moderation on social media, a move that critics argue could hinder the fight against disinformation.

The decree goes into effect immediately but must be ratified by Congress in order to become law. It aims to combat “the arbitrary and unjust deletion of accounts, profiles and content by providers,” the federal communications secretariat said.

Far-right leader Bolsonaro, who has himself had content removed from his social media accounts for spreading disinformation about Covid-19, says that the suspension or removal of accounts and content that various platforms have subjected him and some of his supporters to is “censorship.”

The new provision establishes a series of hypotheses for which there would be “just cause” to remove content or suspend users — such as committing crimes or inciting violence — and imposes new rules for platforms to do so.—AFP ■

‘We live in fear’: Once embracing, Turkey turns on migrants

GHAWSUDDIN Mubariz was already spending restless nights worrying about being sent back to Afghanistan when a stadium full of Turkish football supporters broke into a chant calling for migrants to go home.

The 20-year-old had felt welcomed when he fled the northeastern Afghan city of Kunduz and crossed into Turkey after a three-week trek across Pakistan and Iran nearly two years ago.

He eventually found a job at a fast-food joint in Istanbul and sent half his earnings to his Afghan relatives so they can better cope with poverty and endless war.

But things changed when the police began rounding up Afghans and placing them in deportation centres in response to growing public anger at migrants that coincides with a new spell of Turkish economic malaise.—AFP ■

Trial of accused 9/11 mastermind restarts, days before 20th anniversary

THE prosecution of alleged 11 September mastermind Khalid Sheikh Mohammed and four others restarts Tuesday, just days before the 20th anniversary of the attacks, stirring new hopes for justice and retribution.

Mohammed and his co-defendants, who have been locked up at the “War on Terror” prison at the US naval base in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba for nearly 15 years, will appear in the military tribunal here for the first time since early 2019.

But after a 17-month halt due to the coronavirus pandemic, the proceedings appear likely to continue where they left off, mired in the defence’s efforts to disqualify most of the government’s evidence as tainted by the torture the defendants underwent in CIA custody.

On Sunday, the new military judge, Air Force Colonel Matthew McCall — the case’s eighth — signalled a slow start, deciding that an initial hearing will take place on Tuesday. Lawyers for both sides are allowed in a war crimes tribunal to question a new judge for possible bias.

The rest of the week will mostly involve meetings with the military prosecutors and defence teams.

With scores of motions lined up to demand evidence that military prosecutors refuse to hand over, defense attorneys said the pretrial phase could easily last another year, placing far over the horizon any hope for a jury trial and verdict.—AFP ■

Venezuela political rivals narrow differences at Mexico talks

VENEZUELA’S government and opposition on Monday found common ground on two fronts, including the country’s pandemic response, in a tentative step towards ending a long-standing political crisis.

The signing of two “partial agreements” came after representatives of President Nicolas Maduro and opposition leader Juan Guaido held four days of talks in Mexico City mediated by Norway. They agreed to meet again on 24 September to 27, with the key issues of elections and sanctions still to be resolved.

The accords involve social protection — including dealing with the coronavirus — and Venezuela’s stance on a disputed border area controlled by Guyana.—AFP ■

Southgate 'open-minded' about World Cup every two years

ENGLAND boss Gareth Southgate says he is "open-minded" about holding the World Cup every two years and has spoken to Arsene Wenger about the proposal.

Former Arsenal manager Wenger, who is now director of development at world governing body FIFA, has called for football's showpiece competition to become a biennial event.

Southgate revealed after England's 4-0 World Cup qualifying win over Andorra on Sunday that he had spoken to the Frenchman about the proposals and that he is open to the possibility — as long as the football calendar does not become overloaded. "I think the whole calendar needs reviewing," he said. "My feedback would be — I don't know how our generation are going to find a World Cup every two years a strange concept.

"But I also know that things like The Hundred in cricket have been an incredible success, so I'm open-minded about some of those things. But the calendar generally needs to be tidied up. We can't keep adding more things in.

"I agree generally with the concept of better-quality matches — fewer matches, better quality across the board, but there's lots of other things that need consideration and we can't just add more in at the moment."

Europe defeat US for second straight Solheim Cup

EUROPE, fuelled by rookies Matilda Castren and Leona Maguire, beat the United States 15-13 to retain golf's Solheim Cup on Monday. Finland's Castren fired out of a bunker and drained her putt at the 18th to secure a 1-up victory over American Lizette Salas for the point that ensured Europe would retain the trophy it won in 2019 at Gleneagles in Scotland.

The Europeans came into the final day of the biennial match-play showdown between European and US women needing five points from 12 singles matches to gain the 14 they needed to take the Cup back home from Inverness Club in Ohio.

Ireland's Maguire — like Castren, the first woman from her country to play in the Solheim Cup — fittingly delivered Europe's first point of the day with a dominant 5&4 victory over Jennifer Kupcho. Maguire, who had already partnered to deliver 3 1/2 points over the first two days in fourball and foursome matches, seized the lead with an eagle at the par-five second and never looked back.

"Just so proud of getting 4 1/2 points on the board for Europe," said Maguire, who became only the third player to earn 4 1/2 or more points in the Solheim Cup.

"I just tried to get off to a really good start and that eagle on the second — couldn't have started any better than that," she said.

"Made birdie on six, which is a hole I haven't played well all week," said Maguire, whose approach at the sixth flew over the pin and left her an eight-footer for birdie.—AFP ■
